

Civil Defense Needs Support Of Every Citizen, Mayor Says

First Of Series Of Articles By Mayor Says Constant Readiness Needed To Meet Sudden Attack; Over-All Civil Defense Outlined

Every person and every community has a vital part to play in the civil defense program now being organized throughout the nation, Mayor Wallace Johnson said this week in the first of a series of articles on Newark's defense preparedness.

Civil defense must be promptly organized and held in constant readiness, he said, because for the first time in 136 years an enemy has the power to attack our cities in strong force and for the first time in our history the attack may come with little or no warning.

Mayor Johnson, who is now laying the groundwork for Newark's civil defense program, has gathered a wealth of information from state and national officials, which he plans to pass on to the public through the Post.

The first article in his series, carried below, sketches the over-all organization and purpose of civil defense. Subsequent articles will cover local phases of C. D., describe the problems confronting this community, and give pertinent information on such vital defense measures as emergency first aid and individual protection under air attack.

Civil Defense, No. 1 Mayor Wallace Johnson

In order to acquaint the citizens of this community and its vicinity with the growing importance of a vital branch of our National Security Program—Civil Defense—this and subsequent articles are being published as a public service.

It is urgently requested that serious thought be given and action taken by our citizens in the matter of civil defense. The Hon. W. Stewart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, has stated that to be successful a civil defense "will require the cooperation of every man, woman and child in this nation."

Civil Defense is defined as the protection of the home front by civilians acting under civil authority to minimize casualties and war damage and to preserve maximum civilian support of the war effort.

With the military establishment expanding and industry being geared to that expansion, the drain on this country's resources will necessarily be great. Therefore, civil defense must be planned with full knowledge of the importance of maximum economy in the use of the available supply of men, money and materials.

The civil defense system, as now planned, depends on the cooperation between critical target areas and the communities around them. Support of large urban areas by the surrounding communities within each state will lessen the procurement program and also ease the drain on men, money and materials.

Critical areas are defined as potential targets for atomic bombs and for other bombs of a high explosive or fire type. Within these areas, the same principle of mutual aid will apply. The individual (Continued on Page 7)

Fossett Is Nominated For Army Commission

John L. Fossett, 17 Center Street, is one of five "distinguished military students" at the University of Delaware, who have been nominated for commissions as second lieutenants in the regular army.

The appointments will be made during the summer after the completion of a physical examination and of ROTC and university requirements. The announcement was made by Second Army headquarters, Fort Meade, Md.

The five Delaware students are among the selected throughout the United States on the basis of high academic standing, leadership and general college activities.

These five were earlier appointed "distinguished military students" by F. A. House, and the appointments were approved by Dr. A. P. Colborn, then acting president of the university.

NHS Student Writers Join In Controversy Over Comic Books

Newark High School students this week entered the great comic book controversy, which has been raging for some time among parents and educators in the nation.

The students set forth their ideas in a number of theses.

The writer hinted that a ban on comic books would lead to an underground movement. The same student implied crime comics might encourage children with criminal tendencies.

The writer pointed out that if a comic fan set out "to rob a store or carry out some other criminal act, he won't make the same mistake" as book heroes.

Another student, charging the world was serious at times, said the food supply should be increased because "add something to life." This drew a dark picture of a world in which people were forced to read "comic books" all the time. This student denied that comics lead children committing crimes. "Children,"

Ground Clearing Begun For Huge Tank Plant

Bulldozers, rollers and other giant earth moving equipment will begin the first land grading and filling for the Chrysler tank plant here, in a few days, Robert T. Keller, general manager, announced.

The order for the preliminary work was placed Monday by the Ferguson Construction Company of New York City. Purchase orders for structural steel have been placed with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

As soon as the ground is ready and the foundations placed, erection of the steel framework will begin.

Car Rams Into Rear Of Truck Saturday

Two auto accidents took place here the past week, both on Saturday morning.

