I hate surprises

By JIM STREIT

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

LOVE to surprise others but hate being caught unsuspecting. In my first 51 years, I've been the focus of several unannounced (to me) parties but always had at least an inkling that a crowd screaming "surprise" when I entered a room was in my future. Such was not the case recently.

My friend Fred Dawson, who followed me as president of the Christina Educational Enrichment Fund, schemed with the other CEEF board

Better buckle up here

Newark first in Delaware to make failing to buckle seatbelt a primary offense

BY MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NEWARK has become the first municipality in Delaware to make failure to wear a seatbelt a primary offense. "The state of Delaware does not have this law, yet," said Mayor Hal Godwin. "As with the .08 blood alcohol level for drunk driving, Newark is once again ahead of the state in making this change."

Currently, an operator of a motor vehicle in the rest of Delaware can only be charged with

Under false pretenses, they lured me into the upstairs room at Feby's seafood joint on Lancaster Pike. No one shouted "surprise" but I was. I never saw this little tribute to my time at the CEEF prez coming. In a rare moment, I was speechless.

My work with the enrichment fund truly has been a labor of love. Our small, but devoted group, all people already too busy to take on another task, work quietly to honor deserving students of all ages in the Christina district.

What I like most about our awards and scholarships is that they seek out youngsters who are exemplary role models for their peers. Our winners are kind, caring, aggressive to help, and good citizens, but not always the best students academically.

Our track record attests that in some cases these public recognitions make a significant difference in the lives of our recipients.

A week from today, there won't be a "dry eye in the house" in the Shue-Medill cafeteria when we honor dozens of Christina kids at our 2002 awards banquet.

The surprise tribute to me is STEVEN KAVANAUGH, fire chief of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, never expected to be on the cover of a magazine. But, in this year of unprecedented public interest and acclaim for emergency personnel, Kavanaugh became one of six firefighters immortalized in a portrait, called "Protecting Our Nation," which was recently unveiled in the U.S. Capitol.

The portrait will be featured on the cover of Firehouse Magazine later this year and copies were given as gifts at the Congressional Fire Services Caucus Dinner in Washington, D.C., in April. According to information from the office of U.S. Senator Tom Carper (D-Delaware), there is also a push to have the work

Guilfoyle loses Christina board seat after two terms

SCHOOL board elections are notorious in Delaware for the sparse voter turnout. Current Christina District boardmember Charles Mullin has often related the story of the year he ran and only three people voted at all.

This year the story was vastly different as 1,086 people went to the polls on Saturday

Police say teen lied about rape near Brookside

POLICE in the Newark area are still warning woman and girls not to walk or jog alone despite the fact that a teen's reported rape on Sunday, May 5, turned out to be false.

Delaware State Police arrested the 16-year-old girl on Friday, May 10, after troopers investigating the incident found evidence indicating the abduction did not occur.

The 16-year-old Newark girl told Delaware State Police officers she was walking home from the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center on Chestnut Hill Road at approximately 9 p.m. on May 5 when a vehicle described as a mid-90's, four-door sedan, blue-teal in color drove from the rear alley of the shopping center. Two men got out and grabbed her and put her in the car.

She claimed they drove to the grounds of the Brookside Little League on Marrows Road where the two raped the girl and then let her go.

Police said she walked to her home and told one of her parents what happened. She later was treated and released at Christiana Hospital.

One suspect was described as a white male, age 24, approximately 5 feet, 10 inches tall and 300 pounds, wearing jeans and a light colored shirt. The second suspect is described as a black male, age 24, approximately 6 feet, 3 inches tall and weighing 200 pounds, and wearing dark clothing.

A number of assaults on women in the Newark area were already under investigation by police when this latest incident was reported.

On March 20, a 29-year-old woman sustained a facial fracture and minor lacerations to her face

Armed forces to be honored

Encampment Friday, Memorial parade Sun.

NEWARK hosts a week-end of events this week celebrating the country's military history and service. The activities begin on Friday, May 17, with a Civil War encampment at White Clay Creek State Park, off Route 896, three miles north of Newark.

Civil War re-enactors encamped from Friday afternoon to Sunday at the Park will explain how soldiers survived the bloody conflict and provide a look at their day-to-day camp life. State park fees are in effect for vehicle admission.

Saturday evening will feature a free, outdoor concert by the 287th Army Band of the Delaware National Guard behind the Academy Building, Main and Academy Streets from 6 to 8 p.m. This event is canceled in the case of rain. The Army Band, consisting of many Delawareans, will perform both military and popular music. Seating is provided.

Beginning at 11 a.m. on Sunday, May 19, there will be a display of military equipment, both current and vintage, in the Newark Shopping Center parking lot. Members of veteran's organizations will also be available to answer questions regarding veteran's benefits.

A 1 p.m. sharp, a ceremony honoring our fallen veterans begins on the University Mall. Organizers said this is the most meaningful part of the weekend for many who come to the events. The ceremony includes massing the colors, reviewing the troops by state officials, and a rifle salute to those who died in service to the country.

The city's 68th annual Memorial Parade steps off at 2 p.m. on Sunday and proceeds from South College Avenue to Academy Street. The parade honoring all those who served in the U.S. Armed Forces is the largest military parade in the state. Over 80 marching units, representing all branches of service, veterans

POLICE BLOTTER

Police Blotter is compiled each week from the files of the Newark Police Department, New Castle County police and the Delaware State Police by the newspaper staff.

Bear man charged with murder

NEW CASTLE County Police charged David Sumner, 23, of Bear with murder following a shooting in Dunlinden Acres off Kirkwood Highway on May 8.

Police found a bleeding man lying facedown in the kitchen of a home on Eunice Drive around 4:20 p.m. after the man's 9-year-old daughter returned from school and found her father bleeding from his head and unresponsive.

Police said the girl sought help from a neighbor who tried to administer first aid and called 911.

County paramedics pronounced the victim, identified as 37-year-old Bernaditto Jose Anacay, dead at the scene.

Witnesses told police Anacay had been arguing with Sumner earlier that day.

Police said officers questioned Sumner and searched his home where they recovered handguns and additional evidence linking him to the murder.

Sumner was being held at Gander Hill Prison at the time of this report.

Six people killed on state roads in April

The Office of Highway Safety reported that six persons were killed in six separate motor vehicle crashes on Delaware roadways during the month of April. None of these deaths were alcohol related.

In April 2001, alcohol-related fatalities were 31 percent of the total fatalities for that month.

Acts of aggressive driving, including speeding, failure to grant the right of way and failure to obey a stop sign were listed as contributing factors in four crashes last month. Of the six persons killed in vehicle crashes, all were occupants of passenger vehicles' only two were wearing seatbelts.

Man charged in sex with minor case

State Police detectives have arrested Lewis D. Harris, 59, of Kirkwood St. Georges Road for a total of 109 charges as the result of ongoing unlawful contact with a female juvenile between 1987 and 1990.

Police said the victim advised detectives of the incidents in February and an investigation was initiated.

