Newark, 28, dies in county police jail

38-year-old Newark man died in a New Castle Police jail cell Aug. 8, after ingesting cockroach cocaine, according to the state medical examiner’s office. Jeffrey D. McGee of Newark Road, Southington, was found dead at 7:31 a.m., a few hours after being served on drug charges.

The death was caused by cocaine ingestion after the victim swallowed a plastic bag containing cocaine, Dr. Al E. Marks, the state medical examiner, said in a prepared statement.

McGee and another man, Robert Perkins, both of Southington, were placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters. They were charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, maintaining a vehicle for the use of drugs, conspiracy and possession of marijuana paraphernalia. Once at police headquarters, the two men were strip-searched to ensure they were carrying no more drugs. Nothing was found in the search.

McGee was then placed in a holding cell while police took Perkins for fingerprinting, photographs and arraignment.

Police crack drug ring

While pushing her infant in a carriage on Midtown’s Lake Street, the woman also pushed drugs, selling a bag of heroin to a cop in an undercover police op.

That was just one of many incidents police have to report following a four-month investigation known as Operation Dry Lake, in this small southern New Castle County town.

Federal, state and local authorities participated in the investigation, which resulted in the indictment last week of 28 people on criminal violations.

New Castle County Police began investigating drugs on Lake Street after learning that residents were the only people stopped by law enforcers, who told them that the area was a drug-free zone.

Newark police and property owners in the area were advised to take steps to make the area more drug-resistant.

“arrest,” said Newark Police Sgt. Alex Von Koch. “We found out after we started that several of the people who were involved in the direct sale of drugs were also connected to Newark either through work, through social contacts or just frequenting Newark.

It became even more important for us to participate.

Although the operation in Midtown is for the most part complete, Von Koch said Newark police are continuing their investigations.

“We’re further probing to see if the people involved in the Midtown arrests had any involvement in drug sales in Newark,” he said. “We believe there may be some connections.”

The open-market atmosphere of Lake Street checked Van Koch. He said quite a few groups of people actively pushed drugs on people driving down the street.

“It was surprising,” he said, “particularly since it is such a small town, that it is possible for these people to have a mini-Aramingo-type situation in Midtown, where you can openly purchase drugs by driving down the street.”

Aramingo is a street in Philadelphia known for heavy drug activity.

County police Capt. George Hagerty, commander of the New Castle County criminal investigations unit, said that Lake Street was a “model program of Aramingo.

“While I think it was a fairly large-scale operation, we’ve had a lot of residents turning the corner.” He said.

So far, the operation in Midtown has resulted in 28 arrests, with many more expected, Hagerty said.

City property owners who want to convert single-family houses into rental property will come under some new restrictions following Newark City Council action Monday night.

The council approved an ordinance that will prohibit new conversions of homes into rental properties for the first two off-street parking spaces, the requirement that food must be served with full application and therefore not be subject to the alcohol ordinance to lift some concern. City Councilman Harold F. Godwin said the ordinance will be amended in the council to amend the city’s alcohol ordinance to lift some concern.

Pizza shop is robbed

A man was holding up a Domino's Pizza shop in the early morning hours, police said. Charleen Kohn, a 21-year-old employee, was tying the duct tape around a man's arms and threatened with a knife, authorities said. The man fled Kohn's back into the store and returned with the company cash. The employee then secured the cash and locked the door of the store.

Christina opens new school

by Cathy Thomas

Christina School District officials tour the new Henry M. Brader Elementary School in Four Seasons.

The doors of the new elementary school south of Newark will open in September to accept children for the first time.

Workers are installing carpet, painting in furniture and preparing the school for the first day of school. The new school will house kindergarten through third grade classes.

"It’s a truly state-of-the-art building," said Riblett, "and, as such, it is one of our larger elementary schools." Already in the planning is another elementary school near Newark.

