EFFORTS TO MOVE ahead on mandatory installation of long-delayed sidewalks in Newark were temporarily stalled in city council on Monday night.

At the request of the city's Sidewalk Appeals Board, city officials and staff spent almost a year reviewing past city policies in regard to sidewalks. Examined in particular was the requirement to have a side-

Clifton resolution tabled

FOLLOWING MORE THAN an hour of discussion that bordered on acrimonious, Newark city council tabled a Resolution on Monday night to ban councilmembers from serving on city committees.

Saying the arrangement never made sense to him, councilmember Jerry Clifton proposed that councilmembers no longer serve on boards, committees, and commissions appointed by council itself. "My feeling is that it is redundant for councilmembers to sit on city committees," said Clifton, "especially when we have a wealth of people in the community to serve."

A STRA PLAZA MAIN Street could be fully leased and ready for occupancy as early as August, according to developer Jeffrey Lang.

"The 12 apartments are already leased and will be ready for occupancy by August 25," said Lang, adding that the two-bedroom apartments are mostly going to University of Delaware students.

The approximately 30,500 square-foot structure being developed at Main and Chapel streets by Commonwealth Management also has nine possible retail spaces.

"We're completing negotiations with retailers and some could be open for business as early as Sept. 1," Lang said.

Already leased is Campus Surf, a beachwear business which will be operated by Celeste Kemple and her sister. "They're from Wilmington," said Lang.

Businesses in the last stage of negotiations include a Jewish delicatessen from New York, a takeout calzone shop, a computer-training company, and a sports apparel shop.

"We're also talking to a local hair salon owner who might relocate on Main Street," said Lang.

Storefronts will be going in next week, according to Lang, while the final sitework, including a canopy over the sidewalk, is expected to begin on August 15.

Commonwealth, which previously developed the Galleria on Main Street, is currently working on two additional downtown projects at the old Newark emergency center and the former Farm and Home building.

Astra Plaza Main Street, under construction at the corner of North Chapel and Main Streets, is expected to open as early as Sept. 1.

Samiches reports theft

The owner of Samiches in the College Square Shopping Center told police this week that between May 1 and July 1, the manager of the restaurant failed to pay the bills for the business and allegedly pocketed the money. Police are still investigating.

Bike taken from 12-year-old Attempted home break-in

On July 25 around 1:30 p.m. a group of four boys chased a 12-year-old boy riding a bike near the Newark Library on East Main Street. Police said the boy told them that he was chased to the Colonial Gardens parking lot where he collided with the curb and flew off the bike. One of the boys chasing him, all described as black males between 8 and 13 years of age, took his red Diamond Back bike valued at $250. Police have identified the boys and notified Family Court to obtain warrants for robbery and conspiracy.

Between 11 p.m. on July 26 and 2 a.m. on July 27 unknown persons attempted to break into a residence on Elkton Road. Police said the molding on the rear door was damaged but the chain lock was still on and no entry was made.

Fire set on downspout

A tenant in a building in the 300 block of East Main Street told Newark Police that on July 18 around 11:50 p.m. unknown persons set fire to the downspout of the building. Police are investigating.

Suspect in sexual assault sought

New Castle County Police have released a photo of the suspect in an alleged sexual assault that occurred in Brookmont Farms during the week of July 21. According to county police, Warner "Gene" Wheeler, 33, assaulted the teenage victim who lives in the Bear community off Route 40. Wheeler is described as a black male, 6 feet tall, 185 pounds, medium build, with dark hair and brown eyes. According to police, Wheeler fled shortly after the offense was reported to authorities. He is known to frequent Brookmont Farms, Christiana Farms and the Philadelphia area. Anyone with information is asked to call the Criminal Investigation Unit at 571-7924, 571-7930 or 911.

Home contractor charged with defrauding customers

An Ogletown contractor has been charged with racketeering, theft and conspiracy for allegedly defrauding homeowners on repair work.

Authorities say 22 homeowners have accused William J. Hammons of cheating them out of thousands of dollars worth of repair work.

Hammons, 64, was charged with two counts of organized crime and racketeering, two counts of theft, and conspiracy for allegedly defrauding two of the homeowners. He was released on $63,000 unsecured bond.

Hammons operates businesses under the names of Allstate Windows and Doors Inc., Comfort Control Systems Inc., and Homecrafters Inc.

Investigator Booker T. Johnson of the Delaware Attorney General's consumer protection unit said authorities hope to indict Hammons on charges relating to the 20 other homeowners, most of whom are elderly.

Authorities also have issued arrest warrants for Hammons' associate, Michael J. Henderson, who was the owner of Homecrafters Inc., Johnson said.

Johnson said the duo received more than $200,000 from the 22 homeowners for remodeling and repair contracts, but didn't finish the work in most cases.

Video cameras now in 7-Eleven stores

A new security system in 7-Eleven Stores puts customers and store personnel under round-the-clock surveillance.

The new system includes a 24-hour, closed-circuit video camera with audio capabilities, a high-resolution color monitor mounted in clear view of the customer, a black-and-white monitor in the store's backroom office and an alarm system.

Part of an ongoing remodeling and crime-deterrence program, 7-Eleven has installed new security systems in its 963 stores in Delaware, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Washington D.C., and parts of Northern Virginia.

According to Northeast Division vice president Frank Crivello, the remodeled stores also feature new, brighter interior and exterior lighting, consistent signage, new equipment for displaying and dispensing products.

"Installing new equipment is a positive move toward enhancing store security and making 7-Eleven stores even safer places to work and shop," Crivello said. "We believe this system will put criminals on notice that activity in the stores is being monitored and recorded."

Crivello said the company is taking steps to provide a safer shopping environment even though the most recently published FBI Uniform Crime Report states that both the number and rate of convenience-store robberies have declined.

Following a robbery deterrence program instituted by the company in 1976, robbery fell by 65 percent, and cash losses over the same period were down significantly as well, according to Crivello.

With more than 16,400 convenience stores worldwide, The Southland Corporation operates, franchises and licenses more than 5,600 7-Eleven and other convenience stores in the United States and Canada.

Bicyclist injured

Police officers questioned witnesses on July 28 around 12:30 p.m. following a collision between a bicycle and a car at the intersection of Routes 72 and 4 in Newark. According to State Police Officer Walter Newton, bicyclist John Korja of Newark ran a red light and traveled into the intersection where he was struck by a Dodge Caravan driven by Pamela Fernze of Middletown. Korja, who was not wearing a helmet, was taken to Christiana Hospital with closed-head injuries and multiple contusions. He has since been released. There were no other injuries. Newton said charges are pending.

Delaware gets federal road money

Delaware recently received a grant of $1.5 million in transportation funding from U.S. Department of Transportation Secretary Rodney Slater.

