Newarkers remember war dead

by Cathy Thomas

It was perfect spring day that graced Newark Sunday, causing crowds to gather along Main Street sidewalks to view the 53rd annual Memorial Day Parade.

More than 80 community and military marching units participated in the Sunday afternoon parade. Although performances by all the military units were impressive, perhaps the most outstanding was the 4th U.S. Marine Band from New Orleans, La., which performed patriotic music while leading the marchers down the route.

Parade organizers, who have worked on the event for the past year, were all pleased with the ceremonies.

Linda Burns, secretary for the Parade Committee, said the day went really well with a "nice crowd and not too hot weather."

Blake Wilson, master of ceremonies for the parade, attributed the day's good weather to retired U.S. Army Col. Daniel N. Sundt, who has served as the parade marshal for more than 30 years. "It doesn't rain on Newark Memorial Day parades," said Wilson.

Sundt, who will be 81 on Memorial Day this year, marched the complete parade route.

Prior to the parade, a memorial service was held on the University of Delaware Mall.

"We need to remember the true meaning of Memorial Day," said Wilson during the ceremony. "It is a fitting tribute to those who have given their lives in service."

DuPont family will develop Newark lands

by Cathy Thomas

Nearly 1,000 acres of duPont family land northeast of Newark along Paper Mill Road is being eyed for possible development.

Members of the duPont family, who inherited the estate left by the late Halleck duPont, have been discussing their plans with area civic leaders. The estate covers 2,200 acres, and about half of that land is being included in development proposals.

DuPont family members involved in the plans have been unavailable for comment. However, it is believed the family has found the idle land extremely costly because of property taxes. Development is necessary for financial reasons.

Although plans for the property are very preliminary, David Onn, operations president for Citizens Advocacy Possum Park Area (CAPPA) said the development might include office and residential construction over a 10-to-15 year period.

At this point, there have been only limited discussions with county planning officials about any development on the duPont property. About a month ago, approval was given to a minor subdivision plan which divided the land into 20-to-100 acre blocks of land.

County Planning Director Wayne Grafton said nothing further on the proposal has come before his department.

A key part of the development is a plan to set aside some of the acreage for a state park. Preliminary plans call for about 150 acres to be sold to the state for the park. However, civic leaders are hoping that the amount of park land will be increased to 300 acres.

The proposed park would serve as a "land bridge" between Carpenter State Park, the

Composites center said 'world class'

Delaware is a step closer in the quest to become the "composites capital of the world."

During a ceremony Tuesday morning, officials dedicated the new Composites Manufacturing Science Laboratory on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

Construction of the new lab, located at Academy Street and Delaware Avenue, was financed by a $2.5 million grant from the state of Delaware and a $1 million grant from ICI Americas, Inc.

Composites are the combination of two or more materials to create one stronger material. A commonly known composite is fiberglass.

Harry Corless, ICI chairman, praised the public and private partnership that created the lab to the development of composites.

"We're proud to be a partner is this (project) with the state of Delaware, with the University and with other industrial concerns in the area," said Corless.

"This partnership is really another example, if you like, of the type of thing we're looking at in composite materials themselves, where you combine two or three more materials and the end result is a lot stronger than each of them would be individually. I think the same is true of the partnership that has helped to produce this center here."

Gov. Michael N. Castle said the new lab would serve as a good example of how the public and private sector work together in Delaware.

"We always talk about the private and public sector aspects of what we're doing here

Work, family: Striking a balance

by Cathy Thomas

Many of today's workers find that managing job and family is much like a balancing act. Delaware employers find themselves trying to accommodate their employees' needs while at the same time keeping their businesses profitable.

From both points of view, the balancing act can be handled with flexibility.

Issues facing today's employers and employees were addressed May 10 during a conference at the University of Delaware.

"I think it (balancing work and family) is an important issue," said Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle. "It's not one in which we have a lot of resolved issues or we're trying to change something that's in place."

"It's really an area in which we're trying to create new ideas, new concepts, a better way of doing business. We're really looking for ideas."

Castle was one of several speakers at the day-long conference presented by the University, the DuPont Company, the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce, Child Care Connection, United Way and the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Offering some ideas on the child care problems in the state was William C. Wyer, president of the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. Wyer called for the development of child care consortia in the state.

"Many communities have found the consortium approach to be the best answer to the need for more day care slots. In a consortium, businesses join together to provide one day care center for their workers' children," said Wyer. "Such consortia have worked in other communities and we should explore establishing them here. Companies, working together, could share the start-up and operation of day care centers, with the close involvement of parents."

Wyer said business should consider offering child care options to employees in benefit

FYI

Avoiding boredom. Part II. If you thought Newark was a busy place last weekend, you ain't seen nothing yet.

Coming up this Saturday, area residents can choose from among four major events in the Scottish Games, A Day in Old New Castle, Family Fun Day at Alfred I. duPont Institute and the New Castle County 4-H Spring Fair.

The Scottish Games, more properly the 26th annual Colonial Highland Gathering, will be held 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Fair Hill, Md., just west of Newark on Md. 273.

Featured will be dancing, piping, drumming, sheep dog trials and such feats of strength as the caber toss, in which a large man attempts to launch a telephone pole.

A Day in Old New Castle will be held 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and will feature special events and tours of the state's colonial capital. Tickets will be available that day at the Old Court House.

Family Fun Day will also last 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and will feature elephant and camel rides, the monster truck Big Foot, a fun run and visits by KYW-TV's Linda Giannela and WMGK-FM's Harvey.

New Castle County 4-H Spring Fair will be held noon to 5 p.m. at Glasgow High School. It will feature a petting zoo, sheep and pet shows, bicycle rodeo and food, drink and games.

Chrysler Corp. workers approve 2-year pact

Employees at the Chrysler Corp.'s Newark Assembly Plant have approved a new two-year contract that provides them with increased job security.

Sixty-one percent of the local membership voted in favor of the new pact, which was also approved by other union members across the nation.

Bob Clemente, president of United Auto Workers Local 1183, said that because of union rules, he could not release information on how many workers at the Newark plant voted on the contract last week. However, he said a majority of the local members did turn out for the vote. About 3,600 workers at the local plant are represented by the union.

Clemente was pleased with the final offer from Chrysler, although it did not include any hourly wage increases. "I feel good about it (the contract). It gives us a lot of job security protection for the future."

Under the agreement, workers cannot be laid off unless there is a lag in car sales. Also, only one job can be eliminated if two workers retire.

Currently, about 1,400 workers at the plant are laid off.

Clemente believes some of the employees would still be working if past contracts had the same protections as the new pact.

The laid off employees will be eligible for a $1,000 bonus within thirteen weeks following their return to the job. Originally, those employees were not to be eligible for the bonus.

"This local was successful in negotiating that (bonus) for our laid off workers," said Clemente.

The workers are laid off while the plant is being retooled for production of the Chrysler A-car. The employees are expected to return to the job in January.

Clemente said he was also pleased that the contract was for two years, instead of three years as in the past. The two-year contract will expire the same time as those employee contracts with Ford and General Motors.

"We'll be going to the table with the Big Three," said Clemente.

Because contracts with all three companies with be negotiated at the same time, Clemente expects the union to have more leverage in the talks.

Cigarette said cause of fatal fire in Breezewood

A cigarette ignited the Mother's Day fire that killed a Newark couple as they slept in their Breezewood home.

"The cause of the fire has been determined to be smoking materials left in the area of the sofa," said State Fire Marshal agent Paul Santa Barbara.

Killed in the early morning fire were Raymond and Elizabeth McGarry.

Santa Barbara said both the McGarrys smoked cigarettes.

The state medical examiner has ruled the death of the couple was caused by smoke inhalation.

Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder fought the fire, reported to officials about 1 a.m.

None of the McGarry's children, aged 18 to 25, were home at the time of the fire.

Ohhhh! That's cold! Willa Clair, a third grade teacher at McVey Elementary School, takes the plunge in the dunking booth during Saturday's fun fair.

Welfare Committee seeks funds

The Newark Area Welfare Committee will hold its fund raising Good Neighbor Day on Friday, May 27.

Committee volunteers will be at various locations throughout the Newark area to collect cash donations and demonstrate how this is a community of neighbors helping neighbors.

The Newark Area Welfare Committee has been working year around since 1940 to provide prompt emergency aid for people who find themselves in need with no timely means of assistance.

The Committee was founded by Edna Dickey. Later, Etta Wilson began helping its clients from her home.

Today, the Committee is a formal organization of volunteers carrying on its original mission.

In 1987, the Committee's Food Cupboard gave emergency groceries, both fresh and canned, to 728 people from 182 families.

Throughout the year, the Committee assists families with emergency expenses such as fuel bills, infant formula, housing and prescription medicine.

According to a spokesman, the Committee has no overhead costs and all contributions go to directly to those in need. To contribute, write: Newark Area Welfare Committee, P.O. Box 951, Newark, DE 19715-0951.

Newark to construct new parks facility

Building to be located at Phillips complex

A new parks maintenance building is something that James Hall, Newark city parks director, has been anticipating since the old facility was destroyed by fire last summer.

Construction of the new facility should begin soon, with recent City Council approval of the $309,000 building contract.

"We'll have a very functional building," said Hall. "We'll have adequate storage."

