$120,000 OBTAINED FOR NEW SCHOOL

School Auxiliary Grants Newark District Additional Funds Monday

START AT ONCE

Exclude Auditorium From New Building Plans For Present

Announcement was made yesterday by Dr. Walt H. Steel, president of the Board of Education of the Newark special school district that the Delaware School Auxiliary had set aside the sum of $120,000 to be used in the erection of a new school for this district.

The decisions was reached after a meeting of the Auxiliary in the du Pont Building, Wilmington, Monday afternoon.

With this fund added to the amount now in the hands of the Board of Education, a total of $280,000 is available for the new building.

Appears Before Auxiliary

Dr. Steel and J. Herbert Owens, a member of the Board, appeared before the members of the Auxiliary Monday last and presented their case. In speaking of the situation in Newark at present, Dr. Steel pointed out that the congested conditions of the present buildings greatly hampered the work of the school. Pupils are crowded into small rooms, equipment is lacking and the building both unsanitary and unsafe. While the grammar school building is of later design, the conditions there are not of the best.

He also stated that with the failure of the Legislature to appropriate funds for the building, and with $160,000 as the only basis for a complete building, the plans were modified and remodeled until it was found impossible to erect a suitable structure to house the number of pupils now attending school in this section.

Concluding, Dr. Steel pointed out that the Newark schools were landing valuable assistance to future teachers in the State by giving the members of the practice teaching division of the Women's College opportunities to get first-hand experience in classroom work.

No Official Word

While the report of the action of the Auxiliary came from three separate sources yesterday, one of them being from Dr. Joseph Odell, director of the body, the official notice has not as yet been received by the local board. This, however, is believed to be in the mails now.

The auxiliary members who were present at the meeting to hear the requests from the Newark district and the Dagsboro district were Dr. Odell, William K. du Pont, Henry P. Scott, Roland Painter and Frank Hutton, of Dover, the latter a recent appointee to the Auxiliary and sworn in Monday.

Go Ahead With Plans

It is expected that work in shaping up the specifications to meet the increased appropriation will be started by the architects at once.

The new building will house the entire High School roster and those of the Grammar School. It will comprise one central section of three floors and one complete wing. It will be situated on what is now the High School Athletic Field, with the entrance facing Academy Street.

There will be no auditorium connected with the new school, according to Dr. Steel.

It is proposed to use the present grammar school for the primary grades upon the completion of the new structure, but definite information on this plan is lacking. With other matters, it will have to adjust itself to the needs which will come up later.

Robert Motherall Accepts Post; Will Make New List

The assessment list for the town of Newark will be ready about the 29th of the month, according to information from Council officials.

Robert Motherall was originally named assessor by Council, but resigned a few days later. The situation was unexpected and for some days no work on the lists was accomplished. Finally Mr. Motherall was again approached and consented to go ahead with the task.

After the list has been completed it will be hung up for public inspection and correction, probably in Brown's Drug Store.

NEW STORE FRONT

Another imposing business front on Main Street has sprung up within the past few weeks in the remodeling being done by Walter Geist to his Hardware and Farm Implement store.

Two large show windows, a complete change in the interior of the store and a roomy repair shop in the rear are features of the work. The brickwork is nearly finished and the plate glass windows will be installed in a few days.

With the additional floor space and attractive display front at his disposal, Mr. Geist plans to branch out into the general hardware business, carrying a full line of standard products for the farm and home.

NEWARK SCHOOLS IN COUNTY MEET

186 Entries Will Compete In Meet And Bronze Badge Contests

EXPECT GREAT CROWD

Play, Festival And Attendance Parade To Be Features Of All-Day Program

The annual New Castle County Field Day for High and Grammar Schools takes place Friday of this week at the Delaware State Fair Grounds at Elsmere.

Officials of the affair predict that if good weather prevails, the biggest crowd ever to attend the meet will be on hand. The spectacle was held in Newark on Frazer Field last year, the change to Elsmere being made necessary by the need for financial aid in meeting the expenses of the meet.

Newark High School and the grammar grades will be represented by 186 entries, 111 of whom will be entered in the track and field meet in the afternoon and the other 75 taking part in the Bronze Badge Tests and Dodge ball games in the morning. With such a large delegation, the chances are that Newark will bring back a goodly number of banners and prizes as a result of their efforts.

All Day Program

The Field Day begins at 9:00 a. m. with a play festival, in which all schools in the county will take part; immediately following this event, the attendance parade will begin, having for the marchers all those who have made perfect or good records in attendance during the school year. Dodge ball games and bronze badge tests for boys and girls will take up the remainder of the morning program.

Field Sports Attract

In the afternoon, track and field sports will be run off, with all grades competing.

Lunches will, for the most part, be brought to the grounds by the parties. However, there will be booths on the field where sandwiches and ice cream will be sold.

Mr. J. H. Owens, superintendent of the Newark Schools, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Sutfun and Miss Burkholder will be officials at the meet.

The chairman of the entire affair is A. E. Stahl, of Claymont Schools.

If the weather is unfit for competition, the Field Day will be held two weeks from Friday at the same place.

Mr. Owens announced that the local Primary School will not be closed the day of the meet, only the Grammar and High School pupils attending. Teachers of the various grades will accompany their charges to Elsmere.

CENTURY DIRECTORS MEET

The Board of Directors of the Newark New Century Club met at the home of Mrs. A. T. Neale near town Monday afternoon. Plans for the activities of the coming year were discussed and financial matters pertaining to the club were brought up.

RED CROSS WORKERS TO MEET MAY 22nd

Election of Officers Will Be Held at This Time

A meeting of the local chapter of the American Red Cross is scheduled for Tuesday, May 22nd, in the High School. Reports of the work done during the past year will be read and election of officers for the new organization will be held.

There are about 500 members in the local chapter and it is one of the most active in the State. Officials report that the past year has been the busiest one since the war.

The present officers of the chapter are: President, Mrs. J. O. G. Duffy; vice-president, Mrs. Ernest Wright; treasurer, Miss Jane Maxwell; recording secretary, Miss Lydia Fader, and corresponding secretary, Miss Ella Todd.

TEACHERS INJURED

Two teachers of the Newark schools suffered injuries during the past week in almost similar accidents. Miss Marian Hatfield fell and injured an ankle in Wilmington and was confined to her home for a few days. On Tuesday of this week, Miss Gladys Wilcox sprained an ankle and is unable to take charge of her grade for a few days.

LOCAL CLEAN-UP FORCES FACE A PROBLEM IN RUBBISH-DUMPING

Wilbur Street Section Is On The Official Carpet For Unloading Trash In Ravine

MAY HAVE TO ARREST WHOLE STREET

As the first Clean-Up Day dawned this morning, Newark town officials were still wrestling with the Wilbur Street rubbish controversy. Recent developments point to an informal state of war between the town and persons responsible for the throwing of all manner of refuse down a ravine in that section, said ravine being distinctly within the town limits.

Complaints have been coming in thick and fast for the past week, alleging that residents on that street were stepping hard upon a town ordinance with respect to garbage disposal.

Officer Lewis and Roland Herdman, in response to the complaints made a tour of the district Saturday and stopped at each house warning the occupants that the Law would necessarily take its course should the methods continue.

James Cage, supposedly one of the persons responsible for the trouble, stated that the garbage collector appeared but "once or twice a year" and there was nothing else to do. The Town countered this with the statement that a phone call would bring the collector twice a week.

It appears that the officials cannot pin any one person down and hold him responsible for the dire state of affairs. Residents of the street blame each other and outsiders, too. Officer Lewis suggests that he arrest the entire street thereby finding the culprits.

Mayor Frazer has ordered the Chief to find the persons responsible for the rubbish-dumping and to bring them before Magistrate Thompson.

Visitors to the scene report everything from deceased cats and dogs to feather beds and auto tires have been dumped down the ravine.

It is distinctly an unsanitary state of affairs and one that must be cleaned up at once. Mayor Frazer is determined to find those responsible and break up the practice.

M. JUSSERAND HERE FOR COMMENCEMENT

French Ambassador Will Deliver Address to University Graduates

Officials of the University returned from Washington late last week with the announcement that Ambassador Jules Jusserand, French Minister to the United States, will be the Commencement speaker at the University of Delaware on June 11th next.

This will be the first visit of the noted diplomat to Delaware, and it is expected that a large throng from this and nearby states will be present to hear the address.

Jules Adrien Jusserand is the dean of the diplomatic corps at Washington, having been Minister from France since 1902. An able, earnest and forceful figure in foreign relations he commands the admiration and respect of the high officials of the Government.

He has been in the diplomatic service of his country since 1876, holding important posts in England and Sweden. He is a Fellow of the Royal Society and a Grand Officer in the French Legion of Honor. His fame as an essayist and historian is recognized both in France and in this country.

M. Jusserand was born in Lyons in 1855.

REHAB STUDENTSS BUSY ON FARM

Practical Agriculture Result Of Efforts Of Local Officials

With an orchard consisting of 9 acres of healthy peach and apple trees, gardens, poultry and a miniature farm of twenty-five or more acres, the students of the Rehabilitation Division of the University are busy each day in producing profitable crops in conjunction with the value gained in learning the art of tilling crops.