According to state Transportation Secretary Anne P. Canby, the grant presented at a ceremony held in Washington D.C., will be used to establish a State Infrastructure Bank in Delaware.

"This long-term funding helps to address Delaware's infrastructure needs by augmenting our federal program," said Canby. "The funds paid back into the program translate into additional flexibility in state funds for Delaware's use."

An infrastructure bank is an innovative, state-managed transportation investment fund to facilitate and encourage investment in eligible transportation projects. Through an SIB, a state can combine federal seed money and federal-aid highway and transit funds, with state funds, to initially capitalize the bank. The SIB then provides low-interest loans for investment in highway infrastructure.

DelDOT plans to use the SIB funds for projects like the northern Route 1 Toll Plaza. Revenues collected upon completion of the toll plaza in January 2000, will go back into the SIB. The estimated repayment period for this project will be approximately one year from the toll plaza's opening.

HB 85 gets improvements

A new law signed recently by Gov. Thomas Carper provides more direction to school officials on what action to take when a student under the age of nine commits a crime.

Under the legislation, crimes committed by children under nine-years-old would be reported only if the crimes are violent felonies or weapon or drug offenses. All other instances would require the school to submit a written report to the Department of Education.

Sponsored by Speaker of the House Terry R. Spence (R-Stratford), House Bill 322 amended Delaware's school crime reporting law, commonly referred to as House Bill 85.

Legislators drafted the new law following the outcry last year over whether acts like hitting by very young children in school rose to the level of a crime.

The new bill also restructured the present statute by giving district superintendents the authority to issue subpoenas to parents and guardians in order to compel them to attend school-parent conferences. The legislation also adds certain sexually-related crimes to the list of those that need to be reported.

"I am pleased that the governor has endorsed our proposed changes to House Bill 85," said Spence. "This new law will only enhance what the General Assembly originally set out to do in 1993 - create a safer environment for teachers and students in our public schools."

DelDOT goes to the people

Officials at the Delaware Department of Transportation have added another layer to their ongoing efforts to correct the record on their real estate operations.

According to Charles Freel, DelDOT director of external affairs, the agency sent out almost 6,000 letters in July to persons who have previously attended DelDOT workshops or expressed interest in agency activities.

"This is not something we wanted to do," said Freel this week. "We just feel that it's important to get the real story out."

In a press conference called on July 14, DelDOT Secretary Anne Canby said stories in the News Journal which alleged that the agency has held on to property that could be sold were riddled with errors.

The July 21 letter includes a verbatim copy of Canby's remarks as well as a copy of a news story appearing on July 15 in the Delaware State News regarding her conference.

"We're also putting this on the DelDOT Web page," said Freel. "In a small state like Delaware where there is only one real statewide newspaper, it's difficult to get the word out."

Both Canby and Gov. Thomas Carper issued statements claiming that the News Journal mislead, exaggerated and misrepresented the facts in the series of stories.

Canby said the agency was barred by the State Assembly from disposing of some properties, while others were unmarketable because of size or location.

"Some are just too small," explained Freel. "By law, we have to sell them for their appraised value, but we can't give them away."

Freel also said that Canby and other DelDOT officials had been very open with the News Journal about their real estate management but the newspaper chose to portray them as refusing to provide information. "We had talked about this with them since the Spring," said Freel.

Freel also said DelDOT was instrumental in the establishment of a Legislative Task Force to review DelDOT's organizational structure, including the real estate division, prior to the news stories. "Secretary Canby even had a clause added regarding DelDOT's acquisition and disposition procedures," Freel said.

The Task Force, which met for the first time on July 15, is chaired by state representative Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South).

EDITORIALS COLUMNS • PAGES FROM THE PAST • LETTERS

The city manager is the answer

AS WE CLEARLY STATED in this space last issue, we endorse District 2 representative Jerry Clifton's resolution that would prohibit Newark City Councilmembers from sitting on its advisory panels, committees and commissions.

We understand the council's decision Monday night to table any vote on Clifton's motion. Wisely, they want to study Clifton's proposal and clear up any reservations in their minds before a vote on such an important issue.

Councilmember Nancy Turner is, of course, protective of her turf, the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee. Her supporters see the resolution as a response to Turner's suit against the City of Newark.

But those who spoke with Clifton prior to his election this spring and those who have listened to Mayor Gardner in the past know there has been concern about councilmembers on city council committees for some time. Clifton had planned to introduce this measure shortly after his election but he decided to delay its introduction until after the hearings before the Ethics Board. The mayor has spelled out his concerns before, most recently when the traffic committee was formed shortly after Turner's election.

Most concern about Clifton's resolution seems to center around council representation on the Town and Gown Committee. No question, this is one of our city's most important panels and its effectiveness as a cooperative tool should not be diminished.

But, to us, the solution to this question already exists.

No different than any Newark citizen, Mayor Gardner and Councilman Godwin, the current chairman of the committee, as well as any councilmember, always can attend and participate in the Town and Gown meetings as ex-officio members. Simply show up at meetings as they wish.

The guidelines comprising the membership of the committee already state that a representative of the City Manager's Office be on the panel. Here is the council's direct link to the Town & Gown Committee under Clifton's plan. The city manager serves at the pleasure and direction of the Newark City Council. No non-councilmember can better represent the council's interests than he. No person could better serve as a conduit to the council than he.

Concerns about a "high level" council presence on the Town & Gown Committee exist. But neither the university president or a member of the UD Board of Trustees serve on the committee. Their key representatives do and are effective in communicating back to the campus. The city manager's presence on the panel is just as effective, we believe.

EDUCATIONAL PERSPECTIVES

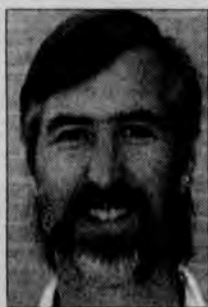

Form & function (Hat & saddle)

By JACK BARTLEY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

IT SEEMS LOGICAL that technology in the schools should be acquired to fulfill specific needs. For instance, there seems to be no reason for a middle school to have a nuclear reactor simply because it is possible to build one, even though 7th graders could probably run one more safely and profitably than either PECO or Delmarva Power.

A perfect example of the practical application of technology occurs in our school library. There are computer terminals for the Internet, word processing, spreadsheets, e-mail, remote access to other libraries, journals and newspapers, and rude offensive jokes. Of course, once the library has this technology, it can no longer be referred to as a "library." As discussed in a column a few months ago, a whole new language has evolved in education to represent the complexity of our new educational system. Like a bad Japanese monster flick where someone points at Godzilla and speaks for five minutes with simply the subtitle "Run!" on the screen, someone could say "Interactive Multimedia Resource and Distance Learning Center" on the promotional films we now have to produce due to the school choice bill and have the word "Library" on the screen as a subtitle.