"The site has not been finalized," said Riblett. "It would be in the area of Valley View and Old Dominion Pike near the Salem Woods development.""
NORTHERN GROUNDS

In the image, the text appears to be a continuation of a story about Northern Ireland, discussing the experiences of soldiers and volunteers from the United States. The text mentions the Royal Ulster Project, the Phoenix Centre, and the complexities of life in Northern Ireland, including the challenges faced by soldiers and civilians alike. The narrative touches on themes of loyalty, identity, and the struggle for understanding and peace in a region divided by history and conflict.

The text also touches on education programs, such as the Northern Irish Academy, offering financial aid and flexible learning options. It highlights the importance of such programs in providing support and opportunities for individuals in the region.

Overall, the document provides a glimpse into the historical and cultural context of Northern Ireland, offering insights into the personal experiences of those who have lived through the conflict and are working towards its resolution.
WHYY to air ‘Oil Spill’ Friday

The devastating impact of tanker accidents hit home on June 20, when the Presidente Rivera dumped 87,000 gallons of crude into Delaware River. In “Oil Spill,” a WHY-TV 12 production looks at the effect oil spills have on the environment, the economy and the petroleum industry. It will air Friday, Aug. 18, on WHYY.

The Inmate Documentaries, based on "TV12 News" anchor Nancy Karishanlitz’s travels from tanked shores of the Delaware River at historic Bat­tery Park in New Castle to the one-of-a-kind banks of Prince William Sound in Valdez, Alaska. It shows how cleanup crews and volunteers at Times State Bird Rescue and Research, Inc. saved 30 percent of the birds af­fected by the Delaware River mishap.

Each year, more than 1,000 oil tanker accidents and 500 million gallons of crude oil are dumped into the world’s waters from tanked accidents. It’s a problem that has nothing to do with new or improved technology, but with the fact that no one has found a way to build a tanker that won’t leak.

The WHY-TV 12 production raises serious environmental and fuel questions for the next century. So, here’s a look at the future of this industry, which has been identified as a "major threat" to human health and the environment.

"Oil Spill" asks the same question: "What if oil spills aren’t an inevitability, but a choice?" At the end of the documentary, Karishanlitz talks to environmental sociologist Dr. Joan Goldstein, the Prince William Sound cleanup coordinator, and oil industry representatives about the prevention of oil spills.

The film will air on WHYY-TV 12 at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 18. The documentary, "Oil Spill," will also be presented at the University of Delaware’s College of Environmental and Health Science on Sept. 13 at 7 p.m.

Rogers wins Coke scholarship

Charles Lawler Rogers of Newark was presented a $30,000 scholarship here Aug. 7 through the Coca-Cola Foundation’s Dream Scholarship Program.

Rogers was one of 10 national finalists, and one of only two to receive the $30,000 scholarships.

Eight other students received $10,000 scholarships and six 4-year college scholarships and six $25,000 scholarships.

According to Rogers, the scholarship will enable him to continue his education and pursue a college degree.

The 18-year-old has completed his freshman year at North Carolina Central State University and plans to attend Morgan State University in Baltimore this fall.

All Coca-Cola Share the Dream scholarships are awarded through the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, the association's 20th anniversary was held annually during February, March History Month, the American Revolution. Each year, the named speech by the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. "In the years that the Coca-Cola Company has sponsored the Black History Month scholarship recognition program, more than 7306 quarters of a billion dollars have been awarded in scholarships and prizes," said Chuck Marriner, vice president for black and Hispanic consumer markets for Coca-Cola USA.

Selected to promote this year's contest were Julian Berr, Michael Jenkins and John Thomas, three famed basketball players who chose to return to college to complete their educations and earn a degree.

Each year, the contest's youth role models inspire young people to

"I think the goal is to inspire young people to pursue their dreams," said Dr. A. Michael and JoAnn Hill scholarship for students interested in education, the business world and to whom young people can relate."

Dave Gregory sends ball upfield during Newark High game played under the lights.