Under the direction of H. R. Ham, an instructor in the school and in charge of the project work, they have made real headway during the first year of the experiment.

Another tract has been procured from Dr. Thomas F. Manns, lying in the rear of his residence on Park Place. This land comprises about 18 acres and is set out in apple and peach trees. Dr. Manns supplies the spraying and other materials for the care of the orchard and receives twenty per cent of the proceeds. The students have taken a great interest in the orchard.

Expect Large Crop

According to Mr. Ham, the crop of peaches and apples from the Manns orchard this year will be unusually large. Even at this time, it has been necessary to remove some limbs from the trees as they would break under the burden of fruit later on. He estimated that the crop would range in value between $3000 and $5000.

SCOUT FIELD DAY NEXT SATURDAY

Many Awards By Local Merchants For Contests; Wilmington Troops Here

TO PARADE WITH BAND

Plan Camp Fire And Story Telling After Sun-Down

The biggest single event in the history of the local Boy Scouts will be held Saturday afternoon and evening of this week, when the first Scout Field Day for Newark begins on the High School field.

Previous to the competitive contests, the Scouts will parade through the central streets of the town led by the Continental Band, which has volunteered its services to help the cause along. In the parade will be several crack troops from Wilmington who have been invited to join the party and to compete for the prizes in the various events.

After the parade the scouts and spectators will assemble on the field and the contests will be held.

The parade is scheduled to start promptly at 1:30 p. m.

Townpeople Helping

The local troop of Scouts, under the leadership of John S. Shaw, scoutmaster, have been planning such an event for some time, and on Friday evening last perfected plans for the meet. The importance of the affair however, was not realized at that time. Since then, and each day this week, interest has grown in the event. Prizes for the events have been awarded by business men of the town, a band has been secured, the Chamber of Commerce and Council have signified their intention of helping along and the affair has taken on the importance of a town event.

Howard D. Jester, a former scoutmaster, is actively helping Mr. Shaw in making arrangements for the frolic, and he has succeeded in procuring prizes from the following men:

Afternoon Program

Competitive events on the athletic field will begin at 2:45 with a Rope Relay, involving the tying of several knots on a staff held by a member of each team.

Then follows signalling contests, both semaphore and Morse code; fire building and water boiling; fire by friction, and a first aid contest.

The balance of the program consists of archery shooting and a rescue race. These events all include the lessons taught in Scouting by all scoutmasters.

Following the Field Day, supper will be served to the visiting troops by the local Scouts on the field.

Campfire in Evening

Under the direction of Chief Greenhawk, district head of the Boy Scouts, a campfire session will be held Saturday evening on the grounds. The public is cordially invited to attend this part of the program in particular, as it gives an insight into the real spirit of scouting. Chief Greenhawk promises to tell some of his inimitable fireside stories combined with a talk on the real value of Scouting.

The local troop of Scouts is but two years old and under the direction of Mr. Shaw, has made splendid progress. This is the first attempt at a large event, and from the interest and support shown by the townspeople there is reason to believe that it will be a success.

Monthly Event In Presbyterian Church a Success

The regular monthly supper of the Baracca Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church was held last night in the church lecture room.

About sixty people enjoyed the affair. The room was prettily decorated and the meal itself was a splendid sample of local culinary art.

Mrs. H. N. Reed was the chairman of the committee in charge of the supper.

LOCAL SCOUTS SCORE TWICE IN PAST WEEK

Prize in City

TROOP TWO YEARS OLD

The local troop of Boy Scouts of America went over the top twice last week. On Thursday, with no adult leadership in the matter, they held a benefit moving picture show. They made close to $41.00 and, according to Mr. Hubert, that is the largest amount in the Opera House this year. Young Kurt Grothen was chairman of the Movie Committee and did able work keeping the other boys on the jump. A prize of a regulation scout shirt was awarded to Donald Armstrong for selling the largest number of tickets, which was 102. He was followed closely by several other boys. The cubs of the troop (the boys who are not old enough to join), also did wonderful work, young Donald Hill selling 33, followed close by young Jack Shaw with 21.

And then on Saturday they journeyed to Wilmington and entered their first scout field event, and captured second place, bringing home a handsome silver cup. Kurt Grothen and Harry Williamson took first place in the rescue race, where the boys have to demonstrate their knowledge in rescue work, particularly the fireman's drag and lift. Jack Cann and Malcolm Jones took second in the same races. Malcolm Jones took third in Fire by Friction and first place in Archery. Young Jones sent an arrow 432 feet, his nearest competitor sending one 270 feet. The other boys while not placing, showed their more experienced brothers of Wilmington hard.

The local troop was organized about two years ago, but did not accomplish much until Mr. John S. Shaw took hold of them as Scoutmaster one year ago. Under his leadership the boys are slowly forging to the top. They now have about twenty active members. The troop now meets in the parish house at Delaware Avenue and Elkton Road on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Every parent of a boy of 12 to 18 years old should visit them and learn what the boys really are doing. Mr. Shaw will gladly explain the aims of the Boy Scouts of America.

The boys who took part in the field day in Wilmington last Saturday: Kurt Grothen, Harry Williamson, Jack Cann, Paul McMurray, Robert Strahorn, Walter Blackwell, John McCue, Donald Armstrong and Malcolm Jones.

ELKTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING

Open Session Held Last Monday Evening; Work for Better Drainage System

The Elkton Chamber of Commerce met in Council Hall, Elkton, Monday night of this week. There was not the usual large attendance of members as has been the rule.

The meeting resolved itself into an informal discussion of the street and sewer situation in the town.

The Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in urging the laying of sewers along North street and in the Court House section. The work on the North street job will start right away. In addition to affording ample drainage in the central portions of town, Main street and North street will be widened, thus allowing for better traffic accommodations.

The meeting was presided over by Thomas B. Miller, president of the organization.

Plans for the active cooperation of the Chamber with the Rally Day festivities Friday the 25th, were completed. It will be one of the biggest days in the year for Elkton.

STANTON PLANS BIG CARNIVAL IN JULY

Civics Association Committee Now Working on Arrangements

OTHER NEWSY ITEMS

As a result of the special meeting held May 4th last, the Stanton Civics Association plans for a big Carnival, to be held July 7th to 14th inclusive, are well under way.

A committee consisting of William Sparks, chairman, J. Harvey Dickey, Edward Powell, J. Harold Mitchell and Lawrence McVey was appointed at that meeting and through their efforts and the aid of the community at large, the proposed affair is taking on rapid shape.

The proceeds from the carnival will go to the laying of new sidewalks and curbing along the central portion of the town. The need for these improvements has been felt for a long time. Each attempt to raise funds through the Levy Court and other means has met with failure, and the people of Stanton have taken the matter into their own hands. Invitations have been issued to other such organizations to be present at the carnival.

The Stanton Association will probably associate with the State Civics and Improvement organization in the near future.

DELAWARE UNCOVERS A STAR IN MANNIX

Freshman Lets Dickinson Down With Four Hits; Blue and Gold Wins

LOOKS LIKE NEW TEAM

The Delaware baseball team must have went under a rejuvenating process during the past week, judging from the form they displayed on Fraser Field Saturday last, when the wearers of the Blue and Gold swamped their ancient rivals, Dickinson, in a snappy game, score 7-0.

The second victory in eight games was well received by the large assemblage. The general team-play of the Delaware machine was far better than seen at any time this year. Dickinson had but two real chances to score, once in the fourth and once in the ninth, but clever twirling and fast in-field play ruined the opportunities.

Speaking of twirling, young Jim Mannix, late of the Eastern Shore League, and familiar to all Sussex County baseball fans, was the bright outstanding star of the fracas. Originally an outfielder, he essayed the burden of pitching a full nine inning game, and got away with it in big league style.

He allowed but four hits and gave four bases on balls, with a wild pitch thrown in just to show that he is like other pitchers.

Under the enforced absence of hits, the Carlisle outfit were passive throughout, and gave up the ghost as early as the fourth inning when they were three runs behind.

Nutter, McCormick and MacDonald were the offensive stars for Delaware, the latter two garnering extra base drives, all of which helped in the scoring.

Underwood played a star game at shortstop, as did McCormick at second. The score:

Both Are Protection

Making a Will is not a solemn act—no more so than taking out a life insurance policy. Both are protective measures and a duty to be performed by young men as well as old.

It is true that you cannot foresee the future. The Will may have to be changed, but that is all the more reason for making one now. It is easy to change your Will, but nothing can make up for failure to protect your family by arranging for the care of your estate and by naming a dependable Executor and Trustee.

Our officers will welcome an opportunity to explain the modern method of safeguarding an estate.

MAY 16, 1923

From the Speech by Judge Morris

"America's constitution is your heritage. It will remain yours only if you love wealth less than liberty and the tranquility of servitude less than the animating contest of freedom. It will remain yours only if you scent the approach of tyranny in every tainted breeze and avoid the consequences of evil governmental principles by forestalling them. It will remain yours only on condition that you preserve the power of an independent judiciary to uphold the constitution notwithstanding conflicting legislation for that power is the keystone of the constitution and Liberty's Greatest Safeguard."