Problems arise, however, when technology is introduced without proper consideration for the intent of having it and the ability of the people in the building to use it. The first step in making technology functional in our schools is to have somebody in the district that knows what they're doing. Again, as discussed in a previous column (summer reruns), Glasgow High School had three computers installed in each classroom. This is terrific, except for cases like my room where the computers were plopped on top of student desk tops in the middle of the room with no way to connect to the Internet or a power source. The power source problem was irrelevant, however, since we were told, "Do not turn on the computers because there is not enough power in the building to run them

Boundary of school district being fixed

Newark's Board of Education is at the present time tracing the boundary for the special school district in which this town is located.

The work must be accomplished before the Board can go ahead and issue the $165,000 worth of bonds as authorized by the special referendum vote taken in June.

Slaves to hot clothing

A man dresses in summer much more warmly than a woman dresses in winter. Men have colds in their heads; women apparently do not.

Men get pneumonia and consumption more often than women.

What's the explanation? Unquestionably men dress stupidly.

What could be sadder than a man in a dark blue suit, with a stiff, tight, starched collar, an apoplectic face and feet squeezed into patent leather shoes?

New tool aids fire companies' rescue

The problem of rescuing accident victims from mangled automobiles without causing additional injury may be close to being solved in the First State.

A new hydraulic Hurst Rescue Tool valued at $3,700 has been provided for use by five Delaware fire companies.

According to Harvey Grant, Chief instructor at the Delaware State Fire School, explained that the powerful jaws enable the tool to pry apart metal to free victims without causing additional injury.

A cop and a bull story

Newark Police spent five hours yesterday tracking down an escapee and finally completed the capture with the co-operation of a cow.

According to Newark Police Chief William Brierley, a caller phoned in to police headquarters that a bull had been roaming the city.

Chief Brierley said that although his men receive training in the latest police methods, cattle roping has been left out of the departments training program since the last cattle drives came through Newark.

Local farmer Oliver Koelig with the help of one of his cows and her amorous glances easily lured the errant bull back to a fenced area.

Pedal-powered policing on Newark's streets

If you're out living it up this weekend, keep an eye out for Newark's newest method of law enforcement.

Officers David Kerr and Brian Henry can be found five days a week patrolling the streets of Newark on mountain bikes.

An important goal for this new patrol is to control drinking and loitering on Main Street in the evenings, said Lt. Bill Nefosky, head of the Newark police traffic division.

Canal girls take 2 championships!

Canal Little League softball teams captured two state championships this past week.

The Senior League All-Stars (age 13-15) defeated Lower Sussex 23-1 and 13-3 to sweep their best-of-three state championship series at the Laurel Little League complex on Saturday and Sunday while the Major League All-Stars (age 11-12) downed Lewes 18-5 on Sunday and 11-1 on Monday to sweep their best-of-three series at the Middletown-Odessa-Townsend Little League complex.

'Our rooms are filling up with technology' without connecting to the nuclear reactor in the middle school." (Everything was true except the part about the nuclear reactor.) I do not have room in this column to discuss how the computers were purchased, but the phrase "a lot of bang for the buck" does not come readily to my lips.

Second, consult the people using the technology, for instance the teachers, about how the technology is going to be used and maintained. The technology I am referring to in this case is Audible Electronic Message Transmission (telephones). This is not exactly high tech stuff, so the district felt it COULD actually consult the teachers. We were asked to put a neon green sign up in our room to mark the location for the phone. Most teachers placed the sign near where the computers were (supposed to be) located since the primary reason for having a phone in the classroom would be to speak with parents about student grades and attendance. If phones were on or near tables, grade books and pertinent student paperwork could be readily available for discussion.

Once the signs were in place, the teachers were told the phones had to be placed within eight feet of the call box, which for most rooms, is by the doorway. This is not exactly a convenient or secure area. Since teachers are to be in the hallway while classes are changing, it is impossible to monitor student activity around the phone. Vandalization problems had already surfaced in a middle school with phones when this edict came down. After a bit of discussion, teachers were told to go ahead and put the signs for the phones where they would do the most good and be secure.

I am happy to say, the telephones have been installed. I am unhappy to say that the phones were placed the shortest distance from an existing line. In other words, placement was virtually where we were told to put them in the first place. In some cases, teachers will have to stand to talk on the phone, far from computer records, and will be unable to see the phone during class period changes. Apparently, running inexpensive phone line through easily removable and replaceable suspended ceiling tile cost too much.

So, our rooms are filling up with technology; technology difficult to use and prone to vandalism and the cost of subsequent repairs. Our form is great, but we our functionally clueless. Or, as a friend of mine once said upon viewing his first urban cowboy, "He's all hat and no saddle!"

'What a day!'

To: The editor
From: Charles Eastman
Newark

After having come through a whole year of various pressures in life, we come to July 4th, a day when we can relax and admire the basics upon which this great nation was built. That is, on small communities and their proud people and on the richness of the land all about, that God gave us.

One time, this celebration was held on the grounds at West Park Place Elementary School. Now, it is being held at White Clay Creek State Park.

I love enjoying the fresh air and sun. In addition, another plus was to see some of my old friends and former scouts.

So I caught the free shuttle bus from Clayton Hall at the University of Delaware to the park where the Newark Community Band welcomed everyone with their patriotic music, and I enjoyed other music groups later.

So many events, from antique cars to storytelling for the children, down to plenty of "eats," and even a flea market.

Participation and interest of the community of Newark brings success - here, is the proof.

So thanks, City of Newark, for a great day!

NEWARK OUTLOOK

Are we there yet?

■ This weekly feature on the Lifestyle page is authored by the staff of the Newark-based Cooperative Extension Service.

THE SUMMER SUN glares down on the car in the driveway. The gas tank is full, the luggage is loaded, bicycles are mounted on the carrying rack, boogie boards are tied to the roof, the cooler is full of drinks and the snacks are packed. The front door of the house slams shut as everyone eagerly runs to the car to secure his or her favorite seat. Children and adults anticipate summer vacation with a passion that rivals indulging in Rita's Custard and Water Ice at the Newark Shopping Center. Planning a vacation that involves driving requires more than loading the luggage and having the right map. Whether the outing is for the day, weekend or the week, you need to focus your attention on some details to make sure you reach your destination safely.

By Cindy Genau

To avoid a crash or an unexpected roadside emergency, invest in preventative automobile maintenance. Days before you depart on your trip, make a list to check the following items: Radiator hoses for cracks; fan belts for cracks or frays (and have a supply of spare belts); the coolant, engine oil, and all fluids for proper levels; the air filter for replacement; the tire pressure for proper inflation (this should be done in the morning when it is cooler); and windshield wipers for excessive wear. In case of an unexpected emergency, it is a good idea to have a kit on hand that includes jumper cables, hand tools, first aid kit, a flashlight with new batteries, a jack and gloves. A, especially during inclement weather. Expect traffic delays and bring along traveling games. Make use of not having a TV around for some fun quality time.

