Council having second thoughts on bypass resolution

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

THE POSSIBILITY of losing federal funding for local road projects led Newark city council to second thoughts about a resolution passed 10 months ago.

As a member of the Technical

Advisory Committee for the Wilmington Area Planning Council, the city of Newark refused to approve a long range study for any transportation improvements in the Newark-Elkton region which excluded consideration of an extension of the Christina Parkway and a bypass into Maryland.

Cecil County, also a member of WILMAPCO, refused to accept a draft plan with language including a "bypass around Newark within Cecil County."

City council's August 1996, resolution on Newark's position merely stalemated the two governments.

On Monday night, Mayor Ronald Gardner told council that the "Revised Draft Scope of Work for the Newark/Elkton Intermodal Transportation Plan" was not even in the plans at the most recent WILMAPCO meeting.

Gardner reminded council that he predicted last August that the practical effect of council's action was the same as outright rejection. "But we don't have just one traffic problem in Newark," he said at that

Chief happy to stay here

After hearing Wednesday that the police chief's job in Roanoke County, Va., was being offered to the in-house candidate, Newark's top law enforcement official said he's both relieved and happy to be staying.

William A. Hogan, 46, chief here since 1987, was one of two finalists for the Virginia post.

"No bones about it," Hogan said, "I have a great deal of affection for this community and for the people of this department...and (the decision in Roanoke) takes a lot of pressure off me." Last week, Hogan said that if he were to be offered the Virginia position, it would be "a very difficult decision" to leave Newark.

Asked whether he now would be seeking other positions, Hogan said, "I'm happy here and I am not on a mission to leave Newark." He reiterated earlier statements that it was the "unique aspects" for career development offered in Roanoke that lured him to apply, not any job dissatisfaction in Newark. Hogan also has family, including his mother, living in the Roanoke Valley.

When word leaked out last week that he was considering a move, Hogan said many persons came forward to wish him the best. "It is gratifying to know that a lot of people respect the person that I am and our department," he said.

Roanoke County's administrator called Hogan Wednesday morning to tell him that the Virginia post was being offered to a 17-year-old veteran of the department.

But by day's end, Hogan was hearing from supporters again. "Several people already have come to me to say they're pleased that I'm not leaving," he said.

A 1995 Freightliner tractor-trailer exiting southbound Interstate 95 onto Route 896 northbound tied up traffic for more than two hours on Tuesday when it overturned.

According to state police, operator Howard Dail, 48, of Shallotte, N.C., was attempting to negotiate the curve on the off-ramp around 11:15 a.m. when the one-vehicle accident occurred. The ramp was closed for two-and-a-half hours while the truck's full load of used tires was cleaned up and the vehicle was uprighted. Dail was taken to Christiana Medical Center where he was listed in good condition with a fractured femur and contusions to his body. Police have charged Dail with operating a vehicle at unsafe speeds

Resident misled with magazine sales

An Abbotsford resident said she was "scammed" this week by two young women at her front door claiming to sell magazines to benefit their school.

According to Karen DeMonte, the women said they were seniors from St. Mary's School in Wilmington. "They told me I could help them earn a trip to Paris and the cost of my subscription was tax deductible," said DeMonte. "I asked them a lot of questions about where they were going to college and even gave them a snack."

After the women left, DeMonte called the St. Mary's School listed in the telephone book. "They told me they only went up to 8th grade and had no knowledge of any magazine sales," said DeMonte.

DeMonte then called World Wide Circulation, the clearing house in Michigan listed on her subscription forms and was told she could get her money back since the sales apparently were made under false pretenses.

According to company supervisor, Barbara Moroz, the women were two of the many independent contractors who sell the subscriptions door-to-door across the country through the clearing house. "One of the women is from Texas and has been selling for a long time without any complaints," said Moroz.

Contractors are eligible to win cash and trips based on the number of subscriptions they sell. "However, they are not authorized to use stories like the one this resident said she was told," said Moroz. "We have notified our field supervisor to follow up and put a stop to this practice."

STREET CLOSING

South College Avenue between Amstel and Delaware avenues will be closed tomorrow through Sunday, June 29 while the existing pedestrian walkway is demolished during the Gore Hall construction.

FOR THE RECORD

Newark city council voted to approve Leslie Goldstein to the city Ethics Board at their regular meeting of May 12, 1997. The date was given incorrectly in the article on the ethics charges in last week's Newark Post.

Houck named new city assistant

By MARY E. PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

City employee Carol Houck has been named the new assistant administrator to city manager Carl Luft.

Houck, a supervisor in Newark's parks and recreation department since 1990, will replace Fred Herald who is retiring on June 27 after 12 years in the position.

"I'm looking forward to working with Carol," said Luft who selected her from more than 300 applicants for the job. "We interviewed 16 people, six of them city employees, before making a decision."

Luft said the position is the kind of job that can change it's focus and responsibilities depending on the person filling it. "It remains customer-service oriented, however," said Luft.

As a community event supervisor Houck has coordinated Newark events, including Community Day, Liberty Day and all municipal parades and concerts.

"Carol has a strong work record in many of the areas important to this position," said Luft, "such as public relations, customer service, communications and general administration."

Houck previously worked for the Naval Station in Philadelphia as a director of community activities. She holds a bachelor's degree from Temple University and an associate degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Ulbrich meeting place changed

Representative Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South) has announced that the location of her weekly breakfast meetings has been changed.

Residents of the 25th District are invited to attend the meetings every Tuesday between 7 and 8 a.m. to share their questions and concerns on issues including public safety, education and government spending.

City takes over basin maintenance

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Trying not to set a precedent, Newark city council carefully limited their decision to take over maintenance of a community retention basin on Monday night.

In his motion for approval, councilmember Gerald Grant noted that the Middle Run Meadow development has only 15 homes, making it one of the smallest developments in the city of Newark and is also contiguous to city parkland.

"I don't think a 15-home development is a precedent," said Grant. "These people have been bamboozled and how often have we followed a city policy in (such cases) anyway?"

Residents of the community near Milford Crossroads told city council in April that developers Corrozi Homes, Inc., checked 'No' in the closing papers asking about any community maintenance agreements at homeowners' settlements.

City solicitor Roger Akin confirmed that there is no reference to the detention pond or a Maintenance Corporation in at least one resident's deed to her property.

"However, the Declaration was publicly filed prior to the time any settlements took place," noted Akin.

Mayor Ronald Gardner said he sympathized with the residents' concerns but any misrepresentation was not on the part of the city. "The persons responsible here are the developers, Corrozi Homes or their successors," said Gardner.

According to the city public works department, Corrozi Homes is no longer in business and city officials have not been able to contact Jack Corozzi.

Residents claimed that the ongoing upkeep of the detention pond, estimated to be about $250 per homeowner per year, would be an "extraordinary burden" for the small number of homeowners.

Grant noted that in the Hunt at Louviers, a larger community adjoining Middle Run, the city was responsible for basin maintenance.

City manager Carl Luft said, "I don't know why the Hunt basin has been publicly maintained except that it is near a city park, and also perhaps because the city received such a large piece of land from the developer for city parkland."

However, Luft said there is no documentation of any discussion about that arrangement.

"Virtually all commercial and most residential 'ponds' (in Newark) are privately maintained," stated Luft. Other developments in addition to the Hunt at Louviers with city maintenance include Ridgewood Glen, Stafford, Valley Stream, Yorkshire Woods, White Chapel, and Country Hills.

A night to remember

WHEN SOME EVENTS are repeated over and over again, they become stale and boring. Nothing could be further from the truth in the case of Newark Nite. Each year — and 1997 is no exception — the annual street party gets bigger and better.

If you've attended any of the previous 11 Newark Nites, you already know that it is the granddaddy of all street festivals. Begun in 1985 as a promotion to lure year-round Newarkers back into the downtown business district after the University of Delaware students have left, the event swells the heart of our downtown for one spring evening. Downtown Newark, formerly the Newark Business Association, continues to organize the popular annual event with much support from the City of Newark and the University of Delaware. This year, local businesses have financially supported the event more than ever before.

Come to Main Street Saturday night. Community groups and businesses will have displays and booths. A variety of entertainment will please your senses. There will be a wide array of food and drink to enjoy.

But the greatest attraction of Newark Nite are Newarkers themselves. Somewhere between 12,000 and 18,000 of them are expected to turn out this Saturday night, weather permitting. As thousands stroll up and down Main Street, it's not unusual to hear friends greeting each other with an expression like "I haven't seen you since last Newark Nite!"

This year, John Yasik, of Poland & Sullivan Insurance, has expanded the volunteer base that organizes and runs Newark Nite. In fact, please stop by and greet our staff; we'll be staffing the main information booth near Main and Chapel streets.

There are many qualities that make Newark unique from the thousands of other suburban towns of similar size and population. Newark Nite is an outstanding one.

Don't miss it!

PASSING THOUGHTS

Goodbye, Mrs. Catts

By JAMES B. STREIT JR.

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

MY GRANDFATHER died in 1979. He broke his hip while cooking dinner and died peacefully later in Baltimore's St. Agnes Hospital.