In the first, Nicholas Williams, 27 Thompson Circle, crashed into the rear of a truck operated by Ernest Jones, 94 Rose Street. The mishap took place on East Main Street. The truck stopped to permit a car in front of it to turn into a driveway, and Williams, who was following both cars, was unable to stop in time. Damage to Williams' car, which was smashed in around the front, has not been estimated.

Later that morning, Wilbert Thorpe, 39 Lovett Avenue, sideswiped a car driven by Charles Talpey, of Claymont, at the corner of East Delaware Avenue and Haines Street.

Both cars were traveling east on Delaware Avenue and Thorpe, thinking Talpey was going to turn left into Haines, attempted to go around his right side. Talpey, however, continued straight and Thorpe brushed his side in order to avoid another car parked along that curb.

Du Pont Company To Expand Facilities On Land Near Here

In an expansion of its research facilities in animal medicine and nutrition, the Du Pont Company will erect four modern buildings at Oakland, a 291-acre farm near here, it was announced today.

The four principal buildings, preliminary work on which is already underway with construction scheduled to start in early spring, will be single story brick structures. The cost of the project is estimated at about $2,700,000.

Du Pont's Grasselli Chemicals Department first entered the field of research in animal medicine and nutrition in 1945. The original work was done in a small building on the campus of the University of Delaware, at Newark, and has continued there and in a large farm house at Oakland, which was bought in 1948.

The new research facilities have been named "The Stine Laboratory." Oakland is about three miles from Newark on the Newark-Elkton Road.

C. of C. Plans Annual Dinner, January 25; Seek New Members

Group Plans Clearing House Of Information On Civic Club Meetings

Plans for the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce were announced this week by Murray Strauss, chairman. The affair will be held Thursday, Jan. 25 at 6:30 p.m. in the Newark Country Club.

Dinner will be served to members and their wives. Following this, there will be election of officers and then entertainment and dancing. Tickets are now on sale and may be obtained from Mr. Strauss, any member of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, or from the executive secretary of the organization, Mrs. George Axinn.

The annual membership drive is being held in conjunction with the dinner. All civic, business, industrial, and professional leaders of the community are eligible for Chamber membership. A plan of work committee is now drafting a program for 1951 that will best fit the needs of the area. It is expected that the function of the Chamber will be greatly enlarged following the growth of Newark's industry.

At the same time, it is hoped that the Chamber of Commerce will develop a clearing house service of information and meeting dates for the convenience of other civic organizations in Newark. All Newark residents interested in furthering the aims of the Chamber are urged to contact any member of the Board of Directors or Mrs. Axinn.

Effect Of Defense Worker Influx On Schools Is Studied

Families Attracted Here By New Tank Plant To Pose School Problem

The impact on the local schools of an expected influx of defense workers and their families following the erection of the proposed Chrysler tank plant here will be considered at the January meeting of the Newark Board of Education tomorrow night in the high school.

The problem is a thorny one for the board, which is already faced with overcrowded schools despite the fact that a new elementary building was opened here last year.

To handle immediate needs the board has requested the current General Assembly for an appropriation to finance a broad scale building program. This will include a new grade school in a rural area, an agriculture and shop annex to the main high school building and a cafeteria for the New London Avenue school.

Funds are also being sought for the long-delayed expansion of the high school gymnasium, which will double the physical education facilities there. The plans for this have been in readiness for some time but the steady rise in prices of materials and labor have thrown original cost estimates completely out of line. To finance the project, the board needs some $40,000 to $50,000 more than was first estimated by E. William Martin, architect.

How this fits in with the additional problem of handling an even greater enrollment brought on by the settling of defense workers here the board is at a loss to answer. However, the feeling among local officials is that the state legislature should set up a special fund to handle emergency school building not only in Newark but throughout the state. They point out that other communities will be faced with Newark's problem as new plants, already proposed, are opened, and they believe the question should be dealt with on a state-wide scale.