People's Column

To the Editor of The Post:

So more than half the white families of Newark, and more than two-thirds of the colored families rent, and do not own their homes! What better thing could all the home owners do than join in urging, encouraging, helping the tenants to become owners of homes? Such a movement would bring both tenants and home owners into friendly relations, would promote industry, economy, order, and good will. If successful it would greatly increase the general wealth, swell public revenue without raising the tax rate, benefit the banks, the merchants, and every kind of worker, skilled or unskilled. In such a community as Newark all families should be home owners. A more just system of assessments would further this cause, but the most efficient furtherance would come from an unrelenting effort to inspire among the inhabitants of whatever occupation the wish to own a home, to improve and beautify it within and without, and to co-operate for the making of a really beautiful village. Newark should be the handsomest village in Delaware, a model of taste, public and private, of sanitation, of all the good things that give a community cause for proper pride. These conditions can not be brought about by windy "boosting," a noisy form of mere boasting, by spasmodic "clean-up weeks," temporary "drives" or "campaigns." Things really worth while are not thus brought about; they must come of steady and undisturbed effort spread over years, of determined hopefulness, of indomitable civic and personal idealism. The Post can not do better than make itself the mouthpiece of a home-owning movement.

Edward N. Vallandigham.

THE SICK

The condition of David C. Rose, who was critically ill a week ago with a sudden heart attack is greatly improved at this time, and he expects to be out in the course of a few days.

Mrs. George Harrison, residing on Elkton Road was stricken late last week with a severe attack of heart trouble and her condition was dangerous for a time. An improvement came Saturday night and now she is recovering rapidly.

Miss Alice Charsha, a member of the Senior Class of the High School, has been confined to her home for over a week with a severe attack of throat trouble.

Her illness deprived her of a chance to join her class in the Washington trip. The class has sent her a handsome sweater as a token of their friendship and many messages of cheer have been received. She is reported much better at this time.

Mrs. David C. Rose is confined to her bed with an attack of grippe. Her condition is much better now and her early recovery is expected.

NEWARK LOSES THIRTEEN INNING BATTLE TO NEW CASTLE 8-6

Locals Tie Score in Sixth But Weaken In Final Inning;
Large Crowd Witness Struggle

WEAK HITTING A FACTOR IN DEFEAT

Newark engaged in its second extra inning game of the season here last Saturday afternoon in a County League game with New Castle as opponents. When the smoke of battle cleared away after three hours of intense baseball, the Fishtowners had the game in their possession, score 8-6.

The Carter clan trailed the visitors for the first four innings, allowing them an overbalanced lead of six runs. With this handicap and Hayward, the New Castle pitcher going along smoothly, hopes for a victory received but little attention from the several hundred fans who crowded about the field. In the fifth, however, the Newark tossers broke into the run column with a pair of tallies, garnered by Keeley and Pearson respectively, the result of a hit, a walk and a couple of New Castle errors. But with four runs still needed to tie, the home team went right out there and procured them in the very next inning.

Excitement in Sixth

Under continual fire from rabid fans along the sidelines, Hayward wobbled badly in the sixth and before he could regain his composure, four more Newark runs had trickled over the well known platter. The red-haired twirler lost all semblance of control in that inning and was considered fortunate to weather the storm.

Eisner first up in the sixth, fanned, but Skeet Steedle socked one to center field for a clean single. Dantz looked over four bad ones and strolled to first. Tasker slapped one to Kern at third base who retired Steedle at the hot corner but failed to make a double play. With two out, Hayward grew wilder than ever and managed to plant the ball into the bulky form of Jim Keeley, filling the bases to over-flowing. Then Pearson, the clever little catcher, took his stand at the plate. Not being able to reach any of Hayward's offerings, he also walked, forcing in Dantz. Bases still full.

Watkins became the hero of the hour when he walloped a two bagger to left center, clearing the bases and tying the score. Local fandom went wild at the sight, and Hayward appeared rather dazed. Moore ended the rally by fanning. Thereupon the populace had a brand new ball game

Watkins Pulls Out

In the seventh things looked very dark for Newark when Watkins, tired out from his energetic racing around the bases the previous inning, momentarily lost control and walked three straight batters, filling the bases with no one out.

The big pitcher was equal to the occasion, however, and single handedly retired the side to the New Castle's utter disgust. Two men fanned and the other out came when "Watty" knocked down a line drive headed for his forehead, and after juggling it for an instant nailed the runner at the plate, Pearson handling the difficult play in approved style.

From then on until the fatal thirteenth, the game became tight. Newark had men on bases during most of the remaining innings but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. The crowd stood through a couple of showers which for a time threatened to halt hostilities, but to a man stayed to the finish.

In the thirteenth, with one out, Hayward caught one of Watkins' fast ones on the end of his bat and drove it to deep left. Griff Moore made a gallant try, but the ball slipped from his grasp, Hayward perching on second. Two hits in rapid succession by Gallagher and Proud scored the two deciding runs of the game.

Newark was helpless in the final half.

Pitchers Fan Thirty-five Batters

The strikeout totals for the game were exceedingly high, thirty-five batters breezing the air with their bats and ambulating back to the bench. Of this total, Hayward was responsible for 18 while Watkins fanned one less. The New Castle boys pounded the home pitcher for 11 hits, but until the thirteenth, "Watty" kept them well scattered. On the other glove, Newark could garner but four bingles from the lanky one's freak delivery—far too few to win a thirteen inning ball game.

And be it said here that the official totals show but three of the thirteen runs to be earned by clean hitting.

While errors played their part in the defeat, the general play was fast and clean. Inning after inning sped by with both teams confident and playing errorless ball. With the exception of a couple of dropped pitches by Pearson and an error by Griff Moore, the game was remarkably clean.

Attendance Good

The coming together of two rivals like Newark and New Castle was the attraction that brought out a record crowd to the game Saturday. Despite the defeat of local hopes the consensus of opinion was that they saw a rattling good ball game, and furthermore saw a fighting team, led by a fighting manager representing Newark on the diamond this season.

The score:

Saturday's Game Under Protest

The Newark-New Castle game held here last Saturday was played under protest arising from a decision made by Umpire Russell in the second inning.

Miller, the visiting shortstop, collided unintentionally with Steedle, while the latter was fielding Walls' grounder. The runner was hurt by the fall, but was called safe at second although the ball was retrieved by Challenger, who stepped on the bag, completing a forced play. Umpire Russell claimed that he had called time, while Manager Carter argued that time could not be called with the ball still in play.

The game then proceeded under protest, while Miller was called safe at second.

THE SPORTING TICKER

A Column Devoted to Clean Athletics and Sportsmanship, written by one who loves the Game.

CULLEN CAIN WRITES ABOUT OLD NEWARK

A distinguished sporting writer came to Newark the other day. His name is Cullen Cain, and he writes splendid articles for the Philadelphia Morning and Evening Ledger.

We had a little trifle all dressed up for insertion into this column for this week; in fact we were quite proud of it, but we called it all off with finality and crisp decision when we saw Mr. Cain's story of his impressions of Newark, Delaware College and our own beloved State.

In honor of the resurrection of the Ticker, after a few weeks of idleness, we can put it to no better use than as a medium for our visitor's story. Here it is in full:

DELAWARE TOWN NOW ATTAINS SPORTS IDEAL

By Cullen Cain

"Bill McAvoy, director of athletics at the University of Delaware, has a sense of humor, and it is well that he has, for his ball team has lost five games in a row, and a coach needs this gift if he would find any fun left in this world of defeat.

McAvoy also still has pride in his team in spite of its losing ways. While down in Newark last Thursday watching the Delaware team get mauled 8-1 by the Washington and Lee invaders, I asked McAvoy about his club, and his college and his clutch on life.

He was frank and emphatic, even if he was brief. "My Club is like your Phillies up in Quaker Town," he said, and his voice was light and his face sad as he spoke. "I have a lot of hard hitters, fair fielders and a weak pitching staff. Of course, I don't want to boast about my batters or be too hard on my pitchers, but I base my estimate of the team on the fact that we made forty-one runs in the last four games and did not win a game."

Far be it from me, after scanning the evidence in the case—those forty-one runs and those four defeats—to question Bill McAvoy's deductions concerning the batters and the pitchers on his team.

Now, while Washington and Lee had a crack ball team in Newark this day, billed for a game with the Delaware club, I had not gone down there so much for that particular game as I had to try to get a line on the Delaware State University and its school spirit, and to prove or disprove certain things I had heard about the smallest school of its kind in the smallest State.

I asked McAvoy about the school and got my answer full and strong and fine. "We're little, but we're big!" declared the veteran coach and old Lafayette football star.

And, watching the team in its dressing room before the game, watching it go down in defeat that day, watching its supporters in the stands, I was convinced that the coach had called the turn when he spoke of a little school that was so big, after all.

A CLEAN-CUT OUTFIT

I never saw or hope to see a cleaner cut, more earnest lot of young men than this Delaware outfit, in the stands and out at play.

"Where do you get your boys from?" I asked the coach. "Oh, most of them come from down-State," was the reply. "They are farm boys and small-town boys, and they came to me fresh from the bush."

