DONATION TO CHS LIBRARY

Mrs. Elmer S. Monroe, right, recently donated her collection of 300 National Geographic magazines dating back to the 1950s to the library at Christiana High School. Her late husband served as a member of the Christina School District Board of Education. Accepting the donation is Sylvia Williamson, of the school district staff. Mrs. Williamson graduated from Newark High School when Mr. Monroe was on the school board.

Bridge over troubled concrete

Elkton Road could be closed for bridge repairs

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

One of Newark's most-traveled thoroughfares could be shut down for repairs in the near future.

According to city manager Carl Luft, officials at the state department of transportation advised the city's traffic division last week that the Elkton Road bridge over the Christina Creek near Casho Mill Road might have to be closed for repairs.

"I don't want to be an alarmist,"

Stay home for the holidays

WHITE CLAY Creek State Park will be the setting for Newark's Liberty Day celebration on Thursday, July 4 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There is no rain date for this event.

As in past years, Blue Rocks Mascot, Rocky Bullwinkle, will make an appearance, and 60 Civil War re-enactors will be bivouacked at the park all day. Costumed soldiers will give presentations of various military activities including shooting and drills.

Road work may be finished by winter

said Luft. "But council only meets every two weeks and the way the state works, these things can come up pretty fast."

Newark police chief William Hogan said, "The state told us late last week that the bridge might have possible structural problems requiring lower weight limits and diverting traffic. On Monday they said tests showed repairs were needed."

According to signs posted some time ago by DelDOT, the weight limit for the bridge already has been reduced to 15 tons. "The substructure is substandard," said Dennis O'Shea, a bridge management engineer for DelDOT. "The concrete which supports the abutments is in bad shape."

Alan Davies, spokesperson for DelDOT, said "An open-end maintenance contract has just been bid out for this bridge work." Once the contract is awarded, Davies said the "several small jobs" included in such a contract will be prioritized by the contractor and design engineer.

"They try to finish these contracts in a construction season," said Davies. "From what Dennis O'Shea said to me, there nothing here that can't be done by the winter."

Davies emphasized that he could not guarantee the work would be done before winter. "They try to finish, but if not, they put it off until Spring."

Hogan said, "We called for a meeting with DelDOT as soon as possible to have a say in where diverted traffic will go, such as South College Avenue, and how long it would last." DelDOT has the final say on traffic patterns for state roads.

Cocaine arrest

On June 24 around 1:45 a.m. Newark police stopped a 1978 Ford Bronco with fictitious tags on Ogletown Road. During an inventory search, police reported that they found a bag containing 6.6 grams of cocaine.

The driver, Christopher N. Johnson, 21, was arrested and charged with possession of cocaine, police said.

Couple assaulted

On June 18 around 11 p.m., a 72-year-old man and a 65-year-old woman were assaulted while they were walking in the development of Kimberton.

The suspects, described only as African-American males, confronted the husband and wife and displayed what appeared to be a gun.

The suspects fled after taking the man's wallet and an unknown amount of cash.

Anyone with information is asked to call county police at 571-7930.

Newarkers arrested for car thefts

State police report that three Newark residents were involved in an auto theft spree between June 1995 and June 1996.

Arrested and charged with receiving stolen property, theft and conspiracy were John S. White 3rd, 19, and a 16-year-old female and 17-year male, all of Newark, Dennis M. Mascella, 18, of Wilmington, and a 16-year-old female from New Castle.

According to state police, the group stole 13 Chrysler vehicles amounting to in value to $111,000 from eight different lots in Wilmington and New Castle.

The vehicles were used for transportation and/or joy riding and all were found in the same location at Pencader Woods in Bear.

A warrant for theft and criminal mischief was issued for Julian Hill, 18, of Wilmington and police said other arrests also were expected.

Pizza stolen

On June 22 around 1:30 a.m. four men in their 20s were approached in the parking lot behind the Newark Medical Building by a group of seven or more suspects.

Police said the suspects assaulted the four and stole their pizza before fleeing back toward East Main Street.

Three of the suspects, including a 16-year-old from West Grove, Pa., a17-year-old from Kennett Square, Pa., and Bruce Pousey, 18, of Avondale, Pa., were arrested.

Pousey was committed to Gander Hill Prison for lack of bail and the juveniles were released to their parents after posting bail, according to police.

Investigation of sexual abuse case continues

POLICE continue to investigate the sexual exploitation case involving a 29-year-old Newark man.

According to Officer Patrick Crowell, John R. Smith of Fairway Road in the Admiral Club Apartments has been charged with one count of criminal impersonation, twelve counts of unlawful sexual contact, and two counts of sexual exploitation of a child.

Smith was first arrested on June 19 after a 15-year-old girl told her mother that Smith had engaged the girl and two boys, ages 14 and 15, in sexually-oriented games at his residence.

Smith, who falsely told the children as well as their parents that he was a youth pastor at the New Beginnings Fellowship Church, would regularly spend time with young people.

On June 15, while staying at his home, the youths were brought outside to the apartment complex pool to play a "truth or dare" game.

Smith convinced the three to disrobe and swim naked in the pool, during which one of the boys was encouraged to fondle the girl and Smith fondled the 14-year-old boy, police said.

On June 21, police re-arrested Smith after another 15-year-old boy came forward and said Smith had had sexual contact with him over a period of time between May and December 1995. This boy met Smith at his apartment complex and had no connection with the New Beginnings church, according to police. The boy, now 16, no longer has any contact with Smith.

Police feel there may be other victims and encourage anyone with information to call criminal investigations at 571-7924.

Windows smashed, drivers pelted near Main Street

Newark police responded to a call of criminal mischief on Main Street on June 23 around 3:30 a.m. and found chaos.

Picture windows in four businesses near Main and Chapel streets had been smashed and three cars and their drivers were pelted with stones as they drove through the area. One of the drivers pointed out a male suspect who appeared to be intoxicated and was taken into custody by police.

A search conducted by Newark police assisted by University of Delaware police failed to locate at least three other males and one female suspect, all in their 20s, who reportedly fled from the area.

University Opticians, Space II Pizza, University Mobil and Bell Atlantic, all on Main Street, reported damage totaling approximately $4,000. Damage to the vehicles was approximately $400.

Anyone witnessing this incident or having information is asked to call Newark police at 366-7111.

Newark, Pa. police cooperate for drug bust

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

On June 19 around 11:30 p.m. police followed two suspects from the area of the 7-11 Store on Elkton Road to a nearby location where they were seen making a drug sale. A marked Newark patrol car stopped the suspects' car at the intersection of Elkton Road and O'Daniel Avenue. Pablo Rivera also known as Pablo Ramirez, 25, of Oxford, Pa., fled from the car. He was taken into custody after fighting with the arresting officers. Tracy Schultheis, 22, of Rising Sun, Md., was arrested without incident.

A total amount of 16 grams of cocaine (over 1/2 ounce) with a street value of $1,600 was located after a search of the suspects' motel room at the McIntosh Inn and a second search of a rental storage unit in Newark. Cash in the amount of $1,580 was seized from Rivera.

Both suspects were charged with trafficking in cocaine, possession with intent to deliver, maintaining a vehicle for delivery and maintaining a dwelling for delivery, and conspiracy in the 2nd degree. Rivera was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and resisting arrest. Both suspects are being held in lieu of bail.

The arrests followed a joint investigation by detectives from Newark Police and the Pennsylvania State Police. Rivera was also wanted in Pennsylvania on outstanding drug warrants.

NEWARK POST ❖ CITY COUNCIL

Q-Stix scratches in second bid for liquor license

Q-Stix is now 0 for 2 in an attempt to get city council approval for alcoholic beverages at its Newark Shopping Center billiards parlor.

City council voted down the owner's second request in a year after comments from city officials about the problem of alcohol and youth in Newark.

Police chief William Hogan said, "If you could guarantee a crowd 35 years or over, I'd have less concern, but I think it will attract the 21 and slightly older – with teens around sooner or later it will end in a fight or violence. That's my concern."

Owner Michael Butz told council that he "did not see how alcoholic beverages at Q-Stix would have any affect on increasing the amount of alcohol available to teenagers" in the shopping center.

"Grotto has two entrances very accessible to alcohol," added Butz, noting that Grotto also has a game room and teenage clientele.

Grotto Restaurant which recently opened in the Galleria on Main Street, was granted a special use permit in March for an arcade/game room after much discussion in city council about the proximity of the room to the restaurant's bar.

