Quality education shouldn't be up for a vote

By MARTY VALANIA

MVALANIA@CHESPUB.COM

As I slipped my state income tax return into the mailbox Monday just ahead of the state's April 30 deadline, I tried to remember all of the taxes that I actually had the opportunity to vote on.

Income tax isn't one of them. Neither is the gasoline tax. The tolls on Interstate 95 and Route 1 are basically taxes and I don't remember voting on those.

Millions of people across this country are taxed on a myriad of different things and they don't really have any say in what that tax is. Somehow, these taxes are justified by public officials and the public alike as necessary and everybody goes on about their business.

Of course there is one tax that people here in Delaware get to say no to – the tax that funds the public education of our children.

I read with interest last week that voters in the Brandywine School District voted down a referendum. It's been the trend recently throughout the state. Some people are disenchanted with their particular school district and some people just want to vote down the only tax they have the opportunity to vote down.

It's absolutely mind boggling to me that we have the opportunity to say no to taxes on such an important issue – arguably the most important issue facing the state right now.

We've been inundated over the last several years with

'Everybody knows us as Herman's'

Proceeds from Herman's cookbook sales benefit cancer care

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

As Chris Herman put the finishing touches on the cookbook she recently compiled of recipes and memories of her family-run business, she had one tough decision left to make: what to call it.

"The hardest part of the cookbook was coming up with the title," she admitted, months later.

She polled her four children, all of whom grew up helping out at the Cleveland Avenue mainstay, and they solved her dilemma. "Everybody knows us as Herman's, Mom" they told her.

"Herman's – Celebrating Forty Years of Service, a collection of memories and recipes from family and friends," tells the story of the shop that's supplied Newark residents with quality meats since 1967, and the family that's been an integral part of the community during that time.

The story is told through the writings of longtime customers who donated favorite family recipes to the project. Photographs of the shop and the people that worked there throughout the years are scattered throughout the more than 400-page book.

The cookbook project had been a dream of Chris Herman, who runs Herman's with her husband, Tim, for many years. Her vision took root, one day, when one of Herman's longtime customers walked through the door.

Janet Teixeira, co-executive director of Cancer Care Connection, spoke with Herman about the cookbook idea. She encouraged her to pursue it, and was inspired by Herman's enthusiasm, she said. "And then Chris asked, will you help me?," said Teixeira.

The two women started work on the project. Proceeds from the cookbook, they decided, would go to benefit Cancer Care, a local non-profit that provides cancer coaching, resources and referral programs to those affected by cancer.

New plan for Wilson Farm

Adult community proposed for Casho Mill property

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHESPUB.COM

A new plan has surfaced to develop the 40-acre Wilson Farm property along Casho Mill Road. The proposal by Lang Development Group is to build an 86-unit residential community for persons age 55 and up.

The project, known as "Saw Mill Place" calls for three styles of attached senior housing: "big house," courtyard and townhouse. It includes a clubhouse with a pool and fitness center, and a half-mile walking trail, which would be open to the public.

If approved, the condominiums would take up 13 acres of the property nearest

According to a Financial Position Report given to the Christina District school board on Tuesday night, the District is better off financially than a year ago, but conditions "remain very tight."

Frank McIntosh, chair of the District's Financial Review Committee, said his Committee is concerned that the situation could worsen if the District tries to accelerate repayment of funds advanced on the state's $20 million loan.

WANTED: New ideas for old mill

Public workshop to explore options for Curtis Paper Mill property

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The paper mill that put Newark on the map more than 200 years ago has become something of a stain on it in recent years.

Newark's City Council is hoping to change that, and is holding a public workshop next week to discuss options to breathe new life into the Curtis Paper Mill property on Papermill Road.

At the height of its production, the Curtis Paper Mill provided some of the highest quality paper available to such worthy buyers as Fortune Magazine, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and negotiators of the allied treaty after World War II.

But, business declined through the latter half of the 1900s, and the paper mill — then owned by Crown Investment Group — came to rest in December 1999. Since then, the property has fallen into city hands. The city completed a partial demolition of the structure in 2005.

Rehabilitating the site has been on the city's radar. Several years ago, architects with the Breckstone Group completed a design that proposed turning the building into a community recreation and cultural facility. The several-million-dollar project was cost prohibitive.

Next week, Newark's City Council will consider this and other options for the Curtis Paper Mill site at a workshop open to the public. The workshop will be held in council chambers on Tuesday, May 8, at 7 p.m.

"This is a 'let's get some ideas from the community' workshop," said Councilman Stu Markham. Markham represents Newark's sixth district, which includes the Papermill Road property. Residents in his district have concerns about the site and the vacant building, sometimes referring to it as an "eyesore," he said.

"The question right now is, what does the community hope to have the property used for? We're looking for ideas. I'm pushing for some kind of design and plan to figure out how much money we need," he said.

At next week's meeting, council will consider several possible options for the site as prepared by city staff. A memo containing a list of these options was circulated among council members in January.

NEWARK POST PHOTO BY CHRISTINE NEFF

The former Curtis Paper Mill on Papermill Road in Newark is the subject of a city council workshop to be held on Tuesday, May 8, at 7 p.m., in council chambers.

The list includes the following:

- Construct a community recreation/cultural facility and park similar in design and scope to the concept submitted by the Breckstone Group.

- Construct a community recreation/cultural facility and park on a small scale than the Breckstone concept.

- Partner in a commercial (private/public) venture to develop the site with the gymnasium and waterfront park/open space components.

- Complete demolition of all structures and develop the site as a park.

- Sell the property outside the 100-year floodplain. Maintain ownership of the floodplain as a waterfront park.

In addition to these options, council will be listening to ideas from the general public and also considering whether or not to preserve the existing smoke stack and water tank on site.

Markham said he has heard several ideas for revitalizing the property from his constituents. Those include turning the site into a skateboard park, a community center, a park or something simple, like a parking lot for bikers to access the city's new Pomeroy Trail, which will be completed in 2009.

He encourages residents in his district and citywide to attend the workshop and offer ideas. "I encourage people to come with their ideas, open minds, and let's see what we can plan," he said.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Scalia speaks at UD

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHES PUB.COM

Newark played host to a very special guest last Friday, April 27, when U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia came to town.

Scalia presented a talk at the University of Delaware's Center for the Arts in the 450-seat Thompson Theatre before a capacity crowd of students, faculty and Newark residents.

"We're quite lucky today, and, I have to admit, somewhat amazed to have Justice Scalia here," said Sheldon Pollack, director of UD's Legal Studies program, which sponsored the event. "He's at a little bit higher level than most speakers we have in my class."

Scalia was accompanied by his wife, Maureen, and one of their sons, Army ROTC Major Matthew Scalia, an instructor in UD's Department of Military Science. UD President David P. Roselle attended the event, as did president-elect Patrick Harker and his wife, Emily.

Scalia engaged the crowd with a talk on originalism, a theory of judicial interpretation that he shares with only one other Supreme Court Justice, Clarence Thomas. The originalist approach calls for the strict interpretation of the text of the Constitution based on the ordinary meaning it had when it was adopted.

