(PHOTO BY MELISSA MARSHALL)

Members and guests of the Newark Arts Alliance had a second chance to celebrate the Valentine's Day holiday at an event over the weekend. See story, Page 2.

Free Sunday parking to end 6-story hotel on College Ave. approved

In a 6-1 vote, the Newark City Council voted to suspend free parking on Sunday afternoons in and around Main Street.

Starting April 4, fees for parking meters and municipal lots will be enforced from 1 pm to 1 am on Sundays. Maureen Feeney Roser, assistant planning & development director and Administrator for the Downtown Newark Partnership (DNP), stated that the proposal was initiated as a revenue source to help lighten the economic burden the city faces. The city conservatively estimates revenues of approximately $68,000 a year.

Two meetings each were held with both the DNP's Merchants and Parking Committees during November and December 2009, along with a discussion with representatives from the downtown Methodist, Catholic and Baptist churches. The committees reluctantly agreed to institute the Sunday fees over other measures, such as raising taxes or increasing licensing fees.

Most council members agreed that necessary measures must be taken to improve Newark's financial situation and that the Sunday parking fees would have the least negative impact. Councilman Ezra Temko, the only dissenting vote, stated that the parking dilemma is difficult, but that Newark must try to project the best possible image to attract more downtown shoppers. Shoppers do have the option of validating their parking at many downtown businesses, although that will also increase expenses for businesspeople.

Public opinion ran against the proposal, with some business owners and homeowners voicing concerns over the possibility of empty storefronts, negative perceptions about parking in the downtown area and the migration of vehicles looking for free parking in residential areas.

At the same time, there have

Residents getting 1st peek at book store project

Residents will get a first look at a University of Delaware bookstore on Main Street that will look different than many recent developments.

A preliminary design for project will be unveiled at a meeting of the City Planning Commission at 7 p.m. on Tuesday.

The bookstore at 83 East Main Street would be managed by bookselling giant Barnes & Noble, but would carry the UD name, according to preliminary drawings that will be displayed at the meeting in City Hall. The building will also house office space to be used by the university.

Plans call for the university to preserve the former Christina School District headquarters building at the site, while demolishing buildings at 87 E. Main St., the rear portion of a building at 83 E. Main St. and a building at 78 E. Delaware Avenue.

The project would have 60,000 square feet of bookstore and office space. UD would move its current bookstore from the Perkins Student Center on the southern end of the campus to the Main Street location.

The Newark City and Planning Development Department recommended approval of the request for a major subdivision and parking waiver that would clear the

A sweet weekend

By now the roses may have wilted and the chocolate boxes emptied of their contents, but guests who buzzed around the gallery space at the Newark Arts Alliance (NAA) last Saturday night were left with a sweet taste of the Valentine's Day holiday.

For a $15 suggested donation, patrons could sample an array of desserts from area restaurants. Such confections as strawberry shortcake cheesecake, tiramisu, chocolate truffles, tarts, chocolate ganache and Banana Chonga, freshly delivered from the kitchens of Café Gelato, Deer Park Tavern, Café di Napoli, Iron Hill Brewery, Kildare's Irish Pub, Klondike Kate's, Panera Bread and Stone Balloon Wine House tempted guests.

"As a painter, the local artistic community is very important to remain a part of," said Rebecca Wissehr Howell as she helped serve a slice of chocolate ganache to a guest. "I joined the Newark Arts Alliance when I moved here from Savannah to draw inspiration from fellow artists and connect with like-minded people. Police tentatively identify toddler left at gas station

(Police blotter items are based on reports from area law enforcement agencies. For the latest police news log on to newarkpostonline.com.)

Newark Police announced the identity of the child found at the Shell gas station on Sunday has been tentatively established. Due to the nature of the ongoing investigation and multiple jurisdictions involved, additional information has not yet been released, police said.

Police said information will be released when appropriate.

"The Newark Police Department extends its sincere gratitude to our media partners who covered this story and delivered the information to the public," said Newark Police Chief Paul Tiernan. "The media's dissemination of the photos and videos led to the identification of the child and the furtherance of this investigation," he said.

Police were hampered in the investigation by the fact that surveillance cameras at the station were not in operation.

As recently as Wednesday night, Newark Police released a video of the toddler - who was much happier than in an earlier video - playing with toys.

The girl is currently being cared for in Delaware's foster care system.

Cpl. Paul Keld of the Newark Police Department said officers were attempting to investigate all the tips they have received.

"The story is definitely out there. The media has really covered it, and that is helping."

A customer of the Shell gas station at 804 S. College Ave. in Newark called police about 2:45 p.m. after finding the two-year-old alone in a men's restroom.

Police released photos of the girl in an effort to identify the child and her parents.

On Monday, Keld said the girl was staying in a temporary foster care home, under the supervision of the State of Delaware.

The girl's parents or guardians could face felony charges, according to Keld.

"The kind of charges would be abandonment of a child under the age of 14 and endangering the welfare of a child," Keld said.

Charges wouldn't be filed, however, if an unusual or unavoidable circumstance prevented the girl's parents or guardians from taking them with them, he said.

Stolen toolbox linked to suspect

Police were called to investigate a burglary complaint at an abandoned warehouse located at 1001 Ogletown Rd. where a large metal toolbox and its contents were taken. The site is scheduled to be torn down.

Representatives from the two companies performing the demolition told police that a 6 foot tall "Jobox" containing spare parts for a Bobcat tractor, along with a Titan 440EX airless paint sprayer, had been chained to a post in the middle of the building. Police found that a chain had been cut near the aforementioned site. The building has only one gate, which is padlocked and secured. The Jobox, and its contents, weighs several hundred pounds, leading police to believe that the toolbox was loaded onto a truck or larger vehicle.

The representatives also stated that during one of their recent visits, they had found the belongings of a person living in the office. A note had been posted to warn the unknown vagrant of the impending demolition.

A search of the belongings revealed several IDs and a clothing request for a local shelter in the name of a 52-year-old man. Police are contacting local area charities in order to discover the man's whereabouts. Police are treating the man as a possible suspect, due to a long criminal history which includes burglary.

Warrant out on ex-maintenance man

On February 20, officers responded to a complaint at the Main Towers apartments, on E. Main St., where a 72 year-old woman told police that she had been harassed by one of the maintenance staff. The woman, an artist, said that the worker had entered her residence to inquire if she would paint a "sexy" portrait of the man. The elderly woman said she did not do that type of painting, and suggested that man should leave. After refusing, the man asked her more direct sexual questions, pacing and acting very nervous. At this time, she directly told the man to leave immediately. He walked toward the door, grasped her hand, and told her to keep the matter between the two of them.

The woman called police and stated that she was alarmed by the touching and the threatening manner.

Police have issued a warrant out on the suspect, but have been unable to locate the individual.

Managers of the apartment complex told police that they have fired the worker and that they have taken extra security precautions, including changing locks and removing the man's access codes.

Criminal prank cuts power to business

Last week, employees at Flavor Clothing, 151 E. Main St., called police to report that an unknown suspect had damaged an outside electrical box, disabling power to the establishment. An inspection of the premises showed that the box had been pulled from the anchors that secure it to the rear wall, exposing some of the wires. Repairs to the box are estimated to cost over $700.

Police are downloading video footage of the site and are investigating additional leads.

Two sought in robbery

Two men are being sought, following an armed robbery at the Limestone Road Shell station-convenience store in Pike Creek, on Feb. 21st. at 9:13 p.m.

Suspects were described as follows.

- Male, average build, wearing a hooded sweatshirt, mask, jeans and armed with a handgun

- Male, average build, wearing a hooded sweatshirt, mask, dark pants and armed with a handgun.

According to Delaware State Police, two armed males entered the store and approached the counter. The first suspect jumped over the counter while the other walked around it. The bandits ordered the 25-year-old male clerk to lie on the ground. While one suspect held the victim at bay at gunpoint, the other suspect opened the cash register drawer.

The suspects fled the scene with an undisclosed amount of cash and were last seen fleeing the scene northbound on Route 7 in a gray sedan.

There is no surveillance video at this time.

Tagging suspects caught at bowling alley

Last Friday, Newark Police arrested three youths in the parking lot of Blue Hen Lanes, 230 E. Main St., for graffiti and trespassing, after a patrol car had observed them acting in a suspicious manner. A pat-down search showed that one of the trio had the top to a can of gold metallic spray paint in his pocket. Police found fresh evidence of graffiti tags spray painted on the north wall and dumpster behind the alley.

$1,000 Essay Contest for Local Students

The 2010 John Wriston Writing Prize Essay Contest

The Friends of the Newark Free Library established the John Wriston Writing Prize in grateful and affectionate recognition of his many services over the years, especially as editor of the FNFL News. His essays there were read and savored by many readers.

This Essay Contest is open to high school juniors and seniors who currently attend one of the three Christina School District high schools or whose parents reside within the Christina School District Borders. The winner will receive $1000 at the Friends of the Newark Free Library Annual Meeting in April 2010. The theme for this year's essay follows:

Basing your response on your own specific growing-up experiences of visiting and using libraries from pre-school years to senior high school, try to state what would be missing from your social, intellectual, and academic autobiography if you had only the internet as an instrument and ally in your efforts to thrive and mature as a knowledgeable, thinking person.

Write an essay 1100-1500 words in length in which you explore this subject in an organized way. Be sure to supply concrete examples of your personal experiences of libraries (and, possibly, the experiences of your friends) to help support your opinions.

Your essay must be submitted no later than Monday, March 8, 2010 in double-spaced typed format and using one side of each page only. Please observe all standard rules of grammar, spelling, and punctuation in your writing. Please include your name, home address and telephone number. Essays may be hand delivered to the Reference Desk at the Newark Free Library or mailed to:

Friends of the Newark Free Library

Newark Free Library
750 Library Avenue
Newark, DE 19711

Direct any questions to John Reddington at 302.368.5019

The Essay Contest Committee reserves the right not to award a prize.

New Hotel raises concerns among neighbors

been concerns (not voiced at the council meeting) about free parking being used as an opportunity by store employees, students and others to grab prime spots to the exclusion of shoppers and those worshipping or dining downtown.

In other news, the Council voted unanimously to approve a special permit to construct a six-story, 101-room, Candlewood Suites hotel at 1119 S College Ave., at the corner of Route 896 and Welsh Tract Rd. The hotel will feature extended stay amenities and is geared to attracting business travelers working in the immediate area. The project has been initiated in anticipation of the increased business from the UD/ former Chrysler site and the need for more rooms during UD special events.

The owners, SSN Hotel Management, LLC, are managers of 13 other hotels, including the Howard Johnson hotel adjacent to the site. The hotel will have interior entrances that allow for extra security.

Increased traffic, security, increased noise and water pollution, and stormwater maintenance were subjects discussed by the public at both this meeting and the Planning Commission meeting in August, 2009.

Lisa Goodman, of Young, Conaway, Stargatt & Taylor, representing the owners, showed the council that an extensive DelDOT study was made, concluding that only one intersection around the site (the entrance from Welsh Tract Rd. off 896) would have an increased amount of traffic, leaving all other access points unaffected. Residents living behind the HoJo's on Old Cooches Bridge Road still voiced grave concerns over allowing more cars in the area, thus adding to the traffic entering and exiting the industrial park behind the neighborhood.

Bruce Tease, of Landmark Engineering, Inc., stated that concerns over privacy, security, stormwater management and increased crime in the area have also been addressed. One concerned citizen said, "I don't want to get robbed because I've worked hard for what I got."

The owners have increased the number of video surveillance cameras at the Howard Johnson's and will also install a six-foot high stockade fence along Old Cooches Bridge Rd., including shrubbery and trees to better blend it in with the surrounding foliage. This will reduce light and noise levels on the north end of the site. The project will feature an advanced stormwater catch basin that will accommodate both hotels and the Friendly's Restaurant that shares the lot. Presently, the area does little to deal with water draining away from the area. Meetings with the Newark Police Department have produced increased patrols, hopefully deterring possible criminal activity.

