School Board Works To Relieve Crowded School Conditions

Main Street School Will Allow Helpful Readjustment; Need For Wing To New Building Vital

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

The Board of Education, Newark Special School District, held its regular monthly meeting Monday night in the public school office. After approving the Thanksgiving recess, which will start at 1 o'clock today, the board turned its attention to the report of the reconditioning of the Main street school building, and to recommendations for making more effective use of the Delaware avenue school building. The board members present were: H. Harrison Gray, president; E. L. Richards; and Ira S. Brinser, secretary of the board and superintendent of schools.

It was reported that the work on the Main street building will be completed this week and that within ten days it will be possible to place grades 4 and 5 in the building. The heating plant has been carefully inspected and all wash rooms put in first class sanitary condition. The walls have been tinted a tan color and the ceilings ivory.

Moving grades 4 and 5 into this building will allow them to operate together as a definite constructive school unit, and will make it possible to carry on work of drawing and penmanship which the present equipment has not made uniformly possible. Each pupil will have an adjustable desk, not fastened to the floor. Grades 4 and 5 will have a library commensurate to their age, grade and interest.

The chief work to be done in the Delaware avenue building is to cement the basement floor so that the basement may be used as an activity room for the children during inclement weather. The corridors are to be brightened by placing glass panels in the doors leading into the school. New washstands will be installed and one of the classrooms will be enlarged.

The reorganization of grades made possible by the use of the Main street building will allow grades of the same age to be grouped in one building which will result in closer cooperation.

Thinks Lantern Tail Light, Smashes Gate

A man driving a Maryland car with the registration number 234,390, had a narrow escape from death on Sunday night when he crashed through the gate at the Pennsylvania crossing on Depot road just before the 8:23 passed the crossing.

Unaware that there was a crossing there he thought the red light on the lowered gate was the tail light of another car, and when he saw the gate, he was too close to stop. He was going south on Depot road and after smashing the gate stopped with his car across tracks 3 and 4. The 8:23 was coming down track 4. Persons waiting on the platform quickly pulled his car back, clearing the track just as the train passed. The man left his name with the crossing watchman, but it was not written legibly enough to decipher.

Miss Beyer Addresses Alumnae Meeting

Lectures To Wilmington Chapter On Bookplates; Shows Specimens

Miss Nancy Beyer, head of the art department of the Women's College, University of Delaware, talked on "Bookplates, Their Historical and Decorative Significance," at the monthly meeting of the Wilmington Chapter of the Alumnae Association of the Women's College, University of Delaware, which was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. Harmer Donaldson, 403 West Nineteenth street, Wilmington.

The speaker told of how the custom of using bookplates began with the nobility in Germany in the fifteenth century, who put their coat-of-arms in the books so that they might be identified. As the style spread to England, France and other countries, the designs became more varied, including the landscape, symbolic, allegorical and portrait.

There are between thirty and forty different ways of making the plates, said Miss Beyer, including steel engraving copper plate, zinc plate and leather. Following her talk, the speaker showed a number of the book plates from the collection now on view at the University of Delaware. These included a reprint of George Washington's containing his coat-of-arms and from which is said to have originated the idea of the American flag with its stars and stripes. Historians will also be interested in knowing that Paul Revere was a very fine artist, designer and engraver of the plates.

Others in the collection were the original of William Howard Taft's plate, a reprint of William Penn's, and an old English one of 1650. About sixty of those shown were engravings of C. Valentine Kirby, State director of art in Pennsylvania, a well known artist who will be one of the five from this county to attend the art conference to be held at Prague next summer. Delicate etchings by John F. Hollingsbee, the landscape artist, were also included.

Tyson To Have Big Stable At Pinehurst

Expects About Twenty-Five Racers In His String; Has Had Good Season With 28 Firsts

Herman Tyson, who has 28 races to his credit so far this season, plans to leave next Wednesday or Thursday for Pinehurst, N. C., where he has established winter quarters for his stable of harness racers. Mrs. Tyson will accompany him. The Pinehurst racing season opens on Thanksgiving Day and continues until April 1, and Mr. Tyson, who will have a stable of about 25 horses under his charge, intends to add considerably to his number of firsts.

Mr. Tyson is in New York, this week at the famous Old Glory Sale, being held in the Squadron "A" Armory. It is possible that he will pick up some likely youngsters at the sale to take South with him.

Tyson made his initial win this year at the Harrington, Del., sweepstakes races, where he gave the speedy Patsy Leaf 2.09 his only sweepstakes race beating with Johnny B. Incidentally Johnny B. accounted for no less than eight wins during the past season and has a record of 2.07 1/4.

The leading race winner in the Tyson stable the past season was Hal Bee 2.02 1/4. This game daughter of Hal B, owned by Senator Charles D. Murphy, of Harrington, Del., has been a consistent racehorse. Last year she acquired a race record of 2.09 1/4 and now carries a tab of 2.02 1/4, having won nine races the past season. She was an unusually fast horse all this fall. In winning her last race at Clinton she defeated her successful stable mate, Charing Cross, also the property of Senator Murphy, rather easily in 2.07 flat. Hal made 14 starts in all and has now been let down for the winter.

Jane Lyne 2.06 1/4 won four races this season and looks good for her class. Southhold, 2.12 1/4, the fast New Jersey trotter, did not come into the Tyson stable until well into September.

MRS. EVANS ENTERTAINS CLASS

Those present at the party were: Miss Leta Waters, Mrs. Essie Spooner, Misses Lydia Fader, Winnie Fader, Katharine Steele, Alberta Heiser, Sara Steele, Ethel Campbell, Mary Johnston, Edna Chambers, Mae Chambers, Sara Potts, Mrs. Paul Lovett, Mrs. Robert Townsend, Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Lee Lewis, and Mrs. Orville Little. Mrs. Mary McKeon who will have charge of Mrs. Evans' class this winter, was also a guest at the party.

University Library Has Rare Manuscript

Italians Present Reproduction Of Dante Manuscript To Memorial Library

The Memorial Library of the University is displaying in the exhibit case in the main reading room a colored reproduction of an early Dante manuscript. This reproduction was presented to the university by interested Italians at the time of the world-wide celebration of the Dante's six hundredth anniversary in 1921.

