Newark part of making history

Wait is not over t was the same political sales story all day – volume, vol-ume, volume. Voters packed into polling places across the United States morning, noon and well into the night, to choose national, state, and local legislators.

Delaware was in the forefront with 60 percent of the registered exercising voters their Constitutional right.

"Busy, very busy," was how Delaware State Senator Steven Amick (R-Newark West) described it.

Amick said he spent the day "working the phones" for State Representative Catherine Representative Cloutier (R-Heatherbrooke) in Brandywine Hundred. Cloutier was re-elected in one of the closer General Assembly races in Delaware.

The early turnout was extremely heavy on Tuesday as commuter/voters sleepily stood in line waiting to make their mark on history. Some voters in Elkton, Md., had to wait almost an hour.

By 8 a.m., voters at the Wilmington Manor Elementary School in Delaware's 17th Representative District had dwindled to a line of about eight people at any one time.

Elsewhere the crush continued in some districts through the morning. "This is the first time since we opened that there isn't a line," said a pollworker around noon at Newark High School where those registered in Delaware's 14th and 25th Representative Districts were voting.

A campaign worker for Goodwin Cobb IV, running against Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South) for State Representative in the 25th District, said "it was a very heavy" turnout.

Asked if it was exciting to be working in this campaign, win or lose, he replied, "Yes, but it's bet-ter to win!" He was disappointed as it turned out.

As the returns came in, Amick said it looked like Democratic Lt. Gov. Ruth Minner would be the next Governor for Delaware.

polling places. Boulden actually won a fourth term in the Delaware General Assembly by defeating challenger Judith Hendricks 3,388-2,876.

With his two young sons playing with toy cars nearby, and his wife, other famiand friends sharing the moment. Boulden was cautiously confident in his wait for victory. "I thought I would get about 56 percent of the vote," said Boulden as the return numbers trickled in from his campaign workers after the polls closed. Ultimately, Hendricks, a career nurse, took 46 percent of the votes cast in the 23rd District to Boulden's 54 percent.

person,"' said Amick Tuesday night. 'You can't underestimate her.'

Serving on both the Education and Transportation committees in the House, Boulden not surprisingly said he will continue to work on those issues in his new term in office. "In my district, education remains very important," said Boulden. "It's going to be a constant, continuous push for improvements." Among the education items on his lists are Charter Schools and site-based management. "(I want) parents and teachers to have more say in the schools," he

The confidence was high even at the beginning of the night, but the slight edge of nervousness that was present lifted as the numbers from the nine polling places started to roll in. The total results were checked on the Internet for the quickest answers, but Viola volunteers brought in the numbers from the individual polling sites. The results were posted on an easel in the front of the room by Viola and Ulmer.

Two armed robberies on Sunday

Newark Police are investigating two armed robberies on Scholar Drive in Newark at approximately 11 p.m. when a 22-year-old pizza driver was making a delivery to the University Courtyard Apartments off South Chapel Street.

The victim was approached by a black male suspect who showed a handgun and ordered the driver out of his car. The victim managed to drive away and notify police.

The second robbery occurred around 11:30 p.m. in the area of Academy Street and Lovett Avenue.

Two University of Delaware students, both age 21, were walking on Academy Street when two black males with handguns approached them. The suspects demanded money and then fled on foot. The victims notified police of the incident.

pects, described as a black male, 15-19 years old, 5 feet, 7 inches to 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing approximately 150 pounds, wearing a knit cap, a "bomber" type jacket, and jeans, and another black male, are involved in both robberies. Two pizza deliverers robbed in same complex

New Castle County Police report two pizza deliverymen were robbed last weekend in the same apartment complex. The suspects, with no further description, fled on foot.

Around the same time on Sunday night, a driver from Grotto Pizza was returning to his vehicle after a delivery in the same complex when he was confronted by three suspects, described as young adult black males, one with a slender build and one with a heavy build.

The suspects stood before the victim "in a menacing manner" and demanded money. The victim handed over an undisclosed amount of cash to the suspects who then fled on foot through Building 148 and out the back door.

A police K-9 unit tracked the suspects from the scene but was unable to locate them. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 573-2800.

Armed suspect shot during search

Two Delaware State Police have been placed on administrative duty following the shooting of an armed suspect while exe cuting a search warrant at English Village Apartments off Village Apartments off Henderson Hill Road around 6:05 a.m. on Nov. 3.

Sgt. Alfred W. Parton, a member of the Special Operations Response Team (SORT) for 10 years, and S. Cpl. Daniel F. McColgan, a member of SORT for eight years, were executing the warrant which was a result of a four-month drug investigation.

Police report members of SORT entered the apartment and announced their presence. The officers then went to the master bedroom where they were confronted by Andrew J. Cox, 19, who was holding a 12-gauge shotgun. Cox allegedly raised the shotgun and pointed it at the officers who both discharged their duty weapons (3 rounds total).

Cox was struck in the left shoulder by two .9 mm rounds discharged from a Heckler and Koch MP5 long gun. He was then taken into custody and transported to Christiana Hospital. His injuries was non-life threatening.

The suspect's 19-year-old girlfriend was asleep on the couch in the living room at the time of the search. She told police she believed a police action was imminent and did not want to be in the bedroom.

Results of the drug search were unavailable at deadline. The shooting is under investigation by the State Police Homicide Unit.

Drug arrests during graffiti investigaton

Newark Police and Amtrak Police recovered numerous items related to graffiti crimes during a search at a residence in the Commons at Stonesthrow.

Officers also found three types of controlled substances including ecstasy, marijuana and psilo-cybin mushrooms in varying quantities inside the apartment.

David M. Mele, 21, was charged with graffiti offenses and is under investigation in an unsolved burglary in Newark. Eric Wilt, 20, was charged with various drug offenses.

Matthew Wright, 22, was charged with drug and graffiti offenses related to items found in the residence. He was also wanted in other Court in Delaware. Ryan J. Lemay, 19, was found to be wanted for failing to appear in Newark's Alderman's County.

The arrests followed an 11month investigation, which continues, into graffiti incidents in the Newark community.

October burglary suspect charged

New Castle County Police arrested a suspect on Thursday, Nov. 2, in connection with a burglary that occurred in the Brookside Plaza Apartment on Oct. 17.

The burglary victim told police in October that cash and a bicycle were stolen from his residence shortly after noon. Officers went to the scene and searched the immediate area but did not find the suspect.