William H. Barrow Succumbs Thursday

Services for William H. Barrow, who died last Thursday, were held Monday from the home of his son, Ralph Barrow, 74 East Main Street. Interment was in the Newark Cemetery.

Mr. Barrow, who was 85, had been a resident here since 1902 and was employed for about 47 years at the National Vulcanized Fibre Company, from which he retired at about the age of 80.

Of late years he was seen frequently in the group of Newark's "older statesmen" who gather in warm weather under the trees before the old Main Street school building.

In addition to his son, Ralph, two other sons survive: John, of Perryville, Md., and Carroll, of Whitford, Pa.

Scoutcraft Project

Members of Scout Troop 56 will soon launch a crafts program in the Main Street school, where the high school shop equipment is located.

William Peoples will direct the scout project, assisted by E. L. Hoffman, high school shop instructor.

Annual Dime March Underway Here; Coin Cards Distributed

40 Volunteer Solicitors Hope To Equal Or Better Last Year's Mark

A corps of 40 volunteers is now carrying out the annual March of Dimes here, seeking funds to combat polio. The drive opened Jan. 1 throughout the nation and will continue through Jan. 31.

Coin envelopes have already been distributed to most homes and volunteers began their collections this week. Coin boxes have been placed in various stores and at the State Theatre.

No quota has been set for Newark, but the aim is to equal or better last year's total of around $2,000.

Fifty percent of the money collected goes into the New Castle County fund for combating polio and the remainder is turned over to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. A portion of the latter is used for research on methods of curing the dread disease.

A portion of the county money goes to help polio patients unable to pay the full costs of treatment. This does not mean merely needy cases but anyone to whom the costs of the expensive treatments would prove a severe hardship.

The money is also used to train professional polio workers, fight polio epidemics wherever necessary and to study means of improving treatment.

Proposal To Educate Retarded Children Topic Of PTA Meet

Proposed legislation for education of handicapped children in Delaware will be discussed at the January meeting of the Parent Teachers Association next Thursday at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium. A film on the subject will also be shown.

The speaker will be Thomas W. Mulrooney, director of child development and guidance in the Wilmington Public Schools.

Proposed legislation, approved by the State Board of Education and the State Unified Legislative Committee, asks for $262,900 from the state legislature to support an expanded training program for handicapped youngsters.

Figures show that 10 percent or about 5,433 of the 50,000 school children in Delaware labor under some sort of handicap. These can be educated, authorities say, if given special training and facilities. The proposed legislation will provide training for all types of handicapped children, including those with visual, hearing or speech defects, the crippled, malnourished and anemic, the socially maladjusted and mentally retarded.

The Delaware division of the American Association of University Women has spearheaded the current movement to aid defective children. Mrs. J. P. Patonovic, a member of the Newark AAUW, is the state chairman for the project.

Mr. Mulrooney, who will speak here Thursday, was a member of the executive committee which drew up the proposed legislation for introduction at the present session of the General Assembly.

Following the film and discussion Thursday, refreshments will be served in the cafeteria by a committee of ninth grade homeroom mothers. The chairman is Mrs. Stuart Carswell, assisted by Mrs. Cyrus Day, Mrs. Kennedy Fell, Mrs. Barton Mackey, Mrs. Aloysius Keardon and Mrs. Richard Ware.

Tie This! — An English Course In German For Students Of 6 Nations

A strange confusion of tongues can be heard in the Main Street school building these days, and, believe it or not, it's a class in English.

Six different languages are spoken by the students, and the class is conducted chiefly in German. It's a course in conversational English for 13 displaced persons now living in this area.

The instructor is Leon Moyer, sixth grade teacher at the Newark schools. The only common ground between Mr. Moyer and his students is German. He speaks that language fairly well, as, fortunately, do most of his students, although none of them are German.