Scalia, who was appointed by President Ronald Reagan to the Supreme Court in 1986, said he disagreed with the prevailing view of the Constitution as a living, evolving document open to interpretation.

"If you believe that, you're an idiot," he said, jokingly, in one of the many humorous remarks that punctuated his talk. "It's not a living organism. It's a legal document."

Scalia presented the common arguments in favor of the "living document" theory, such as the need for flexibility. "Originalism," he countered, "is a very flexible system." This flexibility, he said, comes not from the court, but the legislature, which has the power to change laws through an amendment process.

"The Constitution means what it says," said Scalia. "You figure out what it was understood to mean when it was adopted and that's the end of it. If you want more rights, create them by statute...create them by amending the Constitution," he said.

Scalia said his approach is more legitimate than competing views since the Constitution does not say the court should be the supreme interpreter of the document. The legislative branch, elected by the people, is more in touch with current standards of decency, for example, and better able to interpret those. "What makes you think I and my eight colleagues in our marble palace have an idea of evolving standards of decency?" he asked.

Scalia said his Constitutional test provides answers to some of today's most controversial issues, such as the death penalty and assisted suicide. "For the non-originalist," though, "every day is a new day," he said. "There are no answers."

Even so, Scalia said he was not in favor of getting rid of every Supreme Court decision made since the Warren Court, when, in his opinion, the view of the Constitution as a "living document" took root. "I'm an originalist, not a nut...I'm mostly willing to let sleeping dogs lie," he said.

But, he lamented the court selection process becoming more political, as judges are questioned on and selected for their personal beliefs and opinions on controversial issues.

"Ultimately, if the people take control of what the Constitution means, you have destroyed the Bill of Rights, because the Bill of Rights is meant to protect you and me against the people," he said. "So, unless you can figure out a system that doesn't leave it to the people, but doesn't leave it to be made up by nine unelected, unaccountable lawyers, you're in a terrible fix."

Cafeteria brightens at Newark High

Nutrition supervisor uses décor, menus to work up appetite

By MARY E. PETZAK

MPETZAK@CHESUPUB.COM

The cafeteria line at Newark High School used to be threaded through two doorways into a narrow, drab space lit only by overhead ceiling lights. It's hard to believe students used to fast-food dining in open areas surrounded by windows and color could work up an appetite here.

Marc-Anthony Williams, supervisor of child nutrition services for Christina District, could not reconfigure the available space, but he did launch an attack on the walls and décor.

"We want to enhance the area where they get their food, at least," Williams said last month. "We're also changing the menu and bringing in a kiosk with some items out in the table area so the students don't all have to go through the line."

Williams spent several days during the District's Spring Break painting the walls assisted by Roman Blonarowycz who also did some drywalling. "We can't do much with the set-up as it is now," Williams said. "But we are making it look more like what you see in a shopping mall."

Williams said the nutrition department saved 90 percent of the cost of the facelift by designing and printing posters and doing the cosmetic work themselves instead of bringing in an outside painter or contractor.

Bright turquoise and lime green paint on the walls as well as yellow stripes and orange signs, are reflected from the stainless steel fixtures in the "enhanced" cafeteria line at Newark High School.

The child nutrition services department in Christina District designed and printed the posters advertising new and healthier menu items for the cafeteria line at Newark High School.

St. Mark's sophomore wins Essay Contest

The National Society of The Colonial Dames of America selected Kelly Pun, a sophomore at St. Mark's High School, as a winner in its annual essay contest. Pun will join an elite group of students for a series of workshops during an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C., in June.

The topic for the 2007 contest was: "What influence and impact do the media have on each of the three branches of government in the United States today?"

According to the Society, the week in Washington, D.C., provides a unique experience in the study of American national government, with emphasis on the concerns and activities of the United States Congress.

The essay contest is a major project of The National Society of The Colonial Dames held under the auspices of the Washington Workshops Foundation, a private, non-profit educational program in American government for high school students. The contest is open to all grade 10-12 students in the United States.

Awards for 'egg-celent' work

Although none of the Easter Eggs decorated by West Park Elementary students were selected for the annual White House display, Anne Fitzgerald of the Delaware Department of Agriculture honored the class and their teacher with awards last month.

(Above) Second grade teacher Marjorie Sierra was given a plaque with a gold star. "The kids loved the idea that their teacher received a star," said parent Jayne

Mitchell-Werbrich. "It was fun watching their excitement for her."

The second grade students each received a certificate and Fitzgerald also returned their eggs.

Elizabeth Andreason (right), whose egg with sunglasses received the most votes among West Park students in the competition, received an additional award for her special achievement.

Newark Charter supports Newark's first K-9 unit

The Student Council at Newark Charter School presented a check for $500 in April to the Newark Police Department's first K-9 unit, Paco and Newark Police Cpl. Christopher Jones. "NCS students raised this money as one of our service projects sponsored by the Student Council," explained teacher Lynne Zarroli.

NCS Student Council officers LaNisa Brooks, president, Rebecca Potochney, vice president, and Stephanie Bailey, secretary, together with Shannon Catts, Eighth Grade Representative, made the presentation.

Paco and Jones previously spent a day at the school demonstrating the training needed to be an effective crime-fighting team. Barely containing their joy at seeing each other again, Paco and a group of student homeroom representatives renewed their friendship following the formalities. Newark Police officers at the presentation also included the acting police chief, Captain John Potts, and the Special Operations Unit Supervisor, Sgt. Mark Farrall, who directs the K-9 team. The NPD hopes to acquire another dog to add a second K-9 team in Newark.

Growing up (or old) in Newark

By JON BUZBY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

I drive through campus when I know the students are in class, not out.

Happy hour to me is an extra hour of sleep on the weekends.

I forget which night is nacho night at the Deer Park.

While out to eat on freshmen move-in day, I get asked what dorm my child is staying at.

As I get ready to turn 40, do these subtle hints mean I'm growing old or maybe just growing up?

Regardless of the answer to that question I've compiled a list of things I must do in Newark before I'm half a century old (could I make it sound any worse?).

1. Play golf at Newark Country Club. It's supposed to be one of the best courses in the state and soon for better or worse will never be the same. My guess is my ball will bounce off those trees like at any other golf course.

2. Go to the Halloween Parade on Main Street. I actually have no attraction to costumes or crowds of sugared-up people. But I plan to go to one in the next decade and figure out why people skip watching the NFL for this parade (my guess is I can see both from a bar stool in Grotto's.)

3. Eat at every pizza place in the city limits. I've never been to a town with more choices and styles of pizza. We all have our favorites, but there aren't many towns where you really can't go wrong no matter where you slice your pie.

4. Attend a Newark High School football game. As an avid sports fan I figure I owe it to myself to see one of the greatest coaches in Delaware High School history. More importantly, I've never had their concession stand's pizza.

5. Go see the Fourth of July fireworks with my wife on the U of D athletic complex. She loves them, I've been to them, but we've never watched them together. Is there anything more romantic than watching those explosions in the sky from the hood of your car while parked on the Route 4 median — and then sitting in traffic until July 5?