On Nov. 2, the victim saw a man riding his bike near Marrows Road and confronted the rider who said he found the bike. He returned it to the owner and fled on foot.

County officers took Stephen Davis, 20, of Newark into custody later that afternoon for an outstanding arrest warrant and linked him to the October burglary. Davis is charged with burglary, theft and criminal mischief.

Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control Secretary Nicholas A. DiPasquale announced today the signing of a negotiated Settlement

Agreement and Order with Atlantic Aviation Corporation. Atlantic Aviation's business operations range from routine aircraft fueling and cleaning to major modification and repair of general and corporate aircraft

The Settlement Agreement and Order resolves alleged violations by Atlantic Aviation of various provisions of Delaware's Regulations Governing Hazardous Waste at the company's New Castle facility. Atlantic Aviation has agreed to pay a $17,500 penalty and to spend at least $80,000 in allowable costs for a supplemental environmental project encompassing a new tank system for managing hazardous waste rinse water.

DNREC notified the company in writing on Feb. 23, 1999 of the alleged violations in a draft Complaint emanating from a Sept. 14, 1998 Hazardous Waste Management Compliance Assessment at the New Castle facility. The alleged violations were corrected during the inspection or soon afterward.

Atlantic Aviation and DNREC subsequently agreed to terminate the proceedings and to resolve the allegations with the Settlement and Order.

In addition to paying the penalty, Atlantic

Aviation will pay for construction of a tank system to manage hazardous waste (paint and paint solvents) rinse water. The new tank system will replace the company's current practice of container management of rinse water waste. A qualified consultant with independent professional engineer certification will be retained by Atlantic Aviation for the project, known as the Hazardous Waste Tank System Supplement Environmental Project. The con-sultant will be responsible for design installation and all testing for compliance with the hazardous waste tank regulations for new tank systems.

Viola and other campaign volunteers were pleasantly surprised by the large turn out of voters. It was reported that at 4 p.m. 50 percent of the 26th District had voted, Ulmer said.

"There seemed to be a good turn out at the polls all day." said Allan Taylor, a Viola campaign Viola planned to spend the day after elections the same way he spent it two years ago when he won, he said. He was going to sleep in if possible and then collect his campaign signs, so he doesn't "litter the roads.

More trees growing at state park

Volunteers planted 15 different native species

By Katy Ciamaricone

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

While most people were still sleeping in on a recent Saturday morning, more than 150 volunteers were planting trees to help preserve the natural forests of Delaware's White Clay Creek State Park.

Home to hundreds of plant and animal species, the Park attracted approximately 90,000 visitors in 1999. This year's project, which began at 8 a.m. and took approximately three hours to complete, resulted in the addition of 800 trees of 15 different native species to a nine-acre field in the Possum Hill section of the park.

"We are extremely grateful for the help we have received from people volunteering to plant trees with us," said Christina Stefanisko, co-leader of the project. "In fact, the response was so strong we decided to plant 200 more trees than the 600 we originally planned on. One of our goals was to involve and educate the public in habitat restoration, and the large turnout has made that a big success."

John Crowley, a Wilmington resident, said he joined in the tree-planting simply to help improve his natural surroundings.

"Oxygen is a good thing – it's good for the animals frolicking around in the fields and trees are good for the birds in the sky," he said.

The event attracted volunteers of all sizes and walks of life.

Sean Carrick, 7, and Alan Washburn, 9, said they gave up their Saturday morning to work towards one of two service badges they are required to obtain for Cub Scout Pack 29.

Paul Jacobs, 70, said he came out to prove to himself that he could still provide services to his community.

"I thought, 'why can't I walk half a mile down to the field and help these people plant trees?" Jacobs said. "There's no reason at all that I can't, so, I put on my sneakers and came out here to help."

help." The Friends of White Clay Creek, a non-profit organization with more than 180 members, organized the event. Funds for trees were provided by Delaware's Longwood and Welfare foundations, and funds from the Division of Parks and Recreation, combined with funds raised by the Friends of White Clay Creek. The Friends plan to finish the reforestation project

Diocese launches capital campaign

To help achieve his vision for the 56 parishes and the rapidly growing Catholic population in the Diocese of Wilmington, Bishop Michael A. Saltarelli recently announced an ambitious three-year long, $50 million Capital Stewardship Campaign. Bishop Saltarelli emphasized that while the campaign's goal is challenging, it is achievable because it calls on Catholics throughout the Diocese to take an active hand in helping the total Diocese meet the needs of all its membership.

"Our campaign is called "Bringing the Vision to Life" Bishop Saltarelli said. "And while the campaign's immediate goals are to help build new churches, two new regional elementary schools, and to meet other parish needs, the campaign is really about a vision for our Diocese that all Catholics hold. That vision is a place where we can all share our blessings so that everyone's needs are addressed, where we all assume responsibility for ourselves and each other" he continued.

"We are asking Catholics to respond not only to the needs of their individual parishes, but also to look beyond parish boundaries and provide for new schools, new churches, indeed new parishes, for the total Catholic community," Bishop Saltarelli said.

"We look upon this effort not so much as a Capital Stewardship Campaign, but as our response to the call of the Lord," Bishop Saltarelli noted. "It is more than just money, it is real stewardship, it is caring and sharing - working together to meet the spiritual and educational needs of all the Catholics."

Of the $50 million target, $20 million is earmarked for two new regional elementary schools and to expand facilities at St. Thomas More Academy, a Catholic High School opened three years ago in Magnolia. Each of the elementary schools will be designed to accommodate 600 students. One school will be located in the Glasgow, area and the other in the Ocean Pines area in Maryland.

"I've worked with her for 14 years," said Amick. "She's very capable. I would have preferred (Republican) John Burris, of course."

The other disappointment for Republicans in Delaware was the defeat of U.S. Senator William Roth by current Gov. Thomas Carper, Looking very tired, the 79-year-old Roth conceded Tuesday night for the first time in his 30-plus years in Congress to his equally popular – and younger – opponent. Carper at age 53 now has won 11 consecutive state races for office in Delaware.

But, the biggest astonishment for voters, nationwide as well as in Delaware, was not having a new U.S. President when they awoke on Wednesday morning. After a long night of ups and downs for each candidate, the winner take-all number was still in the balance in the state of Florida as dawn broke Despite the fact that political analysts said it would be among the closest races in United States history, nobody could believe it would come to this in the age of computer-fast tallies. But, there it was: as of 5 a.m. the day after the election, Gore had 260 electoral votes and Bush had 246, which meant the one who got the 25 electoral votes from still-tooclose-to-call Florida would win.

