"City Slickers" Complete Entertainment Schemes

Plans have been formulated for the "City Slickers" dance in Wilmington in the Hotel DuPont following the Dickinson-Delaware game on November the twenty-second. This affair promises to be a pleasant climax to the many activities which comprise a Delaware-Dickinson Day.

Students Haze K. K. K.

"The Ku Klux Klan, after a mammoth 'pep' meeting on the outskirts of Princeton, decided to invade the university village in a search for recruits," says the Daily Princetonian.

"Undergraduates poured into the street at the first sign of the hooded order. A long line of cars carrying Kings, Kleagles and Knights found the going rough." Blocked by some 800 students car upon car tooted vainly in an effort to pierce the stalwart defense of undergraduates, who divested some of their robes, barred others from advancing, and caused such a hubbub that the Princeton police force was summoned to the aid of the Invisible Empire."

A College Choir

When Beethoven's Ninth Symphony is presented in Los Angeles next April a choir composed of the hundred and fifty best voices in the Southern Branch of the University of California will accompany the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. Students selected to participate will be coached continually during the next seven months.

Foster Honored

Dr. F. M. K. Foster has been appointed as chairman of the Victorian Literature Group for the annual meeting of the Modern Language Association of America. This meeting will be held at Columbia University on December 29, 30, 31.

Major Ardrey To Inspect Battalion on Nov. 20, 21, 22

Major Ardrey, who is in charge of the Second Corps Area R. O. T. C., will visit the University on November 20, 21 and 22. At the regular drill hour on Thursday, Major Ardrey will inspect the battalion and equipment, and on Thursday and Friday will visit the Military classes. This inspection will be the first of the two inspections to decide whether our battalion is worthy of inspection for Distin-

Pan Hellenic Dance Is Decided Success

Delaware's first Pan Hellenic Dance has undoubtedly gone down in the University's social history as one of the best informal college dances ever held in Newark.

A remarkable spirit of good-fellowship prevailed throughout and the fact that the Armory was filled to its capacity was hardly noticeable.

The decorations were simple but effective; each fraternity being represented by its banner and shield. The lights were very dim, but it is explainable in that the decorators were working for atmosphere.

Shorter furnished most delightful music, which made Sunday come several hours too soon.

The patronesses were Mrs. Walter Hullihen, Mrs. G. E. Dutton, Mrs. Charles A. McCue, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Mrs. F. M. K. Foster, Mrs. Carl S. Rankin, Mrs. Thomas F. Manns, Mrs. Clinton O. Houghton, Mrs. Charles C. Palmer.

Old Library Building Is To Be Torn Down Soon

As soon as the old Library can be evacuated, it is to be removed forever from our campus.

The ground upon which it stands is to be cleared off and graded to correspond with that portion of the campus adjoining it. The sidewalk going down to Delaware Avenue is to be widened to correspond with that along the lower portion of Depot Road.

The bricks in the old building are to be used in some construction work to be started soon, but as yet the definite building plans have not been made public.

The old Library is one building that is as ugly as it has been useful, and its removal should greatly beautify the college grounds.

Silver Placard For Delaware Rifle Team

Delaware has received recently from the War Department another trophy of which the men's college should be especially proud.

A military placard of silver mounted on walnut is the recognition given our rifle team for the excellent work that it did in winning the Inter-Collegiate Rifle Championship Match that was held at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., last summer.

The names of the men on the Delaware team, Skewis, Donaldson, Jackson, Shuster, Lowber, and Rinard are to be engraved upon the tablet.

The standing of the colleges that participated and their respective scores are as follows: Delaware, 1050; Rutgers, 1046;

"WHAT IS A GOOD SPORT?" DISCUSSED

Campus Relationships

The Y. W. C. A. has chosen "Campus Relationships" as the subject next to be taken up at Vesper Services. Last Sunday evening Professor E. C. Van Keuren was the first speaker of this series. His talk was on "Relationships between Men and Women." He gave a broad and general introduction to this question, stressing the responsibility placed upon college men and women for making these relationships ideal.

As the strength of a Student Government Association is dependent upon the character and responsibility of its students, so is the strength and moral welfare of a nation dependent upon the character of its rank and file of people.

As an introduction to this great question and in order to set the students thinking about the matter, several questions were printed and posted on the bulletin board:

"What kind of a girl do you admire?"

"What kind of a man do you admire?"

"What constitutes normal relationships between college men and women?"

