Money Allotted For New Post Office

35,000 Allotted For First Year's Work On Building; Appropriation Raised $10,000

Thirty-five thousand dollars has been allotted in the recommendation of the Bureau of Budget for the first year's work on the Federal post office building to be built in Newark. The original recommendation of $60,000 is a maximum cost for this building. The appropriation will be for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1927.

The appropriation is predicated upon authorization of $100,000,000 under the terms of the Elliott bill and Congress will undoubtedly make provision for the first year expenditure so that the treasury architects can go ahead with plans and call for bids. When the Reed bill is passed, which is expected within a few days, an additional $100,000,000 for Federal building will become available.

Of nearly 3,000 cities and towns in the country which a survey showed were in need of additional postal facilities, only 130 got on the first year list. The additional funds provided by the Reed bill may allow this list to be supplemented. Georgetown, which was recommended for a $65,000 appropriation, is not on the first year list as yet. The building program, on which the government is embarking, calls for commencement of construction on all recommended projects within a six year period.

Country Club to Hold Dinner On March 10

To Launch Drive For Membership of 300; Want 18 Hole Course

At a meeting of the Special Membership Committee of the Newark Country Club, held in Purnell Hall last night, it was decided to hold a stag dinner for members of the Country Club on the evening of March 10. The dinner will be held in Old College and its purpose will be to arouse enthusiasm for a drive to raise the membership roster to 300. There is at present a membership of 130.

With a membership of 300, the Country Club could increase the club house facilities and put in the second 9 holes which have already been laid out.

The present 9 holes is one of the sportiest layouts in this section of the country, and with changes that will be in effect by the time the golf season opens, it will offer playing conditions equal anything available to golfers in the Mid-Atlantic section. The land for the second 9 holes is owned by the club and the course was laid out some time ago by Wilfred Ried, formerly professional at the Wilmington Country Club and now in Detroit.

In contrast with other good courses in this section, the Newark Club offers really more than older and larger clubs. Even with a membership of 300, there would be no crowding of the course on week-ends, which is such a tremendous problem with other clubs.

The Special Committee is already at work on the membership drive, and at the meeting last night a number of names were proposed for membership. The committee consists of Dr. W. O. Syphard, chairman, Dr. R. W. Heim, Dr. George W. Rhodes, W. C. Wilson, R. C. Lewis, C. H. Hopkins, Howard A. Turner, Sr., J. Mercer Terrell and Paul F. Pie.

UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR AND STUDENTS AT MARSHALLTON

At the meeting of the Marshallton Civic Club last evening, Miss Elizabeth Brady, of the faculty of the Marshallton school, presided. Professor James A. Barkley spoke on "George Washington." Lillian Steel, 29, Women's College, played piano solos. Murcie Holt, 30, recited. Justin Steel, 28, Delaware College, sang several solos.

TRIBUTE TO EVERETT C. JOHNSON

W. F. Metten and W. E. Douglas, of Wilmington, representing the Del-Mar-Va Press Association and the Wilmington Rotary Club visited Welsh Tract Cemetery yesterday afternoon, and placed floral tributes on the grave of Everett C. Johnson.

Holstein-Friesian Association Meets

The annual meeting of the Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association was held yesterday at Winterthur Farms, Winterthur.

After the Winterthur herd, one of the finest in the country, had been inspected, the members held a judging contest. E. B. Klair, of Stanton, had high score and was awarded as a prize, a registered bull calf.

Lunch was served at noon and a short business session held after lunch.

The main speaker was Professor V. A. Rice, of Massachusetts Agricultural College, who spoke on "What Basis-Selection." He was followed by County Agent R. O. Bausman, who took as his topic, "Some Business Phases of Dairy Farming." The third speaker was Robert T. Brinton, of the Inter-State Dairy Association, who explained some of the association's activities.

Those attending the meeting from Newark were: Dr. H. S. Gabriel, Dr. C. C. Palmer, Professor T. A. Baker, County Agent R. O. Bausman, Ed. Willim, Jr., and J. Irvin Dayatt. J. R. Danks, of Winterthur, secretary of the association, acted as host.

Margaret B. Hopkins "College Hour" Speaker

Writer and Lecturer Talks on "Self Expression;" Shows Its Fundamental Relation to Life

Mary Briscoe Hopkins, traveler, writer, lecturer, critic, was the speaker at "College Hour" held this morning at 11 o'clock in Wolf Hall. Dr. Benner, through the kindness of Mr. Winder Laird, of Wilmington, was fortunate in securing Mrs. Hopkins, who replaced Janet Rankin, the scheduled speaker. Miss Rankin was injured in a motor accident Monday, in which she sustained a fractured leg.

Mrs. Hopkins took as her subject, "Self Expression, its Privilege and Duty," first telling of the factors that submerged self-expression and prevented its development by the individual. Self consciousness, Mrs. Hopkins pointed out, was the most tremendous handicap to self expression and was usually engendered by fear, sometimes intangible and often a definite and specific cowardice. Mrs. Hopkins then explained how these factors could be analyzed by the individual and overcome.

She spoke of the acquirement of verbal felicity as an aid to self expression; how it might be obtained by constant reading and attention. She deplored the deterioration of speech caused by reading and using jargon.

In closing, Mrs. Hopkins said that through self-expression we gain confidence of the listener, through this confidence a relation to life, and through this relation to life, power, which, in the final analysis, is what we all desire most.

Mrs. Hopkins has lived in Egypt for many years and on Friday will lecture on Egypt to the Tower Hill School, Wilmington. She is the wife of Arthur John Hopkins, Professor of Chemistry, Amherst College, and is herself a member of the faculty of the Pennsylvania College for Women, as lecturer and critic. Under her maiden name, Margaret Sutton Briscoe, she has published many short stories and essays; among them "Perchance to Dream," "The Sixth Sense," and "The Image of Eve."

Mrs. Hopkins spent last night as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hullahen.

AMBULANCE CALLED TWICE

Friday the Newark ambulance made two trips. One to the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington, with Ike Platt, local cattle dealer, who was suffering from blood poisoning of the foot. R. Shellender and J. Leslie Jones made the trip.

On the second trip it took Mrs. Alice Herbener from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orville Little, to the Flower Hospital, Newark. Eugene Siltz and Bert Crowe made this trip.

GO TO BOSTON MEETING

Dean C. A. McCue and Mr. A. D. Cobb, left today for Boston, to attend a three-day conference of the Northeastern States Extension Workers. The meetings will be held in the Hotel Bellevue.

"ALL THAT GLITTERS—"

For a short time yesterday afternoon, Newark was on the verge of a gold stampede that might have equaled the most lurid periods of Dawson or Gold City days. Workmen digging a cesspool in the rear of one of the bungalows being erected by William J. Lovett, on Haines street, dug to a depth of 8 feet, where they uncovered a vein of what first appeared soft coal. A few strokes of the pick and the vein was found to be speckled with glittering particles of what looked like free gold. The excited workmen smote and shoveled furiously till they had freed enough of the material to fill a bucket. Professor Gilligan, of the University, was hurriedly pressed into service as an assayer, and at a glance dashed the nascent hopes of the budding claim stakers and placer miners. He labeled the material low grade mica, generously mingled with pyrites, better known as "Fool's Gold."

W. C. D. Alumnae Meets Here

One hundred and fifty graduates and former students attended the annual February reunion of the alumnae of the Women's College of the University of Delaware which was held Saturday evening at a banquet in the new dining hall of Women's College. Miss Ruth King, dietitian at the college, was in charge of arrangements.

"Progress and Plans for the Future of the Women's College," was the subject of the address by Dean Robinson.