At deadline on Wednesday, Democratic Vice-President Al Gore was ahead in the popular vote nationwide over Texas Gov. George Bush. However, an official recount was ordered in Florida, where Bush appeared to be ahead by as little as 700 votes at one point, but the two were even at 49 percent each of the total votes cast.

"Florida is the entire ballgame now," said one newscaster after another.

"Nothing to do but wait for the recount."

Wilmington and Western RR will reopen line for Santa

Since September 1999, when Hurricane Floyd passed through Delaware, the volunteers of the Wilmington and Western Railroad have only been able to operate the antique equipment over a very small portion of their scenic line.

Encouraged by the enormous support from the local community, businesses, foundations, and the state and federal governments, the staff of Wilmington and Western has been earnestly working on the construction plans for rebuilding one of New Castle County's historic treasures.

Being a non-profit volunteer organization, it has been a huge undertaking for all those involved. We are happy to report that construction of the bridges has begun.

The railroad expects to open a good portion of the line in time for the ever-popular Santa Claus Express trains.

These trains will head westbound over our newly constructed bridges, with Santa aboard visiting with all the children and presenting them with a chocolate treat.

Trains will begin on Saturday, Nov. 25 and run every Saturday and Sunday until Dec. 17. All those interested should call 998-1930 for advanced reservations.

It is expected that the full length of the line will be reopened in the spring of 2001. The staff and volunteers are planning a grand re-opening celebration for Mary 19, 2001.

Same time, next year. . . alright?

sn't this exciting? As we pass deadline on Wednesday night, almost 24 hours after the election polls closed in Delaware, we still don't know who the next president of the United States will be.

The numbers are close - very close - but how close and which way nobody knows.

Think of it. This is how it could be every time Americans vote anywhere for legislators at any level. Every single vote - or lack thereof - would count.

Reportedly, people dragged themselves out of sickbeds, begged rides from state legislators, or stood in line for hours after the polling places officially closed, just for a chance to vote in this election.

It was important to them. Their vote mattered. Wow, did it matter.

Why can't we do this all the time?

People have a lot of reasons for not voting - some of us had them this time despite the historic number who registered to vote recently and then went to the polls on Tuesday.

They don't like either candidate. They think things will not change no matter what they do. Their choice isn't even on the ballot. The candidate they favor hasn't got a chance, so why bother? They just don't care.

Well, guess what? This time a lot of other people did care. If you did not believe this before Tuesday, you do now.

America's production must have been at an all time low on Wednesday as workers in every industry spent the day recounting their voting experiences, arguing over whether the outcome could or should be either way, and discovering - many for the first time, apparently - exactly how the election system works in this country

It's exciting. It's down right exhilarating.

We all mattered a lot. People with advanced degrees, people barely out of high school, people who can barely write their own names, people who know what they want even if they cannot express themselves with style and grace at the local watering hole, all had a vote.

Where have you all been 'til now? This is democгасу

Why can't we vote like this again sometime? Heck, why not every time?

School talks snagged

Negotiations between the New Castle County Education Association and the county school board broke down yesterday, according to Charles Butler, federal mediator.

The two teams met briefly Tuesday afternoon, but neither side altered its position.

The NCCEA still is calling for levelling-up of all teachers' salaries to the Wilmington teachers level in the first year. The board maintains it doesn't have the funds to do that, but offers to level-up salaries by the middle of the 1980-81 school year.

Some current Blue Hens could be among the elite

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

n his 2000 Football Media Guide, issued last summer, University of Delaware Sports Information Director Scott Selheimer included his assessment of prospects for the upcoming football season.

His forecast appeared under the banner headline, "Return to Glory", which, in ret-rospect, suggests that Mr. Selheimer is either a perceptive evaluator of player talent or owns an accurate crystal ball.

After eight consecutive victories, it is safe to say that the current Blue Hen team has, indeed, returned to glory.

And while it was premature to consider the possibility of an undefeated season, this appetizing prospect was a hot topic for speculation among loyal fans before last Saturday's 45-44 overtime loss to New Hampshire.

It is somewhat surprising that, despite legendary accomplishments on the grid-iron, only four Delaware teams have been undefeated and untied through more than 100 seasons. Among them were Bill Murray's World War II era teams of 1942 and 1946, Dave Nelson's erhouse.

All put ample points on the scoreboard, of course, but it was their smothering defensive play that sustained them, even when the offense faltered.

The 1942 team showed the way by limiting eight rivals to 28 points while posting five shutouts. Opposing teams, therefore, averaged 3.5 points per game. The 1946 team, the Associated Press

Small College National Champion, permitted 31 points in nine regular season games, a 3.4 per game average. They gave up seven more points during their appear-ance in the Blue Hens' first postseason game against Rollins College in the Cigar Bowl at Tampa, Fla.

The 1963 squad, winners of the Lambert Cup, the Middle Atlantic championship and the United Press International Small College national championship, sur-rendered 75 points in eight games, a 9.4 per game average.

The 1972 team, the last to post an unblemished record, won the AP and UPI Small College championship and the Lambert Cup while allowing 81 points in ten games, an 8.1 per game average.

The points-per-game increases in the 1960s and 1970s reflect the fact that offenses have become more sophisticated. High-scoring games are common and there are relatively few shutouts.

Given these facts, the performance of the 2000 Blue Hens is exceptional. The team shut out three of its first five opponents and had limited rival offenses to 69 points in eight games, an 8.6 per game average.

During this same period, it had scored 322 points-a total greater than that of any of the four undefeated teams in their first eight games. The combination of high scoring and stalwart defense made the Blue Hens unbeatable to that point.

Many Delaware teams, including the 1998 and 1999 squads which both had modest 7-4 records, have been impressive point producers. But history clearly shows that the difference between the good and the great has always depended on defense.

The author, when not on the golf course, can be heard each fall as the familiar voice announcing University of Delaware home football games, a job he has done for four decades.

Long and tense wait for new County Council President

Coons hopeful as he takes on new role By KATY CIAMARICONE NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

"You're up by 3,500, and Wilmington still isn't in yet." "Why did the computer just shut off?"

"It looks like Gore got Massachusetts." "We don't care about that right now – right now I'm only concerned about the local election." "I'm going to vomit."

