

Gridmen Set To Battle Swarthmore

Football Team Anxious To Beat Both Jinx And Ancient Rival

Tomorrow on Frazer Field two ancient foes will engage in combat, and if past performances are any basis for prediction it will be a battle well worth the price of admission, no matter what you pay.

Such is the situation tomorrow. Delaware bruised and bent by the four previous contests in which she has engaged so far this season faces a strong team from the Main Line, and the struggle is to be laid out in back of Mechanical Hall.

Swarthmore has been having a rather successful season this year, starting off by defeating Drexel by a score of 14 to 6.

POSTPONE DECORATION OF MILITARY MEN

Due to the inclement weather yesterday morning, the ceremony of presentation of decorations to the military students was postponed until the next drill period.

The presentations are to be made by Major Glassburn, head of the military department.

T. R. Snowberger is the only one in the group to make the qualification of expert with the pistol, for which he will receive a decoration, and also for marksmanship with the rifle.

F. R. Thoroughgood will receive a decoration for the qualification of sharpshooter with the pistol, he being the only one to qualify in that respect.

Other students will be decorated for qualifications as follows:

Marksmanship with both pistol and rifle—J. J. Moran, A. W. Rogers, H. D. Simpson, and W. L. Tindall.

Marksmanship with pistol—C. R. Ford, W. H. Clemo, H. W. Fritz, R. S. Goffigon, R. H. Holt, W. B. Simpson, J. H. Smith, F. R. Swezey.

Marksmanship with rifle—K. M. Frisbie, J. L. Brannon, J. M. Vessels, and A. D. Voysey.

SUSQUEHANNA ANXIOUS FOR BOGGS; P. M. C. TEAM SENDS FLOWERS

The Athletic Department wishes the student body to know that the officials of Susquehanna University are taking a great interest in the condition of Caleb Boggs (who was seriously injured in the Susquehanna-Delaware game two weeks ago).

It is also very interesting to know that the members of the football team at P. M. C. have also sent flowers to Boggs. This is certainly a fine display of spirit and good sportsmanship on their part and should be highly appreciated here at Delaware.

Alpha Psi Omega Plans Competitive Fraternity Plays

Permanent Trophy To Be Presented To Winners Of Each Contest

Leon de Valinger, president of Beta Lambda Cast of Alpha Psi Omega—the Footlights Club—has announced that the Club will endeavor to revive a practice which existed at Delaware some years ago.

The plan, which was presented to the Interfraternity Council last Tuesday night, is essentially as follows: Each fraternity is to present a one act play, or its dramatic equivalent. The plays are to be presented on two consecutive evenings, and judged by an impartial board—probably chosen from the faculty.

Basketball Practice To Begin Monday

Cage Team To Hold Four Games Before Christmas

On Monday, November 4th, the first basketball practice of this season will be held. As in previous years, practice will be held in the gymnasium and will begin at four-thirty.

A great many of last year's teams will be back to try their ability on the wooden ways, but it is hoped that a large number of Freshmen will also turn out for the team.

The schedule has not been entirely completed, but the following fifteen games have been arranged by manager Rinard:

- December 7—Osteopathy. Home
December 11—Lafayette. Away.
December 15—William and Mary. Home.
December 17—Baltimore U. Home.

Soccer Team Wins Two Games

Booters Now Average .500 For Season; Have Played Strong Teams

Captain "Gummy" Collins' Soccer Team won two of the three games played in the past week. Last Friday the Blue and Gold Booters trounced State Teacher's College by a 3-1 score, but lost the following day to the powerful Chalfonte-Haddon Hall team of Atlantic City by a 2-1 count.

The work of Jimmy Caulk, inside right on the local combination featured on a scoring standpoint. Caulk scored a pair of goals against West Chester and on Tuesday scored three against the Lancaster College booters.

The game played at Atlantic City was marked by the best exhibition of soccer ever presented by a Delaware team. Pitted against a veteran aggregation, which had a sprinkling of former All Americans in their lineup, the Blue and Gold booters extended their opponents throughout and were outplayed by a slight margin.

The next game booked for Delaware will be Swarthmore College to be played on November 8th at the Little Quaker institution.

There are forty-one "Blue Hens" left over. If any one wishes one of these, please see some member of the Student Council.

STUDENTS DONATE CHECKERBOARD

A new checkerboard appeared in the Lounge yesterday morning, much to the jubilee of the checker fans who make that room their recreation center.