Sure they did, and they looked the part. Strong, supple, eager, fresh-faced American boys, every one of them. Proud of their school and proud of their State.

And I should think they would be. I never saw a better appointed school or a prettier playing field.

The little town of Newark is full of big trees and attractive looking homes. Paved roads wind their way down the State past well-kept farms and across lovely green valleys.

All the others of the original thirteen colonies sowed cities and reaped the business and jam and rush and bustle of what is called modern American progress, with its good and ill results to American national life.

But in Delaware, after leaving Wilmington in the uttermost northern edge of the State, you go down into a land of grass and grain and trees and little settlements where everybody lives right close to the soil as they did in Revolutionary days.

Seems to me it would be only natural to expect that a State school in such surroundings would rank high in its percentage of original Americanism.

A FAMOUS PITCHER FOUND

Bill McAvoy and I went over to the hotel for lunch. And who do you suppose keeps that hotel? Victor Willis, the old Boston-Pittsburgh pitching star of other days, none less.

Newark is the old home town of the tall and famous pitcher, and when his big league day was done, he went back home and took over this hotel. Chick Frazer, the Pittsburgh scout, was there, and Willis introduced him to McAvoy.

And then the tall, reserved, grave-faced ex-pitcher whispered in a loud voice aside to the husky coach: "He has heard of some of your pitchers, Mac, and I'll bet he is down here after 'em; better keep your stars under cover today."

McAvoy grinned at his old friend, and then turned to me and spoke pleasantly: "You'd think a fellow would have plenty of great pitchers, coaching a college team in the same town with the great Victor Willis, wouldn't you? You'd think he would jump in and make star pitchers to order for you."

The fact is, Delaware lost all her good pitchers at once. Two promising southpaws and a right-handed star left school last year. An awful blow to any college pitching staff.

IT SO HAPPENS

McAvoy started Earl Brandt against Washington and Lee in the Thursday afternoon ball game, and he lasted until the fourth inning, leaving the bill with the score 7 to 1 against him but at that, he had bad support. The Southerners did not earn half of their runs. Lund took up the burden here and held them well. They did not earn their one run off him. McDonald, the Washington and Lee pitcher, held Delaware in the hallow of his most capable pitching hand.

And so it was that Bill McAvoy's hard hitters went hitless, while his poor pitchers pitched a good game.

Washington and Lee has a whale of a team. They beat Johns Hopkins, 24 to 0, and trimmed the Navy just before they came to Newark. But the Delaware boys battled desperately until the last man was out in the ninth, and their supporters never gave up until the end. I talked to Nutter, the stalwart Delaware captain, just before the game.

That Johns Hopkins score of two days before was staggering, but he was going in to win, he said. Hock, the catcher, comes from the clear Delaware strain. His brother, Ira, had played ball at Delaware before him and gone from there to play with the Penn team. Another brother, Harry, had gone from the Delaware team to pitch for the Phillies in the National League.

Two other Hock boys had attended this school and a younger boy is planning to go there in his turn. They all hail from the little town of Woodside, down on the peninsula.

The Delaware College is a little school, but the American spirit snars high there. I carried with me when I left Delaware a bunch of lilacs picked fresh from a bush in a Delaware farmyard, and I carried also these memories which I have endeavored to set down.

HITS AND MISSES

BREEZY and BRIEF

Marked up for Battery "E" by "The Q.M."

Well boys, we're off.

Some of the boys met last week in the reading room and organized a club.

We have not named it yet.

There did not happen to be a dictionary in our Battery Library.

The first thing, the Soupy Sgt. was elected Temporary Chairman.

He only holds office until the regular "occifers" are initiated.

Right now he isn't much. Only President, Vice-President, Sec. and Treasurer.

If the boys want to vote for officers on May 24th they must pay their admission fee to him on or before then.

There was some discussion on that particular point.

Sgt. Reed thought he was up to the dormitories and tried to do the same thing.

"Mustard" Taylor was appointed Sgt-at-Arms.

He attended to Dewey.

Sure, they both went to work the next day.

You fellows that don't get your money in by June 7th are going to have to pay double.

Sgt. Jester bought a receipt book, so don't be afraid to pay him, you'll get a receipt.

He don't need a new suit like somebody else in this battery did some time ago.

1st Sgt Keeley had the honor of being the FIRST MEMBER.

And he did not wait for a receipt.

Sorry there is not space for a list of the nominations.

Come around and see them on the bulletin board.

Nominations will be open Thursday night so if your buddy is not on the list, you can put him there.

The only time that Geo. Jackson opened his mouth was to move that the meeting adjourn.

Heard in the

"Sgt. Cook was offered a commission and would not take it. He wanted to stay and hold down secretary's job in the Club."

We hear Sgt. Keeley came near knocking Knoxys cold at the ball game Saturday.

Dope that out you guard house lawyer.

The last was a hit, the next is a miss

No! Not a Miss Hit.

SENIOR CLASS PAYS VISIT TO HARDING

President Receives Newark
Delegation Friday
Last

As the crowning event of three full days spent in Washington, D. C., viewing the many buildings, and watching the wheels of Governmental machinery run, the Senior Class of the Newark High School was received at the White House Friday afternoon by President Harding.

The President shook hands cordially with each member of the party and chatted a few moments with them before the press of business called his attention. The group was elated over the opportunity of personally greeting the Chief Executive, being one of the few High School parties which were received at the White House this spring.

About twenty-five members of the class made the trip, leaving Newark early Thursday morning and returning Saturday evening.

The party was chaperoned by Miss Anna Gallaher and Miss Mary Houston, teachers in the High School.

"LIBERTY'S GREATEST SAFEGUARD"

SUBJECT OF MASTERFUL ADDRESS BY JUDGE MORRIS, OF U. S. FEDERAL COURT, DELIVERED AT THE COLLEGE HOUR, YESTERDAY MORNING BEFORE STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY

AMERICA AS INTERPRETED IN THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AND RESPONSIBILITIES OF CITIZENSHIP AS SET FORTH IN THE CONSTITUTION, CLEARLY DEFINED

President Hulihan and Sons of the University of Delaware:

THE DELIGHT arising from a visit to my alma mater, replete with pleasant memories, is today almost overcome by the consciousness that the opportunity and honor of discussing before you a subject of such great moment should better have been left to persons more nearly equal to the task. I do not flatter when I say it is a privilege and an honor to discuss before you principles vital to the preservation of American institutions. I do not exaggerate when I refer to a discussion of those principles as a matter of consequence. Little have you considered, perhaps, that among you sit Governors, Senators, Judges and Congressmen of the future, you who, though not destined or desiring to But such is the fact. There are others among all public places, yet in the performance of the duties of citizenship, will, with less of glamour but no less of honor, by precept and example so mold public opinion that liberty under the law will be the boon to you and your children that it was to your fathers. It may be that the ease, tranquility and lack of governmental responsibility that go with the halcyon days of one's minority have made you unmindful of the heritage that is yours. The noble activity and zeal for freedom which made your ancestors invincible may have remained unobserved by you. That governments of the people do not survive the watchfulness of the people is a truism which may have escaped your attention. But true it is that soon you will be the guardians not only of your own liberty, but of that of posterity as well. During the day which already "stands tiptoe on the misty mountain tops" the welfare of mankind will be in your keeping. At its close you must give to posterity an account of your stewardship. You cannot effectively stand guard during the watch that will be yours unless you know and understand the history and principles of our charters of government—unless you know liberty's cost and sense its value.

Kipling tells us truly:

"All we have of freedom, all we use or know,
"This our fathers bought for us, long and long ago,
"Ancient right unnoticed as the breath we draw—
"Leave to live by no man's leave, underneath the law.
"Lance and torch, and tumult, steel and grey-goose wing,
"Wrenched it, inch and all and all, slowly from the King."