"What is your interpretation of a good sport?"

"Shall we as college women tolerate a double standard?"

The general subject of campus relationships will be continued at the Y. W. C. A. Vesper Service next Sunday evening.

Louise Marvel Editor Of Next "Blue and Gold"

At a joint class meeting of the Sophomores and Juniors of the Women's College plans were discussed for the year-book of 1926. Also during the course of the meeting elections were held for the offices of Editor-in-Chief and the two Class Editors, as well as the Business Manager. As a result of the election, Louise

Mrs. W. S. Brown Speaks On The Electoral College

Forum was held this week on Thursday instead of Wednesday so that Mrs. Walter Stewart Brown of Wilmington might speak. She represented the National League of Women Voters, and explained the provisions made by the Constitution in case the president should not be elected by the Electoral College. The discussion was informal and Mrs. Brown asked several questions about what she had just explained.

Mrs. A. D. Warner, Sr., secured the speaker and also introduced her.

Virginia Chipman was hostess and Louise Harris and Beulah Thompson served tea and cakes.

English Department Explains English 51

There have been a great many questions and many misunderstandings in regards to E 51, and the English Department has volunteered the following information about the purposes of the course:

"First, the English Department wishes to utilize presentation as a means for the study of drama, a method of study which has been in use since the middle ages. In past years this pur-

Footlights Club Is An Active Organization

At a recent meeting of the Footlights Club a new Constitution was drawn up and accepted.

The Club has definitely decided upon the new charm designed by Taylor, one of the members. Orders for the charms have been given to the Hoover-Smith Company, and it is expected that the charms will be on hand shortly. The introduction of this novelty will undoubtedly serve to unify the organization, its membership, and its privileges.

Members were recently given reduced rates on tickets to see Karl Norman at the Playhouse in "That's My Boy." A letter of appreciation was sent to Miss Kein, who made the reduced rates possible.

The Leahy-Grant play, "Who's Who," has been accepted and will be given as the Club's first performance for the season.

First practice was held on Friday afternoon. The play will require typists, stage hands, prop-

Prospects For Tennis Seem Bright This Year

The Varsity Tennis Team, under the able leadership of Captain Malloy, has good prospects of "burying the hoodoo" this year, which, for the last four years has haunted the University of Delaware's Tennis Courts.

Of the thirty candidates who tried out for the Team, the following men showed a superior skill in wielding the racket, and, consequently, compose the Varsity Tennis Team: Malloy (Captain), Jones, Turner, Meredith, and Creamer. This is a team to be respected. The real test of their ability will certainly be shown in the matches with Catholic University, Swarthmore, Haverford, George Washington, and Drexel, which have precedence over the less important matches.

Mr. C. B. Hurff Addresses Engineering Society

The regular meeting of the A. E. E. was held Thursday evening, November 6. In connection with the regular business, a discussion was held in regards to forming an Engineering Society for the University. At present the local Chapter is a member of the National A. E. E. Society. The question discussed was, "Whether to drop out of the National Organization and to form an organization within the College, or to remain in the National Society."

After the business meeting, Mr. C. B. Hurff of the Eastern Clay Products Company of Philadelphia, spoke on the manufacture and use of pipes. The lecture was illustrated by the use of slides and proved interesting.

DELAWARE BEATS STEVENS—21 TO 0

Team Shows Improvement

Smooth teamwork and a sustained drive for the opponent's goal in the first and third quarters gave Delaware an easy victory over Stevens Institute eleven last Saturday. Delaware won 21-0. There was a noticeable lack of glaring faults in either the offensive or defensive work of the Blue and Gold squad.

Weggenmann and Jackson were the outstanding players in Delaware's attack. Weggenmann carried the ball over twice for touchdowns; Torbert scooped up a fumble and also crossed the enemy's line. Hubert's punting was one of the features and the offense and defense of the fullback were noteworthy. Only once, in the first period, was Delaware's goal in danger of being crossed. But Lohman and Creamer smeared the Stevens plays before they got fairly started, and Stevens was soon on the defensive.

Captain McKelvie, Torbert, Kramer, and in fact the whole line played well with Wooten, Cherkak and Hopkins sharing honors in the backfield. Delaware's line showed much improvement. Jackson's general ship and handling of punts were of high caliber.

Haverford Eleven Expects To Win Tomorrow

Haverford was trounced Saturday by Ursinus, and beaten the week before that by Washington College. However, Captain Bile and his mates managed to whip Hamilton and Stevens. In the Stevens game Haverford crossed the Engineers' goal line thrice, running up a 20-0 score.