Such was the strained conversation overheard at a Wilmington residence around 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The resident/candidate, along with his close friends and family, huddled around a laptop and hoped that the year of relentless campaigning would soon pay off.

Some never let their eyes stray from the computer screen on which the state of Delaware home page tallied the results from the national and local elections. Numbers were changing every minute.

Gore was trailing. Carper had already beat Bill Roth in the race for the Senate. Ruth Ann Minner had already become the first female governor of Delaware. But everyone in this Wilmington household Tuesday night were praying to hear one thing only: that the homeowner, Christopher Coons, had been elected as the new County Council President.

His opponent was 39-year-old Republican and small business owner Mike Ramone.

Coons, a 37-year-old Democrat and attorney for W.L. Gore and Associates in Newark, looked patient but tense. He often kissed his wife, Annie, who is six months pregnant and looked stunning in a black skirt and jacket. He sometimes picked up both of his twin sons. Mike and Jack – who are 18 months old – and spoke to them in gibberish.

Chris has always been a talker, said his mother, Sally Gore.

"When he was little, he never stopped talking. At 18 months old, he could talk – he would say a string of words at one time," she said. "On the campaign trail, he was the same way – he never stops talking to people."

The clock read 9:20 p.m. Coons was ahead, but the final vote was not in yet. City of Wilmington officials had not finished counting city residents' votes.

Son Jack Coons, a blonde like his father and mother, held a cellular phone up to his ear – upside-down. "Hello?" Jack said, in baby-talk.

"He sees his dad doing that and he copies him," Annie Coons said. "He sees Chris walking around the house with a cell phone and he does the same thing."

By 9:30 p.m., people had called from the Wyndham Garden Hotel several times to tell Chris that his fellow party members Ruth Anne Minner and Thomas Carper – and members of the media – were waiting for him at Democratic headquarters for the post-election celebration, Coons said he would like be

"Let's not go until he's comfortable," Annie said of her husband. A few minutes later. Coons

A few minutes fater, Coons turned on the radio to hear the local results.

"I'm confident that Chris Coons will win," the announcer said.

The results were not final, but the energy in the Coons household turned slowly from nervous to excited. Coons was well enough ahead of Ramone to know he had probably won. He was finally confident enough to leave with his wife, his family and his friends, and join several other democratic candidates in their celebrations of victory. Minutes later, it was Minutes later, it was announced that Coons had beat Ramone. The percentages were final: Coons, 55.3 percent; Ramone, 44.7 percent.

Coons had a few things to say about his plans for the future.

"Tm going to make a real effort to take what we've already seen in Newark, with the old Budd Fiber plant that's been turned into new housing or the old NVF plant on White Clay Creek that's being turned into a new restaurant and shops and condominiums and office spaces," he said, "and make it happen all over the county so we've got existing under-utilized industrial or commercial space we've turned it into new, productive space. That's gonna be hard to do and it's gonna take a lot of work.

Coons said it was great meeting voters all over New Castle County. "I stood at Ebenezer Methodist Church – just up the hill from where I grew up in Polly Drummond. I stood at Newark High School. I stood at Newark High School. I stood at P.S. DuPont in the city, I stood at Wilmington Manor Fire Company – down in New Castle," he recited. "I was at the Boys' and Girls' Club in Bear. I touched many of the same places where I announced my candidacy April 27 and it was an interesting way to conclude by being in many of the same places that I first visited when I began."

Coons was positive as he concluded, "I'm thrilled, elated, exhausted, hopeful.

explained. "I have two young sons myself, and you can't convince me anyone knows better than I do what is best in the schools for my children."

Boulden also believes all is not lost in the long battle for a traffic bypass around Newark. "Steve Amick and I can get the funding for it," he said on Tuesday night, "but we have four entities, the state of Maryland, Cecil County, Pennsylvania and Delaware, who have to get it approved."

Boulden also guaranteed completion of a revamped CSX Railroad underpass on Casho Mill Road in Newark by 2002. "The new technology and railroad right-of-way have caused delays," Boulden said. "It's been a little slower than I wanted, but I don't have any doubt it's going to get done." Even before all the polling places had reported, Boulden relaxed and started to celebrate. Holding a drink he went around the room shaking hands. "It was a great turnout," he said like many others that night. "I'm glad it's over, though." As Boulden spoke with wellwishers, a campaign

As Boulden spoke with wellwishers, a campaign worker came in and told him, "they're coming down now," and Boulden smiled.

"He's talking about my campaign signs," Boulden explained. "One of my commitments was to get my signs down as soon as the election was over."

he youth ministry at St. John the Baptist-Holy Angels Parish has separated from the church - well, sort of.

The 20 members of the youth group used to hold their weekly meetings in the Holy Angels School library. But, a project completed in June converted the former Holy Angels parish rectory into a youth center of their very own.

This was an effort on behalf of the staff and parish to provide these students with a place that they can call their own - where they can gather together and learn and share their feelings," said Dolores Ballintyn, director of Christian Formation at Holy Angels. "I think this kind of thing is really important for young people." Ballintyn said parish adults are not stamping their ideas on this place, either, "We're not going to say, 'look kids, here are your Legos," she said. "We want them to feel like independent young adults."

Lisa Scarano, coordinator of the youth ministry program, said members of the parish and the community donated a television, VCR, computer, filing cabinets, school supplies, a couch and a loveseat to make the youth center as comfortable and convenient as possible

Group members began holding their Sunday night meetings at the new location in September. Scarano said the youth group is made up of students from high schools all around New Castle County, including Newark, Tatnall, St. Mark's and Salesianum.

"At a recent meeting, Father David Baumgartel and Father Mark Kelleher dropped by to snack on pizza with the members, while they discussed how teens should deal with the stress of their everyday lives. The teens agreed leading causes are school, parents, siblings, recently-distributed interim grade reports, sports - and the price of compact discs. "They're way too expensive," said one member.

"I hate it when my teacher assigns a project on a Friday and says we have to have it done by, like, Wednesday," said another.

Intense feelings and emotions also are a big part of teen stress. "I feel like breaking things when I get stressed out," said one. "I never do, but I feel like it."

You have to determine what things you are good at and what things you will probably never be good at," Scarano explained. "To relieve stress, you must phase out the things that you will never be able to do. They will only cause you additional stress.

"Then, when you feel stressed out, you should try doing the things that you are good at," she said. "They could help to calm you down.