An additional concern was made regarding direct contact with the owners, if future problems arise. Councilman Jerry Clifton told the council that meeting space has been made available at the HoJo's to address any concerns between the public and the owners. He also asked representatives of SSN to distribute their contact information to local residents in order to dispel disappointment over past responses.

The parking waiver would result in UD paying $1.1 million to the city for development and maintenance of parking in downtown.

The city is also asking that the university transfer remaining parking to the city.

A report from the Planning Department did express concern over the design of the building. "We believe that the University is not continuing its longstanding and proud tradition of building new facilities that complement and harmonize with existing buildings on and off campus." At the same time, the report noted that the "subjective consideration of proposed architecture should be a community responsibility as reflected through the recommendations of the Planning Commission and final consideration by the City Council." Planners are also seeking a few changes, in areas such as refuse collection and loading dock areas.

Although the Planning Commission and Council are not seeing as many projects of late, due to the downturn in real estate markets, all projects undergo intense scrutiny by commission members, councilmen and community activists who argue the merits of conforming to surrounding buildings or the virtues of a more varied variety of styles.

The book store is expected to be a major boon to Main Street by drawing student, and at times, parent traffic to the area. It is also expected to draw more members of the general public. A few merchants have expressed concern about competing more directly with the university on some types of merchandise.

And creativity was certainly a focal point of the evening. From the ambience of the décor to the interactive "Messages From the Heart" art project hanging from the ceiling, the NAA showed that it can continue to push the creative envelope in terms of its events, exhibits and even fundraising.

"Like most non-profits, we're struggling financially," said NAA Executive Director Terry Foreman. "We get a little bit of money from a lot of little things, and we're never resting easy because it's not like we have one big benefactor. We are challenged to keep things fresh and new," she continued.

"Our primary goal is outreach—we want to attract new people to the organization so they can discover us and realize everything we have to offer."

Richard Scott

Richard W. Scott, 75, of Newark, died peacefully at home on February 14, surrounded by loved ones.

Dick was born March 18, 1934, the youngest of four children of Dr. Norman D. Scott and Myrtle J. Scott. He grew up on a small family farm near Niagara Falls, NY, and began his education in a two-room country school. His father, a former Rhodes Scholar and a prominent chemist with the DuPont Company, died suddenly when Dick was only fourteen. Dick worked with his mother to sustain the farm for another eight years, spending summers and weekends in the fields while continuing his education. Upon graduating from LaSalle High School in 1951, he received five academic scholarships that enabled him to attend Cornell University's mechanical engineering program. At Cornell, Dick was football manager and a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. In 1955, he married Joanne Staub, also of Niagara Falls, and the couple settled in Ithaca, NY, while Dick completed his degree. Dick then joined the DuPont Company's engineering department at Louviers in Delaware. From 1956 to 1959, Dick served proudly in the U.S. Air Force, rising to the rank of captain.

Following his military service, Dick returned to DuPont, where he worked in numerous capacities and departments over the next 30 years, including film, plastics, polymer products, and electronics, in Circleville, Ohio; Clinton, Iowa; and Wilmington, Delaware. After retiring from DuPont in 1991, Dick volunteered at the University of Delaware's Academy of Lifelong Learning and at the Newark Senior Center, developing courses for adult computer literacy.

He is survived by his loving wife of 54 years, Joanne; their four children, Dr. Eric W. Scott and his wife Jennifer of Gainesville, Florida; Susan Scott Ashman and her husband Robert of Laurel, Maryland; Curtis R. Scott and his wife Diane Gottardi of Williamstown, Massachusetts; and Michael B. Scott and his wife Maureen of Charlottesville, Virginia; a sister, Amy Grieger, of Novi, Michigan; a sister-in-law, Mary Scott Bone of Catonsville, Maryland; and ten grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his brothers Norman J. Scott and Donald M. Scott.

A memorial service will be held at 11 am on Saturday, March 6, at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church, 10 Johnson Rd., Newark, DE, 19713, followed by a luncheon for friends and family at the Newark Senior Center.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to the Our Redeemer Lutheran Church Memorial Fund at the address above; or to the Newark Senior Center's "Senior Surfers" Computer Club, 200 White Chapel Dr., Newark, DE 19713. To sign guest register, visit spicermullikin.com.

Carolyn Sisk

Carolyn M. Sisk, of Newark, died on Tuesday, February 16, in Christiana Hospital after a short illness.

She was born on January 23, 1926 in Philadelphia, PA and was raised there by her mother, the late Dorothy Marcus. She was a devoted and loving wife to her husband of 40 years, Frank (Buddy) until his passing on January 15, 2010 after a long illness.

She was employed by the Chrysler Corporation at the Newark Parts Distribution Center for 30 years, until she retired in 1981.

She is survived by her nephew, Roy Pollitt of Punta Gorda, FL as well as her dear friends.

A funeral service was held on Wednesday, February 24 at 11:30 am at the Doherty Funeral Home, 3200 Limestone Rd., Pike Creek. Burial was in Silverbrook Cemetery, Lancaster Ave., Wilmington, DE.

In lieu of flowers, contributions in Carolyn's memory may be made to the Delaware Humane Association, 701 A St., Wilmington, DE 19801. To send condolences visit: www.dohertyfh.com.

Blair Smith

Blair Leland Smith, 86, of Newark, died Thursday, December 17.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith of Dayton, Ohio. Blair was active in church affairs all his life; singing in the choir, serving on the church Session, teaching Sunday School and Bible Study groups, and acting as the secretary for the Patella Foundation. He and his late wife, Catherine, were members of Evangelical Presbyterian Church of Newark.

He leaves his daughter, Barbara Hart of Catonsville, MD; a son, Gordon Smith of Parkton, MD and six grandsons.

A Memorial service was held this Saturday, February 20, at 11:00 am at the Evangelical Presbyterian Church of Newark, 308 Possum Park Road, Newark, DE 19711.

Memorial contributions may be made to Evangelical Presbyterian Church. To send condolences, visit www.rtfboard.com.

Here's some tryout hints for baseball and softball

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

This column is for everyone getting ready to start playing baseball or softball. To avoid repetition and save word space, I'm going to refer to everything as baseball, but the exact same can be said for softball.

With the amount of snow we've had fields are going to be drenched for quite some time and my guess is most tryouts will be held in a gymnasium. But I also assume some will not.

Through the years I've experienced baseball tryouts as a player, parent, coach and league commissioner. I've watched tryouts indoors and out, in good and poor weather conditions, and with all kinds of distractions.

One thing has been consistent throughout my tryout experiences -- your child is going to get minimum attempts and opportunities to show off his skills. Because of the large number of kids who are trying out and the short amount of time available, typically a player will get 20 pitches to hit, 10 grounders to field and another 10 fly balls to shag.

Your child might be in a situation where he is already "well known" and the tryout is basically just because the rules state he must attend. But most kids are completely unknown to the evaluators and so impressing them right off the bat (no pun intended) is important.

I know as a coach I always looked for kids using proper technique. The reality is on a cold day in March, most players are not going to hit the ball hard or far. But if a player looks like a hitter, that impresses me. It's the same with fielding. Preseason field conditions make for wicked hops that most pros couldn't handle, but proper mechanics not only tell me that a player knows how to field, but they don't have bad habits to break.

Coaches don't want players throwing "all out" at tryouts because most arms are not ready. But they will be looking for proper throwing mechanics, from the crow-hop to the follow-through. And I always think accuracy is more important than distance.

A few non-baseball specific hints include:

Players should dress in layers if it's cold (and it will be if you are outside). Bring a knit hat to wear because most coaches won't care what is on your head and you'll be much warmer (and therefore more effective) than the others in baseball caps. Also bring winter gloves and put them on when it's not your turn or when you are sitting for long periods. It's easier to hit and catch with warm hands than numb ones.

If you have a shirt with your name on it, wear that. Also, try to wear a hat (knit or cap) or jacket/shirt that will stick out in the crowd. Do NOT wear jeans or khaki pants.

Parents -- you can be seen but should not be heard. Most coaches figure if you are loud and belligerent at tryouts, you'll be even worse during the season.

And last but not least, try to have fun. In most youth sports leagues you aren't trying out to make a team or not, but rather just so coaches can see where they want to draft you. And the draft order is over-rated. One season my first-round selection quit before the first game and our third round selection became our best player.

Good luck and have fun!

DFRC Blue-Gold All-Star Football Game rosters announced

NEWS, from 5

Public Horticulture symposium

The Longwood Graduate Program will host its Annual Symposium on Friday, March 5 at Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, PA. The Symposium, People, Plants, Collections: Making the Connection, will offer insight into connecting people with the beauty, diversity, and science of plants through strategic planning, inspiring interpretation, innovative programs and exhibits, and thoughtful collections development. Designed for professional staff of public gardens, nature centers, parks, and cultural institutions, the Symposium will take place in Longwood Gardens' spectacular Ballroom starting at 8:00 am. Registration for the daylong event is $75.00 for professionals and $55.00 for full-time students. For more information and to register online, visit www.udel.edu/longwoodgrad, or call the Longwood Graduate Program office at 302-831-2517.

Church gathering

"Why Real Men Love God" is the subject of the second annual non denominational men's gathering sponsored by Elkton United Methodist Church. It will be held at Camp Pecometh in Centerville, MD on March 5th thru the 7th. All men are invited to join this weekend of friendship, fellowship, music, and fun by signing up on the website at elktonumc.org or calling the church for a registration form at 410-398-0933. For more information contact Rev. Don Hurst.

Upcoming musical events

Newark United Methodist Church, 69 E. Main St., Newark, DE is proud to present the 2010 George Kirk Concert Series. Continuing in its tradition of embracing and supporting the arts, NUMC invites the community to enjoy the excellent music coming up this March:

Sunday, March 7, 4 pm: The Maryland State Boychoir, under the direction of Frank Cimino. The choir's reputation for excellence has resulted in invitations to perform in a variety of venues including the White House and the Kennedy Center. Performing will be the Concert Choir, an SATB group of boys 9-19 years old. The choir's repertoire ranges from the Renaissance to contemporary gospel.

Sunday, March 14, 4 pm:

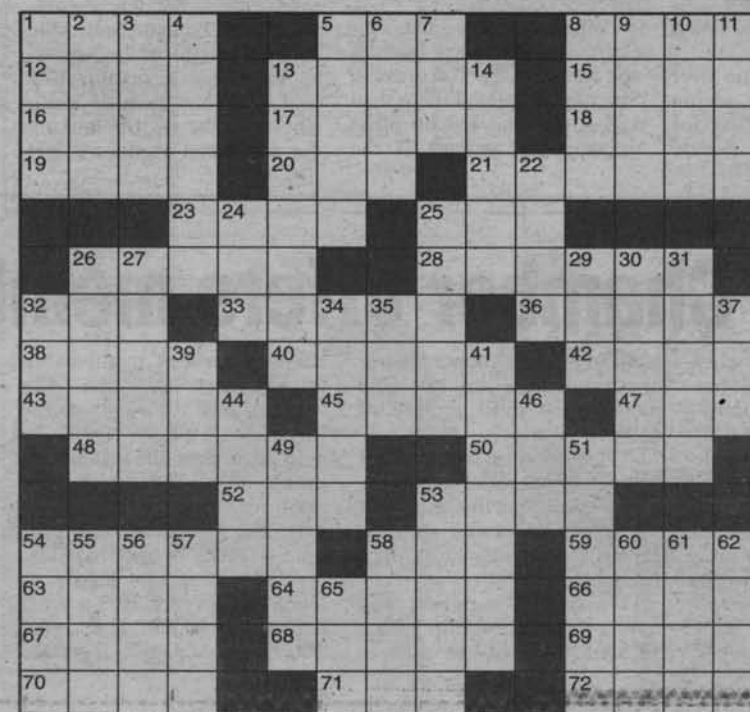

Rachel Maclary, flute. Ms. Maclary is a Newark native, currently pursuing a Graduate Professional Diploma at the Hartt School. She has performed as a featured soloist with the Miami String Quartet, the Newark Symphony Orchestra, and the Lansdowne Symphony Orchestra.