The hidden strength of Haverford should not be underestimated as the little college always prepares more for Delaware and Swarthmore than for any of the other scheduled teams. The game tomorrow should be closely and bitterly fought with the odds favoring Delaware by one touchdown. Last year the locals trounced Haverford by a 26-6 score, but Haverford is strong and the terrible beating administered to them by Ursinus is a mystery.

The Haverford team centers its attack on fast end runs and

Percy D. Haughton Dead

P. D. Haughton, famed for his winning football system at Harvard, and outstanding figure in the world of athletics, succumbed to a fatal attack of indigestion, Monday evening at 5:30. While the great coach is dead, his system is still being carried on at Harvard by Head Coach Fisher, and at Williams by Wendell.

Columbia in particular and the collegiate world in general lose a famous football mentor, an excellent sportsman and a fine, intelligent gentleman.

To Fly Through College

To fly through college is the aim of Charles T. Wrightson, who arrived last week by airplane at Oregon Agriculture College from Fresno, California. Wrightson, who is registered as a Freshman, is a commercial flier and has conceived the novel idea of bringing his plane to school with him and taking up passengers during his spare time to pay his college expenses.

The saddest part of it all is that we have, most of us, so little idea of what we want to effect by education.—Benson.

THE WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW

The great amount of election material and straw votes, which has been filling the papers, has brought to mind the fact that not before many years, we, as women and voters will be qualified to take part in the elections of the country. What are the greater majority of us going to do with this vote? Are we really going to stand firmly for our fundamental principles and vote as we are minded; or are we going to be swayed easily and often?

These questions arose after the results of the voting on certain student government measures had been announced. The rules were passed by an almost unanimous vote. However, the fact remains that a larger number of girls declared their intentions of voting negatively than actually did vote that way.

This incident is just one in quite a large number. Any unpopular measure arouses indignant criticism before and after the passing of it, but it has small opposition at the moment when it is passed. How can anyone in the college expect to be satisfied with rules which have been passed by one against one's best opinion. Yet the fact of dissatisfaction lies in the individual. There is too much fear of what the other person will think or say; or, worse, there is the method of allowing personal friends to "browbeat" one into a decision. The remark, "Oh, don't vote for that, we are going to vote against it," is imbecilic and absurd. It is regarding one's right to think as nothing.

To question a college woman's right to vote would indeed seem an insult. Wonder is aroused, however, when such slipshod methods of thinking are employed. There is only one way to create a more desirable situation; that is for every girl to become independent in her college voting. Even if the measure is lost, there will be left self esteem and independence of mind and the feeling that at least one's efforts were directed in the desired direction.

What's Wrong With Education?

It takes a good man these days to live up to his press notices. Having received an excellent one from this journal of enlightenment, and to the effect, to boot, that I was to contribute several interesting articles on topics of present and universal concern, I am—although entirely innocent in the matter—exceedingly loth to disappoint in any way the boys and girls.

On seeking further information, I was told that along with several other estimable gentlemen I was to give my opinions on the present state of education. You can imagine my predicament, therefore, when upon taking communion with myself, I discovered that I had no opinions of my own on such a pressing subject.

There was just one thing to do. I got in touch with my agents throughout the land. I dispatched a special squad to scour the writings on education from Plato to Upton Sinclair. I consulted still Within a fortnight their reports were in. A week of weary labor and I had them tabulated and filed. And what, gentlemen, was the net result of this diligent search? Simply this: that no new thing had been said on education since Socrates downed his hemlock cocktail at a single gulp.

Nothing daunted I then proceeded to make an investigation on my own hook. It cannot be said—I reasoned—that there is something wrong with a machine designed to turn out bricks as long as that machine turns out perfect bricks. The rule then to be applied to education is this: does it do what it is intended to do? So far, so good. But here, gentlemen, I confess I was stumped. I have never yet heard two men agree as to just what education was intended to do.

I, thereupon, for the first time consulted my dictionary to see what it had to say about education. This is what it said: education is the systematic development and cultivation of the natural powers by inculcation, example, etc. I consulted still other dictionaries and they all said the same thing in different words. That is, they all said what education is but none of them said what it ought to do. In the case of the machine making bricks everyone knows that it was intended to make bricks. But in the case of education everyone knows that it was intended to do—what? To make perfect bondsalesmen? Real Estate Brokers? Engineers? Politicians? 100% Americans? It gradually dawned upon me that we were engaged in a futile task. Are we not trying to measure something that in essence is incommensurable?