The roster now includes three Hungarians, two Poles, one French woman, an Italian, five Ukrainians and a Lithuanian. Two of the students, Aldona Cox and Maria Suppe, are war brides. Mrs. Suppe's husband, Leo, is also a member of the class. Curiously enough, he is an American citizen by birth, whose Italian parents took him back to that country when he was quite young. He was raised there and later married Maria, who is a native of France.

The course, held every Wednesday from 7:30 to 10 p.m., is sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction.

Mayor Asks Series Of Public Hearings On Proposed Charter

Smaller Hearings Would Replace Mass Meeting As Method Of Gauging Wishes Of Public; Council Now Working On New Draft Of Charter

The plan to revise the proposed new charter and submit it to the current session of the General Assembly moved a step ahead this week, according to Mayor Wallace Johnson.

Calling for an end to the disputes and "politics" which have clouded the issue in the past, he asked interested individuals and groups to submit suggested charter changes or redrafts to himself or any Councilman. Council committees are now busy preparing a new charter draft for submission to the legislature.

A series of public hearings will be held at which all such groups and individuals will be given an opportunity to air their views on the charter.

This method of holding small, workable hearings will replace the original proposal for holding a mass public meeting, which could easily end in confusion and misunderstandings, the Mayor said. He added that this method has worked well in other communities, and he pointed out it will give citizens an opportunity to be heard more effectively than would a mass meeting.

The outcome, he said, would provide a charter draft that would give a cross-section of the wishes of the public, after which Council by resolution could present it to the legislature.

Mayor Johnson's article, the first of a series on town affairs, follows:

Newark 1951

The Town of Newark has begun another cycle of development. The year 1951 will see this development accelerated to meet the demands of the war effort. Already there have been requests for sizable acreage for additional development of the larger type. These are nationally known organizations who wish to establish plants in the Newark area.

The Town of Newark will be required to meet certain utility requirements when these plants are established. Electricity, roads, streets, sewers and other important adjuncts to this development will be projects that the town will have to provide or be consulted about.

This and other articles to follow is intended to bring to the attention of the citizens of Newark certain facts that are pertinent to the growth and development of our community.

One of the most important needs of Newark is a new charter that Newark may administer its affairs in a 1951 manner. The present charter is of the year 1852 and has had amendments added thereto by several legislatures.

After almost a hundred years of service the old charter should be replaced by a newer and more up-to-date model. Several attempts have been made in recent years to have a new charter but factional differences, clashing of personalities, and misunderstandings defeated these attempts.

The time has now come, indeed the time is later than one thinks, for a new charter to be presented to the legislature now in session. If honesty of purpose, unqualified loyalty to our community, and a real desire to do what is best for the town is substituted for petty jealousy, politics, and the desire for personal gain and favor is established by all concerned, then, and only then, will a desirable charter be forthcoming and will merit adoption by the legislature.

The two party system of politics in government at levels of the state and nation is a very essential requirement. However, in the smaller towns and cities, and even in the larger cities, politics should NOT exist. Political party added to the affairs of the community (Continued on Page 6)

Clean Slate So Far

No fires have been reported in town since the first of the year, according to Charles E. Moore, Aetna fire recorder.

The company's annual election will be held tomorrow night in the fire house.

Chief Elmer Ellison has been nominated for his 28th term as chief.

Soroptimists Vote $500 To Finance Recreation Survey

The Newark Soroptimist Club this week voted the sum of $550 to finance the professional survey of Newark's recreational needs planned for later this month by the Newark Recreation Association.

Miss Edna Campbell, president of the Soroptimists, stated that the appropriation to finance the Recreation Association's project is in accordance with the aims of Soroptimist International, one of which is "to encourage meritorious civic movements and to urge cooperation for the betterment of local conditions."

Several organizations have surveyed recreational facilities here in recent years and attempted to estimate the direction and extent of future expansion. Many differences of opinion have developed among these local groups as to the extent of the program needed, the area of greatest need, and means of financing recommended programs.