Friday, March 19, 7:30 pm: Andrew Shenton, organ. Dr. Shenton has toured extensively in Europe and the US as a conductor, recitalist and clinician. He is currently a member of the musicology faculty at Boston University, where he directs the Messiaen Project. His two solo organ recordings have received international acclaim.

Admission: freewill offering. For more information, contact Betsy Kent, Director of Music Ministries, at 302/368-8774, x220.

New trial coming for James Cooke

The United States Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of a Delaware Supreme Court decision that overturned the murder conviction of James Cooke in the death of Lindsay Bonistall.

The decision came as no surprise, but left the family of the student with prospects of another painful trial. The Delaware Attorney General's office had taken the case to the Supreme Court in an effort to avoid another trial. Cooke remains in prison. Evidence in the first trial weighed heavily against Cooke.

Attorney General Beau Biden reacted to the decision by saying it was in Delaware's best interest to request review "to seek the Court's clarification not only for this case, but for other criminal cases across the country" as it presented "issues of profound constitutional significance."

"We are disappointed with the Court's decision," Biden stated. "We have consulted with the family of Lindsey Bonistall and recognize the pain they continue to experience as this case makes its way through the judicial process. We will continue to move forward with the prosecution of Cooke and to continue to fight for justice in this tragic case."

A scheduling conference with the trial judge is expected to be set shortly, at which time a new trial date will be set.

Bonistall, a University of Delaware student from New York state, was raped and murdered in 2005 at her Newark apartment.

The high court for Delaware ruled that Cooke's rights were violated in the trial. Attorneys for Cooke had argued that he was guilty, but mentally ill. Cooke, who proved to be a difficult client for his attorneys, argued that he did not go along with the plea.

In 2007, a jury ruled that Cooke was guilty. He was later sentenced to death.

The Bonistall family has remained active in local efforts to increase security for students living off campus.

Identity of slaying victim released

New Castle County Detectives have identified the victim slain last week in the community of Whitehall as James Thompson, a 27 year old male whose last known address was in the Melrose Place Apartments, east of Newark.

The second subject, who had also been shot, has been identified as Richard Iverson, 33, of old Salem, NJ. He is currently being held at the Howard Young Prison after failing to post $200,000 on drug and ammunition related offenses. He has not been charged in connection with the on-going murder investigation.

County Police and Paramedics responded to a residence in the unit block of Dryden Road for a report of a shooting. An officer arrived within two minutes and located Thompson lying outside in the snow suffering from apparent gunshot wounds to the upper body. He was treated at the scene and transported to Christiana Hospital, where he later died.

Meanwhile, officers established a perimeter and began searching the area for any potential suspects. During the search, officers located a male walking into the parking lot of the 7-11 Store on Route 273. When the officer approached him, he attempted elude them. He was then stopped and later arrested after he was found to have a capias.

When he began to remove several layers of clothing, the officers discovered he appeared to be bleeding from an injury to his groin area. The subject, who did not appear to be in any distress, was then transported to the Christiana Hospital, where it has been determined that he too was suffering from a gunshot wound.

To offer information regarding this crime, please call the New Castle County Police Department at 395-8110 or visit our website at www.nccpd.com. Citizens may also call Crime Stoppers at (800) TIP-3333.

Fashion major uses her skills to aid Haitian girls

When disaster struck Haiti on Jan. 12, Kimberly Cignarella, a senior apparel design major in the University of Delaware's Department of Fashion and Apparel Studies, decided she wanted to contribute to the relief efforts by sewing dresses for girls who lost their belongings as a result of the earthquake. Cignarella said she thought of designing dresses because she wanted to take advantage of the unique ability that she had, while helping others in need. She is calling her contribution ADDRESSed With Love.

"While I was home over winter break, I kept seeing TV commercials asking for people to text and donate money," she said. "But I wanted to be more involved and do something more personal and from the heart."

The dresses, which are designed for newborn to 6-year-old girls, are created in an assembly-line fashion of approximately 50 at a time and each takes about three hours to complete, Cignarella said. She designed two different styles of dresses and each dress features a heart on the back of the neck with her initials stitched into it, to show her love and effort.

When she started the project, the goal she set for herself was to make 200 dresses. She has completed more than 130 so far and has no plans on stopping, as long as she takes care of her schoolwork.

Cignarella has been able to donate 100 of her dresses to a church organization that will ship them to Haiti. She said she is still looking for additional avenues to get more of her dresses to Haiti.

Cignarella, who plans to become a designer after college, said she wants to use ADDRESSed With Love to help inspire other young adults to help others, whether they are in their own backyard or thousands of miles away.

"It's just a great feeling," she said. "I'm always happy with what I'm doing."

County Chamber offers membership for jobless

The New Castle County Chamber of Commerce has created a six month "transitional" membership for out-of-work residents in New Castle County.

The membership program will allow those individuals who find themselves between jobs to attend mixers, networking events and other Chamber-sponsored programs so they may meet potential employers, learn of business opportunities or advance their skill sets. The membership itself is free of charge.

"This program will help get folks into the business community and feel like a part of the state's economic engine," says Chamber president Mark Kleinschmidt.

Transitional members will have a full membership valued at $305 and will be able to attend events at membership prices, most of which have a fee of $10. In addition, the transitional member will be able to access the chamber's group health insurance program and attend many of the Chamber's educational programs at member pricing.

"We encourage people to attend our events. It is a good way to meet and greet over 100 business people from the greater New Castle County region," said Kleinschmidt.

"A local job fair will require a larger investment in both time and money. This is a streamlined and simple process and it allows people to put in as much effort as they wish."

The County Chamber hosts two and sometimes three networking events each month in addition to special events and business education programs. "The events are such that people can set aside any time; we have networking breakfasts, networking at night and networking at noon programs," says Kleinschmidt.

"The economy is coming back around and we want to help out-of-work New Castle countians prepare to step back in to employment," says Kleinschmidt.

Newark area teen faces murder charges

Delaware State Police Homicide Unit has arrested a Newark man in February homicide of Kenton W. Wolf, 61, of Smyrna.

Detectives were able to identify Juan C. Restrepo-Duque, 18, as the suspect in this case. Juan C. Restrepo-Duque was taken into custody early this morning at his residence. He resides in the Red Mill Farm area east of Newark.

Restrepo-Duque has been formally charged with Murder in the First Degree, Possession of a Deadly Weapon during the Commission of a Felony and Theft of a Motor Vehicle.

Restrepo-Duque has been committed to the Howard Young Correctional Institute and is being held without bail.

Troopers were called to the home of Wolf earlier this month, after coworkers told police that he had not showed up for work in the past week. When troopers arrived they found Wolf deceased in his home. There were no signs of forced entry to the residence.

Wolf was last seen leaving work on Friday, Feb. 12. Troopers did learn that a family member had spoken to him on Sunday Feb. 14th.

Textbook rentals offered

Delaware Book Exchange announced a textbook rental program designed to lower the cost of textbooks for students while also providing students with a choice between renting or purchasing textbooks new or used.

Delaware Book Exchange has made their most popular textbooks available for rental. Renting textbooks cuts the students' cost in half - rented textbooks are guaranteed to save 50% or more off the cost of a new book on every rental. This program offers students an economical choice for textbooks.

"Last spring, the average college student spent approximately $280 on textbooks for the term," said Bill Dill, manager, Delaware Book Exchange. "As textbook affordability continues to be an issue and leaves students scouring the Internet for textbooks at lower prices, we are offering students an option for lower textbook prices within the local bookstore. By renting textbooks through the store, students will save 50% or more off the cost of the new textbook and are assured the correct book without having to search multiple online sites for the best deal."

Renting textbooks from Delaware Book Exchange is as easy as "Rent, Use and Return." Students simply choose to rent textbooks when available, use them all term and return them on or before the last day of finals for the term. All that is required for renting textbooks is a valid debit or credit card.

"Students are assured of the correct book plus returns are easy with our textbook rental program," added Bill Dill. "Renting textbooks through Delaware Book Exchange offers students advantages in addition to lower prices. Most importantly, students can expect the same high level of customer service and because there are no shipping fees, waiting time or errors, students get the right book at the right price at the right time. Plus, re-using textbooks promotes recycling and encourages a green attitude," he added.

Refocus your job search

As if being unemployed isn't tough enough, there's more bad news for those who have found themselves out of work. It's taking longer than ever to find new job.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, people in management, professional and related occupations who had lost their jobs in March of last year were unemployed for a median of 19.6 weeks, nearly 5 months. That's longer than in previous economic downturns.

Even though a number of indicators show that the economy began improving in mid 2009, employers are continuing to be cautious and slow to add workers.

For job seekers, this means they need to be especially resourceful and creative in their search for employment, says Maria Pippidis, a University of Delaware Cooperative Extension educator for family and consumer science.

"It's not enough to send your resume to online career boards that might receive thousands of applications for a single position," says Pippidis. "You need to do a targeted job search and utilize every tool available, including newspaper and online ads, job fairs, headhunters and personal contacts."

If you have been out of work for a while, here are some recommendations from Pippidis on how to refocus your job search:

- Personal Contacts are Paramount. Some studies show that about 60 percent of all jobs are found by networking. Network with everyone -- people who work in your field, neighbors and friends and those you know from social, civic and religious organizations. Don't ask for a job -- unless you know the person is actively hiring. Do ask for information about how to proceed with your job hunt or improve your resume, and referrals to others who might be able to help.

- Treat Job Hunting Like a Job. Make your job search the first priority of every weekday. Expect to spend 15 to 20 hours a week looking for work.

- Give Your Resume a Makeover. Make sure your resume reflects current terminology for your field and includes all necessary key words. Ask a colleague in your field for constructive criticism. Also, ask an English teacher or other wordsmith to check for spelling, grammar and punctuation mistakes you may not have noticed before.

- Give Yourself a Makeover. No, Pippidis isn't suggesting cosmetic surgery or expensive beauty products. But you do need to make sure that your interview suit fits well, that your shoes are polished and that your hair is well groomed. Go to a local beauty school for budget prices on hair cuts, perms and color treatments.

- Consider Freelancing, Temp and Contract Jobs. All of these short-term employment solutions provide income but they offer additional benefits, including expanded opportunities to network. Some temporary jobs lead to permanent employment. A short-term job also gets you out of the house, with other people, and thus can help to keep your spirits up at a stressful time in life.

Get active with family Winter Olympics

By CAROL SCOTT

UD EXTENSION

The Winter Olympics is a perfect theme to add some fun physical activities to your family time. What better way to get the kids interested in physical activities then by hosting your own Winter Olympic Games? According to 2007 Youth Risk Behavior Survey data, almost one-third of Delaware high school students are either overweight or obese, and only one in every three students meets recommended levels of daily activity. The impact on the health and future lives of our youth is being compromised by sedentary lifestyles that neglect physical activity. Now is a good time to shake off the winter doldrums and get physically active.

Start by forming a group of family members or neighbors to meet as the official Olympic planning committee. Plan to host your own opening ceremony festivities, create unique competitive events, and staging for the medal award ceremonies and a closing celebration. Decide who will design the invitations, how many people will form a team, and select the games and competitive events. You might form an artistic subcommittee to design the official T-shirts, make team flags with the Olympic logo and design the winning medals. Consider a team mascot using a favorite cartoon character or getting the family pet in the action. And don't forget the hospitality committee to plan the food and festivities for the closing ceremonies.