Tomorrow at noon Rushing Week will be inaugurated at the University.

Written invitations to the various function of the week will be issued by the respective fraternities shortly after noon.

Signed Richard I. Rinard, President Inter-Fraternity Council.

Freshman Parade And Smoker Tonight

Many Good Speakers On Program; Prizes For Costumes, Skits, Songs, And Cheers

The Freshman Peerade, time honored and colorful tradition of Delaware College, will not slip by tonight without the full spirit of this fantastic season, if the newcomers know anything about it.

By stern edict of the Student Council, every Freshman must be present tonight attired in some sort of costume.

The affair will be in the form of a super pep fest. There will be speeches, songs, yells, impressive demonstrations which will extend throughout the length and breadth of the town, including the Women's College.

Refreshments will include about 50 gallons of cider placed on tap by the Student Council, and an endless supply of pretzels.

Parents' Day At Delaware Tomorrow

Rothrock Urges Students To Bring Fathers and Mothers to Swarthmore Game

Tomorrow, November 22nd, is Parents' Day at the University of Delaware. It is desired to invite all the parents of the students to come to Newark to see the annual football game between Delaware and Swarthmore.

Letters have been written to the fathers and mothers of the students, inviting them to Newark for this week-end, and it is hoped that as many of the students will remain in town until their parents arrive.

The following letter has been written to the parents and guardians of the students: October 24, 1929.

Dear Parents: Saturday, November 2d, has been set aside on our football schedule as Fathers' and Mothers' day at the University of Delaware.

Footlighters Now Engaged In Final Intensive Practice For First Production Of Year

One week from tonight the Footlighters Club will present "Caste," the first dramatic production of the present college year.

The play is a good one, combining tense situations, pathos, and humor in sufficient quantity and quality to please those of the most varied tastes.

The cast for "Caste" has been carefully and well chosen. Agnes Thoms again plays the aristocratic lady— which she can do so well.

THE FOOTLIGHTS CLUB

Next Friday night the Footlights Club will give its first production of the year, a three-act play. Everything has been done to insure a good entertainment for those who attend. A good play by an admittedly good dramatist has been selected, and the best cast obtainable has been chosen. A great deal of time has been spent on rehearsals, obtaining of properties and costumes, and all that is necessary for the production of a play. With all of these and with sufficient advertisement, the play should be well attended—but will it?

For the past few years, in spite of the raising of the standards of the productions of the Footlights Club, the attendance at the plays has steadily fallen off. As in everything else, interest in dramatics at Delaware has fallen off. This should not be.

There are many reasons why the play should be well attended, some of which we have already stated. The first and most obvious reasons are that the play is well-written, and that it is an easy opportunity for the students to see a good play well played. The other reasons are the ones upon which we hear the most but to which we give the least thought. The Footlights Club is one of the most active institutions on the campus and one of the most useful ones in many ways. It cannot continue without support, and it is the duty of the student body to support it to the utmost. We are fortunate in being able to have as good plays produced here as we have, and if we wish the high standard of the presentations to be continued or raised even higher we will have to give the Footlights Club our best backing. We hope to see you in Wolf Hall next Friday night.

THE THANKSGIVING BANQUET

One of the finest social functions on the campus during the entire year is the Thanksgiving Banquet. For the benefit of those who are new to the University, the banquet is an annual affair which has been held every year since Mr. A. G. Wilkinson has been Business Administrator of the University. A fine dinner is served, and good entertainment in the way of music and good (and short) speeches is provided. No one who attends will want to miss another one.

However, at a point so far ahead of Thanksgiving, it is hard to arouse any enthusiasm for the banquet. Talk around the campus does not seem to be much in its favor. This is probably due to the fact that the students have so much to do between now and Thanksgiving that they cannot take much interest in it. Next week meetings of the classes will be held to decide whether or not to continue the affair. It is the only time in the whole year that the entire college can meet on what Dean Dutton terms "A friendly basis," and it is one of the few remaining institutions that tend to increase and foster college spirit. Let's get behind the banquet and put it over as the best banquet that has ever been held at Delaware.

Literary Column

WINDMILLS

THE UNWILLING GOD: Percy Marks. Harper and Brother, New York.

Mr. Marks has made some startling disclosures in his book. That is, he and the publishers say so. All college students are earnestly requested to read this book in order to find out what college life is all about.