Harris was arrested for 108 counts of unlawful sexual contact and 1 count of unlawful sexual intercourse.

Harris was arraigned at Justice of the Peace Court 2 and committed to Gander Hill prison in lieu of $218,000 bail.

Speeding couple pass police cruiser

New Castle County Police have arrested a couple for driving under the influence of alcohol on Sunday, May 5, at 9:45 p.m. Their vehicle, a 2001 Ford Mustang, passed a fully marked police cruiser in excess of 100 m.p.h. on Route 141, and went through a red traffic light at the intersection of Route 141 and Commons Blvd.

Police reported the driver was slowed by traffic just south of Route 273 and was subsequently stopped by a New Castle City officer at Washington Street and 10th Street in Wilmington.

The driver, Eric Garwood, 39, was charged with DUI, reckless driving, speeding, disregarding a red light, unsafe lane change and failure to signal. His 36-year-old wife, Dianna Garwood, was found to have also been drinking so an officer drove her home.

Officers arrested Dianna Garwood at County Police Headquarters later in the evening after she drove another car to pick up her husband. She was also charged with DUI.

The Garwoods reside in the unit block of Cobblestone Drive in New Castle.

Unsafe lane change causes collision

State Police investigated a crash on May 7 at 10 a.m. that restricted traffic flow on I-295 for approximately four hours.

Police said a Mack tractor-trailer, operated by Gail A. Wenzel, 37, of Bel-Air, Md., was westbound on I-295 approaching I-95, southbound.

A 2002 Ford Escort, also westbound on I-295, operated by Jennifer N. Corson, 19, of Millville, N.J., attempted to change lanes and struck the right front of the tractor.

Police reported the tractor-trailer ran off the edge of the road, struck the guardrail and continued along the guardrail for approximately 315 feet. The trailer exited the roadway and went down an embankment. Neither the tractor nor trailer overturned.

A rupture in the gas tank of the tractor caused a diesel fuel leak of approximately 60 gallons.

Westbound traffic on I-295 was limited to the shoulder for approximately four hours.

Wenzel was taken to Christiana Hospital where she was treated and released with multiple contusions and a head laceration.

Corson was uninjured. She was charged with making an unsafe lane change.

Tractor-trailer crash closes I-495 for hours

On May 2, at about 2:13 a.m., Delaware State Police investigated a tractor-trailer crash on I-495.

According to police, the tractor-trailer, driven by Donald Boulanger, 43, of Orlando, Fla., was heading north about one-and-one-half miles south of the Philadelphia Pike interchange when it traveled off the roadway.

Witnesses told troopers that the truck was driving erratically before it drove off the northbound shoulder of the interstate at highway speed.

The truck drove down an embankment and struck a fence, an Amtrak transformer and a building containing equipment for the railroad before coming to rest.

Boulanger was trapped inside his rig for approximately three-and-a-half hours. He was flown to Christiana Hospital by helicopter. His injuries are not life threatening.

The truck was owned by Ruan Leasing of Iowa.

Interstate 495 northbound was still closed at 9 a.m. on May 2 and troopers were not sure when the roadway would reopen. The investigation is continuing.

Burglar caught on video tape

New Castle County Police arrested Edward Taylor, 25, of Wilmington and charged him with burglary, theft, and criminal mischief following a break-in at a business in the 2600 block of Carpenter Station Road shortly after midnight on Monday, April 22.

Police said evidence found at the scene indicated someone had tossed a cement brick through the front window and then entered the Delaware News Center. Over 75 cartons of cigarettes were taken from inside the store.

A security camera captured the image of the suspect as he went through the contents of the store.

Investigators subsequently created wanted flyers displaying the suspect's image and a county officer recognized the suspect as Edward Taylor. Police said evidence technicians confirmed the identity through the analysis of evidence recovered from the scene.

Taylor was arrested on April 25, and later committed to jail.

Police targeting street racing here

POLICE from two states recently announced the start of the "Drivers, Stop your Engines" Anti-Street Racing Campaign.

The joint announcement by the Delaware's Office of Highway Safety, Newark Police, Delaware State Police and Maryland State Police coincided with two blies as part of a weeklong series of programs to combat impaired driving.

The campaign targets street racing, aggressive driving, and impaired driving, particularly among young adults in the greater Newark area.

Police activity will be concentrated in the Newark/Elkton, Otts Chapel, Route enforcement, speed enforcement and DUI checkpoints.

"Although the Newark area has long been a hotspot for drag racing activities, Newark and Delaware State Police say there has been a dramatic increase in organized street racing activities involving as many as 30 to 100 cars at a time," stated

Best, brightest in country compete in Newark this week

THE SCIENTISTS of tomorrow will converge at the University of Delaware for the 2002 National Tournament of the Science Olympiad, May 17-18 in Newark.

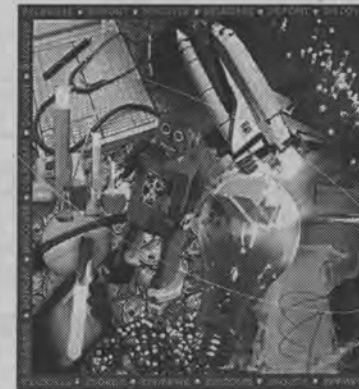

Cosponsored by the National Science Olympiad, the University, DuPont and Delaware Teachers of Science, the event brings together the best middle and high school aged scientists from across the nation for two days of scientific competition of the most innovative kind.

Both the opening ceremony and the closing awards presentations, to be held in the Bob Carpenter Center, will be broadcast live at www.udel.edu/scienceolympiad.

Dr. Benjamin S. Carson, who went from an angry street fighter in Detroit to become director of pediatric neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins Hospital, will address attendees at opening ceremonies on Friday night, following a parade of states by all participants. Weather forecaster Glen Schwartz of NBC-10 in Philadelphia will serve as host.

Science Olympiad competitive events represent a wide range of areas of scientific inquiry, including biology, chemistry, Earth sciences, problem solving, physics and technology.

On Saturday, the competitions, which are based on the national and state science education standards, will be held throughout the day at various locations around the campus.

The Science Olympiad is a national organization dedicated to improving science education by fostering a passion among students, creating links between private enterprise and schools, improving curriculum and providing a recognition for scientific achievement.

Newark to post warnings at city entry points

JOHN FARRELL

failure to use a seatbelt if they are stopped for an unrelated traffic violation or their front seat passenger does not have their seatbelt secured. Newark city council voted unanimously for two amendments to the Traffic Code on Monday night.

In addition to allowing a police officer to charge a motorist solely for failing to comply with the seatbelt requirement, the operator can also be cited if the front seat passenger is not secured.

“This is already the law in Newark,” noted Newark Police Chief Gerald Conway before the vote on Monday. “It's just not a primary offense.”

Councilmembers and Newark resident Jean White stressed the need to advise the public, especially non-resident of the new ordinance in the city. “I would oppose this if we are not going to post signs warning of Newark's law on all sides of the city,” said White. “Residents have a responsibility to know the law but people driving into the city are at a great disadvantage – it's very unfair, in fact – if they are not advised about this change.”