Stay away from aggressive or erratic drivers. Two-thirds of fatal motor vehicle crashes are attributed to violations by aggressive drivers. Don't get personally involved or challenge aggressive drivers. Keep your cool and take it easy—your vacation travel will be much more enjoyable.

Taking time to handle these automotive details will get your summer vacation off to a good start. And "are we there yet?" may be a question you

Stories of persistence, courage and invention

IF YOU CAN'T NAME THE FIRST Delawarean inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame or never heard the legend of Aunt Sally Shadd of Wilmington inventing ice cream, a new book can help fill the void in your knowledge of black history in Delaware and Maryland.

"A History of African Americans of Delaware & Maryland's Eastern Shore," has stories with "themes of persistence, courage and invention," according to Carole C. Marks, director of Black American Studies at the University of Delaware.

"Our intent is to reveal the long neglected and ignored history of a people who fought against incredible odds merely to be left alone to live, work and raise their families," said Marks who edited the book. "Delaware's records on the black experience in slavery and freedom are not numerous, detailed or complete because the small number of slave holders produced an even smaller number of record keepers."

The collection of essays by noted local scholars has been hailed as an important step in recapturing notable aspects of the area's history that have long been ignored.

"Within these pages are stories of bravery, determination, principle and struggle, and we all benefit from the effort that brings to light valuable information on the history of African Americans in our region," University president David P. Roselle wrote in the preface. "The individuals whose lives and contributions are chronicled here have surely helped shape our country — both in slavery and in freedom."

Included in the book are an historical overview as well as research articles from area scholars.

UD's Black American Studies Program was approached about the book in 1993 when members of the Christian Council of Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore realized that no such document existed. The council, composed of several denominations, including Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Brethren, Methodist and Episcopalian churches, had identified racism as the number one concern for the church and society.

"We realized that if we are going to do anything about racism in our society, then we need to begin to have an African-American history that begins a dialogue," Beth Doty, consultant and former executive director of the Council, said.

Published by the Council, with funding provided by the Speer Trust Commission of the New Castle Presbytery, the book has numerous contributing writers including:

James E. Newton, professor in the Black American Studies Program; Carol Hoeffcker, Richards Professor of History; Margaret Andersen, interim dean of the College of Arts and Science and professor of sociology; Judith Y. Gibson, assistant vice president for affirmative action and multicultural programs; Emma Amuti, development associate; Theodore J. Davis Jr., associate professor of political science and international relations; and Sidney Jacobs, a graduate student in sociology.

Also contributing are: Annette Woolard of the Historical Society of Delaware; Clara Small from Salisbury State University; Harmon Carey of the Afro-American Historical Society of Delaware; and Peter Dalleo, U.S. Courthouse, Wilmington.

"We have not attempted to write a definitive history," Marks said. "Rather, this volume is a first step to explore the past from several perspectives. We welcome additions and input — this is a first edition."

The book is free and will be distributed while supplies last. To obtain a copy, contact the Black American Studies Program at 831-2897.

Alice Dunbar-Nelson (1875-1935), who taught at Howard High School, is among the Black Americans of Delaware and Maryland profiled in a new book.

Newark native to sing at Grand Opera House

NEWARK BORN, raised and trained soprano Kristine Ciesinski will return to Delaware during the 1997-98 season of Opera Delaware to star in Richard Wagner's dark and exciting "Der Fliegende Hollander." Newark's contribution to the ranks of world-class sopranos will interpret the pivotal role of Senta.

This is delightful news for more than just the fact that Kris will be back in our midst. It also signals Opera Delaware's step into the music of one of the greatest, and most difficult to perform, composers of any age, Richard Wagner.

By the way, for those who have never attended a Wagnerian opera and have heard all the "horror" stories, be not afraid. The score for "Hollander" is beautiful, moving and haunting. It is a wonderful opera with which to begin one's experience with Wagner. And, I can't wait to hear Kris in the role!

The Ciesinski family is truly an unusual one musically. Both Kris and her older sister Kathy, a mezzo, are enjoying distinguished careers on both sides of the Atlantic. It is difficult to read for very long in the world opera press and not come across one or both of their names. Their parents, Kay and Ray, were both public school teachers and provided every opportunity for the "girls" to grow in music. We are all glad they did. Incidentally, before I get in trouble with N. O. W., the term "girls" is one of great endearment used by their dad as he talks about them — and he always does! Their mother passed away last year.

I had the great good fortune to first hear Kris during her public school career. Her voice and demeanor made me certain that she could have a career if she wanted one. She wanted one and she has a great one!

Her undergraduate years were spent as a Blue Hen. She came back to campus twice last year both times to standing ovations. She came to the University Stadium to sing the Star Spangled Banner before a football game and almost got penalized five yards for "Delay of Game." Her presentation brought more applause than I have ever heard for our national anthem at any Delaware game and my bachelor's degree dates back to 1958. The team was ready to go but we were still applauding Kris!

Her other musical visit was to Mitchell Hall on campus for a concert of art songs, arias and duets with her sister. More great music and more well deserved accolades from the audience.

The good news continues. Kris' husband Norman Bailey, a world renowned Wagnerian bass, will perform the role of Daland in the opera. "Der Fliegende Hollander" is set for the stage of the Grand Opera House May 2, 7 and 9 as the Opera Delaware season finale. Order your tickets early, the SRO sign will go up early on this one!

The season will open with performances of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro" on November 8, 13 and 15, also at the Grand Old Lady of Market Street. This sparkling comedy abounding with disguises, delicious intrigue and other nonsense is in excellent contrast to the season finale and will make this one of Opera Delaware's best seasons.

Both operas will be performed in their original language, Italian and German respectively, with English supertitles projected over the proscenium of the Grand. A most delightful operatic innovation to be sure.

A Tip of The Toman Topper to General Director Lee Kimball for coming back to a full season of opera. Operetta had been creeping in far too much in Delaware's only professional opera company and I hope this season signals an end to that.

Prices for season tickets begin at only $30 for students and range from $39 to $88 for the general public. I don't know how Lee and his cohorts there on Poplar Street keep the prices so low, but please keep doing it.

To order season subscriptions, please contact the Grand Opera House. You may stop by the Grand box office at 818 The Market Street Newark's own Kristine Ciesinski will return to sing the role of Senta in Wagner's "Der Fliegende Hollander" during Opera Delaware's 1997-98 season at the Grand Opera House.

Mall, or reach them by phone at 302-652-5577 or 1-800-37 GRAND; on the World Wide Web at <http://ameristar.net/grand/> or E-mail at GRAND-OPERA@AOL.COM.