In discussing this manuscript, Donald Coney, university librarian, stated that it is an extremely fine reproduction of The Trivulzian manuscript, so-called because it was at one time a part of the Dante collection of the Marchese Gian Giacomo Trivulzio, at Florence. The manuscript itself is the best preserved of the early manuscripts of Dante's poems. It was written in 1337, sixteen years after the death of the poet, by Francesco di ser Nardo, a Florentine scribe.

The reproduction is so exact that the grain of the vellum on which it is written is readily apparent. The two pages exhibited show the end of the second part of the Divine Comedy, the "Purgatorio" and the beginning of the "Paradiso," the last of which is especially interesting for the colored decorations in the form of miniatures representing the coronation of the Virgin Mary, and the ornate colored border.

"The library is extremely fortunate," stated the librarian, "in having such an excellent reproduction of an early manuscript. Such reproductions are very expensive to make, and this particular one is one of an edition limited to 350 copies."

E. W. DAWSON INJURED

Friends here have been grieved to learn of an accident which has befallen E. W. Dawson at Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, where Mr. and Mrs. Dawson are living with their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Dawson, who teaches there. Mr. Dawson, while enjoying his daily walk near his home was struck by an automobile and suffered serious injury to his back. Details of the accident are lacking, but it was learned yesterday that he is in a hospital in East Stroudsburg and that there is a slight improvement in his condition.

The Dawsons lived here for several years and later on a large dairy farm between here and Elkton, before moving to Smyrna, from which place they moved to Stroudsburg last summer.

Teaching English For Mastery

The following is the address made by Ira S. Brinser, superintendent of Newark Schools, before the English section at the meeting Delaware Education Association, on November 10, at Milford, Delaware.

One of the first tasks of the chemist is to dissociate the compound into its basic elements. Our task is a like one. English includes many phases of factors which if not clearly differentiated will lead to confusion of thought.

For our discussion let us at the outset set apart language from literature, and let us further set apart technical phases of language from language as expression. Values and aims of language center around language as a tool and methods of teaching should be determined thereby. Language not merely as a medium for expression, but as a condition and tool for the thinking process itself.

First of all, therefore, let us think of language as an instrument even more important for the individual's thinking than for his expression or for his understanding of the thoughts of others. Upon language must depend the individuals actual thinking. Therefore with English I believe that we agree that our thinking is facilitated and conditioned by language, and secondly that language is a medium of communication.

Failure to recognize the first is probably our greatest error. Another error is that we fail to realize that language as an instrument of thinking is dependent upon habits which should continuously be guarded in their formation and which would bring forth such abilities as should present themselves automatically.

The process in the teaching of language for mastery in thinking and for the transmission of thinking should have at least three definite goals:

1. The development of a stock of words;
2. The development of increased precision and accuracy in the use of words as related to thinking;
3. The development of habits of use of words to build up and to facilitate consecutive thinking and consecutive discourse.

The interrelating of these three goals is the duty of every teacher regardless of subject. Every teacher is first and foremost a teacher of English. For each subject has its capital stock of words. The defining of these words must be characterized by precision and accuracy, otherwise vagueness, indefiniteness, and mediocrity is the inevitable result. Words—the counterfeits of our perceptions and senses—grow in clearness when the fog of vagueness and haziness is cleared away. Precepts are the pioneers of new words and combining new words with former precepts and words gives us general notions. Our comparison of general notions gives us feelings of relationship which form the basis of consecutive thinking and discourse. Consecutive thinking and consecutive discourse is based on precision of precepts and concepts of words.

Extensive vocabulary building, in which the general meaning of words is mastered, is a relatively simple task, and should be accomplished in the elementary school. The varying elements attached to the same word or a modification of it with different shades of meaning is a difficult task of great importance, and the mastery thereof is accomplished only by constant practice in the organization of consecutive thinking and consecutive discourse.

Our first mastery then is to so employ language as an instrument of thinking and thereby as an expression of thought; all other elements should be considered of minor importance. With this aim in mind there will be little danger that formal grammar would usurp functional or applied grammar or that any other technical phases would carry themselves beyond legitimate limits.

A second mastery should be that of the actual use of language. Our work should be actually dominated by the conception that only exercise—really doing—can achieve the desired ends.

A third mastery should be that of overcoming the law of inertia in using stereotyped expressions and putting into its place originality. Our own mental inertia leads us to the line of least resistance, and the inevitable result is that we soon take the easier path around rather than the more effortful path through the thinking process. Pupils permitted to employ their own language rather than the vocabulary of the situation or subject and without passing their thoughts through the crucible of comparison, contrast and election, are acquiring habits of vagueness and looseness and no mastery.

The most important study for the accomplishment of these purposes—developing a stock of words, developing precision and accuracy in vocabulary, developing of consecutive thinking and discourse—is composition. It is here that the greatest difficulties are encountered. These difficulties fall into several phases:

1. These phases which should be well nigh automatic—penmanship, spelling, form of work, paragraphing, punctuation rules and their application, foundation phases of grammar, principal parts of verbs, tense.
2. The utilization of the English language to transform that language from an instrument of its usual daily use to an instrument for precise, accurate, original, and constructive thinking. I might add parenthetically that if the former hinders the latter, then the pupil has a confusion of tasks which at times seems hopeless.

Transforming daily language to precise and accurate thinking is possible only through the refining process of comparison, contrast and selection of terms whose connotation and denotation more or less overlap. A definite problem to set before the pupil which demands reasoning on account of a felt difficulty is the means toward a desired end. We all realize the out-of-school language difficulty. In our own case I believe that we feel a difference between the free and easy speech of conversation and the speech of precise and accurate thinking. Over out-of-school language we have little control, but within the school the teaching of language suffers serious limitations.

We all know that habit formation demands as one of its necessary conditions that associations suffer few exceptions. Habits successfully fastened in the English class are commonly counteracted by interfering conditions in other classes. Unless the work in English is closely correlated with the work of other classes, when the relation of language and thought is carefully alluded to in the study of other subjects, the constructive work of the English class will be lost by the destructive work in other classes. To be sure, the teaching of language is primarily the work of the English teacher, but every other teacher must see that these standards of English are habitually kept in practice. The next great step in mastery therefore is cooperation.