Alumnae news was given by a representative of each of the nine classes which have been graduated from the college. The speakers were: Miss Edith A. McDougall, '18; Miss Anne G. Scott, '19; Miss Helen Milliken, '20; Miss Anne L. Ritz, '21; Mrs. Eleanor Cannon Spaid, '22; Mrs. Florence Phillips Loose, '23; Mrs. Josephine Barnett Lloyd, '24; Miss Catherine I. Dougherty, '25; Miss Moss Tyler, '26.

Miss Ruth Anne Russell, '23, president of the Wilmington chapter of alumnae, spoke on the activities of this group of graduates.

Mrs. Charlotte Esby Graves, '21, who is now psychologist in the medical division of the Municipal Court of (Continued on Page 8.)

ENTERTAINMENT AT M. E. CHURCH

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Newark M. E. Church are planning an interesting program for the "Martha Washington Tea," to be held in the Sunday School Room on Thursday evening, February 24, at 8 o'clock. Among the numbers which will be: Readings from Riley's poems, with living pictures, and a pantomime, "When the Lamp Went Out." Mrs. James Thornton, of Kirkwood, will give several selections.

DEAN ROBINSON AT TEXAS CONFERENCE

Dean Robinson, of Women's College, left on Monday for Dallas, Texas, where she will attend the conference of the National Association of Deans of Women's Colleges. On Friday, Dean Robinson will discuss a paper which shall be read by Miss White, dean of Carlton College, Northfield, Minnesota, on the subject, "The Dean of Women and the Individual Student."

MINSTREL SHOW

On Thursday, March 3, at 8 o'clock, the Odd Fellows' Minstrels of Elkton will give their show at the Opera House, Newark, for the benefit of the Tri-State Poultry Association. This is the same show that played two nights, last week, in Elkton to S. R. O. The talent is purely local, with the assistance of two professionals.

The proceeds will go to the "Cage Fund," to provide cages for the annual poultry show of the association.

DEGREE TEAM ORGANIZED

The members of Minnehaha Tribe, No. 23, I. O. R. M., are organizing a Warrior's Degree Team, along with their Adoption Degree Team, as they expect to initiate a large class of pale-faces in a few weeks. All members are requested to meet at the Hall on next Sunday afternoon, February 27th, at 2 p. m. This means everybody; as there are several important positions to fill.

Delaware Alumni Hold Dinner

Unveil Portrait Of Everett C. Johnson; Memorial Address By George Morgan

Representing classes from 1858 to 1926, and coming from many states, 150 graduates of the University of Delaware assembled in the du Barry room of the du Pont-Biltmore, Saturday night, for the annual mid-winter dinner and reunion of the Alumni Association of Delaware College. There the graduates were regaled with good food, sprightly music and entertainment and inspiring talks.

One of the features of the evening was the unveiling of a portrait of the late Everett C. Johnson, '99, a former president of the association and trustee of the college, who died a year ago on the eve of the mid-winter dinner and reunion. As the portrait, painted by Stanley Arthurs, was unveiled, the assembled graduates rose and sang the Alma Mater.

The portrait showed Mr. Johnson seated at a table in a moment of relaxation. He is holding an open book in his lap and, through a window, Old College is seen in the background. The portrait will be hung in the halls of Old College. The unveiling was preceded by a brief report by Walter Dent Smith, chairman of the Memorial Portrait Committee.

After the Alma Mater, George Morgan, '75, Sunday editor of the Philadelphia Record, rose and delivered a moving and eloquent eulogy of Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Morgan's eulogy of Everett C. Johnson was delightfully personal, bringing the man up from his boyhood in Sussex County to the halls of Delaware College and following through his life as a student and as a servant of the University, stressing constantly also the unselfishness and patriotism shown in his life. "Everett Johnson had a strong sense of duty to Delaware and to the United States," said Mr. Morgan. "He had a deep sense of obligation to the fathers and founders—he had a sensitive appreciation of his responsibility as an individual in a democracy that is on trial before the world. He brought a quick conscience to his citizenship."

Farm Bureau Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Executive Committee of the New Castle County Farm Bureau will be held Saturday at 1.00 p. m., in the Security Trust Building, Wilmington.

The most important subject of the meeting will be the discussion of a bill to be presented to the Legislature, providing a State veterinarian to test accredited herds. The bill will ask $5,000 to employ the veterinarian, but each dairyman having accredited herd tested will be required to pay an assessment. These assessments are calculated to cover the $5,000 the State will be asked to guarantee.

Other topics for discussion will be the seed potato and soy bean pools. H. C. Milliken, president, will preside.

Emma Wilson Wins B. & O. Scholarship For 1926

Emma F. Wilson, of Porter, Delaware, a member of the Middletown B. & O. Poultry Club, has been awarded the Baltimore and Ohio scholarship of $100.00 for 1926. This selection was made by County Club Agent Ed Wilkin, Jr., of Newark, and has been confirmed by A. D. Cobb, State Leader of County Agents. Miss Wilson was chosen as the outstanding club member of Boys and Girls' 4-H Clubs of New Castle County for the past year. The scholarship for the best club member in the county was made available through the agricultural and commercial development departments of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad of which Mr. O. K. Quivey is general agricultural agent.

Several points were considered by the Club Agent of the county in making the selection of the boy or girl to receive the prize from the railroad. Among these considerations were: Kind of project carried by club member, quality of work done in the project, results of project as shown by final completed record turned in by the club member to the Agent,

Song Evangelist Here For Ten Days

The Reverend Frank Herson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has announced a ten-day series of meetings with Dan L. Hughes, song evangelist, from February 28 to March 10.

Dan Hughes, soldier, singer, evangelist, has a history that somewhat parallels that of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Like Davis, he was born in Wales, the land of sweet singers, and worked as boy in the Welsh coal mines. However, instead of seeking a public career at the outset, he left Wales and sailed the seven seas, until the outbreak of war in 1914, when he joined the British forces and served in the Dardanelles campaign, later serving in the Mesopotamian Desert and on the Afghanistan border. Since 1921, he has been in the United States singing at various churches and revival meetings.

Mr. Hughes will lead the singing and act as soloist at the meetings to be held nightly. The pulpit will be filled by visiting preachers.

University Trustees Met On Saturday

Dr. Hullahen Reports On Progress For Year, Tells Of Visit Of Legislators And Request For Engineering Building; Percentage Of Student Failures Low

The Board of Trustees of the University of Delaware met in Old College, Saturday, and Dr. Walter Hullahen, president of the University, gave his report, telling of the progress made in 1926.

Dr. Hullahen reported on the progress of the plans for a new engineering building and spoke of the visit of the General Assembly to the University. He gave the number of students withdrawing at mid-year, because of low class standing and, after showing that compared to other institutions the percentage of academic mortality was very low in Delaware, brought out the interesting fact that of 16 freshmen dropped by Delaware College, 6 were from out of the state. Compared with the percentage of matriculates from Delaware with the number from other states, this speaks eloquently for the preparation students have received in Delaware schools.

Dr. Hullahen also incorporated in his report the subject of an Academic Extension Department. This plan will be given at length in next week's issue of The Post.

Portions of Dr. Hullahen's report dealing with the maintenance budget, the engineering building and the visit of the Legislators, follows, in part: (Continued on Page 2.)

ALUMNI PARTY

The Newark High School Alumni Association will hold its benefit card party in the auditorium of the High School, Monday night, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds will go to the Alumni Scholarship fund.

Del-Mar-Va Congress Creates Bureaus to Supply Vital Needs

Meeting Called Most Important Non-Governing Body Ever Assembled; Propose Ocean Boulevard; Cite Need Of Many And Money Power

BIG ISSUE MARKETING

Characterized by Josiah Marvel as the most important non-governing body ever brought together in similar territory in America, the Del-Mar-Va Takes Inventory Congress was held Wednesday and Thursday of last week, in Salisbury, Md. The most prominent men in their respective fields in the three states acted as delegates and representatives, and of their number chose members of permanent bureaus to give specific attention to individual problems of all interests on the peninsula.