Scarano said non-parishioners are invited to join the group, too. "Anyone who wants to come sit in for meetings is certainly welcome," she said.

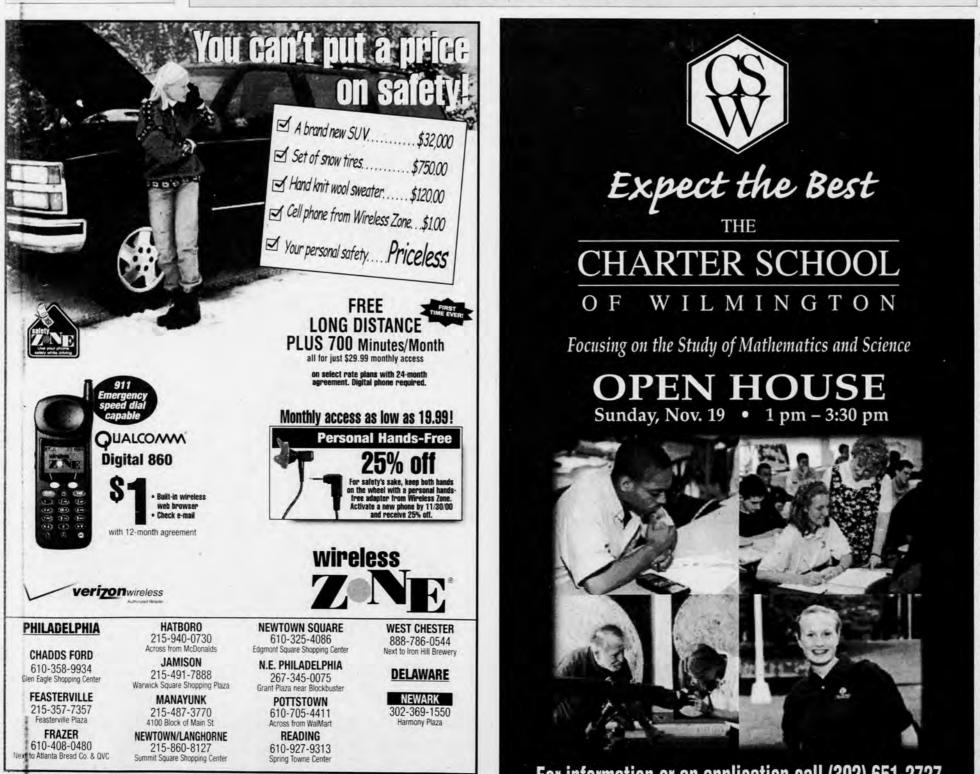

Events planned for the youth group this year include a program intended to steer teens away from peer pressure, a video series and several community outreach programs, Scarano said.

They will also visit the Ronald McDonald House, make booties for a parish baby shower and host a "babysitting day" in which parents can leave their kids with the members while they finish up their lastminute Christmas shopping.

Scarano said parish officials are hoping to make the center more available during the week, not just during the Sunday meetings.

Then, she said, teenagers could use the center to study, watch television or just hang out. "So they're not hanging out in parking lots or some-place where they shouldn't be," she said.

Season of glorious music coming

At no other time during the year is the admonition of the psalmist, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord," carried out as well as it is in the glorious season of Christmas. At no other concert venue in and around the service area of this newspaper are there as many Christmas Concerts scheduled as there are at Longwood Gardens in nearby Kennett Square, Pa. To make things even better, there is NO charge for the concerts! Performing Arts Director Priscilla Johnson has outdone herself this year.

Just take a moment to look at the numbers. There will be 174 organ sing-alongs between Nov. and Christmas. There will be 36 strolling concerts, each about two hours long throughout the gardens between Nov. 25 and Christmas. There will be 58 concerts in the Conservatory Ballroom between Nov. 25 and Christmas and these include some great choral groups, bell ringers and ethnic celebrations. If Toman's toteable tabulator is functioning, that brings the total to 268 Christmas Concerts at Longwood. They are scheduled during the day and evening. You and your family should certainly find something to your liking in that grand array!

But numbers tell only part of the story. Let's take a look at the program of a choral group from Newark which will perform THE ARTS BY PHIL TOMAN

Saturday, Dec. 2 in the Conservatory Ballroom at 7 and 8 p.m. It is the University of Delaware Chorale under the direction of Paul Head.

They will open with three early Christmas works, "Hodie natus est," a Baroque setting of a Christmas text by Jan Peter Sweelinck; "Ave Maria," by the Spanish Renaissance master Tomas Luis Victoria and "Allen, Gay Bergeres," a light seasonal work that reflects the secular influence on sacred music during the Renaissance, then move to two Dutch carols, "Hoe keit der Kinderen" and "In Dulci Jubilo." The Chorale will also offer "Mi Y hahleil," arranged by Joseph Flumerfelt and "Bashana Haba'ah," by John Leavitt, before moving to an audience sing-along made up of a carol medley. The group will close with three traditional carols, "Joseph Dearest, Joseph Mine," from an ancient tune rescored in modern harmonization, "Silent Night," a famous setting of the Gruber opus, and "I Saw Three Ships," a flamboyant finale scored for the choir and piano four hands by Mack Wilberg. And that is only one program! Another Newark group performing is The First State Bell

Ringers directed by Bruce Cataldi. They will be in the Ballroom on Tuesday, Dec. 19 at 7 and 8 p.m. Other Delaware groups performing are Aldersgate Methodist Church Chancel Choir of Wilmington conducted by Evelyn Swensson on Monday, Nov. 27; St. Andrew's School Concert Choir of Middletown directed by Marc Cheban on Thursday, Dec. 7; Harokdim Dance Group from Wilmington directed by Harriet Ainbinder and St. Paul's Methodist Church Bellringers Chancel of Wilmington under Michael Hellman. Groups from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland round out the 58 concerts in the Conservatory Ballroom.

When all the echoes of Christmas music fade from the various conservatories and from the grounds of Longwood Gardens, then ten New Year's Concerts get underway. Priscilla has given them the title of "New Year in Old Vienna." The concerts will feature festive waltzes and musical bon bons on the great 10.010 pipe Longwood organ. Like the Christmas Concerts, they are also free of admission charges. To add still more to the festive spirit there will be thousands of brilliant poinsettias, towering Christmas trees and fragrant flowers in the main conservatory's "Crystal Palace." After dark the trees around the grounds will be lighted with 400,000 tiny lights to add to the other Christmas magic.