Choose events in which all ages and abilities can participate. With the recent snow accumulation, you may even be able to organize your own backyard skiing and bob-sled events. An outdoor biathlon event might include a sled run and snowball toss obstacle course. Or plan a simple winter walking trail and wear pedometers to measure the results. Plan to have a mix of outdoor and indoor events in case the weather is uncooperative. Some of the events can be just for fun table top races. Consider building an ice cube obstacle course using cardboard or old toy race car tracks. If you have a Wii video game, look for the Wii Ski and Snowboard video games to add to the event roster for some indoor action.

Use a dry erase board to keep track of each team's score by posting the daily medal count. Keep the competitive spirit appropriate with an emphasis on fun and physical activity by emphasizing the Olympic creed "the most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part."

For evening entertainment, consider a rental movie with an Olympic theme such as "Cool Runnings," the true story of the Jamaican bobsled team, or "Miracle" about the US amateur hockey team. Plan for some healthy snacks such as fruit smoothies, granola mix, and peanut butter celery sticks, or make your own English muffin pizzas with a selection of toppings.

With a little bit of creativity, the Olympic theme can provide plenty of inspiration for your family to have fun, ramp up your physical activities, and foster a little competitive spirit while putting your knowledge of Olympic traditions into the action.

Funk honored by hotel group

Mayor Vance Funk, III was presented with the 2009 Legislator of the Year Award by the Delaware Hotel and Lodging Association. Those nominating Funk spoke of his dedication to tourism in the City of Newark. His success in championing the annual Taste of Newark event was touted as being a significant and cherished contribution to Newark life and in great demand by visitors. His availability to personally meet with out of town guests attending conferences or any of the downtown Newark events and his leadership role in attracting new residents through relocation as a result of the Base Relocation and Closure Act (BRAC) made him a standout legislator for Delaware's tourism industry. Shown from left are: Michael Waite, Funk, and Brad Wenger, chairman of DHLA.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is an undated winter season view of the oldest college building in Newark. Opened in 1834, this building housed the institution originally chartered as NewArk College. It was the only campus facility until nearby Recitation Hall was built in 1888 by the then Delaware College. In the early 1900's, Miss Elizabeth Smithson was the House Mother in the boy's dorm in the west (left) wing. After renovations in 1917, the building was renamed "Old College." By the 1950's, the apartment was part of the University Band rehearsal hall as the Music Department occupied the west wing, a student dining room was in the center "Oratory" area, and the Military Science Department was in the east wing. At that time, Army ROTC was compulsory for all men for two years.

After being transported back to police headquarters, all three suspects admitted to spray painting on the premises and told officers that they had thrown the paint can onto the CSX tracks. Officers recovered the can and entered it as evidence.

All three youths were given trespass warnings and told never to return to the shopping center. Warrants are pending.

Prison time in molesting case

A Delaware man received an eight-year prison term on Thursday for molesting two boys in an Elkton-area home over a two-month period last year, according to Cecil County Circuit Court records.

Guy Smith, 36, of Newark, sexually abused the boys, ages 12 and 14, several times from February to April 2009 after befriending the victims' mother and gaining her trust, according to Assistant State's Attorney Kevin B. Urick, who prosecuted the case.

"He ingratiated himself to the mother to gain access to the boys. In many ways, he became the man of the house. He babysat the boys and supervised them," Urick explained.

The boys eventually disclosed the abuse to someone they trusted who contacted authorities.

Detective Jason Crawford of the Cecil County Sheriff's Office arrested Smith on April 22, according to court records, which also indicate that a Cecil County grand jury handed up a four-count indictment against Smith on May 7.

On Dec. 11, Smith pleaded guilty to two counts of sexual child abuse, which is punishable by up to 25 years in prison per offense.

Then on Thursday, Visiting Judge Christian Kahl imposed a 10-year sentence on Smith and suspended two years of it. The judge also imposed the same sentence, making it concurrent, for the second sexual child abuse conviction.

Smith, who had been jailed on a $50,000 bond after his arrest, will serve his eight-year term in a Maryland Department of Corrections prison.

Upon his prison release, Smith must serve five years of supervised probation. As probation conditions, Smith must register as a convicted sex offender and he must have no contact with the victims.

Local eatery expands to 2nd location

Santa Fe Mexican Grill announced the recent opening of their second location, Santa Fe Wilmington, located at 2006 Pennsylvania Ave., Wilmington. Make no mistake, this location is not a repeat of the well made tacos and burritos from the Main Street, Newark restaurant. Santa Fe Wilmington is geared toward a more sophisticated palate craving the tastes of Latin America, owners note.

Owners Javier and Andres Acuna began looking for a location for their second restaurant almost two years ago. Finding a spot next to Michael Christopher's on Pennsylvania Avenue, the duo began renovations in November 2009 and opened on January 22, 2010, taking very little time in creating one of Wilmington's newest establishments. Architect Marjorie Rothberg designed an interior reminiscent of an old Mexican cantina, complete with bench seating along one wall and a trio of alcoves for a bit of privacy.

"The city [Wilmington] has worked well with us," stated Javier Acuna, manager of the Wilmington restaurant, citing the speed and efficiency of the project. "We chose this location to bring our special flavors to both the downtown and Greenville areas," he continued. Though the dinner crowd has been continuous, Acuna hopes to attract more downtown patrons with his lunch-time specials.

Both Javier and his brother Andres, manager of the Newark site, came to the United States from Columbia over ten years ago, bringing with them the tastes of their grandmother's kitchen and a desire to serve quality Latin cuisine. Stints with Wilmington establishments El Tapatio and Lamberti's Cucina helped hone their kitchen and managerial skills and provided the experience to open their own place.

Santa Fe Wilmington features dishes from Central and South America with a twist. Acuna says that the menu was created to blend spicy elements such as peppers and chorizo with savory ingredients like sundried tomatoes and green olives to highlight the diversity of tastes of the Americas. Seasonal dishes will be added to the menu as ingredients come into the area. "[Though] Columbia has only two seasons: summer and winter, we want to cook dishes that reflect all four seasons."

The 90-seat restaurant also features an expansive bar area, along with a variety of high-end tequilas and a wine selection from South America, California, Spain, and Portugal. The restaurant also sports a 16-seat dining room called "Biblioteca", which can be used for either private occasions or business meetings. A flat screen TV allows for the option of multimedia presentations or to catch up on the local sports scores. Javier Acuna stated that the room has been very popular and that several bookings have been made for the spring months.

Future events include live music, salsa dancing, and, according to Javier, special surprises, such as their Cinco de Mayo celebration.

Hours are Mon.-Tues., 11:30 am-11 pm; Weds.-Fri., 11:30 am-1 am; Sat., 5 pm-1 am; Sunday, 5-11 pm. For more information, please call 302-425-5200 or visit santafewilmington.com.

Downes celebrates Chinese New Year

On Friday February 19, the students at Downes ES rang in the Year of the Tiger with a parade that featured musicians from Mr. Ambrosino's 3rd, 4th, and 5th general music class. Some members of the "Year of the Tiger Performing Ensemble" played recorders, others accompanied on percussion instruments such as gongs, wood blocks, and recycled metal pipes to create the music for the parade based on traditional Chinese styles.

In addition to the music, other performers improvised a dragon dance featuring an 8 foot red and gold dragon and its entourage that included a handler, fire bearers (waving red scarves to represent flames), a fan bearer (to keep the dragon cool along the way) and the dragon "pooper scooper" (to add a bit of comedy to the festivities). Art students from Ms.

Beck's art classes created lanterns and other traditional decorations for the hallway. Two students (the Carpenter twins!) painted a life-like tiger banner to lead the parade.

This unit incorporated music, visual art, dance, reading, and geography. To prepare for the dragon parade, the classes read books, listened to music, studied maps, and found research on the Internet to discover how and why Chinese American communities celebrate the lunar New Year.

IT'S TIME FOR

SUMMER CAMP 2010

DAY CAMPS • RESIDENT CAMPS • SPECIAL NEEDS CAMPS • FAMILY CAMPS

WHERE WILL YOU BE THIS SUMMER WHEN WE'RE HAVING ALL THE FUN?

SUPPLEMENT TO THE CECIL WHIG AND NEWARK POST

The camp experience is essential for all children

Research by the American Camp Association confirms that camp builds skills necessary to prepare campers to assume roles as successful adults. There is a camp for every child, and every child deserves the opportunities and skills that camp develops.

Camp helps children develop critical skills such as leadership, independence, and the ability to make authentic human connections. And while camp might be thought of as a privilege, research shows that all children benefit from the experiences camp offers. For example:

- C5 Youth Foundation was started as a way to give underprivileged children in the Los Angeles area an opportunity to benefit from camp. Students begin the five-year program in the seventh grade. The program has seen amazing results. Seventy-eight percent of the students who begin the program complete the program, of those who complete the program, one hundred percent graduate from high school, and ninety-eight percent go on to college.

- Camp Sunshine, located in Maine, provides a year-round, free program to children facing life-threatening illnesses and their families. This unique approach provides respite, support, joy and hope through various stages of the child's illness.

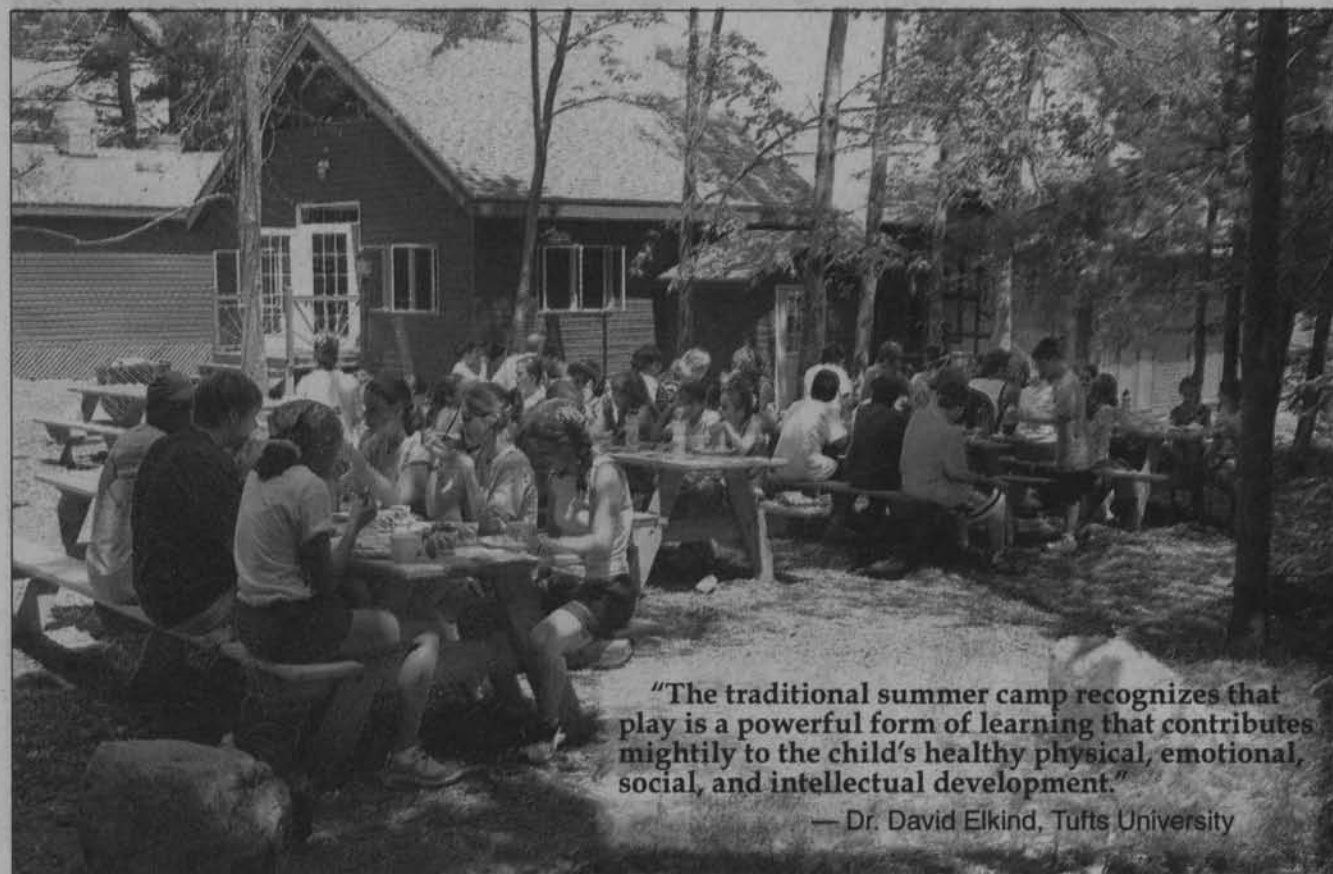

- The essence of the UCLA UniCamp program is relationship based — camper and UCLA student. At least 160 campers ages ten to fourteen participate in each eight-day resident camp session. This program provides a service-learning opportunity for campers, enabling them to obtain leadership experience helping in camp operations. Each year, UniCamp inspires nearly 1,000 children from low-income families to envision better futures as they grow and learn alongside nearly 350 student volunteers.