White said she believes at least eight signs are needed at both points where Routes 896, 2, 273 and 72/Paper Mill Road enter and leave Newark. “There may be more points where people can drive in,” she said.

Godwin agreed. “It might be goods to put signs on our borders like they do in Maryland,” he said. “They could say something like ‘Buckle Up - It's Our Law and .08 is the alcohol limit for drunk driving.’”

Conway said the Newark Police have discovered at Click it Or Ticket checkpoints that 93 percent of people in Newark use the seatbelts. “This is well above the state average of 67 percent and the national average of 73 percent,” said Conway.

Councilmember John Farrell said the city is looking for 100 percent compliance. “This is not a revenue issue – it's a safety issue,” said Farrell who is also member of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company. “I had the misfortune to be called to a traffic accident today. It was not noteworthy for the media because use of seatbelts reduced and lessened the likelihood of injury.”

Farrell said council needed a “media blitz” to advise the general public about Newark's new law.

The Newark Police Department issued an advisory about the law immediately after the vote on Monday night.

“This means that motorists may now be stopped and cited for failing to wear a seatbelt while operating a motor vehicle in the city of Newark without the officer having to observe any other violation,” stated the announcement. “The fine for failing to properly wear a seatbelt within the city of Newark will be $25, plus costs.”

In an effort to educate the public, Newark Police will issue warnings during the next two weeks to motorists who are observed not wearing their seatbelt if that is the only offense they have committed.

According to the Delaware Office of Public Safety, 100 vehicle occupants died on Delaware roads in 2000; 72 of those person were not wearing seatbelts.

In the year 2001, 69 of the 107 vehicle occupants killed on Delaware roads were not wearing seatbelts.

Newark Police used a high-tech scanner to check ID's on drivers' licenses at bars and restaurants around the city on a recent Saturday night.

Fake IDs lose their charm

NEWARK Police are using a high-tech scanner to check ID's at bars and restaurants around the city. According to spokesperson Pam Finkelman, the Building Responsibility Coalition purchased two of the electronic scanners to help officers identify underage customers attempting to enter age-restricted bars and restaurants.

At a cost of $2,500 each, the hand-held device reads the magnetic strip or bar code on a driver's license to determine if the individual in possession of the license is the true owner, and if the information on the license is correct.

Finkelman said fake IDs have become harder to spot with advances in computer software. Fortunately, high-technology can be put to use in this on-going battle.

“We welcome this contribution to our enforcement efforts,” said Newark Police Captain William Nefosky, chair of the Coalition's Policy ver's licenses, determining if the person in possession of the ID is the individual represented by the license. “If the ID is fake or had been altered, the scanner will come up blank since the magnetic strip, bar code, or the front of the license itself may have been forged,” explained Coalition coordinator Tracy Bachman. “We hope this identification device will discourage underage students from breaking the law.”

The Coalition is concerned about the results of the 2001 Harvard College Alcohol Study which reports that only 34 percent of the University of Delaware students surveyed believe they are likely to get caught drinking illegally in a restaurant or bar. At the same time, the number of students who think that bars and restaurants are easy places to get alcohol is rising.

“Used at entrances, the scanners may serve as a deterrent to underage young people who are thinking about enter-and Enforcement Task Group. "Fake IDs are becoming more and more sophisticated, so we must meet the challenge with electronic detection."

The scanners reveal the information encoded on driving using radio identification. Bachman said. "We appreciate the cooperation of the bar and restaurant owners who care about the welfare of the students and serve alcohol responsibly."

and head while jogging on Creek Road around 3:30 p.m. in White Clay Creek State Park. A police investigation showed the woman was physically assaulted or struck by a vehicle at the park; however, police found no obvious signs of a motor collision near where the woman was found.

A 31-year-old woman was attacked while walking to her car around 6 p.m. on Sunday, March 17, in the parking lot of College Square Shopping Center. The woman screamed and fought the suspect until he fled.

A woman jogging on East Park Place in Newark around 10:15 p.m. on Wednesday, March 13, was grabbed from behind by an unknown male wearing a black ski mask and dark clothing. The University of Delaware student was able to break free.

Around 2:25 a.m. on March 10, a black male suspect attempted to rape a woman behind the School Lane Apartments on Duke Street in Newark. She was able to escape without harm.

Persons with information about any of these incidents is asked to call Delaware Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

the Colonial District. She also taught for four years in Junior Achievement of Delaware.

Scherer said implementing the Neighborhood Schools law in Christina District is her first priority; however, that must be addressed before she has a vote on the board.

Schools districts have until May 28 to submit a final plan to the state. The Christina school board was to consider that issue last night at their regular monthly meeting. A final vote was scheduled for a Special Meeting to be held Tuesday May 21 at Gauger-Cobbs Middle School.

New members of the school board are sworn in and take their seats in July.

Scherer joins Christina board

May 11, and newcomer Cecilia Scherer won over incumbent Michael Guilfoyle by 472 votes.

Backed by parents and other district residents, including members of the A Better Christina community group, Scherer won easily by a 779-307 vote.

Guilfoyle, who has made no secret of the fact that serving on the school board is a "thankless" job was likely relieved. "I wasn't even going to run again, he said. "They called me from the Department of Elections on the last day to file and said no one was running for the seat. So, I went down to file and figured this would be my last term."

In last year's school board election, incumbent George Evans and newcomer Constance Merlet both took unopposed seats on the board.

Guilfoyle, currently vice-president and a past president of the Christina Board, said he was very surprised to learn later that three women showed up together and all filed at the last minute. "if I'd known they were going to do that, I wouldn't have bothered to file," he said.

Scherer, Kathy Dick-Frederick and Vanessa Manges-Spence filed to run but Dick-Frederick and Manges-Spence later withdrew. Both women threw their support to Scherer. Manges-Spence ran Scherer's campaign.

Scherer, who moved to the Christina District in 2001 after living in the Red Clay and Colonial districts, served on the PTA at an elementary school in

Voters have a choice

IF NOTHING ELSE, one thing that can be said about the realignment of the Sixth Delaware Senate District: voters will have a choice.

Redistricting is as political as any activity undertaken by party members. When all the maneuvering and positioning is over, there are winners and losers.

Incumbent Sixth District Senator Liane Sorenson appears to have come up with a bit of the shorter end of the stick. Instead of facing token, if any opposition to retain her seat next November, Sen. Sorenson has a formidable opponent early on.

Not even waiting to get out of Dover and home to his district to make the announcement, Newark State Rep. Rick DiLiberto threw in his hat in the ring for Sorenson's reconfigured Sixth District Senate seat.

His entry came as no surprise to Sorenson or many political observers. Popular among his former 14th Representative District constituents and boosted by a band of loyal supporters, DiLiberto was forced to some action when he became a "man without a country." The 14th district disappeared in the reapportionment process. DiLiberto, a Democrat, would have been forced to run against Republican incumbent Joseph Miro in the redrawn 22nd district. DiLiberto counted party affiliations in the 22nd and made his move.