The story tells of a college football star who rebels against commercialized athletics (incidentally, he accepts twenty-five dollars a week for winding an eight-day clock.) Bill Royce, the hero of this novel, is the rare combination of a good student and a fine athlete. I don't know exactly where such a creature exists, but there is one in this book, anyway. Perhaps it's the best place for him.

Bill rebels against everything in college: fraternities, popularity, bull sessions, and girls. Of course, the heroine enters at the right moment (next to the last chapter) and so on to the conventional ending with love and kisses. Also, Bill steps right out of college into a five thousand a year job. Anytime you're not busy, Mr. Marks, you might blow one my way.

My advice to Mr. Marks is that he sell his story to the movies. Of course, it would need a few changes, but the movies are great for that sort of thing. It would never do, for example, to have Bill faint just as he has a clear field for the winning touchdown. But the fainting could easily be postponed.

If this book is intended as a criticism of college life, it will probably create a great effect—as great an effect as the Alger books had on the business world. Such puerile criticism never will accomplish its aim. I believe everyone who has ever been to college realizes that colleges are far from perfect. But such an aniline book as this makes one realize that criticism of college life is often a mask and that, underlying this mask there is sensation-seeking and publicity-hunting commercialism.

Jus apropos of nothing at all, "The Golden Wind," about which I wrote a luke-warm review, has sold 75,000 copies and is breaking al records. This alone should qualify me as a critic and I'm daily expecting lucrative offers from "The Bookman," "New York Times," "Herald-Tribune," et al. DON QUIXOTE.

Col. Bullis College Hour Speaker

Will Talk November 12th On "The Land of the White Rajah"

The college hour speaker for November 12 is Col. H. Edmund Bullis, who spoke last year on the Romance of the Calendar and who is a Colonial authority on Philippine question. His topic this year is "The Land of the White Rajah," and his experience as a Colonel in the U. S. Army should well fit him for such a question. Mrs. Bullis is also a Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society of Engineering. A speech has been arranged for Freshman College Hour on November 26, and the subject and speaker will be announced later. This Freshman assembly is open to the three upper classes.

the contest. Some slight details remain to be worked out, but the above plan is in general correct.

The possibilities of this plan are unbounded. An answering chord of approval from the fraternities is all that is now needed to put the scheme into action. The Footlights Club requests the fraternities to acquaint themselves with the idea and think it over, so that it may be determined whether or not an effort to put on the competition will meet with favor.

In the Editor's Mail

Editor of The Review,
Dear Sir:

On the eve of the year's first dramatic presentation I beg the use of your columns to speak with the student body.

This letter may be called a plea; a plea for support, uttered by one, but felt by many. Next week there will be presented in Wolf Hall a good three-act play. In certain limited circles here is much enthusiasm, and in the same circles a sort of ill-defined, suppressed feeling of hopelessness—a feeling of "I wonder if it's worth it." These "limited circles" are composed of the men and women of the University who are really interested in dramatics. They are enthused because a good play is coming, with its attendant fun, and pleasure, and interest. Certain of them, namely, the actors, directors, and stage workers, are depressed because they have before them the prospect of performing before a very small—and often not very appreciative—audience. Having been personally active in dramatics for some years, I can state truthfully that nothing is more discouraging than playing to rows of empty seats.

It is for the correction of this condition that I plead. Certainly those who have spent every evening for four weeks rehearsing and working are deserving of some reward for their efforts—and support on the night of the performance is all they ask. It is not only for themselves that the thespians work. They work for the organization which sponsors the play, an organization which is an integral part of the college; they work for the student body, to afford evenings of entertainment, and when so little appreciation is shown it is no wonder that they feel that "it's not worth it." Love of the drama keeps them at it, but support is necessary to keep alive the spirit which prompts their efforts.

I shall not endeavor to go into the causes for the lack of interest and support. I merely state that it is a shame that such a worthy activity as dramatics must suffer so much from lack of attendance at plays. For any fair-minded person must concede that dramatics is a worthy activity. The plays which are presented at Delaware are certainly not too "high-brow" for the students. If they are, the students should be ashamed to admit it. Furthermore the plays are well enough presented to be worth watching and listening to, and the plays are usually as entertaining as an average—or even a good—movie, and often are better than the best movie. Here is one activity at Delaware a little more elevated than most activities, one which possesses intellectual and cultural qualities, one which should have a universal appeal, and it is not given even fair support!