6. See a movie at the Cinema Center in the Newark Shopping Center. I want to see if the piece of gum I stuck under seat #2 in row four is still there from my college days. I know for sure the seat still is.

7. Hang out on Main Street on the first Saturday night of second semester when the students return after a long few weeks with the parents. Talk about entertainment — and all for free.

8. Last but not least, by the time I turn 50, I want to see Jim Streit come back to Newark and Grand Marshall the Halloween Parade, Parks and Rec Community Days still be in style, the Stone Balloon be resurrected somewhere on campus, the Post House still not remodeled, and the Hens continue to sellout on fall Saturdays.

All these "must do's" are things we take for granted but really are symbolic of the 9.3 city square miles we affectionately call Newark (pronounced New Ark).

I better get started — I only have a decade to go.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic features a photograph thought to have been displayed in the old Washington House Tavern at one time. Former Newark residents Dorothy and Howard Cage acquired a collection of photographs when the tavern closed, said their nephew Bill Barrow, who donated the photos for use in this space. This photo shows the Green on the University of Delaware campus. Readers who have a historic picture and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Alleged White Slave Ring Head Near Here

The mystery of a vicious Philadelphia white slave ring, exposure of which startled that city recently, was cleared up with the arrest here at 3 a.m. last Saturday of the alleged ringleader, Leslie Evans, by the Newark police, headed by Chief Cunningham.

Arrest of Evans followed a thrilling early morning automobile chase from the outskirts of Newark to near Strickersville and then to Appleton, Md. The arrest was made possible by the quick action of Sheriff Albert Buckworth, of Cecil County, Md., when his assistance was requested by the Newark police.

Gala Reception arranged for National commander of American Legion

The State of Delaware may well be proud of the program planned by the State Department of the American Legion in honor of the visit to Delaware of National Legion Commander Henry L. Stevens.

National Commander Stevens will attend a reception in his honor on May 10th. Respected and admired by every Legionnaire, commander Stevens will give an address following the banquet at Women's College of Delaware University sponsored by the American Legion.

Newark eyes W. Clay for dam project

Newark city officials, fearing a drop in water resources, are eyeing the White Clay Creek as a future source of water supply.

In a two-pronged effort, city officials have asked to meet with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which recently resurrected the controversial White Clay Creek dam and reservoir project for study, and are also considering building a much smaller dam of their own on an unnamed tributary of the stream.

Get ready to be patient

Work on Library Avenue/Route 72 in Newark, designated the next "full blitz" highway project by the Delaware Department of Transportation, began this week.

According to DelDOT officials, much needed improvements to this congested area in the heart of Newark prompted the department to expedite the work by offering incentives to the contractor for early completion.

Newark Girl Scout named 'lifesaver'

Seven year-old helps save her mother after automobile accident

A quick-thinking, level-headed Newark girl received the Girl Scout Lifesaving Award last week for action she took to care for her mother after she was injured in a car accident.

Morgan Wilson, 7, a Brownie Girl Scout from Newark, had just earned the "Safety Sense Try-it" badge at her troop meeting. She put those skills to use on a cold, windy and icy morning this past February when the car she was riding in with her mom, Amy, skidded out of control and collided with another vehicle.

Wilson's mom was unconscious with a broken arm and ribs. Wilson had to think fast, remembering what she had learned at the recent Girl Scout meeting. She stayed calm and flagged down passing traffic to call 9-1-1, even relating to emergency workers her mother's life threatening allergy to latex.

Because of her daughter's help, Amy Wilson mother was able to get the care she needed and was treated and released from a local hospital.

"Morgan is an example of the Girl Scout mission to build girls of courage, confidence and character who make the world a better place," said Ann Marie van den Hurk, Girl Scouts director of communications.

Wilson received the Lifesaving Award at the Girl Scout Annual Meeting held Wednesday, April 25, in Dover. Board Chair Gloria Diodata presented the award before a crowd of Girl Scouts, board members and adult volunteers.

Voting on other taxes is not an option

► UPFRONT, from 1

news of how poorly the public education system in our state is. We've heard about committees and task forces formed to try and fix the problem. We've heard corporate leaders throughout the state say that the state needs to turn out more qualified high school graduates. We know that New Castle County has the highest percentage of kids attending private schools of just about anywhere in the country.

We see all these problems. We hear about all these problems. We recognize all these problems. The biggest one, of course, is money.

Yet we have citizens that apparently care more about their own $10-$15 a month than about the amount of money the schools get.

I'm not saying that we should have more taxes. Heck, give us the opportunity to vote on some of the other taxes that we have to pay - but can't the state find a way to tax us at the right level to appropriately fund education?

I guess, really, it's a miracle that referendums have passed at all. Who in their right mind votes to increase their taxes? Yet, that's exactly what we ask people to do so we can have enough money to educate our children.

It's crazy.

People may have hated their time in school and vote no. People may not see any value for education and vote no. People may think that teachers make too much money (they don't) and vote no. People may think they are taxed too much and don't want to pay any more - so they vote no.

There are too many reasons to vote no.

Most other states in the country don't give their citizens the opportunity to vote on this issue. Delaware shouldn't either.

After all, I didn't get to vote on whether I had to file my taxes on Monday - but I still did it.

OUTLOOK

One tenth of a second

By CINDY GENAU

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

One-tenth of a second is equal to the snap of your fingers; the blink of your eyes and one tenth of a second is all you have between life and death. One-tenth of a second is all the time it takes for a fatal crash to occur.

One-tenth of a second is the time it takes pick up your cell phone, the time it takes to change the radio station, the time it takes to turn to talk to a friend in the car, the time it takes to grab your drink from the cup holder, the time it takes to take your eyes off the road – the time it takes to distract your attention from driving safely.

One-tenth of a second is the time it takes to be involved in a car crash, the time it takes for your body to strike the windshield, the time it takes for your airbag to deploy, the time it takes to be ejected from your car if you are not buckled in.

May is a very busy time for teens, which includes driving with their friends, to and from baseball games, school proms, and beach weekends. I dedicate this article and the "Buckle Your Seat Belts" piece, written by a paramedic, to our local teens and their parents. I offer them as a reminder that crashes are violent, fatal events and that one tenth of a second is all you have to make the right choice.

Lucille Groat, who is a paramedic, wrote "Buckle Your Seat Belts."

Do you know what happens in the first fatal second after a car going 55 mph hits a solid object?

1. In the first tenth of a second, the front bumper and grille collapse.

2. In the second tenth of a second, the hood crum-

Telling stories through dance

UD's Chinese Dance Club performs at Newark Library

With a wave of a graceful hand, a flutter of a red handkerchief and a peacock feather, the UD Dragonfly Chinese Dance Club performed before an enthusiastic crowd of adults and children at the Newark Library on Friday, April 27.

The performance signified the end of the library's weeklong celebration of "Many Cultures, One Community," which was part of 2007 National Library Week and the New Castle County Reads program.