Following the presentation of the reports on general business conditions in all of the Peninsula's fourteen counties, Joseph H. Willets, A. M., Ph. D., of the Wharton School of Commerce and Finance of the University of Pennsylvania, who had carefully studied the surveys, made the following summary of the situation in his analysis.

"I very heartily agree that the biggest problem before the Peninsula, is the problem of marketing including production problems as to quality, and standardization of grading and packing. We have learned how to produce but we have not learned how to market. We have produced by machinery but we are still marketing by hand."

He further said that while the regional reports were fine, in that they have blazed a way and opened a path for action, the fundamental problems are problems that concern particular crops, rather than regions.

Governor Robert P. Robinson, of Delaware, in his address the opening day of the Congress, spoke on a proposed Ocean Boulevard from Lewes, south to the Maryland line, through Maryland and Virginia, and told how it would open a rich territory to exploitation and settlement.

A. E. Fither, president of A. E. Fither and Company, New York, reviewed general business conditions on the Peninsula, and told of the faith he had in its future; a faith he had backed with a $7,000,000 investment.

Dean C. A. McCue, of the University of Delaware, read a report, "The Marketing Problems of Del-Mar-Va Agriculturists," prepared by Dr. Claude L. Benner. Dr. Benner, confined by illness, could not attend the Congress. Dr. Walter Hullahen was chairman of the meeting Wednesday night.

The main need at present on the peninsula as brought out by the combined reports and surveys, is that of organized marketing facilities. The great general need is increased man and money power to promote the great possibilities that are lying fallow, waiting for development.

The first effect of the Congress was an announcement by A. W. Curtis, superintendent of the Norfolk division, Pennsylvania Railroad System, that he was authorized to arrange for better shipping service, including fast freight, berry and potato trains during those seasons.

RUSSIAN STRING QUARTET

The Russian String Quartet, one of the leading quartets of the East will give a concert in the ball-room of the Hotel du Pont-Biltmore, Friday evening, March 4, at 8.15. The concert will be under the auspices of the Wilmington Music School. Miss Freda Ritz, of this town, will be glad to give further information to those who are interested.

TAKE NATURE WALK

The senior class of the High School yesterday afternoon, on the occasion of Washington's Birthday, and as a special phase in their course of natural observation, took a walk in the country, beyond the proposed new limits of the town.

As this particular celebration was not listed in their regular curricula or supervised by the faculty, it is still undecided what credits will be placed on their records for the effort accomplished.

University Trustees

Met On Saturday

"The University's general maintenance budget was submitted in accordance with the requirements of the budget law of the State to the Governor in September. It contained, as you will recall, a request for an addition of $8,900 per annum to the instructional budget to provide three additional teachers, and an annual addition of $3,500 for agricultural extension and experiment purposes, $2,000 for poultry work and $1,500 for the experiment farm, the last item being the amount needed to bring the farm budget back to what was granted it by the Legislature of 1920.

"The two items of increase have been kept rigidly separate, that for collegiate instruction and that for agricultural experiment station and extension work. This has been done in order to prevent the General Assembly from having an erroneous impression about the amount that is being spent on higher education. The work of the experiment station and agricultural extension department is of enormous importance and value to the State as a whole, but their work should not be confused with the work and needs of the instructional departments of the University, or both will suffer; the instructional departments because they would seem to be receiving too large an appropriation, the station and extension work through the failure to bring their needs sharply to the attention of that large part of our State's population that recognizes their economic value.

Engineering Building

"In accordance with the instructions contained in the resolution of the board at its last meeting relative to a bill for an engineering building, a careful inquiry was made as to the probable cost of a building large enough to house the work of the School of Engineering for the next 25 years with due allowance for the estimated increase in the number of students in that time.

"It was found that the building for which plans were drawn about 10 years ago was much larger and handsomer than seemed necessary, and an estimate on its cost by Alex. Taylor, of the Service Citizens staff, on the basis of details provided by the architects, which put the price at about $650,000 made it necessary to abandon these plans entirely and seek expert advice among the schools of engineering as to some less expensive plan to meet our needs. Valuable suggestions were received from several quarters, notably Lehigh and Princeton. Dean Greene, of the Engineering School of Princeton, who helped to plan the building at Rensselaer while there, and who with his faculty has been at work for several years on plans for their new engineering building at Princeton, had in his possession exactly the data needed and gave us most generously of his time and advice. As a result it was ascertained that an entirely satisfactory building, amply large to house the forms of engineering we are now offering with such increase in the student body as may be expected during the next 25 years, could be erected for $310,000.

"A bill was therefore introduced in the General Assembly early in the session providing for an appropriation of $310,000 for erecting and equipping such an Engineering Building. From what has been said above it is evident that we have reduced the cost to the lowest possible limit and it is earnestly hoped that the General Assembly, in making this great investment in property that will be owned by the State and will serve the State certainly for half a century or more, will not reduce the amount requested, for any reduction will make it impossible to complete the building even in the economical form in which it has been planned.

Visit of General Assembly

"In accordance with their custom the two houses of the General Assembly visited the University on Friday, February 4. A large committee of the faculty, under the chairmanship of Professor Heim, met them at the train with cars and took them on an extended tour of the University grounds and buildings. They first visited the farm, the poultry plant, barns and herds; then drove up to Delaware College and visited Old College, Mechanical Hall, Harter Hall, Wolf Hall, the Library, and at the Women's College, Science Hall, Residence Hall and Sussex, and finished their inspection by examining the new dormitory, New Castle, and sitting down for luncheon in the new Dining Hall.

"It was the general opinion of the members of the faculty committee that all of the visitors showed a very great interest in the University and its work, and certainly those of us who addressed them after luncheon on the needs of the University were agreed that we had never spoken to a more friendly and responsive group of men.

"Ex-Governor Miller who acted as toastmaster, called on several members, both of the Senate and the House and in every case the response indicated a lively appreciation of the value of higher education to the State and both the willingness and the desire that the General Assembly should do all this State can afford to do to equip its State University adequately. On the whole the day was a pleasant and satisfactory one.

"The members of the faculty thoroughly enjoyed meeting and talking with the members of the Legislature, and they seemed interested and pleased with what they saw of the two colleges. My personal impression from conversations with a considerable number of our visitors was that they were as agreeable and friendly a crowd as one could want to meet, and that in addition they are a thoroughly intelligent group of men with a keen sense of duty. I shall be satisfied, whatever decision they reach about our appropriations, that they have done what they honestly conceived to be the best for the State."

Text of Senate Bill 20

1. After paying all school accounts for the year ending June 30th, 1927, the State Treasurer shall ascertain how much money is left in the School Fund. If there is as much as $2,000,000, this sum is to be set aside as a School Building Fund.

If not as much as that is on hand, what there is shall be the Building Fund until June 30th, 1928. Then the balance of the $2,000,000 shall be made up from the surplus remaining after the school expenses for that year are paid.

$800,000 shall be for Wilmington and $1,200,000 for the rest of the State. The money may be used for new schools, additions or alterations as seems best under the circumstances. 2. The State Board of Education is to make plans as soon as possible for the work (outside of Wilmington) and must consult the local boards before beginning actual constructions.

3. If a District has already raised as much as 5 per cent of the assessed value of property there, the amount necessary for further improvements there shall come out of the State Building Fund, without adding to the taxes in the District. But if any District has not yet raised its quota, it must do so, before getting any of the State Fund.

4. No new buildings or additions shall be made in any District without the consent of the local board, unless on petition of 25 voters, a referendum shall be held, and a majority of the votes cast shall be in favor of the school building improvements.

