Police Academy comes to area

Kimberton gets new asset By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

y this time next year, New Castle County Police will finally have a training facility of their own.

According to Linda A. Gould of the County's department of special services, the bidding process is currently underway for the new Police Academy estimated to cost $1.5-to-$2 million to build. County officials estimate furnishings and equipment for the facility will cost another $75,000.

"We expect construction to start in the first week of January 2000 and it will be ready for use in November 2000," said Gould this week.

The new 15,000 square-foot Academy, to be built in Kimberton Park off Marrows Road in Newark, will include a gymnasium and classrooms:

This will give the County a new holiday traditions.

Starting at 6 p.m., persons of all ages can enjoy live entertainment at the Academy Building on Main Street while sampling hot beverages, cookies and soup. The University of Delaware is providing free hot chocolate and cookies while members of the Newark Area Welfare Committee have homemade bean soup available. They are selling packages of their special bean mix to make the hearty meal.

The committee is also accepting canned goods or a new, unwrapped toy at their booth for local families needing a little help during the holidays.

Broadway Bound will present their energetic blend of music and style at 6 p.m., followed by storyteller Debra Piery at 7 p.m., and Alfie Moss at 8 p.m.

for 7 p.m. on the Academy Building lawn as well. Throughout the evening, ice carver Kirk Clemens will demonstrate his artistry nearby on Academy Street.

A special treat returning for this fifth year is the carriage ride traveling down Main Street and Delaware Avenue. At only $2, the old-fashioned ride to the clipclop of horse's hooves is a soothing respite from the usual hectic pace of everyday life. With the lights of Main Street glittering in the winter darkness, it's possible to imagine a moment in Newark of long ago.

Many businesses and restaurants are offering holiday specials and staying open through the evening for shoppers. Here's a chance to rediscover shopping as it used to be without all the noise and confusion of larger locations. Police report the 17-year-old fled when they attempted to apprehend him but was chased and charged with offensive touching, conspiracy, criminal mischief, underage drinking and resisting arrest.

Warrants were pending confirmed identification for the other suspect.

Hanukkah celebration begins this weekend

Jewish families throughout the area will begin the celebration of Hanukkah at sundown today. Hanukkah memorializes the defeat of the Syrians by the Maccabees in the second century.

When they liberated the Temple, their first act was to rekindle the eternal light of the menorah with kosher olive oil. Despite having only enough oil for one day, the light burned for eight days.

During Hanukkah, one candle is lit each night for eight nights in the traditional nine-branched menorah in observance of this miracle of oil.

Mon. thru Fri. 9 am to 9 pm

Sat. & Sun. 10 am to 5 pm

All major credit cards accepted

The Hanukkah candles are placed in the menorah from right to left, with the extra candle used to light the others. It is common to place the menorah near a window so that it will be visible from

At Christiana Mall, the candles in a seven-foot community menorah will be lit for eight nights starting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. Shoppers and other guests are welcome at the festivities.

Moffat Welsh, regional marketing director for the Mall, said they view themselves as a com-munity gathering place. "We strive to recognize celebrations and special events that are meaningful to our shoppers."

Another traditional part of the celebration is playing with the dreidel, a spinning top. Used in a game of chance played after sundown when the candles are lit, the dreidel has a Hebrew letter on each of its four sides.

Each player (up to five people) puts an agreed-upon amount of small objects into a common pot. Players takes turns spinning and depending upon which side the dreidel falls on, the player takes nothing, all or half from the pot or, puts a predetermined amount into the pot.

When the pot is empty, everyone antes up again. The game ends when one person has won everything, or after a set number of rounds.

Many families and friends also exchange a Hanukkah gift on each day of the celebration. Before this practice became common, children received gelt (money in Yiddish) as a gift. Today, some gifts are still money, but more often, only symbolic packets of foil-covered chocolate coins are given with the presents.

Hole in the ground to become a community asset

ACADEMY, from 1

single location to train police recruits," said Gould. "In the past, the County has had to search for and lease facilities each year – I think they have used the University of Delaware, sometimes."

County Officer Trinidad Navarro said the department will also use the facility for in-service training for sworn officers. "Several times a year we have to go back for things like re-certification, CPR training, cultural awareness and other subjects," said Navarro. "We currently do those in the multipurpose room at county headquarters but we've outgrown it."

Navarro said the average size of Academy classes is about 25° candidates with 40 being the largest number they ever had at one time. "The Academy staff works at human resources in our headquarters the rest of the year," said Navarro. "In an ideal world, we'd have officers preparing continuously but it's hard to get qualified candidates."

Applicants for the county police force must pass background and criminal checks, psychological evaluations, and physical fitness evaluations before being accepted for the Academy.

State representative William Oberle Jr. (R-Beechers Lot) said the idea to place the Academy in Kimberton came from the community itself. "At least five years ago, Dick McDonough, president of the Kimberton Civic Association, approached me about using the abandoned pool site," said Oberle. "It had become an attractive nuisance and he thought it would make a great place for a permanent training facility for the County."

Oberle said Kimberton is a community in transition. "This facility could be critical to the community's future," he said. "What was once a hole in the ground will become a community asset."

All the funding for the land acquisition, removal of the old pool and construction – $1.7 million to date – has come from the state. "I went to bat for this and got all the financing," said Oberle. "I'm a little disheartened it has taken so long to get the construction started."

According to Oberle, part of the concept for the facility is to open it to the surrounding communities for other uses, also. "Tve envisioned a sort of mini-PAL (Police Athletic League) for site," said Oberle. "We also may Aca have a police substation there." County councilmember Karen Venezky (D-5th District) agreed. "Kimberton is a community that has a pall over it, but great potential," she noted. "There will be a gym and classrooms we hope we will be able to make available for community use. I'm really excit-

Gould said the County would be willing to explore other uses for the building when an Academy is not in session. "We haven't really talked about that, but we would be interested to know what the community has to say," said Gould this week.

Cpl. Mark Farrall of the Newark Police said their department uses the county and state police academies to train their new officers. "This won't make a lot of difference to us, except it will be a very short drive," Farrall said.

Oberle stressed there will be no jails or holding cells for criminal suspects at this site. "There will be an increased police presence in the community, however, which everyone sees as a positive thing," he said. "This is an excellent example of how a civic association can play a role in determining the future of their community.