MaryBeth Holder has been named head coach of the nationally recognized field hockey and women's lacrosse programs at the University of Delaware, becoming the first person to head both programs at the same time.

Holder comes to Delaware from East Coast Conference rival Lehigh University. She replaces long-time Blue Hens coaches Mary Ann Hitchens in field hockey and Jan Smith in soccer.

Both Hitchens and Smith stepped down in early June to concentrate on duties away from the field. Holder was named head coach of the Lehigh field hockey and lacrosse programs at the same time.

Holder is a 1982 graduate of Old Dominion University in Virginia, where she was an All-American field hockey player and a lacrosse standout.

In addition, she was a member of the United States field hockey team for four years and competed in three National Sports Festival lacrosse tournaments.

After graduating from Old Dominion, Holder served as assistant coach at Trenton State College in New Jersey.

The 1983 Trenton State field hockey team won the NCAA Division III title and the 1985 lacrosse team also won a national championship.

In 1981 and 1982, the Delaware Division I field hockey and lacrosse teams finished in the national top 10 throughout the season.

Hitchens, now assistant athletic director at the University of Delaware, was field hockey coach here for 25 years and was named to the hall of fame with punters looks at Varga's up. The correct quess was in. "What events are celebrating famous 30th anniversary?"

According to research by Karl Voigt of the Newark High School Booster Club, the Yellow Jacket soccer team began formal varsity play in 1981, under head coach Susan Shlep. Shlep's first victory was a 1-0 shutout of William Penn High that season.

The team was 12-5, but the second year was more difficult, as the team went 4-8, suffered what remains the worst loss in Old Dominion history — 11-5 at the hands of Mount Pleasant.

It was in the early 1980s when Varga turned the fledgling team over to Charlie Blackwell, who was head coach through the 1988 season.

Blackwell resigned and has been replaced by Hugh Mitchell. Newark turned its fortunes around in 1987, going 10-4 and defeating traditional powerhouse Conrad High.

Leading the team was forward Jeff Thomas, who scored 18 goals in the year.

After an off year in 1993, Voigt said Newark returned that book to the bicentennial year, going 5-5-1 in front of outstanding goalkeeper Carey Bell.

The Yellowjackets were invited to the state tournament, and lost in the first round.

The 1982-1983 team went on to reach the state championship semifinals before losing 14-2 to Senday. During the regular season, the Yellowjackets outscored seven opponents.

In 1987, Newark won the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Conference title, posting a record of 6-0-2.

Infant mortality data alarms

A study on infant mortality released this week contained some alarming news for Delaware. The number of babies in our state who died before their first birthday rose nearly 30 percent from 1988 to 1989.

In recent new study, Delaware ranked among the worst states in infant mortality rate. The study found that our infant mortality rate was higher than three times the national average.

That's an extremely concerning statistic for us. It means that Delaware is failing our children at the most vulnerable time of their lives.

Governor Castle and the federal government have worked hard to lower our infant mortality rates and ensure the safety of our babies. But for the future, we must continue to focus on this critical issue.

We need to make sure that every baby born in Delaware has the best possible chance for a healthy and happy life. Thank you.

Street's a sweeping new office, retail and parking garage moviehouse and vaudeville theater would have been costly.

Some argued with a good deal of logic that the State really didn’t deserve to stand any longer, that it was a decrepit building which was in the way of, well, progress.

State owner Robert Trenen Jr. has proposed a sweeping new office, retail and parking garage complex for the site.

But the State meant something to Newarkers. It had a soul. It touched them.

And it provided the ever-changing face of Main Street a landmark to which residents could relate.

Many remember going to the State as children, piling out of station wagons to watch “The Fighting Prince of Donegal” or “Blackbeard, the Pirate.”

And certainly renovations of the onetime New Jersey State Theater will stand for years as a testament to our commitment to Newark.

Here was a chance to build community pride, to start something to be proud of. And since so much more needs to be done.

