THREE FRATERNITIES HAVE HOUSE PARTIES ON LAST WEEK-END

Williams Squad Guests

After the cantata at Wolf Hall on last Saturday, the Kappa Alpha, the Sigma Nu, and the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternities held house parties at their respective homes. Each fraternity had as its guests some of the men who came here with the Williams College baseball team for Spring practice.

At the Kappa Alpha party, music was furnished by Ted Weem's Orchestra, of the Café L'Aiglon in Philadelphia. June McWhorter was the conductor. About ten of the Williams men were guests. They all expressed their appreciation of the party. After the dancing, refreshments, or more properly midnight sandwiches, were served. Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Lank, and Mrs. McCue were the patronesses.

Johnny Ash's orchestra, the collegiate merry makers of the University, furnished the music for the Sigma Nu house party. The dancing started at nine-thirty, and after continuing for two hours stopped so that refreshments, comprising ice cream and cake, could be served. The patronesses were Mrs. Williams and Miss Drake, of the Women's College.

College Students Confer In Behalf of Law Enforcement

"If Congress should pass legislation to allow light wines and beer, the Supreme Court of the United States would prohibit their sale as being in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment," said Congressman M. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania at the banquet of the College and University Students Conference in behalf of Observance of Law and Citizenship.

Other statements were: "If beer and wine are recognized the saloon will return." "The indifferent citizen lines up with the rum regiment."

"Public sentiment in behalf of observance of prohibition laws is sweeping in and will see that the prohibition laws are honestly enforced and drag out of office every man who defies

Review Board Will Hold Elections Of New Staff Monday

A meeting of the entire Review Board will be held Monday afternoon, April 14, at 5 o'clock, in Room 6, Science Hall at the Women's College for the purpose of electing the officers who are to carry on the publication of the paper next year.

This is the last issue of the Review under the present Board. It is also the last issue until after the spring vacation, when the new Board will put out their first edition on May 2.

PHI KAPPA PHI HOLDS INITIATION RITES IN RECITATION HALL

Seven Women Initiated

Initiation of seven women into Phi Kappa Phi took place last night when the society held a meeting in Recitation Hall. Dr. Crooks extended a welcome to the members and spoke of the intellectual achievements of women being equal to those of men. He illustrated his points by several very humorous and entertaining pleasantries. He showed that while two colleges meant two chapters, the University meant one chapter.

Dean Robinson expressed her appreciation of the recognition of the Women's College as members of this honorary fraternity. Miss Francis Worthington gave a short talk in which she expressed what Phi Kappa Phi meant to the Women's College under graduate. John Schaefer gave a similar talk from the point of view of the Delaware College man. He showed how the organization boosts scholarship.

The initiation was followed by a dinner in Old College which was attended by thirty people. Those who were initiated were: Dean Winifred Robinson, Miss Quaesita Drake, Miss Frances Worthington, Miss Louise Beck, Miss Louise Jackson, Miss Emily Roe, and Miss Hazel Collins.

Miss Lucile Petry, who is at the present time studying at Johns Hopkins University, will be initiated in the near future.

REGIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE I. N. A. HELD HAVERFORD APR. 5

Eight Colleges Represented

The Haverford News board was the host to a gathering of more than eighty representatives from eight college newspapers, at a regional conference of the Intercollegiate Newspaper Association of the Middle Atlantic States on Saturday, April 5. The member papers of the association which were represented are The Swarthmore Phoenix, The Ursinus Weekly, The Haverford News, and The University of Delaware Review. Bryn Mawr, Drexel, Temple, and Villa Nova were also represented at the conference.

The conference was started at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The delegates were welcomed to the college by Mr. W. R. Sassaman, editor of the Haverford News. The conference then divided and the editorial board delegates met in the Reading Room of the Union, and the business board delegates in the Council Room of the Union. Both conferences were held in round-table discussion manner, and thus allowed the delegates to get the most out of the limited time which they spent together.

Mr. Douglas Haskell, Editor of the New Student, was a guest of honor at the afternoon conference of the editorial dele-

DELAWARE-WILLIAMS PRACTICE GAME ON SATURDAY ENDS IN TIE

Final Score 10-10

Delaware pried the lid off of spring base ball last Saturday by taking on the Williams nine in a friendly practice tilt, which, after the dust had settled, revealed that the teams were about on a par, the score being a ten-spot each. Both teams pounded the ball heavily, although the fielding was loose and very ragged in spots. The pitchers, of which there were plenty, did not display any very great qualities as moundmen, but it is hoped that as the season progresses, the pitchers will also.