At the very least, two veteran legislators will vie for the Sixth District Senate spot. Because of this, voters must follow this campaign carefully and make the best choice in November.

District approves 'uniform' look

Starting in fall 1997, three more Christina District schools will have dress codes for students.

The Christina school board has unanimously approved uniform look dress codes for the Early Childhood Centers at Bayard and Bancroft elementary schools as well as elementary students at Drew-Pyle. The plans will be evaluated again by the school board in June 1998.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This photo shows the U.S. Post Office in the background across Center Street from the one-time home of Dr. Henry G.M. Kollock, co-founder of the Newark Trust and Safe Deposit Company. The home later was occupied by the Williams family from the 1940s until the 1970s. A self-service laundry was operated in the basement. The building was demolished in the mid-1970s to make way for the Farmer's Bank, later Mellon Bank. In 2000, that building was replaced by Center Square which currently houses Happy Harry's and other retail businesses plus apartments on the second floor. This photo is from a previous edition of the Newark Post. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post, "Out of the Attic," 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark 19713. NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

AMY was a good and earnest student, so I knew something was wrong. There was: her beloved MomMom had died, the person who was revered by all the family members and the one point of agreement among the clan.

Searching for a positive in such an obviously devastating personal loss, Amy said, "At least there will be no more horrible Thanksgiving and Christmas get-togethers!"

Apparently MomMom was the only person any of them had felt affection for, and those day-long feasts had demanded all the tolerance and patience her children and grandchildren could muster.

Now, at least, they could enjoy the holidays. Amy said, "It will be the first time for me, having a nice holiday; I probably won't know how to act."

Her description of "family feasts" reminded me that almost every television sitcom has at least one program a year dedicated to the woes of DNA sharers having to get together on some religious holiday because that's "what you're supposed to do."

And I thought of several movies who have such days as their basis, with people coming from great distances and at great expense to be miserable and make others miserable.

Later in the semester, I saw Amy was troubled again: MomMom's house and furnishings were to be divided among her children, and they all claimed — with increasing heat — that a particular item had been promised to them and them alone.

Unfortunately, MomMom mentioned these items orally so there was no record of the promise.

The expression, "Would I lie about something like that!" was heard frequently and in increasingly strident tones.

Amy was disgusted with her aunts and uncles — but especially her own mother. "PopPop and MomMom didn't have much money, so they had nice things but not expensive things. At least not good enough to fight over. Their house wasn't exactly Winterthur, for heaven's sake! But Mom says, 'It's the principle of the thing!'"

How it was resolved I do not know — after she handed in her final, I never saw or heard from her again. But I do know the problem of who gets what is very common, and in recent weeks I've heard two useful solutions which I'll pass on to you — in case your neighbors ever have this problem.

One gentleman put in his will that after his death the traditional coming together of all the relatives would take place in his home. The lawyer for the estate handed each attendee a large stack of "funny" money, the kind we associate with children's board games. Once they settled down, he introduced a professional auctioneer who took them through the business of the day: auctioning off their father's "things."

Everyone had the same amount of scrip, and everyone was invited to bid on every item. But — once they had "spent" all their money, they were requested to pick up their "purchases," and then their part in the auction was over.

I told this to a young friend of mine

Attractions for all ages at new 'old' museum

MUSEUMS are not only my "beat," they are my passion. This, of course, comes as no news to my regular readers. I report to you about museums and their offerings throughout the tri-state area. When a new one comes on the scene, especially so close to the coverage of the Newark Post, that makes it even more exciting and interesting. The excitement and interest compound when the museum is a gateway to so many other attractions in our county.

Now up and running is the Red Clay Valley Museum and Visitors Center located at 2201 Newport-Gap Pike, Delaware Route 41, just 1/4 mile north of its intersection with the Kirkwood Highway, Delaware Route 2, in the Prices Corner Area. The primary shakers and movers to get the new museum open were the Friends of Brandywine Springs Park, The Greenbank Mill and Historic Red Clay Valley, and the owners and operators of the Wilmington & Western Railroad. Many others are now involved.

The "new" museum is in a very old and historic building on the property which also serves as home for Greenbank Station, primary arrival and departure point for all the Wilmington & Western Railroad trains up and down the beautiful Red Clay Valley. The building was once the Yorklyn Station of the Wilmington & Western Railroad, a combined freight and passenger station serving that village for many years. It was moved to its present location to assure its preservation. For several years it was dormant, then it became the Bookstore and Gift Shop for the railroad and, in its latest incarnation, the museum and visitors center.

There are many interesting displays, hands on activities, a diorama and a small theater which shows a program about the Red Clay Valley. The taped program shows today and yesterday in the Red Clay Valley. Some volunteers designed and executed costumes of yesteryear as they move through the attractions the way they were in the latter days of the 19th century and the early days of the 20th century.

There are attractions for all ages at the new facility. The photo with my column today shows some youngsters at the authentic brass railroad telegraphy key donated by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harris of Newark "sending" messages up the line.

The original idea was brought forth by Dr. John M. Iwasyk, a retired du Pont engineer and member of the HRCV board of directors. After many intense hours with state and local government agencies, attractions in the valley, hotels, etc., the play grew into action. It has taken about six years to come to fruition.

The museum and visitors center is staffed and maintained by an all-volunteer group of dedicated people who enjoy talking about the valley and answering questions. And many questions there are. Visitors are coming from all across the United States and Canada. Numbers are climbing according to Mike and Sandi Ciosek who handle arrangements for the museum.

Dr. Iwasyk and his committee have produced an 11 x 17 full color map of the valley with the location of each attraction, information on it and telephone numbers for those wishing more information. He told me, "Many people come to ride the Wilmington & Western trains, visit the Greenbank Mill or Brandywine Springs Park and then ask us 'What else is there to see or do in the area?' The map is a quick and easy response," he concluded. The map is free at the museum. The museum also has a colorful brochure of its own offering photos and other information to visitors. There are also brochures of many of the individual attractions available inside the building.

At the present time the Red Clay Valley Museum and Visitors Center is open whenever the Wilmington & Western Railroad is running. Admission to the exhibits and theater are free. For more information you may call Mike or Sandi Ciosek at 302-994-0536.

This little gem is definitely worth a visit this spring or summer. Visitors of all ages will enjoy themselves. It is also nice to learn more about the area in which we live. There is plenty of free parking.

Enjoy!

displayed in the White House.

Kavanaugh was the only Delawarean of the six firefighters in the picture which represents all the emergency workers in the United States. Other firefighters include men from Arlington, Va., New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York City, as well as a woman from Washington, D.C.

"Steve Austin, a member of Aetna, is on the board of the Congressional Fire Services Institute, a lobbyist group which commissions a portrait every year," said Kavanaugh. "He picked me to do this, but it really represents all the firefighters in Delaware."

Kavanaugh said he's not usually in the spotlight. "I'm a background kind of person and like to keep in the shadows of things,"

Kavanaugh said. "That's alright with me."