Councilmember Hal Godwin said Q-Stix is not a restaurant as is Grotto. "This is not what we were told (when Q-Stix opened) in 1993 and I won't support it."

Council did unanimously approve a request for Q-Stix to install a video game room.

■ Oberle seeks 11th term in House

Representative William A. Oberle, Jr. (R-Beecher's Lot) of the 24th District has announced his intention to seek an 11th term in the General Assembly.

Oberle, first elected in 1976, has been a long-time advocate of consumer protection, and this legislative session he was instrumental in getting the homeowners escrow bill signed into law. Buyers can now require sellers of new homes to escrow monies to complete unfinished work discovered on or before settlement.

Oberle also jointly sponsored and helped get approval in the General Assembly for a measure aimed at protecting consumers against fraudulent auto repair mechanics.

As chairman of the House Desegregation committee, Oberle has been pushing for a "closest school policy" (or "neighborhood" schools) in the four northern New Castle County school districts. He also chairs the House Labor committee.

Better signals by fall, state responds to mayor's request

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Traffic may be flowing more smoothly in downtown Newark by September, thanks to computerized traffic signals.

According to Mayor Ronald Gardner, Newark was originally fourth in line for the Delaware Department of Transportation to install a computer-linked network of traffic signals. "I met with Ann Canby and said why can't we have a consultant look at this and find a way to speed it up," said Gardner.

Gardner asked a representative of DelDOT to present the details of the network, as well as plans to make the Elkton Road/New London Road intersection two-way, at an August meeting of city council.

"Now that things are happening, I want to see them keep moving and stay on track, " said Gardner. "People don't realize that things are different now than in the past when projects were put in DelDOT's Transportation Improvement Plan and not funded. These projects are really going to happen."

Gardner

The consultant is now drafting the statement of work to allow installation of the network by the fall, according to officials at WILMAPCO (Wilmington Area Planning Council).

Computer simulation of the proposed signal changes indicate that traffic will be more evenly spread over the network, resulting in fewer delays, a slight increase in average vehicle speed, and a reduction in the number of vehicles stopped at a red light. Anthony DiGiacomo, senior planner for WILMAPCO said the hardware for the traffic network is "ready to go and the computer is in Newark's police headquarters already."

Cable for the estimated $300,000 project was purchased some time ago, said DiGiacomo, but the computer program itself has held things up. "This is not just taken off-the-shelf," DiGiacomo explained.

The intersection improvements have passed the planning planning stage and are ready for design work. Construction is expected to start by 1998. "The design will determine whether acquiring a right-of-way is necessary," said DiGiacomo. "Construction could be earlier if that's not a problem; could be later if we have a contentious landowner."

DiGiacomo said it is too early to tell where any roadway changes will go or whether they will affect any particular individuals. Cost of the realigned intersection is expected to cost more than $1.2 million.

Not so fast, council decides

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Planners got a less than enthusiastic go-ahead from city council to reconsider the city's code requirements for "fast food" establishments on Main Street.

"We might as well send it through the (planning) process and see what happens," said councilmember Gerald Grant after more than an hour of discussion.

Two downtown businesses complain that zoning restrictions, which date from the 1970s, are adding to operating costs as patrons throw out reusable containers and utensils.

Representatives of Saladworks and Treats restaurants presented arguments in favor of easing the restrictions ranged from "customers prefer green styrofoam bowls because the salad dressing slides off" to "they throw away plastic bowls, too, and you still have the issue of trash," to "we didn't find out (about the fast food restrictions) until the walls were going up."

Councilmembers were unimpressed. "Someone – maybe you – didn't do their homework before this opened," said councilmember Irene Zych to Edward Tarlov, attorney for Saladworks.

Tarlov, who said he had not represented Saladworks previously, said the ordinance is adding unexpected costs.

Saladworks must pay salary and benefits for waiters and a bus person not needed in an all-disposable operation, redesign space and install a dishwasher at a cost of $140 a month, install stations for staff and dishes in the restaurant, and replace plastic servingware repeatedly as it is thrown away in the trash.

Treats owner, George Roberts, told council he has similar problems. "We went through 2,000 wicker baskets that were stolen or thrown away in the first four months when we opened," said Roberts. "Now we use melamine but the employees have to go through the trash, bag by bag, and pull them back out."

But councilmember Thomas Wampler said, "(Making changes) sounds like you can come in here, ignore ordinances and then complain hardship. I don't think that's a good message to send."

In sending the matter to planning, councilmember Anthony Felicia and Mayor Ronald Gardner commented that the city needed to consider future business development as well. "I think it's our job to do whatever it takes to make the city 'business-friendly' and it doesn't sound that way tonight," said Felicia.

Gardner agreed, adding, "We need to be thinking how we can accommodate business in the kind of city we want to be."

The city planning department proposes changes which would ease zoning requirements for fast food operations in malls or historic buildings, noting that the city code was drafted when most such restaurants were stand-alone facilities.

City responds to 'Subaru-gate'

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THIS STORY about government at work will not be very long because, frankly, we're all concerned about more important things and after all, it could be blown out of proportion.

It recently came to the attention of Newark's Mayor Ronald Gardner that a state legislator, who does not live in Newark, introduced a resolution in Dover to censure Newark for its purchase of foreign cars, on the basis of a complaint from another man who does not live in Newark.

The matter eventually made its way to Monday's City Council meeting.

William Oberle (R-Beecher's Lot) introduced the resolution after Eddie Holler of Maplefield Road outside Newark called and told Oberle that the city of Newark bought two right-hand drive Subarus in October of 1995 for its police department.

"I'm very zealous in my attempts to get people to buy American – even the state of Delaware," said Oberle. "What bothers me is, the whole thing is getting blown out of proportion," said Oberle. "I introduced this resolution before the research was done and I admitted I made a mistake and that should be the end of it."

That did not stop the daily paper up the road from writing a story, complete with a photo of the controversial car.

Thomas McCarthy, who does research for the state Legislature, said he called the city's main office on June 6 and spoke "with a fellow who was extremely knowledgeable about the city's vehicles." McCarthy does not recall his name and admits they did not discuss bidding requirements.

Oberle said that since he will not act on the resolution, "Newark's city council should concern themselves with more important things."

Matt Slap Subaru of Newark was the only dealer to bid on the contract for the the city cars last fall. Bids were also sought from NuCar, New Castle, (which has a Subaru dealership) and for a Jeep Cherokee, a car built by Chrysler Corp., which has a plant in Newark.

The cars were needed for city parking enforcement officers who need to see the permits on car dashboards as they drive along. At that time, police chief William Hogan noted that similar Jeep vehicles were significantly more expensive.

Newark's city charter directs council to seek out and accept bids from the lowest responsible bidder on a contract, although exceptions can be made for special circumstances.

At Monday's meeting the mayor and council members told Holler that this policy is for the benefit of the city residents.

"This process eliminates possible concerns about council people favoring a bidder," said Thomas Wampler of District 4.

The mayor added, "The bidding process has to be fair and equitable to every bidder – with sealed envelopes, for instance."

However, Oberle said if the city has a problem about where it can purchase equipment, "a simple request to the state legislature to change the city charter" is all that's needed.

Erskine running in 27th District

Democrat Barbara Erskine has announced her candidacy for the state House of Representatives in the 27th District.

Erskine said her campaign will focus on issues impacting the Bear-Glasgow area, including growth, open space, transportation infrastructure and planning, and education.

"As a 19-year resident of this area, I believe the 27th District needs to be kept informed on local issues," said Erskine. "I believe that this can be accomplished through newsletters and town meetings."

A senior secretary at The Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, is president of Melody Meadows civic association and serves on the board of managers for the Bear/Glasgow YMCA.

She is also on the board of advisors for Security on Campus, Inc., an advocacy group for victims of campus crime and a member of the DuPont Newark Community Advisory Panel which airs community concerns about DuPont operations.

Squeaky wheel requests

THE NEWARK CITY COUNCIL had sound logic on their side, in voting to turn down Q-Stix's request for a liquor license and by not changing (for now) an ordinance governing fast food.

Their view was that businesses should not set up shop with the expectation that a liquor license or regulatory changes will be offered.

Q-Stix was reacting to Grotto Pizza recovering a liquor license for its new operation at the Galleria on Main Street.

Another Galleria business, Saladworks, was seeking changes in a complex fast food ordinance that is unduly restrictive. The council asked that the city staff take a look at the ordinance to see if some changes can be made.

Last week, we suggested that the council change the fast food ordinance. We still hold to that view, but have to acknowledge the logic of the council moving cautiously.