Hall expects construction will begin on the new building, to be located in the Phillips Avenue Maintenance Complex, early this summer with completion before winter arrives.

Currently, city parks crews are working out of two trailers. Hall is hoping that employees will not work another winter out of trailer conditions. "It's not the best environment," he said.

The new building should give a boost to employee morale, according to Hall, because of the improved working conditions.

The trailers have been the work site for several parks department employees since the old maintenance facility burned in June 1987.

The old facility was actually a barn with an antiquated electrical system. It is believed that the fire was started by electrical problems in the building.

Because the fire was unexpected, little money could be appropriated for construction of a new facility. The city received some insurance reimbursements, but there was little insurance on the old building because of its condition.

The lowest bid on the new building was over the budgeted amount by $75,000. Council agreed to use unappropriated surplus funds to make up the difference.

The new facility will be a prefabricated metal building with a concrete slab foundation. The building will include space for an office, tool room, restrooms, shower facilities, shop and storage areas.

Composites lab opens

in Delaware and this is an important way in which it does show," said Castle. "By contributing money along with ICI, we were able to put up this structure. We were able to make sure the University was teaching in an applied method that is going to be very important to what is going to happen, we hope, in the future economy of the state of Delaware."

Construction of the lab has been under way for the past couple of years. Director of the research center, Dr. Dick J. Wilkins, said the researchers and staff members are still moving into the new facility. The move should be complete in about three weeks.

Wilkins and other university and state officials hope that the new facility will make this area an international leader in basic research that combines manufacturing science and engineering science of products made of composites. The new building brings the dream a step closer, according to Wilkins.

"This building is the finest, most modern, composites research facility at any university in the world," said Wilkins.

The lab, with state-of-the-art, computational and technical equipment, will be a major source for education research and technology transfer in composite materials science in the United States. The 30,000 square foot facility contains 11 separate labs for research, testing, design and manufacturing as well as a machine shop, resources room and a presentation room.

Composites have been traced back to 1800 B.C. when the Israelites mixed straw and clay to create a stronger material in bricks. At the same time, composites are considered the technology of the future.

"It is always a new technology if we are getting smarter and smarter about how to use the things we know. What's especially exciting now are the efforts to understand the manufacturing science of composites," said Wilkins. "That will allow us to really understand the issues of manufacturing and apply these concepts to more and more routine applications. That's really what we're striving for."

Development of a Technology Park, as recommended by the Governor's High Tech Task Force, will probably be the next step in the creation of this so-called composites capital. Although details have not been released on the park, it will likely be located in the Newark area.

The park will enable scientists to take the research done at the lab and actually implement it in manufacturing.

Balancing work, family

from 1a

packages.

"Flexible and responsive personnel policies can best address the diversity of family needs of workers," said Weyer.

In order to be competitive, Weyer said business must focus on work and family issues.

H. Gordon Smyth, DuPont senior vice president for employee relations, said the company went to its employees to find out what about their family needs.

"Instead of asking our professional staff to address the issue of child care and getting professional staff response, we decided to ask the employees, who were involved in child care themselves, to have a committee and to have those employees respond back to us," said Smyth.

Smyth said the response DuPont received from the employees was much different than what they would have gotten from a professional staff review.

Out of the employees' concerns, Smyth said the company helped fund the start-up of Child Care Connection and initiated a system in which workers use pre-tax dollars to pay for child care.

Besides offering maternity leave, Smyth said employees are also provided with paternity leave. However, few fathers have actually taken advantage of paternity leave.

Smyth advises employers to find out from their workers about family concerns. Employees' concerns varied from each of the DuPont sites, demonstrating the need for flexibility.

"I think we're only beginning to understand the need for flexibility," said Smyth. Such flexibility can be hard for a large corporation, according to Smyth, but he said "that does not excuse us from working at it."

Newark holds parade

from 1a

Rev. Courtney Hayward, chaplain of the Gold Star Mothers, said Memorial Day was "more than just a day on the calendar," that it served as an experience of the heart.

Reviewing the parade were Major Gen. Ronald K. Nelson of the U.S. Marine Corps, Delaware Gov. Michael N. Castle and Newark Mayor William Redd.

During brief remarks before the parade, Castle commented on Redd's decision not to seek another term as mayor next year. "He's done a wonderful job," said Castle. "Newark is an outstanding city, not only in this state, but also in the country."

The city has been the major contributor to the parade for several years. During its last meeting, City Council approved a resolution declaring this year's parade an official function of the city. The resolution was requested by parade volunteers concerned about financial liabilities if any problems occurred during the parade.

City Council will study the matter further to determine city involvement in future parades.

DuPonts to develop

from 1a

White Clay Creek Preserve and the Middle Run Natural Area. The land bridge would allow wildlife to migrate freely among the three areas.

A task force appointed by Gov. Michael N. Castle to study the land bridge concept held a public meeting here last night. (The meeting was held too late for the NewArk Post deadline, but will be reported in the May 26 issue.)

If 300 acres is set aside for the park, the remaining 700 acres or so would be targeted for office and residential development. Onn said he understands that only a small percentage of the 700 acres will actually be developed, with much of the land to be left as open space.

Onn said he is pleased with the way the duPont family is handling the project. "They're really doing this very well," said Onn. "It's really a classic example of how a developer ought to proceed."

The duPont family has listened to the concerns of the residents and is responding to them, according to Onn.

Although the plans are very fluid, development of the duPont land appears certain.

Delaware is hosting US Science Olympiad

Thirteen hundred students from 36 states will take part in the National Tournament of Science Olympiad May 20-21 at Delaware State College in Dover.

The olympiad will feature 45 events for students grades 7-12 who qualified for the nationals by winning state or regional competitions.

Working in teams of 15, the students will be tested on their knowledge of physics, chemistry, biology, earth science and computer science.

Among those teams will be four from Delaware, representing St. Mark's High School, A.I. duPont High School, H.B. duPont Middle School and Caesar Rodney Junior High School.

One contest is the egg drop. Students must design a device to catch a raw egg dropped from a given height. The smallest device that can keep the egg from breaking will win. This contest tests students' knowledge of physics and the strengths of materials.

In other events, students will analyze an unknown substance to identify its components, and will estimate the density of fish in a tank.

"The Science Olympiad has become a tremendous motivating device for teacher," said John C. Cairns, state supervisor of science who is coordinating this fourth national championship. "Hundreds of students consider it as one of the main events of their year, and they work hard and apply themselves every week to prepare to do well in state events."

Newark youths enjoy hopping through the Jupiter Jump during McVey Elementary School's annual fun fair, held Saturday under fair skies.

Gallaher awarded funds for reading program

The Robert S. Gallaher Elementary School Reading Is Fundamental program has been honored by Bell Atlantic Foundation for outstanding service in motivating youngsters to read.

Bell Atlantic Foundation has awarded the Gallaher PTA, which administers the reading program, a grant to be used to purchase additional books for children attending the east Newark school.

The grant was one of 25 awarded by the foundation.

Through the work of local volunteers and the guidance of national Reading Is Fundamental headquarters in Washington, D.C., the Gallaher PTA program has inspired children to read through planned reading-related activities.

It has also enabled students to choose and to own books of interest to them.

In the four years since the Gallaher program was established, students in kindergarten through grade three have come to own about 1,800 books per year, or about three per student.

"The Bell Atlantic Foundation grant will help us continue providing a wide variety of books that awaken and nourish youngsters' interest in reading," said Betty D. Kessler, reading teacher. "Reading Is Fundamental's unique approach makes youngsters want to read. And the more they read, the more their skills improve."

Founded in 1966, Reading Is Fundamental is a national organization that helps children discover the joy and importance of reading through a network of 3,100 local projects, such as that at Gallaher.

Band honored

The Newark High School Jazz Ensemble has returned from the national finals of Musicfest USA in Orlando, Fla., where it was one of 50 bands which performed for comments from a distinguished panel of judges.

During Musicfest, students attended clinics given by such jazz greats as Bunky Green, Willie Thomas, Ernie Watts, Don Muro, Mike Garson and Marvin Stamm. The clinics were sponsored by Down Beat magazine.

Newark High musicians also had time to unwind, visiting Walt Disney World.

Other bands attending the festival included: the arts magnet school of Dallas, Texas; the All-Philadelphia Jazz Ensemble; the University of Maryland Jazz Ensemble; and the University of Massachusetts Jazz Ensemble.

Newark High's jazz band will perform one more time at home this year, with a concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 24 in the school. Admission is $2, payable at the door.

Christina announces graduation schedule for high schools

The three Christina School District high schools will hold graduation exercises on consecutive nights, it was announced this week.

Commencement will be held Tuesday, June 7 at Newark High School; Wednesday, June 8 at Glasgow High School; and Thursday, June 9 at Christina High School.

Newark High ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in the school football stadium. In case of inclement weather, ceremonies will be moved to the University of Delaware Fieldhouse.

Diplomas will be awarded Newark High students by Dr. James W. Kent, president of the Christina board of education, and board members George E. Evans and Georgia Wampler.

Glasgow High ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m. in the school football stadium. In case of inclement weather, ceremonies will be moved inside Glasgow High.

Glasgow High students will receive diplomas from Christina board of education members Charles E. Hockersmith, Dr. Ja net W. Crouse and Cynthia E. Oates.

