Chrysler Assembly employee Frank Lawruck brought most of his family, including daughter Sandra, to the Community Cleanup sponsored by the city of Newark last Saturday. The Christina Parkway, adjacent to the auto plant, was among the areas receiving attention from the volunteers which also included University of Delaware students and others.

Glasgow High students accuse teacher of offensive touching Delaware State Police have charged Michael Sullivan, 43, of Murray Manor off Old Capitol Trail, in connection with offensive touching incidents at Glasgow High School.

State troopers said three female students allege they were touched and kissed by Sullivan, an economics teacher at the high school. The incidents allegedly happened between Feb. 23 and March 20 during school hours at the high school on South College Avenue/Route 896.

According to Cpl. Walter Newton of the state police,

Sullivan was arrested on April 4 after a 16-year-old and two 15-year-old female students told a state trooper assigned to the school as a resource officer about their ordeal. The state trooper learned of the incidents on Monday, April 3.

Pending the outcome of a school district investigation, Sullivan also was suspended with pay on Monday when school officials learned of the allegations.

District spokesperson John Holton said no further action will be taken by the district until investigations by district and school administrators are completed. "We have to proceed in accordance with the teacher contract," said Holton. "We will interview all the parties concerned and then review the information we gather."

Holton said this process will take at least a week, after which the district will make a determination whether or not to dismiss Sullivan from his position permanently.

Sullivan was arraigned on Tuesday on three counts of offensive touching and released on $3,000 unsecured bail pending a court appearance.

New arrests for bomb threats

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark and Delaware State Police reported arrests of students this week at two schools for bomb threats.

School Resource Officer Andrew Markowitz arrested a 16-year-old student on April 2 in connection with bomb threats at the school on March 13.

According to police, the student who lives on Andries Road in Newark wrote several bomb threats that caused evacuation of the high school on that date. School officials found bomb threats written at five different locations in halls and stairwells indicating that a bomb would go off at 1:15 p.m.

Bomb dogs were brought in to search the building while students waited outside and were eventually sent home without their personal belongings. All after school activities were cancelled. No bomb was found.

On Tuesday, April 4, Markowitz arrested a 12-year-

Prison inmates to recycle computers for schools

Gander Hill inmates are working on the "Computers for Classrooms" project to recycle used computers which are then donated to local schools.

"Computer proficiency is essential if our students are going to succeed not only in school but at home and in their communities," said Stubbs Elementary School principal Sheryl Arnold. "Teaching kids how to use computers at early ages increases their chances of being competitive throughout their educational careers."

Ten inmate-technicians have been instructed in computer repair and are supervised by a computer specialist. Administered by the DOC's Prison Industries program, the "Computers for Classrooms" project has set a goal to recycle 100 computer systems a month. Costs to implement the program are approximately $10,000.

Bill would decriminalize baby abandonment

Legislation that would allow parents of newborns to escape child abandonment charges if they leave their baby at a hospital emergency room is being drafted in the Delaware General Assembly.

The two bills are intended to give parents who don't want their babies an option other than abandoning the newborn — and possibly killing the child.

"This bill gives any adult in charge of a newborn that's at risk of injury or harm the chance to deliver that baby to a hospital without having to face criminal charges," said State Representative Nancy Wagner, the author of one of the bills. "My goal is to have the baby safe."

Delaware has seen several high-profile cases of abandoned newborns, some of whom have died. Most recently, the body of a deceased female infant was discovered at 6:45 a.m. on March 27 in a portable toilet by a worker at a residential construction site located off Route 40 between Routes 72 and Salem Church Road in Bear. The cause of death and identity of the mother remain under investigation.

In November 1996, Delaware prosecutors accused New Jersey teen-agers Brian Peterson and Amy Grossberg of killing their baby boy after he was delivered in a Newark motel room. The two teens each served prison time for the death of the child, which drew national attention.

Several other states, including California, Minnesota, Georgia and Texas, are either considering or have adopted similar laws.

Middle and high school students charged old boy for bomb threats at Shue Medill Middle School and Newark High School on March 23, March 24 and March 30.

Newark Police said the threats around 9 a.m. on March 23 and around 10:50 a.m. on March 24 were made from cellphones.

State troopers reported six threatening calls were made to the New Castle County emergency center between 9:15 and 10:22 a.m. on March 30.

The calls were traced to a cell phone in the possession of the 12-year-old. Additional evidence implicated a 13-year-old. The two boys, both students at Shue Medill, apparently made the calls from inside the school.

The 16-year-old student was charged with terroristic threatening and criminal mischief. The middle school students were charged with terroristic threatening and conspiracy.

Newark Police also evacuated Newark High School on Wednesday, March 1, around 11:15 a.m. after a bomb threat was found written on a stall in a girls' bathroom. They are continuing to investigate all threats made to the schools.

Both Christina District officials and police have stated they intend to discover and prosecute persons who make such threats. The district announced last week a total of eight students had been arrested and five of them expelled at Shue Medill Middle School and Newark High School for making threats.

Employees at DaimlerChrysler's Assembly Plant in Newark reached a milestone on Tuesday as the 500,000th Dodge Durango truck rolled off the line. Governor Thomas Carper and other dignitaries joined plant manager James Wolfe celebrating the event with many of the 3,200 people who work there. Newark is the only site where Durangos have been built since their introduction in 1997. In addition to about $510 million on engineering, Chrysler spent 283.5 million for a new paint shop and almost $200 million for retooling before fulltime production began on the truck in September 1997.

Newark mom gives son part of her liver

Doctors removed a piece of liver from a mother and transplanted it into her 3-month-old son who suffers from a rare blood clotting disorder that caused his liver to fail.

Newark resident Jennifer Iannone, 26, had six hours of surgery at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children in Philadelphia last week as doctor's removed the left lobe of her liver. Another 10 hours was spent transplanting it into her son, Matthew.

On Wednesday, Iannone's condition was listed as fair while her son's was serious. "That's actually a good thing," said hospital liver transplant coordinator Curt Freer. "His condition was critical right after the surgery."

The baby's new liver is functioning well and he was taken off a ventilator, Freer explained. "We hope to start food by mouth soon, and if all goes well, Matthew will be going home in a few weeks."

Matthew suffers from a disorder called Factor V deficiency, which causes his blood to clot too fast, closing off vessels to his liver. It is an inherited disorder that was first identified in Norway in 1943. Since then about 150 cases have been reported, occurring in both men and women, officials said.

Matthew's liver problem was discovered at 9 days old when his mother could no longer wake him up to eat. He was diagnosed and placed on the waiting list for a liver for two weeks. In a rare procedure, he was given a temporary liver transplant from a 6-year-old.