Thus is briefly and accurately pictured the story of the struggle for individual liberty that began long before our ancestors, sword in hand, met King John on the banks of the Runnymede and wrested from him the Magna Charta; a struggle that continued until the fall of Cornwallis at Yorktown. I shall not journey with you through the intervening centuries and note the barometric rising and falling of the hopes of suffering humanity as success or failure attended its efforts. The progress of the struggle is marked by Magna Charta (1215), Parliament (1295), Petition of Right (1628), Habeas Corpus Act (1679), Bill of Rights (1689), Act of Settlement (1700-1701), Virginia Bill of Rights (1776) and by our Declaration of Independence which, as a declaratory charter of the rights of man stands high, indeed, among the title deeds of liberty. "We hold these truths to be self evident," said Jefferson and his colleagues, "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." The Signers likewise boldly indicted their King as the perpetrator of every act which may define a tyrant, as "unfit to be the ruler of a free people," and asserted that the Colonies were free and independent States absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown. There they stopped. The Declaration of Independence did not institute a new government to make secure the unalienable rights with which it declared all men to be endowed. But in the march of time this, too, was accomplished and "a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal" was brought forth. "Other nations," says Samuel Adams, "have received their laws from conquerors; some are indebted for a constitution to the suffering of their ancestors through the revolving centuries. The people of this country, alone, have formally and deliberately chosen a government for themselves, and with open and uninfluenced consent bound themselves into a social compact." True to the Anglo Saxon custom to impose written guarantees upon their rulers the new social compact took the form of a written constitution. At its birth the cry of Patrick Henry "Give me liberty or give me death" still resounded throughout the land. "We must be free or die" was the pervading thought. The wounds inflicted upon the colonists by Parliament and King, pretending to rule with unlimited power, were still unhealed. The framers were neither unlearned nor unlettered. They were men of experience and vision. They were great men—better none. All the great documents and statutes of advancing freedom in English history were their tradition and inheritance. The burning principles of the Declaration of Independence and the Virginia Bill of Rights were fresh in their memory. The natural rights of man needed no restatement. Freedom of speech and of the press, the free exercise of religious thought and of worship; the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances, speedy trial by an impartial jury in criminal cases, equal protection of the laws; guarantees against bills of attainder and ex post facto laws; against unreasonable searches and seizures and against arbitrary arrest and imprisonment—these and other foundation stones of liberty were already recognized and at hand. There existed no dispute with respect to the true purpose of government. Such circumstances make it obvious that the constitution was framed to preserve practical and substantial rights and not merely to enunciate theories of government. To preserve those rights, of which the liberty of the citizen under the law was the most dear, the political power of the new government was vested in the people. A representative form of government was provided for. To prevent the concentration of all the powers of government in the hands of one person or group of persons—the primary evil of despotic and tyrannical forms of government—the legislative, executive and judicial powers were separated from one another and made coordinate departments subject to certain interdepartmental checks and balances. But the framers of the constitution, knowing that tyranny is the same whether it is brought about by the will of a monarch or by the will of the people's representatives stirred by human passions, jealousies and hatreds and intolerant of restraint and opposition, took still another step to make even more secure the sacred rights of the citizen. They placed certain of his rights under the protection of the constitution. They did more. They limited the powers of government and thus held their representatives in check as by a bridle. Still unsatisfied, the framers, and afterwards the people, declared the constitution, the laws of the United States made in pursuance thereof and treaties made under the authority of the United States to be the supreme law of the land. The people, through the constitution, thus marked off the field wherein their officials might move and function. With equal care and precision they reserved a field in which the citizen was to be unhampered and upon which the feet of officialdom might not tread. That Congress may not enact into law any bill it wills to pass is made manifest in the constitution by a specific enumeration of the powers of Congress; by the express denial to it of certain other powers; by providing in the first article not that all legislative powers but that "All

AUTO CRASHES INTO WAGON ON DEPOT ROAD

Eugene Groves, Negro, Suffers Slight Injuries In Accident

Eugene Groves, a negro residing near Iron Hill, was slightly cut and bruised as a result of his wagon being struck and demolished by an auto as he was proceeding along Depot Road, home-bound, Saturday evening.

According to eyewitnesses, the machine side swiped the wagon, which it is reported was in the middle of the road. The car then left the road, huddled a ditch and came to rest on the lawn of Dr. Walter Hulihan, a few feet from a telephone pole.

Groves was thrown to the ground by the collision and at first was believed to be seriously hurt. He was carried into the Infirmary close by and medical aid was summoned. It was found, however, that outside of a few bruises and scratches, he was none the worse for wear. His condition showed evident effects of too long a session over the cups.

The driver of the car was not known. He righted his machine and drove off.

The horse attached to the wagon, ran away but was caught a few hundred yards further down the road.

D. A. R. MEETS AT GLASGOW

All Officers Re-elected for Coming Year

The Cooch's Bridge Chapter, D. A. R., met at the home of Miss Miriam P. Alrich, at Glasgow, on the afternoon of May 12th.

Reports of the year's work were made by the Regent, the Treasurer, and the Secretary. Mrs. Donnell reported the sending to the women in the Detention Rooms at Ellis Island of the long-planned box. Through the generosity of friends of the chapter members, the box was made a very large and nice one, and this so overflowed that a large parcel post package was sent beside.

An election of officers followed in which all the present officers were re-elected. It was voted that the 25 Cents per member asked for the financing of a new edition of the "Immigrant's Manual" be paid by the chapter.

The Regent, Mrs. Ernest Frazer, gave a lively and interesting report of the recent National D. A. R. Congress held in Washington, which she had attended. She was given a vote of thanks by the members of the chapter.

HOLD SERVICES AT WESLEY CHAPEL

Second Meeting of Sunday School Well Attended

The second meeting of the Sunday School at the Wesley M. E. Chapel, near McClellandsville, was held last Sunday afternoon, with quite a good attendance present.

The chapel was opened after a long period of disuse under the directorate of the local Methodist Church. Prof. G. L. Schuster is superintendent of the new school and members of the Church Board are helping with the enterprise. Mrs. Willis, of McClellandsville, is the organist. In opening the school, it is believed

GILPINS FALLS ELECTRIC PLANT GOES FOR $100,000 BID SATURDAY

Result Of Sale May Increase Returns To Creditors Of Defunct Elkton Bank; Only Two Bids Received

SALE IS PENDING DUE TO LEGAL FAULT

Bids for the sale of the Gilpins Falls Electric Company, one of the holdings of the defunct Second National Bank of Elkton, were opened Saturday afternoon in the Circuit Court for Cecil County, met in special session for the consideration of the proposals.

The Northern Maryland Electric Company, an Elkton concern, was the highest bidder, offering an even $100,000 for the plant. The only other bid was made by the Home Manufacturing Light and Power Company, which totalled $93,101.

The filing and opening of sealed bids for the sale of the Gilpins Falls plant grew out of a protest lodged by Joshua Clayton, Esq., attorney for the Home Light Co., asking that a recent sale of $75,000 worth of Gilpins Falls bonds to the Northern Maryland Company be nullified and the bidders compete with sealed proposals.

Mr. Clayton held that the sale by Receiver Perkins of the bonds, gave no opportunity for other companies to bid.

The receivers of the Second National Bank, Thomas R. Perkins and J. W. McAllister, recently sold the Gilpins Falls Company, the principal asset of the Second National Bank, which held $121,000 worth of its bonds, to the Northern Maryland Electric Company for $75,000. Upon protest of the creditors, represented by Joshua Clayton, and attorneys representing the Home Company, the sale was reconsidered and sealed bids asked for.

While tentatively the Northern Maryland Company has won the Gilpin Falls by virtue of the highest bid, there is still some doubt, and the matter is not finally settled. It was learned that the Northern Maryland reserved, in its bid, all rights which it had gained by its prior purchase from the receivers. James F. Evans, representing the Home Company, attacked the manner in which the bid was made before the court yesterday, and it was agreed by the court that argument would be heard on the point next Thursday at Centerville.

The judges who sat were Judge Lewin W. Wickes, of Chestertown, and Judge Thomas R. Keating, of Centerville. They ordered the receivers to accept the Northern Maryland bid, subject to argument on Thursday.

S. R. Zimmerman, of Oxford, Pa.; Philip H. Close, of Bel Air, Md., and Stephen J. Williams, of Bel Air, represented the Northern Maryland Company; E. P. Keech, Jr., of Baltimore, was counsel for the receivers; Joshua Clayton appeared for the creditors, and James F. Evans for the Home Company.

The work on the Earlville-Cecilton road has been resumed after a layoff since last fall. Concrete is being laid by the contractors.

As the road is closed to traffic a detour of about two miles is necessary.

APPROPRIATION FOR CLUB WORK NEEDED

At the regular meeting of the New Castle County Farm Bureau held Saturday last in their offices in the Security Trust Co., Wilmington, it was decided to ask the Levy Court for an appropriation for the continuance of Farm Club Work throughout this section.

The Club work has been marked in the past by great progress in every way, according to officials of the Bureau. The department is now in need of funds to further carry on the projects, and it was deemed advisable to ask the Court for the necessary money.

A. D. Cobb, State Club Leader, was appointed to confer as soon as possible with the members of the Court with a view to setting a date for a hearing in the matter at which time all those interested will be welcomed.

Seed Pools Successful

The great growth in the popularity of the seed pool system which has been sponsored by the County Farm Bureau is evidenced by the report of President Yearsley, who stated that 1700 bushels of certified seed potatoes were bought this year by members of the Bureau in this manner, while last year only 200 bushels were ordered. The pool method of buying seed has won many farmers over and it bids fair to become universally used. It is said that the uniform excellence of the seed this year will bring an even larger pool next year.

R. J. Reynolds of Middletown, reporting progress of the feed pool recently completed by the farmers of the county, said that it had proved a real success. The buying has been accomplished through the Eastern States Farmers Exchange, which maintains a Delaware branch at Dover, in charge of R. C. Handy.

Mr. Reynolds announced his intention of attending the forthcoming sessions of the Exchange to arrange for the actual buying.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY HEARS DR. COOPER

Ladies of M. E. Church Hold May Meeting Thursday

The May meeting of the W. H. M. S. of the M. E. Church was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Willis, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Evan Robinson was in the president's chair and opened the meeting with singing, "Work, For the Night is Coming." Mrs. Frank Willis led the devotions, reading from Romans 8.

The mite boxes were opened, the proceeds from them were $54. The yearly bbl. for the Deaconess Home will be packed Monday June 4th, at 7 p. m., in the vestibule of the church.