Christiana High ceremonies will begin at 7 p.m., also in the school football stadium. In case of inclement weather, ceremonies will be moved to the University of Delaware Fieldhouse.

Diplomas will be distributed by Christina board of education president Dr. James W. Kent and board members Dona B. Price and Charles E. Hockersmith.

Verne W. Wolf, Christina director of secondary education, suggests that guests arrive at the various stadiums about 6 p.m. because there is no reserved seating.

He also suggests the same arrival time in poor weather because neither Glasgow High nor the University of Delaware Fieldhouse offers reserved seating.

Newarkers to attend academies

Two Newark students have received appointments to U.S. service academies, according to Congressman Tom Carper, D-Delaware.

Patrick B. Cochran has been appointed to the Naval Academy in Annapolis and Jason A. Bright has been appointed to the Merchant Marine Academy in King's Point, N.Y.

Both received academy nominations from the entire Delaware congressional delegation.

Cochran, the son of John B. and Margaret Cochran, is now attending the University of Rochester.

Bright, the son of Richard and Ruth Bright, is a senior at Newark High School.

Carper's office is now accepting applications for the service academy classes of 1993. For details, call 573-6181.

UD, NOAA plan research

The University of Delaware and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) signed a memorandum of understanding on May 5 that establishes a Joint Center for Research in the Management of Oceanographic Data (JCRMOD).

University President Russel C. Jones and Dr. William E. Evans, under secretary of commerce for oceans and atmosphere, signed the official document at a ceremony on the College of Marine Studies campus in Lewes.

Prior to the signing, U.S. Sen. William V. Roth Jr. praised the work of both NOAA and the University's Marine Studies Program. He said the cooperative venture will "improve the connection between data and user" and will enhance NOAA's work "exploring and assisting in the understanding and protection of the environment."

The center will research how to effectively manage the voluminous data being generated by satellites and global climate research programs and will develop a system that enables the exchange of high-quality data between oceanographers.

Oceanographic information is important to researchers because of the ocean's influence on climate, globally, as it interacts with the atmosphere.

This joint venture strengthens already existing ties between the University and NOAA. The new center, through the National Environmental Satellite, Data and Information Service (NESDIS), will share facilities and operations, such as computer systems and data links. It also will provide graduate-level training in the management and application of oceanographic data.

NESDIS will have access to the laboratories, data and research techniques developed at the College of Marine Studies and the Center for Climatic Research.

Present at the signing were Kevin Smith, a staff assistant representing U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden, Susan Stuchlik-Edwards, representing U.S. Rep. Thomas R. Carper, and Jan Ewing Robinson, acting director of the Delaware Development Office.

Attending from the University were L. Leon Campbell, provost; Dr. Carolyn Thoroughgood, dean of the College of Marine Studies; and Dr. Ferris Webster, director of the College of Marine Studies oceanography program.

Representing NOAA were Gregg Withee, director of the National Oceanographic Data Center; Kent Burton, director of NOAA's Office of Legislative Affairs; Dr. Melvin Peterson, NOAA's chief scientist; and Thomas N. Pyke Jr., assistant administrator for satellite and information services.

Society must declare war on the killers who drive drunk

This is war, make no mistake about it. Drunk drivers are killing our parents, our brothers and sisters, our children. They are killing us, they are doing it in frightful numbers and they must be made to pay for it.

Too long society has looked the other way in this ongoing calamity, letting the killer drunk off with a wink, a nod and a slap on the wrist.

But perhaps that sad era will come to an end in the aftermath of the tragic crash in Carrollton, Ky. There, a drunk driving on the wrong side of an interstate highway rammed a crowded bus head on. Twenty-seven people died as the bus burst into flames.

The small town of Radcliff, whose children the bus was carrying, may never be the same. Many of its best and brightest young people died in the conflagration.

The drunk driver could not have done a better job of killing if he had been armed with an Uzi machine gun or an Exocet missile. Instead, he was armed with a bottle.

Kentucky officials have decided to press murder charges for each individual death. That's 27 counts. And Carroll County Attorney John Ackman says he will not hesitate to seek the death penalty.

Bravo. One can only hope Ackman's action will spur others to stiffen the defense of innocent motorists and passengers being killed by drunk drivers.

They are killers. And this is a war we must win.

There is something very wrong in America. And without sounding like a tent preacher, the answer is fairly obvious — lack of moral direction.

Moral leadership is in a state of complete chaos, from the president to the kid in the ghetto, from the entertainer to the televangelist.

Disrespect for governmental leaders has been growing since Richard Nixon's Watergate fiasco. It has not been pulled out of its nosedive by a Reagan Administration which has been roundly criticized for its "sleaze factor."

Add to that disrespect the growing disillusionment with religious leaders. Today's best-known clergymen are not simple, pious people spreading a message of love and charity. They are right-wing warhawks, carnival operators, cosmetics magnates and multi-millionaires caught in sex and money scandals.

And there's the rub. Through the 1980s, the message being driven home loud and clear to every American is this — make money. Make lots of it. Flaunt it. Rub it in the faces of the poverty stricken and homeless. Invest it. Buy it. Sell it. Get it any way you can because money and money alone determines your net worth as a human being.

And that is a horrible way to measure anyone's value.

Don't the words of John F. Kennedy — "Ask not what you can do for yourself, ask what you can do for your country" — ring ironic in this, the Me-Me-Me Decade?

Public service is passe. Sense of community is in decline. Organizations must fight for every last volunteer they can muster.

And don't think the message is lost on the young. College, where Iacocca has replaced Ionesco on the literati's list of must-reads, is training a class of students more interested in how much they will make than in how much they will contribute.

In the ghetto, kids, barely teenagers, are selling deadly drugs to their neighbors so they can pile up the profits as America's modern entrepreneurs.

Because of this shallow thinking, this desire only for the next thrill or possession, kids are growing up very fast but maturing very, very late.

So why not require some form of public service of all young people? That is an interesting notion which is gaining favor, most recently in a Philadelphia Inquirer editorial.

"...After two decades of this rapture with easy money and social irresponsibility," the Inquirer says, "the nation's next leader should take on the challenge of resuscitating Americans' sense of obligation to each other, and to our country. There's no better way to do that than by greatly expanding the opportunity for Americans — particularly young Americans — to spend a year or two in service to the nation." Hear, hear.

Aid to Nicaragua

What's an average citizen to do when you see time and time again your government carrying out policies that demoralize your very soul?

You cry out in outrage, call your Congress person, sign petitions, demonstrate and still you see your tax dollars being used to wage war, to terrorize and to kill innocent people.

Well, some citizens are taking matters into their own hands.

It is hard for us to imagine what the ravages of war are like, but some among us have lived through it and can tell us that it is something we should not wish on anyone.

I am referring to veterans. And veterans across the country are taking matters into their own hands in the instance of the U.S. war on Nicaragua.

A hundred veterans in 50 trucks filled with food, medicine and clothing for the children of Nicaragua are driving through the United States in a people-to-people offer of peace called the Veterans Peace Convoy to Nicaragua. They are coming through Newark on Thursday, May 26, and will be on Main Street across from Klondike Kate's between 9:30 a.m. and noon before leaving for Baltimore.

They will meet with other sections of the convoy in Austin, Texas and then drive down to Nicaragua to deliver the aid and the trucks.

Come out on May 26 — meet them, show your support and take matters into your own hands.

Parade

Event marred

We just heard that this year's Memorial Day Parade (was) marred by an act of censorship. A number of vets were told they could not march in the parade if they carried a banner announcing the upcoming Veterans Peace Convoy to bring humanitarian aid to Nicaragua. The parade organizer said words to the effect that he didn't think that sort of movement was appropriate for celebrating a memorial where thousands of men have given their lives.

We don't get the connection. U.S. veterans all across the United States have organized a convoy of trucks loaded with food, medicine and clothing that they will personally drive down to the needy children of Nicaragua, a country that has not invaded us and against which Congress has not declared war. How can such a humanitarian deed be a disgrace to the memory of those thousands who gave their lives in our defense?

This movement is the work of vets, so it's certainly germane to Newark's parade, especially since the eastern convoy will in fact be passing through downtown Newark on Thursday morning, May 26, spreading word of its goals and collecting healthful things for children. We think this is big local news in the moral life of our city.

COPY WRITING

If your headline and artwork were well conceived and pertinent to the reader, chances are your ad will stop the reader long enough for him to move to the next step...reading the body copy in your ad.

Though copy does not have the immediate impact that your artwork and headline have, copy is important and should appeal to the reader by telling him how and why he can get satisfaction by buying your products and services.

Your copy should be written in simple terms and in a clear, direct style so as to convince the reader in languages he understands.

Your copy should be forceful (at least when occasion permits), because ads compete with each other and the most forceful ones attract the reader's attention.

Your ads should be truthful and not make exaggerated claims that destroy the confidence the reader has in advertising as a whole.

Your copy should stimulate the reader so that he will purchase your goods and services.

And your copy should harmonize with the other elements in your ad so as to be consistent with these parts. The copy must hold the attention of the reader while keeping the general tone and atmosphere of the entire ad. The copy must be in the same spirit with the artwork and the headline which first attracted the reader. If it is not, the reader could feel misled by an attractive promise.

These are simple rules for good copy writing. If you follow them, your ad copy will be effective!

Linda Ratchford announces the birth of a new plan to meet our future energy needs.