The firefighters chosen for this year's portrait went to Washington, D.C., to pose for the work. "We posed in our 'turnouts' on the Washington Mall and the artist did sketches for the portrait," explained Kavanaugh.

The six firefighters were present for the unveiling of the work by artist Chaz Fagan, who also painted the official portrait of former U.S. President Ronald Reagan.

Kavanaugh and his family also were among fire personnel and others attending the Caucus Dinner, which included Dale Callaway, president of the Delaware Fireman's Association, Sen. Carper, U.S. Congressman Mike Castle (R-Delaware), and U.S. President George W. Bush.

In his speech at the dinner, Bush observed, "It has been said that a firefighter's first act of bravery is taking an oath to become a firefighter. This annual event recognizes more than a million Americans who accept the difficult and dangerous work of fighting fires."

The 48-year-old Kavanaugh joined the all-volunteer Aetna fire company after moving to Newark in 1979. He was previously a member of the Wilmington Manor Fire Company for nine years.

Kavanaugh was elected Aetna's chief in December 1999 after holding a number of positions in the fire company. He is employed as a craftsman by Dassault Falcon Jet at the New Castle County Airport where he upholsters custom aircraft.

organizations, civil authorities, area school and community organizations will participate.

According to organizers, the 2002 parade gives special notice to the U.S. Navy and specifically submariners of Delaware. During World War II, there were 52 submariners lost at sea taking 3,600 sailors to their grave. Numerous Delaware submarine veterans will attend the parade so they can be recognized for their bravery in the line of duty.

Following the parade are ceremonies at the city's War Memorial in front of the Academy Building. At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the U.S. Navy Drill Team will present a drill using fixed bayonets and volunteers from the audience.

Kid's managing money

SURVEY results released last week show high school seniors know even less about personal finance basics than they did five years ago. The JumpStart Coalition's nationwide survey compared results with those from similar surveys conducted in 2000 and in 1997.

On average, participants in the 2002 survey answered 50.2 percent of the questions correctly. The average scores in 2000 and 1997 were 51.9 percent and 57.3 percent, respectively.

By Maria Pippidis

Research shows that young people can learn financial principles at ages as young as four. Children observe what their parents do with money and how their parents feel about it. For this reason, it is important that parents evaluate their attitudes about and practices with money.

Parents can help children understand money matters by including them in regular family discussions about what the family income is used for, and the family's long- and short-term financial goals.

Children who understand the financial situation are less likely than others to make unreasonable demands for money. Set ground rules for these family sessions so that parents know in what ways children are expected to participate. You can stress the importance of confidentiality.

At times you will want to plan an experience or situation that provides you the opportunity to teach a special lesson. While playing "store" with your 7-year-old, you can point out the difference in value between a nickel and a

AS THE GROUNDS at Fair Hill become Highland territory on Saturday, May 18, they will be covered with musicians wearing kilts, men completing "feats of strength," dancers performing traditional steps and other cultural attractions.

The event, better known as the Scottish games, will be held for the 40th time from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and no pets are allowed on the grounds during that time.

The cost is $12 a person and free for children under 12.

The day will be filled with mostly competitive events, including piping and drumming bands as well as individual competitions on the instruments, Highland athletics, and Scottish dancing. Exhibits, demonstrations and entertainment will fill the rest of the day.

Experience and excitement filled the voice of Maclean Mcleod, the president of the Colonial Highland Gathering, as he spoke of the tradition and culture of the games. Mcleod is one of the founding members of the games and is originally from Ullapool, a village in the north of Scotland.

He remembers when the event was held at Delaware Park. After a few years off and "figuring out what we were doing," the games resumed for three more years at Delaware Park before they moved to Fair Hill, Mcleod said.

The games have changed over the years, mainly in the location and the amount of competition participation. The first year only four pipe bands competed and now 35 will march on the grounds. Though the games have changed throughout the years, main focus of the day is still to maintain tradition.

"I'm of the belief that if you maintain traditions of each nationality, whatever it may be, and take the best of the traditions, they bind and add to the overall American bands on the East Coast. There are more than 35 bands competing," Mcleod said. "The highlight of the day is the parade of all the bands at 1 p.m. It's not a sound you normally hear. If you have never heard it before, then bring a muffler because it will raise the hair on the back of your neck."

The St. Andrew Society of Baltimore Colourguard, "one of the best colour guards on the East Coast," will march in the parade as well. Other participants are the 84th Highland Regiment of Foot and the Brandywine Dulcimer Fellowship.

David Moore of Elkton is a member of the The Pipes and Drums of the Delaware Valley.

"I have been piping for about 10 years," Moore said. "My family is from the north of Ireland so I grew up around it, my cousins and my aunt used to play the pipes."

The pipes are not difficult to play "once you get used to it," Moore said. He competed for the first time in 1995. The competitions make for a long day beginning with warm-up at 10 a.m. and participation in the "mass bands" parade around noon. Moore and the rest of the band then have to wait for their turn to compete which depends what time they draw. Once they have competed "you can kind of exhale," Moore said. But their job of entertaining does not end there, they also participate in the closing ceremonies.

Moore enjoys participating in the Scottish games because "there are a lot of good pipers from up and down the east coast and I get a chance to hear some of the best bands."

"I have been in a lot of competitions and the one at Fair Hill is the best," Moore said. "It is the nicest location because there is plenty of room. I have been to some where you are cramped and it isn't fun."

In previous years Moore competed in both the band and individual competitions, but he now has four children and said there is just no time for both.

The games are "fun for the whole family," Moore said. His children enjoy the animals the most, especially the sheep dogs and the Clydesdale horses. Moore's son "really likes the caber toss and the athletics are his favorite."

Moore hopes to continue his piping pastime for years to come and participate in the Scottish games as long as possible.

pushing our culture and what we believe does not conflict with American life, but adds to it. I think the games are important because they sort of reinforce the Scottish, Celtic, Welsh and Irish culture."

Part of the Scottish tradition that will be shared on Saturday is the pipe and drum bands.

"We normally have the largest collection of piping competition and I saw some guys from a band I used to be in and the one is almost 70. You know when you get older your hands don't work as well and there is a lot of breathing involved. They were going well, I hope I can play at that age."

There will also be musical entertainment that is not for a competition. HeartSounds, a music group, the Glengarry Bhoys, folk singers from Canada and Celtic Magic will perform.

Celtic Magic has a "larger domain" and performs tricks and storytelling for children, Mcleod said.

Do your feet need a hand?

The human foot is an amazing feat of engineering. Not only does this complex structure support your entire body weight, it also endures and absorbs tremendous stress when you stand, walk, run, jump and move. So it is not surprising that this everyday wear and tear can lead to pain. What is astonishing is the number of people who suffer with chronic foot problems. They assume that sore feet are a natural part of getting older. Nothing could be further from the truth.