For a complete schedule of the Christmas Concerts, New Year Concerts or any of the flower displays, you may call Longwood Gardens at 610-388-1000, or write for a colorful, free brochure at P.O. Box 501, Kennett Square, Pa. 19348-0501.

Christmas Concerts will be broadcast every Sunday at 12:05 p.m. from Nov. 26 through Dec. 31 on WNRK, 1260 on your AM dial. Great soloists, instrumentalists, choruses and orchestras beginning with the early 1900s and continuing through performers of today will be featured. On the first Sunday of the New Year at 12:05 p.m.

Outlook, from 6

Oxygen slowly diffuses into the soil from the surface. The deeper into the soil, the less oxygen is available.

At the same time, the carbon dioxide the roots give off is diffusing from the soil. Water moves by gravity and other forces, so it is possible to have more water in deeper soil than at the surface.

Roots suffocate when water takes up all the space in the soil for too long, or when carbon dioxide can't escape. Somewhere in the midst of all this flowing in and out, there is a proper balance of water and oxygen where roots can thrive. Weakened roots can't support vigorous leaf and stem growth.

Imbalances in soil water and oxygen occur for a number of reasons. In the soils common to our area, the physical properties of silt and clay soils allow them to pack together tightly, leaving little room for air and water. Water usually gets the lion's share when space is tight. Our soils are especially prone to compaction. This means that the spaces between the soil particles have been squeezed out. It doesn't take extraordinary forces to make a soil too compacted for healthy rootgrowth, either. Even foot traffic over the course of a few weeks can affect root growth. Once compacted, soil is slow to recover on its own.

Slowly but surely, natural forces including freezing and thawing, earthworm tunneling, and root penetration will "loosen up" the compacted pathway. With each passing year, the grass in the pathway will become less stunted.

So ,even after many months with no foot traffic, the path to the man's mailbox remains visible. I'll have something to remind me of him for a long time while I wait at the traffic light.

The undefeated Newark Yellowjackets football team kept their perfect season alive with a hard fought 29-6 Blue Hen Conference Flight A victory over Christiana Saturday afternoon on the Vikings' Coder Field.

Newark is now 8-0, 5-0 in Flight A, while Christiana's record falls to 4-4, 4-2 in conference.

Offensive firepower was the key to the Yellowjackets victory. Newark coach Butch Simpson said his team has a fleet of excellent running backs.

Once Drew passed the line of scrimmage, he bounced to the 'We have a fine offense footoutside and outraced the Viking ball team that can do a number of secondary into the endzone. Christiana coach Marvin Spence said he was pleased with the offense in the early part of the game.

good job in the first half," he said. After a few stalled drives, Newark's defense put points on the board as junior Austin Kisner raced 60 yards with an interception of an errant pass thrown by Viking's quarterback Jeff Tatnall. Kisner's "pick" built Newark's lead to 15-0.

Drew's second touchdown came early in the second quarter on a 16-yard run, again to the right side. The score capped a short, 23 yard, four-play drive

It's hard to mention the Holy Angels football championship without recognizing the job that head coach Dick Vitek has done over the last two years.

In addition to this season's football championship, Vitek was the manager of the Newark National Senior League All-Star team that won the state championship, the Eastern Regional championship and then finished third in the Senior League World Series in Kissimmee. Fla. Those titles were just the ones he won in the Valania last three months.

Last year, he also managed the Newark National Senior All-Stars to a state championship and guided the Holy Angels junior varsity team to the championship game before finally losing.

Even more amazing than his success is the time Vitek has put into these jobs. He didn't have a child on either team but still made time to make it to practice and games - no matter where they were in the state, region or Florida.

If you ever wonder why high school teams in our area are so successful, it's because younger athletes have the opportunity to learn under people like Dick

ends undefeated season

point lead led to an even more improbable 45-44 overtime loss to New Hampshire last week. Up in smoke went the first unbeaten season since 1972 and the No. 2 national ranking. Nevertheless, the Hens can still win the Atlantic-10 championship and still will be a formidable opponent in the I-AA playoffs. Delaware will find out quickly if it has fully rebounded, having to play at UMass Saturday.

"I don't anticipate any prob-lem with recovery," Delaware coach Tubby Raymond said of his team's bouncing back from its fourth-quarter collapse. "This is the exact same group of guys we had before, and they'd be the same guys had we made the kick at the end of regulation. We have the same offense and the same defense. They're not going to let this bother them.

"Undefeated seasons are really not that realistic in this day and age anyway. It's a sad thing. We haven't had one since 1972. That's a long time. But we're not going to dwell on it - I promise you.

UMass enters Saturday's contest with a somewhat disappointing 6-3 record (4-2 in the Atlantic-10). The Minutemen, though, have won four of their last five games including last week's 38-17 victory over Villanova. "We have great concern about UMass," Raymond said. "It Raymond said. "It looked like they flattened out but now they've come back and they got a big win over Villanova. I'm sure they'll be ready for us.' One of the big reasons for the UMass resurgence is the return to the lineup of some injured players including running back Marcel Shipp safety and

Delaware native Brian Smith. Shipp ran for 105 yards and two touchdowns in the victory over Villanova. Smith has been the heart and soul of the Minutemen's defense for the past three years.

"Finally, last week we played our best game of the year," said Massachusetts coach Mark Whipple. "We started to play more like the team we've had the last two years."

Adding incentive to the Minutemen's cause is the fact they are still in playoff hunt.

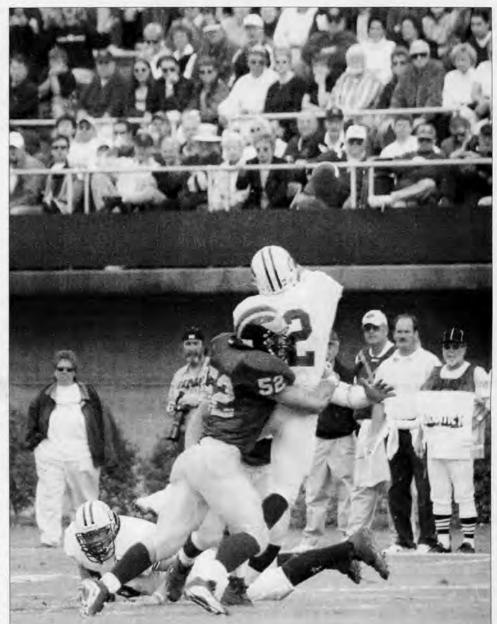

"I told our staff if we could just get to November, maybe our team would start feeling some of the things it has over the last two Whipple said. "And years," maybe that would get us going again.