As a new mother, Linda Ratchford takes a very personal interest in the future of our community. She recognizes that this area's recent economic and population growth have increased our need for more energy in the near future. That's why she and her colleagues at Delmarva Power are working on a special program to ensure we'll have enough power now and into the next century. It's called Challenge 2000.

Challenge 2000 will help us meet our growing demand for energy in two ways. First, by building new power plants where they're needed most. And second, by exploring innovative ways to help both our residential and commercial customers use our present energy supply more efficiently.

Linda knows her small daughter, Elizabeth Ann, is just a tiny part of the enormous increase in population we're now experiencing. But she and her Challenge 2000 teammates, are making sure that we'll have the energy to support this growth today and tomorrow. Because the Delmarva Peninsula isn't just where Linda Ratchford works. It's the special place she—and Elizabeth Ann—call home.

Aspartame: Less calories, carbohydrates

NutraSweet, University conduct joint study of 1,500 women in US U.S.

A new study co-authored by a University of Delaware professor has concluded that women who use aspartame-sweetened products consume fewer calories and fewer carbohydrates than women who consume products without aspartame.

Dr. Jack L. Smith, an adjunct professor of nutrition and dietetics at the University, and Dr. John P. Heybach of the NutraSweet Co. based their findings on independent analyses of data from nationwide food and nutrition survey of more than 1,500 women between the ages of 19 and 50 that was conducted in 1985 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

They have presented their analysis May 4-5 in Las Vegas at the 72nd annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Using this vast computer data base, Drs. Smith and Heybach examined each of the foods eaten and identified those that were sweetened with aspartame. Using this knowledge of who consumed aspartame-containing foods, how much of these foods were consumed and the amount of aspartame contained in each of these foods, they were able to re-analyze the data to calculate each individual's intake of aspartame on the survey day.

The survey revealed that 25 percent of the women questioned had consumed products containing aspartame. These women had a caloric intake that was, on average, 165 calories lower than those who consumed no products with aspartame.

The data from the USDA survey also provided information on each individual's intake of a wide range of nutrients, including protein, carbohydrates and fat. When these were analyzed, the results showed that much of the reduction in calories was attributable to a reduction in carbohydrate intake, without an accompanying change in the intake of protein or fat.

Smith has a long-term research interest in the evaluation of nutrition intervention programs, nutritional assessment and the use of nutrition surveys to provide associations with food, nutrients and health. He is a fellow of the American College of Nutrition and a member of the American Institute for Nutrition, the American Dietetic Association and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, among others.

Since aspartame was approved in 1981 by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), it has been widely accepted by manufacturers and consumers. Aspartame is 200 times sweeter than sugar and is digested like protein.

This research project was supported by funding from the NutraSweet Co.

Supt. Keene to honor state's top scholars

Top students from Delaware public high schools will be honored by government and education officials during the State Superintendent's Scholars Dinner to be held Thursday, May 26 in Dover.

Among the students to be recognized are six from the Christina School District: Shannon Ferguson, Christine R. Putzig and Christopher J. Sipe, all of Christina High School; Andrew J. Grazela of Glasgow

High School; and Thomas Klemas and Peter Vagenas, both of Newark High School.

Also honored will be Daniel Simpson of the New Castle County Vocational-Technical School District, a student at Hodgson Vocational Technical High School.

Students were selected for exemplary scholarship, having won awards of state, regional or national significance.

Dr. William B. Keene of Newark, state superintendent of public instruction, said the dinner is meant to recognize the students for their achievements and to encourage them to continue to strive for excellence.

"Their accomplishments show that these students have developed splendid work habits and discipline, and have learned to exert themselves in pursuit of a goal," Keene said.

"These qualities of mind and character will prepare them to succeed in whatever endeavor they choose," he added. "They reflect great credit upon the help the students have received from their families, friends and neighbors, as well as upon the high level instruction given by their teachers."

Featured speaker at the dinner will be Dr. William B. DeLauder, president of Delaware State College.

Lions

Top teens named

The Newark Lions Club teenager-of-the-year awards have gone to two local high school students.

Shannon Ferguson, a Christina High School senior, and Patrick S. Doyle, a St. Mark's High School senior, were named award recipients during a Lions club banquet in Newark Tuesday night.

Ferguson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Ferguson of Elmwood. Doyle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Doyle of Covered Bridge Farms.

The contest winners were chosen from a field of eight candidates from the Newark area. Judging criteria included general behavioral patterns in home, school and community; religious participation; school, civic and youth activities; and other strong abilities or accomplishments.

IT'S YOUR MONEY

by Ballard, Jefferson, Moffitt & Urian, P.A.

HIRE YOUR KIDS:

If you have a family business, you have an opportunity to do some family tax planning of your own: hire your youngsters! You can't pay them more than the going rate for whatever it is they do for you, you must actually pay them (and not just credit them within a joint account, say), and you as employer and your youngsters over 18 must now pay Social Security tax on their earnings, but there are advantages.

First, because this will be earned income, rather than from investments, it will be taxable only at the child's own rate, probably the minimum 15 percent.

Second, this earned income can be invested in an IRA, where it can grow, tax-deferred, until the money is needed for college. As long as your child is over 14 by the time the money is taken out, it will be taxed at the lower rate, not at your higher one. Even with a 10 percent penalty on distributions, tax deferral makes this form of saving worthwhile.

Third benefit: your youngster gets a start in the family business.

You'll get good advice from the tax experts at

Christiana star Diana Pitts is on right track

by David Woolman

How fast is Diana Pitts? Diana Pitts is so fast that during track practice, Charles Michael makes her run with the boys.

"When we have trials, I never have anybody to run against," says the sophomore at Christiana High School. "My coach, he puts me with the boys, and he says, 'I don't want you in the back. Don't let anybody pass you.'"

"She's got phenomenal strength," says Charles Michael, girls coach at Christiana. "I run her with the boys, and she runs them into the ground."

"We have a lot of sprinter boys," says Pitts, "and they go fast on purpose, because they know if I slack up, he (Michael) is going to yell at me. I get so mad."

It only serves to make her run harder. So far, she has run the fastest 200 meters in the state this year, a 26.0 which ties her with Sharnette Handy, and the second fastest 400 in the state, a 59.8 which puts her behind Padua's Amy Gleason.

Both times are faster than the times she ran at last year's state meet, in which she finished second in both the 200 and 400.

"Coach said it (her finish in the state meet) was pretty good for a freshman running against a senior, but I still wanted to win. Even if I don't do it this year, I'll keep doing it until I will win. That's my goal."

Pitts also runs the 100 and the 800 when the team needs points in the dual meets, and generally runs in the mile relay as well.

Running as fast as she does makes the relay difficult at times.

"Whenever I run, they (her teammates) say, 'Diana, you have to leave a gap for us.' Coach says, 'Don't put it all on her,' but they look at me to bring them up. Everybody's looking at me."

"Most girls, whenever I practice, they wait for me to do something. When I stretch, they stretch. When I get up and decide to run, everybody decides to run. If I say I'm going to work on the blocks, other girls will say, 'I'm going to work on that, too.'"

"My coach tells me that they look up to me in school, too, the way you act in the halls, the way you talk, the people you hang around with. He says, 'Keep your grades up, so when the team sees how important that is, maybe they'll keep their grades up.'"

"People recognize you. When they see you, they say, 'That's the girl that runs track.' They treat you with a little bit of respect."

Pitts says the coaching staff gives her responsibility to help her later in life. "If I (take responsibility now), I'll be prepared."

She has already started to hear from colleges, including Brown University. The prospect of parlaying track into college has made her take her academics more seriously, and it has made those around her make sure of it. She has been placed in the College Bound pro-

Diana Pitts, of Christiana High, speeds to victory in the county 200-meter dash championship.

Leffler clears hurdle

St. Mark's runner wins NCC crown

That she had never run the hurdles before the beginning of this season seemed irrelevant Saturday afternoon at Baynard Stadium, when St. Mark's High School's Pam Leffler gapped the competition in the 300 low hurdles on the way to winning the county championship.

"I'm not surprised at all," said St. Mark's coach Hilda Kraiss. "With her speed and her height, it's a dynamite combination. That combination is excellent for hurdles."

The Spartan sophomore has not lost a 300 hurdle race yet in her brief career, not counting her first race, in which she came in first but was disqualified for running around a hurdle. She has improved her time nine seconds over the season, running a 44.6 Saturday to break the school record for the third time.

"I'm so tall that I don't even jump," said Leffler. "I just run right through them. We're not too worried about my skills now. We just work on my speed."

With two more years to run the event, both Leffler and Kraiss have their eyes on the state record, only two seconds away.

"With more technique, her time will even go lower," said Kraiss. "She just has to work hard. There's no reason she can't by the time she's a senior."

Leffler's performance to a degree made up for the absence of St. Mark's star Maila Madric, who has been forced to miss the latter half of the season after getting her wisdom teeth extracted. Despite lacking her talents, and some other changes in the relays, the Spartans still managed to place in two relays.

Kathleen Fitzgerald, Julie Domrowski, Melanie Avenarius and Leffler took third in the mile relay, and fourth in the 4x200 relay.

"Most of my team is gone," said Leffler. "It's tough. I'm used to receiving from one single person. Now, every single meet it's a different person."