'The Rocky Horror Picture Show' goes on

By TRACY LEINBERGER-LEONARDI

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

t's Saturday night in Elkton, and it's nearing 11 p.m. well past the family outing hour. The signs of the time are easy to read — especially just outside the box office at the Elkton Theatre. There are women in elegant lace dresses and glitter hats; and men in leather and clingy evening gowns. And nearly everyone is wearing elaborate make-up.

it wouldn't be an uncommon sight on Halloween, but this is not a seasonal event for these folks – it is a way of life. They are the adults of the night that come out to celebrate the "Rocky Horror Picture Show," weekend after weekend.

Since June 12, the Elkton Theatre has featured the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" at 10:30 p.m. Movie goers come from all over — Elkton, Wilmington, Baltimore and beyond to take in what is considered by many the most popular cult classic of all time. Rocky Horror is a mishmash tribute to sci-fi, horror, Bmovies and rock music.

"We have had a very good response," said Village general manager Michael Waas. "For a lot of the people that come, it's like an extra-curricular activity. We will keep offering it for as long as people come to see it."

So far, they keep coming back for more. On a recent Saturday night, Randy Brown of Baltimore celebrated the viewing of his 1,175th show. "I've been into Rocky Horror for 19 years," said Brown. "If 1 wasn't here, I'd probably be home watching wrestling. This is a good way to work off some steam for a hard week's work."

Brown doesn't just sit in a seat staring mutely at the movie screen — the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" has been for many years an interactive viewing delight.

Although audience members sing along, shoot water pistols, and recite lines rather loudly — Brown is part of a volunteer group, The Transsexual Misfits, that actually perform a live premovie show, and act along throughout the movie.

Brown acts as master of ceremonies, keeping the entertainment rolling, and warns the audience, "We do strange things. We wear strange things!...you can dress-up and dress-down, but for *&$#! sake, don't undress! If you are easily offended, stay home!"

And he means it. It's an any language goes policy, and nearly no subject matter is taboo folks shout out whatever is on their minds.

"Having the actors here is great," said Rick Prospero of Wilmington, "It really gets you in the mood, and makes you feel like you're part of the show."

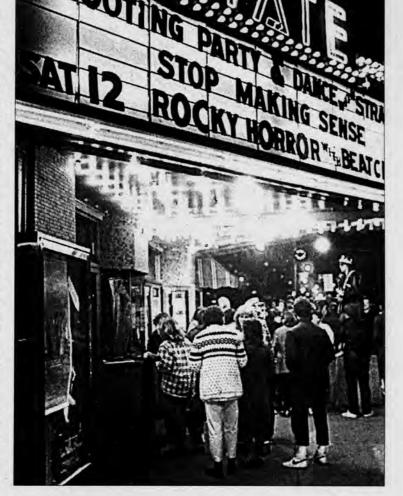

Transsexual Misfit Lori Halsey of Newark plays the part of Trixie. "I do this strictly for fun. I have my 9 to 6 job where I'm a secretary," laughed Halsey. "Being part of this is great. You can be abnormal in a setting where it's expected!"

The elaborate attire and accessories are not limited to the performers. Audience members brought their own whips, handcuffs and shackles. Wild garb isn't mandatory either, even for the die hard fans like Doke Scott of Wilmington.

"Many of my friends have seen the show in the 900 times range," said Scott. "I've only seen it a few (227) times.

"It's a lot of fun. It's an avenue where you can express yourself in a social context with a very tolerant crowd. It's a social encounter."

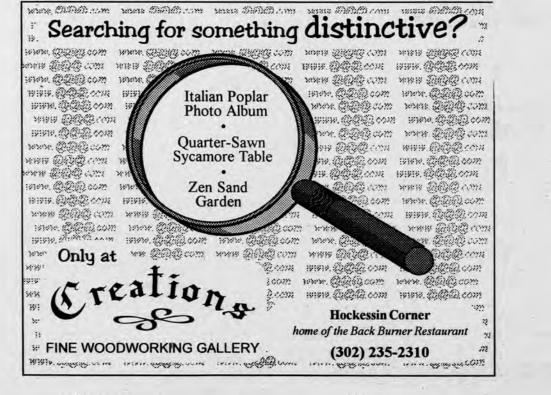

If you're bold enough to go the "Rocky Horror Picture Show begins at 10:30 p.m. on Saturday nights at the Elkton Theatre. The film is rated R and the cost of admission is $3.50.

It's Buy Nothing Day at the mall tomorrow

A group of University of Delaware students are apparently not the consumers of today - or tomorrow, either.

According to Rachel White of Students of the Environment, Santa and his elves are promoting alternatives to the "shop until you drop" mindset this year.

"Santa Claus announced that he will no longer tolerate shopping malls and corporations using his name and image to promote the annual holiday consumerism frenzy that stresses (out) families, puts people into debt, and harms the environment," said White in a press release sent to local media. "(North Pole's) Santa will join his

A New York company that installs floors and carpets has filed a $68 million lawsuit accusing DuPont Co. of fraud and breach of contract.

Associated/ACC International Ltd., a firm that specializes in laying carpet and flooring for restaurants and stores, claims it had a contract to oversee DuPont's national carpet sales. The Associated lawsuit claims that DuPont broke that contract by diverting business away from Associated to other contractors.

The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court in Wilmington.

"Nobody likes suing a DuPont," said Richard Goodman. chief operating officer of Associated. "My intention going into this was to make money and grow my business, not try to recoup money through a lawsuit.

DuPont spokesman Bill Brown said the chemical company would defend itself aggressively.

DuPont became involved in floor coverings through its nylon business, selling a fiber called Antron, used in carpeting. According to the lawsuit, DuPont developed a national network of flooring contractors as part of its marketing of Antron.

Associated signed a contract with DuPont in September 1998 as part of that marketing effort. Associated, an 80-year-old business with 20 employees and about $20 million in annual sales, would have become DuPont's Newark Chrysler Plymouth Jeep and Newark Dodge each contributed $500 to the program. Gary Hendrickson Sr., and Gary Hendrickson Jr., personally presented new books to second and fourth graders at the school on Nov. 18.

The literacy and characterbuilding program has a straightforward mission to help teach children to love reading through exciting books about animals and the environment, with themes of justice, compassion, respect, responsibility, and cooperation.

The program is being sponsored at Downes Elementary by the two car dealerships, and program materials are furnished at no cost to the school. Each child will receive two new books to use in the classroom and then take home along with parent guides.

According to Judith A. Golden, president of Operation Outreach USA, the gifts, combined with the matching funds provided by the DaimlerChrysler Fund, will bring the program to 300 students and teachers at Downes during the 1999-2000 academic year.

Each participating student will be given bookplates acknowledg-

Winterfest preserves more meaning each year

It's not full of adult themes and it's certainly not violent, tense or profane – descriptions shared by 29 of the 33 movies showing locally that were reviewed recently.