There was really nothing spectacular in any part of the game with the possible exception of Finchke's unassisted double play in the ninth inning which saved Williams from defeat.

Williams got in a very meager bit of training while at Delaware on account of the poor weather which rendered the field useless for the majority of their

FACULTY CLUB HEARS DR. FOSTER LECTURE ON GAME OF CHESS

Pass Important Measures

At the regular monthly meeting of the University Faculty Club, held in the club rooms in Old College on the evening of April 7, Dr. F. M. K. Foster gave a very interesting and novel address on the game of chess. Dr. Foster explained the fine points of the game and actually played out for the assembly several of the famous chess games that have been played by National champions and professionals.

The faculty approved a petition from the military department to suspend classes on Thursday afternoon, May 8, in order that general preparation for the War Board inspection might be given to the students at that time. The faculty was also in favor of holding the inspection by the War Board Officers on Friday Morning, May 9—Battalion Review and Inspection, Close order drills and special drills to be held on Frazer Field; and on Saturday morning, May 10—Field maneuver in the vicinity of the Newark Country Club. It was deemed advisable to have the inspection on the mornings of May 9 and 10 because of the baseball game with Carnegie Tech. on the afternoon of the 9th, and the Interscholastics on May 10th. The drill periods for Thursday

"THE PLASTIC AGE" AFFORDS DISCUSSION AT CHI RHO MEETING

Dr. Sypherd Lectures

Thursday evening, April 3, the Chi Rho Round Table continued the discussion of Percy Mark's novel, "The Plastic Age." Dr. Sypherd was the speaker of the evening. Much comment has been made concerning this new novel, which is an attempt to depict the moral condition of the College Man of today. Whether or not it is an accurate picture, is the question. Dr. Sypherd, in criticizing "The Plastic Age," at once assumed a hostile attitude. It is the general belief that Mr. Marks—who, by the way, is a Professor of English at Brown University—has not only failed to portray the moral status of the average College Man of today consistently, but also has failed to achieve the obvious purpose of his composition, the presentation of "Le Beau Ideal," or a better moral standard of College Life. At times, it is true, the author seems to strive toward this end, but nowhere does he bring out a comparison between existing condition and the ideal condition, which is certainly essential to the success of the book.

In reading "The Plastic Age," one must not base his judgment on the interest he has in the subject matter, but rather from

Sconset Summer School Offers An Educational Vacation For Students

In a little fishing village on Nantucket Island a real adventure in education is going on. This is the Sconset Summer School. For the last two years a group of students have been meeting at Siasconset, Massachusetts, for informal discussion and play. Professors from the eastern colleges, scientists from Woods' Hole, editors of New York papers, writers, actors, publicists, physicians, have given talks on the things they were most interested in to upwards of three hundred people. Seated in a gayly painted chair, in a large raftered room with windows open on four sides to moors and sea, there is no manner of person who does not find ideas alive, diverting. The particular purpose of the School is to bring young people together

Most Popular Faculty Member Contest Closes Tomorrow At Noon

You are anxious for your favorite professor to win the Most Popular Faculty Member Contest. He or she, as the case may be, needs your vote. That vote will have to be cast by noon tomorrow, for the ballots will be collected at that time, and the editors will start to count the votes which will unfold the mystery at stake.

The results of the contest will be published in the next edition of the Review which will be on May 2.

AVE ATQUE VALE

This is the last edition of the Review under the present board. Before laying down our pens and closing our accounts, we want to take the opportunity to express a few words of indebtedness to our many friends, and to wish the new board as pleasant a term as we have enjoyed.

At the beginning of the year the Review became a true University publication by the incorporation of the Women's College Blue Kettle and the Delaware College Review. The results have been satisfactory to all those concerned. Cooperation has been met with at both colleges, so that the publication of the paper has progressed uninterruptedly, and has achieved the expectations of the editors.

The Review is indebted to many friends for aid and advice during the past year. Many members of the faculty have given us valuable aid. The suggestions of several students have been incorporated in the paper. Our publishers, Kells, have given us the best in workmanship, and it has not only been a satisfaction, but also a pleasure to work with the "kids at Kells."