Most councilmembers favor change in committees

► COUNCIL, from 1

Clifton also said that, in some cases like the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee which has three councilmembers, the situation amounted almost to an issue of intimidation for the rest of those serving.

Councilmember Nancy Turner, who presently chairs that committee, said she would like to know "where this is coming from," and asked what Clifton had heard about WNTRC in particular?

Clifton said his proposal was not directed at any particular group or persons and repeated that he just thought this was the time to move on a long-held idea. "Whether Nancy wants to remember or not, I first discussed this proposal with her in her own kitchen last March," said Clifton following the meeting.

Turner reminded council that WNTRC fulfilled a campaign promise she made to her district to take action on traffic issues. She also offered to add more members if Clifton felt ordinary residents were being excluded from the committee which already has 15 members and seven legislative consultants.

City resident Shirley Tarrant, a member of WNTRC, said the Resolution sounded like an April Fools joke to her. "I called every other member of the three committees with councilmembers, and not one citizen on those committees said they felt intimidated," claimed Tarrant. "In fact, some people said it would be counterproductive if a council person didn't sit on it."

Tarrant suggested that the Resolution was motivated by a desire on the part of other councilmembers to retaliate against Turner "because of her effective leadership or for daring to challenge other councilmembers."

Abbotsford resident Scott Bowling agreed, "I question the motivation when WNTRC is discussed," Bowling said. "I hope we're not taking hostilities on one issue and letting it roll over into another."

Other councilmembers and the Mayor said they supported the Resolution, but had some questions or concerns.

Mayor Ronald Gardner said, although he had reservations about the Town and Gown committee, his views in support of not having councilmembers on city committees were well known. "I spoke about this on two occasions last year before the Western Newark Traffic Relief Committee was ever formed," said Gardner, "so this has nothing to do with personalities."

Gardner said that he did not think a committee with three councilmembers should be sending recommendations to the other four members of council. "A nationwide survey has shown even though an individual does not try to dominate a group," said Gardner, "the very fact that they are elected officials makes it appear they get more influence from what they say."

Councilmembers Thomas Wampler and Anthony Felicia both said they had attended committee meetings as ordinary members of the public and felt intrusive at times. "I think it's important in a small town to appear as impartial as possible," said Wampler. "We don't want to give the impression when people come to a public hearing in council to express views that a decision has already been made."

However, Wampler wondered if the Town and Gown committee should get special consideration. "Some people have approached me and said, 'if we have no councilmember, we will have no town on it,'" said Wampler.

Councilmember Harold Godwin who presently chairs the Town and Gown committee, said he did not think it was necessary to have a councilmember serve on that body, although it had been helpful. "I'll support this Resolution if the council decides to take councilmembers off city committees," Godwin said.

"I don't feel we need to be going to Town and Gown to express ourselves," District 6 member Gerald Grant said. "Town and Gown can come before us here."

Noting that sometimes there can be too much communication, Grant added. "There's also the issue that has been brought up about who's representing the city at times (when committees act on city concerns)."

The council finally voted to table the Resolution for future consideration after members have a chance to study it further.

Troubled council looks for answers

Tensions have been running high on Newark city council lately and on Monday night, the Mayor and another council member finally spoke publicly about their feelings.

Mayor Ronald Gardner said he was concerned about the direction and actions of council in recent months.

"We need to be aware of our role," said Gardner. "We are a legislative body and in some recent instances we acted like a judicial proceeding."

The mayor said his remarks were in regard to recent ethics hearings brought against a city councilmember, as well as a lawsuit filed against the city of Newark by councilmember Nancy Turner demanding release of the minutes of a council executive session. The reason for Turner's lawsuit has not been made public.

"In these ethics hearings, we have gone through the process at thousands of dollars of city expense to examine charges that you could say - and I know there are people here who would not agree with me - were for trivial, political, personal reasons, what have you," said Gardner.

Councilmember Harold Godwin was found not to have violated the ethics code in the June ethics hearing. The two complainants in that hearing have since appeared repeatedly before council to voice their disapproval of the proceeding and the findings.

At council's July 14 meeting, councilmember Thomas Wampler asked what possible good could come from revisiting the June ethics proceeding every time they met?

"I don't understand why we keep dredging this up," said Wampler. "What is the agenda that is going on here?"

Gardner said on Monday that the present situation was unusual in his more than 25 years of city service and he was tired of sitting silently while being sued.

"I wish more people could know what was going on," said Gardner. "The people of Newark ought to be better informed and they're not."

Councilmember Anthony Felicia said he felt a sadness coming over council as issues were being personalized with words like "motivation and retaliation" being used.

"We've been a council of seven for a long time," said Felicia, "but now I feel that we're bordering on something that's going to change the way we operate and the way the public looks at us."

Felicia concluded. "I don't think we want to go there."

Gardner said that was precisely what he was getting at. "I hope to see a change from this litigious attitude," he said. "It's not good for the council and it's not good for the city."

Just read it!

Debbie Long of Newark has a standing date with her grandchild this summer. Long and her grandson, Travis, get together every Thursday to read a good book and learn new vocabulary words.

Long is a participant in a new program called Grandparents for Summer Reading, which encourages grandparents to help their grandchildren maintain their reading skills over the summer vacation. The program asks grandparents to read with their grandchild for at least 30 minutes, one or two times per week, either by phone or in person.

Additionally, the program suggests weekly letters between the two partners to discuss the book they are reading, and three to five new vocabulary words per week.

"This is a great opportunity to spend some quality time with my grandson," said Long, "and to make some memories we will both cherish in years to come."

Grandparents for Summer Reading is sponsored by the Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), which is administered by the State Office of Volunteerism. Interested grandparents can call 995-8572 for a free packet with tips and a suggested reading list.

walk on both sides of every street within the city boundaries.

City manager Carl Luft said it was recognized that some exceptions should be made due to costs, practicality or a lack of need for sidewalks in some locations.

"We tried to use good sense," said councilmember Anthony Felicia. "Some areas just don't need sidewalks."

On June 23, council amended the city code to require sidewalks in all areas of the city "where such installation is deemed necessary and appropriate."

Property owners who are notified that they need the improvements will bear the cost of the new walks which must be "cement concrete, brick or other similar material consistent with adjacent sidewalks."

According to the city public works department, costs for an average homeowner can range from $1,000 to more than $3,000, depending on the size of the lot and the condition of the area to be covered. City engineers can advise owners seeking information regarding paving contracts.

All properties in Newark have been reviewed and divided into priority groups based on safety and continuity of sidewalk concerns.

This week, city council considered a Resolution to order notification of the first group of 20 property owners. However, councilmembers decided to delay approving the Resolution until the city could send out letters to the properties in question.

Councilmember Harold Godwin said he would also like the opportunity to talk to his constituents who will be affected in the future and explain the city's program to them.