I remember the incredible achievements of his 91 years that I wrote in his obituary. He went to work in a woolen mill in Winchester, Va., at age 12 shortly after his father died. Toiling away in the spinning room, he provided shelter for his mother and two sisters in a company-owned tenement. For years, he was paid in company script that could be used only at the company store.

Later, he married and moved his family to the banks of the Patapsco River and worked at another mill in Oella, Md. While raising his own family, he continued to provide total support for his two sisters, who never married and never worked.

I vividly remember my grandfather's last day of work. He had turned 75 and was forced to retire.

I lived next door and was riding my bike in his backyard when he came home. Grandad seldom had much to say but that day he was talkative.

"I just don't know what I'm going to do, Little Jimmy," he worried to me as we popped open a Tru-Aid and shared the non-carbonated orange drink. "I've been going to the mill every day now for 63 years. It's been my life...and I suppose I'll wither away now," he professed sadly.

After a few days of catching up on long-delayed house projects, Grandad became antsy. He was irritable and more agitated than he had been.

My father and aunt urged him to try the new senior center in town, opened with some of Lyndon Johnson's "Great Society" money.

Grandad's walk through those portals extended his life 16 years.

At the senior center, he found friends he'd never met and others he'd known for decades. They played cards, smoked cigars, and even sneaked a nip or two. He went on trips to places he never dreamed he'd see. He took up bowling at age 85 and even began dating.

I didn't see my grandfather much those days; he was always at the senior center. He seemed to match his former mill schedule with time at the shuffleboard, card and crafts tables.

On his last day on this earth, Grandad spent the entire day at the senior center, enjoying his friends and living life with gusto right to its end.

Yesterday, despite her best efforts to the contrary, friends of Margaret Catts paid tribute to the retiring director of the Newark Senior Center.

Margaret didn't want much pomp and circumstance, but the respect she has earned from center members, staff and people like me overruled her wishes. Speakers praised her. She was showered with gifts and testaments.

And rightfully so. It's hard to imagine what the Newark Senior Center will be like without Margaret around.

Mrs. Catts was one of the first people I met when I arrived here behind the publisher's desk. And she is one of my favorites.

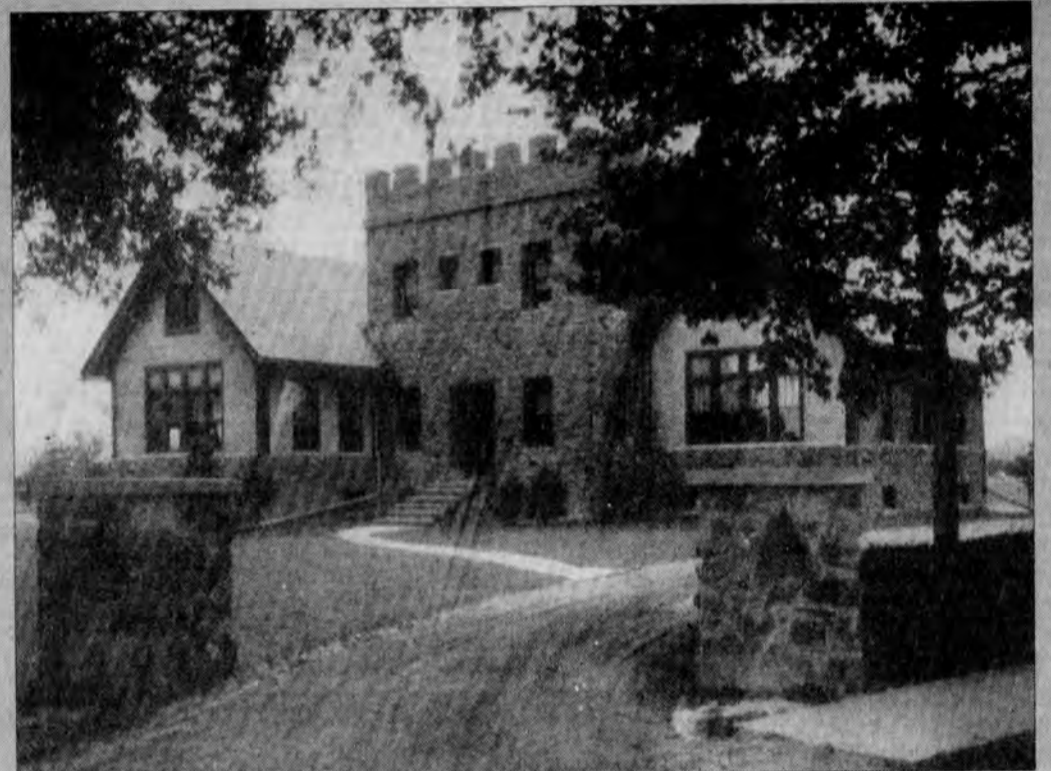

I'll respect her wishes and not repeat her many accomplishments (the new building will be a monument to her vision for many years).

I'll simply say "thanks."

"Thanks," Margaret, for your vital role in making the final years of people like my grandfather the best that they can be.

We'll carry on, but we'll always follow your example and we'll never forget you.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week, "Out of the Attic" features an undated photograph of the Press of Kells at South College Avenue and West Park Place, now the home of the YWCA. In a history of the Press published in the Jan. 26, 1996 edition of the Newark Post, Marjorie Tilghman said the building was built in 1916 by her father, Everett C. Johnson, founder of this newspaper. In addition to publishing, Johnson built "one of the finest printing shops in America, noted among printing connoisseurs for its beautiful work." Following Johnson's death, Tilghman's mother made a brave effort to continue the Newark Post and Press of Kells. Mrs. Johnson sold the newspaper in 1935 and five years later sold the printing operation and converted the front of this building into three apartments. In 1945, she sold the building to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mote, who added six more apartments. Then, in 1961, the YWCA acquired and remodeled the property adding a swimming pool and gymnasium. "Out of the Attic" features historic photographs from Newark's history, recent and long ago. Readers who have a historic photo and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

Cleveland Avenue to be improved

Persons living, and owning property, on Cleveland avenue are looking forward to the paving of this street with great interest.

For a long time the people along this street have been trying to have Town Council take action toward the paving of the thoroughfare.

It may be that the entire length of Cleveland avenue will not be improved at this time.

New firehouse will be up-to-date

Few people of Newark realize what an excellent building the new firehouse of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, on Academy street is going to be.

The house will have a frontage of thirty-five feet on Academy street and a depth of seventy feet on Delaware avenue. The entire building will be constructed of stone and will be composed of a basement and two stories.

In the front of the building there will be a balcony reached from the meeting room.

Plans for the house were drawn by Clarence R. Hope. J.C. Willis, the local contractor, will build the structure.

Newark water rates to go up, electric rates down

The bad news. City Finance Director announced that effective May 1, 1972, Newark's water bill from Wilmington Suburban Water Corporation was increased 280 percent...

Now the good news. Newark residents who buy electricity from the city will receive a rebate on their electric bills beginning next month.

Bob Murvine named Brookside of the Year

Bob Murvine was named 1971 Brookside of the Year Saturday night.

The real winner is Brookside itself, which reaps the benefits the unselfish labor which the recipient and the three other nominees have devoted over the years to the community.

The award, one of many proud traditions in this tightly knit community of about 6,000 residents has been sponsored for the past 15 years by the Brookside Activities Council.

June 12, 1992

Nature trail debate continues

Newark City Council approved a proposal

Monday that levies restrictions on a public trail that homeowners in West Branch and Christianstead say runs too close to their properties.

However, the proposal now goes back to the civic associations from both developments where 75 percent of the homeowners will have to endorse the plan before it can go into effect.

Homeowners need to ratify the play by July, 1993.

Christiana district says stadiums will be ready

Christina School District officials said Tuesday that bleachers at Glasgow, Christiana and Newark High should be renovated in time for the fall sports season.

District officials investigated the condition of the bleachers at all three high schools following an accident last month in the bleachers at Newark High involving one man.

The district concluded the accident occurred as a result of previous vandalism.

Help needed to make college affordable

To: The editor
From: Rep. Rick DiLiberto
Newark

If you are like most of us, the idea of finding the money to put your children through college surely gives you pause. It seems that tuition keeps increasing, making us all concerned that when the time comes, it may be very difficult to foot the college bill. However, this month two important pieces of legislation were introduced, House Bill 245, and Senate Bill 126, both of which I co-sponsored, which make a college education more affordable and more attainable than ever for Delaware students.

House Bill 245 creates the Delaware Tuition Savings Program to increase the ability and incentive for families and individuals to save for higher education. Families and individuals will be able to maintain tax-deferred college tuition savings accounts until monies are withdrawn by the beneficiary for higher education expenses. At the time of the withdrawal, earnings would be taxed at the beneficiary's rate.

To monitor this funding, a Tuition Savings Board will be created, and the members of the Board will be individuals with experience in investing and in higher education. The board will oversee the program and make sure that it is run in accordance with the federal IRS Code. House Bill 245 allows the Board to contract with banks and mutual fund companies, to maximize the private sector's ability to manage investments.