"If we could somehow eke out a win over Delaware, we'd be right in the picture. But we'll have to play our best game of the year just to stay competitive. Delaware is still the best team in the league."

A-10 title still there

Despite the loss to New Hampshire, Delaware can still earn a share of the Atlantic-10 crown and the conference's automatic berth to the NCAA I-AA playoffs with wins over UMass and Villanova.

Richmond and Delaware both enter this week with 5-1 conference records. If Richmond should win its last two games against James Madison and William & Mary, Delaware (with two wins) would get the automatic berth based on its victory over the Spiders.

cer. The soccer and field hockey quarterfinals are Saturday with the volleyball championship scheduled for Monday night at the Carpenter Center.

The week started with local teams involved in all the tournaments. One would expect several teams to still be competing this weekend as well.

In addition, the football season is coming to a close. Newark and William Penn need wins this week to set up their showdown for the Flight A championship next Saturday at William Penn.

So throw on an extra sweater and get out to an event. It's one of the best weeks of the high school sports calendar.

Good news?

It's certainly good to hear that the possibility exists that the state championship football games could be played in Delaware Stadium.

After last year's debacle, it would be a welcome to have the game at the state's best football stadium. In addition to the seat availability, there would be plenty of parking, concessions and rest rooms. It's the perfect place for the title games.

It's a little disturbing that it sounds like it's pulling teeth to get the committee to do this. Chairman John Leone's quotes about the game, attendance, revenue and how great a site Delaware State is, sound See POST GAME, 11 ►

With preseason expectations so high, Newark High's normally solid regular season seemed instead to bring frustration.

The state tournament, however, provides a fresh start and the eighth-seeded Yellowjackets got off to a good one with a 2-1 come-from-behind victory over No. 9 Tower Hill Wednesday night at Alexis I. DuPont High.

The victory advanced Newark to Saturday's quarterfinal meeting against top-seeded and fourtime defending state champion St. Mark's.

Trailing 1-0 in the game's seventh minute, Newark answered quickly when Greg Slater pounded home a pretty goal on an assist from Alex Rawles.

'Once they scored, we got real fired up," Slater said. "We knew we had to get back in the game."

St. Mark's tops Friends 2-0

By MARTY VALANIA

It wasn't the best game St. Mark's has played all season, but it was enough to beat a scrappy Friends team 2-0 in the opening round of the Delaware High School Soccer Tournament Tuesday night at Caravel Academy's Bob Peoples Stadium.

The top-seeded Spartans (15-1) got first-half goals from Adam Flanigan and Adam Stuller (each also assisted on the other's goal) to provide the margin of victory.

St. Mark's dominated the action throughout, outshooting the Quakers 15-4 and taking six corners to Friends one. The Spartans, however, were frustrated by the pack-it-in defensive strategy utilized by the Quakers.

'It wasn't our best game," said St. Mark's coach Tom DeMatteis, who is hoping his team can win a fifth straight state title. "But the first thing you have to do is give Friends a lot of credit. They played excited and they played very well.'

The win advanced St. Mark's to Saturday's quarterfinal contest against Newark.

"I don't think we were over-confident," DeMatteis said. "We can play better. The good thing is is that we get to move on to the second game and we can take that with us

"It's a tough spot for our guys. Being No. 1 playing No. 16, everyone thinks, 'Oh well, it should be a blowout.' But it's not always that way."

Caesar Rodney 2, Hodgson 1 No. 12 seed Hodgson gave fifth-seeded Caesar Rodney all it could handle in an opening round game of the Delaware High School Soccer Tournament Tuesday night in Milford. Trailing 2-0, Hodgson junior Tim Biliski scored on a header off a pass from Mike Welch. The goal came with 22 minutes to play and put pressure on the high-er seeded Riders.

Hodgson, however, was unable to come up with the tying goal. Hodgson ended the season with a 10-5-2 record.

Holy Angels JV wins CYO crown

The Holy Angels junior varsity football team completed a perfect season Sunday night. Holy Angels won the CYO championship with a 30-14 victory over St. Mary Magdalene before over 1,000 fans at Caravel Academy's Bob Peoples Stadium. The win completed an 8-0 season for Holy Angels. In addition, the defense posted shutouts in six of the wins.

Running back Stephen McCloskey led the way for Holy Angels in the championship game with 228 yards and three touchdowns on just 11 carries.

"I knew we had a good chance to be good this year," McCloskey said. "Last year we made it to the championship game and we have a much better team this year. We had most Holy Angels knocked off St. John the Beloved 22-0 in the semifinals.

This is a great feeling," said Holy Angels coach Dick Vitek, who completed a sensational year of coaching that also saw him lead the Newark National Senior League All-Star team to state and regional championships as well as finishing third in the World Series. "This is these kids first step in football. Last year we there were 17 kids on the St. Mark's roster and 17 kids on the Newark High roster that played football at Holy Angels. In addition to McCloskey's three touchdowns, Holy Angels also got touchdown runs from Michael Pollack and Kyle Davis.

"McCloskey is a very good back," Vitek said. "He's very fast. I don't know many kids in his age group that will be able to catch him."

Holy Angels, which won the first meeting against St. Mary Magdalene 12-0, built a 24-0 lead before St. Mary Magdalene was able to score on a kickoff return.

"I think we do a great job of working together," McCloskey said. "Our team just kept working and we knew we could be pretty good."

Glasgow falls to Sallies in OT

The odds appeared long for the Glasgow High soccer team as it headed into its opening round game of the Delaware High Tournament fourth-seeded Soccer School against Salesianum.

The Dragons lost three of their last four games, had lost to Salesianum by six goals earlier in the season and only had a No. 13 seed in the tournament. Nevertheless, Glasgow played the Sals head-to-head before finally falling 1-0 in overtime.

Salesianum's Josh France banged home the rebound of Beau Malatesta's direct kick in the ninth minute of overtime to earn the Sals' victory.

STATE SOCCER

The goal was the only thing that separated the two teams all night. Glasgow had eight shots to Salesianum's 10 and both teams had six corners.