This is true for every grade and every subject and has special pertinence for me as a teacher and as an administrator. You know of instances, and many of them, when the pleasant pastime of "passing the buck" to the English teacher was a regular indoor sport. This is wrong. The English of the entire school is the business of the entire school, the same as its discipline. The proposal to coordinate English and other subjects in the school has strong points to justify its adoption. Personally I feel the logical plan for cooperation is in the subjects now generally grouped as the social sciences, in addition to all extracurricular work. Speed is the touchstone to success in life. In social science especially the pupil faces the most vital and most alluring problems of the school course. Here is life—and here is the pupil's complex relationship to the home and the community. Here is the bulk of his training in morals and for the worthy use of leisure. No artificial world is forced upon the reluctant writer here!

And finally, let us place at the bottom of it all—A mastery of the procedure to make language a tool for the thinking process itself through the extensive development of vocabulary; the development of precision and accuracy in the use of words as related to thought and the habit of the refining process of comparison, contrast and selection of words to bring about consecutive thinking and consecutive discourse.

Two Recipes for Orange Marmalade

The two following recipes which have been tried out and approved may fairly be called respectively "The Household" recipe, because it is particularly advantageous for spreading on bread and toast, and the "De Luxe" because the latter makes almost a preserved fruit marmalade, to be eaten with a spoon like any other stewed fruit or sweet, although, of course, it can be spread on bread, like the other, if preferred.

Household Marmalade

Cut in half 12 oranges and 1 lemon; squeeze out the juice on a lemon-squeezer and pour it into a large earthenware jar. Put the skins through the mincing-machine and add them to the juice. Now pour in 11 large tumblers of water (or if a smaller glass is used, regulate the quantity). Let it stand for 24 hours, after which cook it half an hour and again let it stand 24 hours, then boil it for 1½ hours with a little more than 8 pounds of sugar.

De Luxe Marmalade

For the "De Luxe" recipe take 9 large oranges or 12 smaller ones, cut them in thin slices with the peel, keep the pips. Leave the slices to soak over night in about 4½ pints of water. Next day boil them with 6½ pounds of sugar. Now peel 3 lemons. Squeeze the juice onto the orange pips and boil well together in a separate saucepan. Strain the juice and pour all into the marmalade and boil up together again. These proportions should make over 20 pounds of marmalade. A larger or smaller quantity can be made if preferred by altering the proportions.

There is no tree in the world that surpasses the White Pine in beauty, stateliness, individuality, and usefulness. It is the prince of North American trees, says the American Tree Association. Reliable records show that the first American home was built of White Pine.

NEWS OF THE NEIGHBORING TOWNS

AS TOLD BY OUR CORRESPONDENTS

Eloping Couple Injured In Accident

Four Philadelphians were seriously injured on the State road near Knights Corner, a few miles from Elkton, when a taxicab in which they were speeding to Chestertown, Md., for a wedding, skidded, overturned and caught fire.

The injured, treated at Union Hospital, Elkton, are Harry Dettler, 27, 244 Rector street, Manayunk, and his intended bride, Marie McAlarenen, 21, 1113 Mitchell street, Dettler's brother, Jack, and a friend, Stanley Fertig, 445 Roxborough street.

The expectant bridegroom suffered a broken leg and other injuries, Miss McAlarenen received numerous cuts and bruises, Dettler's brother suffered a broken collarbone and Fertig's right ankle was fractured.

The quartet were saved from death when Dr. W. T. Morrison, of Elkton, and his wife came along and saw them pinned under the flaming taxi. They extricated them.

Harry Dettler and the girl decided Friday night to be married and asked the bridegroom's brother and Fertig to accompany them to Elkton and be witnesses to the ceremony. Arriving there early Saturday the couple were balked when the marriage license office was closed and the clerk refused to issue a license at such an early hour.

A taxi driver suggested taking them to Chestertown, 20 miles away, where they could get 24-hour service and they started in that direction.

Elkton and Vicinity

John F. Voshell of North East is a patient at Union Hospital, Elkton, suffering from serious injuries sustained when crossing a street at North East, Wednesday evening, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Howard Lilly.

Prof. Douglas Bevans, principal of North East High School, will represent the high schools of Cecil county at the Maryland State Teacher's Association's annual meeting on Friday and Saturday next in Baltimore. With Miss Kate Loveless of the elementary schools, and Miss Sylvia McNamee of the rural schools.

Prohibition agents, assisted by local officers, visited the farm of Harry L. Harbey, near Zion, and found a still with a 400 gallon capacity in operation, but the operators had fled before the arrival of the officers. They next visited Porter's Bridge, where they discovered four more stills, all in operation. One man, giving his name as M. Spangler, was arrested and taken to Baltimore for a hearing before United States Commissioner Supplee.

R. W. Plumley, of Perryville, has sold his drug store in that town to Lawrence F. Sanders, of Wilmington, who will take charge this week.

George Ginn, of Chesapeake City, was admitted to Union Hospital, Elkton, suffering from gunshot wounds received while gunning for rabbits. Ginn had as his guest William Clement, of Haddonfield, N. J., on a gunning trip, and in shooting at a rabbit, Ginn got in the path of the shot fired by his friend and was peppered about the legs, arms and hips. Several hours later the physicians and nurses at the hospital were engaged in picking the pellets from the injured sportsman, who was later released from the hospital.

Miss Bertha Balderston, of the Sixth district, has been elected president of the Needlework Guild of Rising Sun, at its annual meeting held on Saturday, with Miss Bertha M. Tyson, vice-president; Mrs. Lloyd Balderston, secretary, and Miss A. Mabel Reynolds, treasurer.

Mrs. Caroline Helms, of Conowingo, who recently created excitement in Rising Sun, by shooting at her husband and Mrs. Florence Richardson, has been released from Elkton jail on payment of costs, on condition that she leave the State.

John W. Herring, vice-president and educational director of the National Community Foundation, Baltimore, addressed the Elkton Chamber of Commerce in the Church House at its monthly dinner meeting on Monday night.

Mrs. Eliza Ryan, who makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Susie Yeamans, of North East, has reached the age of 102 years, probably the oldest resident of Cecil county.