Jennifer Klemaszewski finished fourth in the high jump, and Angela Miller tied for fifth, as St. Mark's finished eighth overall with 25½ team points.

Newark's Chandler wins county 400-meter title

With a season of track under his spikes and the right kind of weather on a sunny Saturday at Baynard Stadium, Newark High School's Larmer Chandler put the disappointments of the sprint relays behind him and did what he could do. What he did was pretty good.

"I was waiting for this," said the Newark senior, after winning the county championship 400 meters in a school record 49.4 seconds. "I didn't expect to win by that much. I thought it was going to be much closer."

"I knew he was capable of running below 50 seconds," said Newark coach Frank Smith. "It was just a matter of the right conditions."

"I was tense on the first 110," said Chandler, who stayed in the rear half of the championship heat for the first half of the race. "When I got to the backstretch, I just relaxed."

"When we got to the 275 or 300 mark, I took my chance. That's my strategy, run the first 220 at a nice pace, stride all the way around, and start lifting at the 300."

"He ran a 50.9 earlier in the year," said Smith. "Running against the caliber of people he was running against motivated him."

The Yellowjacket squad as a whole was handicapped by the senior prom the night before, necessitating a few substitutions in the sprint relays and compromising the team's quest for the school record in the 4x100. As it was, the 4x100 team of Chandler, Jeff Taylor, Aaron Jackson and Glenwood Jackson took fifth place.

The mile relay, made up of Chandler, Aaron Jackson, Taylor and Brian Lefevre, finished fourth, and Lefevre tied for sixth in the high jump to give the team a total of 17½ points.

Christiana was another team missing some members of its relay teams. Nevertheless, the 4x800 squad of Jason Jeffers, Eric Morgan, E.J. Biley and Howard Gray finished fifth, and the 4x200 made up of Jeffers, Gray, Johnnie Newsome and Karl Hairston took sixth. Gray and Jeffers finished fifth and sixth in the 800, as Christiana finished with 6½ team points.

"We came out with what we had and did the best we could," said coach Paul Ramseur. "Jeffers' time was good, because he's a freshman. A 2:03 was Bob Sonchen watches runner.

Sonchen, Yellowjackets top BHC rival A.I., 8-7

by David Woolman

Newark High School pitcher Bob Sonchen has twice done to A.I. duPont what few thought anyone could do much at all to the pre-season Blue Hen Conference Flight A baseball favorite, and that is beat them.

Last week's 8-7 win at home was more difficult than the first, a five-hit shutout.

"They came out and hit today," said Sonchen. "I knew the second time around wasn't going to be like the first, and they jumped on the fastball."

"I thought (the first game against A.I.) was going to be tougher than this one was, but the first one was easy compared to this one."

Sonchen threw 130 pitches and gave up 13 hits in the contest, working out of a three-run seventh inning to get the complete game victory.

"My philosophy with pitchers is I don't pull them unless they tire," said Newark coach Harry Davies. "I like my pitchers to earn a win or come out tired. Bobby's got guts. I just told him to take his time. He sucked it up when he had to."

Which also accurately describes the whole season for the Yellowjacket pitching staff. The team has hit as well as expected; that Newark is on top of Flight A and likely to successfully defend their title is attributable to the performances of the pitchers Sonchen and Bruce Hannah, as well as third starter Craig Klockars and reliever Mitch Thomas.

"I knew we'd have a steady pitching staff," said Sonchen, "but I didn't know it would be as strong as it is."

"I think pitching is going to decide how far we'll go," said Davies. "The second and third line pitching has been fine.

They've pulled us through. If you were to tell me a month ago that we would be 13-2, I would have seriously doubted it."

The hitting was as fine as always, with everyone in the lineup except Rob Callahan getting at least one hit, and Callahan walked three times and scored three runs.

"We've played 15 games, and I revamped the order for the fourteenth time," said Davies. "I'm still looking for a good leadoff man, and I keep coming back to Rob. Robby sets the table for us, plus he's an intelligent ballplayer. He was a key player for us today."

Callahan scored the first run of the game, reaching on a walk, moving to second on a Tim Pyle ground out and scoring on a double by Mitch Thomas. Thomas moved to second on Sonchen's single, and scored on a base hit by Ted Rafterovich. Klockars knocked in Sonchen with a single, and Newark led 3-0.

A.I.'s Luis Sierra scored a run on a Jim Maloney single in the second after being hit by a pitch, to make the score 3-1.

Newark scored three more in their half of the second. Bruce Hannah hit a single, Callahan

Hurley hurls no-hitter

Harry Hurley pitched a no-hitter to lead Christiana High School's freshman baseball team to a 5-0 victory over Delcastle Friday. The 15-year-old struck out 21 batters in the seven inning game, walking two and hitting one with a pitch.

"Before the game, I was going to tell the coach my arm hurt, and I didn't want to pitch," said Hurley. "I'm glad I didn't."

Hurley said the team gave him a great deal of support during the game, and helped keep him loose.

"They said they were going to go out without gloves, because I wasn't letting them field anything."

Cyle to coach Caravel

Larry Cyle has been named head coach of the Caravel Academy football team, replacing Bill DiNardo. Cyle was the head coach at Archmere Academy this past year and led the team to the Division II championship after going undefeated in the regular season. DiNardo, a former assistant to Cyle at Archmere, left Caravel to take the head coaching job at Middletown High School.

Blue Hen athletes honored

Taurence Chisholm and Ange Bradley have been named the University of Delaware's outstanding male and female athletes.

Chisholm, an agricultural business major, led the Blue Hen basketball team to a school record 19 wins this year and set seven school records in his career. His 877 assists is a school record, an East Coast Conference record, and places him fourth on the NCAA career list.

Bradley, a physical education major, was goalie for the field hockey team and played defense for the lacrosse team. She was voted ECC most valuable player for her field hockey play, and she holds seven of the eight goal-tending records at the University. Bradley started all four years for the lacrosse team.

Kevin King

Kevin King, a graduate of Glasgow High School, was the leading hitter on the Towson State University baseball team which won the East Coast Conference regular season and tournament titles. The sophomore played all but one of Towson's games at shortstop, led the team in hits and RBIs, and was third on the team in home runs and doubles. King led the team in batting with a .545 average during the ECC tournament, and hit a two-run homer against Delaware in the championship game.

gram, and has fostered her own group of guardians.

"If I slip up on my grades I'm going to hear from my coaches and my counselors. All the teachers get on me. If I fail, I fail my coaches (and my parents)."

Her parents have been supportive of her endeavors; her mother has shown up for meets, and her father taught her how to run.

"My father used to run at Milford High and he won a lot of track medals there. We run on Saturdays, and he shows me how to breathe, how to hold my arms, how fast to go."

Though her father's exposure aided the decision, she came to run track almost by elimination. "Everything I played at had running to do with it. I was looking at the sports, and I couldn't play basketball, I couldn't play this, I couldn't play that. I wanted to do some kind of sport."

Michael saw her run in all of the track events at her middle school's field day, and invited her to join the team.

Pitts will run in the 200 and 400 at the state meet, and perhaps the 100. Both coach and athlete are confident about the former two.

"She should win both this year," says Michael. "This year, she's been so far ahead of everyone that she hasn't been pushed. Her times will come down. I don't think we've got the potential out of her."

"A kid like that scares you. You're always asking in the back of your mind, 'Am I training her right, am I overdoing this or that.' There's always that haze."

Michael feels her talents would be better suited to the 800, and plans to train her up to the distance next year. She will do some light training this summer at the University of Delaware, and will probably participate in winter track to facilitate the change. She says she enjoys it.

"Some days, when my body's hurting, I ask myself why I ever run track. Some days, I don't want to go to practice, but if I don't go I regret it. I like track. I like running, even though it hurts."

"When you practice, it hurts, but when you run, you'd be surprised how far you go."

Leffler wins NCC title

Christiana's Diana Pitts did her usual job of making her competition in the 400 look sick, blowing away her nearest challenger, Padua's Amy Gleason, by nearly four seconds. Her 56.2 was a new personal and school record, but not precisely what the blazing sophomore was after.

"I really wanted a 55," said Pitts. "That's what I've been working on all week. That's why I pushed the way I did."

She also won the 200 with a personal and school best 25.3, placed third in the 100, and put on an impressive show in the 4x400. Running the last leg of the relay in the consolation heat, she took the baton in fifth place, 25 yards behind the leader, and ran a 57.6 split to win the heat going away.

"If anybody runs close to her, she'll run a 55 next week (in the state meet)," said Christiana coach Charles Michael. "She needs somebody to run at her."

"Next year we're taking her down to the Washington Invitational at Howard University, and to Rutgers, too."

Other placings for Christiana came from Wanda Brown, fourth in the shot put, and sixth in the discus; Krista Kendall, fifth in the discus; Beth Otter, second in the high jump; and the 4x800 squad of Otter, Cindy Harvey, Patty Cleveland and Karen Reese, who finished sixth. Christiana finished fifth overall with 42 points.

Newark finished 16th overall with seven team points with a squad decimated by the previous night's prom. Tanya Fussell finished third in the shot put, and the 4x200 team of Deanna Harden, Dawn Varady, Christina Penn and Catennia Evans finished sixth.

Coach Pat Walker expects a better performance with a full squad next week at the state meet.