"I don't want to vote for this until I've had a chance to talk to them myself," said Godwin.

Three teams bring home state titles

Newark National Juniors win crown

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

AFTER TAKING the most difficult routes possible to the District II and sectional championships, the Newark National Junior All-Stars took no chances in the one-game state championship game.

Newark National pounded District III champion Georgetown 16-10 Friday night at the Seaford Little League complex to capture the state title. The game, also a first-round game of the Mid-Atlantic Regional, advanced National to the winners bracket final and within two games of the regional crown.

The District II champs banged out 14 hits and got a gutsy pitching effort from Mark Rash en route to the victory.

"We had two goals when the season started," said Newark National manager Dave Poppiti. "One was to win the district and two was to be state champions. We accomplished both of those. Now I think we're going to add another goal — the Mid-Atlantic championship."

Rash struck out eight batters and gave up 10 hits in a 140-plus pitch effort.

"My arm didn't bother me at all," said Rash, who also reached base in all five of his plate appearances and scored four runs. "They hit the ball pretty well but we just kept battling. It's a great feeling."

Georgetown jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but Newark National answered with a run in the second inning and two more in the

INSTEAD OF GETTING MORE DIFFICULT as the level increases, tournament titles seem to be getting easier for the Newark National Junior All-Stars.

Newark National rallied from a four-run deficit to beat Capitol City 6-4 and capture the Mid-Atlantic Regional championship. Newark, which improved its All-Star record to 12-2, swept through three games of the regional without a loss. In each of its previous tournaments — district and sectional — it had to fight its way out of the losers bracket to win.

The Mid-Atlantic victory advances Newark National to the eight-team, double-elimination Eastern Regional tournament in Nanuet, N.Y. Play in the tournament begins Saturday with Newark facing the winner of the Connecticut/Rhode Island winner. In addition to National, the tournament will feature the state champions from New Jersey and Pennsylvania, three New England teams and two New York teams.

The winner of the Eastern Regional will advance to the Junior League World Series in Taylor, Mich.

After blasting the Maryland champs, Capitol City (from the District of Columbia), 24-0 in Saturday night's winners bracket final, National was in control of the tournament.

Monday's championship game, however, was a bit tougher.

Capitol City jumped to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning.

"I thought 'here we go again'," said Newark National manager Dave Poppiti. "These guys were going to take the hardest route possible."

"But then we settled down and played well."

Newark answered with a run in the bottom of the inning as R.T. Plumsy reached first base on an error and eventually scored on a single by Greg Bulovas.

Newark added another run in the second inning as Ryan Thompson led off by reaching on an error and,

Canal Sr. boys win state baseball

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THE CANAL SENIOR All-Star baseball team took a big step toward winning two tournaments in one.

Canal edged Maryland state champion Delmar 3-1 Sunday night in Salisbury and followed with a 15-4 victory over Laurel Monday. The two wins advanced the District II champs to the championship game of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Wednesday night in Salisbury, Md. The wins, combined with Laurel's 6-3 loss to Delmar in the losers bracket final, also gave Canal the state championship (the Delaware team that survived the longest in the regional is the state champion).

Nate Husser pitched a five-hitter and struck out 15 to lead Canal to the opening round 3-1 win over Delmar.

Husser also picked up an RBI in the closely played game.

Canal broke a 1-1 tie with a run in the fifth and added another in the sixth to secure the victory.

"That was the best I've ever seen Nate pitch," said Canal manager Dave Blake. "He's pitched a lot of good games but I've never seen him so perfect. He was throwing great."

Canal's defense also played well, making several outstanding plays.

"With Nate's 15 strikeouts, we only had to make six outs," Blake said. "But three of them were just great plays. It's as good as we've played defensively."

The win advanced Canal to the winners bracket final game against Laurel — a 6-3 winner of Arbutus

Sweep Milford in state championship series

THE CANAL MAJOR ALL-STAR SOFTBALL team kept the state's longest winning streak alive. Canal defeated Milford 12-10 Saturday night to complete a hard-fought, two-game sweep of the best-of-three state championship series at the Suburban Little League complex in New Castle.

The win gave this group of 11-12 year-old all-stars Canal's 15th straight Major division state softball title and advanced it to the Eastern Regional championship tournament, which will be held in Sussex County. Canal will begin regional play Saturday at 5:30 p.m. at the Lewes Little League complex against the winner of Friday's game between the Maine and Maryland state champions.

"As a person involved in this league for a long time, it's a great honor to be part of the 15th state championship," said Canal manager Charlie Marioni, who has won four of the state titles as a manager. "It's a real testament to the players, parents and coaches of this league."

The title was anything but a cinch, however. Canal earned a nailbiting 9-8 victory in Friday's opening game of the series to move within one victory of another title.

Trailing 4-3 in Game 2, Canal erupted for four runs in each of the third and fourth innings to take what looked like a commanding 11-4 lead.

Stacey Maloney, Kenya Hodges, Katie Laird and Ashley James all scored runs in both innings. Lindsay Long had a two-run double while Hodges and Christin Mills added RBI-singles. Jaclyn Temple and Amber Hicken also picked up RBIs by drawing bases-loaded walks.

Winning pitcher Stacy Maloney, who was suffering from the flu during the game, got in trouble in the fifth inning as Milford fought back. Milford took advantage of six walks in the inning and, along with two hits, were able to pick up six runs to pull within 11-10.

"I had a tough time seeing," said Maloney. "But I felt confident in our defense and the way we were hitting the ball."

Newark American Major boys fall in state tournament

Beaten by Georgetown, M.O.T.

By PHILLIP WIRTZ
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

After two stunning upsets over Brandywine last week to capture the District II championship, the Newark American Major All-Stars were eliminated after two losses in the state tournament in Smyrna.

"Our hitting just stopped," said Newark American manager Pete Callahan. "The bats died. Hitting was our strong point during the entire tournament. We scored two runs in two games. I don't know why the momentum stopped, but it did."

Newark dropped its first game 4-1 to Georgetown Friday night. Pitcher Keith Kowanick allowed only three hits, but Newark had just two of its own. Greg Read and Drew Kisner had one hit apiece while Pete Callahan scored the team's lone run.

Sunday brought a long night for Newark. It fell 2-1 in 11 innings to MOT (Middletown-Odessa-Townsend) on a bottom of the 11th squeeze bunt. Callahan, Kisner and J. R. Word all had two hits as American outthit Middletown 10-5.

Kisner also pitched nine strong innings, allowing just one run.

The manager talked about the feeling of the team coming off its district championship comeback.

"They were so excited about beating Brandywine and winning the districts," he said. "They had come back so many times and played so well during that two week period. When they got to states, they just didn't play like they had two or three weeks before that. I think it was a letdown afterwards."