"Chinese dance tells stories of China," the host Zhimin Du said, going into minute detail about the meaning behind the movements.

The first dance of the evening, "Ta Ge," means "singing while stamping the feet." Since few written records exist on ancient China's songs and dances, the dance "Ta Ge" was created through the help of examining dancing figures on potteries.

The second dance of the evening, "Da Zhong Guo," Great China, was from the Han Ethnic Group, the largest ethnic group in China, which makes up 92 percent of China's vast population.

Depicting the Spring Festival, Lunar New Year, "Da Zhong Guo" was a cheerful celebration. The red costumes were a reminder of how red is a good luck color of the Lunar New Year.

The third dance of the evening, "Dance in the Bamboo Forest" was from the Dai Ethnic Group. Most of the Dai dances imitate the sounds and movements of animals and birds. "Dance in the Bamboo Forest," the peacock dance, is a favorite of the Dai, the peacock being a symbol of good luck, happiness, beauty and honesty.

The last dance of the evening "Qiao Hua Dan" was from Sichuan opera, which is different from the classical Peking (Beijing) Opera. Sichuan opera is vivid and humorous with singing and acrobatics. The performance, Friday night, depicted a group of young opera dancers playfully teasing each other, dressed in colorful costumes and feather-adorned headpieces.

At one point, the Dragonfly Dance Group asked the children in the audience questions about China. One question was "What are the four greatest inventions of China?" Four children were called on to provide these answers – gunpowder, paper, fireworks and a compass.

There was also an impromptu dance class with members of the audience being called on stage. They were taught several different hand movements and body stances. At the end of the performance, the Dragonfly Dance Group invited members of the audience to try on their bright, beautiful costumes and meet the dancers.

The UD Dragonfly Chinese Dance Club was formed in March 2003. The club seeks to promote the art of Chinese dances, as well as culture exchange through performances at community events.

Congolese pastor visits Newark church

By CHRISTINE NEFF

CNEFF@CHESUPUB.COM

Pastor Lazare Tshibuabua hopes to foster partnership

Coming from a country rife with poverty and conflict, Pastor Lazare Tshibuabua of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, surprises when he asks his American hosts, "We wonder, what can we do for you?"

Tshibuabua visited the First Presbyterian Church of Newark last week while on a months-long trip to meet with churches in the local presbytery. The purpose of the visit, he said, is to share his faith with U.S. churches and learn how to build up the relationship between the two countries.

Tshibuabua spent a week here in Newark starting Saturday, April 21. He attended meetings with the church leadership, church youth and Presbyterian Women, as well as Sunday services where he preached and sang about God's love.

Though he speaks four languages, English is not one of them. He communicated with his hosts through French-speaking interpreters.

Tshibuabua sat down last Tuesday with interpreter Judy Agnello, a member of the Newark church, to speak about his visit to the United States. He said he has been discussing with members of the U.S. presbytery projects that are envisioned for his church in the Congo.

Tshibuabua heads the Dinanga parish in the Congo, a church of about 300 members from all walks of life - government employees, teachers, filmmakers, women who work in the fields and orphans.

The majority of people in his church and, indeed, his country are poor, but this doesn't hurt their faith, he said. "The people, despite their suffering, really love God. They have time to praise him, to worship him, and you'll see many people in church praying. They're very joyful, and they have hope."

The Congo, a country of 62 million, has had only one free democratic election in its 45 years since gaining independence. The population faces high poverty rates and a high risk of infectious disease. A war, which began in 1998, has contributed to the deaths of an estimated four million people from disease, starvation and conflict.

Talk to your teens about safety

▶ OUTLOOK, from 8

bles, rising from the ground striking the windshield as the spinning rear wheels lift from the ground. Simultaneously, fenders begin wrapping themselves around the solid object. Although the car's frame has been halted, the rest of the car is still going 55 mph. Instinct causes the driver to stiffen his legs against the crash, and they snap at the knee joint.

3. During the third tenth of a second, the steering wheel starts to disintegrate and the steering column aims for the driver's chest.

4. The fourth tenth of a second finds two feet of the car's front end traveling at 55 mph.

5. In the fifth tenth of a second the driver is impaled on the steering column and blood rushes into his lungs.

6. The sixth tenth of a second, the impact has built up to the point that the driver's feet are ripped out of tightly laced shoes, the brake pedal breaks off, the car frame buckles in the middle, and the driver's head smashes into the windshield as the rear wheels, still spinning fall back to earth.

7. The sixth tenth of a second, hinges rip loose, doors fly open and the seat breaks free striking the driver from behind. The seat striking the driver from behind does not bother the driver however.

The last three tenths of a second mean nothing to the driver because he is already dead.

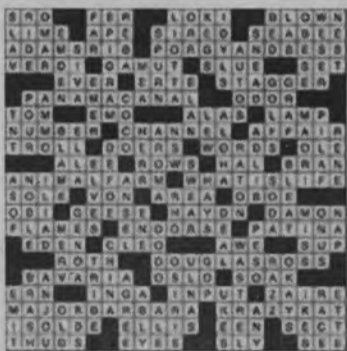

One-tenth of a second is the time it takes to click your seatbelt together. Seatbelts keep drivers and passengers inside the vehicle during a crash, and they keep drivers and passengers from striking the windshield, and they keep drivers and passengers away from the airbag when it deploys, and seatbelts allow drivers to stay in position to make maneuvers if they lose control of their vehicle.

The next time you ask someone to buckle up and they reply that you are only going around the block - you can tell them this story and let them know you are not moving until they buckle their seatbelt.

If reading this will help a parent talk to their teen about driving safely within the speed limit, and about paying attention to their driving, and about the importance of buckling up, and if it helps a teen to understand the grave and enormous responsibility driving a car is, especially with their friends in it, and that buckling their seat belt can and will save their life, then maybe it might make a difference in the life of one teen today. One tenth of a second is all it takes. Buckle your seatbelt every day, every ride, every time.

NEWS FOR NEWARK FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

BRIEFLY

Scholarship benefit golf tourney set May 4

Alpha Phi sorority and University of Delaware alums who were members of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity before the chapter closed in 1994 will host a golf tournament starting at 8 a.m., Friday, May 4, at the Delcastle Golf Club, 801 McKennan's Church Rd., Wilmington, to raise money for the Ricky Barbour Scholarship Fund.

Barbour, a 1986 UD grad and a member of Delta Tau Delta received his law degree at Rutgers University Law School. His life was cut tragically short one night when he was robbed at an ATM machine and killed by a 16-year-old.

Proceeds raised from the tournament will be used for the scholarship, given to a UD senior who is graduating and has been accepted to an accredited law school. The winner of the scholarship will be selected by Tom Apple, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"We formed the scholarship two years ago. The first year we were able to award a deserving student $1,500, and last year it increased to $2,500," Pablo Trucco, friend and fraternity brother of Mr. Barbour, said.

Total cost of the tournament, which includes breakfast, green fees, door prizes, games, prizes, awards and lunch, is $50 for students and $125 for nonstudents.