- Camp Twin Lakes, located in Rutledge, Georgia, is a nonprofit, year-round program for children with serious illnesses and special needs. Campers gain self-esteem, self-awareness, independence, and a sense of belonging by participating in recreational, therapeutic and educational programs in a supportive, nurturing, fully-accessible environment.

- Project Morry is a year-round program anchored by a summer camp experience. The program, which serves inner-city youth, boasts a one hundred percent graduation rate in areas where the average graduation rate is below 50 percent.

The American Camp Association community works tirelessly to provide a camp opportunity for every child through partnerships and camp scholarships. Most independent for-profit camps support ACA's efforts and their nonprofit counterparts with donations, in-kind services, fund-raisers, and volunteer efforts. ■

"The traditional summer camp recognizes that play is a powerful form of learning that contributes mightily to the child's healthy physical, emotional, social, and intellectual development."

Consider a specialty camp

Camps are designed in a variety of styles and formats and provide activities that vary to meet many interests. Most camps offer a general program of outdoor activities of hiking, swimming, sports and games, arts and crafts, and nature awareness.

Some camps have special emphasis on programs such as horseback riding, water sports, music, or adventure challenge activities. While camps provide facilities and services for a broad range of children, youth, and adults, some camps provide services to special groups: seniors, families, gifted and talented children, youth at risk, diabetics, or persons with disabilities.

Types of camps

Of the estimated 12,000 American camps, approximately 8,000+ are resident camps and 4,000+ are day camps. Resident camps are designed for campers staying at camp from several days to eight weeks. Campers sleep overnight in cabins, tents, tepees or other forms of shelter, and participate in a variety of supervised activities.

Having grown by nearly 90 percent in the past 20 years, day camps offer sessions and age-appropriate programs similar to resident camps. Campers are often transported to camp by a bus or van, and return home each day in the late afternoon.

Other trends incorporate less traditional models for the camp experience. Trip Camps provide programs where the participants transport themselves to different sites by backpacking, riding, or canoeing. Travel camps often transport campers by car or bus to geographic and topographic places of interest.

In addition to the increase of children with disabilities being mainstreamed into camps, many new camps have opened to provide specialized services to children with special medical needs.

Many camps work with schools to provide environmental education during the school year, provide year round program and food services, and have some year round staff.

Program trends

In an ACA survey, 75 percent of the directors reported adding new activities and programs over the last few years.

The most common program trends in camps are challenging and adventurous activities including high and low ropes courses, climbing walls, zip lines, backpacking, mountain biking, and cave exploring.

There is also an increased emphasis on performing arts such as dance, theater, and singing, and on and fine arts including ceramics, leather crafts, woodworking, and photography.

Whatever your child's interest, chances are good there's a specialty camp that is a perfect fit.

56 percent of camps surveyed report having community service or good deed programs incorporated into the camp curriculum. Top projects? Community clean-ups, food drives, recycling programs, and volunteering with senior citizens and hospital patients.

Kids need time to play

Peg L. Smith, CEO of the American Camp Association, endorses the recent public awareness for the importance of free play in the development of children. "ACA camps, for nearly 100 years, have provided children with the opportunity to play in a safe and nurturing environment. Our anecdotal and scientific research points to the positive effect camp has on the lives of children—offering a unique and valuable experience that allows kids to just be kids—providing a very special place where their mental, personal, emotional, and physical needs are nurtured."

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recently published a report that warns that children are experiencing less and less imaginative free play. AAP concludes that free and unstructured play is healthy and—in fact—essential for helping children reach important social, emotional, and cognitive developmental milestones as well as helping them manage stress and become resilient.

According to Tufts University child development expert Dr. David Elkind, American children seem to be in constant motion—their schedules packed with homework, chores, music lessons, and organized sports. With a lack of time for good, old-fashioned play for children, there can be health and psychological consequences.

Dr. Elkind, keynote speaker for the 2007 American Camp Association National Conference, states that traditional summer camp is an oasis for children: "The traditional summer camp recognizes that play is a powerful form of learning that contributes mightily to the child's healthy physical, emotional, social, and intellectual development."

Smith continues, "We heartily agree with Dr. Elkind when he recommends to parents that more play should be added to our children's lives—and we in the camp community revel in watching children discover their place in the world."

Is your child ready for camp?

Answering these questions will help you determine when your child is ready for camp.

* What is your child's age? Children under age 7 may not adjust easily to being away from home. Consider the day camp experience to prepare them for future overnight camp.

* Has your child had positive overnight experiences away from home? Visited relatives or friends? Were these separations easy or difficult?

* What does your child expect to do at camp? Learning about the camp experience ahead of time allows you to create positive expectations.

* Are you able to share consistent and positive messages about camp? Your confidence in a positive experience will be contagious.

* Are your child's expectations reasonable? Camp, like most of life, has high and low points. Not every moment will be filled with wonder and excitement. Encourage children discuss both the ups and downs they may experience.

What to pack — what to leave home

Bedding

Select easily laundered bedding that is appropriate for the climate at your camp. Articles to include are sleeping bags, sheets and pillowcases, blankets, and pillows.

Towels and toiletries

Towels should not be the family's best, since they'll be used for swimming and other waterfront activities as well as for showers. A small bag or plastic bucket will help campers carry and keep track of essentials such as soap, shampoo, toothpaste, deodorant, comb, and brush. At some camps, campers walk to separate facilities to shower.

Clothes and laundry

The frequency of laundry day at camp affects how much clothing to pack. Generally, sessions under two weeks in length do not include laundry services. Always send along an extra pillowcase or laundry bag for dirty clothing.

Most camps supply lists of recommended clothing and some include required uniforms. In general, camp gear should be comfortable and durable clothing suitable for active days at camp.

- shorts, T-shirts, sweater/jacket and jeans
- long pants for leg protection on hikes and horseback rides
- a hat
- a raincoat or poncho

Equipment

- Flashlight with extra batteries
- Camera and film
- Canteen or water bottle
- Insect repellent, sunscreen and lip balm
- Pre-addressed, stamped postcards or envelopes

Medication

Send medication in original bottles, along with dosage instructions, to the camp nurse or health care facility. Your medical release form should list all medications.

A camp for every child: finding a perfect fit

Camp can last for just a few days or stretch to all summer long. It's well worth the trouble to investigate camp programs before your camper packs a backpack. These questions help you explore the options.

1. NEAR OR FAR?

Where do you want your child to go to camp? Locally or far away? While each camp experience has something to offer your child, this is an opportunity to assess what you value for your camper.

Near means:

- * easier to evaluate and visit
- * friends and family likely familiar with camp
- * minimal travel costs
- * likely contact with classmates or children from same region
- * correspondence to and from campers is quicker

Far means:

- * more choices
- * different experiences, different geography, e.g., mountains or oceans — even different languages
- * promotes independence, particularly for early and late adolescent campers
- * diversity of campers
- * chance for family to visit at close of camp

2. TRADITIONAL, SPECIALTY, OR SPECIAL NEEDS?

Understanding the strengths in camp focus may help you make your choice.

Traditional means

- * wide variety of activities
- * chance for campers to try new activities
- * exposure to more campers and staff at varying activities

Specialty means

- * one or two specialized activities (often combined with traditional offerings)
- * expectation for increased proficiency during camping session
- * deepens knowledge and skill in particular area of interest or ability

Special needs means

- * activities geared to campers' abilities
- * knowledgeable staff with expertise to understand campers' challenges
- * supportive and fun atmosphere to share with others

3. SHORT OR LONG SESSION?

How long do you want your child to remain at camp?

Short sessions (1 to 3 weeks) means

- * first-time or younger campers have a chance to learn new skills
- * bonds develop with other campers and staff
- * great exposure to camp experience with less expense
- * minimizing homesickness

Longer sessions (4 to 12 weeks) means

- * strong sense of belonging to camp community
- * chance to learn new skills
- * development of specialized skills
- * multiple opportunities for learning and enrichment
- * lifelong friendships
- * opportunities to contribute to camp culture

4. GIRLS ONLY, BOYS ONLY, OR CO-ED?

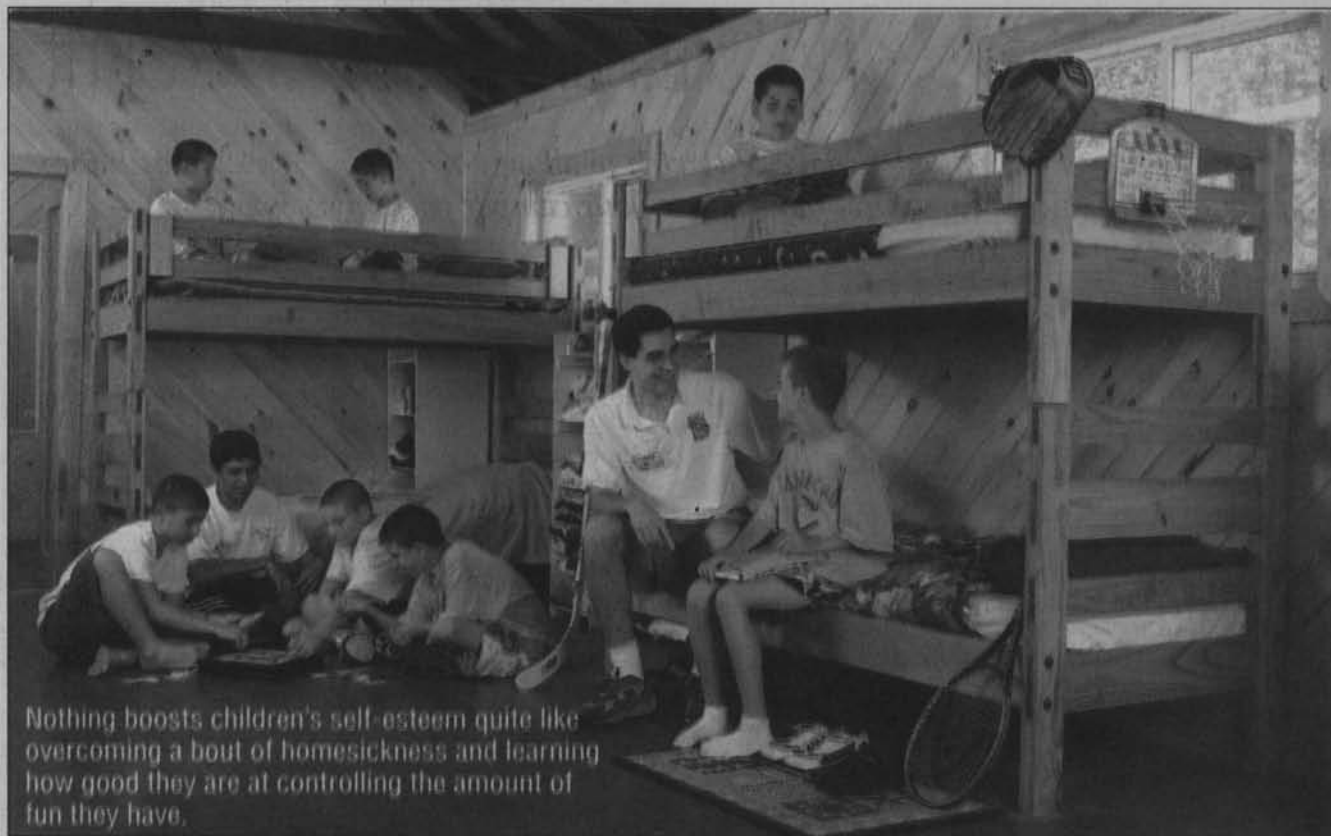

Take the time to explore this choice with your camper.