At the Advanced Foot and Ankle Center, Doctors Raymond A. DiPreto, Jr. and Linda L. Lawton use the most advanced surgical and non-surgical techniques to treat common as well as complex foot and ankle conditions. By targeting and correcting the root cause of the problem and restoring proper foot structure and function, patients experience real and sustained pain relief from:

- ▶ bunions
- ▶ bone spurs
- ▶ flat feet
- ▶ fractures
- ▶ hammer-toes
- ▶ heel pain
- ▶ infections and ulcerations related to diabetes
- ▶ neuromas—numbness and burning sensations
- ▶ sprains and other foot and ankle injuries

To learn more about the latest advancements in the treatment of these and other foot disorders, or to schedule an appointment, call the Advanced Foot and Ankle center today:

Five at NSC earn Jefferson awards for volunteerism

On Friday, May 3, five area residents became Jefferson Award recipients.

The award recognizes the efforts and talents of those who donate their time at the Newark Senior Center.

Award winners were selected by a committee consisting of community members from nominations made by the Newark Senior Center Staff and members.

This year's award winners were: Milt Draper, Anthony Giordano, Jane Groo, Howard Nielson, and Elizabeth Tressler.

Draper coordinates the benefit poker game every month at the Center. He recruits dealers, sets up the room, and completes the paper work for the State Gaming Board. The monthly poker game is a major fundraiser for the Center, yielding almost $20,000 of revenue each year.

Giordano handled the advertising in the newsletter for many years. He also volunteers in the theatre program, building sets and scenery and takes charge of props.

Groo volunteers every Tuesday and as needed on a substitute basis with the Meals on Wheels program. She checks on the well-being of clients and reports any problem she sees.

Nielson has led one of the discussion groups for the past six years, bringing in topics, helping to keep the discussion moving and adding humor to the proceedings. He also works with the Delaware Humanities Forum to provide inspiring and challenging speakers to the Center each month.

Tressler looks over the jewelry that is donated for the fall and spring bazaars. She cleans and repairs donations and prices it to ensure a successful sale. For more than 14 years, Elizabeth has served at the Reception Desk.

Guess who's 90!

THELMA Anderson will turn 90 years old on May 28. Guests at a party in her honor will include family and friends, with some coming from Kansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Texas, North Carolina, and Washington State.

Anderson has a lived in New Castle for the past 43 years. She drives her own car and takes care of herself and her own affairs, family members said. She likes to attend church, and grow her own vegetables and flowers.

She was born in Clark County, Miss., where she met and married Claude H. Anderson in 1927 at the age of 14. They moved to Delaware in April 1959 and were married for 52 years.

She learned to drive at the age of 60, when she decided she was tired of depending on others to take her places. Also, at age 60, she went back to school for two-and-a-half years to earn a degree to be a psychiatric technician. She retired in 1976 after more than 17 years from the Delaware State Hospital.

Ms. Anderson has seven children, Tommie Anderson of Longview, Texas, twin girls, Jean McMullen of New Castle, and Joyce Burkhalter of Wilmington, N.C., Geri Inskeep of Wilmington, Kenneth Anderson of New Castle, Norma Foster of Atlanta, Ga., and Florence Ross of Bear.

She has 20 grandchildren, 32 great-grandchildren, and five great-great-grandchildren.

Daughter Florence Ross said she is truly the ideal of what all mothers should be, "We wish her the best of health and happiness."

Andrew Mitchell, 98, former toy executive

NEWARK area resident Andrew Malachy Mitchell died on Monday, April 1, 2002. Mr. Mitchell, 98, was born in Brooklyn, N.Y.

He retired as executive vice president with Fisher-Price Toys Inc. He had been head of sales from 1935-1968.

Fisher-Price was a fledgling company when he joined it. He had not only been sales manager but had contributed to the ideas and designs for many of the toys.

His primary office was at 200 Fifth Avenue (The Toy Building) in New York City.

From there he traveled extensively throughout the U.S. and then in later years to Asia both selling the pull-toys as well as identifying suppliers.

During World War II, he moved with his family from Long Island to East Aurora, N.Y., when Fisher-Price devoted its plant to war supplies for the U.S. Navy.

In 1948, he moved back to New York City to resume the toy business.

He was recognized for his high integrity and diligence by Mr. Fisher and others in the toy industry.

Upon his retirement in 1968, Mitchell and his first wife moved to New Canaan, Conn., and then to Orchard Park, N.Y. After the death of his first wife, he moved to Tucson, Ariz. There he met and married his second wife, who also passed away.

He was presently a resident at his daughter's home in the Newark area.

He is survived by his daughters, Margaret Ann Mitchell, with whom he lived since 1999, and Catherine M. Beltz of Orchard Park, N.Y.;

sons-in-laws, Paul W. Beltz and Malachi P. Kenney; 13 grandchildren; and 19 great-grandchildren.

Services were held at St. Thomas More Oratory in Newark and at Mealey Funeral Home in Wilmington.

Burial was private.

Eleanor Rose Young, lived in Salem Village

Former Newark resident Eleanor Rose Young died on Monday, Jan. 28, 2002.

Mrs. Young, 85, formerly lived in Salem Village. She was born in Boston, Mass.

She is survived by her son, Robert Whitcomb and his wife Kathy of Sebago, Maine; daughter, Nancy Baxter of Newark; two brothers in California; a sister-in-law in Florida; and 13 grandchildren.

Services were held at the Chandler Funeral Home in Hockessin. Burial was in the All Saints Cemetery in Wilmington.

Grace Prest, 84, environmentalist

Former Bear resident Grace A. Prest died on Saturday, March 30, 2002.

Mrs. Prest, 84, was a native of Pennsylvania, but had lived in Bear for nearly 50 years before moving to Jenner's Pond Retirement Community in West Grove, Pa. A graduate of Abington High School, she attended Temple University, Penn State University and Strayer's Business School.

A life long birder and environmentalist, she was active in the Wildlife Federation, Delmarva Ornithological Society, Delaware Wild Lands and Delaware Nature Education Society. She was active in protecting wetlands along the Delaware River and in the movement to preserve White Clay Creek as a natural area.

She is survived by her daughter, Judith Prest; son-in-law, Alan Krieger; one grandson; and a brother, Richard W. Arnold of Norfolk, Va.

Services were held at Unitarian/Universalist Fellowship of Newark.

Elmer Magargal Jr., retired from Chrysler

Former Newark area resident Elmer Everett Magargal Jr. died on Monday, April 1, 2002.

Mr. Magargal, 67, was born in Wilmington and had been an assembly line worker for Chrysler Motor company. He was active at the Payson Senior Center and was a member of St. Philip the Apostle Church in Payson, Ariz.

He is survived by his daughters, Stephanie J. Magargal and Vickie L. Magargal, both of Wilmington; son, Michael E. Magargal of Fredericksburg, Md.; sisters Helen Christian of Cape Canaveral, Fla., and Mary Graybeal of Bonita Springs, Fla.; brother, William Magargal of Dover; four grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Services were held at St. Philip the Apostle Church in Payson, Ariz.

George P. Boulden, worked for Ramon's

Newark resident George P. Boulden died on Thursday, April 4, 2002.