For Newark American, many positive aspects of the season could not be overshadowed by a disappointing finish. As the team moved through tournament brackets, it also enhanced its performance.

"It was really fun watching the players get better," said the manager. "So many of the players improved."

Callahan particularly noted the playoff improvement of infielder Mike Marra, second baseman Greg Read and third baseman Steve Slacum.

Five of Newark's players played on Callahan's regular-season American division champion Indians. For the rest of the all-star squad, it was a month of competition with new teammates.

"The team jelled," Callahan said. "They played together, they horsed around together, they really were friends. For that reason, they were a lot of fun to be around."

Callahan also noted the unity on the sidelines as well, giving credit specifically to the support of the fathers in and out of the dugout, the experience of winning the district and going to states was a treat to all who were involved with the team.

For Callahan and the Newark American All-Stars, accomplishing a seemingly impossible district championship is a highlight that will stick with the players for quite some time. The manager trusts that the team learned more this past month than simply about winning and losing.

"I hope that they learned to enjoy the game," he said. "I think it's a great game. I hope it was fun for them."

(Md.) in its opening game.

With a big advantage in the state championship race at stake, Laurel jumped to a 2-0 first-inning lead.

Canal answered with two runs in the third inning to tie the score and added five in the fourth to break the game open. Tom Gallagher's grand slam was the inning's big blow.

"We'd been slumping a little bit," Blake said. "But we finally broke out of it in the middle of this game. Tommy Gallagher was one that was slumping and he came through in a big way."

Canal, pounding out 10 hits and taking advantage of nine Laurel errors, added four more runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to build an insurmountable 15-2 lead. Laurel added two runs in the bottom of the sixth but it wasn't enough to prevent the game from being stopped due to the 10-run mercy rule.

In addition to Gallagher's grand slam, Canal was led offensively by Brock Donovan, who had two hits and four runs scored, Kevin Maloney (four runs scored) and Tim Vaillancourt, who had three hits and three runs scored.

Vaillancourt was also the winning pitcher, pitching five innings and giving up just the two first-inning runs.

Canal Majors advance to Easterns

Maloney and got out of the fifth-inning jam.

Canal tacked on a big run in the top of the sixth inning as Hicken's infield single scored Niggebrugge to improve the lead to 12-10.

Niggebrugge, after allowing a lead off single in the bottom of the sixth, retired the next three batters in order to secure the victory.

"Lindsay came in and did a great job," Marioni said. "Stacy wasn't feeling well and went as long as she could. She gave us a great effort.

"It was definitely a hard-fought series. [Milford] just kept battling back but somehow we were able to find ourselves one or two runs ahead at the end of the games."

Canal took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning as Hicken, Maloney and Mills all scored. Hodges and Laird each drew bases-loaded walks to force home two of the runs.

Milford answered with three runs of its own in the bottom of the first to tie the game, and added another in the second to take the lead.

"It was more exciting than last year's [state title]," said Lindsay Long, who pitched Canal to the opening game win. "We always had to keep coming back and keep hitting. I was nervous when I was pitching but I felt we had the team to do it."

The team now turns its attention to the Eastern Regional tournament.

Long, who played on last year's team which was eliminated by East champ Pennsville, N.J., thinks this team has a good chance.

"We have a lot of unity and spirit on this team," said the pitcher/shortstop. "I think we may have a better chance of getting to the World Series this year."

The Eastern Regional tournament will be a 12-team, double elimination tournament featuring the state champs from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. The Delaware District III (Sussex County) champ also gets an automatic bid into the regional.

Canal Senior girls ousted by Seaford

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Living on the edge finally caught up with the Canal Senior All-Star softball team.

After constantly battling back to win tight games in both the district and state tournaments, Canal came up just one run short in a 4-3 loss to Seaford in the state championship game Tuesday night at the Milford Little League complex.

Seaford, who Canal defeated 3-2 in the opening round of the double-elimination state series, came out of the losers bracket to defeat Canal twice and advance to the Eastern Regionals in West Haven, Conn.

After defeating Milford 8-7 in 10 innings in Saturday's winners bracket final, Canal needed to only win once more to capture the state title. Seaford earned a 6-5 victory over Milford in Sunday's losers bracket final to advance to Monday's championship round.

In Monday's matchup, Seaford built a big lead on its way to a 10-6 victory to force Tuesday's deciding game.

Seaford, the defending state champs, took advantage of three Canal errors and jumped to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning of Tuesday's deciding game.

"We had one bad inning and that really hurt us," said Canal manager Carl Rice. "We scratched and clawed to get back in the game but that first inning hurt." Seaford stretched the lead to 4-0 with another unearned run in the third inning.

Canal, like it has all post-season, fought back.

The uphill battle began in the fourth inning as Megan Richardson reached first on an error - Canal's first base runner of the game. Richardson proceeded to steal second and third base and scored on a passed ball to cut the lead to 4-1.

Canal added another run in the fifth as Erica Richardson reached first base on a dropped third strike. She moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Stacey Watson, stole third and scored on a bunt-single by Christi Franks.

Watson, the Canal pitcher, kept the District II champs within striking distance, allowing just two hits after the third inning. Overall, Watson gave up just four hits and two walks.

Canal kept the pressure on Seaford, scoring another run in the sixth inning. Megan Richardson again ignited the rally by reaching first base on a bunt, stealing second, moving to third on a ground ball and scoring on another passed ball. Canal, however, couldn't get any more runs out of the rally as Seaford pitcher Shana Riggleman struck out two batters to strand the tying run at third base.

"We really didn't the ball that well," Rice said. "Their pitcher did a nice job."

Riggleman, who gave up three hits and struck out nine, retired Canal in order in the seventh to secure the victory and the state crown.

"I think we played well overall," Rice said of the entire postseason. "We hurt ourselves with a couple of defensive lapses. But it was a good experience and I hope our girls learned something from it."

"I'm proud of the way we played and the way we played to win the districts."

"Sometimes, unfortunately, when you're from Canal people always expect you to win. But the girls know that when they accept the position and they take on that responsibility."

third to take the lead for good. Andrew Swarter singled, moved to third base on Ryan Thompson's single and scored on a wild pitch for National's first run. Rash started the third-inning rally by reaching first base on an error and stealing second. He then scored on Mike Murray's fly ball to left field, which was dropped. Greg Bulovas followed with a single to score Murray and put Newark ahead 3-2.

The state champs erupted for seven runs in the fourth inning to take control of the game.

Eric Spiese had a two-run single while R.T. Plumsky hit a run-scoring double. Murray and Bulovas also had RBI-singles in the rally. Plumsky, Spiese, Rash, Murray, Bulovas, Thompson and Adam Poppiti all scored in the inning.

Georgetown scored four runs in the bottom of the fourth inning to pull within 10-6 but Newark National came right back with three runs in fifth inning.