As entertainment, Newark's Winterfest is in the too rare category of happy, touching, simple and heartwarming.

Begun five years ago to bring the growing attractions of Main Street to a wider audience on a winter evening, the event now has a charm all its own.

The city and the University of Delaware sponsor the evening while leaving the seasonal themes and true meaning of the holidays to emerge as the community sees them.

The Newark Lions Club has made a good thing of spending weeks in planning and preparing chestnuts for roasting – a lot harder than it sounds or looks, but, oh, so nice to eat.

Free hot chocolate and cookies served up courtesy of the University is just the right combination on a cold, winter's night.

Samples of hot bean soup from the Newark Area Welfare Committee provide another reminder of homemade caring and joy that often is forgotten on busier days.

Music, song and stories fill the evening with images that are graphic without being unsettling or disturbing – except to those who suddenly realize they have been missing this magic too long.

Throughout the hours of the event, the buzz of the ice carver's drill and the clip-clop of the horses pulling the carriage rides down Main Street revive memories of a more intimate life with neighbors and family.

The hours outside work were not always remotely punctuated by canned laughter, sitcom theme music and urgently loud commercials.

And when they light up the tree, people really do still "ooh" in sudden delight and clap and smile their affirmation of being all too human.

Because, after all, what is this but our small effort to drive away the long darkness that the cold winter settles into at this time of year?

Come out and feel real again. You'll be pleasantly surprised by a close encounter with forces still more powerful than any technological wonders yet conceived on modern screens.

I read with interest the article entitled "Odd encouragement from odd sources." I am an art teacher in a local school district (Appoquinimink) and my sentiments on the subject of censorship are much like your own. I agree that the public should not have to support with their tax dollars artistic endeavors which grossly offend the majority's sense of decency.

But what can the general population do to influence the decisions by the museums and publishers to be more discerning about what they are purporting to the world that "Art" is? When an establishment like the Brooklyn Museum sponsors an exhibit such as "Sensation", do they really expect the viewing public to accept it just because it is in their museum? I'm more liberal, probably, than the average citizen in my attitude about art, but it insults my intelligence that they would presume that "controversial" and "artistic merit" are somehow synonymous. It is not enough that churches condemn their bad taste.

need to have a little backbone and take a stand. I understand their reluctance, but what greater impact to the Brooklyn Museum's curatorial staff would there be than to have well respected artists come forward and say, "You must be kidding. This is beneath your dignity." At least it should be.

1 am writing in response to statements Mayor Harold F. Godwin has been making about a quote from him that appeared in a News Journal article that I cowrote on Oct. 27. The article detailed the suspension of two Newark police officers for stopping a car on the railroad tracks in July, leading to the death of Pedro Martinez.

Mayor Godwin has said during a city council meeting and through a letter to the editor that appeared in the Nov. 19 Newark Post that he was misquoted and taken out of context when he said: "No matter what we do there are newspaper reporters and sensationalists all around Newark who like to make sensationallooking stories out of nothing."

I would like to take this opportunity to remind the mayor that the face-to-face interview I conducted with him was tape-recorded.

The quote is not only exactly correct word for word, but it is also not taken out of context. If the mayor would like, I would be happy to replay the interview for him to refresh his memory about what he said.

It saddens me that Mayor Godwin would attempt to impugn my integrity in an effort to distance himself from statements he made to a newspaper reporter on the record.

To: Editor From: Jack Markell State Treasurer

We can't escape the press reports: the Dow Jones is near a record high. The NASDAQ set a new high on seven consecutive days. More people than ever are invested in the stock market. thanks to their retirement plans. And the nation's savings rate is negative.

Whether we struggle to pay the monthly bills, seek to refinance our home mortgage or trade on the Internet, we are all affected by dramatic changes in the financial sector.

When it comes to finances, women have particular issues.

First, many women spend considerable amounts of time out of the labor force as they care for children or elderly parents. Second, women earn less than men do - and this is true at all education and age levels. Third, women save a smaller portion of their income than men do. Fourth, women invest more conservatively than men do - and during the bull market of the last 15 years, that has been a disadvantage. And finally, women live longer than men do, so their money has to last them longer.

It's probably not surprising that the response to Delaware's first Everywoman's Money Conference was overwhelming. I hosted that event at Clayton Hall in Newark on Nov. 13 - and more than 800 women attended. They represented a cross section of Delaware society, from all parts of the state, all income levels and races (27 percent were African-American).

At the conference, they heard from motivating speakers and attended breakout sessions on topics including money management, investing, retirement planning, taxes and insurance. And they left the conference with a 64-page curriculum guide on financial issues as well as lots of specific action steps. The second conference is scheduled for November 2000.

In the meantime, we are following up with the Money School, designed to take specific financial courses into the community - civic associations, community groups, faith-based organizations and the like. The classes are taught by financial professionals, cover a wide range of topics, and are often free of charge. Information can be obtained from Project Greenpurse at 800-681-0985 or my office at 800-675-8600.

I believe it's important that all of our citizens make the most of their financial resources. The better they do the less of a burden there will be on other Delaware #### taxpayers.

To: Editor From: Glenn Hojnowski, Christina parent of 2nd & 5th graders

Three cheers to the anti-busing coalition group reported on in issue 41. Could this possible be the beginning of a renewed effort to force the Christina School Board to realize the desires of suburban parents for neighborhood schools? A simple written survey sent to all parents of elenfentary aged students could have saved the district thousands of dollars wasted on the doomed "theme school program."

And since the abandonment of the student re-assignment program, for suburban K-6 schools, the school board has apparently given up any effort to reformulate a new plan to bring back neighborhood schools and finally put an end to busing.

Are they too busy trying to decide what to do with the millions in tax refund monies? How about building more suburban schools! Or maybe even consider a more radical proposition to resolve the busing issue: Re-create the Wilmington School District.

Whatever the answer is to end busing, as parents, we must unite and let our will be known to the elected officials who control public education in Northern New Castle County.

Hopefully the newly formed Coalition for Neighborhood Schools will be a constructive starting point to communicate this message. My closing question is, how do I sign up to join the group?