The directors of the Newark Recreation Association have selected Weaver

W. Pangburn of Allen Associates, N.Y.C., to make the first professional survey here. D. Kenneth Steers, president of the association, said today that by cooperating with Mr. Pangburn the community will be afforded the benefit of the services of a recognized authority in the field of recreational planning and financing. "The national emergency and the expansion planned for Newark in the next few years," said Mr. Steers, "make necessary at this time a realistic, disinterested appraisal of our recreational needs. These needs are certain to increase as our industrial facilities expand and our population increases." Mr. Steers pointed out also that the gift of the Soroptimist Club will make it unnecessary for the Recreation Association to cut down on its present activities.

The local Soroptimist Club, which has a membership of 25 business and professional women in executive positions, will celebrate its third birthday in March, 1951.

A remarkable engineering achievement...

Another basic and startling departure from existing automotive standards will shortly come from Chrysler Corporation.

It will prove once more the basically great ability of Chrysler to take on the hardest kinds of jobs in mechanical design and production engineering.

It is a new engine, introducing a concept of power never before made practical in the passenger car. The engineers and production men of Chrysler Corporation have successfully put to work certain principles for producing power long considered to be engineering ideals, but unattained until now.

It has cost millions of dollars to make this engine possible, not just in design and development of the engine itself, but also in engineered production of new machines and methods to make day to day manufacture of such an engine practical.

Exhaustive tests show it to be a basic advancement in the scientific application of efficient power to the American motor car. During month after month of the hardest conceivable road and laboratory trials, this new engine has proved that it will raise all known standards of performance.

In the weeks ahead, Chrysler will publish information about the preeminent performance and operating efficiency of this new power plant to be introduced in our new Chrysler New Yorker and Imperial cars.

News of London-Britain Vicinity

Martha Lee Ness, Correspondent
Phone Kemblesville 2171

Everyone ought to underline the date of Jan. 25. Why? Well, there is to be a meeting at 8 p.m. at the New London Grange of all citizens of New London, Franklin, Penn., and London-Britain Townships, to talk about our common school problems.

There are plenty of these problems to be considered. Does everyone know, for instance, that a neighboring township had its seventh grade returned to it from Avon Grove last year, and the eighth grade "came back to foot" this year, because it was physically impossible for the school to handle those students? Naturally, they were sent out in the first place because local facilities were inadequate, so you all can imagine what a fix that put said township in. That one illustration will suffice to warn us all that playing ostrich will not work, and that our problems about schools are not "a year or two from now," but NOW.

Mr. Morgan, who is the principal of the Avon Grove School, and we understand, a bit of a specialist in this matter of school financing, is going to be at the meeting and will lend his knowledge in planning how to get the best education possible for our future citizens through the most common-sense use of our hard-earned dollars.

A little note from a long-time resident of the community tells us to write this item as we wish, but we choose her words: "Many of the 'old timers' in the community are going to miss a familiar character. Howard Russell died in the Elkton Hospital on January 3. He had lately made his home, with his aunt, Mrs. H. Hall. Yes, we party, but things are on the upgrade at last, and everyone's feeling better. The Bob Khauser report that everyone had the gripe at their place, but little Stevie was the only severely ill member, and all were well enough to enjoy a fine Christmas.

The Faculty Players will soon swing into rehearsals for a three act comedy, "The Bishop Misbehaves," scheduled for production in March.

The 6-member Thespian Troupe 931 is preparing to stage a one act play, "The Happy Journey to Camden and Trenton." They hope to present it at the spring Dramatics Festival at the University of Delaware.

FILLIN' IN

An article elsewhere in this issue, describing the entrance of Newark High School students into the great comic book controversy, points up something heretofore little considered in the heat of the debate. One student writer warns that if comic books were banned, with young fans circulating priceless, dog-eared comics under the school desks of the nation.

We can verify the likelihood of this from experiences of our own school days. Printed comics weren't too common then, so we drew our own. Compared with these original creations, the much-criticized modern comics are colorless, tepid affairs.