I-95's best kept secret

by Nancy Turner

What a treat to head south on the Pennsylvania Turnpike to the Delaware Turnpike. It's a rare moment when the traffic is non-existent and the miles fly by. The Delaware Turnpike is one of the most scenic and peaceful stretches of Interstate 95. With its breathtaking views and the soothing sound of the river, it's easy to see why it's a favorite among travelers.

The Delaware Turnpike offers a variety of amenities, including rest areas and restaurants. The rest areas are well-maintained and offer clean restrooms, trash receptacles, and picnic areas. The restaurants are known for their delicious food and friendly service.

Along the way, visitors can see the famous Blue Hen State statue, a tribute to Delaware's history and culture. The statue is located near the state line and serves as a welcome sight for travelers.

The Delaware Turnpike is not just for drivers, however. There are plenty of opportunities for outdoor enthusiasts, including hiking, cycling, and fishing. The nearby Brandywine Creek State Park is a popular destination for nature lovers.

Whether you're a frequent traveler or a first-time visitor, the Delaware Turnpike offers a unique and enjoyable driving experience. So the next time you find yourself on I-95, consider making a stop on the Delaware Turnpike. You won't be disappointed!

Faith Baptist Church hosts
An Evening of Sacred Music

An Evening of Sacred Music, featuring Shannon Bass and Ronald Alan Matthews of the Philadelphia College of Bible, will be presented Sunday, Aug. 31 at Faith Baptist Church, 413 Livonia Rd.

The concert will begin at 4 p.m., in the church’s Family Center, and nursery will be provided.

Dr. Bass is chairman of piano instruction and instructor in music history at the Philadelphia College of Bible.

He began music studies at age nine at Shanghai National Conservatory, and earned his bachelor’s degree in Bible and music at Philadelphia College of Bible. He completed his doctoral in historical musicology at the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1975 and was then a fellow at the University of Pennsylvania.

Matthews taught for six years at Shanghai National University, and has taught professional courses in biblical studies and musicology at the Shanghai University.

Bible verses will be sent to eastern European Christians

Prison Fellowship program topic of September meeting

The remarks are carefully screened before a Fellowship and the Delaware prison director is notified before being released. While in prison they are housed by area Christian organizations or local churches.

For more information, area director for Prison Fellowship in New Castle County, Ed Freese, will answer questions. At the opening of the meeting, call Peggy Laird at 302-884-2313.

Christian Science readers Dr. Dons B. Brooks and Sandra Jean Rice, both of Newark.

Controlling those pesky crickets

As long as it's coming from outside, the best thing you can do is deal with the problem at the source. If it's coming from inside, you may be able to deal with it from inside your home. But when crickets invade your house, it can be especially annoying.

According to the folks at the University of Delaware, crickets are一般 good at finding their way around indoor environments. They can climb up walls, under windows, and even through cracks in windows and doors. Crickets are also good at finding food sources, which is why they're so prevalent in the Delaware area.

This summer, the University of Delaware is offering a special program in pest management. The program is offered in collaboration with the Delaware County Extension Service.

The theme of the program is to help homeowners understand how government agencies work together to manage pest problems. The program is open to anyone interested in learning more about pest management.

However, sending a letter that says, “Dear child, nothing much has happened this week, is unacceptable. Caring Parent behavior. Living with a child is not always as simple, thus you aren’t allowed to write.” Dear Child, since you don’t have a job, you aren’t allowed to write.

If you want to keep the crickets out, you can use cricket exclusion devices. These devices are designed to keep crickets out of your home. They are usually placed around windows or doors and are activated by light or motion sensors.

But, if you really don’t know what you are getting into, you can’t expect others to take care of you. So, you really should do your best to make things better.

So, you won’t know what is in the world until you do what you are supposed to do. Write down what you need to do and get started!

The noise they make. But large numbers get indoors, their chirping can be annoying. But experiments show that cricket chirping frequency is about 45-hertz, which is not a good frequency for cricket control. The cricket wants to make his call, giving his position and inviting other crickets to join him.