Although that liver had an enzyme deficiency that caused kidney problems, it was able to sustain him until he was a few months older and his mother recovered from child birth.

The surgery was scheduled for this summer, but was bumped up because Matthew began to show signs of kidney problems, hospital officials said.

Grassroots reaches the silver lining in Newark

Special to the Newark Post

Grassroots Handcrafts, a Newark landmark, celebrates 25 years as a downtown business this month.

The well-known venture began when Marilyn Dickey and Vonna Taylor met while volunteering for UNICEF in the early 1970s. They saw a need for a gift store in the college town and Grassroots was opened in April 1975.

The shop initially was located in a tiny 100 square-foot space on Horseshoe Lane, an alleyway off Main Street. When the store first opened, Dickey and Taylor would hand sew many of the clothes that were sold. One partner would stay home and sew while the other would tend to the business.

About a year later, Grassroots opened another store in Rehoboth Beach which thrived for over 19 years. In addition, due to the success of the business, the Newark store was moved from Horseshoe Lane to an 800 square-foot storefront directly on Main Street next to the former State Theater.

Business grew at that location until 1982, when the owners expanded once again and moved to a 2,000 square-foot location directly across the street.

In 1991, Grassroots took over an additional 1,000 square feet by expanding into the space directly next door.

Both Taylor and Dickey's children and husbands worked at the stores during various periods, as well as both of Dickey's parents.

In December 1993, after 18 years of hard work, Taylor retired from ownership in the business making Dickey sole proprietor. Dickey's daughters, Joanna Staib and Kristin Short, joined the business full-time in 1994.

That same year Grassroots opened a store in Kennett Square, Pa., followed by one on Concord Pike in Wilmington in 1995, and most recently in Trolley Square in 1998.

In 1997, the Newark store was relocated to its current location, the old Newark Opera House, due to the opportunity to own part of the building. Grassroots also developed a website in 1998 where customers can order merchandise on-line.

This year, Grassroots is opening a fifth location at 92 East Main street next to Abbott's Shoe Repair. According to Dickey, this annex store in Newark will specialize in footwear with a focus on comfort and health.

"Due to our great success, Grassroots has grown at an unbelievable rate," Dickey said. According to Dickey, the business went from two owner/employees in 1975 to one owner, two company managers, four full-time managers, three part-time managers, and 20 part-time employees, totaling 30 employees in all currently.

"We feel that our business has had a significant impact on our community and the contemporary American craft industry," Dickey said. "Grassroots is one of the longest surviving businesses on Main Street - we consider ourselves equivalent to a shopping center's 'anchor store.'"

Grassroots has been nominated four times for the national Top Retailer of American craft award given annually by Niche magazine.

More than 9,500 craft artists from across the country received ballots asking for their nominations for the award.

Newark. "The number of train riders are up about 82 percent since Monday," said Ackles. "We're averaging over 1,000 northbound riders total and about 250 to 260 riders southbound in the morning."

DelDOT officials also reported an increase in bus riders, especially on two new express routes contributed to the smooth progress. According to the agency, Route 951 at the Tri-State Mall had 40 riders and Route 952 at Brandywine Town Center, had 42 on Tuesday morning.

Transportation technicians also made adjustments to traffic signals at the intersection of Routes 141 and 202 on Tuesday morning to help improve traffic flow in midstream on westbound Route 141.

DelDOT Secretary Ann Canby said the department would continue to monitor traffic in this way and make adjustments whenever necessary throughout the construction.

When the work is complete on southbound I-95, workers will switch to northbound lanes which will also be closed. The entire project is expected to be complete by October.

Neighborhoods at top of Rewa's list

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

First time candidate Christine Rewa said she is "amazed" at the diversity of the 6th District. "Downtown we have students and retired people, but up toward Louviers (on Paper Mill Road) we have young professionals and families," she said. "One group is very interested in parking permits and traffic in the inner city while the other cares most about city services."

A resident of Prospect Street for 20 years, Rewa said she wants to represent that diverse range of opinion better to students who move into her district. "I am a landlord myself and I see these students come in and out, some in only one or two years," she said. "They don't get enough information about their responsibilities as renters from the landlords."

If elected, Rewa wants to participate in creating a brochure to make sure student renters get this information. "When they move into a house off campus, the brochure would be placed in their mailbox saying something like 'you may not know this, but...'" Rewa explained. "On my street, there are about 50 percent renters and 50 percent families - students need to know these things and understand what that means in terms of lifestyle."

Rewa said since she has been on "both sides of the fence" she feels she knows about this subject. "I was a grad student and rented when I first lived in Newark," she said. "I've also worked at the (University of Delaware) Student Life TV station for 17 years, so I see a lot of students."

Rewa said she would also like the city to do a better job of policing the residential neighborhoods. "I think the police do a tremendous job but the solutions for residential areas are not the same as on Main Street," she said. "When the bars downtown close around 2 a.m., the police stop patrolling in my neighborhood and that's a problem."

Rewa said people walking home from the bars cut through neighborhoods and streets like hers. "The kids who live on my street are careful about noise - we all make sure of that," she said with a laugh. "But the kids cutting through aren't concerned - they congregate under the street lights and yell and throw beer cans."

Rewa said the kids deliberately try to cause problems for the obviously sleeping residents. "All the houses are dark and they yell things like 'wake up, you stupid (expletives),' " she said. "They're drunk - I don't even dignify it by turning my light on."

Lack of maintenance by some property owners and landlords also concerns Rewa. "I'm 'noisy,' and if I'm elected, I want to start calling attention to these things," she said. "My property is impeccable and I want others to be held to the same standard."

Rewa said she knows who the other landlords are on her street and she hasn't seen some of them there to check on their properties in years.

"Why don't city building inspectors have to drive around and notice things like the screens are ripped out and trashcans need to be put back?" she asked. "At least one house on my street has no on-street parking so they drive across the lawn and park in the backyard - shouldn't the inspectors notice those deep ruts in the yard?"

A graduate of the University of Delaware with a degree in English, she and her husband live on Prospect Street where she has been a property owner for the past 16 years. In addition to her University job, she also volunteers as a radio host at WVUD 91.3 FM.

The new reservoir off Paper Mill Road is one of the top issues for city council candidate Garrett L. Wilson. "I want to make sure it gets in there," said Wilson, "even though it will be in my backyard."

Wilson, a resident of Jenny's Run for the past seven years, said he has found widespread support for the project in his district.

"I've been going door-to-door and I haven't run into anyone who's against it," he said. "When you can't water your lawn and you can't wash your car, it's a problem - we have a lot of people in my neighborhood on weekends who do those particular things."

In addition, Wilson worries that all the new development, "especially the high rises going in off Paper Mill Road," will use even more water. "This is something we have to do," he said of the water storage facility.