The Westminster Guild of Elkton Presbyterian Church gave an entertainment in the New Theatre on Tuesday night. Two plays, "Sewing for the Heathen" and "Rev. Peter Brice, Bachelor," with a fine musical program, delighted the audience. A neat sum was realized.

The funeral of William Reed, who died at his home near Bay View on Saturday, took place Monday from his home, with interment in Bay View Cemetery. Mr. Reed was stricken with paralysis while husking corn. He was found by a neighbor, and died the following day. He is survived by his wife and two children.

A masquerade social held in Perryville Fire House recently, netted the Fire Company about $50.

A number of young ladies from Crouch Chapel gave the playlet, "Maidens All Forlorn," in G. A. R. Hall, North East, last Friday night.

People Sustain Action of Court Clerk

A petition signed by several thousand people of Cecil county endorsing the methods of S. Ralph Andrews, clerk of the Circuit Court, in his stand against the Elkton Taxi Company to give wedding couples all necessary assistance to be directed to ministers of the denomination of their choice, has been secured. The action of Mr. Andrews and his clerks in directing couples to the homes of the regularly assigned ministers to Elkton churches, and not to the marry persons who are associated with the taxi company, which resulted in an injunction being sought by the jitneys to restrain the clerks issuing marriage licenses to interfere with wedding couples, is being held for action before the county court and will probably be heard at the December term of court.

The following petition has been presented to Clerk Andrews: "We the undersigned residents of, taxpayers in, and property owners in Elkton and Cecil county, knowing the conditions that exist in and around the county seat, due to the tactics employed by the jitneys, are in favor of the present clerk of the court and his deputies continuing to offer assistance and information to those desiring the same."

Mermaid

Harmony Grange

The regular meeting of Harmony Grange was held on Monday evening. Announcement was made of the giving of the fifth degree on December 5, at Newport. Word was received that fourteen members of Delaware State Grange went to Cleveland to attend the National Grange meeting, November 15-25. November 28, was the date set for the Variety Sale at Harmony Grange. Pomona Grange will meet on the first Thursday in December with West Brandywine Grange.

The lecturer's hour was in charge of Edward Naudain and the program included vocal and instrumental music, jokes, recitations and readings. The surprise feature was the passing of four imitation pumpkins, from which each member drew a red ribbon, to which was attached a Thanksgiving greeting and a number. As the numbers were called, each member read her greeting and the whole made a charming Thanksgiving story.

John Bancroft Peach is a patient in the Flower Hospital, where he underwent a tonsil and adenoid operation yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Peach called on James H. Walker and John H. Peach and family in Wilmington on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Pennington, Miss Sara Pennington, Martin Pennington, and Mr. and Mrs. George Jackson motored on Sunday to Chestnut Level Presbyterian Church, near Lancaster, where they attended the services. This is the home church of the Pennington family. After the service, they visited the old home of the Penningtons in the vicinity.

Christiana

The Supper given in the Firehouse last Wednesday evening was under the auspices of the firemen themselves, and not of the Ladies' Auxiliary, as was wrongly stated in this column last week. The Supper was a success from every standpoint—so many good things to eat, such excellent service, plenty of room for the guests to move about comfortably, and all at such a moderate price! The gentlemen made Mrs. George Appleby, general chairman of the Supper, and Mrs. Louis Wingate had charge of the cake table. A neat sum was realized to help the firemen along in their good work.

The Methodist Social, which was to have been held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mason last Thursday evening, had to be given up entirely on account of the dreadful storm. The meeting will be held next month at the regular time.

On Friday afternoon Dr. Hurdle, of the State Board of Health, paid a visit to the local school, to explain to the children and their parents the toxin-antitoxin inoculation against diphtheria—followed six months later by the Shick test, which shows definitely whether or not the child is immune. The treatment is absolutely harmless, and is administered entirely free of charge. Moreover it is successful in practically 100 per cent of cases. Then why should there be any hesitation or opposition on the part of the parents? It would seem that it is not only a great privilege, but also the duty of every parent to take advantage of this generous offer made by the State Board of Health.

The Boy Scouts of the village are planning to hold a Bake Sale in Wilmington on December 3. They surely deserve our hearty support. There is only a small group of Scouts here, but they are none the less enthusiastic. They are under the direction of Scoutmaster A. Durrell Vincent, assisted by Rev. Preston W. Spence, Jr.

Mrs. Rachel Davis, of Bear Station, and Miss Florence M. Appleby spent last Thursday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Appleby at their home near Red Lion.

Miss Appleby had spent a couple of days earlier in the week with her sister, Mrs. Oliver Rothwell, of Harmony.

Miss Kate Darlington visited her niece, Mrs. Clarence Scott, of Baltimore, on Sunday.

Mr. Reese Moody was a Sunday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moody, near Christiansa.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Newark, spent Wednesday afternoon and night with Miss Anna Moody. That evening they attended the meeting of the State Road Community Club, where Anna's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moody, took part in the program.

On Sunday Mr. Harvey Maclary, of near State road, was receiving congratulations on his birthday, which he spent quietly at home. Mr. Maclary has not entirely recovered from an operation for the removal of his tonsils, which proved to be more serious than it was at first considered.

We have been told that Rev. John Blake, for forty years pastor of Red Clay Creek Presbyterian Church, is in very poor health, and is at present in a hospital at Bethlehem, Pa., under observation. Mr. Blake has many friends in this community, having preached often in the local Presbyterian Church, in the absence of the regular pastor.

Our little Public Library continues to grow, new books being added constantly. All within calling distance should become patrons. Next to churches and schools, a good library helps most to make a good community.

The local school closes Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving recess, continuing until Monday.

"Citizenship must be taught largely by citizens in the obedience to laws and giving of service."

The Parent-Teacher Association of Milford Cross Roads School held its monthly meeting in the school house on Wednesday evening, November 16. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Edwin Guthrie, and was opened by singing "America," followed by the Lord's Prayer. After the transaction of business, a short program was given by the scholars. A mock wedding was presented by members of the association, which was greatly enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were served during the social hours.—Press Correspondent.