NEWARK OUTLOOK Getting the most out of holiday catalog shopping

y sister is ahead of the game. She has almost fin-ished her holiday shopping and boasts that she did most of it without even leaving her house. She came upon a snag, however, with one item she ordered and called me to see what she should do. She was dissatisfied with service and the quality of the merchandise and she wondered if she had any recourse. She said that as she spoke with some friends about her problem most people said they shrugged it off but still felt gypped. They thought they should do something, but they don't know what. What we found out is

Commission rules say that the seller must ship your order within the promised time, or if no specific time is mentioned, within 30 days after the order is received. The merchant must send you a notice if the order can't be filled within that time and give you the option to cancel. The rule does not apply to photo-finishing, magazine subscriptions and other serial deliveries, seeds and plants, or cashon-delivery orders. The best thing to do if you have a complaint, is to write to the company directly. If your prob-lem isn't resolved, call the attorney general's office and speak to someone from the Department of Justice. The post office also may help. If the item was advertised in a book or magazine, contact the publisher. However, the time to really protect yourself is when you place the order. Read the product description, and make sure the product is what you think it is. Pay special attention to measurements given. Check the measurement guides in the catalog. It may be worth the time to take measurements before you buy. Note the promised delivery time. During the holidays, give the company an extra week or two. If a return policy isn't stated, ask before you order. Fully complete your order form. The promised delivery time does not begin until the company receives a properly completed order. ust minutes after getting settled on America West Airline flight # 0252 from Phoenix to Philadelphia recently, a local medical professional was thrown into an emergency situation that made flying the friendly skies very turbulent.

For Lonnie Angstadt, an employee with Christiana Hospital Emergency Medical Services, another passenger's crisis became a spontaneous test of Angstadt's knowledge.

In a seat located toward the back of the plane,72-year-old Jean Keevil began sweating profusely and quickly losing consciousness.

around, too," Angstadt said with relief.

Although the 31-year-old physician's assistant ironically was returning home after attending a medical conference in Las Vegas, Nev., she was already trained to perform the procedures that she used that day.

Angstadt estimates that it took about two long minutes before the woman had her pulse back and another 25 minutes before the plane was able to make an emergency landing at a military base in Colorado Springs, Colo.

By then, Angstadt said, Keevil had regained consciousness, and appeared to be alert and in stable condition.

Having never been confronted with an emergency situation quite like that before, Angstadt admits that she was pretty shaken up over the whole experience. "Who was sweating more, you or the patient?" joked her colleagues at home in Delaware. Currently in her second year as a Physician's Assistant, Angstadt began her career as a registered nurse at Christiana Hospital in 1990 before attending Hahneman University in Philadelphia, Pa., to become a P.A. Soon after graduating in 1997, she returned to Christiana, but this time serving in a new role in the emergency services center.

As the commotion began to startle other passengers, an announcement came over the public address system requesting the assistance of a doctor or nurse. "I was the only one who stood up," said Angstadt.

She went to the back of the plane and saw the woman lying there, sweating from head to toe. "I started looking for her pulse but didn't find one," she said. "Then I started shaking her and put oxygen on her."

Angstadt immediately asked for special medical equipment in hopes that the aircraft was equipped with defibrillators. Stewardesses were able to supply oxygen, a blood pressure cuff and a stethoscope, but not the electronic devices typically used to restore a heart's rhythm.

'My heart sank when they said they didn't have any defibrillators," Angstadt said.

Angstadt resorted to using her hand and fist to revitalize the patient's cold, sweaty and seemingly lifeless body. "If you don't have any medical equipment then you do (a procedure called) cardiac thump, so I did that and she started to come around and I felt her pulse come

Thanks to Angstadt's quick responses, Keevil was released from the hospital after three days and then referred to her family doctor in seemingly good condition.

"She's a healthy person," said Angstadt, positively. "She had no medical problems, was on no medication and has no known heart problems."

Although Angstadt has not spoken with the woman she aided that day, some of the patient's grateful friends have let Angstadt know Keevil is doing very well.

Brass Band presenting annual Holiday Concert

The Chesapeake Silver Cornet Brass Band, one of the few all-brass concert bands in the United States, presents their free "Holiday Sounds of Brass" concert, Sunday, Dec. 12 at 3 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 292 East Main Street, Newark.

Headquartered in Newark, the unique 35-piece all-brass band is comprised of members from Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania as well as Delaware.

The band is modeled after the Sousa-style bands of the early 1900's and the traditional factory brass bands in England as recently featured in the movie "Brassed Off."

The band just released its first CD, Brass By The Bay, featuring light classics, big band tunes, jazz, marches and other popular tunes including Amazing Grace.

The band has performed throughout the Mid-Atlantic region and has been featured at a special brass band festival in Gettysburg, Pa., last summer.

The holiday concert will feature popular seasonal numbers such as White Christmas, Sleigh Ride, Parade of the Tin Soldiers, Silent Night and others.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Brass bands date back to the early 19th century and England's Industrial Revolution as an outgrowth of the medieval waits.

With increasing urbanization, employers began to finance work bands to decrease the political activity with which the working classes seemed preoccupied during their leisure time.

Brass Bands in Great Britain presently number in the thousands with many of the bands having origins prior to 1900.

To this day, the bands use only non-professional musicians who in former years were usually employed at the sponsoring company.

Brass Bands are one of the world's most wide-spread forms of amateur music performance.

Brass bands are also popular in Japan, Australia and New Zealand, and in recent years a large number of brass bands have started in several European countries.

What makes the brass band unique is the instrumentation, the scoring of all parts in treble clef and the wide repertoire ranging from orchestral works and featured solos to marches, jazz, big band medleys, novelty numbers and hymns.

The Salvation Army was primarily responsible for maintaining the brass band tradition in America until recent years when there has been a resurgence of interest.

Today there are several 100

brass bands performing or under development throughout the E United States. fi

University of Delaware professor publishes book profiling participants in Harlem Renaissance

Newark.

A new book by Carole Marks, director for the Black American Studies program at the University of Delaware, presents the contributions to American culture of participants in the Harlem Renaissance.

"The Power of Pride: Stylemakers and Rulebreakers of the Harlem Renaissance," features performer Josephine Baker, poet Langston Hughes, musicians Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington, dancer Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, and many others.

Marks and photographic historian Diana Edkins identify and discuss 17 artists who contributed to this chapter in American history in the 272-page text recently published by Crown, a division of Random House.

Marks, who holds a Ph.D. in sociology from New York University, said many of the people she discusses in the book left the South for New York in the early part of this century.

"They said to American society, 'We have education, we have style, we have ability – pay attention to us,'" Marks explained. "....the Harlem Renaissance set in motion the profound enrichment of mainstream American culture by African-American artists that we've seen this century."

Marks previously published "Farewell, We're Good and Gone: The Great Black Migration" in 1989. On Nov. 28, she and Edkins are signing copies of their book at the Abyssinian Baptist Church in Harlem, 50 years to the day from the funeral there of Robinson.