Opening the door for businesses to go to the council every time some rule or regulation causes a degree of difficulty carries its own set of risks.

The council is correct in considering the effects of its actions on existing businesses that play by the current set of rules. Reacting to every "squeaky wheel" does not constitute fairness.

With that said, the views of Newark Mayor Ronald Gardner and Councilmember Tony Felicia should be kept in mind. Both believe the council needs to consider the effect of its decisions on the overall business climate.

Like it or not, Newark has a reputation in some quarters as a tough place to do business. That anti-business perception may be largely unjustified— particularly when one considers the wave of investment we have seen on Main Street and elsewhere in the city.

Even so, it would be unfortunate if good business prospects are scared away by a council that is too unwilling to budge from past positions.

Fortunately, the council has not been a total slave to consistency. In approving Grotto's request, the governing body was, acknowledging the company's reputation as a good corporate citizen in its beachfront stronghold.

Support also seems to be building for taking a comprehensive look at the regulatory environment.

We hope that enlightened outlook continues, even when a decision brings other "squeaky wheel" requests.

READERS of my last column will recall that this spring my wife and I traveled to England and Wales on a tour sponsored by the University of Delaware Alumni Association. Some highlights of that trip to the land of our forebears already have been described, but there is much yet to tell.

As we moved from the busy London streets to smaller cities such as Bath and Keswick and rural areas in the famous Lake District, members of our group were captivated by the rich green pastures and brilliant yellow fields of rape, a plant valued for its oil-rich seeds.

After careful study and debate, we concluded that there were more sheep than pubs in the places we visited, but just barely. And the pubs had wonderful

GUEST COMMENTARY

God bless the USA

By JULIA R. SAMPSON

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Sampson

I'LL NEVER FORGET the first time I heard the song "God Bless the USA" by Lee Greenwood. I was at an air show with some friends at Niagara Falls Air Force Base, N.Y.

That day was overcast and rainy, not a very pleasant sort of day, but we all went anyway. I remember walking through the throng of people when this music came whispering through the cacophony of voices and aircraft.

From the overcast sky paratroopers were making their way to the earth in a feather-like descent. I stood transfixed in awe, unable to hear the sounds around me, save the music, nor was I able to visualize anything but the flags the paratroopers were holding.

The Stars and Stripes was held firmly by one paratrooper as was the POW/MIA flag by another. A surreal sort of feeling overcame me, the pain, honor, and collective voices of the men and women who went to war, broke free from the deep recesses of my mind; chills literally went up my spine.

I'm not old enough to remember the Vietnam War, much less the Korean or both World Wars. But on that dreary New York summer day I felt a kinship of sorts with all of the men and women who fought and died and who fought and survived those wars. Echoing through me were the lives of whom I never knew but fought for me anyway in the name of freedom.

The Fourth of July holds a magnetic grip on me and everything I believe in. Freedom. If it were not for freedom I could not share this article with you. If it were not for freedom I may not be here. If it were not for freedom I would not be the person I am today. And if it were not for the people - men, women, old and young alike, who serve their country in times of war, in times of peace - I would not have been given the opportunity to live in a country dedicated to freedom. I thank you, all of you, for the very depth of my soul.

In the words of Lee Greenwood, words that are dear to me, I leave you with these thoughts:

I am proud to be an American where at least I know I'm free; And I won't forget the men who died who gave that right to me; and I gladly stand up, next to you and defend her still today; cause there ain't no doubt I love this land God Bless the USA.

New state board has preliminary meeting

The four members of the new State Board of Education, who will take office July 1, held a preliminary meeting at Dover last week.

The members met for the discussion and outlining of immediate work in order that everything may be done toward starting the schools under the best possible conditions in the fall.

A temporary organization was effected.

This step was taken last week, before the Board is regularly in office, because Mr. Souder expects to be out of the State until the middle of July.

Owing to the action of the members of the Board at Dover, the permanent organization can be effected on July 1, and the work started without waiting for Mr. Souder's return.

Problems of market gardening discussed

Mr. R. Earl Dickney, of Stanton, gave an interesting and instructive talk to the men of the Rehabilitation unit at the morning assembly today.

Mr. Dickney has for two years been the director of the Community Gardens Work in Wilmington.

He told the men of the work in vegetable gardening being done in that city, enlarging upon the value and pleasure to be derived from even a small vegetable plot.

Mr. Dickney spoke also of the problems of intensive market gardening.

Taxi, taxi!

Beginning this week, residents of Newark, Bear, Glasgow have available the services of a new taxicab company. Seacoast Cab Co. of Delaware City has been authorized by the Delaware Transportation Authority to expand as far north as Newark, giving that city's residents their first cab service since City Cab went out of business in March.

Seacoast Co-manager G. Thomas Brown said the service should be in full swing by Friday, June 28, with two or three cabs on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Newark OKs in-vehicle parking device

Newark City Council has unanimously approved the distribution of In-Vehicle Parking Regulators by police to non-residents who regularly park on the city's residential streets.

The IPR system was developed by the police department in response to the need for a more effective method of monitoring parking in the city's residential districts, particularly those close to the University of Delaware campus.

City employee given warm welcome home

City of Newark survey assistant Spc. Steven Billy found out just hoe much his co-workers missed him when they threw him a surprise party to welcome him back from the Gulf last week. Billy, a member of the Delaware Army National Guard's 249th Engineering Detachment, served in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia for six months. He returned June 15 and plans to resume work for the city next month after a vacation in Canada.

Ground broken for five new NNLL fields

Ground breaking for the Newark National Little League's five new playing fields took place June 20, and if all goes according to plan the fields will be ready for the 1992 season.

The 20-acre site, located on Brownleaf Road near Gallager Elementary School, was leased from the county at a price of $1 per year for 20 years.

names like The Pied Bull, The Bear and Billet, The Dog & Gun, The Mortal Man, The Poacher's Pocket and First Inn, First Out. Do not be misled by those who suggest that British cooking is inferior. We enjoyed fine meals at both the pubs and upscale restaurants and feasted on consistently excellent bread, rolls and pastries.

As a sports enthusiast, I was anxious to observe and learn. We saw lawn bowling by both men and women, a cricket match in progress, golf, football and archery practice. Our guide informed us that an ancient law still on the books states that every able-bodied man "shall report for archery practice on Sunday at 11 a.m."

Football is extremely popular and the rivalry among towns is spirited. Team names frequently reflect the history or industry of an area. Thus, the team representing a city where a major ICI plant is located is called the Chemicks, while the team based in a town long identified with the production of leather goods is known as the Saddlers.

We learned that the monarch's picture must appear on all denominations of British money. Queen Elizabeth's face appears on the frequently used five, ten and twenty pound notes and on the one-pound coin and others of lesser value. Mail, once posted, becomes the property of the queen and remains hers until delivered to the door of the addressee. Technically, at least, it is improper for a postman to give mail to a householder on the street; it should be delivered to the door. A post office vehicle is the only one permitted to drive in the wrong direction on a one-way street.

I was especially conscious of the use of words and phrases not commonly heard in our community. We traveled, for example, on a dual carriageway (dual highway) where lorries rather than trucks carried the freight. In hotels we were advised to mind the step or the door when entering the lift. A confused situation was described as a "muck-up," and while touring a castle we were told that some noblemen used to swan off, or wander away, after dining in the main hall.

Middle Atlantic ties to Great Britain were everywhere apparent. We actually visited, or saw signs to, Lancaster, York, Cumbria (Cumberland), Kent, Sussex, Newark, Chester, Cheltenham and Chippenham. What we did not see – even in the larger cities – was excessive graffiti, litter or, on the motorways, advertising billboards.

But clever entrepreneurs were not to be denied. We passed several large trucks identified as the property of Eddie Stobart, Ltd., express road haulage. On the front of each truck was a woman's name. The management of the company had publicized a contest for children throughout the country. Youngsters who saw Stobart trucks were asked to report the place, time and lady's name and, after submitting a specific number of sightings, the reporter would receive a model of a company truck. The contest not only created nationwide interest in the firm, but provided the owners with up-to-date information on the location of its vehicles.

It would be impossible to visit Great Britain without a sense of stepping back in time. History is everywhere displayed and revered as one encounters military heroes like Lords Nelson and Wellington; authors Jane Austen, William Wordsworth, Shelley and Shakespeare; composers Handel, Henry Purcell, Edward Elgar and Benjamin Britten; and royals from Alfred I to Henry VIII to Elizabeth I to Victoria to the present Queen Elizabeth.