Single-sex camp means:

- * Breaking gender stereotypes — girls interact with women in positions of authority and boys interact with men who act as nurturers
- * More opportunities to "be yourself" without impressing or competing with the opposite sex
- * Camp philosophy may be tuned into gender strengths and weaknesses
- * Brother or sister camps may share activities

Co-ed camp means:

- * Breaking gender stereotypes — girls interact with women in positions of authority and boys interact with men who act as nurturers
- * Mirrors and prepares campers for everyday living — the world is co-ed
- * Allows families with a boy and a girl to attend same camp
- * Offers diverse points of view
- * Breaks through rigid divisions set up in school when campers participate on equal footing

Nothing boosts children's self-esteem quite like overcoming a bout of homesickness and learning how good they are at controlling the amount of fun they have.

How do you deal with homesickness?

Homesickness is, above all, a normal feeling. It is the natural result of separating from home and loved ones. In a recent study, nearly 96 percent of all boys and girls who were spending two weeks or more at overnight camp reported some homesickness on at least one day. Almost all children (and grown-ups!) feel homesick when they're away from home. But the feelings can vary widely in intensity.

What causes it?

There are several factors that put children at greater risk for becoming homesick. Children with little previous experience away from home, children who have low expectations of camp, children who feel forced to go to camp, children who are unsure whether adults will help them if they need help, children who have little practice coping with negative emotions, and children whose parents express a lot of anxiety are most likely to feel homesick.

You may be surprised to learn that some factors have nothing to do with the intensity of homesickness. These include geographic distance between home and camp and the presence of a friend from home at camp.

Most feelings of homesickness are not problematic. In fact, missing home isn't a problem until it becomes a preoccupation. When the feelings of sadness and anxiety associated with missing home become so strong that making friends, having fun, sleeping, eating, and participating in activities is difficult, something must be done.

What can be done?

It used to be thought that feelings of missing home disappeared spontaneously after a few days at camp. Although this is true for some cases of mild homesickness, research has demonstrated that if left unchecked, homesickness can intensify over time. The best remedy is a two-pronged approach: (1) prevent homesickness at home, before it starts; and (2) actively cope at camp, if natural feelings of homesickness reach problematic levels.

The best at-home prevention strategies include:

- working together as a family to select a camp, plan, and pack
- spending "practice time" away from home, such as a long weekend at a friend's house
- experimenting with the best coping strategies during this practice separation
- preparing pre-stamped, pre-addressed envelopes to bring to camp

The best in-camp interventions for homesick campers include:

- staying busy
- talking with someone
- remembering that you're not at camp for your whole life — just a few weeks
- writing letters home

Watch out!

The most common mistake parents make is the Pick-Up Deal. It's normal for children to ask, "What if I feel homesick?" Tell your child that some feelings of homesickness are normal and help him practice coping before camp starts.

But never ever say, "If you feel homesick, I'll come and get you." This conveys a message of doubt and pity that undermines children's confidence and independence. Pick-up deals become mental crutches and self-fulfilling prophecies for children as soon as they arrive at camp. If, after spending practice time away from home, a child is still very anxious about overnight camp, consider waiting until next summer.

The good news

When children arrive at camp with a repertoire of coping strategies, they are ready for those normal feelings of homesickness. Sure, they'll miss home, but they'll know exactly what to think and do when it bothers them. Best of all, the staff at a high quality camp will be there to help.

Don't despair: camp can be budget-friendly

Most parents were well aware of the recession long before the official announcement in late 2008. Many families have taken steps to trim any "fat" from their budgets – the purse strings are simply pulled too tight to factor in a night at the go-cart track or that family trip to the Grand Canyon. Parents may not realize that even with tightening budgets, the life-changing experience of camp is still within reach.

"I'm a great believer in you don't have to go to the most expensive camp to have a great camp experience," said Phil Lilienthal, former camp director of Camp Winnebago in Maine and Global Camps Africa CEO.

If you're dealing with an experienced and caring staff of camp counselors, "you can have a program in a parking lot, and it can be great," he said.

Parents looking for budget-friendly camps should consider some of these tips for finding funding:

- The ACA camp community generates $39 million annually for camp scholarships. Don't be afraid to call the camp director and ask if financial assistance is available.

- Contact your area's regional office of the American Camp Association. Go to www.CampParents.org and click on the Local Offices link at the bottom of the page.

- Check with your church or synagogue.
- Get in touch with social services groups in your community.

- Visit individual camp web sites. Most clearly outline whether or not they offer financial assistance for their campers.

Independently run camp and not sponsored by the University of Delaware.

Instructional/Team Camp's Philosophy

June 27-30 (Ages 8-18)

Three 2 and 1/2 hour daily instructional sessions ensure that your child will receive the maximum amount of lacrosse instruction. Campers are grouped according to age, size, and skill level. Instructional emphasis will be on positional & skill play in the morning, team concepts in the afternoon, with games played at the end of each session and in the evening. There will be special individual emphasis on face-off and goalie mechanics. The camper to coach ratio will be 6:1 ensuring maximum exposure to the game of lacrosse. Players can attend as individuals. Teams are also encouraged to attend.

2010 Blue Hen Challenge Tournament

(Grades 9-12) July 9-11

Competitive High School Team Tournament. Players can sign up as an individual and assigned to an independent team. High School teams and club programs are encouraged to enroll. The 3 day tournament begins with a brief NCAA instructional teaching session followed by a competitive team tournament Friday night, Saturday and ending Sunday at the University of Delaware. A tournament final four on Sunday afternoon will determine the tournament champion. College coaches will be invited to attend. UD Dorms are available or local hotels are nearby.

STX/Cascade Boy's Youth Invitational Elementary and Middle School Youth Tournament

Only No High School age players

Competitive Youth Tournament for U-14 (can be high school age players), U-13, U-11, U-9. The 2 day tournament will have 4 games on Saturday and 3 games on Sunday followed by a Final Four for each age bracket. Players on the winning team of each bracket will receive a STX stick and Cascade helmet of their choice and design.

A look at Newark's colorful past

On April 15, 1758, England's King George II took time away from his busy schedule of managing a country to consider the future of a piece of land "ten miles west of New Castle, at the intersection of two very public roads, the one leading from New Castle to the Cross Roads in Chester county, and the other leading from Kent and Sussex to New Garden."

This land was known to its inhabitants – many of them English, Welsh and Scottish immigrants – as Newark. And, on that April day, King George recognized the town's powers to have "fairs yearly, and one weekly market there for the encouragement of trade." Thus, the town of Newark became official.

Businesses in the region, including the St. Patrick Inn, served travelers en route from the Chesapeake Bay area to colonial Philadelphia. Saw and gristmills were powered by local streams, and nearby Iron Hill supplied iron ore. Farmland surrounded the village.

Soon, a new industry came to town – one that continues to drive Newark's economy today. The State of Delaware in 1833 recognized the need for higher education and granted a charter to a new institution, Newark College, later renamed Delaware College.

In 1914, a Women's College began operating, and the two institutions combined in 1944 as the University of Delaware.

The village of Newark grew into a small city around the college and marketplace. Railroads linked Newark to points north and west. Curtis Paper Company, Continental Fiber and National Vulcanized Fibre brought industry to the economy. In 1855, the town's first bank was established.

The population grew through the 1920s, and a retail market developed in conjunction with the university. World War II and the Korean conflict hurried the pace of industrial and commercial development. DuPont opened facilities in the 1940s, and the Chrysler Corporation constructed its Newark Assembly Plant in 1951.

A charter from the State of Delaware in 1951 effectively doubled the city's size, creating the basic outline of today's Newark.

By the late 1990s, Newark renewed its commitment to the downtown core. The city worked with builders to redevelop historic buildings, and the Downtown Newark Partnership formed of representatives from the city, university and business community to improve economic vitality. The resulting intermingling of residential, university and retail uses creates a busy and lively environment, attracting Newark residents and others from Bear, Glasgow and beyond.

The Deer Park Inn has been a popular watering hole for decades.

Unique events and classy restaurants have made downtown Newark a destination.

A brief history of Bear-Glasgow

Early settlers of the Bear-Glasgow area would be hard pressed to recognize it today. In the 1700s the area was largely agricultural with flour and saw mills keeping farmers busy.

The old Bear Tavern, from which the community took its name, flourished during early colonial times. Stagecoaches would stop with weary travelers heading west on what we now call Rt. 40, then just a dirt road. And yes, George Washington stopped and drank here on his way from Wilmington to Mount Vernon, a trip that was documented by a receipt dated Aug. 10, 1795.

In 1809, the New Castle-Frenchtown Turnpike Company was organized. The turnpike became an important thoroughfare which came through Bear. It was a main road used on the East Coast from approximately 1817 to 1833.

In 1829, the General Assembly authorized the construction of tracks along the turnpike. The 17-mile railroad, some distance south of the road and turnpike, began operations with horse drawn cars, which looked like stagecoaches on July 4, 1831.

An English locomotive arrived the following year, and the "Delaware" made its maiden trip, opening the first regular steam passenger rail line in the country. This led to prosperity in the region and fueled the progress of Bear and Glasgow throughout the 1800s and beyond.

Greater Newark

Whether you're visiting for the day, have just moved to the area or have lived here your whole life, you're bound to enjoy all the region can offer. This guide will help you Discover Newark - then and now.

The region, which includes the communities of Glasgow and Bear, is steeped in cultural diversity and history. Last year, the City of Newark celebrated the 250th anniversary of England's King George II granting a charter to the town.

History plays an important role in daily life here, but the area also has a vibrant present and a promising future. Newark's downtown provides a lively atmosphere for shopping and dining. The city hosts fun, family-friendly events throughout the year, including Newark Nite and Community Day. These attract tens of thousands of visitors to Newark's downtown every summer and fall.

The University of Delaware enhances the city's youthful feel and adds to the athletic and cultural activities offered in the region.

It's an economically vibrant area, within Newark and in the Bear and Glasgow regions. Business expansion is complemented by new homes, and city leaders and organizations have made economic development a priority for the coming years.

We welcome you to Greater Newark and hope you enjoy traveling through the region, putting down roots here, or just visiting for the day.

Newark is a busy town for business

Newark has been busy with business since an open-air market first opened on Main Street with a charter from England's King George II in April 1758. Today, businesses continue to thrive on Newark's Main Street and beyond.

Many companies have served generations of customers here, and their stores double as Newark landmarks. Some businesses, especially those in the restaurant industry, are up-and-coming and have created a new buzz that has attracted customers from around the region.

Though all of Newark's businesses are worth mentioning here, that is impossible. Instead, here's a history of several that have become Newark institutions over the years.

Minster's Jewelers

"Retailing changes as our country and our economy change," said Marilyn Minster of Minster's Jewelers.

She should know. Minster's Jewelers, which opened in the summer of 1955 as part of the then-newly constructed Newark Shopping Center on Main Street, has remained flexible and changed with the times.

"Thousands came to the Newark Shopping Center," Marilyn reminisced, "not only to see the only in-town Shopping Center in Delaware, but also to enjoy the entertainment."