For more information, e-mail Julia Vandersloot, Alpha Phi philanthropy chair, at juliv@udel.edu.

New emergency preparedness coordinator appointed at UD

University of Delaware alumna Marcia Cavanaugh Nickle of Bear has been appointed UD's emergency preparedness coordinator. A former planner at the New Castle County Office of Emergency Management and director of emergency services for the Delmarva chapter of the American Red Cross, Nickle is in charge of all emergency and disaster planning for all UD campuses.

Nickle, who grew up in Easton, Pa., earned a bachelor's degree in sociology and women's studies in 1998 and a master's degree in sociology in 2000. She said her new position is an excellent opportunity to give back to UD.

Nickle's responsibilities include coordinating training for staff and students, conducting exercises in "What if?" situations, as well as planning for special and major events on campus. She also will serve as the liaison with external government and municipal agencies.

"In light of the tragedy that occurred at Virginia Tech, the Department of Public Safety here at UD is not only reviewing our emergency preparedness plan, but we have started the process of purchasing an emergency notification system that will include text messaging," James T. Flatley, director of UD's Department of Public Safety, said. "We have been meeting with law enforcement agencies in the state to discuss what happened at Virginia Tech and look at what we have in place and what we might need to adjust."

"Marcia Nickle brings vast knowledge and experience, which will be very beneficial to the whole University community," Flatley said. "In this day and age, her role is extremely important because, as we experienced in the past, not only with manmade disasters, but with things like Hurricane Katrina, we must be prepared. It doesn't have to be a major incident; we need to be prepared even for small incidents that could disrupt University activities."

Soon after her appointment last month, Nickle read through several thick files containing all UD emergency and disaster plans, which she is planning to revise.

"The University already has a good basis," Nickle said. "There are groups on campus that have been meeting and planning, so I'm only coming to tweak what is already there and not to start from scratch. In that respect, UD is much better prepared than other places. We have a good basis to start from.

"I come from a background of writing plans for multiple hazards rather than specific hazards, so I'll use an all-hazards approach, and my tendency is toward that kind of plan writing," Nickle said. "I tend to focus on floods because they are more likely to happen, but I also have to think of where we are. There are lots of hazards around, as well as terrorism and pandemic flu, but you have to make sure you don't get wrapped up in one thing and lose sight of the big picture.

"There is a lot of criticism of the response to Katrina, and it shows that there is a lot of information and preparedness that didn't get into the planning process because of the focus on terrorism," Nickle said. "We are going to plan for all situations, but we will be realistic about what is more likely to affect us and what we need to be focusing on."

Nickle said she will be meeting routinely with contacts from all campus units and departments, from the Department of Occupational Health and Safety to Residence Life and administrators.

UD home to state's new health promotion

The University of Delaware is home to the new Delaware Center for Health Promotion, a joint venture of UD and Delaware Lt. Gov. John C. Carney Jr. The mission of the center is to encourage Delawareans to adopt healthy lifestyle habits that will improve their quality of life and lessen future health-care costs.

Programming and activities will be offered statewide by the center using the Healthy Delaware Foundation's slogan, "Be Healthy Delaware." The initial focus will be to educate residents about five specific steps that they can take to maintain good health: preventive health screenings, physical activity, healthy eating, weight management and smoking cessation.

"So many of the health problems that many of us experience are preventable by maintaining a healthier lifestyle," Carney, a UD graduate alumnus, said. "This center will enable us to increase our efforts and our success at educating Delawareans about the simple ways they can improve their health and their life every day."

Lifestyle choices are directly related to health status. Delaware has made great strides when it comes to reducing the number of smokers in the state, however, obesity is on the rise and more than half of Delawareans don't get the recommended amount of physical activity or the suggested amount of fruits and vegetables in their diet.

Marianne Carter, a registered dietitian, health educator and former director of UD's Employee Wellness Center, has been named director of the new state center. "The best way to treat conditions such as heart disease, diabetes and cancer is never to develop them," Carter said. "I applaud Lt. Gov. Carney for his commitment to health care and this effort."

Carney proclaimed Wednesday, May 23, as "Be Healthy Delaware Day." Residents will be encouraged to adopt one healthy behavior that they don't currently practice. Random prizes will be awarded, including a family membership to the YMCA of Delaware. To register, go to www.behealthydelaware.org or call 831-1998.

Tshibuabua, who visited the Emmaus House shelter in Newark, said he admires the way Americans care for the less fortunate and asked for their efforts to be blessed. It's important, he said, for Americans to know the challenges facing the Congo. The partnership between the churches helps foster awareness, he said. "The partnership between sister congregations allows us to share our joys and our sorrows," he said. "The most important thing is to get to know each other."

Statewide open burning restrictions start now

Open burning restrictions are in effect statewide from May 1 through Sept. 30, coinciding with Delaware's ozone season. The only exceptions to Delaware's ban during ozone season are cooking fires (BBQs), recreational campfires and ceremonial fires.

"Public health concerns are the reasons for the burning restrictions," said Valerie Gray, air quality program manager. "The expanded restrictions are necessary to help reduce ozone levels throughout the state. In 2004, all three counties in Delaware were officially designated by the U.S. EPA as being in non-attainment of the 8-hour ground-level ozone standard, based on high ozone readings at monitors within each county."

Open burning produces smoke and toxic chemicals in the air we breathe.

It also contributes to the formation of smog (ground-level ozone and fine particles), which can trigger asthma attacks, other respiratory problems and eye irritation, and contributes to acid rain that causes fish kills, plant and property damage. Rain eventually washes these toxic chemicals onto our land and into our waterways.

Kurt Reuther, chief of the DNREC's Enforcement Section, warns that Environmental Protection Officers are on the lookout for violators and will be citing those performing illegal open burning activities. Penalties range from $50 to $500 in fines, plus a criminal record. To report illegal open burning, call the 24-hour hotline in Delaware at 1-800-662-8802.

Raymond returns from Florida

By TOM TOMASHEK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Tubby Raymond returned to the area last week after nearly four months in Florida. In time he'll catch up on the University of Delaware football news, but the former Blue Hen coach is no particular hurry.

Family, painting, and golf have been the former Blue Hen coach's primary concerns since last winter when he and his wife, Diane, made what has become an annual pilgrimage to the Fort Myers area.

"We really love it down there," Raymond, 81, said relaxing in his home studio in the wooded countryside near Landenberg, Pa. "We have a nice group of friends down there and there is plenty to do. When I leave after the football season, I know that I'm not going to make it back for the spring game so I just put [Blue Hen football] behind me."

Raymond, who in early 2002 ended a 36-year career as the Blue Hen head coach, certainly has a busier social calendar than he did during his coaching days. In Florida, he plays golf at least four times a week, mornings and afternoons with the guys and coed golf with Diane. He occasionally tees it up with some of his college coaching peers such as Don Nehlen (West Virginia), John Pont (Miami of Ohio, Yale, Indiana, Northwestern) and Gerry Faust (Notre Dame).