Dr. Cooper was the afternoon speaker, taking the study course topic, "The Way to Inter-racial Peace." Dr. Cooper received the racial problem in a liberal manner and ended his talk by saying: The way to inter-racial peace is yet unsolved and is a subject that earnest minded Christians must pray over.

Mrs. George Russell will be hostess at the June meeting.

Bureau will be held as usual this year, according to discussion of the matter at the meeting. While no date has been set, the picnic is assured and will be held at Augustine Beach. A committee was appointed to have complete charge of the affair, consisting of County Agent R. O. Bausman, C. P. Dickey of Stanton, Lee Hofferker, Bear, and H. C. Milliken of Newark.

County Agent Bausman reported that he had recently completed a trip through eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware to obtain calves for the Boys Calf Clubs of the county. He advised the buying of the stock to be put off until August next at the earliest.

A "News Letter," published in the interests of the National Farm Bureau Federation was discussed and approved by the Bureau. It comes out weekly and will be sent to community leaders and officers in the county.

legislative powers hereby granted shall be vested in a Congress" and by declaring not that all laws but only those made in pursuance of the constitution shall rank with the constitution as the supreme law of the land. It is thus seen that Congress has no inherent power, that it derives all the power that it possesses from the people through the constitution and that its constitutional power is marked by boundaries beyond which it may not lawfully go.

How effective are those boundaries? Are the declared rights of the citizen guarded from the encroachments of Congress only by verbal barriers whose whole strength resides in their appeal to the grace and conscience of Congress or is the constitution a living, vital force not only in its grants of power but in its denials of power as well? If the limitations are mere appeals to the conscience of Congress then the three departments of government are not coordinate; the Legislative branch is supreme; the law is what it wills and the citizens retain and exercise their constitutional rights not of right but solely by the grace of Congress. If, however, the limitations upon the sovereignty of Congress are in truth effective it is because the constitution established in one of the other departments of government power to enforce those limitations as well as to enforce the remainder of the constitution. Let us see if either of the other departments has that power. The President may veto an act of Congress on the ground that its passage was not within the constitutional power of Congress. Yet, Congress may by a two-thirds vote of each House pass it over the veto. The Courts, contrary to a strong, popular impression, have no power to veto, revoke or repeal an act of Congress. Their duty, as Sir Francis Bacon in his essay on Judicature truly tells us, is "jus dicere" and not "jus dare." The judicial function is to ascertain and declare the law, not to make the law. The power of the courts to declare the law is not a general power or one that may be invoked abstractly. Its exercise is confined to cases or proceedings instituted in the courts and pending before them. Even then it is restricted to the law applicable to the case or that sought to be enforced therein. Yet, the boundary, so clearly defined, between the field of officialdom and that reserved to the citizen, was not left unguarded for well did our forefathers know that, if it should be left unprotected, officialdom might by small encroachments or by assaults of opportunism, defended as necessary expedients of the passing hour, wear away and destroy the line stones and extend its borders at the expense of the territory reserved to the citizen. Anticipating the danger, a body of defenders was consecrated by the constitution to the task of protecting against invasion, without regard to its pretext or degree, the frontiers of the domain reserved to the citizen. That body of defenders is the Courts functioning not in an extra judicial and political capacity, but in a truly judicial and non-political one where passion and prejudice are outcasts and law, reason and justice reign supreme. In pending cases the very essence of the judicial power is the ascertainment and declaration of the law. The ascertainment of what is the law that governs the case is an indispensable prerequisite to the decision of the case. In such ascertainment the judges are bound by their oaths to support the constitution and accept and apply its provisions and are, consequently, bound to ignore anything, though purporting to be law, that is in conflict therewith. If the Court finds the constitution and a law of Congress or of a state in conflict it follows the constitution and ignores the statute. The fact that a coordinate department of government has failed to heed the constitution constitutes no justification for the court's doing likewise. Thus it is that statutes are held to be unconstitutional. But, say some, the Courts in the exercise of this high function assume, and without warrant, a superiority over Congress. The sophistry of this contention was exposed by the venerable and learned Judge Wythe of Virginia before the Federal Constitution was framed; by James Madison and Alexander Hamilton in the Constitutional Convention; again by Alexander Hamilton in the Federalist while the constitution was awaiting adoption; by America's greatest jurist, Chief Justice Marshall, in Marbury v. Madison, and by countless persons since. Our own Judge Harrington, in Bailey v. Railroad Co., 4 Harr. 389, summarized the reasons and necessity for the power thus:—

"Both departments (legislative and judicial) derive existence, and all the powers they possess, from the constitution; they are co-ordinate in their several spheres; and the relation of superior or inferior, cannot be ascribed to either. THE LEGISLATURE POSSESSES NO INHERENT POWER OF MAKING LAWS; AND NO POWERS BUT SUCH AS ARE DERIVED FROM THE CONSTITUTION, SUBJECT TO ITS LIMITATIONS AND RESTRICTIONS; THE LEADING ONE BEING, THAT IT SHALL MAKE NO LAW CONTRARY TO THE CONSTITUTION. Beyond this, it no more represents the sovereignty of the people than either of the other branches of government does; and when it assumes to pass an act contrary to the constitution, it is not a legislative act, and cannot have the force of law.

"The judiciary derives existence and power from the same high source. Its business is to administer justice according to law; that is, according to the Constitution of the Government, and the laws passed by the legislature within the sphere of its authority, and in conformity to the constitution. None other are laws of the land, having any force or effect. In a case, therefore, of plain, palpable, conflict between the constitution and an act of assembly, the court cannot do otherwise than distinguish between that which is law, and that which is not. And, in doing so, so far from arrogating any right to control the legislature in any of its constitutional powers, it is but asserting that which forms the basis of all our institutions,—the supremacy of the constitution itself, and the entire dependence of every department upon the ultimate sovereignty of the people."

In public apprehension, the legislature is deemed in a peculiar sense the representative of the people. It is true it constitutes the most numerous branch of the government and the brief terms for which some of its members are elected, and the fact that they are all directly voted for by the people, give color to and encourage this opinion, but a moment's reflection should serve to dispel it. In our system of government all power and authority are derived from the people. They have seen fit by an organic law to distribute the powers of government among three co-ordinate departments—the executive, the legislative, and the judicial. Whoever, therefore, belongs to either one of these great departments is the representative of the people and each and all represent a part of the sovereignty of the Nation so long as they move within the appropriate spheres prescribed to them by the constitution. A judge is as much a representative of the people as any other officer of government. He is bound by the duty and obligation which he owes to the Nation to cherish, defend and transmit unimpaired to his successors, the office created by the people for their protection, of which the judge is a mere temporary incumbent. A judge, therefore, in vindicating the dignity and authority of the court over which he presides is discharging a solemn duty owed in his official capacity to the Nation and its people and is not engaged in a personal or private controversy.

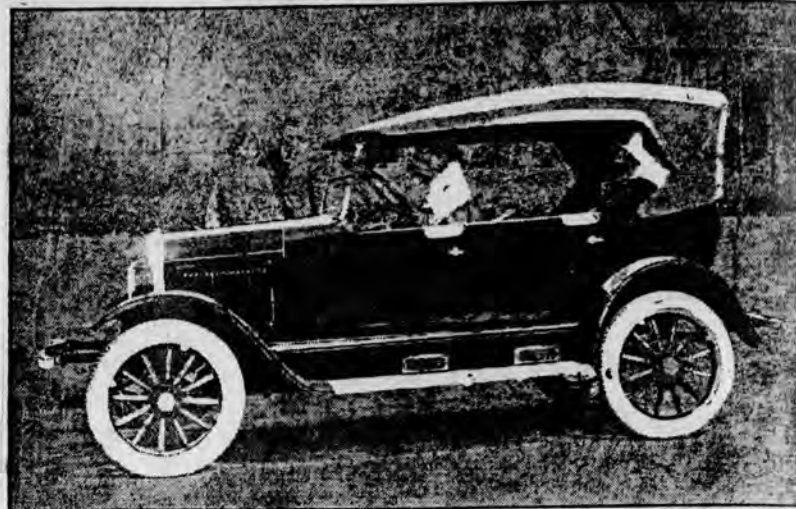

There is no danger of a judicial autocracy for the judicial function is merely to inquire into and decide what are the facts—the truth of the matter in controversy and what is the law of the matter and adjudge accordingly. Judges are in the conduct of judicial affairs just as firmly bound by law as is the citizen in the conduct of his private business. They must administer the law as it is even if they may in any given instance wish it were otherwise. There is no such thing as judicial will. Under the constitution policy and will lie within the limited domain of legislation and find expression in statutes, but justice, unaffected by any personal will or preference of the judge, is the sole domain of judicature. In a court there is "no high nor low, no strong nor weak; their will is nothing and power is nothing and numbers are nothing—and all are equal, and all secure, before the law." Nor can the settled will of the people with respect to any matter be thwarted by the courts, for the constitution provides a method by amendment by which such will may in an orderly and deliberate manner be made effective. Unlimited congressional power is not essential to that end.