"It was just a back-and-forth game," said Glasgow coach Bob Bussiere. "I thought the first time we played them, we had a deer-in-the-headlight look about us. But this time I think we clearly established ourselves in the first half.

"In fact, I felt at halftime we could win. We had the better of the play in the last part of the first half and I thought we could keep it up. But we couldn't sustain it and let them back in the game. I

POST PICKS OF THE WEEK

NEWARK (8-0) VS. DEL-CASTLE (6-2) - Saturday morning at Delcastle, 10:30

Delcastle has come an awful long way this season. The Cougars are no pushover and actually still have a chance (a slim one) to get into the state tournament. Newark has continued its high level of play especially in the first halves of games. The Jackets can smell a title showdown with William Penn next week, but they can't look past Delcastle. They won't. The Pick: Newark 34, Delcastle 6.

CHRISTIANA (4-4) VS. McKEAN (2-6) - Friday night at McKean, 7. The Vikings need to win their last two games to ensure a winning season. It would be a shame for a team that entered the season with such high aspirations not to have at least a winning record. McKean has looked good against some teams and has had problems against others. Christiana is the better team and should get its fifth win. The Pick: Christiana 20, McKean 13.

GLASGOW (2-6) VS. BRANDYWINE (2-6) - Friday night at Glasgow, 7. Glasgow broke out of its slump with a big win over McKean last week. The Dragons played good offense and defense and looked like one of the better teams in Flight A. If they can play that way again this week, they should pick up another win over the Bulldogs. We think they will. The Pick: Glasgow 28, Brandywine 19.

ST. MARK'S (3-5) VS. SALE-SIANUM (4-4) – Friday night at Baynard Stadium, 7:30. This game is one that both schools circle from day one of the season. The Spartans, after years of frustration, finally have broken through with back-to-back wins in this series. Salesianum, which has the better team this year, certainly doesn't want to lose another to its archrival. As always, it will be an emotional game in front of a big crowd. Sallies, though, should be the team celebrating. The Pick: Salesianum 27, St. Mark's HODGSON (6-3) VS. DICK-INSON (5-3) – Saturday morning at Dickinson, 10:30. The Silver Eagles can end the season on a great note and have a fine 7-3 record if they can knock off Dickinson. The Rams, though, are looking for the same thing. They earned a big win over Mount Pleasant and could also finish the season with a 7-3 record. Neither team will make the playoffs, so this could be played with that kind of intensity. Look for Hodgson to come out on top. The Pick: Hodgson 22, Dickinson 15.

CARAVEL (5-4) VS. ST. ELIZABETH (8-0) – Saturday night at Baynard Stadium, 7:30. This has always been a spirited rivalry and this year should be no exception. Both teams entered the season with state title aspirations. Only St. E has the opportunity to fulfill that goal. Caravel, though, still has a fine team and would like nothing better than to ruin the Vikings' perfect season. Expect a tight game, but St. Elizabeth has more at stake and that should make a difference. The Pick: St. Elizabeth 21, Caravel 13.

Nationally ranked Jackets win

following a Christiana fumble.

Simpson had high praise for Drew, who topped the one-thousand yard mark for the season. "He's an outstanding running back who's willing to share the ball in the backfield. He's established himself in my mind as the hest running back I've seen this year," he said.

Newark struck again before the end of the first half, as Sophomore Drew Kisner ran 72 vards for his team's final score of the half. The touchdown capped a lightning quick, six play, 99-yard drive after a Christiana punt inside the one yard line. The 29 first-half points were all the Yellowjackets would need to cement their 18th consecutive regular season victory.

Christiana finally got on the attempt failed, and the Viking still faced a daunting 23-point halftime deficit.

The hard hitting continued in the second half, with neither team able to sustain any scoring drives.

Drew said the team didn't let the Vikings style of play bother them. "We had to keep our heads in the game, it wasn't easy, but we managed to keep our composure," he said.

Throughout the second half, both teams were hit with a number of penalties, including several each for unsportsmanlike con-

Simpson said he knew the game would be a challenge. "This is a big game for Christiana and they have a good group of football players. So for us to get the first half lead was important in gaining the victory, but it sure wasn't easy," said Simpson.

Spence said he was pleased with the effort by his club, if not the outcome. "We did a nice job defensively, and we would have done a better job if we had tackled better," he said.

The loss eliminates Christiana from post-season contention, while Newark will likely have the opportunity to challenge for a fourth straight state championship.

Jackets still ranked

Newark was again ranked No. 25 in the nation this week in the Rival.com National Top 25 Ranking.

DON'T MISS A SINGLE ISSUE!

University of Delaware coach Tubby Raymond jogs off the field after his team built a 21-3 lead over visiting New Hampshire.

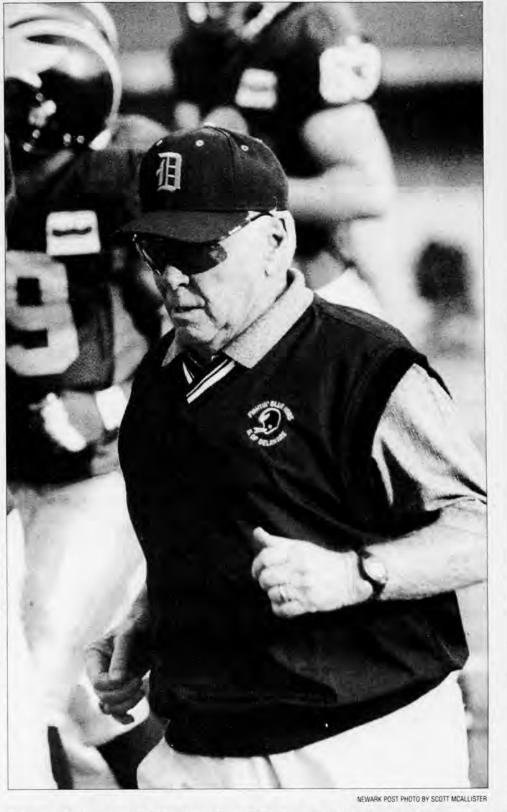

Hens still hope for playoffs

"I think Delaware can definitely win a national champi-onship," said Whipple, whose team won the title in 1998. "They have the offense and defense to do it. "I think James Madison is good enough to win the whole thing. I don't think Richmond can win it all, but they could make a few dents along the way. "And New Hampshire, if they ever got a home playoff game, could win a game or two."