Brandon Farmer, Rash and Murray all walked and scored in the rally. Swarter had a RBI-double in the inning.

Georgetown again tried to get back in the game with two runs in the bottom of the inning.

The pattern, however, continued as Newark scored three more in the sixth inning to stretch the lead to 16-8.

Plumsky, Rash and Murray all scored in the inning. Rash, Murray and Thompson all picked up hits.

Georgetown then scored two runs in the bottom of the inning to provide the final margin.

The win capped an incredible week for Newark National. The team played seven games in eight days and won six of them on its way to the district, sectional and state championships. Amazingly, all six of the games they won were elimination games.

"This team just keeps coming back," Poppiti said. "It has a lot of character. These guys have been playing together a long time, since they were 10 years-old. They know each other and play hard together. It's really a great group."

KEEN LEGION UPSETS POST 1

Keen's Bobby Johnson slides safely into third base during American Legion playoff action Tuesday night. Newark's Keen-Atterbury American Legion baseball team beat Post 1 4-2 Tuesday night to earn an upset series victory over the regular-season champions. Keen won the first and third games of the best-of-three state semifinal series to advance to the best-of-five state championship series against Stahl Post. Matt Flocco pitched a complete game with six strikeouts in the series' deciding game. Dave Elliott had four hits while Jim Murphy and Joe Rineer added RBIs.

National rallies past Camden in extra innings to earn sectional title

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Coming out of the losers bracket isn't the easiest way to win a tournament. Just don't tell the Newark National Junior All-Star team.

Mark Rash raced home from a third on a wild pitch in the eighth inning to give Newark a 7-6 win over Camden-Wyoming in the third and deciding game of the Delaware Sectional championship series Wednesday night at the Seaford Little League complex.

The win advanced Newark National to the Mid-Atlantic Regional tournament, which began Friday with a state championship matchup against Georgetown, in Seaford. Two Maryland teams also competed in the regional.

The game marked the fourth time in five days that Newark was in an elimination game. The District II champs came out of the losers bracket and beat Suburban on Saturday and Sunday to advance to the sectional series, which began Monday.

Adam Poppiti pitched a five-hitter but Camden-Wyoming won 2-0 and needed only one more win to secure the series.

"Adam pitched a good game," said Newark National manager Dave Poppiti. "But we just couldn't score the runs. After looking at the stats and seeing we outit them and left a lot more runners on, we felt we still could win two games."

Rash pitched a complete game in Tuesday's second game as Newark National won 4-2 to force the deciding game, which began immediately following the first.

Newark built a 2-1 lead through four innings. Camden-Wyoming, though, rallied for two runs to grab the lead back.

National answered in the sixth to tie the game. Camden-Wyoming then successfully pulled off a controversial hidden ball trick that forced a half-hour delay as the umpires called Little League Headquarters for a clarification. That call stood but Rash followed with another RBI-single to give National the lead. Another run stretched the lead to 5-3.

C-W came back in the bottom of the sixth inning to tie the game following some more controversial calls and more delays.

Ryan Thompson's sacrifice fly in the seventh inning gave Newark National a 6-5 lead but Camden-Wyoming tied the game in the bottom of the seventh.

With all the action and all the delays, the time was now past 11:30 p.m. According to Little League rules, no inning could start after 11:30. After more phone calls and more delays, it was determined the curfew could not be waived and both teams would have to return Wednesday.

When action began in Wednesday's eighth inning, Poppiti drew a walk and stole second. However, he was doubled off when the C-W second baseman caught Brandon Farmer's line drive.

Rash, with two out, drew another walk, stole second and moved to third on a wild pitch. Seeing another wild pitch he raced home, barely beating the throw from the catcher to the covering pitcher as he slid safely across the plate with the winning run.

Steven Briley pitched a scoreless bottom of the seventh inning to earn the win for Newark.

"It was a great comeback," said the Poppiti. "We had guys do a great job of pitching and Briley came in at the end to get the win. We felt we could win the two games but they were wild."

Newark American 11's win title

Justin White went 2-for-2 and drove in the winning run to help lead the Newark American 11-year old All-Stars to a 5-4 victory over Naamans in the championship game of the District II Brandywine Tournament.

The victory gave Newark American a perfect 6-0 in the tournament.

Mark Manno pitched five strong innings for his third victory of the tournament and also was 2-for-3 at the plate.

Joey Matterer relieved Manno in the sixth inning and recorded the save when he forced a ground out with the tying and winning runs on base.

Catcher Darren Mooney and White executed a double play on a popped up bunt to get the first two outs of the sixth.

Newark American began the tournament with a 4-2 victory over Midway. Todd Heller earned the win on the mound, the first of his three during the tournament.

American followed with a 10-3 victory over cross-town rival Newark National and a 9-5 victory over Canal National.

In the fourth game of the round-robin play Newark American pounded Brandywine 18-8 to advance to the championship round.

The team edged Brandywine South 3-2 in the semifinals.

Newark American won the same tournament last year when the team members were 10-year olds. Their two-year tournament record is 13-1.

Making Newark better

The building presently leased to Crystal Concepts at 131 East Main Street has been chosen to receive the "A Better Newark Award" by the city's Conservation Advisory Commission. Property owners, Todd and Cynthia Ladutko, were honored because of improvements made in the overall exterior appearance of the building using energy conserving materials.

Crystal Concepts, owned and operated on Main Street by Kathy Rash for almost nine years, relocated to the present site after demolition of the former State Theater building for the Galleria complex.

The commission established this award about ten years ago to recognize property owners of houses and businesses who attempt to improve the appearance of their property through structural renovations and/or landscaping, thereby enhancing the image of the entire community. The CAC has expanded the A Better Newark Award to include properties that have made improvements resulting in energy, soil, or water conservation gains or overall environmental enhancement. The award is given on a quarterly basis. The CAC awards a property owner by giving them a photograph of their property and a proclamation signed by the Mayor declaring them as the recipient of the A Better Newark award. Chrysler installs landscaping for Arbour Park

Chrysler Corporation recently installed extensive screening of its new paint shop along the Christina Parkway facing the community of Arbour Park. Andrew C. Almost 400 trees and 1,000 shrubs were planted on a fast track project intended to complete the work before Chrysler began testing and production of the new Durango sport utility vehicle. Chrysler undertook the project at their expense as a community service.

Wastewater $ needed

The Delaware Wastewater Facilities Council said $336 million will be needed to expand and build the state's wastewater infrastructure through the year 2020.

The recently-released report looks at wastewater needs in areas with and without central sewer systems.

According to the report, Delaware residents produce 109.2 million gallons of wastewater per day at present and the current systems can handle up to 118.9 million gallons per day.

State residents are expected to produce some 187.4 million gallons of wastewater per day by the year 2020.