Main Street, at first two-way, became one-way April 2, 1957, which upset the Newark Shopping Center owner. He was sure they needed the two-way traffic for business.

Marilyn said, with a laugh, that she wished the owner was alive today because he would be amazed at all the traffic on Main Street.

Minster's opened with a complete jewelry store and gift shop - silver, crystals, watches, diamonds, gift items, cards, stationery, watch and jewelry repair, as well as a complete optical department. Later on, they added a full service bridal registry.

However, the retail climate changed with the opening of more and more gift and card shops. Minster's responded by gradually phasing out their giftware and cards.

With the advent of "discount," Minster's again changed with the times. Their focus was now just on jewelry, colored stones, karat gold and diamonds. The jewelry repair section moved to the front of the store. A glass partition was put in, so that customers could watch their jewelry being repaired.

Minster's started in Elkton, Md., in 1895. The same family has owned the business for 112 years.

Marilyn started working in the business when she was a teenager, and, 65 years later, still doesn't tire of getting up and coming to work. It is her passion, she said.

Deer Park Tavern

While Minster's has a long history in the Newark area, a few businesses in the city date back even further, with origins in the 1700s. One of those businesses is the Deer Park Tavern at the intersection of Main Street and Elkton Road.

The tavern sits on (or near, there is some debate) the spot occupied by the St. Patricks Inn, a favorite resting place for travelers passing through Newark in the 1700s. Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon (known for their line – the Mason-Dixon line) were said to have stayed at the inn with their team in 1764.

During the American Revolution, soldiers stayed there, and, it has been said that George Washington spent the night there. Another famous, rumored guest was Edgar Allan Poe, said to have visited in 1843. The Tavern proudly displays a black Raven in Poe's honor.

At some point, a fire destroyed the St. Patrick Inn. James S. Martin bought the 243 acres of land, including the rubble of the inn, and built the Deer Park Hotel in 1851. He named the hotel after his farm, which got its name from a grove of deer that often filled the nearby landscape.

In much more recent history, the Deer Park underwent major renovations in 2001 under the ownership of local restaurateur Robert Ashby. Ashby restored the building, opened up the second and third floors for offices and a fine dining area and added a porch onto the second floor.

The tavern continues to be a favorite choice for Newark residents and University of Delaware students for a night out on the town.

Bing's Bakery

When Tom and Carla Guzzi bought Bing's Bakery, in November 2005, they felt as if they were going into partnership with Selena Bing.

"We still feel her presence here," Tom said. "She wanted to make sure Newark continued to have a bakery."

Bing's, founded in May 15, 1946 by Russell and Selena Bing, is the second oldest continuously operated business on Main Street. Located at 253 E. Main, it's a full-line scratch bakery. Brides-to-be come to Bing's for their wedding cakes, oftentimes because their mothers and grandmothers also got their wedding cakes at this bakery.

"We're a tradition," said Carla. "The other day a mother came in to get a birthday cake for her 42-year-old son. She's been getting his birthday cake from Bing's ever since he was born."

Tom, who was head baker at Bing's Bakery since November 1996, was taken aback when people would come in and ask for Selena's autograph (Russell Bing died in 1979; Selena passed away in 2006). It happened more than once.

"Selena believed in the community," Tom said. "She was on several committees, like the Downtown Newark Partnership."

Tom and Carla, originally from Staten Island, New York, are committed to upholding, and expanding, the Bing's legacy and have included several diverse baked goods in their day-to-day operations, like New York Style Cheesecakes and Cannolis.

"At the end of the work day," Carla said, "whatever hasn't been sold is donated to local charities. We're determined to start fresh, everyday."

McDonald's on Main Street

Leonard Dukart, a Chicago native, opened the first McDonald's in Delaware on E. Main Street, March 15, 1960. It was the 225th franchise in the United States, and one of the first McDonald's on the East Coast.

Leonard's son, Les Dukart, remembers the day the doors opened. "It took awhile until it really became successful," he said. "McDonald's wasn't a household name at that time, and never were hamburgers sold that cheap before." Hamburgers sold for just 15 cents, and fries, milkshakes and sodas rounded out the menu.

Les said his father, a friend of McDonald's founder Ray Kroc, had a lot of confidence in the product, and time proved him to be right.

Now, the family owns 12 restaurants – seven in New Castle County, including two in Newark, and five in Pennsylvania. Four family members – Les and his brother, and Les' oldest son and grandson – continue to work in the family business.

The building has been renovated several times, once out of necessity. An explosion at the store in December 1974 destroyed the original building. The explosion happened when a CO2 canister fell over in the basement and punctured a gas line, said Les. "Thank God very few people were hurt and nobody was killed," he said.

When the store reopened in 1976, it was a new, modern facility with a drive-thru – the third one to open on the East Coast. The Newark location also had one of the first Playplaces, said Les. "We've been trailblazers in McDonald's," he said.

Newark Natural Foods Co-op

In the summer of 2005, the Newark Natural Foods Co-op celebrated its 30th anniversary.

The Co-op began informally in 1967 as a food-buying club, a place for Newark residents to purchase unrefined, organically grown food.

As the number of people ordering food grew, the

Co-op found space at a local church to set up shop. Then, in 1975, the organization incorporated and moved to a location on Haines Street where Switch skateboard shop is today. The Co-op began selling shares to households at $50 a piece.

Membership grew, as did the variety of foods available. In the late 1980s, the Co-op decided to have a more competitive image and moved into the Main Street building where it continues to thrive today.

Now, the active membership of the Co-op exceeds 3,000 households. The organization continues to serve the purpose laid out in its bylaws: "...to be a social service organization; to set up and operate facilities for the benefit of consumer members; to provide goods and services whose production and distribution are based on sound ecological and cooperative development; to advance the cooperative movement; and to service members within the scope of the Articles of Incorporation and to the fullest extent permitted by statute."

Herman's Quality Meats

Last year, when Chris Herman put the finishing touches on a cookbook she compiled for her family business' 40th anniversary, her four children helped her come up with a name for it: "Everybody knows us as Herman's, Mom," they told her.

And so the cookbook, which included the writings and recipes of longtime customers, photographs and a history of the shop, was simply deemed, "Herman's - Celebrating Forty Years of Service."

Herman's Quality Meat Shoppe opened in 1967 in the former McMullen's Market on Main Street. Luther and Jeanette Herman were the original owners and received help from their children, Tim, Lynn, Terri and Curt.

In 1970, the family moved their business to a location on Cleveland Avenue, where it's been ever since.

The business has been an integral part of the community throughout its 40 years. Herman's has hosted school visits and supported a variety of organizations, from the American Cancer Society to Little League Baseball.

A new generation of the family took over the store in 1992. Tim and Chris Herman continue the family tradition of above-and-beyond customer service to this day.

Dr. Cox (times three!)

The Green Mansion at the stoplight at Academy Street and E. Main Street has been "home" to the Cox family since 1940.

Dr. Thomas Cox, who took over the dentist office in 1975, said that his father, Dr. Clyde Cox, bought half of the Green Mansion, which is made from Avondale Green Stone, in 1940. Clyde was in Florida, providing dental care to U.S. troops a few years later, when he got the call to buy the other half of the building.

Asked what he remembered about his father's 30-plus years of practice, Thomas talked about Miss Law, who worked in the office. "They argued all the time," he said. "She did everything - filing, answering the phone, bookkeeping, mixing fillings, X-rays, cleaning the office." Clyde would say, "Miss Law, I need you back here," and she'd reply, "I'm on the phone, I can't be in two places at one time."

Thomas elaborated, talking about how his father would sing, trying out songs on various patients, and Miss Law would say, "Don't be singing so many songs. We have other people waiting!"

When Thomas took over the business, he enlarged the workspace. He knocked down a wall that separated the office from his grandmother's house (she lived there from 1950 - 1955), and now his grandmother's old kitchen is the present-day dental staff's lounge.

Thomas expects to retire in about seven years.

Erin, his daughter, who works in the office now as a dentist, will take over. "My staff remembers sitting her (Erin) on the counter when she was a little thing, and now they will be working for her," he said, laughing at the thought.

The National 5 & 10

The National 5 & 10 on Main Street is a true piece of Americana.

Around the turn of the 20th-century, Louis Handloff took the train down from Philadelphia to find a better place for his family to live. He liked what he saw in Newark, and he opened his first variety store, called Handloff's, in the front room of his home. Later, the name was changed to the National 5&10.

Aprons were the first items to be sold. Louis would buy the fabric in Philadelphia, and his wife, Mollie, would make them. Now, the store sells a variety of goods, from University of Delaware apparel to home furnishings and even Halloween costumes.

Fourth-generation owner Brian Handloff says the 5 & 10 was "sort of the early 20th century version of a general store."

The National 5&10 has been a landmark on Newark's Main Street for over a hundred years. By 1954, when this photo was taken, Alvin Handloff had taken over the daily operations from his father. Alvin's son Richard now runs the business along with his son Brian.

Parks and recreation

You don't have to go very far to enjoy a variety of parks and recreational activities. The City of Newark's Parks and Recreation Department maintains 32 parks throughout Newark.

Recreational opportunities include:

Newark Parks and Recreation, Newark

Park facilities include lighted tennis courts, lighted basketball courts, baseball/softball fields, soccer fields, playground areas, shelters, two swimming pools, two street hockey courts, and horse-shoe pits.

In addition to outdoor parks, the department offers year-round programs to individuals three-years old to adult, in its preschool and youth programs, sports, fitness, crafts, dance, visual arts, nature, summer camps, adult activities, bus trips, before and after school programs and community events.

A complete listing of activities and schedules is available in the City of Newark Newsletter, available from the Parks and Recreation office in the Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Road.

Call 366-7060, or go to the Web at www.cityofnewark.de.us.

White Clay Creek State Park, Newark

White Clay is comprised of 3,384 acres of beautiful scenery, including 37 miles of trails. Amenities include horse trails, a nature center, pavilions, picnic grounds, refreshments, playgrounds and bike trails. The nature center hosts educational programs throughout the year. The park hosts special events and evening concerts in the summer, while sledding and cross-country skiing are popular in the winter months. The park is open from 8 a.m. until sunset daily.

Call 368-6560 or the Park Office at 368-6900.

Ashland Nature Center, Hockessin

The Delaware Nature Society maintains this nature center at the intersection of Brackenville and Barley Mill Roads; includes walking trails, a native plant garden, butterfly house and seasonal exhibits.

Call 239-2334 for more information.

Lum's Pond State Park, Glasgow

Delaware's most diversified park offers fishing, hiking, swimming, boating, camping and picnic sites near the state's largest freshwater pond. Call 368-6989.

Newark offers artistic and cultural diversity

The Newark area offers a wealth of cultural activities. On any given night, residents can attend a performance by a community band, view an art show at a downtown restaurant or catch the latest production by a local theater or dance group.

In addition to the wide range of public events sponsored by the University of Delaware, the region plays host to many organizations that promote performing, visual, dramatic and musical arts. Here is a look at some of the best:

Newark Arts Alliance

This non-profit organization, which started in 1993, plays an active role in the Newark community. The NAA hosts art exhibits throughout the year at its in-house gallery, offers a number of educational programs and an art camp, Camp Imagine, for children of lower income levels.

Recently, the NAA relocated to Main Street in Market East Plaza. Stop by their gallery at 276 E. Main Street, Suite 102, to learn more about the group, or visit www.newarkartsalliance.org.

Chapel Street Players

Chapel Street Players have been performing quality theater in Newark since 1934.

The Playhouse is located in the heart of Newark at 27 N. Chapel Street, just off of Main Street. Shows cover a range of genres.

For more information, visit www.chapelstreetplayers.org.

Newark Community Band

The Newark Community Band celebrates 25 years of making music this year. The concert band is made up of mostly amateur and some professional musicians from the city of Newark and surrounding areas.

Ages and backgrounds of members vary greatly, from students majoring in music to older residents who haven't picked up a musical instrument since their high school days.