Glasgow finished 19th overall with one team point garnered by the 4x100 team's sixth place finish. The team consisted of Morgan Icenogle, Crystal Sanders, Netta Brown and Nina Potts.

Icenogle ran a personal best in the 400 and freshman Heather Wintermantle broke a minute in the 300 hurdles for the first time according to coach Ron Hull.

The state championship track meet will be held Saturday at Dover High School.

right on our schedule, and he qualified for states with that.

"I was really impressed with the 1:34.9 we ran in the 4x200. We ran two half-milers in there."

One of them, Gray, did not mind the unusual assignment. "If it's for the team, I'll do it. If you have the mind to do it, it's not that hard."

St. Mark's finished with a total of 19 team points, mostly on the effort of Mike Murphy. Murphy took first in the discus and second in the shot put despite having a clearly subpar day (his throw in the discus was 10 feet short of his recent good throws). Brock Gaither took sixth place in the shot as the only other Spartan to place at the meet.

"I didn't anticipate too many points," said coach Joe O'Neill. "We're making small improvements. We have next week to look forward to in some things."

According to O'Neill, the team has adapted well to not being a contender on the statewide scale this year. "It's been a good year for our team in the sense that the guys on the team have had good attitudes, and have worked hard, and have improved form where they were in the beginning of the year."

Glasgow finished with seven total team points after having a few team problems of its own. "We've been sick and hurting ever since the Dover Relays," said coach John Reinhold. "We've had 10 key runners come down with colds. The only good performances came from Tony Taylor in the 100 and 200 (where he finished sixth and fifth)."

Jim McDade finished fourth in the pole vault, and Gerald Hairston tied for sixth place in the high jump.

"We've got four kids that I'm looking at right now for the states," said Reinhold. "Tony Taylor in the 100 and 200, Kris Hull in the 300 hurdles, Andy Kirk in the 3200 and John Thomas in the mile and 800."

The state championship track meet will be held Saturday at Dover High School.

walked, and Pyle singled to load the bases. Bill DiIenno singled in Hannah and Callahan, and sent Pyle to third, where he later scored on a passed ball. Newark led 6-1.

A.I. came right back in the third, with Gene Beitman hitting a leadoff homerun. Bill Schiff and Sierra each singled, and were brought home on singles by Matt Hall and John Jack, making the score 6-4.

Newark scored two more in the sixth as Tim Wagner singled, Callahan walked, and DiIenno singled to load the bases. Mitch Thomas brought in Wagner and Callahan with a single, and Newark led 8-4.

Sierra led off the top of the seventh with a single. Sonchen got the next two batters out, but then Maloney singled and Neil Brucker doubled both of them in. Tim Kirvan hit another double to score Brucker and bring the Tigers within one. Sonchen struck out Beitman for the win.

Mitch Thomas broke out of his brief slump with a two for three, three RBI performance to lead the team.

"I've been having some trouble with my hitting, spent an hour or so at the cages last night, and I was ready to go today," said Thomas. "The whole team has really been hitting the ball well. I just hope it carries over into the states."

Glasgow's Paul McDonald gets ready to pounce on pitch.

Glasgow tops Christiana, 10-7

Despite disappointing seasons, teams battle into extra innings

It was nearing the end of a disappointing baseball season for both Christiana High School and visiting Glasgow, neither of which could finish with a winning season.

Maybe it was pride that kept the two teams battling for 10 innings Thursday in a game that Glasgow won 10-7, or maybe it was something else.

"Everybody showed a lot of heart," said Christiana's Adam Weber, three-for-five with one walk and one RBI. "We try to stick together and try to push all the way through. Last year's team wouldn't have done that."

"The guys hung right in there and made some real good plays," said Glasgow coach Dennis Dietrich. "They stayed in and hit the ball the whole game. We're persistent, and persistence pays off."

"They're not quitters," said Christiana coach Jack Moore. "These guys have stayed in every inning. Even when they were losing, these guys were real intense. They want to win."

"We had it at the beginning of the year at St. Mark's (where they ended up on the losing end of a 10-inning game) and against Concord," said Glasgow's Matt Olson, three-for-three with three walks. "We pulled it out this time."

"It's kind of disappointing, but we have to go out there with the attitude that we can make a difference," said Christiana's Scott Bowers, four-for-six with four RBIs. "We can at least spoil."

Christiana starter Bryan Duzan walked Matt Olson and Paul McDonald to start off the game. Mark Steele hit into a fielder's choice which moved Olson to third, and Olson scored on a double steal.

Dan Coleman took second on a two base error that scored Steele. Coleman was tagged out at the plate trying to score on a single by Greg Hastings. Hastings scored on a single by D.J. Buck, and Buck scored on a single by Josh Nudge. Nudge was tagged out going for second to end the inning.

Dietrich, desperate for pitching after playing two games earlier in the week, turned to catcher Coleman for the starting job. This made it necessary for usual first baseman Olson to don the catcher's gear for the second time in his life.

Christiana went right to work on Coleman with four straight hits. Kevin Mullins singled, and moved to third on Andy Capone's single. Capone took second on the throw. Both were knocked in by Bowers' double. Weber hit a single to drive in Bowers and was stranded, as Coleman got the next three batters out. Glasgow led 4-3.

McDonald singled Olson home in the second to make the score 5-3, and the Dragons scored another in the fifth when D.J. Buck doubled in Coleman, who reached on a single.

In the bottom of the fifth, with Steele as the pitcher for Glasgow, Weber doubled, moved to third when Bryan Miles reached on an error, and scored on a Chris Yeager single to bring the Vikings back within two, 6-4.

Christiana tied the game in the sixth. Duzan walked, and was taken out at second on Mullins' fielders choice. Mullins moved to second on Capone's single, and scored on Bowers' single. Weber hit a single to load the bases, and Bryan Blomquist came in to relieve Steele. Rob Gates walked to score the tying run before Blomquist struck out Miles and Yeager to get out of the inning.

Coleman started off the seventh for Glasgow with a double, and moved to third on a passed ball before being picked off on a throw from Weber to Scott Lancaster. Hastings summarily doubled, moved to second on a sacrifice fly by Larry Epperson.

Christiana sent the game into extra innings by manufacturing a run in the bottom of the seventh. Duzan hit an infield single, Mullins got on through a fielders choice, and was moved to second by a fielders choice hit by Capone. Bowers hit a single to drive in Mullins and tie the game at seven.

Both teams had chances in the ensuing innings, but neither could score until the top of the tenth, when the Dragons scraped up three runs to win the game. Nudge singled, was sacrificed over by Epperson, and scored on Eastburn's double. Olson was intentionally walked, McDonald also walked, and Steele drove in Eastburn and Olson with a single.

Duzan was replaced by Mullins, who got the final out on one pitch, a liner by Coleman, to end the inning. Christiana put their first two men on in their part of the inning, but a double play ended the threat and Glasgow won 10-7.

C section

Our Uncle Sam is passing the buck

As I sit here at my word processor working on the first draft of this column, it's April 15th. We know what that means, don't we? It's Federal Income Tax Day — a day that most of us loathe. For the poor souls who owe money to Uncle Sam, it's peculiarly painful. Even for the ones who don't owe money, April 15 is an unpleasant reminder that the refund check — in spite of the reputed tax cuts — isn't as big as it should be.

Did you pay particular attention in the last paragraph to the name and gender of the person who receives our tax money? It's Uncle Sam. Yet which sex gets most of the condemnation for being incapable of managing something as simple as money? And who has the reputation for woeful money management?

Is it the husband or the wife, according to popular wisdom, who can't figure out how to run out of money and month simultaneously? Care to hazard a guess about the gender that is always pleading for more and more money? Which of the sexes buys stupendously expensive and useless gadgets to make life easier or more interesting? Do you wonder which gender is blamed for trying to keep up with Joneskis? And who is the weak-willed, weak-kneed person — when faced with financial dilemmas — that throws up her hands in despair, weeps salty tears, checks her mascara and looks around for the nearest Mr. Megabucks?

If you guessed the female sex, reputed repository of fiscal wiftness, you win an all-expense-paid, overnight trip to the slowly-ripening compost pile in my backyard.

Following the tenets of ethical journalism, I'm going to examine pertinent questions concerning this interesting issue of sex and money management; then I'll jump to a conclusion.

Pertinent questions: Of all the United States Presidents, what percentage has been male? How many men are in the Senate, the House of Representatives and the Supreme Court? How many women? Name any female who chaired the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Who heads the Federal Reserve Board, the Post Office, the IRS, CBS, the New York Stock Exchange, General Motors, the FAA, Texaco, the city of Philadelphia, and the FSLIC?

Conclusion: The financial problems of this country clearly are not the fault of women — wifty or otherwise.

So, what's the country supposed to do? I am glad you asked. There are legions of women who not only know how to manage a dollar, they also know how to squeeze half-dollars, quarters, dimes, and pennies until Kennedy, Washington, Roosevelt, Jefferson and Lincoln feel pinched.

In the generation ahead of mine, you'll find women like my Aunt Elizabeth whose most mundane accomplishment is to make the Thanksgiving turkey last all the way to Christmas Eve. Her major feats range from finding a practical application for every frozen orange juice can that has ever crossed her threshold to still using her first square of tin foil. My mother was no slouch either; through judicious cutting and stitching, she made a white cotton shag rug look good in five different living rooms as the rug and the family moved around the country.