Mr. Boulden, 71, worked as a security guard for many years as well as a driver and deliveryman for Ramon's Flowers. He served our country in the U.S. Army during the Korean War. Mr. Boulden enjoyed collecting memorabilia items. He was also close to his dog, Mitt Mitt.

He is survived by his daughter, Judithann S. Vinson and her fiancé, Derrick Caban of New Castle, who cared for her father during his illness; sons, Richard W. Boulden and John W. Boulden, both of New Castle; stepson, Carmen Montoro of Newark; stepdaughters, Margaret Campbell of New Castle and Becky Montoro of Port Isabel, Texas; brother, Thomas Boulden of Wilmington; seven grandchildren; and a great-grandson.

Newark. Burial was in the Del. Veterans Memorial Cemetery.

POST GAME

Local teams look strong as state tournaments approach

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

State tournament time is rapidly approaching and, as usual, there will be a host of local teams vying for championships.

The softball picture includes three-time defending state champion Caravel as well as St. Mark's.

The Bucs have had some turmoil this season but they also have great players and a lot of experience.

St. Mark's, the top-ranked team in the state for most of the season, lost to the Bucs in last year's title game.

This year, the Spartans have been nearly perfect.

The softball tournament is always one of the best of the high school sports calendar.

This year should be no exception.

Caravel and St. Mark's also have two of the top baseball teams in the state this year.

St. Mark's, with All-American pitcher Mark Romanczuk, would seem to Christiana baseball upends Newark

Vikings improve playoff chances

By ED MEYERS

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Christiana's baseball team improved its chances for post-season play Thursday night with a 9-6 victory over arch-rival Newark in a game played at the Newark National Little League park before a large, noisy crowd.

The Vikings got even for an earlier 4-1 defeat to the Yellow Jackets, boosting their Blue Hen Conference mark to 8-4 and 10-6 overall. The win moved Christiana into a tie with Newark in the league standings. Newark is 10-4 overall.

Senior Todd Rump won his sixth of the year against two losses as he settled down after a rocky start, allowing just two hits and one run in the final five innings after giving up five runs in the first two.

The Vikings jumped on Newark starting pitcher Erec Spiese with four hits for four runs in the opening frame.

Shortstop Kevin Ellis, who made several key defensive plays in the game, opened the inning with a walk.

Dave Barlow, the second baseman, doubled down the right field foul line as Ellis scored after stealing second base.

Rob Vigliotta, Viking catcher, singled to left as Barlow scored on a throwing error and then Luis Hernandez also hit one to left, putting two runners on.

Doug Burris was safe on an infield error and then Anthony Cermele, who had third hits in the game, cracked a ball down the right field line to score Vigliotta and Hernandez for a 4-0 Christiana lead.

The Jackets came right back in the bottom of the first with 4 runs of their own to tie matters as third baseman Dan Perkins hit a 3-run home run deep to left field which easily cleared the fence.

Drew Kisner singled and stole second and third, scoring on Steve Selk's one out single to deep center field.

Pitcher Spiese got a hit to left and then Perkins hit his homer as Newark tied things at 4-4.

Christiana went up 5-4 in the top of the second. With one out, Barlow singled over second base. Ryan Pugh, the right fielder, flied to left, but Vigliotta got his second hit over shortstop, driving in Barlow.

Austin Kisner opened the bottom of the second with a double to left and came home on a run-scoring hit to center by Kisner to again tie the game at 5-all.

But Christiana drove Spiese from the mound in the third as Cermele singled and designated hitter Eric Bates was safe on an infield error.

Greg Moore relieved Spiese. See CHRISTIANA, 13 ►

SPARTANS LOOKING TOUGH

Jackets also fall to B'wine

Conference title hopes damaged

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Newark's hopes of winning the Blue Hen Conference Flight A title this season hit a major roadblock Tuesday afternoon in a 6-1 loss to Brandywine. The pennant race was then over for Newark after a hard fought 9-6 loss to Christiana on Thursday.

The defeats left the Yellowjackets with a 7-4 conference mark and a 10-5 record doesn't pitch will determine how far the Spartans go.

Newark, Christiana and William Penn also have strong teams this season and would be a tough opponent for any team out there.

St. Mark's and Newark are two of the top girls soccer teams in the state.

The two played to a 1-1 tie a few weeks ago and could meet again in the tournament.

The Spartans have not lost and are a clear favorite. The Yellowjackets, though, showed they can play with anybody and will be a force in the tournament.

Those three tournaments will all begin next week and conclude June 1.

College teams have tough weekend

Both the University of Delaware and Delaware State baseball teams had rough weekends.

With many local players leading the way, both teams had opportunities over the weekend to have significant firsts.

The Hens needed just one victory against William & Mary to earn the top seed in next week's CAA Tournament. The Tribe, however, won all three games in Newark to prevent Delaware from getting that seed.

The Hens now must wait for the rest of the conference regular season to finish before knowing their seed.

The Hornets did finally get over a hump and win their first-round game of the MEAC Tournament in Florida. However, they dropped a heartbreaking 10-9 decision to Florida A&M in the winner's bracket semifinals.

The loss dropped DSU into the loser's bracket where it ultimately fell again to A&M in the loser's bracket final.

Delaware State did set a school record for victories with 40 and have a strong nucleus of players returning next season.

Pitcher Ashley Constantini has helped the St. Mark's to the top-ranked spot in the state heading into the state tournament.

Blue Hens swept by William & Mary in CAA

Losses hurt Delaware's chances of top seed in tourney

The College of William and Mary broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning and held on through the final three frames to defeat the University of Delaware 7-3, completing a three-game Colonial Athletic Association series sweep Saturday at Bob Hannah Stadium.

Delaware (33-20, 12-7 CAA) jumped out to an early two-run lead in the first inning as Mark Michael and John Schneider laced back-to-back RBI singles. After William & Mary answered with two runs in the fourth and one run in the fifth innings, Michael struck once again for the Blue Hens, tying the game with an RBI double in the bottom half of the fifth inning.

The Tribe (29-22, 10-8 CAA) took final control of the lead in the seventh inning as Trey Wakefield drove in Kyle Padgett with an RBI single and Marshall Hubbard followed two batters later with a two-run home run. C.J. Stimson capped off the four-run rally with a solo home run and the Tribe pitching staff held the Blue Hens in check the rest of the way to pick up the team's eighth straight victory, and control of the Colonial Division lead.

Stimson finished the game 2-for-5 adding a double to go with his seventh home run of the season, and Matt Kirby added his fourth home run of the season, a two-run shot in the fourth inning.

Michael led the Blue Hens going 2-for-4 with two RBI, while Casey Fahy and Steve Harden also added two hits a piece.

On the mound, Tribe lefty Ryan Bogardus (4-2) settled down after a rocky start, to finish allowing three runs on seven hits while striking out eight over eight full innings. Rich McGuire (5-4) suffered the loss for the Blue Hens, giving up five earned runs on 10 hits.