Wilson also said the possibility exists for recreation at the reservoir site for not only young people but older residents. "I have the only senior high rise in Newark in my district," he noted. "I want to make sure they have a voice on council - they shouldn't feel sort of pushed out there."

Another issue which concerns Wilson is traffic. "Development also has an impact on traffic patterns," he said. "It's getting pretty difficult to get from Paper Mill Road to the post office (on Ogletown Road)."

Rush hours are particularly congested. "For about three hours in the morning and the evening I can't get out of my development," Wilson said. "Although it's nice to have the jobs, MBNA throws an awful lot of cars on that road."

Wilson

Wilson also expressed concern about the attitude of the drivers. "They turn off Cleveland Avenue (onto Paper Mill) and just fire up the road," he said.

Wilson said the Newark Police do a good job but if he gets on council he wants to make sure they get the resources to do even more. "There seems to be an awful lot of attacks on women and incidents of road rage in Newark," he said. "I want to make sure the police department has the tools to work with this - the money, additional equipment, whatever it takes."

Wilson said he uses downtown a lot and wants more people from his neighborhood to do so. "But we need adequate and safe parking without the fear of your car being broke into or of being mugged yourself," he said. "Kids come in from outside the town who think they have the right to shout verbal abuse from cars at people on the sidewalks."

Although he has never run for public office, Wilson is no stranger to politics, having run campaigns for Phil Cloutier and Terry Spence. He has also lobbied in Dover and Washington, D.C.

Currently the chief operating officer for the Boeing Helicopter Credit Union in Ridley Park, Pa., Wilson is retired from his management engineering job at the aircraft assembly plant.

"I think my experience will be useful as a councilmember," he said. "With my financial background, I am also familiar with the budget process - if 10,000 people at Boeing Credit Union trust me with their money, I don't see why I can't do a good job (in Newark)."

Wilson has degrees in police science and criminal justice from DelTech and Wilmington College. He is currently working on an MBA.

Seniors have a place at St. Margaret's

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

When the St. Margaret of Scotland Parish began services in May 1999, Irene Lubina of Caravel Farms noticed that many younger people were attending Mass at the current worship site in Pencader Corporate Center.

"We had a lot of young people and it was labeled a young parish," said Lubina. "But, I heard someone say 'if I don't see someone with gray hair, I'm not going to stay.'"

Realizing that she had to do something to encourage senior members to find their place at the new parish in Glasgow, Lubina posted a note in the church bulletin urging any senior citizen who wanted to get together to contact her.

Thirteen people responded to the initial call, and since then the Friends of St. Margaret's has grown to include more than 22 members.

Group vice president Walt Dignan, 64, described their purpose as being both social and service oriented.

"What we are trying to do is be there for others and also do charity work," said 64-year-old Walt Dignan, the group's vice-president. "We do a little business and a lot of talking and socializing at our monthly meetings."

In fact, the active seniors created a "Giving Tree" to collect donated gifts at Christmas, in addition to making Thanksgiving food baskets for a needy family and assisting with the church's coat drive.

Lois Nowell, secretary at St. Margaret's, joined the group because of their enthusiasm.

"They are very active and lively people who want to give all they can," she said.

"They've made themselves known to the parish and the people here recognize them."

Nowell also mentioned that the group serves as a great help to St. Margaret's pastor.

"They are people that Father (John) Hopkins can depend on during the day for help while other people are still working," she said.

In February, the group began attending a 10-week training session called Lifetimes: a peer sharing program which is geared towards helping the aged and adults with physical disabilities. "We might have Lifetimes' meetings offered at St. Margaret's in April," said Lubina.

For Lubina, offering more assistance and personal well-being through the group has become her second mission. "I don't like to lead groups but I like to get people together."

Her greatest talent, she professed, is drawing out the best in people, especially older people, and helping them understand their importance.

The members of the senior group at St. Margaret of Scotland Parish do a little business and a lot of talking and socializing at their monthly meetings.

"In this group everybody found a friend and they are no longer lonely," she said.

"This group has helped members have a fuller life and make them realize that they have tremendous value and are a tremendous asset to those around them."

African American women seniors need mammograms

Approximately 50 community leaders have joined together to promote the importance of African American senior women having regular mammograms to aid in the detection of breast cancer.

Quality Insights of Delaware organized the campaign in response to recent data from the National Cancer Institute showing that breast cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among African American women.

The five-year survival rate is 43 percent for African American compared to 90 percent for white women.

According to most recent statistics from the Health Care Financing Administration, 10 percent fewer senior African American women in Delaware get a mammogram than their Caucasian counterparts.

Only 40 percent of African American seniors in Delaware have gotten a screening mammography in the past two years, compared to 50 percent of all seniors statewide.

Quality Insights wants to increase the rate for African American seniors to 60 percent or higher.

Cindy Miller of Quality Insights contacted key women throughout the state and asked for their assistance in moving the project forward.

Representatives from the Delaware chapters of the National Coalition of 100 Black Women, the American Cancer Society, Sisters on a Mission, Letty's Sisters in Session, Alpha Kappa Alpha, and Zeta Phi Beta have united for this effort.

Joining them are local groups such as Circle of Friends, Delaware Breast Cancer Coalition, CCHS Mammography of Delaware, Delaware Commission of Women, Minority Health Council, and Bethel UME, Ezion Mt. Carmel, and Christ our King Churches.

Miller said the organizations have created a network that is now working in their communities encouraging senior women to have a screening mammogram.

Medicare pays 80 percent of the cost of the test and the recipient pays 20 percent. A mammogram costs approximately $66, so senior patients are responsible, on average, for about $12.

Several sources of funding are available for women who have trouble paying this amount.

Women who want to join the Senior African American Mammography Campaign, or who want further information, can call 475-8100, ext. 114.

Election on Tuesday is a chance to be heard

On Tuesday, two newcomers are vying for the only vacant city council seat in Newark.

It's tempting to say "only" two, because incumbents Frank Osborne in District 5 and Karl Kalbacher in District 3 are returning to their seats unopposed.

The word "only" also comes to mind in this election because three-time District 6 councilmember Gerald Grant decided against running for a fourth time.

But this is not an "only" situation in our view.

In some years, we have taken the opportunity to evaluate and endorse candidates running for city council.

This time, but not the only time, is one of the rare instances when we will not do so.

We have had the opportunity to talk with both candidates more than once.

Both are articulate, educated, and appear familiar with the government processes in Newark. Both have strong and well-considered views on what they would like to do if elected.

In fact, both seem to be the very epitome of the best to emerge in small town, city manager forms of government: residents who are informed on the issues that affect themselves and their neighbors and are willing to become more actively involved in finding solutions that work for everyone.