5. In case any school District has not yet raised its quota, it may either issue bonds as provided by law, or accept gifts to help make up the amount.

6. When raised, the money belonging to each District shall be kept separate.

7. County Boards of Assessment shall furnish the necessary data to the school authorities, both State and local.

8. The Governor shall appoint a State School Building Commission of four members, one each from Wilmington, rural New Castle, Kent, and Sussex. Two to be Republicans and two Democrats.

9. Members of Building Commission to serve without pay. Three must agree on any point before action can be taken.

10. Commission must not carry out any plans without consulting State Board of Education and local boards.

11, 12, 13, 14. Commission is authorized to make contracts, employ architects, engineers and other necessary help.

15. Commission shall not act in Wilmington except by request of Wilmington Board of Education.

16. Provides for payment of bills (outside of Wilmington).

17. Wilmington School Board may act alone or in co-operation with the commission.

18, 19. No time limit, but all "reasonable dispatch" in carrying out Law.

20. Commission must report progress to State Board.

21. Provides for purchase of land where necessary.

COOKING DEMONSTRATION

How to save gas in cooking and the way to obtain an afternoon out for bridge, the movies or other social diversion were two things Mrs. Lois Shelton of the Oriole Gas Range Company explained to the housewives of Newark this week in connection with the opening of the new office of the Wilmington Gas Company at 48 East
Main street, on Monday.

While the office is open daily from 9 to 6, in charge of A. E. Fletcher, Newark, manager, the special demonstrations in using oven heat controlled gas ranges by Mrs. Shelton begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continue all of this week.

After this week, those desiring special instructions in using a gas range and particularly the oven controlled ranges may obtain the services, gratis, of Mrs. Mary Gambeau, in charge of the home service department for the company.

The use of the heat controlled gas oven proved a revelation to many housewives. The meat is seared and then the vegetables placed with the meat in the oven in separate containers and pans. Then the heat is set for a certain degree and the matter is forgotten for three, four or five hours. If the dinner is fixed for six in the evening, then the articles of food are placed in the oven at 1, 2 or 3 o'clock. At six the oven is opened and there is the complete meal fully cooked.

"You might be able to guess about the amount of flour or baking powder or something else," said Mrs. Shelton in her demonstrations, "but you cannot guess the temperature of the oven. Through the use of the thermostat, the heat is kept at a stated temperature all the time, and failures are unknown if regulations are carried out."

The heat controlled oven is of great aid to the house wife at canning time.
After the articles are prepared they are placed in jars with the tops loose and put in the oven. That's all there is to it. The thermostat placed at the proper degree will attend to the cooking and all there is to do when the time necessary is consumed, is to take the food from the oven and seal the jars.

DROPS DEAD IN CHAIR

Coroner Green, of Elkton, was called to Conowingo recently to investigate the sudden death of George Grayheal, a former resident of North Carolina who located on a farm in the upper section of Cecil county two years ago. Gray-heal had gone to the office of Dr.
T. Mohr and while seated in a chair fell over dead. The coroner issued a certificate of death from heart trouble superinduced by alcohol. A family survives him.

Elkton

John Braunstein, aged 63 years, employed as a machinist in the Pennsylvania railroad shops at Edge Moor, was found dead in bed at his home in Elkton at noon Monday, he having died of heart trouble. Mr. Braunstein, a native of Wilmington, had not been well for the past couple of days, when his wife called in a local physician to be confronted with his passing away while admitting the physician to his room. Deceased is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. William M. Collins, of Elkton. His father, who is 90 years old, also survives him.

A regional conference of Cecil County Churches will be held on Saturday in the Elkton Presbyterian Church. Miss Dorothy Krauss, of Wilmington, director of young people, will be one of the speakers of the meeting.

Misses Dorothy Denver and Vera Nelson, of Elkton High School Commercial department, have entered the typewriting contest to be held at Tome Institute, Port Deposit, on Thursday.

Elkton Town Council at its meeting last Wednesday evening passed resolutions on the death of its president and Mayor of Elkton, William H.
Mackall.

Richard R. Wood, secretary of the Friends' Peace Committee, was the speaker at the Washington Birthday Assembly of the Cecil County High School on Tuesday afternoon in the high school building, Elkton.

Edward Carter, of Elkton, has been presented with a gold badge and a certificate of 15 years' service as an agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

A three-day mission service began in Trinity Episcopal Church Sunday morning, with Rev. R. E. L. Strider,

An unusual opportunity is offered to teachers of New Castle county to observe a demonstration lesson in History, given by one of the country's finest instructors, Linwood W. Chase, teacher of history in the Horace Mann School, New York City, has been engaged to carry out such a demonstration as a guide to the many teachers who are being asked to present the work they are doing in school each day as part of the program at the Parent-Teacher Association meetings.
Mr. Chase made a splendid appeal to those teachers who attended a similar meeting held in Laurel, on February 12th. He has a grasp of the situation in the rural school, especially, having been, before his appointment to the Horace Mann School, Superintendent of Schools in a rural county in Maine.
The meeting will be held on Saturday, February 26th, at 10 a. m., in the William P. Bancroft School, Eighth and Lombard streets, Wilmington. It includes a demonstration P.T. A. meeting, with suggestions to the local officers of the associations of the county; a talk on the Teaching of History as it is now being carried out in the best schools of the land; and the demonstration in the subject by Mr. Chase with pupils from a nearby school.

Teachers in all the rural districts surrounding Wilmington, and those in Wilmington are urged to attend the demonstration, which cannot fail to give them helpful suggestions in the teaching of History. Officers and all interested members of the Parent-Teacher Associations are also most welcome. Come and make the meeting an enthusiastic one.

Edge Moor P.T. A. will have their regular meeting on March 1; Howell
P.T. A., near Porters, on Thursday, March 3; and North Star Community Club, near Hockessin, on March 8, at which time the topics for both February and March will be presented.
The P.T. A. of McClellandsville, near Newark, always hold their regular meetings on the second Thursday, or March 10; and on the same evening, Welsh Tract P.T. A., also near Newark, will meet. Taylor's Bridge Community Club will be glad to receive visitors on the evening of Friday, the 11th, and their meetings always prove most worth while.

A number of meetings are scheduled for the first two weeks of March, and visitors from nearby districts and towns are always most welcome. It adds a great deal of interest to a program if a few outsiders are present, and the visitors may often go home with a valuable suggestion which will serve to solve some problem in his own local association.

In order to pay for their new piano, Harmony P.T. A. will have a number of entertainments, the first, on Saturday, March 12, when a play is to be presented. The New Castle Home and School Association will meet on March 14, and the association of Ogletown School, near Newark, will hold their meeting on Thursday, March 17.

FEBRUARY 23, 1927

Everett C. Johnson

The following memorial to Mr. Johnson was presented to the Wilmington Rotary Club on March 4, 1926, by a special committee composed of Wm. F. Metten, Hon. Hugh Morris and Josiah Marvel, and became a part of the Club records. Mr. Johnson was an outstanding Rotarian and held the sincere admiration and love of his fellow members to an unusual degree. It seems peculiarly fitting and appropriate that this Memorial be reprinted in this week's edition of The Post on the anniversary of his death.

"The mysterious hand of death has again claimed from us its toll. In the silent watches of the night it came, unannounced, and summoned him we loved. We grieve for we shall see him no more. Not again will his presence, his sympathetic voice, his cheerful, kindly manner, his broad vision, his idealism, his sparkling genius lift our hearts and minds to higher standards of conscience and of right."

"He has gone. Yet his character survives, his goodness and his ideals live. He created for us an atmosphere in which the virtues will continue, all unconsciously, ever to grow. He gave to friendship a new warmth; to life a fuller meaning, to service a greater love, to patriotism a renewed hope, to death itself, a beauty and a charm."