It was also the first church of Marks' well-known uncle, the Rev. Leon Sullivan, who campaigned for anti-apartheid business practices. Phil Toman is taking a sabbatical from The Arts. The Newark Post's longtime arts editor will be returning at a future date with his columns on the art scene in the tri-state area.

Jackets roll over Wm. Penn

By CHRIS DONAHUE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

It took a little more than four minutes for two-time defending Division I football champion Newark High to have its back shoved up against the wall by William Penn. The Colonials stunned the crowd of 5,320 last Saturday night at Newark with two lightning strikes to take a 14-0 lead in a semifinal round game of the State

Football Tournament.

But behind the pulverizing blocking of its offensive line and fullback Brandon Snow, Newark roared back on the shoulders and legs of halfback Seth Montgomery to defeat the Colonials Penn 45-20.

The victory sent Newark (10-1) into Saturday's title game against St, Mark's (9-2) at 1 p.m. at William Penn. It also continued the Yellowjackets' quest for a record third consecutive state title.

That was evident in the third game of the season when the two teams played to a 0-0 tie in regulation before Newark won 7-6 in overtime on a blocked extra point.

Dominant blocking by both teams has also helped bring together what is arguably the best four running backs ever to compete in a Delaware championship game -1,000-yard rushers Brandon Haman and Seth Montgomery of Newark, and Louis Wright and Steve Rogers of St, Mark's.

In addition to running with power, all four possess the breakaway speed to score from anywhere on the field.

Although Montgomery did not play in the regular-season meeting between the two teams, both defenses managed to keep the other three backfield genies in the bottle that night.

Both teams also beat William Penn on the road by the same score of 30-0.

"When I see a running back (Montgomery) gain 300-and-some yards, that's one big problem there, that's for sure," said St. Mark's Coach Vinnie Scott. "And knowing that their defense is as tough as it is. Their defense is outstanding. "They have the whole package. A talented, well-coached team."

Scott said his team will have to try a few new things to find cracks in Newark's defense.

"We'll try to keep them off-balance because they're very strong in both their pass defense and against the run," Scott said. "Hopefully, we can execute when we need to. It's going to be one of those things where we probe here and probe there and see where we can get things going."

Newark High running back Seth Montgomery knows what playing under pressure means.

First, as a transfer student from West Chester (Pa.) Henderson High, he had to prove himself to his new teammates and fans. All were on a mission to win a record third consecutive Division I state title.

Montgomery then had to undergo the stress of recovering from an ankle injury sustained in the first game that left him on the sidelines for three long weeks, or three games.

Last Saturday, pressure came in the form of William Penn High before 5,320 roaring fans at Newark in a semifinal-round game. Then, fellow running back Brandon Haman was hobbled by a sprained ankle in the first half, putting a huge load on Montgomery's shoulders.

But running behind Newark's mammoth offensive line, any pressures Montgomery may have felt seemed to be nonexistent, as he rushed for a single game tournament record 352 yards and scored four touchdowns in a 45-20 victory.

The News Journal credited Montgomery with 384 yards. Whatever, it was an astonishing feat by any player, whether he's running behind the punishing blocking of brothers Kwame and Orien Harris, Micah German, Shaun Miller, Awet Estifanos, Steve Selk, John Brennan, and Brandon Snow or not.

"It was my first tournament game and we prepared vigorously all week," said Montgomery. "We we were fired up and we were just ready to play.

"I'd like to give credit to the offensive line and (fullback) Brandon Snow. The way they blocked was excellent. It was my biggest game ever."

When told how many yards he had amassed, Montgomery replied: "Wow. I don't even know how to react to that. It's great.'

Montgomery said he also used the soft playing field at times to set up changes in direction that left defenders unable to get a clean shot at tackling him.

"I used it to my advantage," Montgomery said," because I knew they were coming at an angle. So I figured if I cut back across the grain I'd get them because they'd slip. Plus, I had longer spikes on. I tried to keep my legs pumping, make them miss and break tackles

Montgomery, who rushed for 764 yards during the season, said he was motivated by the loss of Haman, who finished with 1,051

"I said to myself, 'Wow. We've got a great player down so I'm going to have to step up. But the whole offense stepped up.

Newark Coach Butch Simpson said it was the greatest single game he's ever seen by a running back

"I watched him use his vision tonight," Simpson said. "Backs go through stages. They learn how to hit a hole and then they learn how to break a tackle and then they learn how to get through into the open field and become great backs.

"Brandon Haman's been doing that the last couple weeks himself, and Seth has been doing that. I mean obviously, the two of them together with everyone else blocking is why we're able to be where we're at.

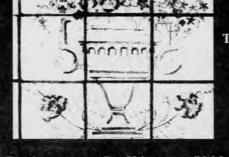

(Seth) ran with vision tonight. He saw the field, he made numerous direction changes. The line got him X number of yards and he got himself a lot after that. We had a lot of great downfield blocking and he just set up and used the bodies downfield getting in the way. Many backs are one-dimensional, and Brandon and Seth combine all the necessary factors for being great backs."

Montgomery said he's loved the time he's spent since moving to Newark in the summer. "I'm very happy to be here," he said. "People down in Delaware are nice. They say, 'Pennsylvania competition, Delaware competi-tion.' It's the same. We can play anywhere."

Blue Hens off to good start

By MARTY VALANIA

..... NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Victories, thrilling finishes, big crowds, major injuries, minor injuries - the first four games of the University of Delaware basketball season have already provided a season's worth of interest.

Most importantly, the Blue Hens have survived injuries to John Gordon (broken foot, out until January), Austen Rowland (ankle sprain, missed last two games) and Darryl Presley (concussion, missed one game) and won all four of their contests. The last two - an 80-78 victory over George Mason and a 58-57 win over American - have seen Delaware build comfortable leads only to have to hold on to win at the end.

The Hens certainly had a built in excuse for tiring against American as six players accounted for all but two minutes of playing time.

"I'm proud of our guys," said Delaware coach Mike Brey after the game against American. "Especially under the circumstances. They're a little bit down because of the closeness of the game, but, hey, to win with those injuries is a good thing."

Facing such adversity so early in the season could help the Hens as the season progresses. They have been picked by just about everyone (in the league and outside) to win the America East and advance to the NCAA Tournament for the third straight year. There wasn't suppose to be much adversity at all.

The easy ride to March Madness hit a roadblock in November when Gordon, a senior, broke a bone in his foot during an exhibition game.

Despite losing a such a big part of the offense, Delaware was able to win its first two games against Duquesne and Canisius in Binghamton (N.Y.) the Tournament.