It would be unfair, especially given their untried positions, to give a nod to either at this point.

The people who will be the most affected, those in District 6, can participate in democracy at its most direct and basic level.

Here are two of your neighbors — people who live, shop, socialize within the community. Who better than you to decide which will best serve your interests for the next two years?

In reality, there is never an "only" election in Newark. Every such local election is important as another opportunity to have a say in what your government does for you.

Don't let this be the only time you don't take time to be heard.

Making Delaware a safer place to live

By GOVERNOR THOMAS R. CARPER
SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Perhaps no single issue is more on the minds of Delawareans than the issue of crime — and rightfully so. We should feel safe... free to raise a family and work without a fear of harm. As Governor, I have made a commitment to keeping violent criminals off our streets, while also focusing on initiatives that prevent future crimes and future victims.

To help ensure that our communities are safe, we've been fighting to take back our streets — and we're winning the fight. State Police have reported that the crime rate across Delaware is declining. Statewide violent crime rates decreased last year in almost every category.

The reduction of crime across Delaware indicates that our crime-fighting strategy is working. Our crime-prevention initiatives are working. Our in-prison programs are working. Our juvenile anti-crime programs are working.

But we can't — and won't — rest on our laurels. Through "Operation Safe Streets," teams of police and state probation officers are patrolling places like New Street in Dover; Palmer Park in Kent County; and Coverdale Crossroads and West Rehoboth in Sussex County. By pulling together resources and sharing information in this multi-agency effort, we've been able to have a real impact on the streets. Our message to probationers has been loud and clear: we mean business.

— To keep violent offenders off our streets, Delaware is in the final phase of the largest prison construction project in history — a 2,500-bed expansion that is right on schedule. In Delaware we have fully implemented truth in sentencing laws that guarantee violent offenders, by law, serve almost 90 percent of their sentences — the highest rate in America. In addition, I have signed into law a bill that will force some of the state's most violent offenders to serve every day of their sentences.

To help reduce recidivism in Delaware, we have expanded our internationally renowned Key-Crest drug treatment program to every inmate in the last year of their sentence. Inmates who complete this rigorous treatment initiative are 40 percent less likely to reoffend. Ferris School, once an embarrassment to our state, now is a nationally-accredited detention center providing youth with a solid second chance.

We have also created the first prison Boot Camp in Delaware. This initiative, through its military-style discipline and life-skills training, gives offenders a fighting chance to become better citizens — not better criminals. Inmates who complete this rigorous program are one-third less likely to return to prison. Also, stricter control laws have been enacted to prevent guns from getting into the wrong hands.

As we enter the 21st Century, every law enforcement officer from Talleyville to Selbyville will have access to the most innovative technology that is available today in fighting crime — realtime crime

Street and sewer expense cut gains

Contractor F. W. Lovett appeared before Council Monday evening, and submitted a proposal to rebuild East Main street from Newark Center to the town limits; and North College avenue from Cleveland to Prospect, for the sums of $5000 and $880 respectively.

Council made no decision at the meeting. Many residents of the "east end" are disappointed that their street was not included in the original list for resurfacing. It is admittedly one of the roughest streets in town.

Dwelling burns down

A frame dwelling on Iron Hill, owned by W. Wilson, of Newark, was burned to the ground last Thursday, according to reports from our Glasgow correspondent.

There was no one in the building at the time of the fire. Some furniture, being kept there by the owner was destroyed.

Delmarva/Newark to discuss rate hike

In an unprecedented move, Delmarva Power and the city of Newark will negotiate for a mutual settlement regarding Delmarva's proposed 24.9 percent electric rate increase to the city.

Albert K. Martin, Newark finance director, should receive information concerning the increase sometime during the week, according to William M. Metten Jr., manager of community and public relations for Delmarva.

It will be the first time Delmarva has opened its books for inspection by Newark.

Developer asks annexation delay

A Wilmington developer has requested another delay from the city of Newark to consider annexation of 16 acres of property on Elkton road where a commercial-residential development is proposed.

Silco Realty Co. was requested by the city in December to provide information about the location of flood plain on the site where Silco is proposing to build 48 townhouses and a small shopping center.

The developer also has planned the restoration of an old house into a restaurant but the property may contain soil not recommended for development by the U.S. Soil and Conservation Service.

April 7, 1995

Planning panel okays project

Main Street moved one step closer to receiving a facelift Tuesday night when the Newark Planning Commission approved the plan to build a Galleria on the old State Theater site.

The plan calls for a 34,240 square foot, two-story retail and commercial building that will emulate the architectural style of the university dorms that stand next to the site along the University Mall.

Protests fail to stall 896

Despite resident protests, Delaware Department of Transportation officials have awarded bids for the widening for Route 896 from Interstate 95 to Route 40.

Nine Newark area civic organizations want the work delayed until DeIDOT's toll evasion study is completed.

In fact, local residents sent a letter to Gov. Thomas Carper asking him to delay DeIDOT's widening of the road, the same day DeIDOT awarded the bid for the work.

Planning panel okays project

Main Street moved one step closer to receiving a facelift Tuesday night when the Newark Planning Commission approved the plan to build a Galleria on the old State Theater site.

The plan calls for a 34,240 square foot, two-story retail and commercial building that will emulate the architectural style of the university dorms that stand next to the site along the University Mall.

Protests fail to stall 896

Despite resident protests, Delaware Department of Transportation officials have awarded bids for the widening for Route 896 from Interstate 95 to Route 40.

Nine Newark area civic organizations want the work delayed until DeIDOT's toll evasion study is completed.

In fact, local residents sent a letter to Gov. Thomas Carper asking him to delay DeIDOT's widening of the road, the same day DeIDOT awarded the bid for the work.

Boulden will run for a fourth term

State Representative Timothy U. Boulden (R-Newark) announced he will seek re-election in the 23rd District.

"I have learned so much from my constituents over the years and I appreciate their input," said Boulden. "I look forward to another two-year term, during which I plan to continue to focus on education reform, including reducing classroom sizes, returning to a closest-to-home school policy, and improving Delaware public schools' site-based management policy."

A member of the House Education committee, the three-term Newark lawmaker has focused on education reform since being elected in 1994. One of his major education initiatives while in the Legislature includes the passage of a law reducing the class size in core academic subjects in grades K-3. His legislation capped the class size to 22 students.

Boulden has sponsored new legislation that will cap the class size to 20 students per teacher in grades K-3, and cap the size to 23 students per teacher in grades four and five. The bill also provides 100 percent state funding for the next five years for any new construction that includes classrooms for K-5.

Boulden is also chairman of the House Transportation committee where he chaired a Task Force that studied the feasibility of installing warning devices in Delaware railyards for the purpose of notifying nearby residents of a hazardous materials spill or leak.