"A philosopher, he early learned that the true secret of happiness lies in making others happy. A scholar, books were to him the ever burning lamps of accumulated wisdom. Publisher and printer, he brought to his craft a skill, a sense of proportion, an artistic talent that gave to his books an added attractiveness. As an orator, metaphor, simile and cadence were ever ready to aid him spur our thought and imagination with alluring pictures painted upon the clouds. Delaware and her people are better by reason of his statesmanship. Through his patriotism America's Constitution has been given new life. To Rotary, he pointed out new opportunities for service. Success he attained in each of his many fields of endeavor, not by chance, but in consequence of struggle and privation which he neither feared nor hesitated to endure and because of the long days and nights he spent in constructive thought and work."

"And now, with life's work well done, life's race well run, life's crown well won, before manhood's morning had quite touched noon, he sleeps, enshrouded in our love and our tears, under the shadows of the hills in the windowless palace of rest."

Submitted for this issue of The Post by William F. Metten.

The True Washington

The United States is passing through a peculiar phase. We are living in a day and age when certain types of writers seem to think that it is their privilege and duty to attack and if possible destroy the good names of those men and women whose lives and noble self-sacrificing work gave this nation its birth. They seem to forget that the surest means by which one can undermine the faith of any people in their institutions is to destroy their faith in the men and women who made those institutions. These self-appointed critics are proclaiming through the press and from the platform, that after all, the fathers of our nation were only common men, who were afflicted with all the vices we see about us in our present day life. They evidently have failed to learn from their contact with society, that the base and ignoble of the present day are adding nothing to the higher achievements of man. If they possessed ordinary common sense they could readily discern that only the wise, the noble and the virtuous add to the world's progress. If this be true today, why was it not true in the past?

The life and work of Washington seem to be one of the chief objects of these attacks. It is fitting that we, on this one hundred ninety-fifth anniversary of the birth of the Father of our Country, call anew to our minds the work of the man. Born of that noble, highly cultured Anglo-Saxon stock that has contributed so much to the development of England and the United States, and schooled in the rough frontier life of the New World, by birth and training he acquired those qualities that were to give him the calm judgement of a creator and the human sympathy that was to enable him to feel the needs of the common man. These qualities made it possible for him to combine Aristocratic, Anglican, Virginia, Democratic, Puritan New England and Catholic Maryland into one nation and hurl into the face of intolerant, divine right England the greatest challenge she ever faced. This leadership, coupled with the diplomatic genius of Franklin, was to unite Catholic and Protestant Europe and hurl it too against England. From that day to this Europe has never engaged in a war in which Catholicism and Protestantism has been the issue. In the conduct of the Revolution Washington showed rare qualities of organization, discipline and leadership. He imposed upon the army the same strict standards of moral discipline which he exercised over his own life. He set the example of a high spiritual standard by personally conducting religious services in the camps. While he won few decisive victories, they were so carefully planned as to win his objective. By assuming great personal risks he enabled his subordinates to win, as Schuyler, Arnold and Morgan at Saratoga. This strategy won the praise of Frederick the Great and gave Washington the credit of being the master of retreat. No leader, not even the great Napoleon, could handle an army in retreat as Washington did. We learn that in the midst of this war, surrounded by enemies, within and without, he clearly discerned the situation. His judgement of the traitors he had to deal with is clearly shown in his letter to Reed in 1778, in which he said, "No punishment, in my opinion, is too great for the man who can build his greatness upon his country's ruin." Again in a letter to Governor Warren he shows that he had a vision of the future when he wrote, "Our cause is noble, it is the cause of mankind and the danger to it is to be apprehended from ourselves." His deeply religious nature appears in a letter he wrote to General Nelson of Virginia after the Battle of Monmouth, "The hand of Providence has been so conspicuous in all this that he must be worse than an infidel that lacks faith and more than wicked that has not gratitude enough to acknowledge his obligation."

However it was not in war that the character of Washington rose to its full stature. At Philadelphia, when the men who had served with him in the army had elected him chairman of the Constitutional Convention, we find him giving expression to a sentence that acts as one of the keys that unlocks to us his character and reveals to us his vision when he said in his opening address, "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair, the event is in the hands of God." Our constitution is the result. His administration shows how well he understood the principles contained in that great document. He gathered around him men whom he had tested and tried. He knew that he was blazing a new trail in government. The day was rapidly approaching when he must lay aside the power the people had given him. Unlike other men, instead of building a dynasty, he trained a group who were to carry on his work. He did it so well that that work still endures. At the close of those eight years of service he delivered an address to the American people in which he sets forth the principles that are to guide them and warns of dangers that threaten the new republic. He warns of the dangers of party and sectional strife. Against the wiles of politicians he uses these words, "One of the expedients of party to acquire influence, within particular districts, is to misrepresent the opinions and aims of other districts." Our leaders should ponder this warning today. Against sectional strife he wrote, "Your union ought to be considered as a main prop of your liberty, and that the love of the one ought to endear to you the preservation of the other." Had the leaders of the United States during the 40's and 50's heeded this warning we might have been spared the Civil War with all its greater calamities of re-construction. Against a military system he wrote, "They (The States) will avoid the necessity of those overgrown military establishments, which under any form of governments, are unattractive to liberty, and which are regarded as particularly hostile to Republican Liberty." This was a warning intended for the world of that day. Had Europe followed that warning how different would have been the course of human history. His conception of the constitution and of its relation to the people he sets forth as follows, "The basis of our political systems is the right of the people to make and alter their constitutions of government. But the constitution, which at any time exists, till changed by an explicit and authoritative act of the people, is sacredly obligatory upon all. The very idea of the power and of the right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government." This advice applies with special force in our day. Again, after long years of service and trial, he gives expression to the fundamental basis of all true greatness both individual and national, when he wrote, "Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. . . . and let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion." He applies this principle to the situation as he saw it in this, "It is substantially true that virtue or morality is a necessary spring of popular government." In order to secure the virtue which he considers so essential he gives expression to the means of securing it. "Promote, then, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened." Washington foresees a nation happy through its virtue and intelligence.

In foreign relations he is equally clear and positive. He is often quoted falsely. In this same address he defines his position and warns of future complications. He lays down a safe course which he sums up as follows, "Observe good faith and justice towards all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. . . . Nothing is more essential than that permanent, inveterate antipathies against particular nations and passionate attachment for others should be excluded." He foresaw the position of the United States before the world shortly after the Civil War when he wrote, "If we remain one people, under one efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyances; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; When we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel." His advice in foreign policies he sums up in a few words, "Tis our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world." In the light of this we see how he and the men around him framed a government so elastic as to be capable of including the whole world. He must indeed be blind who cannot see that the nations of the world, having thrown off the yoke of autocracy, are rapidly drifting to that ideal. In judging the life of Washington, or any man, we have a test given us by the great Master Teacher, "By their fruits ye shall know them." You and I can travel by any means we wish to any part of this broad land, and even to the civilized nations of the world, and so long as we keep within the law we are free. We can grow or make what we wish and sell it in any market: We can petition our government to do this or that: We elect representatives to our government to do our bidding. All this and more because Washington lived.

Written for this issue of The Post by Professor James A. Barkley, acting head of the History Department, University of Delaware.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

We quote from "Our Times," by Mark Sullivan: "The newspapers of 1900 contained no mention of smoking by women, nor of 'bobbing,' nor 'permanent wave,' nor vamp, nor flapper, nor jazz, nor feminism, nor birth-control. There was no such word as rum-runner, nor hijacker, nor bolshevism, fundamentalism, behaviorism, Nordic, Freudian, complexes, ectoplasm, brain-storm, Rotary, Kiwanis, blue-sky law, cafeteria, automat, sundae; nor mah-jong, nor cross-word puzzle. Not even military men had heard of camouflage; neither that nor 'propaganda' had come into the vocabulary of the average man. 'Over the top,' 'zero hour,' 'no man's land' meant nothing to him. 'Drive' meant only an agreeable experience with a horse."