America owes much to the hardy English, Scots, Welsh and Irish whose explorations and accomplishments provided the foundation on which our nation was built. We returned to Newark with a better understanding of our heritage and an increased sense of pride in it.

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

OPERATION Singapore in full progress five days after my arrival. The trip was fairly uneventful, other than the fact I discovered that I enjoyed First Class and Connoisseur Class, mildly disliked the San Francisco and Tokyo airports, and discovered that there is no true cure for jet lag. The whole journey lasts about 25 hours and at certain times, it really felt like it.

One of the things that made time pass slowly was a book I was referring to which was supposed to help me fight jet lag. The book's strategy for fighting jet lag is to focus on time, wear sunglasses when most people don't and not to sleep when you want to. Sounds fun doesn't it?

The flight was interesting in the fact that I'd never taken an air trip longer than eight hours and that was more than five years ago, so I wasn't particularly used to the long hauls... Sure, I pretended like I knew what I was doing - I mean, I knew what the slipper socks were, and I also knew about the hot towels... I just didn't know the hot towels just kept coming and coming.

For those who don't fly on a regular basis, on international flights they give out scalding hot lemon-scented tiny towels (smaller than a washcloth) for you to "refresh yourself". On a flight to Europe from the U.S., this towel experience only happens once a flight. On my trip I lost count at six.

The first leg of my journey began in Philadelphia at 7:30 in the morning May 1. Now the jet lag book told me to keep my sunglasses on (inside) until 10 a.m. Now, I'm not a "by the book" kind of guy too often, but I figured if this plan was going to help me sleep, I won't mind looking like a dork for awhile.

A good petroleum product

■ This weekly feature on the Lifestyle page is authored by the staff of the Newark-based Cooperative Extension Service.

THE PETROLEUM industry receives a lot of negative publicity, especially when the prices rise at the pump, people lose jobs when refineries close down, or when crude oil washes up on beaches after a tanker accident.

Despite all this bad press, one petroleum product merits wide favorable reviews—horticultural oil spray.

Fruit growers have used oil sprays for the last hundred years or so.

These oils were commonly called "dormant oil," because they were limited to use on leafless trees during the dormant season.

High viscosity and contaminants such as sulfur damaged green plant tissue.

Advances in purification processes since the 1980's have led to ultra lightweight oils gardeners can use on many landscape plants throughout the growing season.

This week's author: Jo Mercer

Oil sprays during the dormant season serve to control problems before they occur.

Insects and mite pests of many kinds spend the winter on the bark and twigs of host plants. These same pests can be killed in the summer when the spray hits them directly.

Whereas many pesticides control only one or two of a pest's life stages, oil sprays can kill adults, nymphs, crawlers, and eggs of pests.

Small, soft-bodied pests such as aphids, scales, and spider mites are susceptible to dormant and growing season oil sprays.

Even young caterpillars may succumb to oil sprays. Researchers believe that oil sprays kill by two different methods.

One is that the oil simply clogs up pests' air intake systems, causing them to suffocate.

The other is that oil poisons the insect's basic metabolic systems.

Being successful with oil sprays in the growing season takes some attention.

You must cover the pest with spray and spray under conditions in which the spray will dry quickly.

Oils damage green tissue when the solution sits "wet" for long periods due to humid weather, low temperatures, heavy dew or fog, or light rain at spray time.

Try to get out to spray oil early in the day when the air is still. The increasing heat of the day as the sun rises will ensure quick drying.

Avoid late afternoon or evening spraying which could increase drying time significantly as breezes die away,

By JULIA R. SAMPSON

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

SCHOOL may be out now but several elementary students enjoyed an unusual club this school year.

There's a new club in town and it's called The Homework Club. It began in March as a Partnership Program between Bayard Elementary and the Greater Newark Boys and Girls Club on Route 40.

The combined efforts of Steven Lee, principal of Bayard, and Jerry Oravitz, director of the Boys and Girls Club, launched this positive and successful program.

"We had funds to sponsor twenty students," said Lee. "The kids got so excited about the club that it spread by word of mouth. Unfortunately we had to turn some kids down."

The format of the program is such that students are transported to the Boys and Girls Club and his/her $7 annual membership fee is paid for by the partner-

World class drum and bugle comes to Newark

By KATE HERMAN

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

THE 12-TIME WORLD finalist Crossmen Drum and Bugle Corps of New Castle County will perform here in the "Delaware Debut" drum and bugle corps competition tomorrow night. Eight other national drum corps will also participate in the event, starting at 7 p.m. at Newark High School.

Newark resident Christy Dilts, a Crossmen color guard member, said this will be one of the corps' first stops on its summer-long tour. "We'll go up and down the east coast, and over into Illinois and Indiana," she said. "Our finals are in Florida in August."

A recent Glasgow High School graduate, Dilts first heard of drum corps through her involvement in Glasgow's color guard which she co-captained in her senior year.

Dilts said she joined the Crossmen because as a member of the high school marching band, she was taught that "a drum corps is what you strive to be. I wanted to be the best, so I went out for drum corps."

She emphasized that the Crossmen, though based in New Castle County, are an international corps with members from across the country and around the world. "We have three from Japan, two from England, and one from Germany," Dilts said. "Corps members come from everywhere, and I think a lot of people don't understand that."

Crossman spokesperson Marcy Kelly said the members from other areas come here for corps camp in the winter and then move here in the summer for the tour season.

"Different corps have different styles," explained Kelly. "The Crossman do jazz, for instance, and there's a corps from Anaheim, Calif., that does classical music. People who like that will apply to join a specific corps."

Drum corps members spend up to 600 hours rehearsing a 10-11 minute show. They perform about 40 times a season which requires about 14 hours of practice a day. Kelly emphasized that participation is very competitive. ""A couple of 100 people tried out for the Crossman drum line recently."

The Crossmen feature 128 members in their "Voices of Jazz" show which they have been polishing for eight months.

Tickets will be available for $12, $15 and $25 at Saturday's show. The $25 ticket includes premium seating, VIP parking, a souvenir program, and a coupon redeemable for a free sandwich. For more information, contact the Crossmen at 737-5234.

ship.

Homework is accomplished under the supervision of adult tutors, students are able to participate in organized club activities, and if parents are unable to pick their child up at the designated time of 6:30 p.m., their child could remain at the club until 8:30 p.m. and participate in other club activities.

To culminate their efforts, the students of the homework club decided to get involved in a hands-on project. Their project was to develop the parking lot median, which is situated in front of the entrance of the club, into a flower garden.

Fundraisers were held on two consecutive Friday nights, according to Earlene Vann, coordinator of the homework club. "The kids ran the store themselves which gave them a taste of the working world."

Donations for both the flower garden and the 'store' were obtained from: L. Turner, D. Haman, S. Smith, J. Vann, J. Juda, Rev. and Mrs. P. Chisolm, Country Side Nursery, Fairview Nursery, One Stop Variety, Ekerd Drug, S. Lee, Dr. E. Betera, J. Oravitz, A. Cabell, B. Tinney, F. Thomas, and Mr. Mulch.

Students who participated in the project received a Certificate of Award for both their participation in the Homework Club and the Flower Garden project.

The students who received an award are: Rusty Miller, Leon Wheiler, Sam Brackbill, Francisco Stallworth, Amy Brackbill, Nina Boardley, Turhan Boardley, Leanne Furguson, Ashley Messer, Nicolas Hood, Sandip Patel, Tanisha Bias, Shonda Waller, Eric Pryor, Samuel Pellom, Jaclyn Pryor, and Shana Riley.

Jean Pinkney, grandmother of Francis Stallworth, said the club provided a "great opportunity for Francis," and feels he received a "great advantage" being a part of the Boys and Girls Club.

Read the labels before buying summer oils

▶ OUTLOOK, from 8

temperatures drop, and relative humidity rises.

Oils with the designation "6E" have been used without problems during the summer on species such as maple, birch, dogwood, ash, holly, juniper, flowering cherry, oak, yew, linden, hemlock, cypress, and zelkova. Read the product label before you buy to learn whether the manufacturer recommends its use as a summer oil. Individual plants may be more or less tolerant of summer oil. It would be nearly impossible for a manufacturer to be able to test each and every cultivar of landscape plant. If your plant is not specifically on the label, but also is not included in the "do not use on..." section, do a limited test spray before treating the whole plant. Spray an inconspicuous portion of the test plant during the hottest part of the day, then examining the results after seven days. If no browning is evident, you may then treat the entire plant.