Boulden, in conjunction with

AARP Delaware, is leading the effort on legislation setting up a Money Management program to assist older individuals, or people with disabilities, in organizing expenses and paying bills.

He also serves on the Land Use and Infrastructure committee, the Health and Human Development committee and the Substance Abuse committee.

Boulden notes his accessibility to constituents during his tenure in the General Assembly. Since his first year in office, Boulden has hosted weekly breakfast gatherings, as well as annual town meetings where residents of the 23rd District can ask questions and share their concerns about legislative and/or district-related issues.

We don't need an incinerator

By JOHN J. VIOLA

GUEST COLUMNIST

One of the biggest environmental issues facing Legislators in Dover is the debate over garbage incineration in Delaware. The cry from local residents of "not in my backyard" can be heard all the way from New Castle County to Legislative Hall. However, the issue remains in the forefront despite overwhelming public discontent.

Recently, the Delaware State Senate passed legislation prohibiting incinerator construction in the state to within three miles of a community, residence, school or public building. Essentially, this bill will make it virtually impossible to build a new incinerator anywhere in the state.

It seems to me that the detrimental effects of garbage incineration far outweigh its benefits, especially in New Castle County, which already ranks among the worst in the nation in hazardous air pollutants. In addition to cancer, incinerator emissions could contribute to birth defects, asthma and bronchitis. Incineration is also noisy, increases truck traffic through neighborhoods and lowers property values. We only need to look to the residents of Pigeon Point to validate that point.

This legislation will go a long way toward protecting the health, welfare and quality of life of all residents across the state. It is my hope when this bill reaches the House of Representatives my colleagues will join the Senate in approving this common sense legislation.

Viola is the Democratic State Representative from the 26th District.

Recalled toys can still do harm

For me it is officially spring as I watch our magnolia tree break into bud. By the time this column goes to print, the buds will be in full bloom. And with the onset of spring-flowering trees, the season of yard sales cannot be far behind.

Many neighborhoods sponsor community yard sales, which entices homeowners to sift through their "junk."

Items not sold often end up in thrift and consignment shops. This is where consumers must be careful.

In a recent study of thrift stores conducted by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), an estimated 69 percent of these stores were selling at least one type of known hazardous consumer product.

The CPSC coordinates approximately 300 recalls of defective or dangerous products each year. Despite recall notices and public warnings, many older hazardous products are still in circulation. Be careful when selling or purchasing items at thrift shops or yard sales, and check to make sure the products are not dangerous for children.

"People need to do some spring cleaning and check their attics and other storage areas for old hazardous products," said Trish Roberts, chair of Delaware SAFE KIDS Coalition. "The CPSC can get the products off store shelves, but we need everyone's help to get them out of families' homes."

The Delaware SAFE KIDS Coalition and Once Upon A Child thrift/resale shop will collaborate with the CPSC to support their Recall Round-Up 2000 program. The goal of the program is to provide education and consultations to thrift stores and consumers.

Once Upon A Child resale shop receives all of the CPSC recall press releases to ensure that they do not sell hazardous items. This information is available to their customers.

The used items the SAFE KIDS Coalition is most concerned about are the recent recalls, such as certain infant car seats/carriers, children's jackets and sweatshirts equipped with drawstrings, hair dryers, Pokemon balls, swim pool dive sticks, television carts, tubular metal cribs and any crib made before the CPSC's product safety standards.

ASPIRING EAGLE SCOUT WINGS IT

When Boy Scout Raju Manrai decided to become an Eagle Scout, he really did spread some wings.

As a result of his work, the outline of a 500-square foot garden in the shape of a butterfly is stretched across a section of land near the entrance to Caravel Academy.

The groundwork for the garden which will also attract butterflies was installed in March when Manrai, along with other members of Newark-area Boy Scout Troop 250 and their Scoutmasters, removed close to two tons of dirt and replaced it with three tons of top soil and some mulch.

Six varieties of native plants with differing heights and colors will be planted in the garden giving it a three-dimensional effect. Purple coneflower, ironweed, goldenrod, hardy ageratum, obedient plant and butterfly weed will decorate the bedding which Manrai designed himself.

"I looked up different types of gardens on the Internet and I liked the idea of attracting butterflies," he said. "Hummingbirds will also be drawn to it."

Manrai also paid a visit to Pleasantville Elementary School to get a good look at the nine butterfly gardens exist already.

From start to finish, the process of making the garden a reality was directed by Manrai who was required to demonstrate leadership and organization in order to earn the top scout merit.

"I've had a lot of fun doing this," Manrai said. "It's been enjoyable."

In addition to beautifying the schoolyard, Manrai explained that the garden will serve as an educational resource where students can study the metamorphosis of butterflies and how plants grow.

Manrai, who is an eighth grader at Caravel, chose his project exactly one year ago after learning that he could apply for a grant from the University of Delaware Master Gardeners in support of his $1,500 undertaking.

Manrai received a $250 grant from the Master Gardeners with the stipulation that he arrange for the garden to be maintained. As a result, he started an environmental club at Caravel in which 30 students have already expressed interest.

"We will have to water the plants and weed out the garden when it needs it," Manrai said.

Overall, Manrai dedicated close to 150 hours towards his Eagle Scout project.

This involved gaining approval from the school's board of directors, directing fellow scout members on what to do, scheduling dates to install the garden, and keeping track of everyone he spoke to regarding the project.

"I had to test the soil and check out what fertilizers were available, and I had to make sure we could dig in this section by checking for piping or utility lines," said Manrai describing a few necessary steps in preparation for the flower bed.

According to Master Gardeners Carolyn Browning and Martha Bradick the garden's flowers and plants require little water and can survive most droughts.

"The plants are not very invasive either, so they won't overgrow to other areas around the school," said Browning.

Lending a helping hand was fellow Scout, Jolen Hague. "This project is kind of different for me, I've never really worked on a garden before," he said. "Right now I'm helping to pick up this extra dirt and spread it out behind the school."

Also assisting with the project was Scoutmaster Cecil Olliviere. "I've known Raju since he was in Boy Scouts with my son. He interacts well with others and he's been a good instructor for this," Olliviere said.

Donations of soil, mulch and bulbs were offered to Manrai from a few local businesses including Gateway Nursery in Hockessin and Spring House Nursery in Newark. Henry Dallas, Caravel Academy's grounds and maintenance man, also contributed some of the school's top soil.

BITS & PIECES

To be, or not to be?

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

A DILEMMA that I face as the new sports editor of this paper has to do with controversy. The question is basically, "do I or don't I get controversial in a community newspaper?"