SAMUEL J. WRIGHT

On September 18, 1926, Samuel J. Wright, after only a brief illness was called in the providence of God to his final reward. For more than half a century he had been a resident of Newark. For sixteen years he had served as a member of this Board. Progressive and highly successful in business; interested and influential in all plans for civic betterment; widely known personally in the State of Delaware and, through his business connections, in all parts of the world; considerate in a marked degree of the comfort and welfare of the many people in his employ; and to the last day of his life generous to every call of charity; his death marks the passing of one who was for many years an outstanding figure in this community.

Therefore Be It Resolved: That this brief record of an active and useful life be inscribed in the minutes of this Board and that a copy of the same be sent to the family with assurances of the Board's deep sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolution passed by Trustees of the University of Delaware, at a meeting held February 19.

Cups Awarded to Young Corn Judges

Dean McCue, Professor Heim, and Professor Schuster attended the Father and Son Banquet given at Bridgeville last Friday evening by the McCue Agricultural Club of the Bridgeville High School. On that evening two cups were awarded for the best score in corn-judging. The first cup, which is given annually by the State Bankers' Association, to one of the State High School Agricultural Clubs, was awarded this year to the McCue Club, and the team which scored included three boys: Edward McCauley, Leon McCauley and William Hastings. Thomas Ingram, of Lewes, president of the State Bankers' Association, made the presentation speech. Dean McCue addressed the meeting on theme: "Agricultural Possibilities of Sussex County." Professor Heim also made a short speech, congratulating the boys on their achievement.

With ten high school agricultural teams competing, the Bridgeville team averaged 87.4 in the corn-judging contest, which was held at the State Corn Show at Middletown on January 14. Sanford team scored second, with 86.7, and Newark third, with 86.3. The boys judged four ten-ear samples of white corn, four ten-ear samples of yellow corn, four single-ear samples each of white and yellow corn. Sixty per cent was given for placing; forty per cent for reasons. The decision as to the winning team was made by the agronomy department of the University of Delaware.

The second cup, awarded annually by the State Corn Growers' Association to the individual, not necessarily a high school boy, who ranks highest in the corn-judging contest, was won by Leon McCauley, of Bridgeville, with a score of 93 per cent. Professor Schuster, secretary to the association, made the presentation speech.

The Bridgeville team, including the winner of the individual prize, was coached by Lyle Molds, agricultural teacher in the Bridgeville High School. Mr. Molds was graduated from the University of Delaware four years ago.

Women's College Notes

At the business meeting of the Alumnae on Saturday, plans were discussed for having a portrait of Dr. Robinson painted and presented to the College, probably on Founders' Day. Mabel Smith, '23, president of the association, is chairman of the committee, the other members of which are: Edith McDougale, '18; Anne Russell, '23; and Marjorie Burns, '24.

Marian Steele '28, and Marie Evans '29, are assisting Dr. Heim in the absence of his secretary, Mrs. Orville Little.

The resident faculty of Women's College entertained other members of the faculty last Wednesday evening at the formal opening of the new faculty parlors in Residence Hall. Invitations had been issued to the members of the faculty of Delaware College and their wives, the trustees, and their wives, and to the advisory board.

The storm on Saturday did not dampen the enthusiasm of the returning W. C. D. girls, who were greeted by Dean Robinson and the resident faculty at a tea in the new faculty parlors in Residence Hall from the until five, after which the alumnae held a business meeting. The banquet was held in the new dining room at 6:30.

Vesper service on Sunday evening was arranged by the girls from the third floor of Sussex Hall, in the Common Room of that Hall, and was attended by a hundred students and faculty. Five-minute talks concerning the recent Y. W. C. A. Conference at Hood College were given by Miss Clerihew, Anne Walker, Ethel Merritt, and Dorothea Pierson. An Barclay played the violin and Le Simmons sang.

The Juniors have been measured for their class rings and the order will be placed this week. Lillian Benson is chairman of the ring committee.

Miss Rachel Taylor is planning to take her class in art appreciation to New York City the week-end of March 4, to visit art museums, exhibitions, and to hear lectures.

NEWARK NEW CENTURY CLUB

The Monday meeting of the Newark New Century Club was held in the evening at the club house. All business was dispensed with because this was an open meeting given entirely to the program committee, with Mrs. Armand Durant as chairman.

Mrs. Charles Griffith made an address "The Growth of Music in America," illustrated with piano solos by Mrs. Griffith and vocal solos and duets by Mrs. Julian Adair and Mrs. Clarence Dickey, all of Wilmington.

The program, of great beauty and interest, included Colonial music, Indian music, Negro music, modern music and music by women writers.

At the meeting of the club next Monday, February 28, at two-thirty, Dr. Claude Benner will talk on "Current Events."

Milne and Holt Outshoot Maryland
Players in Tight Game

Three long shots by Milne in the last five minutes of play, gained a 22 to 14 victory for the University basketball squad over St. John's College, in a game played Friday night at Annapolis. Up to that stage, the game had been close and even, with Hugh Holt keeping the balance for Delaware. The game throughout was featured by close guarding on the part of both teams.

Milne and Holt, with 8 and 7 points respectively, were the offensive stars for the Blue and Gold. Ditman of St. John's earned a split in scoring honors with 8 points.

Next Friday, Delaware will meet Swarthmore College. The game will be held in the Auditorium, Wilmington.

Soy Bean Market Good

The demand for Delaware soy beans has been much heavier this month than for the corresponding period last year, with a resulting increase in price. The average, so far this month has been $2 a bushel, allowing a reasonable profit to the farmer.

The crop in the market at present is heavier than the preceding crop, but the increased demand has more than allowed for the surplus. Last spring the soy bean market suffered a severe glut. This year many farmers have already disposed of their entire crop.

Corbett K. O.'s Boban In 2nd at Elk Mills

Second Card of Pastime A. A.
Crowded With Action; Lefty
Smith Outpoints Young Southern

The second fight card of the Elk Mills Pastime A. A., held last Friday night, provided all the action anticipated by a large turnout of fans. A good number of Newark sport followers were there to root for "Lefty" Smith, local featherweight, who flayed Young Southern, of Wilmington, with a snaky, ripping left hand for four rounds, taking the decision easily.

The main bout ended abruptly in the second round when Johnny Corbett, U. S. Marines, knocked out George Boban, of Chester. This bout was expected to be a hummer as both men had won by knockouts in the preceding week's card. However, Corbett, like a true leatherneck, landed early and often and Boban took five counts, before he went down for the finale. The men were welterweights.

In the semi-final, a lightweight bout, Jimmy Campbell, Marcus Hook, and Toney De Marco, Wilmington, staged the second chapter of their series of altercations with the same result as the first one. Campbell, clever and crafty, took the decision in 6 rounds.

In the other preliminaries, Toney Ross and Jack Portney, Baltimore feathers, fought a 4-round draw; Dutch Seth, Elk Mills, and Willie Peterson, Elkton, welters, battled four stanzas to a split finish; Jimmy Jones, Elkton lightweight, won from George Smith, Baltimore, in 4 rounds.

Score 32 To 31

The University of Delaware quintet went to Chester last night, and after having a basketball game in their laps, spread their knees and let it fall through. However, it's easy to lose most anything in Chester. Their versus were the Pennsylvania Military College five, who nosed them out 32 to 31.