Though I inherited some of the maternal pinch-penny genes and am slightly above average in the monetary matters (three wanting to go to college is a tremendous incentive), there are women in my generation who are marching proudly, shoulder-to-shoulder with Mother and Aunt Elizabeth.

Let's talk about Patrice's fiscal skills. Through judicious use of coupons she's able to feed her family of 4 on $21.00 a week. Don't you think the Secretary of Agriculture should study her methods?

Then there's Grace who's kept the same 11-year old, lichen green, evermore-dented stationwagon functioning through four teenage drivers.

Moral of this column: Next year don't send your taxes to Uncle Sam. Send them to Aunt Elizabeth, instead. Not only will she spend the money frugally, she'll send you a personal thank you note.

A BACKYARD BUFFET

by Nancy Turner

Are you bored of burgers? Has pizza lost its appeal? Have you dined from here to Kansas only to find that the ingredients are all the same and the recipes predictable?

Well, grab Toto and click your heels three times, because there is no place like home. If a change of taste is what you want, you may never again need to look any farther than your own backyard.

Welcome to the backyard buffet, where specials like lamb's quarter and mint run throughout the spring and mixed greens are the order of the day. With a little practice and gathering information, anyone can become a connoisseur of wild foods and learn how to make complete meals that are both nutritious and excitingly unique from nature's bounty.

Gathering roots and leaves and berries and buds is certainly nothing new. Many of our grandparents have recipes that call for ingredients like dandelion greens and blossoms. Before trains transported fresh produce to markets throughout the country, people ate wild greens, rich in vitamins A, B, B2, and C, that were especially tender and succulent during the early spring months, while they waited for their planted gardens to mature.

And long before drugstores came into existence, the best "doctors" were often the best foragers. Research has found that some of the home herbal remedies, once scoffed at and discarded by modern medicine as primitive, were actually beneficial. Mint teas for upset stomachs and aspirin compounds derived in part from willow bark are only two examples.

A forager's list of Delaware wild foods that are available during the month of May reads a lot like the back of a Scott's Weed and Feed bag with prominent "weed" names like dandelion, clover, plantain, wild onion, chickweed oxalis and violets. Just for fun, take a look at the list of ingredients on a box of celestial Seasons tea blends the next time you visit the supermarket. The herbal teas have all kinds of things in them.

A true wild food gatherer will take certain offense to loose usage of the term "weed" and may respond by saying something like, "a weed is anything growing where you don't want it to. Remember the old song about a petunia in an onion patch? A petunia is a weed if it grows in the wrong place." Well, that's what Nancy Seyfried, a research assistant in the Agricultural and Natural Resource Department of Delaware State College, said.

Seyfried is an experienced gatherer and has prepared complete wild food dinners. She described a few possible delights of a May buffet.

"We can start out with a few hors d'oeuvres by mincing oxalis, sheep sorrel and pepper grass and putting it on crackers or tortilla chips with cream cheese. The pepper grass is radishly flavored and has a tangy little 'bite.' You just strip the little seeds off. They are about the size of sesame seeds. Mixed with the lemony oxalis and the sourness of the sheep sorrel, it makes a nice hors d'oeuvre. You can put a little violet leaf, rolled up like a cornucopia and stuffed with cream cheese, on top.

"Sheep sorrel for soup is plentiful right now. You can have a tossed salad with a mixture of chopped greens, a little wild garlic (what we usually call lawn onions and used very sparingly) and toss in a few violets. Use a light oil and vinegar dressing if any at all.

"Lush chickweed, mixed with a few other greens, is delicious in quiche."

She added that for a beverage, pour boiling water over white pine needles that have been cut into one-inch pieces to make white pine tea. Let it steep for a little while and serve it iced or hot with lemon and sugar. "In a couple of weeks," Nancy suggested, "the new needles will be coming out and they will have a much more lemony taste and a lot less turpentiney taste." Buds from the pineapple weed make a nice fruity iced tea and black birch can also be brewed.

"For dessert, have something like vanilla ice cream with violet syrup poured on top. The violets are just beautiful right now. You can take candied violets and put them around the

Myers: Cool egg creams and warm greetings

by Nancy Turner

The Myers family behind the counter of their pharmacy.

By the time the plate glass doors of Myers Family Pharmacy swing open for business at 9 a.m., the alluring aroma of freshly brewed coffee is already escaping the soda fountain and drifting through the store's neatly arranged isles of greeting cards and collectables.

Within the hour, Joe Godowsky's spatula will be clanging on the hot grill, sizzling with eggs and bacon, as a handful of neighbors light atop familiar round counter stools for $3.15 breakfasts or just to clutch a cup and listen as the 69-year-old cook, an ex-jitney driver from Atlantic City, tells about his years of working on the Steel Pier.

Although they have long since traded their blue suede shoes for Rockports, regular customers of Joe's Only Place, the only operating soda fountain in the area, say that "hanging out" at the corner drug store has never been better.

On Saturdays, the sun may be shining and the grass may be growing "too high, Honey," but on Polly Drummond Hills, life has its priorities. Saturday morning is a time for nurturing vital community relationships through stimulating conversation. It is a time when great minds frequently feel themselves called upon to analyze and explore the delicate balance of world peace, baseball umpires, political candidates and tax cuts.

According to Joe, if you sit toward the back of the counter, near his Hollywood collection of glossies that includes an autographed photograph of Frank Sinatra, "you can hear talk about everything, you ever will nor will not, want to know."

"We solve all the problems of the world and every sporting event right here at this counter," he confirms.

Along with making conversation, Joe can whip up a chocolate egg cream, Jerry Lewis style. His wife, Sarah, and Aggie Shaw lend a hand at the fountain and have the reputation of making some of the best chicken salad sandwiches in town.

Delaware natives Ron and Janet Myers have owned the Polly Drummond drug store for five years. The couple graduated from Dickinson High School in 1961 and have lived in the area all their lives.

"We have tried to keep our pharmacy family oriented," said Ron. "The soda fountain is an integral part of that. People come in Myers Family Pharmacy offers postal services including a 100 official post office boxes, a large selection of gifts, cosmetics, toiletries, housewares and reliable prescription service.

The Myers children, Rhonda and Ron Jr., are among the store's one full-time and 11 part-time employees.

"It is a team effort," said Ron, who began his career at age 15 as a delivery boy at the old Parkland Elsmere Pharmacy.

"We independents are almost a lost breed," he said, "but if you do things right, you can make out fine against the chains."

"We offer services that most chain pharmacies just don't offer. We can get to know our customers on a personal basis and establish a real rapport with them and this is very important. Customers don't call me 'the Myers Family Pharmacy is open from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturdays; and 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Sundays. And as always, the conversation is friendly and the coffee is hot.

Newark will host FinnFest USA '88

Folk dancing, seminars, native food, traditional music and an original play will headline FinnFest USA 1988, a national celebration of Finnish-American culture to be held July 8-10 here in Newark.

FinnFest USA is an annual heritage convention held in various locations around the country, according to Silvia Tammisio Zsoldas of Newark, president of the FinnFest organizing committee.

Newark is hosting this year's FinnFest in honor of the 350th anniversary of Finnish settlement in the Delaware Valley.

Ethnic Finns, who in 1638 were under Swedish rule, made up a large part of the New Sweden colony on the Delaware River.

On hand for FinnFest will be Matti Ahde, speaker of the Finnish Parliament, and delegations of Finnish, Swedish and American dignitaries.

Activities will commence Friday, July 8 on the University of Delaware campus with the opening of the Marketplace (TORI), which forms the heart of activity and will feature Finnish and local arts and crafts.

The Marketplace will be in Pencader Hall on north campus. It will be open noon to 9 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Also Friday, there will be a "Delmarvelous" chicken barbecue at 3 p.m. in Delaware

Stadium, opening ceremonies at 5:30 p.m. in the stadium, and varied musical and folk dance programs at 8:15 p.m.

The formal opening ceremonies will feature speakers and entertainment, including folk dancers from Finland. The evening program will feature the prestigious Sibelius Academy String Quartet.

Saturday, mini-tours and programs will begin at 8 a.m. A Friendship Celebration will be held at 3 p.m. at Delaware Stadium, and will feature folk dancers, choral music, Finnish gymnasts and the U.S. Naval Academy Band. There will be greetings by Ahde and Paavo Rantanen, Finnish ambassador to the United States.

At 8 p.m., there will be a banquet, a smorgasbord and programs. The banquet will be held in Clayton Hall and will feature music by the Walter Erickson Orchestra. The smorgasbord will be held in Pencader Hall and will feature music by the Karelia Band.

Sunday will open with a Lutheran church service in the Finnish language at First Presbyterian Church on West Main Street. The service will be conducted by the Bishop of the Lutheran Church of Finland.

A musical drama will be staged at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., with a concert of choruses at 1:30 and 3 p.m.

Closing ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m. at Delaware Stadium.

top of a cake for decoration instead of frosting flowers. You can use small pansies like this, too, because they are all part of the same family."

Traditionally, wild foods are prepared as mixed boiled greens or in soups (wild mustard, dock, plantain, lamb's quarter); in wines (wild cherries, elderberries, dandelions); in jellies, preserves, and pies (paw paws, May apple fruit, blackberries, strawberries, persimmons, violets, roses); and in salads (purslane, chickweed, watercress, dandelions, wild garlic, violets, roses).