What Makes America

America is much more than a geographical location. It is a combination and a relationship. It is the destiny of a masterful, pioneering people, enduring all the hardships of settling a new country, determined to be free. It is the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution, with a system of local self-government. It is the development of the farm, the factory, and the mine, the creation of a surpassing commerce, and the opening of vast lines of travel by sea and land, with broadening opportunity for education and freedom for religious worship. Our country is the result of incomprehensible triumph, conferring upon its own people untold material and spiritual rewards and indirectly raising the standards of the world. It is a combination of all these elements, with their past history and their present aspirations, that we refer to as America.—From speech by President Coolidge to the Union League, Philadelphia, Nov. 17, 1927.

A Different Christmas Gift

Everyone has some friend to whom he would like to send a remembrance—something more than a card, but not so expensive as gifts are now-days. Then one doesn't always know a friend's tastes in gifts, even in books.

But any friend, young or old, will be delighted with a copy of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, beautifully printed on good paper, and attractively bound. It is an unusual gift, one that bespeaks the thoughtful giver. It will be a time-saver to put several of these books on your list and send us your order. Price, one dollar, plus postage. De luxe copies, ten dollars.—Adv.

Cheer Meeting Tonight

Laurel, who last year had an unusually barly team for a high school, has gained in weight and speed if anything. Marvil, 230 pounds of iron hard boy, is its biggest threat. He plays a roving guard, and most of Laurel's offense is fashioned around his game.

Major Price, field agent of the D. I. A. A., has engaged four officials for the game. Three of them, an umpire, referee and field judge, will be from Pennsylvania. Mr. Faulkner, of Wesley College Institute, one of the fairest and most impartial officials in the State, will be head linesman. The tentative line-up of both teams is as follows:

Newark	Laurel
Mayer.....	L. E. Riffin
Johnson.....	L. T. Marvil
McDowell.....	L. G. Johnson
Dayett.....	C. Pusey
Cook.....	R. G. Oakwell
Vansant.....	R. T. Bench
Jaquette.....	R. E. Culver
Zabenko.....	Q. B. Poor
Holloway.....	L. H. B. Pollit
Newcomb.....	R. H. B. West
Smith.....	F. B. Ellis

First string substitutes for Newark will include Cole, Gam, Crooks, Murray, Edmondson, Frank Mayer, R. Johnson, McCully, Millikin and Schwartz.

DR. RYDEN COMPLETES FIRST BIBLIOGRAPHY OF DELAWARE HISTORY

Dr. George H. Ryden, chairman of the Department of History and Political Science at the University of Delaware, has recently completed the first comprehensive and general bibliography of Delaware History. This work, which is monumental in its completeness, has been distributed in mimeograph form to colleges, universities and high schools, editors, libraries and historical societies throughout the Middle Atlantic States. Dr. Ryden has had many fine tributes on his work and has received valuable information on new sources.

The bibliography at present contains over 400 references and some idea of the work in compiling them can be gained from the fact that they were not only acquired by research in local archives, but many of them came from libraries and public records in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and from England, Germany and Sweden.

In collecting his data, Dr. Ryden found that with the exception of three documents there were absolutely no records kept of the colony assemblies in Delaware from the year 1704 to 1776. All sources of information on this period had to be dug up from obscure journals and records.

This bibliography will not only be of inestimable value to the student of Delaware History, but such a complete source of reference will undoubtedly stimulate and encourage research into Delaware history. Dr. Ryden plans to have his bibliography published in book form after he has further revised and added to it.

LOCAL FARM CROPS

A farmer in this vicinity remarked yesterday that he thought there was more corn in the field now than he had ever seen at this time of the year. A bumper crop, too, but not enough help to harvest it.

The wheat crop is average. Many farmers planted too early and the mild weather has made it too forward; others planted too late and the wheat has not the proper start, but, all in all, the prospect is fair.

The great disappointment this year is in the red potato. Large yields are recorded, but the tubers are not good. To all appearance there is nothing wrong, but under the red skin is a black blight of some kind, due probably to too much wet weather. The red potato has been a stand-by and apparently immune to such diseases as affected many varieties, but has this year fallen a victim. One farmer has a crop of 350 bushels, which he thinks will be a total loss.

SAVE HOUSE

Last Saturday the Aetna Fire Company was summoned to fight a fire on the roof of the house of Edwin F. Connor, living on the Lincoln Highway near Harmony crossing. The fire had started in the chimney and broken through to the roof. The prompt response and rapid run of the company undoubtedly saved the house. The fire was quickly extinguished and small damage done.

Delaware Loses Final To Haverford, 27-0

First Half A Deadlock, Haverford Takes Game In Third Period

Adversity, which may have its sweet uses, but has been galling a game Delaware football team all season, trod hard on Blue and Gold heels in their final game and helped Haverford suddenly deluge them with a heart-breaking 27 to 0 defeat. With its two most seasoned backfield stars, Creamer and Loveland, out with injuries, Delaware went to Collegeville Saturday determined to redeem themselves at the expense of their traditional rival. For two full periods Rothrocks fighting charges held the fast and clever Scarlet and black in a deadlock, only to founder in the third period and let three quick touchdowns go over.

For the first two periods, the Blue and Gold played its dogged defensive game, yielding a little, but standing with raised hackles and taking the ball whenever Haverford threatened. Once Delaware was pushed to the 5-yard line and another time it backed up on the 10-yard line and held for downs. Delaware did little serious offensive threatening, but was keeping Haverford at a respectful distance.

Early in the third quarter with the score 0-0, Haverford threw a pass, Tripp to Hogenauer, which netted fifty yards and a touchdown. Two minutes later Tripp threw another pass to Kingham in midfield. Kingham eluded several tacklers and was downed from the rear on the 1-yard line by Ace Taylor. One play scored the touchdown. Three minutes later a third pass, Tripp to Newton, chalked up another six pointer. Newton ran 65 yards.

These three touchdowns coming like a bolt from the blue did not demoralize the Blue and Gold spirit, but seemed to bewilder them and they made no serious threat after that, though they kept up a determined fight. In the last period, a fumble gave Haverford another touchdown.

While from a statistical reckoning, Delaware has had a disastrous football season, Coach Rothrock kindled a fighting flame in his men that the hardest sort of luck and discouragement couldn't quench. Though they were beaten and beaten badly, they went down with colors flying and always firing the last shot in the locker.