Back at home before a sold out crowd, the situation worsened when Presley suffered a concussion after hitting the floor hard in the George Mason game.

Nevertheless, Delaware was able to hold on for two more close victories.

"I think the fans have definitely got their money's worth already,' Brey said. "Both games have been full 40 minute contests.

"To be undefeated at this point, I'm very proud of this team.

Picking up some of the slack for the missing players have been Billy Wells, Madou Diouf, and Ndongo Ndiaye.

Wells scored 22 points and grabbed seven rebounds in the victory over George Mason. He is averaging 13.2 points per game

Diouf and Ndiaye were forced to play far more minutes than either of them has in their college career. Against American, in his first career start, Ndiaye grabbed nine rebounds and blocked five shots.

One constant for Delaware has come as no surprise - the play of Mike Pegues.

The senior has shown why he was the player of the year in the America East last season. He has averaged 27 points per game so far this season and had an electrifying 27 first-half points against American last Saturday night.

"I knew I had to have a big game, because we had guys down, and I'm capable of doing Pegues said. "I feel if I that,' have to put a team on my back I can do that."

The Hens lost their first game of the season Monday night at Rider. The Broncs jumped to a big lead before Delaware rallied. Rider, however, held on for the win. After a game against Colgate Thursday, Delaware will play at Delaware State Saturday night. The Hens' next home game will be Dec. 11 against America East foe Vermont.

played his team in the regular season and called their offensive and defensive lines the most underrated parts of their team.

We didn't have much success against St. Mark's in the first game and we accept that," Simpson said. "They played very good defense against us and obviously we have to overcome what happened in September.

Haman, who rushed for 1,051 yards during the regular season, sprained an ankle in Newark's 45-20 semifinal win over William Penn. As of Monday, Simpson said Haman's playing status was day-to-day. But he didn't foresee Haman missing Saturday's game.

Although Simpson said his team is a better one than the one that faced the Spartans in September, he added that so is St.

Mark's.

'As I've told my team, St. Mark's is coming off a great victory over (Caesar Rodney) that was supposed to win all this and they've all had the success in terms of convincing wins against William Penn that we had.

"My feeling is, how can they not feel real good about them-selves right now? They're two points away from being undefeated."

Newark is trying to win its record third consecutive state football title and sixth overall.

Only William Penn, with seven, has won more.

The Spartans, who also lost to St. Elizabeth 13-12 in the final seconds this season, will be trying to win their first state championship since they last appeared in the final in 1978. That year, they defeated Cape Henlopen 20-6.

appearances in the title game were also successful. They beat Christiana 33-27 in 1974 and Dickinson 23-7 in 1973.

A victory by St. Mark's would also give the school its fourth championship this fall. The boys soccer, volleyball and girls cross country teams have already won titles.

Scott, who's coached football for 38 years, said whatever happens, it's been a memorable season for him.

"It's one of the best teams I've ever been associated with and one of the best coaching staffs I've ever been associated with, Scott said. "Just a top-notch group of people."

Scott said his team has also exceeded expectations.

"I knew we were going to be good, but I never visualized that far ahead," Scott said. "I knew The Spartans' other two we'd be competitive, but knowing high school football, I could never have forecasted it as well as that.

"The biggest (enjoyment) factor is that the kids here have a great work ethic and enjoy the game and the coaching staff is great to work with. It's fun.

"I think (it's enjoyable) because I think I know now why I'm doing it. I just enjoy being a part of it. It doesn't matter what role I would play. I mean where can you get that kind excitement? To see people react like the kids did after beating Sallies. That's worth going through 10 years worth of losing just to see it.

"Once you do win and get some success, it's contagious. I hope I have many more years left.'

Caravel falls to St. Elizabeth in Division II semi

Vikings avenge earlier loss to Bucs

By JOE NYE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Caravel Academy's quest for the last Division II state championship of the millennium came to a rainy halt last Friday night when the Buccaneers fell to St. Elizabeth 22-0 at Bob Peoples Stadium.

Caravel came into the game as the No. 2 seed in the tournament with an 8-2 record and a 14-6 victory over the Vikings two weeks before. But the hard running of junior Jeff Fletcher, who finished with 193 yards on 35 carries and two touchdowns, and the even harder rain combined to thwart the Bucs' chances early on.

No. 3 seed St. Elizabeth (8-3), which lost to Caravel 14-6 three weeks ago, earned the right to meet two-time defending champion Middletown (9-2) in Friday's title game at Newark at 7 p.m.

The No. 4 seed Cavaliers trounced top-seeded Woodbridge (10-1) in the other semifinal, 35-13, sparked by running back Brandon Brown, who rushed for 150 yards and three first-half touchdowns.

"They ran their offense well tonight and Fletcher just won that game for them," said Caravel head coach Dave Needs. "I told these guys after the game they had a lot to be proud of, beating St. Elizabeth and Archmere in the same year and going 8-2 this year and making the tournament."

The Bucs triple option offense, featuring a variety of fakes and pitches, was hampered throughout the evening by the driving rainstorm, forcing the Caravel offense into a more conservative attack. The Vikings on the other hand, using the straight yards on the play. On fourth and ahead running of Fletcher and quarterback Aaron Lewis, seemed able to use the muddy track to their advantage from the start.

The two teams exchanged punts to start the game, but the Bucs got their first, and best, break of the game midway through the first quarter when Viking punter Warren Zent inadvertently put his knee on the ground while attempting to punt, downing the ball on the spot and giving Caravel the ball at the St. Elizabeth 20 yard line.

Antoine Newsome, who along with Nelson Drew gave the Bucs a dangerous outside threat all year, was stuffed on the first two plays by the Vikings' defense, and on third and five from the 15, Newsome attempted to field a wet pitch from quarterback Chris Radel and ended up losing 14 long, Bucs kicker Adam Chandlee attempted a 47-yard field goal, but the kick was blocked by Jason Godwin and the Vikings took over at their own 37.

From that point on, Fletcher began to take over. Carrying five straight plays, he led his team to the Caravel 31. Then, on second and five, he broke off another 14vard run before being met squarely by Newsome and Drew, who popped the ball loose. Newsome jumped on it to put the Bucs back in business at their own 12.

However, their offense stalled there and after Chandlee punted again, the Vikings had the ball again at Caravel's 36 and promptly called Fletcher's number on six straight running plays, culminating in a one yard touchdown run and a 6-0 lead. Caravel's Carl Watts blocked the extra point.

high on the ensuing kick-off as sophomore R. T. Plumsky took the kick at his own five, bounced off a pair of defenders at the 30 and slashed his way to the Vikings' 47 before being brought down. A late hit by St. Elizabeth put the ball at the 32, and the Bucs went to their "Big Boy Offense" featuring 333-pound Cameron Cale at fullback.