This legislation also provides for a 25 percent funding increase for Delaware's Scholarship Incentive program, bringing it up to over $1.2 million. This funding will allow another 200 students a year receive $1,000 in assistance annually, increasing the amount of recipients from 1,200 to 1,400.

Senate Bill 126 makes sure that a student's performance on the Delaware State Testing Program is part of the criteria for evaluation for the Scholarship Incentive Program, the B. Bradford Barnes Memorial Scholarship, and the Herman M. Holloway Sr. Memorial Scholarship Fund. This legislation makes sure that students are academically qualified to receive state supported higher education assistance grants. This legislation would also ensure that students are taking the idea of a college education very seriously, so it is not just something that is handed to them by the government. Senate Bill 126 provides incentives early on for students looking to go to college and in need of funding.

I am sure that this legislation, if signed into law, will relieve many parents and guardians facing the looming expense of a college education. I hope too, that students become even more motivated to achieve academically, and continue their education.

'Webs are easy to untangle when you don't ignore the facts'

To: The editor
From: Shirley M. Tarrant
Newark

As a former unpaid columnist for the Newark Post from July 1990 until May 1997, I write in an attempt to untangle the July 6 full-page spread headlined, "Oh, What A Tangled Web" woven (written) by Mary Petzak.

Petzak asserts that "on May 16, Tarrant showed up at the Newark Post with information...of the lawsuit...and wanted to write a column about Godwin..." The fact is I "showed up" at the Newark Post as I have for the last seven years, to hand-deliver my column (emergency hospitalization experience—published May 30). While there, I asked to see Jim Streit (publisher), who was not in. Consequently I informed Petzak that I was considering doing a column regarding Hal Godwin, who appeared to be in violation of the City's Charter and Code of Ethics. I did not then have documentation of the rumored lawsuit.

The following week I personally verified the 1980 lawsuit filed by Dr. Leslie Goldstein against Godwin. In the nomination process (March, April and May) for Goldstein's Board of Ethics appointment, Godwin never disclosed the critical fact of Goldstein's lawsuit, in clear violation of the Municipal Code, Sec. 2-97.17 which provides:

a) "A councilman who has a financial or other private interest in any legislation shall disclose on the records of the council or other appropriate authority the nature and extent of such interest. This provision shall not apply if the councilman disqualifies himself from voting on such legislation."

j) "Personal or private interest shall mean an interest in a matter which intends to impair the independent judgment of an official or employee in the performance of his duties with respect to that matter."

Armed with a copy of the Court of Common Pleas decision against Godwin, citations from the City Charter and Ethics Code, I decided it was more appropriate to file a Board of Ethics complaint against Godwin than to write a column about it.

Petzak obviously did not let the facts get in the way of her story. Contrary to her news report, I did not call "Godwin about the stalled appointment," thus I never did "mention the lawsuit to him." Godwin called me the night before Council's May 12 vote on the Goldstein appointment. He referred to the note to the Mayor and each Council member (including Godwin) in which I urged them to support Goldstein's nomination. Referencing Godwin's April 29 memo to the Mayor and Council members, I reminded them that nowhere does the City Code require that appointees be "politically neutral;" the only requirement is Newark residency. Godwin defended his memo as his opinion—and he "had a right to his opinion." The problem with his attitude is that by urging his opinion on fellow council members, he advocated a standard in direct violation of the City's Charter, Sec. 1104, which provides: "No person shall be...in any way...discriminated against with respect to any city position or appointive city administrative office because of...political...opinions or affiliations."

Petzak wonders "how (Scott) Bowling knew about the memo..." It was no secret. Material portions of the memo were read into the public record at the May 12 council meeting.

Petzak claims that Bowling "did not wait for the final hearing on the appointment" before filing his complaint. In her rush to judgment, the sarcastic Petzak failed to focus on the actual sequence of events. The Bowling complaint was filed on May 28, more than two weeks after the May 12 council meeting at which the appointment of Goldstein was approved (despite the machinations of Godwin).

Webs are easy to untangle when you don't ignore the facts.

Oh well, now that I'm an unpaid columnist who is out of work, I can get back to watching Court TV and Perry Mason reruns!

'Tis the season

THIS WEEKEND will be one of the biggest partying weekends of the year.

Graduations abound at every level of schooling, and parties to celebrate the accomplishments of these graduates will be plentiful.

Unfortunately, sometimes things can go awry. Our responsibility as parents doesn't go away when the kids graduate from high school. In fact that may be a time when they need us more than ever.

While every family is different, the most important thing you can do in this happy season is to know your child.

Common sense has a tendency to head south occasionally, so here are a few hints to keep things safe this graduation season.

By Mark Manno

First, always know where your children are going and who they're with.

It's OK to ask for phone numbers and to check up on them, especially if you don't know their friends that well. Make sure that you know how your teen will get to and from the party. Assure them that they can call you for a ride home at any time with no questions asked.

Secondly, keep an open line of communication with other parents.