The new board will publish the next edition. We are happy to say that many of the present members will serve on that board. They will inherit a true University publication, and we feel sure that they will do all that is in their power to keep the "University Spirit" flaming at Delaware. The present board has petitioned the faculty for compulsory student subscription, and scholastic remuneration for members of the board. We trust that the incoming editors will see these petitions carried through, for the passing of them both will mark considerable progress in the publication of the paper.

Tillotson has said, "There is little pleasure in the world that is true and sincere besides the pleasure of doing our duty and doing good." It has been a pleasure for the editors to execute the duties that the Review brought upon them this year. To the best of our ability, we have tried to do good, but our readers and friends must be the judges of whatever good we have done.

We now close our accounts and lay aside our pens. Ave atque vale—hail and farewell.

I am a great believer in getting acquainted—in knowing people. Were we all acquainted, many mean things we do, and say, and think, we would never do or say or think.—Henry H. Doherty.

Local Artists Will

Exhibit Painting At Wilmington Library

An exhibition of Paintings, including work by representative American artists, as well as that done by local artists, is being held in the New Library Building in Wilmington from April 1st to 21st, under the auspices of the Wilmington Society of the Fine Arts. There are a number of pictures in this collection which have been shown in New York and Philadelphia and whose worth have received widespread recognition in national art circles. "The Blue Pool" by Gifford Beal, awarded the National Arts Club $1000 prize and gold medal in January, 1918, and "American Motherhood" by Charles W. Hawthorne are among some of those pictures being shown which are well known.

This exhibition is also of much interest to Delawareans because of the work of many local artists whose pictures are being exhibited. Delawareans may well be proud of the school of artists which grew up under Howard Pyle in Wilmington, who have made many noteworthy contributions to the art world, and of the colony of artists which is still doing active work there.

The class in Drawing and Painting at the Women's College, under the direction of Miss Taylor, visited this exhibition in Wilmington this afternoon. As this exhibition is open every afternoon from 1.30 p. m. to 5.00 p. m. until April 21st, it affords an excellent opportunity for other members of the University to view one of the best exhibitions which has even been shown in Wilmington.

History Pageant

In the Hilarium

Friday, May 2

On May 2, in the Hilarium, the members of the American and European history courses are giving a history pageant. A varied and interesting program has been provided. Members of the course will give certain historical representatives of Revolutionary and Civil War incidents. Also, other members will represent famous European personages, and will give the dances of the time. The idea of the pageant is to create an interest in history as a vital and living subject.

"The Rise of the Swamp Angel"

(Second Installment)

After meeting this mysterious, fascinating man of the world, Bull Montana, Consuela's life became a whirl of gayety and "cois." Verily she had sunk low. Often would she remember that night she first imbibed.

It was the night of the Junior Prom. Softy the music rose and fell (especially fell) blaaah-zoom, rattle, bang. She breathed in an ecstasy of bliss. How well Bull danced! How masterfully would he take her in his arms and swing into the rhythm of the music. Gracefully would he pick his feet up and place them on hers. Then a novice, she found it difficult to follow him in these intricate steps; but now it was simple, when he stepped she merely jumped, leaving him all the space. Thus around the room they glided; many times, being trampled under foot, many times, trampling others.

It was during the intermission she learned to drink "cocs." At first all that was Puritan in her rebelled.

"No, No," she cried, "I cannot."

"What? Why it won't hurt you," every one smiled.

What could she do? Every one urging, nay, forcing her. She seized a glass, and drank a whole coca cola. Her throat tingled and smarted, she choked; after the first step, the rest was easy, before intermission was over she had drank six "cocs." Never again could she feel the same (one couldn't.)

IV

Before she realized it, mid-years was here. What could she do? What dare she do? Was there any way of saving herself? She rushed to Woolworth's Drug Store.

"Gimme a coc," she gasped.

As she drank, she thought—the first time since coming to college.

Don't fail to read the last installment of this novel. What would you do if you were in Consuela's shoes? See how Ima Dumbell solves her heroine's problem.