In those days, all home-made comics were banned, with the result they flourished widely. We can remember a creation of ours which gained wide circulation and much favorable comment from fans whose tastes in humor were rigidly low.

Our cartoon strip was entitled the "World of Tomorrow," and, needless to say, we were the hero. In a series of panels, it pictured us as a grown man returning to our school after having recently been elected, as the side-light to a great career, the president of the school board.

We came back an avenging spirit, exuding righteousness and justice, and we immediately launched a sort of a war crimes trial of the faculty. By the third panel we had our mathematics teacher lashed to a multiplication table and were gouging his eyes with a Roman numeral. A few scenes later our grey-haired English teacher could be observed diagrammed on a blackboard, a most pitiful sentence. In the final panel, we stood over our principal (who was the forerunner of the modern concentration camp director) with a horsewhip. He was on his knees, pleading for mercy, but it was obvious from the look on our face that he wasn't going to get any.

Our advice to parents and educators who want to "clean up" comics is: don't. A crack-down might lead to a revival of the homemade type, and that is to be avoided at all costs. As one student writer says, "Children have minds of their own." For Pete's sake, let's not start them thinking again.

Charter Hearings

munities such as ours is not at all desirable and only adds confusion and favoritism to the situation. It also hinders real progress and creates misunderstandings and unfairness.

In the affairs of the town, public meetings and public business should be open and orderly. Constructive criticism and debate, honestly indulged in, is indeed necessary and important to the building of town character. So if in the preparation and presentation to the public of the charter, the best interests of ALL are served and not for a few or for the individual or for personal GLORY then and only then can successful action be expected with regard to the charter or any other important town consideration.

The town charter is the rule and guide for the Council in the administration of town affairs. It is through the charter that the Council exists and acts; then the Council is the medium through which a new charter should be processed for presentation to the legislature. Citizens or interested groups should present their views and drafts of proposed charter or charters to Council for consideration. Public hearings of interested groups conducted in an orderly manner would be held. The outcome of all of this would give a cross-section expression of the public desire and then Council by resolution present to the legislature a concrete item for legislative action.

This would avoid large mass meetings which usually get nowhere and end up in confusion, misunderstandings, and despair for all concerned as has been so very clearly evidenced in the past.

The work of preparing a charter for consideration by the citizens is being carried out by council committees.

Comic Books Are Of Value

I think the whole world is too serious at times and therefore there should be more comics as a means of entertainment. Comic books add something more to life. If you had to sit down and read only "good books" all the time, you certainly would get bored. Statistics show that an awful lot of people read the comics; so they must enjoy them and want them.

I don't agree with the idea that people think that comics lead children into committing crimes. I believe that children have minds of their own. In some cases, I agree, that some children can be misled. But young people are going to see comics at sometime or another and you can't keep them away from them; therefore they will have to decide for themselves which ones to read. Some comics are educational and often young people seek comics of this class.

Journalism Class, Newark High School

As we write this article the game with P. S. DuPont grows closer. P. S. looms as a powerful opponent to the Yellowjackets. By the time you read this article the game will be over and maybe Newark will still be undefeated. P. S. is one of the most powerful teams in the state and has proved that this year with decisive wins in all but one of its games.

DuPont lost their opener to Archmere and has won two since then. Newark was undefeated before they met P. S. The Yellowjackets topped Mt. Pleasant and A. I. DuPont.

The High School team is not the only basketball team that is going into action. The local Hi-Y will play Tuesday night when they meet Elkton High School and tonight they play the Hi-Y Alumni. Later on in the month the Y.M.C.A. league will start. Newark has a team in this competition every year.

The Newark and A. I. DuPont game was played last Tuesday at A. I. DuPont. Newark came through with a 50-33 win. Bunny Blaney led the attack with twenty-one points. Jim Bueche was behind him with eleven. Newark had to come back with a great rally to beat A. I. Blaney led the rally, racking up most of his points in the last half.