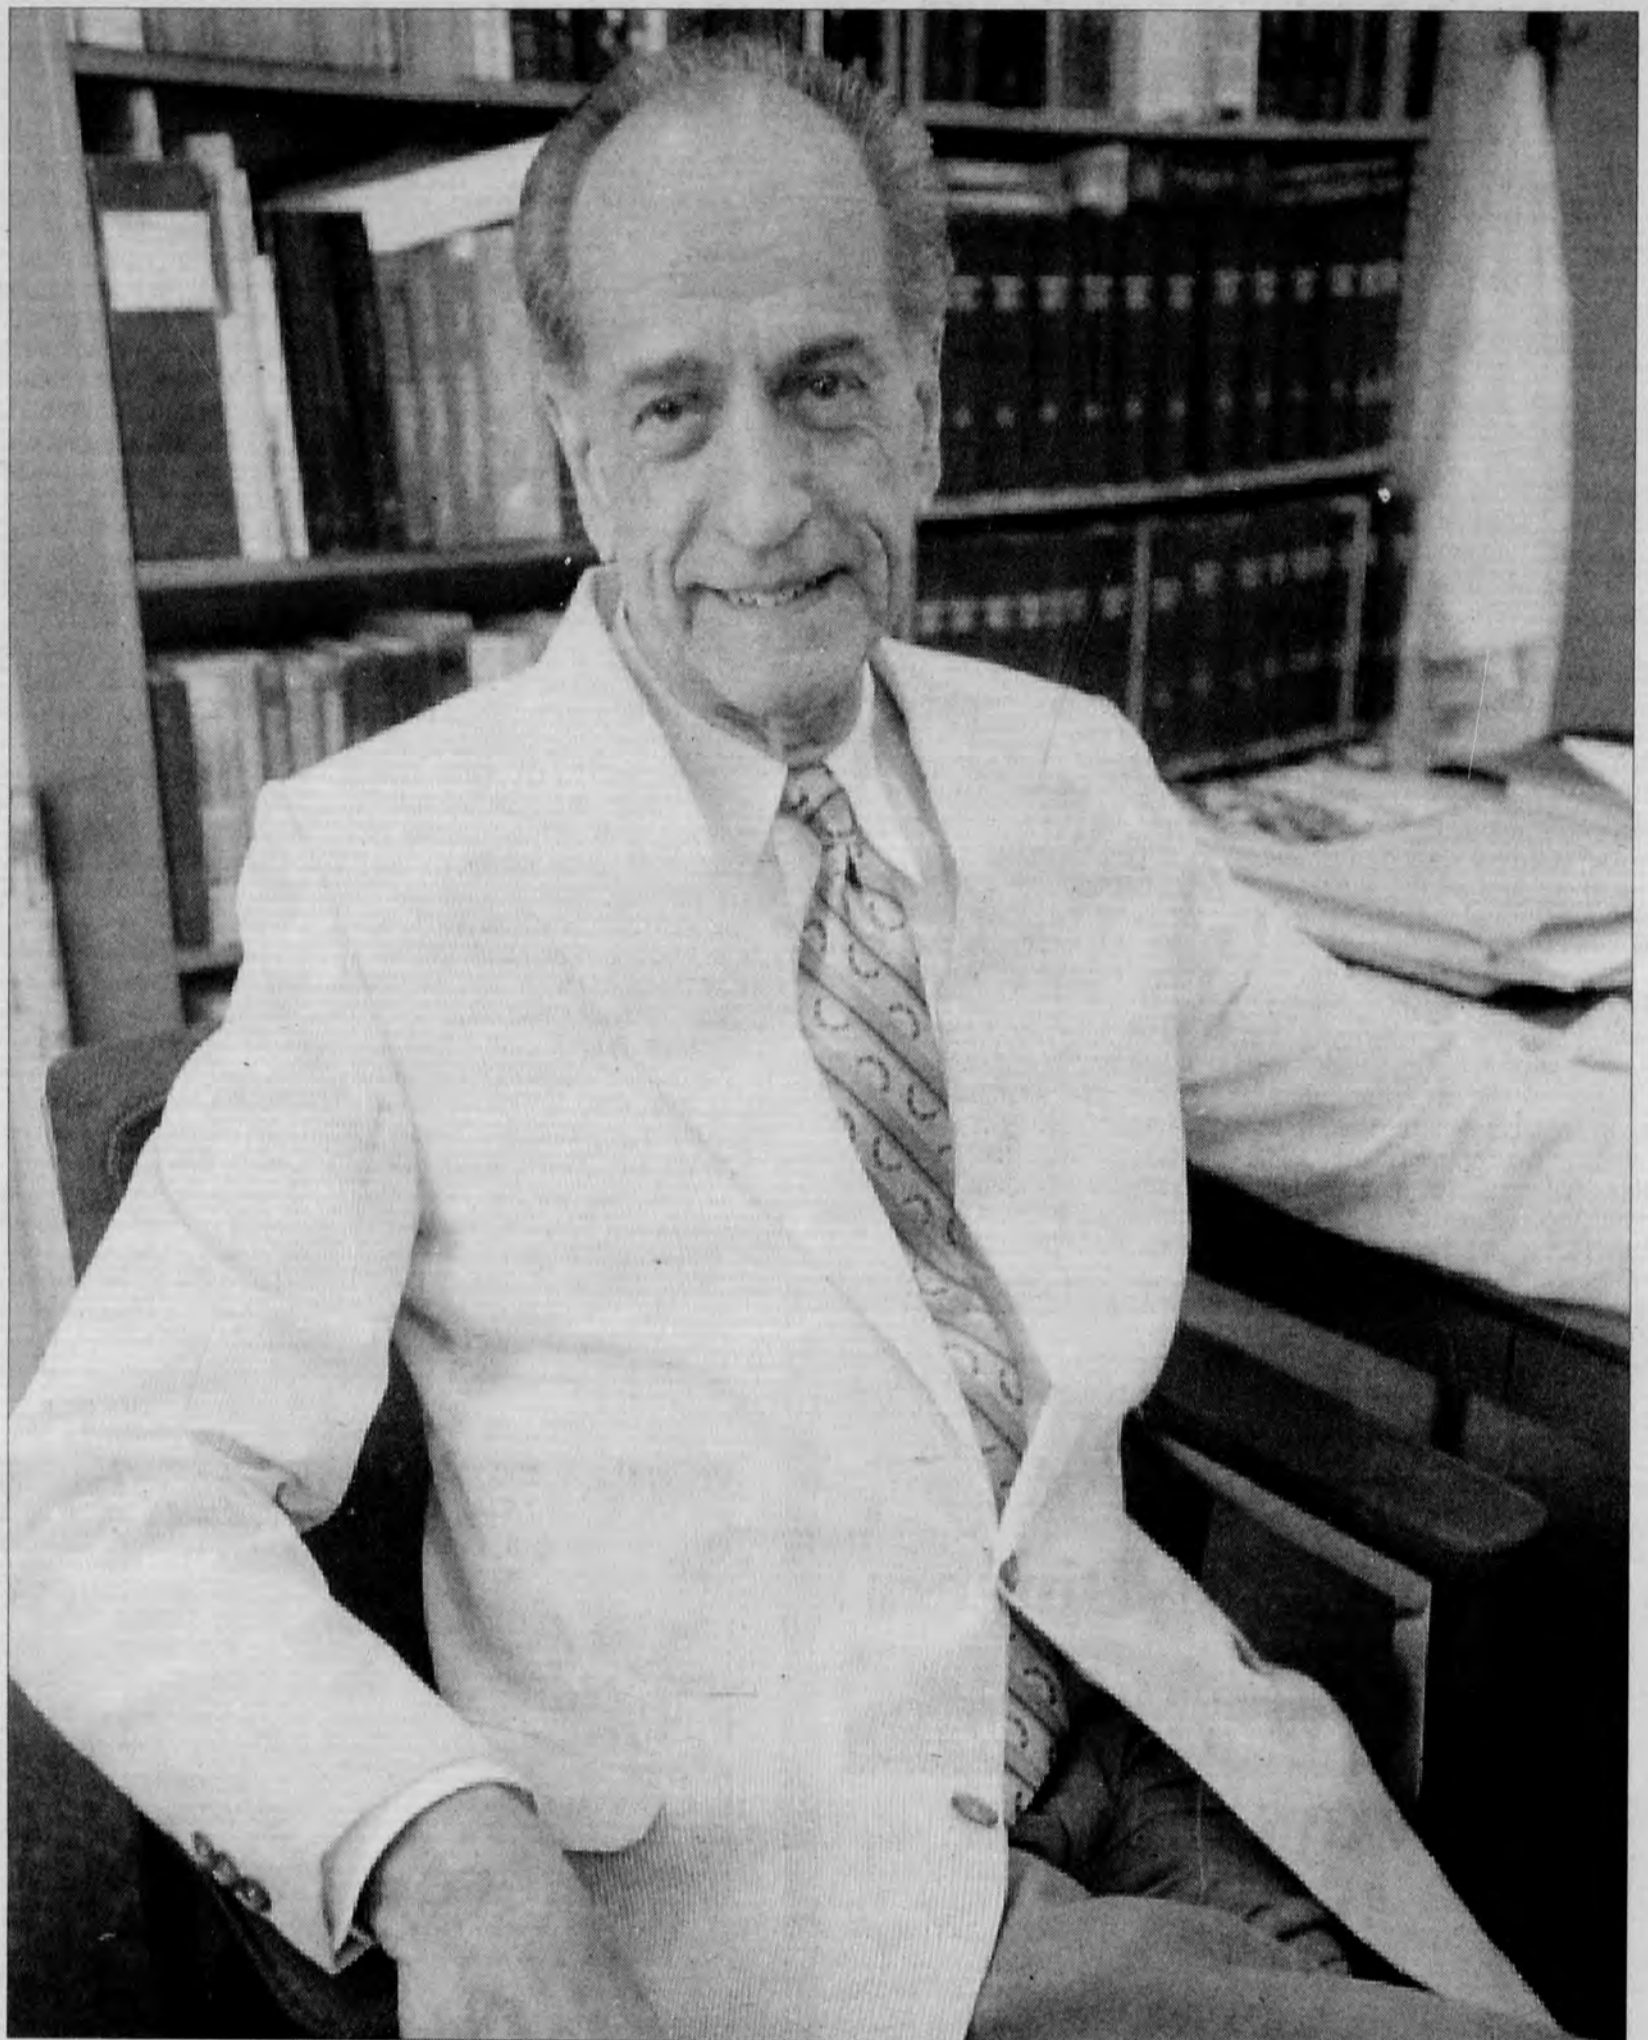

It's easy to fall for the old line of "all the other parents are letting their kids go to the beach".

Thirdly, if your kids are invited to a party, don't be afraid to call ahead and make sure the party will be well supervised and alcohol free.

A reasonable curfew is also acceptable. If the shoe is on the other foot and you're hosting the graduation party, then you're to be commended. You will still need to be vigilant about alcohol being consumed on your property though. The liability risks are huge in addition to the health risks. Occasionally, some friends will want to or even need to sleep over. That's OK, but make sure it's not a co-ed event.

Finally, don't allow the kids to just go out and cruise Main Street. There's nothing for them there anyway, except the possibility of trouble.

Often, teens are under intense peer pressure at these parties to either drink or take drugs. Most parents have a good enough relationship with their teens to talk with them about these issues. If we as parents establish reasonable standards, then everyone will benefit.

Gerard Mangone, a Newark resident and the University of Delaware research professor of international and maritime law has recently written his 13th book on the subject.

The laws of the seas

WHEN THE REMAINS of the Titanic were found in 1985, 73-years after the luxury liner sank, reporters from all over the globe called Newark resident Gerard Mangone, to verify ownership of its treasures.

The ownership of treasure ships, the liability of an Exxon Valdez-type accident, even the fate of the humpback whale, are all governed by the laws of the sea or admiralty law, a subject on which Mangone is an expert.

The University of Delaware research professor of international and maritime law in the College of Marine Studies has recently written his 13th book on the subject.

"I've long been an expert witness in court cases involving admiralty law," Mangone said.

The Hague's Kluwer Law International published Mangone's new book, "United States Admiralty Law," for worldwide distribution to lawyers, teachers and students of law who are involved in marine transportation.

The book traces the growth and development of laws governing sea trade across the centuries and how it became part of the U.S. Constitution as admiralty law. It explains jurisdiction and legal liability for incidents at sea, including shipwrecks, pollution and fishing and shipping disputes.

University of Delaware officials recruited Mangone in 1972 when they wanted to begin a college of marine studies. The graduate program in marine policy was the first of its kind in the nation. Two years later, Mangone designed the first center for the study of marine policy in the U.S.

Mangone, who comes by his knowledge of international law as a scholar and as a traveler, has crossed the Atlantic Ocean 22 times by ship — some of which occurred during World War II.

"After spending four-and-a-half years in the Army during the war, I wanted to know what caused this kind of destructive international conflict and how to remedy it," Mangone said.

Mangone received his Ph.D. in international law from Harvard where his dissertation won the Charles Sumner Award as the most distinguished contribution to international peace.

In addition to his own works, Mangone has co-authored or contributed to 44 other books.