The right of the Courts to refuse to enforce legislative acts found to be in conflict with the constitution would, in reason, seem to have been settled for all time. But issues flare up anew. Attacks by strong groups upon principles long looked upon as fundamental are now matters of daily occurrence. Today American ideals and American civilization seem to stand at the cross roads. Theories that would substitute license for liberty, anarchy for order and discipline, will for reason, and supremacy of men for supremacy of law are unblushingly advanced. Theories subversive of the rights of liberty and property are sought to be enthroned in the seat of reason and justice. Mr. Exline, in his recent book projecting most forcefully a unique thought into the realm of government, tells us:—

"... new and strange experiments in democracy are emerging from the ruins of falling empires and even the constitution of the greatest of all so called Democracies is crumbling under the disintegrating forces of unscientific reform."

One of the many so called reforms that have been suggested during the general upheaval that has followed in the wake of the great war consists of a proposed constitutional amendment to take from the Courts their present power and duty to maintain the supremacy of the constitution by denying to them the power effectively to pass upon the constitutionality of congressional legislation whatever be its character. Such an amendment would give untrammelled authority to a majority of Congress. The advocates of the suggested amendment think of Congress as the guardian of social interests and would give it arbitrary power to the end, let us assume, that such power may be used benevolently in the general interest. The supporters of the proposed amendment are indignant that the department of government which they conceive to be the guardian of the social interests should in any manner be restricted in its power to promote such interest. In this, history but repeats itself. "During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the common law courts struggled to maintain the supremacy of law against the King. It was then considered progressive to insist upon the prerogatives of the crown; in order that it might have absolute and arbitrary power

LATE COMMODORE JOHN ROSS MARTIN HAD BRILLIANT WAR RECORD

Had Narrow Escape From Death While Serving With Dewey In Manila Bay; Native of Lancaster County, Pa.

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE IN NEWARK

Below is reprinted a sketch of the career of the late Commodore John Ross Martin, from the pen of the Lancaster County correspondent of the Philadelphia North American. Commodore Martin died in Philadelphia recently.

Believing that many Newark people will be interested in the comment from his own home people, The Post submits the article in full.

Another worthy and distinguished son of Lancaster County has passed to the great beyond, in the death of Commodore John Ross Martin, native of Strasburg and a resident of Philadelphia at the time of his death. Commodore Martin came of two sturdy old Lancaster County families, the Martins and the Blacks being alike representative, the Martins numbering many professional men in this and the preceding generation. The father of the commodore, Dr. Josiah Martin, practiced dentistry for forty years; an uncle, Dr. John Martin, was one of the best-known physicians and most successful business men in the country, practicing at the Gap and Georgetown for half a century, while another uncle, Dr. Jos. Martin, practiced at Stewartstown, York County, and Christiana, in Lancaster Co., for fifty years and is still living at a great old age. Among the first cousins of the deceased in active practice are Dr. Wright Martin, of Lititz, and Dr. John Martin, of Philadelphia, while Dr. Edward Martin, surgeon in the prominent dentists of Baltimore. Dr. Charles B. Martin, of Georgetown; Dr. Edward Martin, surgeon in the United States Navy; Dr. Ross Rowe, of Reading; Dr. Will Black, of Strasburg; Dr. Edwin Walker, of Indianapolis, all of whom are deceased, were first cousins of the commodore, while his brothers, Dr. Edward, graduated in both professions, medicine and dentistry.

His mother was a daughter of William Black and the sister of Ross and William Black, Jr., who were well-known bankers and cattle dealers 25 years ago. The commodore attended Professor Andrews' noted academy at Union, in Colerain township, from which institution of learning many young men went out into the world to make fame and fortune. He graduated later from Delaware College, at Newark, Del., and after a brief experience as a newspaper reporter, was appointed paymaster's clerk in the United States Navy, on the recommendation of Congressman A. Herr Smith.

In due time he became a paymaster and eventually pay director, with the rank of captain. Retiring in 1920 with the rank of commodore, he was first on the list of paymasters and the oldest in the service, with a record of forty-two years. He never became old in spirit, however, and indulged in healthful and robust exercises, enjoying fine health and splendid physique until January last, when he had a fall while skating, and suffered serious injuries. He had partially recovered from the results of the fall when he was stricken with apoplexy and gradually grew worse.

Commodore Martin's services in the navy embraced the most interesting period in the history of this country. Few men had seen more of the world to greater advantage, and it was likewise a great advantage to his friends, for he was a man of extraordinary intelligence, most observant, delightful company and a brilliant conversationalist. With these qualities, he was, of course, a most interesting and attractive man, numbering friends the country over and in many foreign lands, and he kept in close touch, not only with the men of rank in the naval service, but with the home folks and friends of his earlier days. He was ever returning to Strasburg and was always loyal to the country of his birth, attesting his interest and faith in things back home by investing in our local financial institutions and developing enterprises.

It was his great pleasure to bring to Lancaster County men of note, and like every other truly loyal son of the Garden Spot, he was wont to sing its praises and glory in its beauties. It had been Commodore Martin's experience to see strenuous service in the Spanish-American war.

As paymaster of the Boston, Captain Frank Wilde commanding, he accompanied Admiral Dewey's fleet to the Philippine Islands and participated in the battle of Manila Bay. During the heat of the conflict, with characteristic thoughtfulness and gracious disposition to help others, he left his quarters and went on deck to serve coffee to the hard-working gunners, with no thought of the perils attending the hazardous undertaking. When he attempted to return to his cabin, he found the perils to have been there, for a Spanish cannonball had entered, destroying everything contained therein, reducing the entire compartment to splinters. A notable coincidence is the fact on the day and, at the very hour almost, the Rev. Craighead, pastor of the Strasburg Presbyterian Church, began the funeral service over the remains of the naval officer, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the great naval conflict and the most memorable experience in his life was marked, for it was on the first day of May, 1898, toward the set of sun, that Admiral George Dewey's superb fleet sank the last ship that had dared to strike our flag, even in waters that did not wash our shores.

Commodore Martin had been an athlete since boyhood, he was an enthusiastic equestrian, and as ardent a pedestrian, leading many a companion to the land of fatigue. The fact is, no man seemed to understand better than he just how to live carefully, comfortably, healthfully and happily, the while he contributed to making others happy, and radiated the purest strains of optimism. Yet he passes away at the age of 67 years.

Mortal man may question why a man of his physique, robust health, splendid habits and noble qualities should not have been permitted to reach the allotted years, but a wise Providence, who has decreed otherwise, is the same kind Providence who led him from a place of reasonable safety, into the very hell of battle, to miraculously save his life. Mortal men may indeed wonder, but "all is well."

HOW IS CONDUCTED STRAWBERRY HARVEST ON BONANZA SEABROOK FARMS IN SOUTH JERSEY

Methods Adopted By Largest Single Farm Unit Of Atlantic States. 3000 Acres Intensively Cultivated.

200 ACRES IN BERRIES; 1000 PICKERS

This But An Incident In Production Of This Nationally
Famous Fruit And Market Gardening Operation

It has been the good fortune of several of Delaware's leading agriculturists and market gardeners, as well as the Newark Post representative, to view the mammoth Seabrook Farms located near Bridgeton, in Cumberland county, New Jersey and directly across the bay from lower Delaware. Nearly 3,000 acres under intensive cultivation, a large part under the overhead irrigation system is given over to that last word in closeup hand cultivation of market garden specialties and to fruit orchards, these apples and peaches.

It is a principality unto itself, with its own schools, stores, villages and community houses with probably a resident population of over 1,000. In addition to the widespread orchards and irrigated fields, hand cultivated, is a huge central cold storage and refrigerating plant, packing houses, offices, an immense outgoing freight station with private spur track and a city of glass, four huge greenhouses, each 600 feet long by 60 wide, given over to growing winter cucumbers. All is marketed in New York City via the Central Jersey railroad, and in the season, shipments average about 30 cars daily.

How is handled the strawberry harvest now at hand is told in the following graphic story from the Vineland Daily Republican:

"It is almost beyond the average intellect to grasp the significance of the Seabrook Farms and their mammoth production without a personal inspection, and even at that to gain more than a confused impression of its gigantic operations in scientific fruit and market garden production. Just now, however, of greater local interest is the strawberry harvest near at hand, that prompted a visit yesterday, by a representative of this journal, to gain first-hand information.

Prepared to vision preparations for harvesting the crop on a big scale, the realization outdid all expectations. Nearly 200 acres of berries, in full bloom or heavily fruited, in one broad sweep of vision, clean as a billiard table of rubbish, just nicely rolling to give drainage, and bisected by a superb stoned road, first impress. A closer and more critical view of the vigorous blooming plants, absolutely free of weevil or parasites, disclosed a heavy fruitage, the first stem plucked revealing 14 young berries. This promising condition existed over the whole acreage. One four-row mechanical duster was seen at work, but this seemed more a precaution than a need.

Ready for Harvest

F. F. Rockwell, publicity manager for the Seabrooks, stated that it will require 1000 pickers to harvest the crop, this independent of their own farm organization of upwards of 300. These are Italians of both sexes, working on the padrone system. A full half are already on the ground and are now up to their eyes harvesting, bunching and shipping 90 acres of heavy rhubarb.