EXHIBITION OF WOOD BLOCK PRINTS AT THE W. C. THIS WEEK-END

Typical of American Art

A collection of Wood Block Prints by American Wood Block Printers, which is being circulated by the American Federation of Arts is being shown at the Women's College. The following quotation, taken from the American Magazine of Arts for December, 1923, tells several things of interest in regard to this exhibition:

"The Wood Block Prints by American Wood Block Printers make a colorful and interesting collection. By some critics the wood block print is considered the most typically American form of artistic expression; without doubt very effective and interesting work is being done in this medium. The artists represented in the exhibition have chosen their subjects from familiar surroundings, and there are prints of far western scenery and of the extreme south as well as of the east and north. Among these, most interesting are picturesque street scenes in New Mexico, colorful California landscapes, views of the southland, interpretations of the cherry blossoms at Washington, the Hudson Palisades and snow-capped Mount Painter to name only a few."

Modern block printing is of particular interest because it is the direct descendant of the earliest forms of book illustration. At present there is a "reasonably large and steadily increasing group of 'printers' at work in this country, making lovely things both in color and black and white, seeking new methods, and attempting new problems."

The Women's College is fortunate in having such a beautiful collection of these modern wood block prints. Each print is hand done by the artist. These prints are for sale and may be procured through the Art Department.

that sentiment whether he be President, Congressman or judge."

"Public sentiment will be more terrible than fine or imprisonment. We can have enforcement without good enforcement agents, or judges, or lawyers, but not without good citizens." In his address, he said:

"Five years ago our fight was for a great moral principle. Today it is for the grandest political principle in the world. Then we knew that a sober America would be a priceless boon to the nation. Today we know that the laws enacted must be enforced or we shall have no nation."

"The American people called the liquor traffic to the bar of public opinion and calmly and deliberately decreed its destruction. It was ordered destroyed because of its crimes of blood and brutality, its maimings and its murders; its suicides and sepulchers, its pains and poverty; its disease and degeneracy; its insanity and imbecility; its wrecked homes and broken hearts and ruined lives."

"By every possible standard of judgment the Prohibition Amendment and the laws carrying it into effect are sacred enactments of the American people. They are the law of the land written by greater majorities than any other law in American history."

Harnessing Niagara Falls for the First Time

What Engineering Owes to Faith

THE pioneer harnessing of Niagara Falls in 1892, like all great engineering feats, was the result of the co-operation of many able and constructive minds. There were no "older engineers" on this work, with younger assistants, as is now common, because there were no "older" engineers then. All of them were young men in a young business, optimistic, enthusiastic and willing to take long chances.

The original Niagara installation represented progress based largely on faith because there were many features of construction proposed at that time which Westinghouse Engineers refused to accept, and which time has shown to be utterly impracticable.

Thus, in effecting a compromise, the three fundamental features of heating, insulation and regulation of the 25-cycle machines as built, were vastly different from the original designs. Time verified their judgment, the ten original generators operating successfully for more than a quarter of a century.

Looking back, it is gratifying that those young men served engineering so courageously, because truly it was an undertaking that taxed their faith to the limit.

from the various colleges, much as students in Europe are drawn from one university to another, to discuss the events of the world with actors in them.

The School this year has been expanded to cover ten weeks, from July 13 to September 21, and is divided into four periods: July 13 to August 1, Science, Philosophy, and the New Psychology; August 1 to 15, Literature, Drama, and the Fine Arts; August 15 to 31, History, Politics, Economics, and International Relations; September 1 to 21, the School of Opinion. Among speakers to be present are: Alexander Meiklejohn, Otto Glaser, L. Pierce Clark, Elton Mayo, Sinclair Lewis, Fannie Hurst, Heywood Brown, Carl Van Doren, Hendrick Van Loon, Gutzon Borglum, Stephen Duggan, Herbert Adams Gibbon, Carlton Hayes.

During the period devoted to psychology vocational psychologists will be on hand. They will talk to college students individually about their aptitudes for the professions. Talks in the evenings will cover wide ground in music, drama, the novel, politics. Speakers will discuss with one another. They will show what good their special knowledge is to people in general. They will give meaning to education.

The 'Sconset Summer School is a play school. Swimming, dancing, tennis, golf, horseback riding, fill the fresh, sparkling days. Nantucket is one of the few places in the world where you can have warm weather without being hot. People wear sports clothes. The life of the School goes on in tramps, beach picnics, fireside gatherings. The home of the School is in the Tavern-on-the-Moors and cottages, where speakers and students live intimately together.