A striking essay on a place not often visited by Americans

SINCE THE TIME of the formation of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics up to the fall of the Berlin Wall, Russia had been closed to the West. After World War II The Iron Curtain fell around all of Eastern Europe and the lands east of the Urals as well.

Long before any of that transpired, however, countries like Afghanistan were still a mystery to most of us. The differences of religion, culture and language all came together to make such a closing even more complete. Afghanistan's coming under Soviet domination simply exacerbated the situation. Simply put, this nation wasn't at the top of the list of countries most Americans wanted to visit.

What was this country like just before their devastating civil war? What were the landscapes and the people like? To answer these questions as well as provide us all with a magnificent, artistic photo exhibit, the University of Pennsylvania Museum is offering "The Afghan Folio: Photographs by Luke Powell" at their 33rd and Spruce Streets building in Philadelphia.

These striking photographic images were taken from 1974 to 1978, just before the Civil War. They provide us with vivid impressions of this country so long closed to the west.

Powell's work is excellent and so is the work done by the University Museum to present them to us.

The technical side of the works is noteworthy too. The American photographer made his prints for "The Afghan Folio" by hand in the 1980s with the Dry Transfer process. This was long considered the finest color process but it is a craft for which materials are no longer made. The prints are remarkably clean and subtle. They are much more permanent than those produced by the conventional process.

While the monochrome photo with my column today is quite well done, and I am grateful to Pam Kosty of the University Museum for getting it for you to see, it should only be used to whet your appetite to see the real works in all of their true, color splendor.

What is the purpose of the current exhibition in Philadelphia? The photographer had a quick response, "The Afghan Folio" takes visitors on a journey through Afghanistan in much the same way that a traveler arriving overland in the 1970s might have seen the country."

As for the terrain covered Powell continued, "The trip begins at Herat, where Alexander of Macedon put down a revolt in his army, and continues past Kandahar, a city founded by Alexander, then over the mountains into Afghan Turkestan and the rolling steppes north of the Hindu Kush Mountains." While I took notes and nodded, I must admit to you that I hurried home to get at an atlas. My geography of that region simply isn't very good.

Luke Powell has won many awards for his work including the Creme de la Creme and the Medaille d'Or. He travels widely to show his work and to lecture on the print process that he used to make these lasting images we may see now through August 23 at the University Museum.