If you inspect your plants at least every other week during the summer, you can use oil spray to effectively control pests before the problem gets out of hand. Oil sprays are not as destructive of beneficial insect predators and parasites as are most other pesticides. Pest insects seem unable (or at least very slow) to develop resistance to the effects of oil as they have to many of the chemicals we have traditionally used against them. Oil spray products are relatively inexpensive to use and leave little residue to contaminate the environment. The oily coating can produce an attractive sheen on leaves and reduce that dry, dusty look of summer.

Disadvantages of using oil include the requirement that the spray contact the pest directly. There is no residual action against the pest once the spray has dried down. Pests that spend their lives on the underside of leaves, such as lace bugs and whiteflies, may be difficult to treat with oil in large or dense plants. Thorough coverage of top and bottom leaf surfaces requires some time, effort, and agility with the spray wand. You must also agitate the spray can frequently to keep the oil mixed with the water.

It's highway....errr....railway robbery!

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

HISTORIC RED Clay Valley, Inc., (HRCV) is known for many activities in our area. The members of the historical society take part in the annual clean-up effort which this year collected over 17 tons of trash and more than 200 auto and truck tires from the creek and the area around the Red Clay Creek. Members are involved with the preservation of important cites along the waterway including Brandywine Springs Park and the Greenbank Mill. But most of my readers will know HRCV best as the operators of a project to recreate branch line railroading from a bygone era, the all volunteer Wilmington and Western Railroad.

The Wilmington and Western has been dubbed "Delaware's WORKING History Museum" by transportation historians, and with good reason. It has many outreach programs including joint curriculum projects which have resulted in the very popular School Trains Program. One of the annual programs which is enjoyed by riders of all ages is about to begin another season and that is the Wild West Robbery Trains.

While the participants all dress in accurate period costumes and try to use weapons, or replicas of weapons of the times, it is done a little more "tongue in cheek" than any of those robberies pulled off by the James brothers, et al.

These trains, which attract visitors locally as well as from surrounding states, begin running this coming Sunday, June 30, and will run again on Sunday, July 28 and on Sunday, August 25. Like the men and women who operate the railroad, all of those who put on the event are volunteers.

The robbery trains have been on the Wilmington and Western for over ten years and still pack the ridership in every year, rain or shine. "The fact that it will operate, no matter the weather, is popular with parents who promise the children a ride on the robbery trains. The riders stay high and dry even at the big 'shoot-out' at the outlaws 'hideout,' which is the culmination of the day's events," noted HRCV Executive Director David Ludlow.

This is a real family fun event put on by Delaware's Working History Museum and that is why I am suggesting it today. Everything gets underway at the railroad's Greenbank Station located on Newport-Gap Pike, Delaware Route 41, just a quarter mile north of its intersection with the Kirkwood Highway, Delaware Route 2. A "valuable silver shipment" is put aboard the vintage, steam powered train at the station by the sheriff and his group who resemble more the Keystone Cops than a law enforcement group. Then the bandits "sneak" into the station and on to the train about as unobtrusively as a twister through a trailer park.

Once the train is underway it is non-stop, madcap adventure until things "get so out of hand" when the train gets to the robbers' hideout that a major battle ensues. That "battle" has to be seen to be believed. I have taken the trip every year for the past five and I can't tell who is having more fun the kids or the parents and grandparents who brought them!

After the big "shoot-out," and on the way back to Greenbank Station, the volunteers come through the train to let the very young know it was all for fun and that no one was hurt. Adults can even request to meet a favorite character on the train or back at the station after the ride. I would make one suggestion, bring extra film or tape. Most children like to have their pictures taken with members of the volunteer group.

On the three Sundays I mentioned, trains leave Greenbank Station at 12:30 and 3:15 p.m. Tickets go on sale at the Greenbank ticket office at 11:30 a.m., the same time the historic exhibit and gift shop building opens. These trains regularly sell out so if you want have reserved seats — no extra cost — you should call 302-998-1930 during regular business hours Monday through Friday. Tickets for children 2 to 12 are $5, senior citizens are $10 and adults are $12. Children under two are carried free.

Another event to remember the past is set for the weekend of September 7 and 8. This much more serious program is the Civil War Weekend. It includes a skirmish, candlelight tour, bivouac and much more.

But for now, fun is the order of the day. By the way, youngsters can bring their own

"shootin' irons" (toy variety, of course!) to play a special part in the afternoon. I hope to make this my sixth year for the event. I promise to come unarmed!

It's hard to tell the good guys from the bad guys as they line up for this rogues' gallery photograph at the Wilmington and Western Railroad's Greenbank Station prior to the start of another season of Wild West Robbery Trains on the historic railroad this Sunday.

Seniors will total 15% by 2020

Senior citizens will make up more than 15 percent of Delaware's population by the year 2020, according to a U.S. census report.

The state's population of residents 65-years-old and older is expected to increase by 67 percent in 25 years as Baby Boomers start to age.

The results vary from an earlier state estimate which showed the state's 65-and-older population growing by up to 50 percent by the year 2020. "The findings confirm that state's need to prepare their resources for an increasingly aged population," said Kevin Kinsella, a federal Census Bureau analyst.

The effect will be greatest in southern Delaware, where Kent and Sussex populations are aging faster than the national average.

Delaware's rate falls in the middle of the pack nationally, with 27 other states seeing a larger percentage gain in the 65-and-over set.

"Not only are the baby boomers getting older, but you also, because of modern technology, have people leading longer and healthier lives," said Christine Frystacki, deputy director of Delaware's Division of Aging.

Senior center gift shop open

The Gift Shop in the Newark Senior Center on Whitechapel Road is open to the public Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Located off the main reception area, the shop carries a wide range of handmade gifts.

WE TRADED PROPERTY UPKEEP FOR PURSUING OUR DREAMS!

"WE FINALLY FOUND OUR NEW HOME: SOUTHRIDGE."

My husband has always wanted to learn to play the piano, and I have always wanted to teach people how to read. Now we both will achieve these dreams as we gain new freedom and set new milestones together at Southridge. Our house served us well for 35 years, but now the property maintenance and upkeep cause us to lose out on living life to its fullest.

Now we will leave the property maintenance to the experts. We'll enjoy one-floor living, a separate clubhouse with library and fitness center, and a walking trail in this beautiful, active adult community. My husband has already scheduled his first piano recital, and he would be disappointed if you didn't join us.

Please call Pat Folk or Janice Moores at 302-369-3560 if you, too, have dreams to fulfill.

YES, I'D LIKE MORE INFORMATION ABOUT SOUTHRIDGE.

Two tally perfect scores

NEWARKERS Allen S. McClain and Dennis Wilcott both recently bowled the ultimate game at the same time – a 300 score during a Senior 9 pin no-tap game at Blue Hen Lanes on Main Street.

In a game of 9-pin, no-tap, a strike is awarded for knocking down either nine or ten pins at a time.

Wilcott, who won a gold medal in bowling at the Delaware Senior Olympics last year, has bowled for 42 years and belongs to two winter and one summer bowling league. Retired from 35 years of construction work, the 81-year-old Wilcott also plays golf and horseshoes.

McClain, a recent retiree after 40 years with Lukens Steel Mill, said he has only been bowling for eight years. "I moved here from Pennsylvania and my wife's family all bowled, so I took it up," explained McClain.

McClain denies that he is an "expert" at bowling. "I just enjoy it," he said. In addition to participating in winter and summer bowling leagues, McClain also likes to hunt and fish.

Both men are planning to enter the Delaware Senior Olympic games this fall which could qualify them for the National Senior Olympics in May, 1997.

Meet an Olympian at the library

We are getting closer to the opening ceremonies in Olympic Games in Atlanta, AAA., in July. We watched the torch come to Newark on its way to Atlanta only last week.

But Newark has much closer ties to Olympians.

On Wednesday, July 10, local winners in the Senior Olympic Games will share their stories and the medals they have won and read a story to those present.

On Wednesday, July 17, national and international skaters who train at the University of Delaware with World and Olympic skating coach, Ron Ludington, will be here.

The skaters will talk about their medals and experiences and also read a story.

Both events, sponsored by Newark area McDonalds will take place 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Newark Free Library.

Senior peer counselors sought

The HEALTH center at the Newark Senior Center is looking for seniors interested in serving as volunteer peer counselors on psychological, mental health and other life issues.

Mental health professionals will conduct a 12-week training program for counselors twice a week in three-hour sessions. Volunteers must agree to serve as counselors eight hours a week for one year after they complete the educational program.

Following training, counselors will be assigned to work with clients one-on-one and ongoing supervision will be provided.