Delaware led throughout the first half and with the exception of one interval, in the beginning of the second frame, right up to the closing minutes of play. With the score 31 to 30, two minutes before the whistle, a personal foul gave Shaw of P. M. C. two free shots at the basket, and he netted them both for the deciding figures.

Johnny LeCarpentier displayed old-time form and rang the bell for 5 field goals and three fouls, while Barton came through with pretty tosses at crucial moments.

McCafferty, star P. M. C. guard, took the scoring honors with 15 points.

Newark Smothers Del. City, 41 to 7

Subs Play Most of Game; Allow Only 2 Goals

Friday evening in the Armory, the Newark High School boys basketball squad held high carnival at the expense of Delaware City. The results, reading from left to right, were 41 to 7.

The High School second string played most of the game, and while they accounted for only 7 of the 18 field goals, they were masters of the situation at every period of their incumbency.

The scoring was fairly evenly distributed among the Newark boys; Riley led with four from the field and 2 fouls for 10 points. McManus, Delaware City center, was the only one to break through Newark's defense. He rang the bell twice from the field. One of the features of the exhibition was the playing of Paul Pié, paper-weight forward, for Newark. The spectators thought he was the mascot until he was sent on the floor, but he showed a finished floor game and accounted for one field goal. Delaware City, not to be outdone in novelties, put in an infant prodigy smaller than Pié.

Vocational Ag. Ten Years Old Today

Dr. R. W. Heim, State Director of Vocational Education, has called attention to the fact that Vocational Agriculture is one decade old today, on February 23, 1917, Woodrow Wilson affixed his signature to the Smith-Hughes Act. Dr. Heim has given a brief resume of the history of vocational agriculture and the results obtained in the first ten-year period, as follows:

"To those of us who have engaged in this work for the greater part of a period of years this anniversary marks an important milestone. We can't help at this time, pausing to look back and being a little reminiscent. We also feel that it is an appropriate time to look into the future and speculate on what the development of the next ten years will be.

The progress of the past ten years, as far as figures are concerned, can be told in a few words.

"Prior to 1917 only a few states, notably Massachusetts, New York, Indiana, Wisconsin, and one or two others, made any serious attempt to teach agriculture in a practical way in their public schools. Today vocational agriculture, with college-trained, farm-reared teachers employed for months in the year, is a part of the educational program of every state in the entire country.

"In 1917-18 there were 600 schools in the United States employing teachers of vocational agriculture. Today there are almost 5,000.

"Ten years ago there were 16,000 persons enrolled in vocational agricultural courses. In 1926 there were 60,000, and at the present time there are approximately 125,000.

"The first year that Smith-Hughes funds were available, Uncle Sam sent the state $548,000 to help pay the salaries of teachers of vocational agriculture. Last year the federal aid for this purpose amounted to $3,027,000 in addition to approximately $600,000 which was spent in the agricultural colleges in the training of vocational teachers. All this money, if available, must be matched with state or local funds. Consequently the cost of this type of education is now about $7,000,000 annually.

"In a brief way these figures set forth the more important facts relative to the growth of vocational agriculture from the time that the Smith-Hughes Act was passed by Congress in 1917 to the day of its tenth birthday will be observed in 1927.

"But statistical information, after all, tells only an unimpressive part of the story. And the figures I have given hardly suggest what this type of education has meant to more than 600 rural communities.

"Most of the teachers of vocational agriculture have been employed in the small town high school or in the rural consolidated school in the open country. This new department in these schools has brought about a wonderful change in the local viewpoint with respect to education, and has been responsible for the development of a new attitude toward many individual and community problems.

"Without any attempt to make a complete analysis I would like to suggest what, to my mind, represent some of the more important results of vocational education in agriculture, as we have thought about them while observing the progress of the past ten years.

"First. The state and federal funds that have been made available to the rural schools have enabled them to employ a teacher of remarkably high qualifications. Every state pays at least 50 per cent of the annual salary of the full-time vocational teacher from federal funds, and many of them pay as much as one-fourth in addition from state funds. In this way, for example, a community in such a state may employ a teacher who receives an annual salary of $3,000 for one-fourth of the total amount, or $750. Since every teacher of vocational agriculture who is employed at this time is a four year college graduate, the rural schools are able to employ teachers with training and experience equal to the better prepared teachers in the city school systems.

"Second. Most of the teachers of vocational agriculture are married men with families. They are employed for 12 months in the year. They are citizens of the communities in which they live. This is a condition far more conducive to school progress and stability than where none of the teachers are employed for the calendar year.

"Third. The teaching of vocational agriculture has raised in the minds of the people the question—what, after all, is the aim and function of the high school? Is it, they are beginning to ask, to simply give such courses as will best prepare the few for college, or is its primary job to prepare the majority to live in the community that supports the school? It is well for such questions to be raised. We have developed an educational system that has grown like a mushroom and too few people have thought in terms of the ultimate objective of it all.

"Fourth. This type of school instruction has brought the boy who wants to become a farmer an excellent opportunity for training. Moreover, the method used in teaching dignifies labor by making it a part of the school requirements. At the same time it encourages the development of habits of thrift and industry—two of the virtues, by the way, which we would all do well to cultivate.

"Fifth. The teacher of vocational agriculture has brought the part-time and evening class to the rural community. Where formerly classes for those young men who had dropped out of school, and classes for adults were organized only in cities and in industrial centers now such classes are being organized for the farmer and his son. Last year 20,000 farmers attended 'night schools' organized and conducted by vocational teachers.

"Sixth. The vocational man makes the community the basis for his teaching and his work. He has a great opportunity for leadership. With his aid many communities have inaugurated activities and perfected organizations that have added greatly to the enjoyment and the prosperity of the patrons of the school.

"Seventh. Vocational agriculture has been a stimulus to the agricultural college and the experiment station. It has provided a new field of employment for the agricultural college graduate. It has, so to speak, placed an emissary of the college and the station in the rural community—a representative who interprets these institutions to the people, who distributes their literature, and who aids in the dissemination and application of their recommendations. Furthermore, the teacher of vocational agriculture is a recruiting officer for the college. Ten per cent of the vocational boys who complete their high school work go to the agricultural college according to a study made several years ago by the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

"Other results of vocational agriculture might be suggested such as the new relationship of the home and the school which the supervised practice work of the boys has brought about, but this and other obvious results need not be presented.

"Over the greater part of the 10-year period since this work was started the farming business has been on the bum. Today, based on the present condition, it is the most unpromising business for which any boy can prepare. This has had an effect on the progress of the work, and the remarkable thing is that under such conditions as have obtained since 1917 the enrollment in the agricultural classes, and the number of schools offering the course have consistently increased from year to year. This indicates, I believe, that vocational agriculture has been accepted by the public as a worth while educational effort and as a factor in the agricultural development of the country.

"But what of the future? Will the ten years ahead see a further development comparable to that of the past decade? That there will be further development there is little doubt. It will, however, be nothing like that of the ten years that have just elapsed. The federal grants for this type of education have reached maturity. There will be no increase in federal funds for vocational education in the near future. There is a growing sentiment in this country against all types of 50-50 legislation, that is, the kind where the government puts up a dollar that must be matched to be spent. Whether this is a wise attitude is very doubtful, but it is nevertheless a fact.

"Further expansion of the program will depend on the attitude and the appropriations of the several states. Some states will continue to increase funds for this work just as they have during the past ten years. Others are through. They will maintain the schools they have aided, but will not increase the number.

"The Federal Act, we are told, was not designed to finance a nation-wide program of vocational education, but merely to promote an interest in this type of training. It has served this purpose well. It has brought to the attention of the public the need for a more practical type of education, as well as the practical value of such instruction. It has carved a niche for itself in the American system of public education. That is the reason, I think, why it is worth while to give some thought to the passing of the tenth birthday of vocational education in agriculture."