After two runs by the junior and one by Radel, the Bucs went for it on fourth down, but the pass slipped out of Radel's hand and the good field position was turned over to the Vikings.

The half ended 6-0 as the Bucs' defense, led all evening by Cale, Newsome, Drew, Kyle Kniffin and Brandon Skrobot, kept the wraps on the St. Elizabeth offense.

But the Bucs' offense took a hit when Radel did not open the second half. He gave way to Mike Price, who had filled in for the Radel earlier in the year. What was originally thought to be a coaching decision was really more of a medical one, as Radel had suffered a concussion at some point in the first half, which was discovered by the Caravel coaching staff at halftime.

'We don't know when it happened," said Needs. "We were trying to talk to him at halftime and it was obvious he wasn't able to focus on what we were saying. Mike Price did a good job for us, but it's a shame since this was Radel's last game as a senior."

The Vikings hit paydirt again early in the third quarter as Stephen Samluk pounced on a wet fumble by Newsome to give them the ball at the Caravel 39. A quarterback sneak by Lewis, sandwiched around seven straight runs by Fletcher put the ball at the five, and the crunching fullback took it in from there on the next play to put the Vikings up 12-0.

Plumsky broke up the pass on the two point conversion, but the feisty Caravel crowd, who had come to the game in such a festive manner, began to see their hopes wash away in the steady downpour.

After a booming Viking kickoff, Caravel set up at their own 15 and after three runs by Drew failed to earn a first down, the Bucs punted to St. Elizabeth, which started its drive at the Caravel 35.

After alternating runs by Fletcher and Shane McCollum worked the ball to the 20, Fletcher burst up the middle for 15 yards only to fumble into the hands of teammate Matt Kane at the Bucs' three yard line.

Fletcher took it to the one on the next play, and then on second down, Andrew Swarter took it in behind the left side of the line. Lewis rolled out to his right and hit McCollum in the back of the end zone for the two-point conversion to put the Vikings up 20-

The Bucs returned the kickoff to their own 23, but after an intentional grounding call backed them up deep in their own territory, Chandlee was forced to punt from his own end zone. After a dropped snap and a low kick, Caravel's Matt Swank alertly jumped on the loose ball, but it resulted in a safety to make it 22-

Chandlee shook off the punt mishap and promptly kicked the ball from his own 20 all the way to the Viking end zone on a free kick. The two teams exchanged drives the rest of the game.

"They just wanted it more tonight," said Drew, who will lead a Buccaneer team next year that loses only four seniors. 'They didn't do anything different tonight, they just outplayed us.'

Montgomery runs Newark into fifth straight title game

NEWARK, from 21

Newark, finished 7-4.

Middletown, which will meet St. Elizabeth in the Division II championship game at Newark, is also seeking a third straight title.

Montgomery, meanwhile, a transfer from West Chester (Pa.) Henderson High, finished with 352 yards rushing after review of the game-tape by Newark statisticians, while other published reports credited him with 384 yards.

Montgomery also scored four touchdowns.

His first TD was a 64-yard scamper after the Colonials had taken their early lead.

'You don't line up toe-to-toe with their line and so we wanted to take advantage of some things, and we did," said William Penn Coach Bruce Reynolds about his team's start.

"But I honestly think the only thing that can be said is that you have to give Newark their due. That line comes off the ball and they have good backs who can hide and scoot behind the big linemen, then they can bounce it outside.

"There were times when we actually had it stuffed, but then it bounces outside or bounces back to the weak side and that's where we had our trouble. We just couldn't seem to stop that.

William Penn recovered a fumble on Newark's first series that gave it the ball on the Yellowjackets' 33. On first down, stellar quarterback B.J. Davis, who was falling off-balance near the right sideline, connected with receiver Tim Beatson at the one vard line.

Davis carried the ball into the end zone himself on the next play and Justin Montgomery's pointafter made it 7-0 with 57 seconds elapsed.

Newark punted after three plays on its next possession and William Penn started from its own 43. On first down, Davis passed to a wide-open Beatson, who made it to Newark's three yard line before being tackled. Two plays later, Von Homer crashed into the end zone and the point-after made it 14-0.

Montgomery then scored on his 64-yard run, and even though the snap on the PAT resulted in a failed attempt, the sound of the Yellowjackets exhaling was nearly audible.

It's just that you really have to give Newark credit."

"I thought what was incredible was that we really didn't lose our composure," said Newark Coach Butch Simpson. "I think we were stunned. I mean we came to play. (William Penn) just did some things that caught us and they executed and were up 14-0.

"I think Seth coming back and breaking that one right away and got us right back in the game.'

Newark then marched 61 yards on its next possession, with Montgomery capping the drive with a four-yard run. A failed two-point conversion attempt left the score14-12. Lightning then struck the Colonials again early in the second quarter. On the fifth play of a drive, Snow picked up a fumble in the Colonials' backfield and ran 67 yards for a touchdown. Brandon Haman then scored on a two-point conversion and Newark led 20-14.

On its next possession, high-lighted by a 59-yard run by Montgomery to the Colonials' two, Newark took a 27-14 lead. Montgomery capped the drive by running in from one yard out on fourth down. John Brayman's PAT made it 28-14.

On its second possession of the third quarter, Newark used an Erec Spiese to Steve Selk pass to go 48 yards to the Colonials' four. William Penn's defense stiffened, but Brayman was able to kick a 19-yard field goal to make it 31-14.

Early in the fourth quarter, Newark freshman Drew Kisner broke the Colonials' backs by returning a punt 65 yards for a TD and Brayman's PAT made it

With just under seven minutes left, Montgomery weaved his way through the Colonials' defense for a 77-yard TD run and Brayman's PAT made it 45-14. Davis capped the scoring with a one-yard run with 1:10 to play. "I'm very proud of this football team," said Reynolds. "At one time we were missing 14 starters. We fought back. We had some big wins; the Brandywine win (20-6), the Christiana win (21-6), the Glasgow win (33-16).

"And I think we came back. We didn't quit tonight. We fought to the end. It's just that you really have to give Newark credit for being a very powerful team, and yet we gave them a little run for a while.

"I thought we had a good enough game plan where we moved the ball for awhile, it's just that it's hard to sustain that against them."

touchdowns from their special teams to rally for the victory.