As an employee of this company with a probationary period, I must be cautious of many things. On top of normal details about being to work on time, and having good hygiene, there is this nagging controversy issue.

I've read or heard somewhere that it is manipulative to try to entice everyone to like oneself. So, even though ones intentions might be good, being someone different simply to please the crowd, is itself, dishonest.

There can't be any room for dishonesty or deception, here especially.

There are certainly plenty of issues to write about that could be, or are, controversial: Title IX, ASA equipment rule changes, improper relationships, recruiting at the prep level (Oops, no such thing, I nearly forgot), why the state high school football championship was played at a site that was way too small when there were places available and larger in which to play, and more. But to even bring any of them up in some conversations are, at times, taboo.

The best way I can think of to handle this problem, is to offer "Bits and Pieces" of information that could be assembled or dissected completely at later dates. Dates which fall after the probationary period is over and its harder to fire me (I think).

St. Mark's bows in showdown

Tigers edge Spartans 3-2

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

GREENVILLE, DE- Beth Belanger scored a goal with seven minutes remaining to boost AI duPont to a 3-2 victory in the rematch of last year's championship soccer game between the Tigers and the Spartans of St Marks.

Belanger's goal was her second, both of which were scored on corner kicks.

The Tigers (2-0) scored first 12 minutes into the game when Jessica Natalie hit Belanger with a beautifully played corner kick into the crease of the goal.

Belanger stoked a header to get on the board.

A minute and a half later, Natalie lofted a 20-yarder for a goal for herself on a shot that Spartan freshman goalie Lauren Lewandowski couldn't catch up with after being pulled out of position.

Spartan Sophomore Shannon Bradbury cut the lead in half with 10 minutes to go in the half. Shortly afterwards she was cut down from behind by Tiger Katie Mazzio, who received a yellow card on the play, and appeared to suffer knee damage. She returned later in the second half to a chorus of cheers from the Spartan faithful.

Five minutes into the second half, the Spartans (3-1) tied the game on an Ashley Dilworth penalty shot. She had been pushed down on the border of the box by freshman Danielle Nourie and neatly placed her PK into the right corner of the goal past a diving Erin Tully.

Belanger said that, "We knew it was going to be a close game. In the second half we really picked it up and started to win our 50-50 balls. Then we started controlling the game."

They didn't have any special

All-Staters Tracey Withrow (A.I. duPont) and Ashley Dilworth (St. Marks) duel for the ball in a clash between the state's two best soccer teams.

plan for the hungry Spartans. Belanger said, "We wanted to do what we had to do. We didn't really prepare for them, we prepared for us. We just came and we just wanted to play our game. It (St. Marks) is our rival so we just wanted to do all we could."

A HAPPY COACH

St Marks head coach Tom Dematteis was pleased with his teams performance despite the loss. He said, "Out of the four games we've played (this season) obviously this is the only loss, but I feel better coming out of this one than I did any of the three wins. I think we really played a good game. To their credit, after we scored the PK to tie it they really did put a lot of pressure on us, and we had a little trouble regrouping but they just battled all the way. The girls tried to overcome everything that was presented to them and they just didn't quite get over the hump again, but its (the win) is coming."

ANOTHER REMATCH?

With all things remaining equal, the Spartans could very well lock horns again with the Tigers in yet another rematch, in this years finals.

Even with the graduation of all-state goalie Kristy Ganc, the Spartans still field a strong defensive team. The Tigers fired over 50 shots on goal in their first game of the season, but were held to just 10 in this contest.

Dematteis said that his team has to be mentally prepared to win these difficult games and thought his squad was indeed more prepared than they were in their first three games so far. "We can't just show up at the field and get ready to play, we have to be prepping for it in practice leading up to the game and think about what we have to do to be successful. We did a much better job of that today, but obviously we still have to do better to beat them. They (the Tigers) are still the champs."

If they meet again, the fireworks should continue. "I think it will be another war," Dematteis said, "We just have to keep getting better working up to that point and make sure we get to play them again."

National recognition for Hodgson's Lamey

Hodgson Vo-Tech's head wrestling coach Jerry Lamey was runner up for the honor of the National Wrestling Coaches Association wrestling coach of the year.

Lamey was named the Region 2 coach of the year for the 1998-99 wrestling season when his Silver Eagle squad won the Division II dual meet wrestling championship for the third year in a row (they added the fourth this year), and went undefeated with a 16-0 record. The Silver Eagles were ranked as the number one team in the state by Delaware Sports, were the 8th highest ranked team in the region and were ranked in the top 50 high school wrestling programs in the state.

Lamey quickly credited his associates and supporters for being honored and for his team's success last year. He said, "Its a great honor, but it's not an individual effort. We have other great coaches here, Don Meyer, Paul Antonio (who was named the Division II assistant coach of the year for 99-00), Bill Robeson and Jay Leary. Plus a lot of other people supported me with letters of recommendation such as (William Penn's) Jack Holloway, the principal at Hodgson, and the superintendent."

The top wrestling coach of the year was from Montana and the Area track stars tested

The largest track meet of the year in Delaware was the Diamond State Relays held this past Saturday at A.I. duPont High School in Greenville.

Forty-eight girls teams and 45 boys teams from Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey tested the newly refurbished track at Tigers Stadium with an air of anticipation of records falling.

Total team points were not kept during the meet, so competitors focused on achieving best times, throws, and leaps, and qualifying for both the state meets and the upcoming Penn Relays.

Locally, Jason Forbes of Newark had the best overall performance. He was a double winner taking the long jump and triple jump competitions. Jumpers take a series of three jumps in a preliminary round with the six best jumpers advancing to a final round of three more leaps. Forbes fouled on his first two attempts in the final round before nailing his third jump for the victory. "I was afraid I was going to lose because the way the track was on an incline and I couldn't get any pop off the track. On the last jump I went all out and I won it," Forbes commented.

William Penn's girls field team once again had a strong showing. Stephanie Crawford took a second place in the shot put and her sophomore teammate Lateefah Vaughn won the

Scanlon starts season on fire

A LOT OF NOTHING

Glasgow's Lisa Scanlon pitched her second no-hitter of the year in just her fourth game of the season. The McKean Highlanders were the victim this time in an 8-0 shutout. Scanlon has now thrown six no-hitters in her career as a Glasgow High pitcher which only began after her transfer from the field last year. She followed that performance with another shutout against Dickinson and was one out away from pitching back-to-back no-hitters, until the Rams Ann Underwood slapped a single to break up her streak.

St Mark's Mark Romanczuk, a sophomore, pitched a no-hitter in his first varsity baseball game. Romanczuk struck out 15 Archmere Academy Auk hitters in the Spartans 8-0 opening game.