Swimming and exercise in a health center near his condo also are pastimes — yes, former Blue Hens, Raymond has pumps iron — and when major league spring training begins he attends an occasional Minnesota Twins game and has a Twins cap to prove it.

Raymond also wrote a chapter on the evolution of the Wing-T for "Football Offenses and Plays," a compilation of offensive philosophies by American Football Coaches Association from throughout the nation, as well as spending time discussing the Wing-T on the lecture circuit.

"I have lectured on the Wing-T at Syracuse, the University of North Carolina, Rutgers, and Georgia," Raymond said. "Georgia had me picked up in a

UD's Patrick drafted by the Cardinals

Snow signs with Cards as free agent

University of Delaware tight end Ben Patrick became the first Blue Hen player selected in the National Football League annual draft since 2004 when he was picked by the Arizona Cardinals in the seventh round Sunday afternoon.

Patrick, a 6-5, 270 lb. tight end from Savannah, GA (Jenkins HS), was the 215th player selected in the draft. He becomes the first Blue Hen player drafted since quarterback Andy Hall (Philadelphia) and defensive end Shawn Johnson (Oakland) were both selected in the sixth round in the 2004 draft.

Patrick, who was projected in some draft previews as a possible third round pick and as high as the No. 3 ranked tight end in the draft, was the ninth tight end selected in the draft and was the seventh I-AA player picked. He was the fourth Atlantic 10 Conference (now Colonial Athletic Association) selected after Towson offensive tackle Jermon Bushrod, New Hampshire defensive back Corey Graham, and Maine defensive back Daren Stone.

"I'm very excited, this is a dream come true for me," said Patrick following the selection. "It all probably won't hit me until I get to camp out in Arizona and put on the jersey. It was a long wait but I think it put me in a great situation. This is a great opportunity for me. Arizona has a high-powered offense with tremendous receivers. There are only two tight ends on the roster now so hopefully I'll have the chance to come and compete for a spot and contribute early."

Prior to Patrick, the Cardinals also selected Penn State offensive tackle Levi Brown in the first round, Michigan defensive tackle Alan Branch in the second round, Florida State linebacker Buster Davis in the third round, and Michigan wide receiver Steve Breaston in the fifth round.

Patrick was a consensus first team All-American for the Blue Hens in 2006 in his only season in a Delaware uniform after transferring from Duke. In addition to earning first team All-American honors by the Associated Press, Walter Camp, The Sports Network, and the American Football Coaches Association, Patrick also took part in the prestigious East-West

Perkins blasts two homers in victory

Newark used the long-ball to blast Charter School of Wilmington 12-2, Tuesday afternoon in a five inning, Flight A high school baseball game.

Jackets first baseman Bryan Perkins belted two home runs to left field early in the contest, and Chadd Lane added a two-run shot to left-center in the fourth inning.

Pitcher Billy Morton pitched three strong innings to gain his fourth victory of the season, and help the Jackets run their record to 12-0.

The Jackets jumped all over Charter starter Tom Evans, who lasted only two-thirds of an inning. Evans was replaced on the mound by The Force's top left-hander, Michael Johnson.

After lead-off hitter Lane reached on an infield error, advanced to third on a steal and an error by the catcher, and scored on Jared Keith's sacrifice fly to center.

Perkins then smashed his first home run of the game and the season, to stake Newark to a 3-0 lead after one inning.

In the third, Morton led off with his second walk, and scored in front of Perkins' second shot of the day, to build Newark's lead to 5-0. "Their first pitcher just gave me a flat, down and in fastball," said Perkins, "and the second guy just hung a curve ball in my power house, and I just swung the bat."

Newark put the game away in the last two innings, scoring three times in the fourth and four more in the fifth.

"An efficient ball game for us today, especially with Johnson coming into the game in the first inning," said Newark coach Butch Simpson.

"We struggled with him last time. . . so I was pleased that we were able to hit a ball against him."

Morton had no problems with The Force batters in his three innings of work. He gave up two hits, had three strike outs, no walks, and hit one batter.

"Getting those runs in the first definitely helps," said Morton. "There's a lot less pressure out there when you have a lead."

Newark's starting shortstop

Jared Keith pitched the last two innings in relief. He worked a quick fourth inning, but gave up Charter's two runs in the fifth.

"Obviously, Perkins and Lane had big days today. It makes it easy in any ball game when you're hitting home runs because you're getting some quick scoring, and you don't have to string a lot of hits together to produce runs," said Simpson.

Newark will host St. Mark's Saturday afternoon.

jet, I flew there and spoke for an hour and a half, had lunch and was back home by 3:30 in the afternoon. This is the first spring [since retirement] that I haven't lectured."

This fall he will again be part of the media team that chronicles the UD football season, but until then he'll spend significant time with a paint brush in his hand. Behind him were completed paintings of Grant Taft, executive director of the AFCA and UD benefactor Ruly Carpenter, and on the easel was a portrait in progress.

Make no mistake, the once fiery coach will never be divorced from football, not after devoting nearly seven decades to the game. He misses the players' enthusiasm, the staff room time, and the euphoric feeling of victory despite its ephemeral nature. The UD legend admits that he still gets a rush walking into Delaware Stadium and being recognized, seeing his name emblazoned on the stadium field, and witnessing the kickoff and ensuing competition.

After more than 50 years, stepping away from coaching wasn't easy, particularly in light of the impact it had on his staff, but he already had the perfect elixir to cure the blues.

"I can't tell you how much the painting has meant," Raymond said. "Honestly, if I had the choice of coaching an undefeated season or creating a portrait that speaks to me, I'm fairly certain I'd choose the painting."

Raymond said that in the last few years of his career, the highs of winning weren't as high as they once had been and the lows of losing were getting lower and lower. Recruiting became increasingly frustrating. So, how did Raymond, 300-119-3 lifetime, feel about retiring after a 4-6 season, punctuated by a loss to 19-14 loss to Villanova?

"Well, I certainly would have liked winning more," Raymond said, "but that's the way it goes, and we did have a few winning seasons [32] along the way."

Shrine Game and Senior Bowl all-star games. He became the first UD player to earn consensus All-American honors since Eddie Conti in 1998.

He caught 64 passes for 639 yards and six touchdowns in his only season with the Blue Hens in 2006, setting a UD single season record for receptions by a tight end and ranking third in the conference in receptions at 5.82 per game. His 5.82 receptions per game and 58.1 yards per game were also tops among all NCAA I-A and I-AA tight ends during the regular season. He caught at least five passes in each of the final nine games of the season and had nine catches for 109 yards and one touchdown vs. No. 1 ranked New Hampshire Sept. 30.

In November, Patrick earned first team All-Atlantic 10 Conference honors, becoming the first UD tight end to be named to the all-conference first team in school history. Delaware posted a 5-6 record this past season under fifth-year head coach K.C. Keeler, losing four games by seven points or less.

Snow signs with Cardinals

Former Newark High all-state football player BranDon Snow was signed by the Arizona Cardinals immediately following the conclusion of the National Football League Draft Sunday evening.