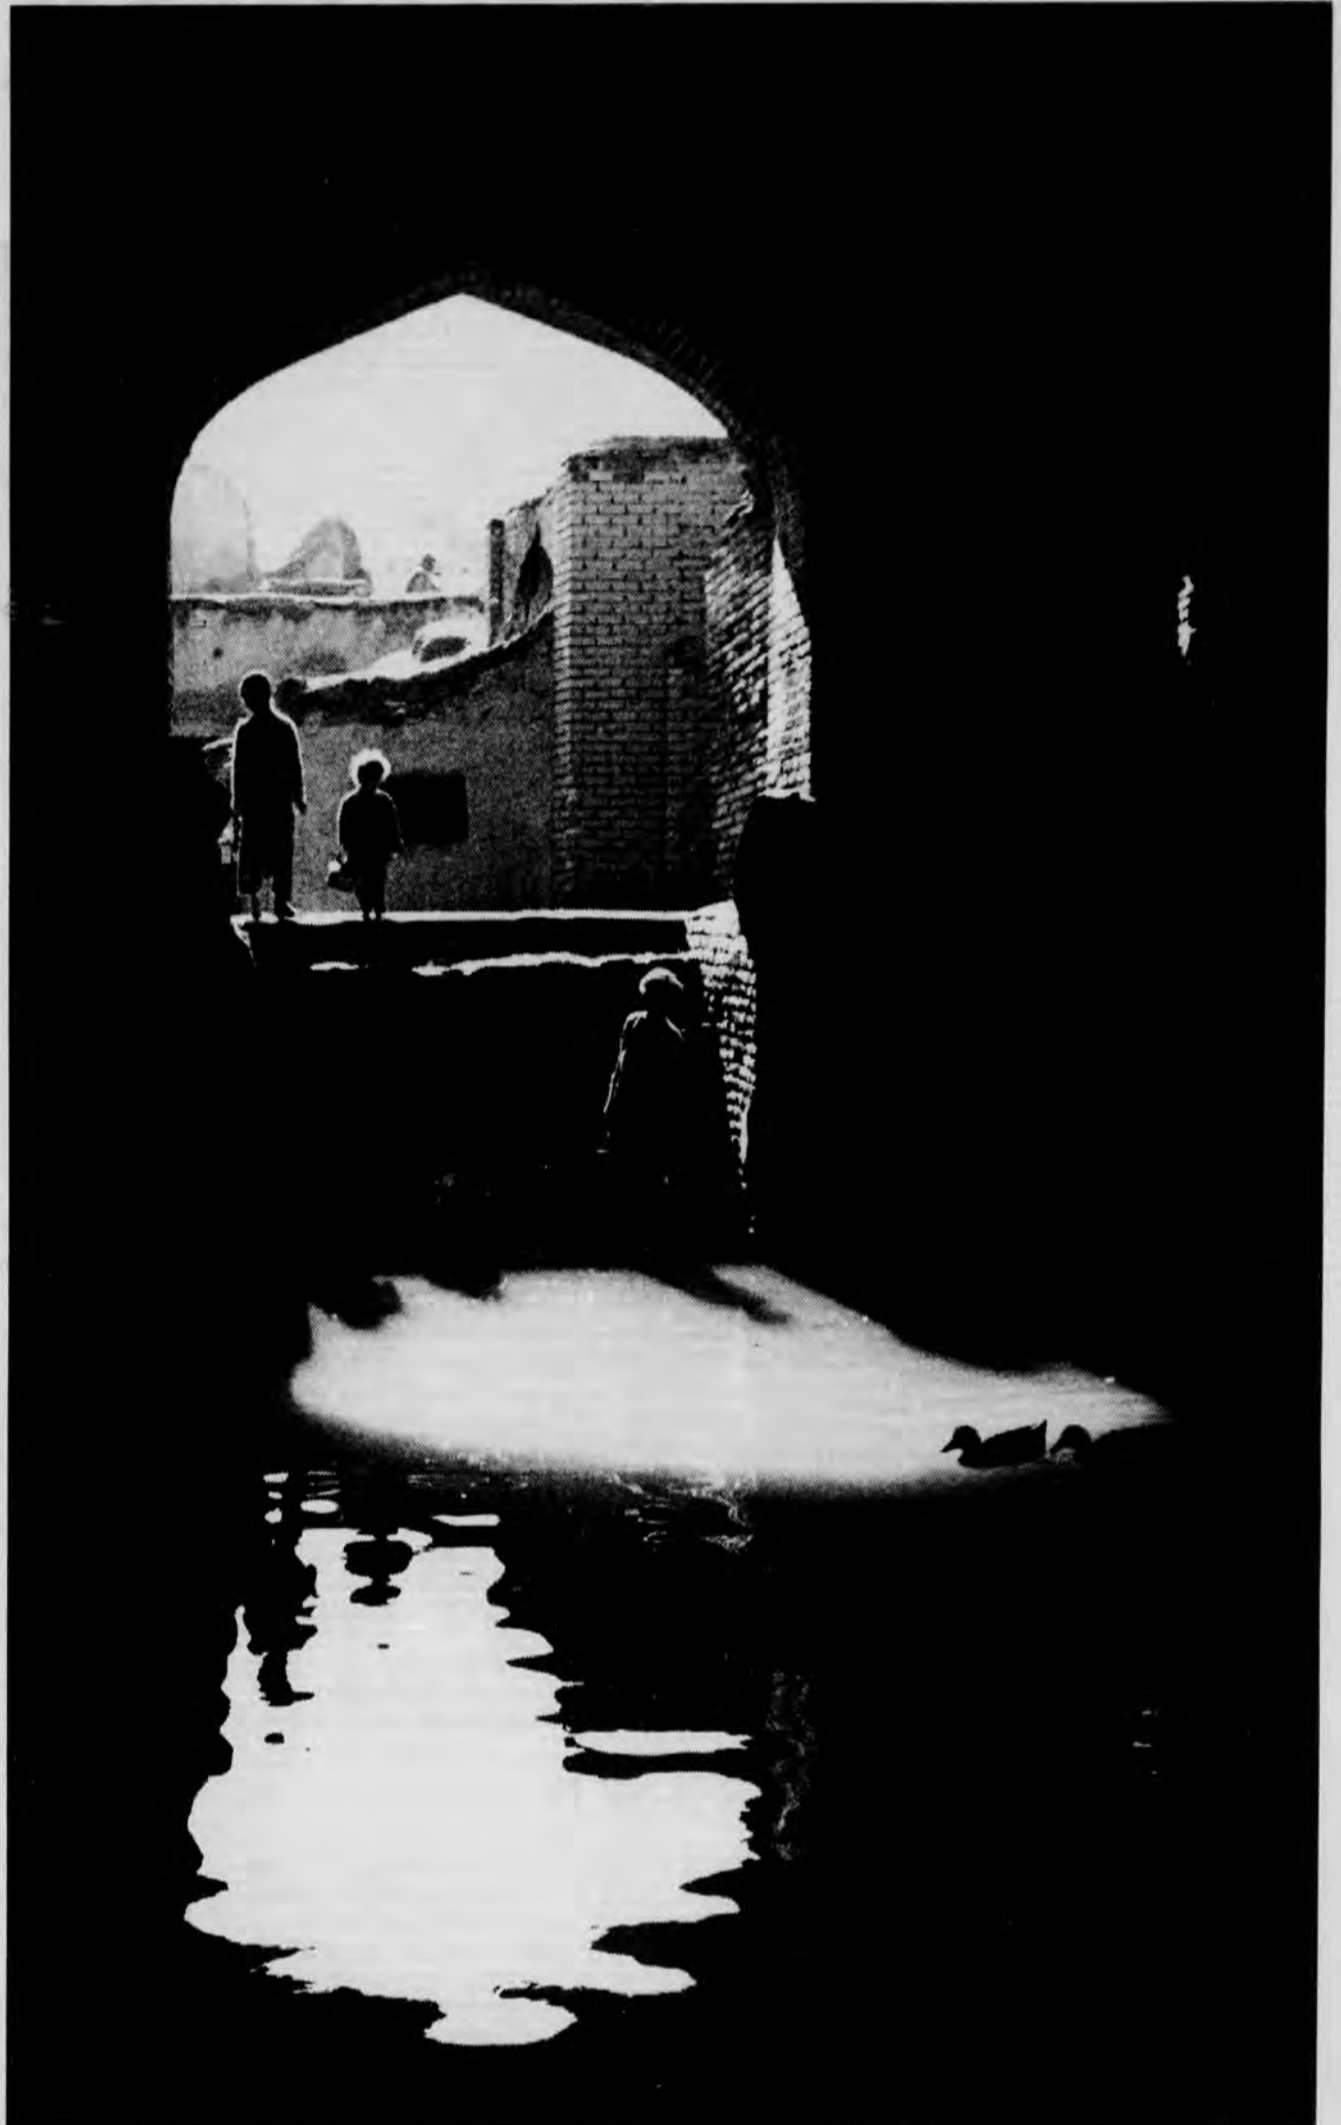

Luke Powell graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of North Carolina in 1969. He spent the next ten years in Europe and Asia. Pam Kosty told me that, "In lieu of formal art training he spent hundreds of hours studying and making small drawings in the Louvre in the early 1970s." She also told me that Seventeenth Century Dutch, Barbazon, American "lumanist," Japanese Ukiyo-e landscapes and tribal rugs from Central Asia were all influences in developing his style of photographic artistry.

In the 1980s he settled in Vermont where he learned to print with the Dye Transfer process using the trial and error method and through consultations with professional Dry Transfer printers.

The museum is easily accessible by car, Amtrak or SEPTA. If you take the regional rail service, there is now a station right at the University of Pennsylvania so you no longer have to walk from Pennsylvania Station at 30th Street.

The University Museum is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission for adults is $5, $2.50 for seniors and students with valid ID. For more information, 215-898-4000.

■ Phil Toman has been a columnist for the Newark Post since 1969. An enthusiastic supporter of the arts locally, he has a vast knowledge of the arts in the mid-Atlantic region. He and his wife Marie are longtime residents of Newark. Toman hosts a weekly radio program on WNRK.

Luke Powell's "Light and Water" is but one of many photos in his current exhibition "The Afghan Folio" now at the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

Ethics Board to meet on Thursday

Meeting for only the second time since 1981, the city Ethics Board will consider allegations of violations by the same city councilman previously charged this year.

Ethics complaints against Harold Godwin, councilmember for District 1, will be heard starting at 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 19, in city council chambers at the Municipal Building.

In separate complaints, city residents Shirley Tarrant and Scott Bowling claim that Godwin attempted to block University of Delaware professor Leslie Goldstein's appointment to the Ethics Board.

Goldstein, appointed by council on May 12, has excused herself on hearing the complaints against Godwin.

According to the complaints, Godwin had the appointment removed from the council agenda on two occasions, and also sent a memorandum to other councilmembers in which he described Goldstein as "a well educated political science expert," and observed that he was "aware of her political actions."

In the memo dated April 29, 1997, Godwin further stated: "May I suggest that in our search for appointees to our Ethics Board that we look for Newarkers who are politically neutral and should have a keen knowledge of our Ethics Code and an ability to apply it equitably and without prejudice."

Tarrant alleged that the Municipal Code does not list any qualification for Ethics Board members other than Newark residency and that Godwin acted unethically in objecting to Goldstein's appointment and not disclosing a lawsuit filed against his business by Goldstein 17 years ago.

An opinion filed by Judge William C. Bradley on July 13, 1981, in the matter of Leslie Goldstein v. Godwin Enterprises, t/a Silverbrook Arco, found for Goldstein in the amount of $2,400.

According to the opinion, Goldstein's recently purchased MG was repeatedly stalling and she pushed it into Godwin's Arco station in 1980. Goldstein and an employee of the business attempted to start the auto but stopped when flames were observed coming from the engine.

Later, after Goldstein decided she wanted to move the auto to a new location for repairs, the car again caught fire when it was started, resulting in extensive damage, according to the opinion.

The business was found to be negligent in attempting to start the vehicle which had been partially disassembled and previously exhibited flames.

Godwin has asserted that he did not recall the lawsuit which was handled by his business insurance carrier.

On March 18, the Ethics Board found that Godwin, a city council member since 1987, "violated the city ethics code inadvertently by including the city fax number on a political letter." In a subsequent hearing, city councilmembers decided that "the term 'inadvertent violation' as used by the Board of Ethics in their finding does not rise to a level sufficient to warrant any further sanction."

time. "Everything exclusive of a bypass could continue to be studied."

Gardner said Maryland officials had nothing to lose when the projects were held up. "They want things to stay as they are."

WILMAPCO controls federal funding for transportation in a metropolitan area spreading from Wilmington into Cecil County, Md. Under federal law, members of metropolitan councils throughout the United States must agree on projects in their region before receiving the funds.

However, Gardner reminded council this week that funding is lost forever if not used for its purpose within a certain time.

In the newest draft, the parties have agreed not to include any language to study extending the Christina Parkway through Cecil County.

"Newark and New Castle County can still examine traffic congestion, mitigation and trip reduction," said Gardner. "We're free to study all the alternatives (including a bypass) as long as it doesn't include Cecil County."

Among other projects in the Draft are: improvements to the New London/Main Street/Elkton Road intersection; actuated computer-linked traffic signals in Newark; express bus service between Newark and Elkton; truck route signing to direct trucks from Route 896 and Elkton Road to Interstate 95; and bike and pedestrian improvements.

Council unanimously agreed to the revised Draft. "I think we should just get on with it so we can get the jobs done," concluded Gardner.

Special Olympics open tonight

The 1997 Special Olympic Games kick off tonight with a ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in the University of Delaware Bob Carpenter Center.

The ceremonies will include a parade of athletes and guests including Governor Thomas Carper and Olympic Gold Medalist Dionna Harris.

Honorary chairperson for the 1997 Games is Special Olympian Renee Baldwin who was inducted into the Delaware Sports Hall of Fame this year. Baldwin is the first Special Olympian in the nation to receive such an honor.

Some 550 athletes from across the state will compete in seven events including aquatics, track and field, bocce, softball and other sports during the two-day Olympics.

The consistent training of Special Olympics provides benefits not only to the athlete, but to their families and the community at large.

Special Olympics is founded on the belief that people with mental retardation can learn, enjoy, and benefit from participation in individual and team sports—adapted as necessary to meet the needs of those with special limitations.

POST GAME

By MARTY VALANIA

Why is it that?

THERE WERE TONS of highlights during the 1996-97 athletic year. They have been well documented.

There also are some questions that arose in my mind.

Why is it that all Christina School District coaches have to now reapply for their jobs every single year?

Coaches that have coached for many years find it insulting that all of a sudden they now have to make a resume and apply for their own job. I don't blame them.

I don't think coaches should be in jobs for life if they are not getting the job done. If, however, that's the case, then the school should remove them from the position.

But if a coach is doing a fine job, then there's no reason to make him or her make a resume and go through the interview process all over again.

Why do the state soccer tournaments' championship game - if the score is tied after four overtimes - suspend the game and come back a later date?

I understand that there is physical safety concerns for the players. But part of being a good team is being in good shape and having depth.

If the same players play every minute they, obviously, will be tired. But there are some players that are on the bench that are capable of playing when the starters get tired or injured. I see nothing wrong with a game being decided by players coming off the bench. They're part of the team, part of the program and if need be should be included in the championship process.

The championship atmosphere cannot be duplicated on that second day. It certainly doesn't hurt any less to lose on that second day.

There's got to be a way of deciding the game whether it be continued play or (gasp) penalty kicks.

But as Newark coach Hugh Mitchell said, "They decide the World Cup with penalty kicks. What are we - better than the World Cup?"

Why don't the high school state tournament committees that use an index or formula for determining its participants announce the figure for each team that made the tournament?