The HEALTH (Healthy Elder Adult Living Through Holistic Health Care) center operates at the senior center with a grant from the University of Delaware which also provides geriatric nursing staff from the College of Nursing.

For information on the program, call 831-0003. The deadline for submitting applications is July 29, 1996.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the properties listed below were seized for violation of Title 16 of the Delaware Code. Owners or lienholders who can establish that the property was forfeited by an act or omission committed or omitted without their knowledge or consent may apply for remission at the office of the Attorney General, Forfeiture Division, Wilmington, Delaware. Persons desiring to contest the forfeiture of assets seized pursuant to Title 16 of the Delaware Code, Section 4784, may protect their interest by filing a civil petition in Superior Court within 45 days after the date of this notice, or mailed notice, whichever is later. Superior Court Civil Rule 71.3 sets out the requirements for filing a civil forfeiture petition.

will be in a new location this year at the entrance to the activities area. Anyone is welcome to speak courteously on any topic for up to 10 minutes, said city coordinators.

Children's performer Lois Young will present a concert from noon to 12:50 p.m. with original songs, story telling and puppetry, while from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., Uncle Sam, the stilt walker, roves the park with his balloon animal creations.

Other family activities planned are handcrafters, antique and classic automobiles on display, pony and carriage rides, carnival games, a flea market, children's bubble fun area, and of course, plenty of food, drinks and snacks.

Musical groups, starting at 11 a.m. with the Newark Community Band, will appear all day on the park's stage. White Clay Tributary will perform from 1 to 3 p.m. followed by Broadway Bound from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Parking is available at the park for in-state vehicles at $1 and out-of-state vehicles at $2. Free parking, with a shuttle to the park every 15 minutes during the day, is available at Clayton Hall on Route 896.

For additional information about either event call the Newark Parks and Recreation Department at 366-7147.

Fireworks last year?

In Newark, some people wait in vain for a fireworks display at White Clay Creek State Park.

Carol Houck, parks and recreation coordinator for the city's holiday celebration, said the city had fireworks one time only in 1978 at the state park.

It must have been one heck of a display.

Every year since, people show up at the park with high hopes.

"The park rangers tell us that every year after we clean up and leave the Liberty Day picnic, people show up arguing that 'they saw fireworks there last year,'" said Houck. "We've even put up signs saying there are no fireworks there but it doesn't help. They have to lock up the park to keep them out."

This year, Newark will once again have a fireworks display. (See related story).

Houck said the fireworks are back but will be held at the more spacious University of Delaware football complex. "The traffic overwhelmed Route 896 near the state park in the past – it was like a parking lot and cars ran over lawns," she said.

Newark will host Fourth of July fireworks

FOR THE FIRST TIME in 18 years the city of Newark will have fireworks on the 4th of July.

The traditional treat for sight and sound produced by Zambelli Internationale begins at 9 p.m. at the University of Delaware's practice football field off South College Avenue/Route 896.

"This should be a really good place to see them," said city parks and recreation coordinator Carol Houck. "We'll have more of an aerial show than they have in Wilmington although Zambelli does that show, too."

Zambelli's experts also have staged pyrotechnic displays in New York City, Washington, D.C., and for Walt Disney Productions.

Free parking is available in all the university's athletic complex lots as well as in Chrysler Lot # 2. The fireworks will be visible from all lots.

City officials warn that no alcoholic beverages will be permitted in the viewing areas.

Rain date for the fireworks is July 6.

For additional information call the Newark parks and recreation department at 366-7147.

Off to Singapore

▶ WILKE, from 7

I minded - the sunglasses inside lasted about 15 minutes before I realized I'm not the "sunglasses inside" guy I thought I could pretend to be.

Through no fault of my own,I was able to obtain a class upgrade for my journey. From Philly to San Fran, I was flying first class and from San Fran on, I was in business class. Once I got into the plane I was offered a newspaper and champagne or juice. Now, keep in mind that I was only two weeks removed from a very cramped flight in coach class to Los Angeles, so the kind treatment I was getting was very nice, but deep down inside I was slightly resentful of the stewards and stewardesses who would cater to my every need. I was a mere five rows ahead of "fighting for a crummy pillow and a blanket the size of a welcome mat" status, sipping champagne, reading the Wall Street Journal (complimentary, of course) and resting under a blanket you could wrap yourself in a cocoon. Once the plane took off and I reclined my seat (and noticed how far I could put the seat back), I forgot any sympathies I may have had for the cramped masses behind me.

Besides the constant throwing of hot towels, eating and drinking is a constant on these flights - they even give you a choice of two stickers to put on your seat which are the airplane equivalent of the "do not disturb" sign. One sticker was the "feed me no matter what I'm doing" and the other was "If I'm sleepin', I ain't eatin.'" I didn't see anyone use these stickers, but at one point in my journey I was both tired enough and hungry enough to be tempted to use them.

The movie on this flight was "Jumanji," a pretty good movie starring Robin Williams, which I believe got mediocre reviews. I'm telling you the movie, because at least when I talk to someone who just had a long flight, I always ask them what the movie was. They even showed the "Pez dispenser" episode of "Seinfeld."

Once I landed in San Fran, I had just enough time to get to my gate for my next flight to Tokyo. On this leg of the flight, my jet lag book told me that I could sleep for part of the flight... so I did. I even took a break from my nap to watch "Broken Arrow ," not a bad movie, but not a classic. This was the longest flight of my trip, and my life for that matter... ten hours, but the airlines keep you occupied and stuffed enough not to realize how long you're actually strapped into your chair.

Tokyo airport was my first exposure to Asia... a rainy one at that. I knew just enough about the Japanese culture to realize that I didn't know the Japanese language and that I had no Yen on me. I had a three-and-a-half hour layover to experience a fairly uneventful airport. Actually it was a good thing I had a long layover, it took me a half and hour to figure out how to make a call to the U.S. and a call to Singapore without a Japanese calling card.

By the time my layover was over, I was too tired to even remember the third leg of my journey.

When I got off the plane in Singapore's Changi Airport, the first thing I was hit with was the humidity and the heat. It was 11:30 p.m. when I arrived and it was 83 degrees with 95 percent humidity.

The second thing I was hit with was the fact that if Disney had an airport, Changi would be it - clean, bright and not a thing out of place.

Although I hate to admit it, looking like a dork almost paid off - my first night in Singapore was spent sleeping soundly. But two days later, I almost fell asleep at the table of a restaurant.

The next morning, my parents gave me the nickel tour of the area around the apartment.

From what I've seen so far, Singapore is a beautiful and exciting place... in my following columns, I'll tell you all about it.

Local rivals on same side now

All-Star game is Saturday

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

Local high school football players Nick Jones, Dennis Adams, Justin Taylor, Butch Patrick and Mike Prljaca will all play for the Gold team in Saturday night's Delaware All-Star Football Game at Delaware Stadium.

The 1996 Blue-Gold football game is the one time players from Newark, Christiana and Glasgow get to line up on the same side of the line of scrimmage after years of duking it out as rivals.

Newark's Ernest "Butch" Patrick, Dennis Adams and Nick Jones will play on the same Gold team with Christiana's Mike Prljaca and Glasgow's Justin Taylor.

High school football games often take on the appearance of warfare. Especially when the schools are in the same district. Teen-agers who've known each other through grade school and junior high find themselves on opposite sides of the field.

At stake is everything.

We're real good friends," said Patrick, who earned first-team All-State honors while rushing for 1,299 yards. "You just don't want to lose."

"On the field and off the field, it's two different things," added Prljaca, an honorable mention All-Blue Hen Conference selection. "[The rivalry] doesn't take away from the friendship. It's part of the friendship. ...We could see each other at parties and talk about the game."

You can call these intra-district games cross-town rivalries or neighborhood rivalries. A team's record at the time means little. These battles are about pride. They're about bragging rights.

"Everybody want to win," said Taylor, 18, of Newark, who will attend Hagerstown (Md.) Junior College. "Somebody has got to lose."

Taylor has known Adams, Jones and Prljaca since they were all kids playing in the Newark National Little League. Prljaca met Patrick and Jones at Shue-Medill Middle School.

The five guys were more inclined to talk about the honor of being selected to play in the anual game, which brings together the top seniors from throughout the state.

"Since we were little kids, we always saw those jerseys hanging from the walls," said Patrick, 18, of Bear, who committed to Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Va., after putting several college scholarship offers on hold.

Prljaca said being selected to the Gold team salvages an otherwise disappointing season for Christiana, which entered the '95 football season as defending state champions.