In the case of the bricks, there was put into the machine clay of a certain quality and there came out bricks of a given quality. In the case of education there is put into the machine clay, to be sure, but of a different kind. Each clod is animate. And here we come upon the crux of the whole discussion today on education.

It is maintained by some that education as practised today is an attempt to make these plastic clods, as I have called them, conform to a given mold, whether this charge be so or not I do not know. It is, in any case, of little moment. As I have said, these clods are animate, that is, in theory, they are supposed to be able to think for themselves. If then, there is this attempt to force them into a given mold, their inherent capacity to think, i.e., their inherent intelligence, is to be measured by their resistance or nonconformity. In other words, the intelligent man will always be a non-conformer, a skeptic.

I can see little in this hullabaloo over what is wrong with education. For the intelligent man education is a continuous process from the cradle to the grave, a continuous cultivation of his natural powers. Scholastic education in America is mainly an attempt to turn these natural powers to practical use. This attempt you may quarrel with if you choose. Its gross influence on education in the real sense is negligible. If, as is often complained, the colleges of America turn out a standard product, even as the brick machine, it is not altogether the fault of the colleges. The masses of the students who are "typical" are quite willing to procure their ideas, as they do their college-cut clothes, ready-made.

New Instruments And Music for Band
In accordance with his policy as head of the Military Department, Major Underwood has turned the organization and instruction of the Band over entirely to the members of that body. First-Lieutenant C. A. Tilghman is the commander of the Band, and K. Given is the new director.

Major Underwood has shown much enthusiasm in his co-operation with the heads of the Band. Through his efforts, a room has been secured on the second floor of Old College in which to keep the instruments and music. He was also instrumental not only in having the old instruments improved, but also in obtaining new horns. A trombone costing forty-five dollars has been purchased, and there is a movement on hand to secure a new baritone horn. All the old music has been discarded, and replaced by new, which includes several new marches.

The spirit of the personnel of the Band is greatly improved over that of recent years. This attitude is displayed in the progress achieved by the co-operation of the members. As an incentive for real work among the students in the Band, it has been decided to award watch charms to those Seniors who are recommended by a committee chosen for that purpose.

We once knew a Freshman who thought that Wolf Hall was a zoo, Atlantic City was the wildest resort on the Atlantic coast, Dr. Sypherd was an Englishman, members of rival fraternities all went to Hell when they died, Rehoboth was a place where Methodist ministers took their families for the summer, the Hilarium was a fish bowl, the University Seal was an institutional pet, and that the Practice House was a gymnasium.

On Literature

What is the average intellect of the University of Delaware student? Shall we weave words concerning such a question? Would it really be worthwhile to even insinuate that the University of Delaware student would be a sorry chap if he were placed side by side on the intellectual line with a Dartmouth, Columbia or a University of Virginia student? Would it? Of course not! Insinuations mean nothing to morons.

How many of our students know of Mencken, Joyce, Moore, Cabell, Hecht, Ellis, Anderson, Nathan, or even Edna St. Vincent Millay? How many could tell whether Max Nordau was a bricklayer or Huysmans a dictator? Who was Audrey Beardsley? Oh, no, he wasn't the Dean of the Engineering School back in '96. Now you say that you have mechanical minds. Minds that give you that good old A. B. degree. Minds that run in the same channels as college professors. Minds that are filled with the profound elements of life; no, your education is not bounded by such rot—for you are disciples of Tennyson, Byron, Shelley, Shakespeare and the other staunch members of the literary world. So be it. Do you know the inner lives of these men? Do you understand their thoughts? Do you know of Byron's love affairs? Have you read the sonnets of Shakespeare? Oh, I know—you just merely read these men, their literary attempts, and say, "He's good." The majority of the students read the old masters because they are compelled to read them and not for pleasure and profit. In doing such, the beauty is lost—what little there is—and Willy Shakespeare, Bobby Burns and good old Eddie Poe are forgotten in a few years; perhaps, in a few months. Thus we find the University of Delaware student.

Take any of the courses at this university and dissect them one by one. What are they? Nothing but preparatory courses greatly augmented and sugar-coated with "Ph.D." or "M. A." tutors. Ah, mercy me.