Contrary to public impression, few of the Seabrook berries reach the open market. The greater part are put down in "cold pack" or semi-preserved in barrels, later sold to confectioners and ice cream dealers for fruit flavoring. For this packing process a new cannery has been erected this year.

The favorite Seabrook growing varieties are the Champions and Jersey Bees, this last a large, heavy bodied, high flavored berry that cans well. There are also grown some of the earlier varieties like the Campbells and Luptons, but the main crop is confined to the two first mentioned.

The strawberry harvest will continue well into July and then the picker army will be put on the peaches, whose serried rows of trees, for miles, extend far beyond the vision. While the Seabrook ambition to produce a million baskets in one season bids fair to be realized, the orchards, or at least the main areas, are too youthful as yet, this being their third year.

To continue of the berry harvest: Procedure is the same as adopted generally over the county, the pickers bringing their filled boxes to temporary packing sheds erected in the fields and there having them checked and credited. If for market, the berries are graded, packed in crates and loaded out of their own private terminal in long lines of waiting cars, or chilled in their own refrigerating plant. Flat wagons drawn by horses transport the fruit. All works with the precision of a well oiled dynamo, and almost as speedily.

and use it benevolently in the general interest. Those who conceived the King to be the guardian of the general welfare were engaged to see the sovereign restricted in the exercise of his will by the judicial enforcement of the provisions of Magna Charta. To them the will of the King was the sole criterion of law and when ascertained from time to time the duty of the courts was, in their view, but to enforce it. Subsequently, it was considered progressive to look upon the legislature and not the King as the guardian of the social interest and to insist that no matter what the fundamental law by which it was governed the courts had but to ascertain and give effect to its will. In each case it was insisted that the will of the ruling organ of state must be both the immediate source and the ultimate guide to which judges should refer. In each instance the Courts refused to give effect to the acts of King and legislature save within the limits within which the fundamental law recognized them as supreme.

But are there any reasons why an amendment of the kind proposed should not be adopted? Is the proposed amendment of the character referred to by Washington when he said to the American people:—

"Towards the preservation of your government * * * it is requisite not only that you steadily discountenance irregular oppositions to its acknowledged authority, but also you must resist with care the spirit of innovation upon its principles, however specious the pretext. One method of assault may be to effect, in the forms of the constitution alterations, which would impair the energy of the system and thus to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown."

It must be conceded that a constitutional amendment making the acts of Congress and not the constitution the supreme law of the land would leave Congress invested with power to conform to or disregard, at its pleasure, the limitations placed upon it by the constitution. Its will and not the constitution would control its acts. Statutes enacted by Congress and not the constitution would be the supreme law of the land. Thus, it is manifest that an amendment of the character described would be destructive of every basic principle of the constitution. Let us view the matter from another aspect, conceding that a government of as much vigor as is consistent with the perfect security of liberty is indispensable. Is an amendment of the character proposed consistent with the security of the liberty of the citizens? Is it even consistent with the security of that liberty that has been expressly placed under the protection of the constitution? Under the proposed amendment Congress would have the power to make laws respecting an establishment of religion—the cornerstone for an inquisition. The right of divine worship according to the dictates of one's own conscience would remain only until Congress should declare otherwise. Freedom of speech and of the press, freedom of thought and the right to own property would exist only at the pleasure of Congress. A man's house would be his castle only until an intolerant majority of Congress should decree otherwise. The right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury which has always been regarded as the palladium of liberty—the safeguard of individuals against the oppression of government—would exist under such a system only until the unchecked legislative power should substitute trial by governmental agents or no trial at all in its stead. Ex post facto laws, that is laws which make an act done before the law is passed and innocent when done, criminal and punishable, could be made the law of the land. True such acts would be tyrannical and oppressive to the last degree and the probability of such acts being passed in normal times by a Congress possessing even unlimited and unchecked power might, possibly, be slight. Legislatures are the guardians of the liberties and welfare of the people in quite as great a degree as courts. It is not to be assumed that Congress is, in the usual course of events, any more ready to destroy the liberties of mankind than is the judiciary. Yet, Congress is so constituted that while it reflects the will of the people it likewise, and unavoidably, reflects their temporary passions. It is at times the scene of political strife when, conceivably, in the heat of conflict and party feeling, vindictive resentment and intolerance of opposition may triumph over justice and humanity, and the natural rights of man be ignored. To guard against that possibility a law, a supreme law, a law beyond reach of Congress, a law even beyond the reach of a majority of the people—the written constitution which shields the torch of liberty from the gusts of passion—was created by the people themselves and placed by them in the special keeping of a tribunal whose privilege and duty it is but to give voice and effect to law.

Has that bulwark of liberty survived its usefulness? We must not predicate our answer to this inquiry solely upon the few instances in which Congress has in the past gone beyond the lines that mark the borders of its legitimate sphere of action. The judicial restraining power is both a preventive and a cure. Aloof in the background, but none the less always in reserve, it gives continuity of life to ideals that might otherwise perish. It tends to infuse with the glow of principle legislative action. It holds ever aloft the people's standard—the constitution—for those who must run the race and keep the faith. But may we not in the future need its active as well as its static protection? The day of fanaticism and the will to supplant right by might is not passed. Multitudes of people, excited by unbalanced idealogues and highly organized minorities, cry periodically and insistently for the nostrums of demagoguery and are intolerant of opposition. Disregarding the lessons of history they manifest a disposition to revert to the principles and methods of tyranny in order to meet the problems of democracy. Each person desires liberty for himself but restraint for all others. A new creed has already arisen having for its basis the rights not of all men but of the majority. May not these views at times in the future as in the past find temporary lodgment in the Halls of Congress? Where then will be the security of the minority but in the constitution and what will the constitution avail if the very people whose purpose is to ignore, override and destroy it are the only persons who may enforce it?

The constitution of our fathers distributing the powers and functions of government into three coordinate departments and built upon the doctrine of individual freedom and not upon its suppression has excited the admiration—aye, even the envy—of peoples of other lands. It is the most famous of all written constitutions. It has been accepted as the model for most of the governments in this hemisphere. It has been imitated in Europe. It has made its imprint upon the countries in Asia, Africa and in the scattered isles of Oceania. And well it might. Our constitution—born out of all the experiments in government tried in all the thousands of years of the existence of the human family—was built upon the doctrine of the unalienable rights of man. The security of the liberty of all its citizens has made America stand pre-eminent among the nations of the earth. Individual liberty has enabled Americans to assume responsibility and loom large among men wherever stupendous tasks are being performed. America's constitution is your heritage. It will remain yours only if you love wealth less than liberty and the tranquility of servitude less than the animating contest of freedom. It will remain yours only if you scent the approach of tyranny in every tainted breeze and avoid the consequences of evil governmental principles by forestalling them. It will remain yours only on condition that you preserve the power of an independent judiciary to uphold the constitution notwithstanding conflicting legislation for that power is the keystone of the constitution and Liberty's Greatest Safeguard.

DEDICATE NEW MASONIC HOME

May 30th Set For Elaborate Ceremonies

The committee on arrangements for the dedication of the new addition to the Masonic Home on the Lancaster Pike, Wilmington, Wednesday, May 30, are busily engaged in their preparation for the affair, which is expected to eclipse any thing of this kind ever held in Delaware.

Grand Master Charles A. Bamberger will be in charge of the dedication exercises, which start at 1 o'clock daylight saving time. Past Grand Master Rev. R. K. Stephenson, Bishop Philip Cook and Dr. A. W. Sonne will be among the speakers. The exercises will be followed by a drill by the Drill Battalion of St. John's Commandery, at 3 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the Westminster Choral Club and the Commandery Band.

The athletic program for the day will be a big one. There will be a ball game between a team composed of Wilmington members of the Masonic fraternity and a team selected from the lodges in the rest of the State. George L. Winters will manage the Wilmington team, while Jesse Legar of Milford, will manage the other team. Both are well known ball-players.

In addition to the ball game, there will be athletic contests for the men, women and children and all will have an opportunity to participate. Numerous prizes will be awarded for the various events.

A number of down-State members are expected to attend the dedication exercises, several of the lodges having adopted plans for a large representation. The affair is intended for all the members of the family.

PLAYHOUSE

Since Monday night the Playhouse at Wilmington has been offering that sensational farce "The Demi-Virgin," and crowded houses have been the rule. The play is from the pen of Avery Hopwood and comes to Wilmington after a one year's run at the Eltinge Theatre, New York, where it thrilled thousands. Playgoers hereabouts are now joining those of other cities in pronouncing the play one of the best they have seen in years. It is a story of Hollywood life, beautifully staged and presented by a well balanced company. It is confidently expected that the farce will establish a record attendance at the Playhouse this week, so eager have been theatre-goers to see the production.

The Playhouse Players, headed by Miss Ann MacDonald, are booked for a spring and summer season at the Playhouse. Until this time they have presented "Wedding Bells," "Lawful Larceny" and the current attraction, "The Demi-Virgin." Their offering next week will be the rural comedy, "Spite Corner," which, like all the plays to be presented by the Players, has had a successful run on Broadway.

A scale of popular prices prevails for both the night and Wednesday and Saturday matinee performances.