"My coach told me it doesn't matter if you don't play a down," he said. "It's just an honor to be there."

Patrick respectfully disagreed: "I

Former pro puts Del. soccer on map

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

Matt Driver doesn't want respect because of his accent. Instead, judge the former professional soccer player by his achievements.

Driver, 36, has directed Delaware's soccer Olympic Development Program (ODP) for the past three years after inheriting the job from University of Delaware soccer coach Mark Samonisky.

Under Driver, the program has tripled in size, growing from a stable of roughly 100 players to 300 players. Fourteen teams now represent ODP, which is made up of boys and girls 12-17.

The Scotland native is building the program using Europe as his model. "[Soccer is] a religion everywhere but the United States," Driver said. But in spite of its mortal status in the pantheon of American sports, it's still the second-fastest growing sport here behind basketball, he said.

Surprisingly, that puts it ahead of Little League baseball and football on the growth chart.

"We run the ODP like a young professional team," he said. "I'm good at identifying raw players. I'm a hard taskmaster. If something's worth doing, it's worth doing right. You got to try to get in the heads of kids.

"They don't have to like you. They have to respect you and know that you're there for them. ...You don't know how good you are until you fail."

Driver's work ethic comes from being raised in the tough working class environs of Glasgow, Scotland, which he compares to the Bronx in New York City, and Barnoldswick, England, which is north of Manchester. His father was a laborer, his mother a civil servant.

"My parents weren't afraid to give me a slap on the ear or a kick in the butt," he said. "It's every schoolboy's dream to be a professional soccer player. We don't grow up wanting to be doctors or lawyers. And it's 1 percent of 1 percent who actually make the grade."

His first order of business in Delaware was to toughen what he perceived as a laid-back attitude among players in the First State. He believed the on-the-field disposition of Delaware players was too nice.

"We zeroed in on the lack of mental toughness," he said. "We weren't trying to win games. We were trying to be competitive. We're starting to produce decent

Area baseball proves to be best in state

THE SUCCESS of the Delaware North baseball team in the Carpenter Cup really wasn't a surprise to local baseball people.

The Delaware North team advanced to the championship game of the 16-team regional tournament played at Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium. While the team officially was comprised of players from the Blue Hen Conference and the Catholic Conference, it had a decidedly Newark area flavor.

Just take a look at the starting lineup in Monday's semifinal. Newark High's Jeff Myers led off and played second base, Newark shortstop Sean McCullough batted second, St. Mark's centerfielder Kevin Mench batted third, Newark catcher Tom Emig hit fifth, St. Mark's left fielder Andy Burt batted sixth, Salesianum right fielder and Bear resident Tony Lofink hit seventh and St. Mark's Brian Guest was the designated hitter and hit ninth.

And that's not all. Newark pitcher Jason Bedford started the championship game and Glasgow's Scott Broderdorp had a monster game (double, triple, four RBI) in the quarterfinal win. St. Mark's pitcher Danny Sullivan pitched key innings in several of the contests and the Spartans' Adam Moore played shortstop.

With so many of the players being from the area, it's not a surprise that most played together some time during their young baseball careers.

"We know how to win when we're together," said Mench, who played in Newark American Little League. "Myers, McCullough and me – that's like the lineup we had when we were growing up. It's great to play with these guys because you know we're going to win."

The whole Carpenter Cup experience just reiterates the fact that the best baseball in the state is played in our area. Newark High captured its sixth state baseball championship this past spring by beating local rival St. Mark's in the final.

Like any success story, the baseball prowess of the Newark area can be traced to its roots.

Newark American, Newark National and Canal Little Leagues have all captured state baseball championships in various divisions over the past several years. Besides the Little Leagues there is the Newark Babe Ruth League, which has also had teams win state titles.

At the beginner level of play, besides the Little League and players [now].

"There's always been ability. It just needed to be channeled."

Recently, the Delaware ODP placed two players on national teams and four on regional teams. Six others made the regional pool from which players are chosen for regional teams.

Driver moved to the states in '93 after meeting Samonisky and Glasgow High Coach Bob Bussiere at a soccer convention at New Haven (Conn.) College.

At the time, Driver was working for a communications company in England. A severe stomach injury in 1989 interrupted his professional career. A center forward, he turned pro at 17 and served apprenticeships with "football clubs" in England's third and second divisions.

He also played in Germany's Second Division before signing with the American Professional Soccer League in 1982. The league grew out of the ashes of the North American Soccer League, a predecessor to Major League Soccer.

After bouncing around England's semipro leagues, Driver became licensed as a coach in Brazil and Scotland as well as America. He now owns Soccer Quest in Newark, which operates camps throughout the state. He and his wife Karen have lived in Aspen Woods in Bear since '94.

Additionally, Driver is a part-owner of the USISL's brand new South Jersey franchise, which he expects to begin competing next season in either Ocean City (N.J.) or Wildwood.

He is also planning to establish a "talent academy," a year-round facility that will provide guidance for young players on such matters as diet, training and motivation.

Team falls 6-5 in Carpenter Cup final

By MARTY VALANIA

PHILADELPHIA – The Delaware North baseball team had the Carpenter Cup within its reach before having it snatched away by the Chester County (Pa.) All-Star team.

Chester County scored a run in the 11th inning to nip Delaware North 6-5 Tuesday at Veterans Stadium and win the Carpenter Cup championship.

It is the second straight year that Delaware North, comprised of high school players from the Blue Hen and Catholic Conferences, has been beaten in the championship game of the regional tournament.

"The kids represented themselves and the state extremely well," said Delaware North Coach Dennis Walker of Salesianum. "They made a fantastic run at it."

To advance to the title game Delaware North defeated a South Jersey team 8-3 in Monday's semifinal.

Local players helped the team to the win. Newark High catcher Tom Emig was 2-for-2 with two singles, a walk and two RBI while Andy Burt, from St. Mark's, was 4-for-4 with a double, three singles and two RBI. Other local players to contribute were Newark's Sean McCullough (single), St. Mark's Kevin Mench (double), Salesianum's Tony Lofink (single) and St. Mark's Brian Guest singled.

Also St. Mark's Danny Sullivan pitched three scoreless innings.

"It's a great experience to play in this tournament," Emig said. "It's neat to play on the astro turf and it's neat to play with all these good players.

"Everybody here is a good athlete and it's different to play with so many guys like that. They're a different breed. Everybody's just so focused."

Glasgow's Scott Broderdorp starred in the team's 15-3 romp over Tri-Cape (N.J.) in Friday's quarterfinal. Broderdorp hit a two-run double and a two-run triple in the game. Emig and Lofink also notched RBI while Newark's Jason Bedford pitched two strong innings.

Local players who were on the roster were Andy Burt (St. Mark's), Jason Bedford (Newark), Jeff Myers (Newark), Danny Sullivan (St. Mark's), Sean McCullough (Newark), Scott Broderdorp (Glasgow), Tom Emig (Newark), Brian Guest (St. Mark's), Kevin Mench (St. Mark's), Tony Lofink (Salesianum) and Adam Moore (St. Mark's).

Babe Ruth, the Community Athletic Association, the Western YMCA and the Newark Parks and Recreation all provide leagues that give youngsters a place to play and learn the game.

Everyone that is involved or was involved in any of these organizations can be proud of the accomplishments of local teams. Youth league coaches and other volunteers put in long hours and are rarely recognized in a positive way. Baseball successes like the Carpenter Cup or a local high school winning a state title, however, are signs that things are going well.

But the running back added he was honored that coaches from around the state noticed his achievements. "That's going to top [the season] off. It's icing on the cake. It's a lot more than just a game."

"Especially when you're 1-and-9," said Taylor, referring to enduring through what became another rebuilding year for the Dragons. "I didn't expect to be nowhere."

NAC tries to improve image with new name

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

THE University of Delaware athletic teams will again be competing against the likes of Maine, Drexel, New Hampshire and Hofstra this year – however it won't be in the North Atlantic Conference.

The NAC name will be replaced during the 1996-97 year by America East.

America East is a 10-member, NCAA Division I athletic conference that provides championships in 21 sports. Delaware programs, except for football which competes in the Yankee Conference, will compete in the newly named conference.

"We believe this change will enhance name recognition of the organization, especially at the national level," said Commissioner Stu Haskell. "It will strengthen our conference and institutional marketing programs. It will add positively to student-athlete recruitment, generate a higher level of excitement surrounding our championship events, and generally project an attractive image for an already healthy association."

In addition, and perhaps most importantly with the recent additions of Delaware, Drexel and Towson State, Haskell noted that the name will also "more accurately reflect our expanded membership, with institutions from Orono (Maine) to Baltimore (Towson State).