The band does several performances a year. For more information, visit www.newarkcommunityband.com.

Newark Symphony Orchestra

This talented group of volunteer musicians performs classical music programs with a high-level of skill and has been deemed "Delaware's finest community orchestra."

Under the direction of Roman Pawlowski the orchestra performs chamber and full symphony concerts.

For more information, visit www.newarksymphony.org.

New Ark Chorale

Since its founding in 1977, the New Ark Chorale has been recognized as one of the premier choral music ensembles in the Delaware Valley area. The 30-member group practices and perfects three musical programs each year, offering up to 10 performances throughout the region. For more information, visit www.newarkchorale.org.

Chesapeake Silver Cornet Brass Band

For more than 10 years, the Newark-based Chesapeake Silver Cornet Brass Band has entertained audiences with its unique renditions of marches, big band and classical music.

The all-brass band, made up of 35 volunteers, is Delaware's only all-brass concert band and one of only a few hundred in the United States. The band is comprised of amateur and professional musicians.

For more information, visit www.chesapeakebrassband.org.

A native's guide to downtown destinations

Downtown Newark has a number of interesting stores, flavorful restaurants and quirky finds. Be sure to explore these spots while you're here:

Grassroots Handcrafts – 93 E. Main St.

Grassroots specializes in handcrafts, including clothing and jewelry. The Newark location is the flagship store and is always worth a visit, especially when searching for a creative gift or something unique to spice up your wardrobe or home.

Rainbow Books and Music – 54 E. Main St.

Locally owned and operated, Rainbow buys and sells new and used CDs, DVDs, LPs, and books. Newark residents have enjoyed its comfortable atmosphere and wide selection of books, movies, and music from an array of genres. The store also promotes local musicians during free in-store performances.

Switch Snowboards & Skateboards – 16 Haines St.

Switch carries a wide variety of skateboarding and snowboarding products, from bearings to skate shoes and bindings to outerwear. Snowboards and boots are also available for rental. The store itself is inventively decorated inside and out. Despite its small size, Switch stands out from every other building in the area. It has also proven to be a popular location for local skateboarders.

Village Imports – 165 E. Main St.

Village Imports is home to a variety of gifts including clothing, home décor, jewelry, and toys. Crafts come to Newark from more than 50 countries and are made by skilled artisans looking to support their families with their talents. All products are certified "Fair Trade," which guarantees that artisans receive a fair price for their goods.

Margherita's Pizza – 280 E. Main St.

A landmark for locals. With its tasty, inexpensive pizza, Margherita's is the first pizza place that comes to mind for most Newark natives. Extended hours are an added bonus for those prone to late-night cravings.

The Deer Park Tavern – 108 W. Main St.

A must for any out-of-towner. The Deer Park Tavern was established in 1851 and has stood out in the minds of locals ever since. The Deer Park plays host to local talent on a regular basis and serves a variety of American fare, including burgers, sandwiches, nachos, and wings.

Home Grown Café – 126 E. Main St.

A new favorite of Newark residents. Established in 2002, Home Grown is noted for its vegetarian options but also offers a wide variety of fresh seafood and steaks. A full take-out menu is available, but it would be a shame to miss out on the restaurant's unique décor and funky atmosphere. Local musicians visit on selected dates, and the work of local artists is displayed throughout the restaurant.

Caffé Gelato – 90 E. Main St.

Caffé Gelato quickly worked its way into the hearts of locals with its northern Italian, Mediterranean-inspired dishes and homemade gelato. The menu is complimented by a selection of over 50 wines. The restaurant has received numerous awards and continues to impress Newarkers with its specialty dinner series, live music, and featured local artists.

Ali Baba – 175 E. Main St.

Ali Baba brings culture to Main Street with authentic Middle Eastern cuisine. The menu features a variety of Moroccan, Lebanese, and Iranian dishes. The exotic tapestries adorning the walls, sofa seating, and belly dancers add to the ambiance of the restaurant. For those who aren't quite so daring, don't worry – belly dancers perform only on special occasions and standard seating is available.

Iron Hill Brewery – 147 E. Main St.

Iron Hill was established in Newark in 1996 and has since opened six additional locations. Iron Hill is best known for its award-winning, fresh brewed beers, but the brewery's lunch and dinner menus are also popular with locals and visitors alike. Fresh root beer is also a great treat.

Post House – 145 E. Main St.

Post House should be at the top of the list when searching for a tasty, inexpensive breakfast. A small, quiet restaurant, Post House is a great place for tasty hash or pancakes. Lunch is also available.

Korner Diner – 137 E. Main St.

Open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the Korner Diner is always an option, whether you're craving waffles or a hamburger. With jukeboxes, vinyl booths, and an expansive counter with stools to perch on, the diner brings back an old school feeling that provides comfort for patrons looking for a break from a hectic day (or night).

Klondike Kate's – 158 E. Main St.

Klondike Kate's is nothing short of a landmark on Main Street. Always good for a casual lunch or a night out with friends, Kate's offers a wide selection of dishes, including a classic steak, an enormous plate of nachos, and an extensive list of specialty drinks and desserts. Live entertainment on selected dates.

Newark is proud to be a college town

The city of Newark is a proud home to the University of Delaware's campus and students.

Founded as a small, private academy in 1743, the university has been building its reputation as a fine institution of higher learning for more than 250 years.

Recently, Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine ranked it in the top 20 of the 100 best values among high quality public institutions of higher education.

The university enrolls more than 16,000 undergraduates and nearly 3,000 graduate students. As a state-assisted, privately controlled institution, the university seeks to enroll students from diverse backgrounds and a wide variety of geographic regions.

Currently, 60 percent of Newark campus undergraduates are nonresidents who represent nearly every state and several foreign countries. The University of Delaware is committed to enrolling and retaining minority students.

Students participate in all aspects of the community, everything from city council meetings to community clean-ups and cultural events. Many students live in rental housing and apartment buildings in neighborhoods surrounding the campus and join residents in taking advantage of Main Street's shops, restaurants and downtown events.

The Newark campus takes up more than 970 acres. The university has schools in Wilmington and Kent and Sussex County, as well.

President Patrick Harker has launched a strategic planning process to identify the handful of major initiatives that will continue UD's path to prominence in core mission areas: Undergraduate Education; Graduate Education; Scholarship and Research; and Public, Professional and Community Service.

The university is always busy with cultural and sporting events. The events calendar can be found on the Web site, <http://www.udel.edu>.

Nearly a dozen libraries serve residents

New Castle County has 11 libraries, including branches in Bear and Newark.

In addition to traditional library services, these facilities offer public access to the Internet. Users can access magazine and newspaper databases.

The libraries offer a range of daily activities for children, teens and adults, including a variety of clubs (everything from chess to quilting), academic discussions and film viewings.

For a listing of events, contact your local library or visit the New Castle County libraries' web site, www.co.new-castle.de.us/library/home.

To receive a library card, adults ages 18 and older must complete an application and show proof of their current address. Identification can be in the form of a driver's license or state ID, utility or credit card bill, check book, vehicle registration, cancelled mail or lease or mortgage agreement.

Downtown parking

Driving and parking in Newark isn't as difficult as it may seem, as long as you know where to look for spaces.

Downtown streets are lined with metered spots. A quarter will buy you 20 minutes.

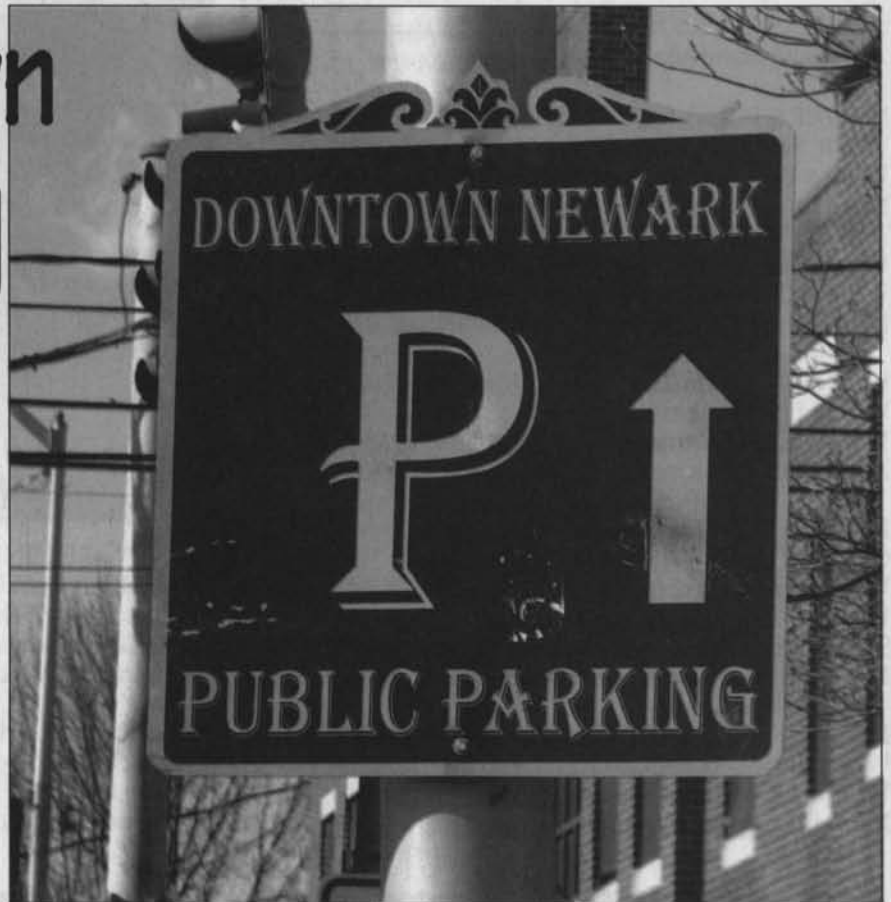

Three city parking lots are accessible by way of Main Street or Delaware Avenue, but if you miss them don't fret. Just turn left, turn left and turn left. Doing so will take you back to the other end of Main Street, where you can take another shot at finding parking.

If you're planning to dine or shop downtown, ask to have your parking ticket validated. About 20 downtown businesses now validate their customers' vouchers for the city parking lots.

Every Sunday, parking is free at all municipal meters and off-street lots. The city provides free parking for holidays and special events, as well.

One of the city's three public lots switched over from multi-space, metered parking to a gated, ticketed lot. Now customers making use of City Lot #1 behind the Galleria and between Delaware Avenue and Main Street, obtain a ticket when they pull into the lot and pay at a pay station before exiting.

The automated pay stations (one in the Galleria lobby and one in the parking lot) accept coins, dollar bills and credit cards. The machine provides change.

City Lot #1

Where: Left side of Main Street, behind the Galleria, between Delaware Avenue and Main.
Entrances: Off Main, just before the Dunkin' Donuts, and off Delaware Avenue, just past College Avenue.

Type: Pay at machine before retrieving car.

Rates: 50 cents per half hour.

City Lot #3

Where: Right side of Main, behind Wilmington Trust, 82 East Main St., at the corner of Main and Center streets.

Entrances: Off Main, next to Abbott's Shoes at the intersection of Academy Street.

Type: Pay attendant when you leave.

Rates: 50 cents per half hour Monday to Saturday.

City Lot #4

Where: Right side of Main, between Choate and Center streets and behind Panera Bread.

Entrances: Off Main between Panera and Gecko Fashions, and from Center Street.

Type: Pay attendant when you leave.

Rates: 50 cents per half hour Monday to Saturday.

Note: City parking lots #2 and #5 are for monthly permit holders only.

University parking garages

Where: Left side of Main at Elkton Road, across the street from Deer Park Tavern.

Entrance: Off Main, just past Trabant University Center.

Type: Pay the attendant before retrieving your car.

Where: Elkton Road, near the Center for the Arts

Entrance: Off of Amstel Avenue, near Conover Apartments.

Type: Pay the attendant before retrieving your car.