The numbers are already figured out so they might as well be made public. This will

Newark Legion team romps to win

Griebel pitches Keen Gas to win over Del Vets

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Keen Gas got a glimpse of how good of a baseball team it can be.

The Newark entrant in the Delaware American Legion league pounded Del Vets 14-4 Tuesday night at St. Mark's to even its record at 2-2 on the season.

Keen was led by a strong pitching effort by George Griebel and an offensive attack that pounded out 12 hits and scored runs in five of its six at-bats.

Griebel allowed just five hits while striking out eight batters.

"George did a nice job for us tonight," said Keen manager Joe Rineer.

Offensively, Keen began its onslaught early with four first-inning runs. The Newark area team got hits from Joe Vignola, Jason Bedford and Robbie Walters during the rally. Vignola, Bedford, Billy Cooper and Bobby Johnson all scored.

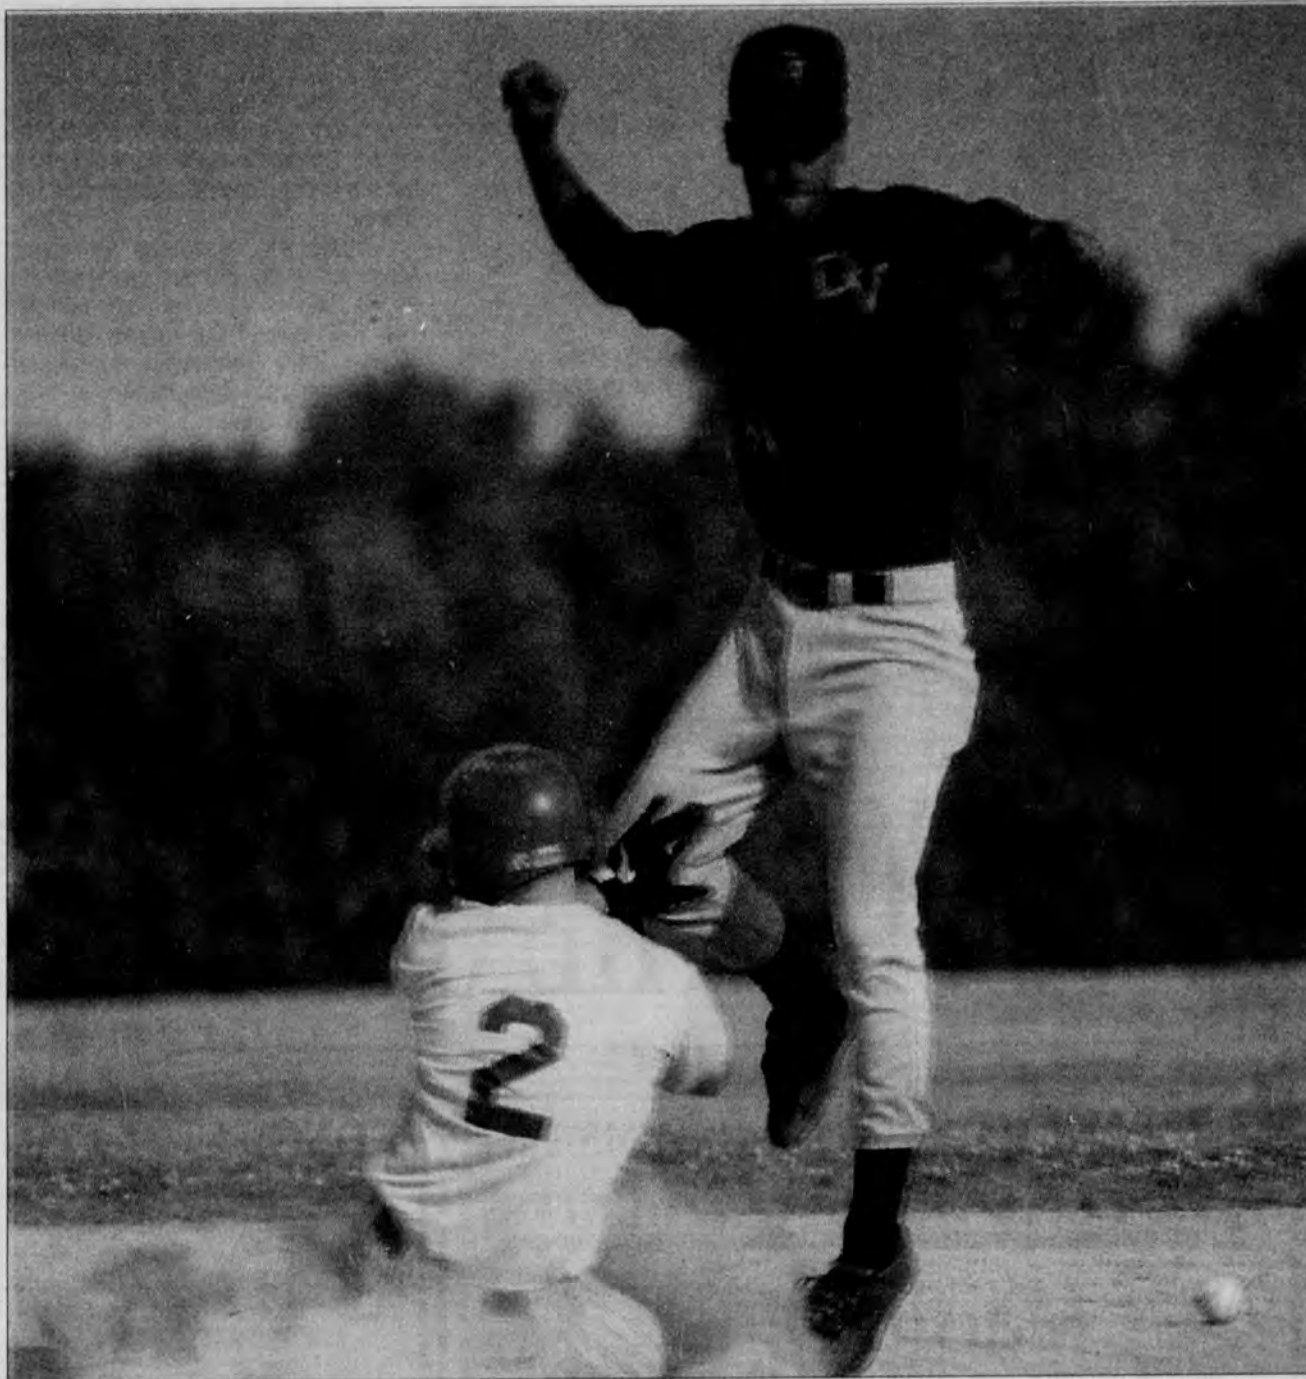

Keen scored twice more in the second inning and three more times in the third to take a commanding 9-3 lead.

Cooper singled and scored in the second and blasted a two-run home run over the center field hill in the third. Joey Rineer hit run-scoring singles in both innings and Chuck Rotenberry also singled and scored.

"I think we can have a real good team," said the manager about the prospects for the summer. "I believe we have a team that will make the playoffs."

"We've been going through the proms and graduations early in the season and we haven't had our full team yet."

"But if we can play like this, we'll be in good shape."

Keen's Joe Vignola slides into second base during Tuesday night's American Legion baseball game against Del Vets. The Newark team won the game 14-4.

Keen picked up two more runs in the fourth inning with Robbie Walter's run-scoring triple the big blast of the rally. Griebel and Dave Elliott also singled.

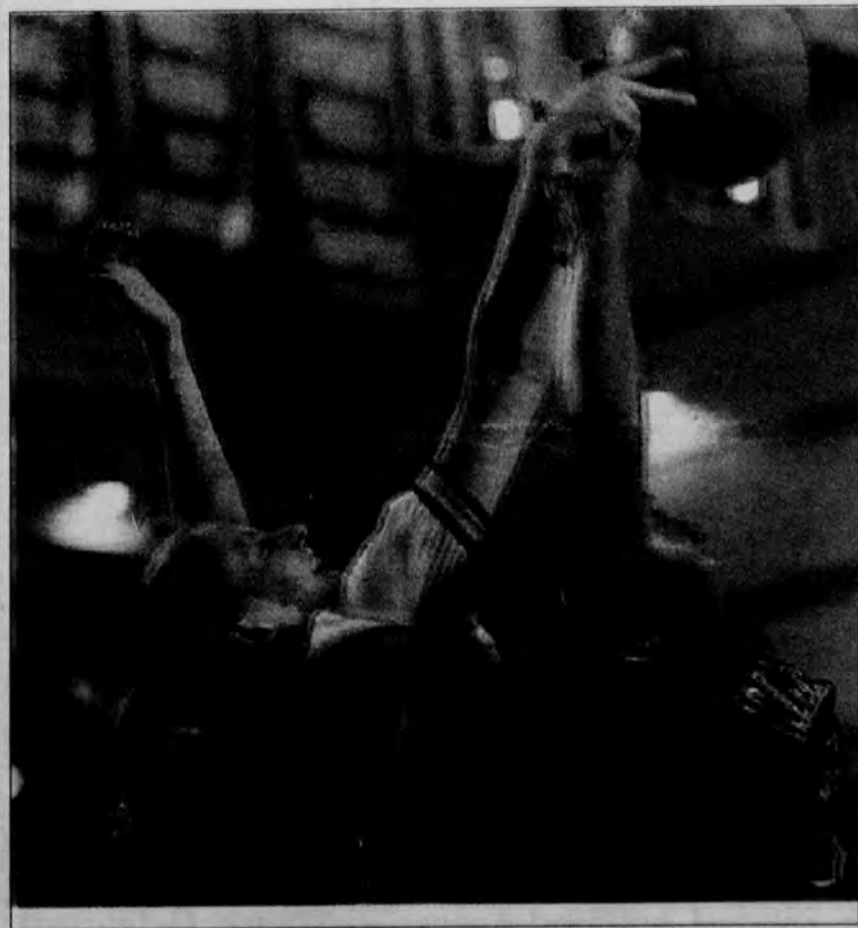

Newark closed out the scoring in the sixth inning with Ryan Husfelt delivering an RBI single to score Vignola and Brian Chapman.