"Pigeon" Croll was a victim of another unusual happening at the game. "Pigeon" still hasn't scored. He was bringing the ball down court as the A. I. game was about to end. He shot the ball from half court just as the buzzer sounded; the ball zipped through the hoop. The basket was not allowed though because the game was over. "Pige" said, and I quote, "There was nobody on the court more surprised than I was."

It seems as though the Yellowjackets J. V.'s are doing just the opposite from the varsity. They have yet to win a game. The J. V.'s have been stopped cold in their first two tries, losing by a good many points every time. Although the little Yellowjackets are mostly inexperienced basketball players they should be racking up a few more points by now, we think.

Jacket Five Invades Brown Tomorrow; Conrad On Tuesday

First Home Game Not Until Jan. 23; Split Games Past Week

After suffering the first loss of the season in bowing to powerful P. S. DuPont last Friday, the Yellowjacket eagles bounded back into the win column on Tuesday night with a hard-fought 24-49 win over the Claymont Indians.

Tomorrow night Newark invades Brown Vocational's court and moves on to Conrad next Tuesday. The Jackets' first home appearance will not be until Jan. 23, when Salesianum provides the opposition.

Newark's victory over Claymont came only after a severe struggle in which the Jackets saw their big, 31-20, half-time lead dwindle before a determined Claymont counter surge. Claymont outscored the Jackets, 15-10, in the third period and knotted the count at 49-49 with one minute to go, when fireman Bunny Blaney came to the rescue with two quick field goals.

Blaney again proved the scoring dynamo of the Jackets' attack, netting 23 points for the game high. Earlier, against P. S. DuPont the Jackets trailed from the start, going down to a decisive, 46-33, defeat.

The fast-stepping Dynahs, however, were unable to bottle up Blaney, who broke through for six field goals and three fouls. His 15 points gained him individual scoring honors for the game. Only in the last period did the Jackets come to life, outscoring their hosts, 9-7.

Hen Quintet Meets Drexel Ho Saturday Nite; PMC Wednesday

Delaware Splits Two Games In Resuming Action Holiday Breather; Loses to Lafayette, 68-56, Downs Swarthmore, 60-59

With the season's mark balanced at four and four, the University of Delaware eagles will be aiming to lengthen their win column when the host to Drexel here on Saturday. The Hens will follow up with another game Wednesday with Pennsylvania Military Academy as the opposition.

The Drexel encounter will be Delaware's first home appearance since 12 when they triumphed over Muhlenberg. Since then they have lost to Lafayette and Lafayette and have registered a win over Swarthmore.

The Lafayette game last Wednesday marked the Hens' return to the following the Christmas holidays. The Maroon took a 3-1 lead in the minutes and were never headed there after, although Delaware frequently threatened. The final count was 68-56, and the Hens took some consolation from the fact that they had plenty of company in losing on the maroon floor. They were the 26th consecutive team to go to defeat in Lafayette's home lair.

Bill Utt spearheaded the Hen attack with 25 points, and Evans racked up 16. The latter fouled out in the late stages, hampering the Hens' final spurt. Two other gaping holes were rent in their offensive earlier when John Bueche and Dick Goldberg also retired on fouls.

It was a different story Saturday at Swarthmore when the Hens came through with a 60-59 edge. Johnny DeGasperis' foul conversion 13 seconds before the final whistle provided the slim margin in the spine-tingling contest. Previously, Dick Evans had deadlocked the count at 50-50 with an action shot.

Shifting from guard to forward, Bill Utt again ignited the Hen attack, providing 21 points toward the victory total.

Silly Me!

By Edwin Leid

Walked down the pavement, I ran,
I did,
Blew my nose, and down I slid.
Got up, with a hankie in my hand,
Now so deep, I got an eyeful of sand.
The children laughed, they cried so hard,
The ground was baked, in the mud
I marred.
My clothes so dirty, they were sparkling white;
Night was black, but the sun was bright.