The loss closes the book on McKean, William Penn and Delcastle this week to finish the season. Penn and Brandywine are chart toppers in Flight A. Brandywine, last year's state runner-up, has led the conference almost the entire season. But the Colonials finally caught the Bulldogs, thanks to a 8-5 Brandywine victory over Penn last weekend.

The Bulldogs broke out on top over Newark with a run in the bottom of the second, and extended the lead with another run in the fourth, as the fans witnessed a fine pitching dual between Newark starter Steve Selk and Brandywine's Jacob Doyle early in the game.

Newark wasted a scoring opportunity in the top of the second when John Parkinson was gunned down at the plate on a nice tag play by catcher Dan Santobianco.

The Jackets wouldn't mount a threat against Doyle until the last inning.

Newark coach Curt Bedford said Doyle was a dominating factor in the game, only giving up three hits to the Jackets. "He pitched a real good game against us, he was very hard to hit against, and hard to score on him," he said.

Brandywine then blew the game wide open, scoring four runs in the bottom of the sixth against a tiring Selk. After Newark opened the floodgates with two errors, Santobianco then delivered the decisive hit, chasing home three runs with a bases clearing triple. Outfielder Brian Theibault had a big day for Brandywine with three hits and two RBI.

Doyle said he had good com-

Florida A&M scored 10 runs in the fourth inning en route to a 16-4 win over Delaware State in the MEAC Baseball Tournament Saturday, ousting the Hornets from the double-elimination tourney.

Earlier in the day, Delaware State outslugged North Carolina A&T 20-16 in a semifinal round contest.

In the Florida A&M contest, the score was 3-3 when the Rattlers blew the game open in the fourth. Florida A&M sent 13 batters to the plate.

Manuel Quinones hit athree-run homer, while Donny Von Dolter added a two-run blast and Vince Palmer smacked a solo shot in the inning. In the North Carolina A&T contest, Kevin Maloney's two-run single with two outs in the ninth put the Hornets ahead 18-16.

Delaware State led 16-8 before the Aggies scored eight unanswered runs to tie the game in the bottom of the eighth. Scott Martin hit a three-run homer in Delaware State's six-run third inning, his third homer of the tournament.

Martin and Phil Sullinger each drove in four runs for the Hornets. The team combined for 35 hits and six homers. North Carolina A&T outhit the Hornets 18-17, but hurt its cause by committing eight errors in the contest. Delaware State finishes its season at 40-19, eclipsing the school record of 37 wins set by the 2001 squad.

In addition, Scott Martin, Bret Underwood, and Malkum King were named to the MEAC All-Tournament team.

Bethune-Cookman won the championship for the fourth year in a row beating Florida A&M 7-3. Jason Dooley went the distance for the win.

Delaware St. 18, Coppin St. 5 — In its first loser's bracket game, the Hornets took out their frustration on the Coppin State Eagles by scoring 18 runs on 16 hits.

Delaware State won 18-5 in six and a half innings. Jimmy Conroy (3-1) pitched a complete game allowing seven hits and three earned runs. Stan Alston (4-5) took the loss for the Eagles who were eliminated from the tournament after losing to Bethune-Cookman earlier in the day.

Delaware State 3, Norfolk State 2 — The Hornets scored two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat Norfolk State 3-2 in the opening round of the MEAC Tournament Thursday.

Kelly Williams scored the winning run on a fielding error with none out in the inning. Kevin Maloney singled to open the ninth.

Williams then singled to left, advancing pinch-runner Duben Word to second.

Mike August followed with a single to right field, scoring Word. Williams was sent home when Norfolk State right fielder Bryan Smith let the ball get past him and it rolled to the fence. The win was Delaware State's first in the tournament's opening round since 1994.

CARIELLO HONORED

University of Delaware softball player Amanda Cariello - a St. Mark's graduate - was named first-team All-CAA this season. Cariello batted .294 for the Hens and had a 12-11 record with a 2.37 ERA as a pitcher.

on the mound, but Christiana scored third times.

Jerry Davis' single to keep right center plated Cermele. With one out, Barlow got Bates home on a fielder's choice play and Davis scored on an RBI single by Pugh for an 8-5 Viking lead.

Rump settled down on the mound, striking out 6 Newark batters over the final 5 innings and was aided by some sparkling defensive plays in the infield.

Newark meanwhile, committed 7 errors, giving the Vikings a base runner in every inning.

The losers rallied in the bottom of the seventh with two outs as Selk got an infield single and Kyle Walker, running for Selk, scored on Moore's double to left to make the final 9-6.

Christiana coach Marvin Dooley had high praise for his pitcher Rump following the victory.

"Rump settle down after the second inning," he said. "He's been our workhorse and nobody deserves this win more," Dooley added. "This was a real team effort and it's a big win for our program. This is a nice boost with two games to go."

Christiana faced Brandywine yesterday (Tuesday) and plays host to William Penn Thursday.

Newark played at William Penn Tuesday and travels to Delcastle tomorrow.

Prior to the game, members of Newark's National Little League team, which finished third in the USA two years ago, were honored with pins by their former coach, John Talley.

The Newark Little Leaguers won the Delaware State title, captured the Eastern Region crown in New Jersey and then finished third in the national tournament in Florida.

mand of his pitches on a great day for baseball.

"I didn't try to do too much today. I know they (Newark) have some good hitters, so I just wanted to stay ahead of the count and throw some fastballs in good locations," he said.

Newark scored its only run of the game in the top of the sevdouble and eventually came around to score.

Following the loss to Christiana, Bedford said he's hoping the team can still make it to the state tournament at the end of the month.

"We have our work cut out for us now, but if we win our last three, we should make it. We'd settle for 16th seed, if that's what

You can 'dig it' this Sunday at Iron Hill festival

The public is invited to the fourth annual archaeology festival at Iron Hill Museum this Sunday, May 19, from noon until 4 p.m.

The festival is sponsored by the Delaware Academy of Science, Iron Hill Museum and The Archaeological Society of Delaware.

This program is partly funded by a grant from the Delaware Humanities Forum, a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The festival is being held in connection with Delaware Archaeology Month and offers many opportunities for the public to explore the rich archaeological heritage of Iron Hill and Newark.

Visitors are invited to become an "archaeologist for a day" and participate in an actual excavation, identify artifacts, learn how the found items were made and used, and watch a demonstration of archaeological survey techniques using ground penetrating radar equipment.

The program will feature demonstrations on stone tool-making, pit cooking, blacksmithing, and archery.

Children may participate in activities for "Junior Archaeologists" and historic games.

Iron Hill's Native American heritage and African-American history will also be explored.

Bruce "Little Drummer" Morris, a member of the Lenape Indian tribe of Delaware, will demonstrate dancing, regalia, story-telling and other cultural traditions of Delaware Indians.

Valarie Boyer will portray school teacher Nannie Goode in a living history program featuring the Iron Hill Schoolhouse's African-American past.

For further information contact Laura Lee at the museum, 368-5703.

Information about the Delaware Archaeology Month program is posted on the Archaeological Society's web site.