Snow was the starting fullback for Penn State this past fall and contributed every year he played for the Nittany Lions. He was known for his blocking ability throughout his high school and college career. He did get 25 carries for 64 yards during his college career. Snow also played on special teams.

New Century Club of Newark honors Grace Arles for work

Grace Arles, exemplary club member of General Federation of Women's Clubs, has been honored by the New Century Club of Newark by the planting of a flowering cherry tree at the Clubhouse on E. Delaware Avenue and Haines Street. The tree will be formally dedicated on May 7, following the final club meeting for the spring season.

Arles has held every leadership position in Delaware State Federation of Women's Clubs, her own clubs and has just completed a two-year term as president of the Middle Atlantic Division of GFWC, comprising clubs in four states: Delaware, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. As president (2002-4) of DSFWC, the theme of her administration was "Keep the Volunteer Spirit Alive—Be Active in Your Community."

A volunteer for more than 25 years in the Christiana canteen of the Blood Bank of Delmarva, she serves up to 200 hours annually. She is coordinator in 2006-08 of Newark New Century Club's Blood Bank Committee and schedules club members who volunteer to staff the Christiana canteen every Tuesday.

Most months, she serves at least four three-hour shifts when needed to complete the schedule. Arles is a Eucharist minister for her church and is chair of the Liturgy committee and a member of the Pastoral Council. She is a driver for Meals on Wheels at the Newark Senior Center, and participates in needlework guild, basket-weaving group and bridge mixer for the New Century Club. She was named Delaware's Mother of the Year in 1996, having raised seven successful children.

A member of the Seaford GFWC club for 17 years, she was elected recording secretary, and later as president of the Acorn Club. After the Arles family moved to Newark 28 years ago, Grace served as president of the New Century Club of Newark in 1978-80 and 1998-2002.

On the GFWC Board in Washington, DC, Arles headed the non-governmental office of the UN department, was Docent Chair for GFWC Headquarters, and has served on the Leadership Committee.

For 20 years, Arles has worked on the Hugh O'Brian Youth (HOBY) Scholarship Committee. HOBY conducts a leadership seminar for high school sophomores, selected by every high school in Delaware. Arles has frequently been the coordinator of this seminar.

Arles is being honored on May 7 for her leadership by example. In 2002, she wrote in the DSFWC Yearbook, "Volunteers have always been needed but now they are needed more than ever. We feel better about ourselves when we give back to our communities, care for others, and provide needed services."

County Web page goes green

In recognition of National County Government Week's theme, "Protecting the Environment,"

County Executive Chris Coons announced the launch last week of a new county Web page devoted to the environmental efforts being made by New Castle County.

"Over the past several years, New Castle County has taken on several initiatives to become more environmentally friendly," said Coons. "In 2007, we are taking even bigger steps with the opening of our state-of-the-art, LEED-certified Paul J. Sweeney Public Safety Building this summer and the renovation of the Louis L. Redding Building's core systems."

Councilwoman Stephanie McClellan, a member of the Green Building Task Force who represents the Newark area on county council, said "New Castle County is working hard to reduce its carbon footprint. Education and outreach, green building standards, and better planning are our necessary next steps to help residents of New Castle County reduce their energy use."

Initiatives that will be taken include implementing recycling of ink cartridges, paper, plastic, aluminum and glass products throughout county facilities, moving to use green cleaning chemicals, purchasing three hybrid vehicles and promoting redevelopment of vacant and underutilized properties through land use policies.

The new Web page, <http://www.nccde.org/gogreen>, will chronicle these initiatives, as well as provide links and resources for residents to find information on how they can be more environmentally conscious.

Over 350 recipes submitted for Herman's cookbook

► HERMANS, from 1

It was a cause the Herman family was happy to support, especially since Tim has battled prostate cancer over the last 14 years. During that time, Tim found support in his family, friends and many caring customers. He has been a speaker for the American Cancer Society, sharing his story with fellow patients and survivors. And, he mentored customers affected by cancer as he filled their orders in his store.

With that goal in mind, Herman and Teixeira began seeking submissions for the cookbook. Customers were asked to submit their favorite recipes, along with memories of shopping at Herman's. More friends and longtime customers volunteered to help, and the entire Herman family got involved, finding old pictures of the store and helping to edit the book.

By June 2006, a few months after asking for submissions, Herman said she had received just 20 recipes. "I think we're only going to have a little pamphlet," she, disappointedly, told Teixeira one day. But by November, Herman had in her hands more than 350 recipes, some coming from as far away as Phoenix, Ariz.

With the addition of favorite Bible verses, a history of the store, sketches by Jane and Sarah Morton and a dedication written by Herman, the hefty cookbook came to more than 400 pages. "It was so exciting, so heartwarming to know that people wanted to contribute," she said.

And, they wanted to purchase the book, too. She began receiving calls from customers wondering when the book would be ready months before the first printing. The books went on sale during Christmas week in December 2006, one of Herman's busiest times.

"It was really crazy," remembered Cary McCartin, a Cancer Care employee who volunteered to help with sales that week.

Out of 500 cookbooks, only 50 remain, and the Hermans have donated already $4,000 to Cancer Care Connection. The cookbook can be purchased in the store for $25.

The book, which Herman deemed a "labor of love," is a meaningful tribute to the family and its store. "It's more than just a cookbook," said Teixeira. "It really tells a story of a lot of people's lives."

Christina bus driver found stabbed to death

By MARY E. PETZAK

MPETZAK@CHES PUB.COM

Students, parents and strangers were shocked almost beyond words when a 31-year-old driver for the Christina School District was found stabbed to death in her school bus on Wednesday morning.

According to state police, she was found at 6:48 a.m. on east-bound Route 273/Ogletown Road in front of the FMC plant. A person who works at a business next to FMC stated that there was no school bus there around 6:45 a.m. "I just missed it," said the worker in an online comment.

According to State Police Cpl. Jeffrey Whitmarsh, shortly before 7 on Wednesday morning, another Christina District driver was driving east on Route 273 and saw the bus. "The other driver looked over and thought the school bus was disabled," Whitmarsh stated. "That driver called the transportation office and an employee from the bus yard came out and found the driver who appeared to be deceased."

The District employee called

9-1-1 and police and paramedics arrived and pronounced the driver dead. "It's classed as a homicide," said Whitmarsh, "and will be turned over to homicide detectives."

Whitmarsh stated that no students had been scheduled to be on the bus at that point in the driver's route. "She had left the bus yard on Wyoming Road only a short time prior to when it was seen on Route 273," he stated. "We don't know if she drove straight to where the bus was found or stopped for coffee or something, but it wasn't very long."

Whitmarsh said the victim had been identified on Wednesday morning, but her name was being withheld because "some family members had not been notified, yet."

Police did not confirm public speculation that the deceased had been involved in an abusive domestic situation. However, Whitmarsh stated that police were looking at prior boyfriends and similar persons that might be involved. "But we haven't identified a suspect," he said about three hours after the discovery. "We're still investigating the scene and collecting evidence."