The Newark High School girls' hockey team played its first game yesterday on the local field, and was in no way disgraced in losing to du Pont High School 6 to 0. du Pont, which has had five years competition in the Wilmington Hockey League, brought down a team of seasoned players, which had to fight hard for every point it made.

Ann Chalmers starred for Newark on both offense and defense. Willa Dawson and Pauline Robinson also played outstanding hockey for Newark. While the local girls made no score, they came dangerously close to it on a number of occasions.

Newark will play a return game with du Pont, at du Pont, next Tuesday, and has a game scheduled with Claymont for December 1.

LOCAL FOOTBALL TEAMS PLAN DOUBLE-HEADER

Battery "E" to Meet Aero Squadron, Newark A. C. to Play Atlantic City; "Shorty" Chalmers in Battery Line-up

Local football fans, Saturday, will have a chance to see Newark's two football teams in action, when Battery "E" meets Aberdeen and the Newark A. C., colored, tackles the Atlantic City Veterans, colored.

The Battery E team has lost only one game and should give the Aberdeen aggregation a trouncing for Aberdeen held the local team to only a 7-7 score on Aberdeen's grounds. Many former High School stars will be in the line-up. Potts, Preston and "Reds" Gill will be in the backfield.

"Shorty" Chalmers, one of the best backfield players in scholastic ranks, will be wearing a Battery E uniform. Many local fans will be on hand to see "Shorty" play as this is his first appearance on a local gridiron.

Newark A. C. has lost only one game this season. They have beaten such teams as Lincoln University, Bordentown Military Academy, Annapolis, and Delaware State College (colored). Newark A. C.'s stars include "Dolly" Boyles, "Mike" Wilson, "Whoops" Johnson and a host of others.

The Atlantic City Veterans team is composed entirely of World War veterans and is an exceptionally good team. Their team averages 190 lbs. They have a 200 lb. fullback who can do the 100 in 10 seconds.

The tentative arrangement is to play both games on Frazer Field with the Battery E-Aberdeen game starting at 1:30.

DELAWARE SOCCER TEAM LOSES TO SWARTHMORE

Swarthmore College acted unneighborly last Friday afternoon when it invited the Delaware soccer team over for a bit of booting and then sent it home with a 4 to 0 lacing. Potts, Blue and Gold halfback, showed a charitable impulse when he accidentally booted the ball into his own goal, scoring one tally for Swarthmore. Line-up:

NEWARK COLORED FOOTBALL TEAM WANTS GAMES

Newark A. C. colored football team battled the Chester Comets to a scoreless tie Sunday. The Comets held a slight edge over Newark throughout and had the ball on Newark territory during the major portion of the game but Newark's line refused to permit a score.

The Newark eleven will clash with the Colored Veterans of Atlantic City at Newark Saturday.

Newark would like to arrange games with colored or white teams in Delaware and Pennsylvania. For games write C. H. Hayman, 78 Cleveland avenue, Newark, Del.

Newark Loses Soccer Title To Greenwood

Older And More Experienced Downstaters Outclass Local Boys And Win 7 To 0

Newark lost the state soccer championship on Saturday when they met Greenwood for the title at the Dover Ball Park, Dover. Greenwood took the game by the one-sided score of 7 to 0, but in view of the facts that the Greenwood players, to a man, were about three years older than the Newark boys, and that this is Newark's first season of soccer while Greenwood has been playing for five years; Newark deserves considerable credit for the game it put up.

Newark was outclassed from the beginning, but never stopped trying, and did manage to get one goal, only to lose the score on a penalty.

The Greenwood team played a flashy game that was beautiful to watch and had Newark bewildered by its accurate passing.

The game, which was the first championship tilt in Delaware, was held under the direction of Major P. S. Prince, field agent of the D. I. A. A. Newark held the Northern championship, while Greenwood stood at the top of the Southern bracket. Line-up:

"ROUGH RIDERS"

Those thrilling adventures that made Theodore Roosevelt the national hero he was, are brought to life again by the motion picture and, in "The Rough Riders" which comes to the Arcadia Theatre, Wilmington, for the entire week of November 28th, one sees Teddy in all his glory as the leader of one of the most famous regiments in all American history.

Frank Hopper, who bears a striking resemblance to the late President, will appear as Teddy when the latter was Colonel of the Rough Riders, seeing service in Cuba. The love story of the picture is concerned with two soldiers, who both want the same pretty girl. There is a hated rivalry between them, but it ripens into a very firm friendship, when the two are under battle fire together.

Charles Emmett Mack, Charles Farrell, Mary Astor, Noah Beery and George Bancroft are among the players in the company.

The real tragedy of life is the abandonment of ideals.—Bruce Calvert.

The Secret of Prosperity

During recent years Great Britain has been slipping gradually downward from its one-time dominating place in world industry. The English themselves have been by no means the last to recognize this. With characteristic vigor, they have looked this fact directly in the face and have set about discovering not only why the United States has "gone to the head of the class" but also how our nation has become the leader in the industrial world. Moreover, the English delegation appointed last August by the British Ministry of Labour to study industrial conditions in the United States and Canada did not carry on its investigations through mere curiosity; they definitely set out to discover how England could regain and improve its former position in the world of industry.

Certainly no sense of humor prompted the English Government to make the official report of the investigating committee public on the first of April. The English are "quite" serious about this report, and justly so. When one realizes that a committee composed of representatives of employers, of trade unionists, and of the public service are all agreed on the results of eight months research in industrial problems, perhaps even those of us in "The States" should give a few minutes of intelligent attention to the general conclusion of these English industrial investigators who selected our country as the best laboratory for their researches.

The point that towers above all others in the official report is that the basis for a firm industrial progress is intelligent co-operation, a close and sympathetic understanding between the two human factors in the common enterprise; in other words, the "pulling together" of the employer and the wage-earner. This sounds like one of the good old generalizations that deserves a prominent niche in the Hall of Famous Platitudes. But is it? Whether or not the main "discovery" of the British Labour Mission is a platitude is dependent entirely upon the comprehensive powers of the individual reader; to some persons it is undoubtedly a platitude, but to others it is one of the vital goals of modern civilization and industry.