WESTERN Y COMPETES IN TOURNAMENT

The 12-years-old-and-under girls basketball team from the Western YMCA of Newark was the first team ever from Delaware to qualify for Eastern USA Regional YMCA tournament. The tournament was held at Cortland State University in Cortland, N.Y. on April 1 and 2.

Over 200 teams compete during the season to try to reach the district championship. The seven district tournament winners then moved on to vie for the regional title. The Western Y qualified by winning the Delaware Valley District Tournament Championship against Hamilton N.J., February 18.

Head coach Dave Swift's team consisted of 12 girls; Karla Stidham and Diana Degliobizzi from St Johns the Beloved Elementary; Angel Henderson from Bayard; Katie Mazur and Abby Swift from Bancroft; Karina Puckham from McDowell; Kim and Kasey Lawrence and Nicki Graham from Skyline Middle; Janelle Richardson from Gunning Bedford; Jessica Rholetter from Stanton Middle and Meghan Gray from Corpus Christi.

They went 3-2 in the tournament and took home the third place trophy.

Western opened with a 29-12 win over Corning, NY. Meghan Gray, 12, led the team with nine points. Seven different girls contributed points in the game.

The team dropped to the consolation bracket after losing 42-37 to Hazleton, Pa, despite a 12 point effort by first team all-tournament player Angel Henderson. Gray and Karla Stidham, who were named to the second team all-tourney team, each pitched in 10 points.

Troy, N.Y. was beaten by Delaware, Gray 19. Henderson scored 10, Gray 8, and 11 year old Janelle Richardson scored six.

Bangor, Maine went down next, 39-29. Stidham and Henderson scored 13 each and Kim Lawrence added six.

Delaware bowed out to Rochester in a closely played 24-22 defensive struggle to end their run at the title.

Karina Puckham, 10, dished out 24 assists in the tournament and Abby Swift, 11, added six. Henderson led the team with 11 steals and Gray was the leading rebounder with 22.

Local Wrestlers Grapple at Nationals

St. Marks graduates Stan Spoor and John Testa recently competed in the NCAA wrestling championships. Both athletes compete for the Clarion Eagles in Pennsylvania.

Spoor, a senior, finished his wrestling career with a 68-61 overall mark after dropping both his bouts in the championships. He lost to the #12 seed from Oklahoma Jared Frayer 6-1, and then lost 8-0 to Pitt's Justin Giovinco in the 149 pound weight class.

Testa, an Eagle red-shirt freshman and heavyweight, went 3-2 in the tournament to finish his year with a respectable 28-11 record. He opened with a 10-5 decision over John Devine of Cal-Bakersfield, then lost 5-3 to #4 seed John Lockhart from Illinois. In the wrestle backs Testa scored a major decision (12-4) over Matt Fisher (Duquesne), then defeated Kevin Baltz (UT-Chattanooga) 13-9 before losing by fall to Matt Kenny from North Carolina.

Testa Named Rookie of the Year

Testa, from Newark, was named the PSAC (Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference) Rookie of the Year for the 2000 season.

Testa won the heavyweight advance of the actual event. Bragging rights are always at stake collectively and individually.

I've had the honor of being invited to the contest for the past four years, and its now something I await anxiously. On the radio show that I host from the studios of WMPH, Silver Eagle Mike Welch boldly claimed "I will light you up Marshal." This past Saturday he had the chance.

Assistant coaches Dee Meyer and Paul Antonio were the clear favorite targets of the wrestlers. Meyer loves the trash talking and becomes a target that most of his teammates wish to stay clear of due to the massive quantities of paint that fly in his direction. Kevin Woodland, a varsity member, even wrote on his clothing "Meyer will be mutilated" for all to see.

As usual, the men won the contest. We always win although this years contest wasn't really even a contest. We swept all five "capture the flag" games that we played, and didn't take any prisoners.

140 pounder Tyler Smith was one of my "kills" during the day. I hit him with a clear head shot (yes, he was wearing safety goggles). When this happens, the "dead man" is supposed to leave the playing field immediately. Naturally, he didn't leave. Instead, rumor is that he is still entrenched in his bunker claiming he is still alive even now.

After Smith was indeed officially dead, all that was left was to grab the flag and run for glory, but much to my dismay, I was "lit up" like a Christmas tree in plain sight of a game official by an unknown gunman and declared deceased.

Back at the staging area, Smith was still trying to wipe all the paint off of his mask when I tried to determine my killer. Sitting close by was the nodding 130 pound state champion Mike Welch with a Cheshire grin needing not to speak a word of his accomplishment.

A true bonding experience the event becomes with all involved exchanging well wishes at the end. Some even with smiling hidden warnings of things to come. I surely can't wait until next year to play again and be a part of their group, particularly with that one fine young man, Junior Mike Welch.

BLUE HEN REVIEW

■ Women's Lacrosse

The No. 9 ranked Hens continued to roll as they dumped Ohio State 20-12. Ten different women scored with Megan Fortunato and Sarah Edwards recording hat tricks.

Edwards then exploded for seven goals in a 15-7 win over No. 16 Penn State. One of those goals was her 100th point in her Delaware career. She becomes the 13th player to reach that milestone for the Hens. Edwards currently leads the America East in goals (32) and points (36) and has scored a goal in 14 consecutive games. Because of that performance she was named America East Women's Lacrosse Player of the Week for the second straight week. Delaware improved to 8-0 and have won 11 straight games dating back to last year.

■ Baseball

The Hens won a slugfest 16-14 over George Mason and then shutout Drexel 2-0 behind a six-hit pitching performance by junior Vic Sage in the opening round of the Liberty Bell Classic in Philadelphia. Over the weekend, the Hens took three of four games from Maine. Freshman Steve Harden hit his first collegiate HR in the second game of the series. Chris Kolodzey hit three homeruns in the Sunday doubleheader.

The Hens (14-9) have now won 17 straight conference-opening weekend games.

■ Tennis

The men's team swept Division II St Leos, beat Bethel, Minn. 6-1, Wisconsin-Whitewater 6-2, and lost to Stetson 7-2 to finish the week at 9-8. The loss to Stetson stopped a six-game win streak for Delaware.

The women also swept St Leos, but then lost just their second match of the year to Bethune-Cookman, 7-2. The Hens followed with another loss, this time to Stetson 7-2, to finish their week with a 9-3 overall record.

Erin Kamen lost her first two matches of the year to drop to 10-2, but her career record now stands at 68-10, tied with Rebecca Fearins for second place on the all-time Blue Hen win list. Head Coach Laura Travis holds the school mark with 73 wins set in 1985-89.

■ Golf

Mike Ladden recorded a one-over-par 73 to tie for 13th place at the Golden Horseshoe Invitational hosted by William and Mary. Delaware finished 19th overall as a team with the Temple Owls winning the event.