The whole idea is the last seven years we've been so close," said defensive coordinator Lee Sibley. "We've been one of the better teams in the state but yet we just haven't won the big game. We've lost a couple tough ones - some heart-wrenching ones.

"I told them, 'Fellas, we've been a good team for the last six or seven years. We just haven't been a great one. Now we take the step and we try to become a great one.'

St. Mark's played the game without head coach Vinnie Scott, who was attending to his gravely ill mother.

"It was a tribute to him and the program he runs," said Sibley. "He's such a great delegator. He has no ego so he allows the rest of us to coach.

"Although we needed him here, it's a tribute to him that we could function as well as we did." Senior James Malgire had the biggest game of his high school career. The starting nose guard and backup tight end, who hadn't scored a touchdown all season, came up with three of them against CR.

First he caught a one-yard TD pass from quarterback Jerry Denney in the second quarter. Then, with St. Mark's trailing 26-23, Malgire grabbed a blocked punt in the end zone for a touchdown that put the Spartans ahead to stay. Finally, Malgire put the finishing touches on his big night when he fell on a CR fumble in the end zone for St. Mark's last touchdown.

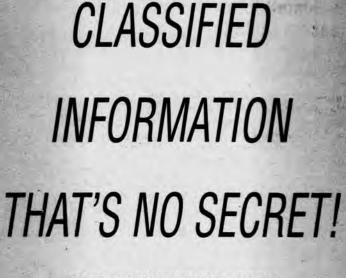

While the Riders' defense kept the Spartan duo of Steve Rogers and Louie Wright in check all night, Rogers did break loose for an 84-yard kickoff return that got St. Mark's back in the game late in the third quarter.

On defense, the Spartans intercepted CR quarterback Joe Schonewolf four times. Larry Zeccola and Wright had two pickoffs each. And then there was Denney. The 6-foot-2, 205-pound senior came up big for the Spartans. With St. Mark's literally throwing the ball from the start of the game, Denney completed 10-of-19 passes for 123 yards and two touchdowns in the first half

"People have been ganging the line of scrimmage on us the last four or five games," said Sibley. "We have two 1,000-yard rushers and they've been challenging us to throw the ball. We came in saying, 'Hey, instead of waiting around until it's too late, let's come out right now, throw it and get them back on their heels.' I thought that was the key. We showed them early that we could throw the ball.

"That was his biggest game," Sibley said about Denney. "He grew up tonight. I thought he played super."

NRT promotes local broker in mid-Atlantic ERA group

O'Conor is senior vice president

NRT Inc. recently announced that James P. O'Conor has been promoted to senior vice president of NRT, overseeing all of the company's mid-Atlantic ERA operations. According to company officials, this is a major move designed to further solidify its position as the Mid-Atlantic's leader in residential real estate and homeownership services.

O'Conor also will continue to serve as chairman of O'Conor, Piper & Flynn ERA, one of the largest residential real estate brokers in the Mid-Atlantic with 53 offices serving Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and West Virginia. The broker recently opened an office in College Square Shopping Center in Newark.

John G. Evans, one of the four founding partners of O'Conor, Piper & Flynn, will succeed O'Conor as president and chief operating officer. Evans most recently served as executive vice president and general sales manger for the company.

According to Bob Becker, president of NRT Incorporated, the new position gives O'Conor overall responsibility for NRT's three ERA companies in the Mid-Atlantic region: O'Conor, Piper & Flynn ERA in Baltimore, Md.; Pardoe Real Estate ERA in Washington, D.C., and Virginia; and Jack Gaughen Realtor ERA in Harrisburg, Pa.

"With Jim acting as a guiding force, I'm confident that our network of ERA companies will only grow more dominant in their regional market presence," noted Becker.

The three companies will continue to operate independently throughout Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, and Washington, D.C., with the operating officers of each company reporting directly to O'Conor.

Viewed as a single brokerage operation, NRT's three ERA companies in the Mid-Atlantic region, coupled with Burgdorff ERA of Parsippany, N.J., rank as the nation's fourth largest residential real estate company in terms of sales volume, sales transaction sizes, and number of offices and associates.

NRT Mid-Atlantic currently has 98 offices and 3,700 sales associates. Through August of this year, the company boasted $8.8 billion in combined sales and 31,000 sales transaction sides.

NRT Incorporated is the nation's largest residential real estate brokerage, with more than 7,000 offices and 31,000 sales associates in 21 metropolitan markets across the United States.

Citibank opens new operations center in Pike Creek

Citibank Bankcards held the official ribbon cutting for their new credit card and operations center on Nov. 29.

The new location, acquired as part of Citibank's acquisition of Mellon Bank Corporation's credit card business, is located at 4500 Linden Hill Road in Pike Creek.

"We are pleased with the quality of the workforce in this community and look forward to continuing to cultivate a partnership with its people and business and government leaders," said Thomas Anderson, president of Citibank Affinity and Agent Bankcards.

As a sign of commitment to the community, Anderson presented a check for $11,600 to United Way of Delaware to mark the occasion. The approximately 550 employees at the location service the company's affinity and agent credit cards business with partners such as the American Dental Association, the American Bar Association and Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Citibank is part of Citigroup, the which has consumer banks, charge card, mortgage lending, insurance financial planning and investment businesses in 57 countries. These services are marketed through Citibank, CitiFinancial (formerly Commercial Credit), Primerica, Travelers Life & Annuity, and Travelers Property Casualty.

Massachusetts recruiting teachers in Delaware

Last year, Massachusetts officials traveled from California to Texas to Florida to Maine looking for new teachers, offering a $20,000 signing bonus which was awarded to 59 individuals.

This year, Massachusetts is looking for up to 500 new teachers and begins its first recruitment campaign in Delaware for more outstanding candidates. The Massachusetts Department of Education wants to recruit up to 500 college graduates, with concentrations in math, science and foreign language, and mid-career professionals in those fields.

Last year, 800 applications were received from 36 states and four countries, and 59 candidates received the signing bonus. Massachusetts Commissioner of Education David P. Driscoll said, "There is an impending shortage of outstanding teachers, and the Massachusetts Department of Education is on the national trail to find the most outstanding candidates to strengthen our teaching force."

Applicants need to meet at least one of the following criteria to be eligible for consideration: ranking in the top 10 percent of the graduating class; minimum of a 3.5 grade point average in the major; minimum of a 3.5 grade point average overall; ranking in the top tenth percentile overall on a nationally recognized exam; or be nominated by the dean of the college or university they attend. Mid-career professionals and leaders are eligible based on their work experience.

For more information on this program and other teacher incentive programs, visit the Massachusetts Department of Education website at www.doe.mass.edu/tge.