It should be perfectly obvious that the only difficult obstacle in the way of industrial progress and continued prosperity is industrial dissensions. Although the British credit us with appreciating this fundamental truth more keenly than other nations, we are not being—nor do we deserve to be—highly complimented. Labor and Capital the world over have yet to come to the point of real co-operation. The United States is a bit ahead of the rest of the world in this respect, but unless continual advances toward an ultimate and ideal relationship between the two partners in industry is made our nation is not going to remain leader in prosperity.

Consideration of this main point—co-operation—brings to mind two other general statements. The first is that the trade unions will never play the role that they should in industry until politics, particularly internal politics, become regulated to a strictly secondary place on their programs. And the second, equally as important as the first, is that the employers, both as a group and individually, must not only make definite steps toward establishing an honest understanding with the wage-earners, but must continually work toward the improvement of methods of production and industrial organization.

It is on these three points—actually all the same thing—that the British hope to regain their lost industrial supremacy. It is only upon the observance of these three points that the United States is going to be able to retain her own position in the industrial world of the future.

DEL. TRUST COMPANIES INCREASE TEN MILLIONS

Trust Company resources in Delaware total $73,184,214, as compared with $63,611,497, last year, according to the 25th annual edition of "Trust Companies of the United States," for 1927, just issued by the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York.

Combined resources of the 2731 trust companies of the country reporting as of June 30th, the date of compilation were $20,481,000,000, a gain of $1,145,000,000, over the previous year. Deposits were in excess of $16,800,000,000, against $15,900,000,000, in 1926.

In reviewing the figures, President John W. Platten, of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company says: "It is a cause of satisfaction that the resources of the trust companies of the country continue to seek new high levels year after year, the totals at the present time being considerably more than double those of ten years ago. Yet it is none the less gratifying to note the unprecedented efforts being made by the trust companies to extend their service into new channels.

"The situation is most encouraging and warrants every confidence in the future of trust companies and their ability to render an increasingly valuable and constantly broadening service to the public."

We crave for the companionship of those who understand.—Hubbard.

"Education is Mastery"

One of the best definitions of education, as it seems to us, is that of the old Scottish dominie who gave Mr. Ramsay MacDonald his start on the road of knowledge. "Education," said this wise old Scot, "is mastery. Master one thing, and you'll find it helps you to master other things in their turn." If this is so, the boy or girl who has thoroughly mastered one thing is better educated than the one who knows something or other, but not very much, of a dozen different subjects. Perhaps that is one reason why Abraham Lincoln, who had as little schooling as one could well have,—"education defective," he said himself—was nevertheless able to surpass in intellectual power so many men with college degrees. He had studied few things, but those he had mastered.

Well, the old country school-teachers used to make boys and girls master a few things—the multiplication table, for example, and the blue spelling book. They could not make a great show of "culture" with these accomplishments, but they found them very useful in everyday life, and the hard work they had to put in before they knew them, backwards and forwards, did unquestionably toughen their young minds for other problems, both in and out of school.

Our children today go to much more attractive and hygienic schools than the elder generation attended; often there are gymnasiums and music rooms and handsome assembly halls for them to use. Their teachers have learned that children must be "kept interested" and made to view their daily work as a pleasure and not as a task. Lucky youngsters! What a good time they must have! But do they actually master anything—even the multiplication table and the spelling book? We seem to have heard grumbling old employers complain of stenographers who couldn't spell and clerks who couldn't do a simple sum in arithmetic. Have these old fellows been unfortunate in their choice of workers, or haven't the rising generation learned that education is mastery? We don't know; we only ask.

Let's not forget that the "simple" studies represented by the multiplication table and the spelling book lie at the very foundation of all education, since they furnish the weapons with which other conquests are made and are pursued at an age when mental habits are being fixed. No amount of superficial information on a score of interesting subjects will take their place in training the mind to do actual work. Let's not forget that education, if it is to amount to anything, is discipline, mastery.

STATESMEN AND THE BIBLE

When the translators of the Bible finished their work and the authorized version of the Scriptures was issued in 1611 a standard of English was set for all time. There is no book, perhaps, in the English language from which the greatest statesmen of Britain have drawn so freely in their speeches as the Bible. Its words, its phrases and its parables have even been used by the great Parliamentarians of Britain and Canada to embellish their speeches and to drive home their point. . . .

Statesmen of an older day made free use of biblical quotations and allusion—a much freer use than is made today, which perhaps accounts in some measure for the poor quality of political leaders. John Bright, Gladstone, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir James Whitney all drank deep of this "well of English pure and undefiled," and multitudes were charmed and delighted when they made a public address. Now it is to be feared that many high in public life would not even understand an allusion to the "hands of Esau, but the voice of Jacob," to a "lion and lamb lying down together," "shorn locks," "the vineyard of Naboth," or to anyone described as "Saul among the people." And yet these and scores of other phrases and sentences of biblical lore lent force and pungency to the speeches of some of the greatest orators of Britain.—Trenoto Globe.

If any farmer wants to take revenge on the manufacturer, as is hinted in debates on farm-relief measures, he can do so only with the certainty of thereby reducing employment and destroying part of the market for farm products.—E. V. Wilcox.

"EASY AS PIE"

"Home for Thanksgiving," "home for Thanksgiving" click the wheels as they slide over the rails, and with each repetition, we are nearer the house where open fires, trailing bitersweet, sturdy bayberry branches and the odors of the feast to come will greet us. And we slide off into a dream of harvest celebrations more ancient than our own deeply embedded tradition.

We recall the feast called Thesmophoria, held in November by the Greeks, in honor of Demeter, goddess of the harvest, the festival held by the Canaanites at the time of the picking and treading of the grapes, the homage of the Romans to Ceres, Mother of all growing things. From ancient times to the present it seems that wherever harvests were gathered, grapes picked and pressed for wine, there youths and maidens celebrated with dancing, feast and song. Even our Pilgrim ancestors in their first Thanksgiving laid aside much of their seriousness to rejoice. Were not their larders full enough to promise a comfortable winter?