If you live on a pond, cattails are fondly called the "Supermarkets of the Swamp" by some experts. Every part of a cattail can be used, from its pollen for bread baking to its nutritious root starch.

Pokeweed, probably the most widely recognized wild plant food, was once actually cultivated. Like sassafras, it has been used for years; but according to Dr. Norman Dill, a professor of Agriculture and Natural Resources at Delaware State College, both have been found to contain naturally occurring carcinogens.

"Poke has been found to reawaken quiescent white blood cells in some people, producing a leukemic-like effect," said Dill. "You can get it from just touching it. Interestingly, most people are not affected by it, but it is something I don't eat anymore."

Although grazing on wild foods is free, be careful never to eat any part of a plant unless you know it is edible. It can be poisonous. Wild parsley, Queen Anne's lace and hemlock are all in the same family and look very similar when they are young. The latter will do the same thing for a 20th century Delawarean as it did for that wise old 4th century Greek, Socrates.

Never eat any wild foods from lawns that have been chemically treated with herbicides or pesticides or that grow directly alongside roadways. Chemical contamination can occur in streams and seemingly untouched woodlands that may have been sprayed for gypsy moths. Know the history of the soil where you choose to gather wild foods.

Dill says "the ultimate revenge on your garden weeds is eating them." He has boiled the carrot-tasting roots of Queen Anne's lace, enjoyed plantain that tasted a lot like spinach, and eaten rose petals and elderflowers in sweet fritters, and the tasty list goes on.

For more information on wild foods, visit Ashland Nature Center on Barley Mill Road or Newark Free Library and begin learning about the very old art of gathering. There is a whole new world just waiting to be explored in your own backyard.

Forget those herbicides and tell the lawn physicians to take a powder and start grazing. As for those gasoline powered weed eaters, who needs the competition? Bon appetit!

THE ARTS

Goodier work depicts landing of the Swedes

There was so much excitement and so much hype over the celebration of the 350th anniversary of the founding of my home town, Wilmington, that I held back this very meaningful part of the celebration so it wouldn't get lost. It is a part which will live on after dinners, re-enactments and parades. It is art.

In December of 1985 and January of 1986 I wrote a series of five columns about the five oil paintings donated to all the citizens of Delaware by Bank of Delaware. The pictures were researched for over two years to insure accuracy by John Goodier, public relations director for the bank, and painted by his brother, Robert Goodier. The five paintings depicted important events in the history of our state.

Today my column is about the latest in this series of historical masterpieces, "Swedish Settlers Arrival in

Setting out to paint the arrival of the Swedes at the Blue Rocks sounds like a relatively simple task. It was not! The first thing researcher John Goodier faced was that there were no drawings or blueprints of the ships "Kalmar Nyckel" or "Fogel Grip." The quest for such a representation led John on an 18 month quest through museums, shipbuilder's files, registry offices and insurance firms on both sides of the Atlantic. You may see the results for yourself at 300 Delaware Avenue in Wilmington. Believe me, it is worth

"Swedish Settlers Arrival in 1638" is the title of the Robert Goodier work at left. Above, the artist works on the large, detailed oil painting, which is part of a series on the history of Delaware commissioned by the Bank of Delaware.

John explained that no definitive information existed about either of the two ships, "But from documented information in contemporary sources it has been possible to arrive at a reliable concept of the appearance of the 'Kalmar Nyckel.'"

I said that I understood about the design of the ship, but what about the colors the artist used on the ship? John's response: "The color schemes are based upon common concepts plus information available on practices of the time. For instance, the wavy, white waterline was placed on some naval vessels to give illusion of speed." It was obvious the researcher had done his homework — and then some.

There were some other problems with the model to be used by Robert Goodier to paint the "Fogel Grip." Available information was conflicting. "I got on to the answer when I read a book which called the ship a 'jacht.' The word 'jacht' originally had nothing to do with pleasure sailing but meant 'swift craft' or 'hunter.' Based on this information, 'Fogel Grip' has been painted similar to a small Dutch pinnace."

I was fortunate enough to attend the reception offering the painting to the people of Delaware. Jeremiah P. Shea, CEO of Bank of Delaware, praised the work of both men and restated the bank's strong position on making the history of this state more meaningful and accessible to all its citizens. I am very happy we have such a financial organization in this state. All of us who enjoy art and learning about our state should be as well.

A beautiful booklet with a superb full color reproduction of "Swedish Settlers Arrival in 1638" is available to you after you visit the bank to see the painting. It is something to save for your children and grandchildren.

A Tip of The Toman Topper and a profound "Thank you" to researcher John Goodier, painter Robert Goodier and to Jeremiah P. Shea for making such resources available to all of us.

Crazy Planet Band to make Balloon debut

Newark's Crazy Planet Band will make its inaugural appearance at the Stone Balloon, Main Street, on Tuesday, May 24.

The concert, which will begin at 9:30 p.m., comes in the midst of the band's work on a forthcoming album, "Ride the Wind," which is being recorded at Roger Hoilman's Sound Lab Studios here.

Crazy Planet performs original rock, folk and blues numbers, many written by band leader Vic Sadot. Among the songs are the locally derived "White Clay Creek" and "The Fog Watch on Limestone Road." The group was formed as a folk band called C.P. Swampgrass and featured Joe Sadot on banjo. Unfortunately, an aneurysm took Joe's life and the group disbanded.

It later regrouped as Crazy Planet with Rob Sadot on lead guitar and Vic Sadot on vocals and rhythm guitar.

Through the years, the band has maintained its folk roots, offering social commentary through such songs as "Volcano," about apartheid, and "Better Bible," about television evangelists.

But it has also moved into the blues and rock fields with songs such as "Beer Muscles" and "Billboard Bandit."

In 1985, Crazy Planet put out a 45 rpm recording of "Good Time Delaware" and "Born to Win," which aired on a Baltimore rock station, WSTW-FM in Wilmington and WXDR-FM in Newark.

Recently, its "Comeback Kids," a lively rock and roll number about teamwork and perseverance, has attracted the attention of the Baltimore Orioles staff.

The band's current line up, now working in the Sound Lab Studios, also includes Rob "Dashboard" Chirnside on drums, Tris Hovanec on bass, and Ed Gorski on keyboard and accordion. Julius Gordon performs often on songs in which mandolin is required.

In the studio, the Crazy Planet band members have been joined by Hank Carter, saxophonist with George Thorogood and the Delaware Destroyers, and ace fiddler Roberta Greenspan.

Work on the album is being funded by band supporters, 200 of whom have put up money in advance of the completed recording.

CHURCHES

Christiana Presbyterian marks 250th

In an era of change, the village of Christiana has had one constant — the Christiana Presbyterian Church.

The earliest record of the church is a surveyor's drawing dated 1738 and showing a small frame structure labeled "the church at Christiana bridge."

Today, 250 years later, in more permanent quarters, the church remains on that very same property.

To celebrate its 250th anniversary, Christiana Presbyterian Church has planned a series of special events which will continue through late fall.

A 250th anniversary party and picnic will be held on the church grounds immediately following the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday, June 5.

There will be food, fun, fellowship and entertainment, including a magic show. Many church members will be wearing Christiana 250th anniversary t-shirts to emphasize the festive nature of the event.

An anniversary banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 8 in the Delcastle Inn on McKennan's Church Road, near Wilmington. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Joan Salmon-Campbell, nationally-known Presbyterian minister and runner-up in balloting for moderator of the 1988 General Assembly.

The following day, at 11 a.m., the church will host a homecoming service. Salmon-Campbell will bring the message, and a luncheon in Hall Memorial Building will follow the service.

Another special worship service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, Nov. 20, and the congregation is encouraged to attend in colonial dress.

According to Joan K. Robinson, chairman of the 250th Anniversary Committee, a number of ongoing projects are also in the works.

Artist Harrison Von Duyke has been commissioned to create a new sketch of the church to be issued as a note card and as a print suitable for framing.

Also, an anniversary quilt is being created by the women of the church, a pictorial directory of church members is being compiled, and a time capsule is being prepared.

For Christmas, special cards featuring a photograph of the church sanctuary decorated for the holidays will be prepared.

Peninsula Conference session to be held May 23-26 in Dover

The 49th session of the United Methodist Church's Peninsula Annual Conference will be held May 23-26 in Dover.

Theme of the session is "Praying Mightily, Testifying Openly," a passage from the diary of John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

It was 250 years ago that Wesley had a "heart warming" experience on Aldersgate Street in London, England in 1738. Through that experience, he came to understand forgiveness and grace in a more personal way and launched the "methodist" movement which eventually became a denomination.

Methodism took an early and strong hold on the Delmarva Peninsula.

Churches throughout the region will celebrate "Aldersgate" simultaneously during worship services Sunday, May 22. They will then begin a 24-hour prayer vigil in support of the conference.

The annual meeting of Peninsula Methodists will draw lay and clergy members from nearly every community in Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore.

They will set budget and program goals for 1989 and consider legislation and resolutions for action in the coming year.

This year's session will meet for four days instead of the usual three. A church spokesman said the additional day is planned to provide a more relaxed schedule to allow for both adequate consideration of legislation and special presentations and worship.

A unique feature of the session will be inter-racial workshops in which every member will participate. The workshops are designed to heighten sensitivity to inclusiveness.