"One of the problems with the old name is that there are too many leagues out ther with "Atlantic" in its name," said University of Delaware Athletic Director Edgar Johnson.

In conjunction with the name change the conference announced an eight-game television contract with Creative Sports Marketing for the 1996-97 season.

The Blue Hens will be in the debut game Jan. 5 when they host rival Towson State at the Carpenter Center.

Wizards still in playoff picture

By ERIC FINE
NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

The Wizards lost to the worst team in the USISL Select League. Yet Delaware held on to third place in the North Atlantic Division in spite of its embarrassing performance at Newark High's Hoffman Stadium Sunday.

The New York/New Jersey Stallions defeated the Wizards 2-1 in a game that featured the same lackluster offense that has become the team's trademark this season.

The Wizards came back from a 1-0 deficit midway into the second half on a goal by defender David Holmes. But missed opportunities continued to plague Delaware.

Matt Ford missed an open net in the first half and Eric Smith hit the post in the second half. Those two potential goals were the difference between victory and defeat against a team that has won only two of 12 league games.

Still, the Wizards, who are only 4-7 in Select League play, remain in the hunt for playoff spot. However, Wizards Coach Joe Brown said postseason play isn't the only thing at stake this season.

We have to keep growing," said Brown, who is also the team's majority owner. "Our first responsibility is to develop players for MLS (Major League Soccer) so we can someday be a major force in World Cup [competition]."

Brown said the United Systems Interregional Soccer League's Select League will merge with the seven-team American Professional Soccer League at the end of the season to form what will amount to America's Second Division.

The Delaware franchise, one of 22 currently in the Select League, will be included in the new 20-team league. "We'll be the equivalent to Triple A baseball," Brown said.

Uphill climb

With 10 games remaining, the Wizards face tough road to the playoffs. Second-year goalkeeper Peter Pappas' goals-allowed per game average has been among the league's best, but the team has struggled to score for much of the season.

The game is very simple," Brown said. "You have to score goals. ...There's nothing wrong with our players. We're just not getting the job done. It takes a bit of luck. It hasn't happened this year."

Holmes, a 26-year-old veteran who joined the team during its first season back in '93, said the team lacks the chemistry it's in previous years.

"Our second year, we all hung out together. This year, there's none of that. We're just playing on natural ability. There's situations in a game where you need an extra lift. [Where] you all have to work together to pull yourself out of that hole, to change the momentum of the game.

"I don't think we're able to do that. [But] I still think we have the players. It's like an intangible you can't put your finger on. We work hard in practice, but when we go out in a game, it seems like we're playing at 75 percent around the goal."

Holmes said the Wizards also lack a go-to player to fill the shoes of Kevin Sloan, last season's leading scorer, who the team was unable to sign.

"We don't have...a guy who you get 25 yards from the goal and he scores. A guy you think is dangerous, something's going to happen," said Holmes.

In addition to Sloan, the team no longer has the services of attackers like Rob Smith and Franklin McIntosh.

Brown insists this year's group of first-year player is his best-ever class. But he continues to search for attackers in the USISL's lower divisions as well as in amateur leagues between Washington, D.C., and Boston.

Bombers hold tryouts

The Delaware Blue Bombers will begin the tryout process for their fourth season June 29 and 30 at the Greater Newark Boys and Girls Club in Bear.

Scrimmaging will take place from 2-5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday.

"Each year we've been more selective in our process for inviting players to the camp," said Bombers' general manager and coach Scott Barker. "Statistically, this is the best group we've had to date. Eight of the players we're expecting averaged more than 16 points per game in college.

The Bombers are expecting to return four players from last year's squad. The ABA's leading scorer, rookie of the year and first-team all-ABA selection Donald Taylor, Will Cook, Glenn Stanley and Tylor Coley.

Local teams to participate in USA Cup

Two local teams will represent Delaware in next month's USA Cup soccer competition in Blaine, Minn.

The Hockessin Crush will be the under-14 representative. The team finished in first place in the NorDel spring league. It outscored its opponents 17-8 over eight games and recorded four shutouts.

The under-12 Delaware Blast will also be participating in the tournament.

The tournament, which features 785 teams from 36 states and 19 countries, is the largest in its 12-year history. Only three previous Delaware teams have ever played in this prestigious tournament.

Play will begin July 15 and run through July 20. The format is similar to that of the World Cup with three days of round-robin pool play before advancing to playoffs in the final three days.

The 'Magic' continues for Delaware ASA team

The Delaware Magic continued its impressive season by winning the York (Pa.) Invitational last weekend.

The 12-and-under Magic won six straight games by the combined score of 83-5 to capture its fifth tournament in seven tries and improve the team's record to 33-5.

The Magic shut out Chambersburg (Pa.) 6-0 in the championship game. Chambersburg, the Pennsylvania state champs, entered the tournament with a record of 23-1 and a berth in the nationals.

Leading hitters for the Magic were Jackie Homiak (10-for-16, 6 RBI, 9 runs scored), Ashley Davis (8-for-19, 8 RBI, 13 runs scored), Rachel Pawlikowski (5-for-18, 6 RBI, 10 runs scored), Kathleen Tibbetts (6-for-15, 11 runs scored), Lindsay Long (6-for-12) and Allie Dougherty (4-for-12).

Alaina Norvell pitched two no-hitters with 25 strikeouts while Rachel Pawlikowsi pitched a no-hitter, a two-hitter and compiled 27 strikeouts. Homiak pitched a one-hitter and a three-hitter with 25 strikeouts.

The Magic's next tournament will be the regionals July 13-14 in Virginia Beach. A top three finish will advance the team to nationals.

Children's well-being on minds of many

State Rep. Stephanie A. Ulbrich (R-Newark South) has released the results of her 1996 25th District survey, which shows strong support for initiatives aimed at improving public education.

Nearly three-quarters of the more than 400 residents who responded said they believe the student-teacher ratio in public schools should be lowered, even though the reduction could lead to higher costs or shifts in existing educational resources.

When asked whether the state should be stricter with parents whose children are truant, 92 percent said "yes." Residents also overwhelmingly supported a proposal requiring students to demonstrate academic competency before being allowed to graduate high school.

According to Ulbrich's research, more than 90 percent said the distribution of tobacco product samples to people under the age of 18 should be prohibited.

"I am pleased to hear what's on the minds of the constituents of the 25th District," Ulbrich said. "I think the 1996 survey showed that residents are genuinely concerned about today's children, especially when it comes to education."

"When 94 percent of the respondents say that good citizenship qualities, such as respect and integrity, should be taught in the public schools, I think that sends a message about the importance of our children's future," Ulbrich said.

Some of the survey questions

Do you think we should do more to reduce the student-teacher ratio in public elementary and secondary schools recognizing that it could result in either higher new costs or in shifts in existing educational resources? Yes 70% No 30%

Would you agree with a plan permitting schools to adopt "site-based management" enabling them to make decisions about instruction, budget and personnel? Yes 70 No 30

Do you think the state should be more strict with parents who do not send or students who do not attend school? Yes 92 No 8

Do you think the state should require students to demonstrate academic competency before being permitted to graduate? Yes 97 No 3

Do you support the idea of a statewide property reassessment designed to update the assessed value of residential and other property? Yes 57 No 43

Present law permits only registered Republicans and Democrats to work in polling places on Election Day.Would you support a plan that allows registered Independents to work the polls? Yes 86 No 14

The Apostles of the Historic Christian Church taught the truth about God the Son, Jesus Christ, and they taught the truth about salvation through faith, not by works. In these end times compromise of the truth or apostasy as God calls it has entered into the doctrines taught by many "Christian Churches" of the 20th century. In all of the 2,000 Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod Churches through-out the world, the historic truth about God is still proclaimed and taught. The same historical truth of Jesus Christ is the underlying assumption of the academics taught at all of our schools and colleges.

The local Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod Church is:

Three Acres Of Elk River Waterfront
150 Feet On The Elk River

Three acres of land with frontage on the Elk River. The original two-story frame dwelling was built in 1900 and has an addition to the rear and side and has seven (7) rooms and one (1) bathroom. The land is tree shaded, has out building and plenty of room for a garden. This quiet location is minutes from Route 40 in Elkton--near shopping, schools, churches, and Wilmington. It is less than two (2) hours from Baltimore or Philadelphia via I-95.

The woody grounds provide shady comfort. Bring your boat, it's within the pleasure reach and waterfront that offers spectacular sunrises.