Little Change in the Menu

They did not have cupboards lined with cans of nearly all the vegetables and fruits which grow, fish, shell fish and meats, soups ready to heat and eat, all the good things from far and near which we have to-day. To them, however, we owe the main dishes of the traditional meal which will appear on our tables on this oldest and most universal of our holidays. Turkey and cranberry sauce, pumpkin and mince pies, fruits and nuts they had and we have—but how different. Our turkeys domesticated, and carefully fattened on corn and milk, are larger, more tender and delicately flavored, our cranberry sauce comes from big cultivated berries which we may either cook ourselves or serve direct from a can, and so on through the long list. In fact, ready prepared foods have completely revolutionized the work of women in the home since the times of Priscilla, whose nimble feet and fingers fairly flew for days before that first Thanksgiving feast. Now the modern housewife need do practically nothing other than her marketing before the day of the dinner.

It is quite likely that the expression, "easy as pie," which the children like to use, originated in the ease with which pie appeals to the palates, young and old alike. And considering the ease with which pies, even those important ones for a Thanksgiving dinner, can be made, it is not surprising that their favor grows with the years.

Pumpkin Pie, for instance, than which there is nothing more typical of all the crisp, frosty days of harvest-tide. You simply need one No. 2 can pumpkin, one-half cup sugar, one egg, grated lemon peel, one teaspoon cornstarch, two cups scalded milk. Combine the dry ingredients and add them to the pumpkin, add the milk and lastly the slightly beaten egg. Strain this mixture into a pie pan lined with paste, and bake in a moderately hot oven until set, about one-half hour.

For Squash Pie, use No. 2 size can of squash together with other ingredients, required for the pumpkin pie. Mix in the same way and bake in hot oven.

And, Mince Pie, of course! Imagine, if you will, the hours of work in chopping fruits and nuts, mixing beef and suet, spices, sugar and cider—all in the most careful proportions—making mince meat in the old days for the winter pies! Now you have but to remove the contents from an air-tight container in which mince, with or without meat, is packed—whisk it into a pie shell, cover with paste and bake in a hot oven, and lo! the delectable, fragrant Mince Pie! Cause and enough for special thanks.

New Englanders, to whom Thanksgiving is especially significant, usually serve two kinds of pies for dinner, such as mince and squash or mince and pumpkin.

And just for a good measure we speak a word in praise of cranberry—welcome and appropriate as Cranberry Pie at any dinner after its annual introduction as a Thanksgiving sauce. It requires one and one-half cups cranberries, one-half cup water, three-fourths cup sugar. Put the ingredients in saucepan in order given and cook for ten minutes; cool, and bake in one crust with a rim and strips across the top.

"Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who would labor to subvert those great pillars of human happiness, those firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. Reason and experience forbid us to hope that national morality can prevail in exclusion of the religious principles, for virtue and morality are the necessary springs of popular government.—George Washington.

Girl Reserves Hold Impressive Meeting

of the one who stands beside her. It is a very beautiful and impressive ceremony. At the conclusion all the girls recite in unison the following code: "I will strive to be:

Gracious in manner,
Impartial in judgment,
Ready for service,
Loyal to friends,
Reaching toward the best,
Earnest in purpose,
Facing the beautiful,
Eager for knowledge,
Reverent to God,
Victorious over self,
Ever dependable,
Sincere at all times.

Miss Good, the State field Y. C. A. secretary, was present to assist in the initiation exercises. Later she presented Mrs. Dougherty of Orchard road, who volunteered to assist the girls with some hand craft projects. Mrs. Dougherty's offer was enthusiastically accepted. She agreed to bring to the next meeting materials with which to work. The girls are to bring thimbles and a small amount of cash to pay for the materials used.

The remainder of the evening was given over to games and putting the initiates through some funny stunts. The hostess of the evening, Miss Betsey Chaytor, assisted by her mother and grandmother, served delicious refreshments. Then all too soon this delightful evening came to an end.

Misses Isabel and Louise Hutchison invited the girls to meet at their home on Saturday evening, December 3.

The meetings are growing in size and interest. In order to carry out the program it is important that all girls be present promptly at 7:15.

School Board Works To Relieve Crowded School Conditions

and more effective work between teachers and pupils.

This change and temporary arrangement is the result of rapidly increasing enrollment and lack of space for instruction. While these makeshifts mitigate to a limited extent the crowded conditions in the schools and make possible more effective instruction, many grades and departments of work are still vitally handicapped. While girls in grades 9, 10 and 11 are able to take Home Economics, girls in grades 7 and 8, who should be taking this instruction are not able to. There is no opportunity for the boys to take Manual Arts. All these things and many other conditions in the schools point to a crying need for an early completion of a new wing to the present school building; which, if provided, would eliminate these deficiencies in the school system; increase the efficiency of the schools 25 per cent and decrease the cost of maintenance of the whole plant at least 25 per cent.

Thanksgiving Program

At the primary assembly, held at 11 o'clock this morning, grades 1, 2 and 3 gave a Thanksgiving playlet entitled, "Thankful Lives Up To Her Name".

Grades 1, 2 and 3 and Miss Medill's section of grade 6 have prepared Thanksgiving baskets to be given to the civic committee for distribution.

At the Junior and Senior High School assembly, at 12:30 today, the following program was given:

"The President's Proclamation", by Martha Elliott, '30;

"The Meaning of Thanksgiving", by Lois Phelps, '30;

"The Story of the Pilgrims", dramatized by the second year of the Junior High School.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

1925—Compact 1926—One Dial

NOW—

House-Current Radio!

ATWATER KENT in 1925 showed the world the advantage of compactness in a radio set.

Atwater Kent in 1926 cut the dials from three to one.

Today Atwater Kent gives you another thrilling improvement—the complete House-Current set. NOW all the power that runs your set comes from your house lighting circuit.

Just as you plug the cord of a reading lamp into a light socket or base plug, so you get the power for this new receiver. All you do is snap the switch, select your station with the ONE Dial, and listen.

And the tone is fuller, richer than ever before. Hear it and judge for yourself.

The first cost is low. That's where careful large-scale manufacturing counts emphatically for you. The current costs you only a fraction of a cent an hour.

The nearest Atwater Kent dealer will let you try this wonderful new House-Current set today.

The Models 35 and 33 (at right) are battery-operated receivers. They are not A. C. sets, such as the Model 36 described above. But they may be operated from your electric light circuit as a source of current supply. It's merely a matter of equipment. Just tell the dealer which you wish—battery power or socket power.