Emma Wilson Wins B. & O. Scholarship

of her baby chicks she had only six cockerels and eighteen pullets at the completion of the project in November, 1925. These she valued at $45.00. With a total cash expense of rearing the chicks of $4.35 she would have had a profit of $40.65 for the year had she sold all of her stock.

In the flock management year of the project in which the club member was to manage the small flock of laying birds hatched and raised the previous year, Emma placed second in her club. She was surpassed by a boy who had raised 42 of the baby chicks given him at the same time as Emma received her allotment. However, in proportion to the number of hens and young stock involved during the flock management year Emma, by keeping down her expenses, made a larger profit per poultry unit than did her competitors. She made a profit of $75.10 on her small flock of chickens during 1926.

Due to certain farm conditions not under her control, Emma was forced to let her laying birds run at large after May 19, 1926. From November 8, 1925, when she received her first egg, until May 19, 1926, when her chickens were turned out, they had averaged 62.25 eggs apiece.

On May 19 she received 8 eggs from the 10 hens she had at that time. This indicated that her flock was in good production when her daily egg records ceased. Her best month's egg record was in April when her hens averaged 20.43 eggs for that 30-day period. The total expenses on the old stock during the year was $7.55—a comparatively low cost but due somewhat to the fact that considerable of the feed was secured at home and rated only at farm prices.

Aside from her old stock during 1926, Emma raised 35 baby chicks at an expense of $6.45. She had sold up to November 15, 1926, broilers and other young stock to the amount of $13.10. Her inventory November 15, 1926, over that of one year previous netted the young poultry raiser a $20.55 increase.

Another factor that weighed heavy in favor of the winner of the scholarship was her general interest in junior extension activities of the county outside of the more or less limited field offered her in the poultry club project.

Emma being, in the Agent's estimation, a distinctly rural type of girl, was and is very much interested in trying her ability in furthering the junior 4-H Club Work among the boys and girls of her community. Some of this inspiration Emma received at the Junior Short Course held in Newark the first week of last August. She was very much "in" on everything during the week, and no doubt took home with her more ideas and aids to help in 4-H Clubs of her community than any other member present. As a direct result of the week spent at the University during the Short Course, Emma has organized two sewing clubs, one in her own community near Howell's School, and the other in one of the grades of the Middletown School. The local leader for the former club was secured by her and in the latter case she is the local leader. (Having had the home economics course at Middletown High School, from which she graduates this June, the Agent believes she is qualified to fill this position).

Emma intends, if her plans materialize, to enter the University of Delaware this fall and the scholarship awarded her by the Railroad Company will be used by her in that capacity. After completing her college course she plans to teach, (in fact she has now passed her teacher's examinations) in the State. When questioned to find out if she would organize a 4-H Club around any school in which she hopes to teach, she replied that she surely would.

Cream intended for whipping purposes should contain at least 30 per cent butterfat. Either raw or pasteurized cream will whip satisfactorily. The whipping quality of cream is improved by age. Aging for 24 hours is usually about right for cream with a 30 per cent butterfat content.

Mark that if you please, State patriotism! He was unflinching. He was out to do good and he did it—did it for Delaware."

W. E. Dengler, president of the Peirce School of Business Administration was the speaker of the evening and spoke of the need of truth, the relation of the college man to truth and his obligation and opportunities because of this relation.

Short addresses were also given by former Chancellor Charles M. Curtis, F. K. Reybold, managing editor Every Evening, Josiah Marvel and Arthur G. Wilkinson, business administrator of Delaware University.

Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of Delaware University, a scheduled speaker, phoned a message of regret; due to the storm and engine trouble was forced to give up his attempt to reach Wilmington by motor.

In respect to the memory of former Secretary of State Sylvester D. Townsend, Jr., who died last Wednesday, the meeting stood with bowed heads for a minute of silent homage.

COLLEGE DANCES

Eighty couples attended the nineteenth annual formal dance of the Delaware Alpha Chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity which was held in Old College last Friday evening. George Kelly's orchestra furnished the music. M. N. Donohue, '27, president of the fraternity, received the guests. The invited patronesses were: Mrs. Hüllihen, Mrs. G. E. Campus activities were told by a representative from each of the classes now in college. Miss Anne T. Walker spoke on Freshman vocational guidance. Changes in the college as seen through Sophomore eyes were given by Miss Edith A. Nunn. Miss Marian H. Steele talked about the Junior year book. Miss Edith Bogdanoff, who spent last year in study in France with the Foreign Study Group, spoke on Senior foreign study. College singing had its place between courses.

Colors, appropriate to the patriotic holidays, were used for decorating the dining-room. Red and white carnations were the table centerpieces. Red, white, and blue nut baskets marked each guest's place. No individual place cards were used, but the alumnae were seated by classes. The committee in charge of the decorations consisted of Frances R. McCoy, '23, Irene Wilkinson, '26, and Ruth Ewing, '26. Miss Edith A. McDougle, '18, now a member of the faculty, together with the officers of the association, assisted with the banquet arrangements.

The toastmistress was Miss Mabel E. Smith, of Freehold, N. J., president of the Alumnae Association. Dr. Walter Hüllihen, president of the University, was present for a short while. Mrs. A. D. Warner, a member of the advisory council for the Women's College and an honorary member of the alumnae, and Miss Sara Churchman, former dietitian at the college, were also guests.

In the afternoon, from 3 until 5 o'clock, Dean Robinson and the resident faculty of the college entertained at tea for the alumnae in the new faculty club rooms in Residence Hall. Following the tea, a business meeting of the alumnae was held.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARGARET L. LOVETT

Mrs. Margaret L. Lovett, 32 years of age, wife of Delaware Lovett, died Friday morning at 1.45, at her home here, from typhoid fever. Mrs. Lovett was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lum, of East Delaware avenue. She was the second girl to enter Women's College. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church of this town. She is survived by her husband and three small children, Vernon, Doris, and a four-weeks' old baby, Royden.

The funeral services were held from the residence of the parents of the deceased on Monday at 2 o'clock, conducted by Reverend Frank Herson. Interment was made in Bethel Cemetery, Bethel, Maryland.

JOHN A. MULLIN

John A. Mullin, aged 82 years, died in Philadelphia, February 19. Relatives, friends, and Oriental Lodge, I. O. O. F. were invited to attend the funeral services this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the funeral parlors of R. T. Jones. Interment was made in the Newark cemetery.

Mr. Mullin lived in this town when he was a young man. He is survived by two brothers who are known here, Edward A. Mullin, who lives in California, and William A. Mullin, of Marshallton; also by a niece and nephew, Mrs. Elizabeth Worrell and Ernest Mullin; and a great-niece and great-nephew, Mrs. Wayne Brewer and Walter A. Powell, all of this town.

The Woman's Guild of St. Thomas Church will hold a rummage sale on February 24 and 25, beginning at 10 a. m. each day, in the vacant store owned by L. Handloff, on Main street.

REVEREND AND MRS. HERSON RECEIVE GIFTS

At the close of the morning service at the Methodist Episcopal Church last Sunday, Reverend Frank Herson was presented by the members of his congregation, with a gold watch, chain, and pen-knife, suitably engraved. Mrs. Herson received a handsome cameo pin. Dr. Harvey Ewing made the presentation speech, voicing the affection and esteem which the gifts represented.

AETNA LEAGUE IN TIE

The Aetna bowling league at the conclusion of last night's games stood with all four teams in a deadlock, each having won and lost 4 games.

Friday night the Fire Company beat the National-Curtis 2 games while Continental and the Business Men's teams broke even. Continental had high score of 800, and Hopkins of that aggregation took individual prize with 180.

Last night the Business Men took two from the Fire Company, and Continental split with Curtie-National. Charles Eisner was high man last night.
