Shaded campus where slender trees are standing, Feathered green branches held high to the sun. Memories of you will be commanding Love from our hearts when our days here are done. In sun-lit peace have our life-paths begun.

Though the years sweep on, scattering the classes
Out in a world where the struggle is new,
Still our thoughts will turn as each year passes
Back to the peaceful years too soon lived through—
Back, Delaware, to the years spent with you.