"I believe our pitching and defense will be keys to our success this season," Rineer said. "We have Griebel (from Newark High), Jason Bedford (who played for Wilmington College this season), Kevin Murphy (St. Mark's), Joey Rineer (Christiana) and Brian Chapman (Christiana). That's some quality pitchers and with a good defense we can be really strong."

Keen continues its season Monday and Tuesday night at St. Mark's against Hall Burke and Elsmere.

One of St. Mark's High's eight state championships during the 1996-97 school year came in girls' basketball.

School sports year is full of highlights

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

There were many highlights during the 1996-97 high school sports year.

Local teams, coaches and athletes distinguished themselves throughout the year. Here's one view of a few of the year's 'bests'.

School of the Year: St. Mark's. There really can't be any argument here. A state record of eight state championships - volleyball, girls' cross country, soccer, girls' basketball, wrestling, girls' swimming, softball and baseball - were won by the Spartans. St. Mark's also had very good football, basketball and girls' soccer teams. It was definitely a super year for the school.

Honorable Mention: Hodgson. The Silver Eagles won the Division II boys' indoor track state championship as well as the Division II wrestling state title. The two crowns doubled the previous amount won by the school. In fact, all three of Hodgson's state championships have come in the last two years.

It's really amazing how far Hodgson has come in such a short period of time.

Coach of the Year: Art Madric of Glasgow. Madric's girls' indoor track team won a state championship as did the boys and girls outdoor track teams. Winning three state crowns in one year is a great feat.

Honorable Mention: Tom DeMatteis. The St. Mark's soccer coach notched a state title with his boys' soccer team in the fall and reached the quarterfinals of the girls' soccer state tournament.

Team of the Year: St. Mark's wrestling team. The Spartans rolled

Haman drafted, signs with Orioles

Former Glasgow High All-Stater Antoine Haman was drafted by the Baltimore Orioles in the 13th round of the major league draft last Wednesday.

Haman, who completed his junior year at Coastal Carolina, left Tuesday for the Orioles' 10-day training program in Sarasota, Fla. After the training program Haman will play for the Orioles' Rookie League team in Blue Field, W.Va.

The 21-year-old was an all-state football and basketball player at Glasgow. He was highly recruited by big-time schools in football and basketball. Baseball, however, was the sport Haman decided to pin his professional hopes on.

Haman, a center fielder, hit .314 with six home runs and 25 RBI this past season at Coastal Carolina, which finished 23-21. He spent his freshman and sophomore year playing at Hagerstown (Md.) Junior College.

Why is it that . . . ?

▶ POST GAME, from 15

let everyone (coaches, players, parents) know where their team stands. It will also go a long way toward eliminating the people that think their team got screwed by not making the tournament or by getting a low seed.

Why aren't more girls basketball games - especially involving Christina District schools - played in the evening?

Other girls' sports - like volleyball and soccer - that have both afternoon and night games definitely have better attendance at night. Other schools play some night games and get much better attendance. It's not hard to figure that more parents, many of whom work during the day, would be able to attend evening games.

Why is the state championship softball game played at 11 a.m.?

Softball is growing rapidly. Over 600 people showed up to see this year's title tilt between St. Mark's and Brandywine. That's a great crowd. But how big could it have been if it was under the lights. I bet 1,000 people - a similar crowd to this year's girls' state soccer championship match which started at 7 p.m. - would show up for that game.

I understand that there are some reservations about scheduling a night game for teams that don't normally play at night. If that's the case, then let's move the game back to the late afternoon. I think that would enhance attendance and be good for the sport.

And the winner is . . .

▶ BESTS, from 15

to the state championship and ended the season ranked as high as ninth in the country. The team wrestled against top out-of-state competition all season and proved to be worthy of its state and national recognition.

Honorable Mention: St. Mark's soccer and St. Mark's girls' basketball. Both teams won state titles and both teams achieved national rankings.

Game of the Year: Anybody that saw the championship game of the girls' state soccer tournament (both days of it) would find it hard to argue with its choice. The game went eight overtimes and 172 minutes before Alexis I. DuPont finally edged Newark 4-3. It was an unbelievable effort by both teams.

Honorable Mention: Newark High's overtime victory over Hodgson in the semifinals of the state boys' basketball tournament. The Silver Eagles' Lloyd Price made a great coast-to-coast layup to send the game into overtime. The Yellowjackets then played a great overtime to earn the victory and advance to the state championship game.

Heartbreaker of the Year: Anybody that saw the championship game of the girls' state soccer tournament would again be hard-pressed to argue this. Newark High, playing superbly against one of the nation's best teams in A.I., scored three times in the first half (A.I. had only given up one goal all year!) to take a 3-0 lead. The Tigers, though, fought back and scored twice in the final five minutes of regulation to tie the score 3-3 and send the game into overtime. The two teams then battled through seven overtimes before A.I. won the game and title in the eighth.

Honorable Mention: The boys basketball state championship game. Newark High had a three-point lead in the final minute only to see Seaford pull the game out.

Honorable Mention II: Caravel's 3-2 loss to Brandywine in the quarterfinals of the state softball tournament. An improbable home run (by a girl that didn't have a hit all season) and a controversial call both hurt the Bucs in the game's final inning.

Honorable Mention III: Newark's 17-14 overtime loss to William Penn during the two teams regular-season football matchup. The Jackets dominated the game only to have two weird turnovers kill them.

Concession Stand of the Year: Newark High's football offering is always a favorite. There's a fine selection of goodies (including fresh popped pop corn) and plenty of counter space that makes lines move quickly.

Honorable Mention: Everybody else. All people that volunteer their time to work in the concession stands deserve a special mention. They do a great job of trying to raise money for the local schools and teams.

See ya' in September.

Old underground tanks need ungrades

Owners of older underground storage tanks are advised to start now to upgrade or replace their tanks—well before the December 1998 legal deadline.

Under EPA regulations requiring that tanks installed before 1988 be upgraded, replaced, or sealed off, tank owners were given a 10-year deadline to complete the work.

Leaking tanks that could contaminate soil and groundwater require costly cleanups and could threaten the health of neighboring residents. In rural areas where residents use wells for drinking water, only a few drops of gasoline or chemicals from an underground storage tank could contaminate an entire community's water supply.

The regulations apply to underground storage tanks holding more than 110 gallons of petroleum or hazardous substances. In Delaware, there are 7,610 tanks that come under these requirements. Home heating oil tanks are exempt from these rules.

Owners who wait may have to compete for contractors' time, pay more for their services, or be delayed by bad weather, or the need for local permits. In addition, state reimbursement funds or insurance companies may offer financial incentives like lower deductibles or premiums to upgrade or replace earlier.

State assistance programs that provide low-cost loans may be depleted by 1998, or the state fund might be bottlenecked with claims as the deadline approaches.

"This is the eleventh hour for tank owners who have been putting off compliance. They really shouldn't wait any longer," said W. Michael McCabe, EPA's regional administrator. "Any further delay could work against them financially. And, of course, if they miss the deadline, there could be a penalty involved."

The basic upgrades on underground storage tanks installed before 1988 include: 1. Catchment basins to contain spills from delivery hoses; 2. overflow protection such as an automatic shutoff device, and overflow alarm or a ball float valve; 3. corrosion protection on the tank and 4. non-corrodible piping.

If owners decide not to upgrade, they must properly close their underground storage tanks. The appropriate regulatory authority must be notified 30 days before the tank is taken out of service. It must be determined if any leaks from the underground storage tank have contaminated the surrounding property. And the tank must be emptied and removed after it is emptied.

Closing or removing underground storage tanks is quite dangerous and people have been injured or killed doing it. Only qualified contractors should perform this work.

Cost estimates on tank upgrades range between $5,000 and $10,000. Replacing a tank can cost about $5,000. The penalty for not upgrading, closing or removing an older tank can be up to $10,000 per day of non-compliance.

To learn more about the federal underground storage tank requirements, call EPA's toll-free hazardous waste information hotline at 800-424-9346. Or to speak with the Delaware underground storage tank authority, call 302-323-4588.