■ Softball

The Hens went 6-0 beating Lehigh twice and Drexel four times increasing their winning streak to 11 games. Their 20-5 start is the best in the program's 25 year history and marks the eighth time Delaware has won 20 games in a season.

Kristi O'Connell and Susan Dugan combined for five shutouts and held Drexel to only 10 hits in their four games.

O'Connell reached the 50 win plateau against the Dragons and set a new school record for consecutive scoreless innings pitched with 32. The old mark of 31 2/3 was held by Jill Rosen set in 1986.

Dugan also set a new Hen awards were presented in St Louis before the National Wrestling Championships. Lamey couldn't attend to accept a plaque in his honor because of his commitment to his newborn triplets who added to his two other young children in his rapidly growing family.

The Silver Eagles also won the Division II State Championship for the fourth year in a row this year, and also captured the Blue Hen Conference Championship along with the unofficial team title at the State Championships. They finished the season ranked number one in the state by Delaware Sports.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

JASON FORBES - NEWARK

The Newark High School senior track star Jason Forbes takes this week's Newark Post Athlete of the Week honors for his double victory at the Diamond State Track & Field Relays in Wilmington this past week.

Forbes, a senior, won the long jump with a 21-6 leap which followed his win at the Christiana Relays a week earlier. He then captured the triple jump win sailing over two feet farther than his nearest competitor.

More than 50 athletes in each event from the tri-state area competed in the April Fools Day event. But Forbes didn't seem phased at all about the amount of competitors and the size of the event. "Its not a big deal, I just go out and jump," he said.

Forbes, the indoor state champion in both events, focused on the near future. "I want to break the outdoor record in the triple jump this year, and clear 49 feet."

Jason's efforts have helped the Yellowjackets top ten standings so far this year. They are currently ranked second in the state and are 2-1 losing only to the powerful Salesianum boy's team early in the dual meet season.

discus with a throw of 114-9. Vaughn's sister Tiaana also placed in the discus taking third. "I taught her how to throw so its strange to have her beat me," the older Tiaana said.

That was the extent of the local victory stories in an event that lacked excitement. There was one Delaware state record that was broken. The new girls pole vault record is 8' 6.25" cleared by both Reagan Hastings of Seaford and LaKetta Johns of Dover.

■ Men's Lacrosse

The Hens were stunned in a non-league game against Army, 10-9, in West Point, NY. The No. 17 ranked Hens (4-4) led 7-2 at halftime only to see Tim Pearson score the go-ahead winning goal with 2:53 left in the contest. Ryan Metzbowler scored three times during the effort for Delaware.

Iron Hill Brewery will feature Dogfish Craft Brewery in first Reserve night

Iron Hill Brewery and Restaurant will hold their first in a series of "Brewers Reserve" nights on April 21.

The night will feature a seasonal beer that Head Brewer Brian Finn has held back especially as well as one of Dogfish Head Craft Brewery's seasonal specials.

Iron Hill will give away pint glasses to the first 50 guests. Additionally, Iron Hill will feature a beer brewed at their West Chester location.

"This is a great opportunity to showcase some of our seasonal specials as well as great beers brewed by other craft brewers in the region," said Finn. "We will be re-releasing our Munich Dunkel, a seasonal special, that has been very well received by our customers" he said.

Finn described the Dunkel as a dark, German lager, medium bodied, malty with notes of roastiness and a clean, dry finish.

Sam Calagione of Dogfish Head will be on hand to pour a dry hopped version of their India Brown ale. "It's a cross between an IPA, an American Brown ale and a Scotch ale that is brewed with caramelized brown sugar and aromatic barley," he said. It is also a fairly big beer coming in at 7.2 percent ABV.

Tom Honsinger, the head brewer at Iron Hill's West Chester brewpub, will be sending an India Pale ale. The beers will be tapped at 9 p.m.

Iron Hill hopes to continue the "Brewers Reserve" series by inviting local craft brewer to one of their brewpubs every few months. "We wanted to create an opportunity for our customers to sample local craft beers and meet some of the brewers that created the beers," said Mark Edelson, one of Iron Hill's partners and brewers. "We believe that as an industry we must recognize the uniqueness of each others products and the benefits of working together," he said.

TRANSPORTATION ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM

The Delaware Department of Transportation announces the kick-off for the fiscal year 2001-2002 Transportation Enhancement Program. The due date for applications is June 15th, 2000.

Proposed Transportation Enhancement activities must have a direct relationship to transportation, but not necessarily to a current or planned transportation project. Projects or activities that add community or environmental value to any transportation project and which fall into one of the following twelve categories are considered enhancements and may be eligible for funding:

- Provision of facilities for pedestrians or bicycles;
- Provision of safety and educational activities for pedestrians and bicyclists;
- Acquisition of scenic easements and scenic or historic sites;
- Scenic or historic highway programs - including the provision of tourist and welcome center facilities;
- Landscaping and other scenic beautification;
- Historic preservation;
- Rehabilitation and operation of historic transportation building, structures or facilities - including historic railroad facilities and canals;
- Preservation of abandoned railway corridors - including conversion for use as bicycle or pedestrian trails;
- Control and removal of outdoor advertising;
- Archaeological planning and research;
- Mitigation of water pollution due to highway runoff or reduce vehicle-caused wildlife mortality while maintaining habitat connectivity;
- Establishment of transportation museums

The TE program provides federal funding (up to 80%) for eligible projects. Project sponsors must identify match fund sources. Applications will be limited to three per sponsor per funding year. Funding (Federal Share) will be limited to a maximum of $500,000.00 - per project per funding year. Funding (Federal Share) will be limited to maximum of $750,000.00 per sponsor per funding year.

Potential sponsors are encouraged to contact DelDOT for pre-application project coordination. DelDOT staff will be available to comment on prospective projects; suggest potential partnerships and co-sponsors, and advise on plan, specification and construction requirements.

Factors which will weigh heavily in project ranking and selection include projects that are soundly developed, have demonstrated community support and a strong tie with other plans and programs such as Greenways, Historic Preservation and the Statewide Long Range Transportation Plan for 2020. Realistic evaluation in terms of accurate cost estimates, clear real estate issues and constructability will determine project feasibility and enhance the projects potential for selection.

Sponsors who have submitted applications previously, and whose projects were not selected, may resubmit. New and second submissions should be on current application forms.

Additional information including TE Program Brochure, TE Application and Cost Estimate forms can be found on the Internet at: www.deldot.net just click on "Doing Business with DelDOT" then "Transportation Enhancements". For additional information or for copies of the program brochure, and application forms, please call the Delaware Department of Transportation's Statewide and Regional Planning Office at: (302) 760-2121.