According to a woman who lives about a mile away, Route 273 was full of frenzied activity for hours after the discovery. "Three police cars with lights flashing and sirens on went racing by here on Route 273 about 8:45 a.m.," said the woman who lives in Birchwood Park. "It was like they were chasing someone. Route 273 was closed in both directions for a while but [about 9:15 a.m.] the eastbound traffic started getting through again."

Financial Recovery Team costs cause anger within board

ling expenses, but the recovery is not complete," McIntosh told the board. "The state-appointed Financial Recovery Team recognized early in the year that the condition of the District would remain very tight and approved an additional advance against the [$20 million state] loan in the amount of $2.3 million."

According to District finance director Patrick O'Rourke, the Position Report indicates that the District will have only $100,000 in reserves at the end of Fiscal Year 2006-07 after making the minimum loan payment of $1.2 million. McIntosh said this balance does not reflect repayment of the $2.3 million, which the District administrators also want to do.

"[The FRT] strongly advises against this repayment," McIntosh said. "The [state] loan will likely become unavailable for additional draws through the end of June, at which time the unused portion is subject to reversion. We advise that the $2.3 million be retained for as long as possible for all the above reasons."

O'Rourke also told the board that the District will be requesting a "float" from the state for the period from July 1 to Oct. 15 when property taxes are actually received by the District. In response to questions, O'Rourke stated that this is "standard procedure" for school districts throughout the state.

McIntosh also told the board that the expenses for the FRT member's work "remain uncontrollable" or even knowable for the District. "Because the effect of the FRT expenses is to raise the cost of the loan from the state, there is a real question as to how any expenses will be handled after June 30 when there is no further loan money available," McIntosh explained. "We cannot draw enough attention to this issue. As you know, the Committee recommends that the FRT be retired at the end of this fiscal year."

According to O'Rourke, the District has no say in how much the FRT members are paid and does not receive notice of expected outlays. "Their expenses just accumulate against the [total] loan balance," O'Rourke said. "I'll solicit a projection from the [state] Office of Management and Budget so we can at least close out the fiscal year."

School board vice-president John Mackenzie and other board members expressed outrage over being kept in the dark about the FRT's cost. "The Financial Recovery Team is supposed to be the epitome of fiscal responsibility and this is the area that is the least clear [in the budget]," MacKenzie said on Tuesday night. "How long are they going to milk us and charge us fees that are taken out of the local tax base?"

Mackenzie added that the FRT member expenses average $20,000 per month. "No one in Delaware makes that kind of money - except maybe University of Delaware president David Roselle," he said. "When is it going to stop?"

O'Rourke also noted that monies due to the FRT before the end of the fiscal year are not reflected in the Position Report and would affect the planned minimum loan repayment of $1.3 million to the state. McIntosh added that an additional $1 million dollars is coming from the District's local monies instead of Federal funds because the FRT failed to insure that a deadline was met. "The [Position Report] continues to reflect this impact, as well as the impact of repayment of $1.33 million for the Authorized Position audit findings, and a set aside of $784,000 for litigation," McIntosh said.

Community more receptive to adult community plan

► PLANNING, from 1

Casho Mill Road. The remainder of the site would be set aside as public open space, and land in the 100-year floodplain would be dedicated to the city.

The project was presented to the city's planning commission at Tuesday's meeting, receiving a favorable recommendation by planners.

Developer Jeff Lang said there is a demand for 55-and-up housing in the Newark area. Villas at Twin Lakes, a similar project now under construction, has received a lot of interest, he said, with more than 150 potential buyers visiting the sales trailer.

"Given the demand at Twin Lakes, we really think this project will be very well received," said

Lang.

At Tuesday's meeting, members of the public seemed more receptive of the project than they were of a different proposal to develop Wilson Farm that came before the commission in 2005.

The previous plan called for, at first, 84 townhouses. Developer Caldera Properties revised the plan, proposing 72 townhouses and the preservation of the old farmhouse on the site, but withdrew the application just before City Council had the chance to review it in September 2006.

"The new plan is significantly different, and, in many respects, much better than some of the issues that came up before," said Cathy Matson, who lives next to the property.

A primary concern about the previous plan was the addition of traffic on an already-busy Casho Mill Road.

The new plan, since it is an adult community, should not generate a large amount of traffic, said Engineer Joe Charma. Charma said estimates by the Delaware Department of Transportation show that the development will add seven cars to the roadway during morning peak hours and 10 cars during evening peak hours. "We're not talking about any kind of significant traffic," he said.

Matson said she still had concerns about traffic congestion and the high number of units. She spoke out, too, against the developers' proposal to move the old Wilson farmhouse about 250 feet from its original location.

"Moving any structure from its original site to a new one does damage the historical integrity of the structure," she said.

Matson wasn't the only one with concerns about the farmhouse. Several residents spoke out about the need to preserve the structure and incorporate it into the new development.

Wade Catts pointed out that historical resources, like natural resources, can't be replaced. "There are few historic places remaining within city boundaries conveying the important role of agriculture and other industries in the history of Newark," he said.

Lang said he intends to expose the historic portion of the home, which has been added onto over the years, and relocate it. Currently, the house is wet from stormwater runoff and in "dire disrepair," he said. The State Historic Preservation Office will be involved, he said.

In voting to recommend the project, the planning commission asked the developer to document the history of the farm and farmhouse to be put on public display. For "Saw Mill Place" to proceed, Newark's City Council must OK the annexation and major subdivision of the property. Council will consider it at a later date.

Also at Tuesday's meeting:

Planners voted 6 to 0 to recommend city council approve the rezoning and minor subdivision of the Main Street lot that used to be University Auto Care service station. Developers, Gahunia LLC, would like to build a 2,400-square foot commercial building with three, two-story apartments in the upper level.

If council approves the project, the brick building will be located near the sidewalk, and parking for patrons and residents will be behind the building.

'Ebo' publisher speaks on Delaware's diversity

By PATRICIA E. LANG

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

During April, the New Castle Library System held programs, events and book discussions to celebrate "Many Cultures, One Community." On the evening of April 25, Akinwale Ojomo, publisher of Ebo magazine and a board member of the CoAfrica Network spoke at the Newark Library on the subject of cultural diversity in Delaware.

"Are you diverse," Akinwale asked, suggesting that if a person wants to be culturally versatile, he or she should ask questions of neighbors who came from another country and get to know each other.

Akinwale was born in West Nigeria, Africa. Many Africans have come to Delaware to attend school, he said.

The state's geographic location, between New York and Washington D.C., is ideal. Once Africans settle in Delaware they are delighted to find out about our sales tax-free status, he said. Additionally, goods are comparatively inexpensive here, and the communities are quiet and peaceful.

Strong communities are important to Africans. "The community brings up the child," Akinwale said. The Delaware network offers support and friendship to immigrants, and several stores in the area cater to African natives.

Akinwale praised the libraries in Delaware as being extremely helpful to immigrants, with hands-on information and computers for Internet access.

"Ebo" is West Nigerian slang for "positive." For more information about the publication and other Delawarean African links go to www.ebomag.com, e-mail editor@ebomag.com, call 302-981-9335, 302-252-7383.