This poem was made by the other me. I think it, and I wrote it, you see; But I did take a bath in a barrel of tar, And don't you dare even call me a liar.

Civil Defense

visual and family will be aided in their own protection by the organized civil defense services in all parts of the community.

Should an industrial area be attacked, civil defense teams and equipment, strategically dispersed in outlying districts, will move immediately to help the stricken residents.

Pre-attack plans are also being drawn up. Since early warning of an air invasion is possible, partial evacuation from critical target areas can be carried out. An effective air raid warning service will enable the population to take cover in preconstructed personnel shelters and other indicated shelters until the danger is passed.

These advance efforts, combined with a prompt post-attack action, will reduce casualties to a small percentage.

Civil Defense Responsibilities
The basis of an effective civil defense is the individual and his local government. The individual, given all possible training, does what he can for himself in an emergency. The family, similarly trained, attacks its own problems, while also contributing to the community effort. The community organization prepares to meet its needs, receiving outside help only when facilities are inadequate. The community is also expected to contribute the support of neighboring communities under organized state direction.

Federal Responsibilities

The government will contribute some funds, carry out over-all planning and provide organizational advice. However, the government cannot and should not operate state and local C.D. systems. The states are best qualified and have inherent powers to coordinate C.D. operations within their boundaries. Likewise, cities, counties and towns are best qualified to handle their own operating functions.

The federal government's function is to establish a national C.D. plan and policy and issue information and educational material. The government will also advise the states concerning the establishment of stockpiles and other emergency supplies and will furnish some of the essential equipment. In C.D. operations, the national government will work through state governors or their designated representatives.

State Responsibility

The state's job is to provide leadership, planning and to direct supporting operations in an emergency. The state C.D., operating through its director, is the key operating unit and has been called the "field army" of C.D. Its counties, cities and towns are "divisions." If one or more divisions are hard hit, the remainder provide support.

In addition, the state will participate in inter-state planning under the federal government, provide instructors and facilities for training programs, and assume its share of the finances. It will also allocate federal funds, supplies and equipment to its divisions.

The counties, cities and towns will be expected to provide appropriate ordinances and other legislation for C.D. operations under state guidance and to make mutual aid pacts and other security arrangements with neighboring communities. These divisions will also provide an adequate staff and facilities for local training programs and assume their share of the finances. They will also be expected to participate in the state's program for organized mobile support.

Participation

Every person and every community has a part to play in the C.D. program. Remoteness from places considered probable target areas does not exempt any community from playing its part in the over-all program. Evacuee reception and care of both injured and uninjured must be planned, and a full support program must be organized in every community.

The county C.D. organization must be in constant readiness because for the first time in the 136 years an enemy has the power to attack our cities in strong force and for the first time in our history the attack may come suddenly and with little or no warning.

Granted a few minutes warning, casualties could be reduced 50 percent through proper organization and training in C.D. More important, C.D. could spell the difference between defeat and slavery for our people or victory and continued freedom.

Immediately after an air attack, C.D. will assume many responsibilities that must be relinquished as soon as established local and state agencies can take over. Appropriate agencies on all levels of government will take over at the earliest possible moment but until that time C.D. organizations must give aid as needed. The goal of the various levels of government is the prompt and orderly restoration of normal community life and maximum defense effort industrially, thereby preserving maximum civilian morale and support of the war effort.

At present food values, an acre of Ladino clover-orchard grass pasture is worth $115.31 to a dairyman.

HOW TO BE A "GOOD SPORT"
on Party-Line Telephones

1. When you start to make a call and find the line in use, hang up gently and give the other person a few minutes to finish his call.

2. When, while talking, you realize that your neighbor is waiting to make a call, hang up in a few minutes and free the line.

The wonderful thing about these little courtesies is that they're returned... with dividends for all in good telephone service. When party-line neighbors are "good sports" on the telephone, everybody benefits!