Now switching back to our intellectual comparison. I daresay the average student in any other institution knows to the minutest detail all the old masters and yet has been given time to cultivate his literary mind in other channels. That is to say his knowledge of the old bards and scribblers goes hand in hand with his knowledge of the modernists. To be the cultured college student one must keep abreast with this rapid literary age. One must not be tied down to text books and mediocre formularies. One must survive the modern literary whirlpool. Unfortunately, you, fellow students, lie in Davy Jones's locker.

Have You Subscribed?

The results of the drive for subscriptions to the Blue Hen, which began last week, are not very encouraging. This Book should not be considered an ordinary item of College expenses which all students should indulge in. Its value outweighs by far the few dollars which are asked. The Blue Hen is a storehouse of memories of College Life. It is an inspiration to all undergraduates to "carry on"; it is a treasure to those old "Grads," who, in Life, have "Old Wood To Burn," "Old Books To Read," and "Old Friends To Cherish."

The Druid Society is composed of five Chapters, Alpha, Penn State; Beta, University of Pittsburgh; Gamma, Washington and Jefferson; Delta, Carnegie Tech; and Epsilon, University of Delaware. Each Chapter will send two delegates to the Convention, making a total of eight delegates.

The significance of this Convention can hardly be over-estimated. It represents the convening of the out-standing Sophomore leaders of five of the best American colleges, for the purpose of suggesting ways of helping the Freshman, and of promoting whole-hearted support to one's Alma Mater.

A Druid Smoker will be held in the Lounge of Old College on Thursday evening, November 13. This Smoker will be a real pep fest, and every Freshman, it is hoped, will attend it.

We must at this writing drop a hint to Captain McKelvie of the great strength of the George Washington University eleven. The Hatchetites tied Johns Hopkins Saturday, 3-3, and the Baltimore papers claim the Washington boys should have won. The invaders have defeated Western Maryland, conquerors of Saint John's, and recently held St. Joseph's of Philadelphia without a first down, winning 42-0. Current reports have it that the Hatchetites are stronger than Dickinson.

At a meeting of the faculty on Monday, it was decided that all classes will be stopped at ten o'clock on Tuesday, November 11, Armistice Day, so that the battalion may form to march around the new stone to be dedicated behind Recitation Hall. Anyone absent or not in uniform will receive a cut for that hour. If funds can be secured for the transportation to Wilmington, the students will parade in Wilmington on the afternoon of Armistice Day. In this case, the above ruling for cuts will be enforced.

It is expected that the battalion will parade in Dover at the inauguration of the new governor. It is quite possible that when the President is inaugurated, the battalion will parade in Washington. This parade, of course, depends upon whether or not transportation can be secured.

pose has been defeated by occasional students who dropped out of the cast or who stayed in it but consistently refused to attend rehearsals or to learn their lines. We feel that this situation was unfair to those serious students who do their work conscientiously.

Second, the Department wishes to provide a training ground for students who, as high school teachers, will in their turn be coaching plays.

Third, as a matter of general culture, the Department wishes to furnish the university community with better plays better produced, a 'consummation devoutly to be wished.' We feel strongly on this point; for if the best in drama can be ap-

Thomas A. Edison and Charles P. Steinmetz in the Schenectady laboratories of the General Electric Company, where Dr. Steinmetz did his great work

Steinmetz

The spirit of Dr. Steinmetz kept his frail body alive. It clothed him with surpassing power; he tamed the lightning and discharged the first artificial thunderbolt.

Great honors came to him, yet he will be remembered not for what he received, but for what he gave. Humanity will share forever in the profit of his research. This is the reward of the scientist, this is enduring glory.

Emerson tells how the mass of men worry themselves into nameless graves, while now and then a great, unselfish soul forgets himself into immortality. One of the most inspiring influences in the life of a modern corporation is the selfless work of the scientists in the laboratories, which it provides for their research.

erty men and electricians, and all who desire to be admitted into membership in the Club next year can help themselves by applying for the above positions. Five of the present Club members will be graduated in June, thus leaving room for five new men. These will be selected by the amount of work contributed to the Club's welfare in any of the various Club activities. President Chas. Greene issued a card for those interested in Dramatics to report at two o'clock Friday afternoon in the Footlights Club Room, which was formerly the Old Trophy Room. It is possible that the play, "A Doll's House," recently given by the Wilmington Aircastle Players, will be repeated at the University sometime soon under the auspices of the Footlights Club.