The plans of last year were good—all of them—and the audiences showed a little increase in numbers. But the audiences were not in proportion to the plays. This year, one week before the first production, which I am sure will equal those of last year, I entreat the students of the University to support this movement which has such possibilities—and I can promise those students who do give their support that they will feel more than repaid for what they have done.

—Edgar Hare, Jr.

LAFAYETTE STARTS FENCING TEAM

Fencing at Lafayette has been put upon a basis of a minor sport, according to announcement recently. Negotiations for this arrangement have been under way for some time, but have only just now received the approval of President Lewis. The affirmative action on the part of the Athletic Association is expected to follow soon. The fencing schedule this year will include Lehigh, Rutgers and Hamilton definitely, and probably Delaware, Princeton, Geo. Washington and Annapolis. Contests will start the second week in November.

Key Town selling — a new telephone idea

Commercial development men of the Bell System have originated a new use of the telephone which is proving economical and efficient for modern salesmanship. From important central towns the salesman makes periodic visits to customers and prospects by telephone.

To conceive this idea, to make it practical by selecting Key Towns on a basis of most advantageous rates to surrounding points, and to sell it as a business practice—all this illustrates how telephone service is as open as any commodity to constructive imagination.

Key Town selling is one of many indications of the steady demand, present and to come, for more and more telephone service.

Heisman Praises Ziegler In Colliers

Delaware Coach Lauded For Mighty
Work In Line Against Cornell

Writing in Colliers Weekly for November 2, under the title "Hero Stuff," John W. Heisman, famed old time football coach, gives a major portion of his article to an exploit of "Gus" Ziegler, when Ziegler was an All-American guard on the University of Pennsylvania eleven. Ziegler is at present mentor of the Delaware eleven.

Mr. Heisman's article is a series of greatest feats of football and his anecdote on "Gus" Ziegler is characterized mightiest work in the line that he had ever witnessed. The story is as follows:

"Neither have I ever witnessed mightier work in the line than Gus Ziegler, of Penn., produced against Cornell on Thanksgiving Day, 1906. Gus gave that day—everything he had. Gus stopped Cornell. Penn. couldn't score but Gus saw to it that the Big Red Team didn't."

It was one of Cornell's greatest teams and Ziegler's opponent was the giant Thompson, justly celebrated as Big Thompson, an All-American guard. Gus was big enough, but Thompson topped him by fifty pounds.

For more than fifty minutes of battle Cornell had punished Penn., mauled her, smashed her, reduced her. But there had been no score. And now Cornell had the ball on Penn's five-yard line and Penn was crumbling. Exhausted.

The entire Cornell backfield hurled itself into where Thompson should have made a great hole—bang! It piled up on Thompson's back. He hadn't moved an inch. Again Thompson led the assault on Gus. This time it gained a few feet. A third time the avalanche fell on Gus. When the pile was unscrambled, Gus, the last to arise because he was on the bottom, owned a bleeding nose and a cut scalp. The ball was a foot from Penn's goal.

"You boys are doing fine," roared Gus to Cornell. "Come to me again." Cornell did. Gus and Thompson struck each other so hard that they fought standing, chest to chest. The rest of the two teams were heaped around them. Gus and Thompson couldn't fall. They were waist-deep in football players. But the ball was still a foot away from the line. Cornell had lost it on downs.

The stands were still roaring Gus' name when Bill Hollenbeck punted into the face of a sixty-mile gale. The ball flew high—too high. The wind took it and hurled it back. It went out of bounds on Penn's five-yard line. And then Ziegler and Thompson again.

Twice Thompson with the ball at his back charged Gus. Now both men were showing the gore of battle. Huge Thompson looked puzzled—possibly he was a little dazed. It was hard to believe that his opponent could stand this. Yet Gus was still there, grinning and calling upon Cornell to come to him. Cornell had made two yards.

On the third smash at Ziegler, Penn's center had interfered with Cornell's and Penn was penalized half the distance to the goal. The ball is put on Penn's eighteen-inch line and Cornell is given a first down. And then I beheld what I like to think was the finest defensive play that football could produce.

Three times Ziegler and Thompson clashed and three times Cornell was piled up at her great guard's back. Each time Gus held. Cornell hadn't gained an inch.

"You've got another chance, Cornell," roared Gus. "Give us everything you've got, Cornell. C-o-m-e-o-n, Penn-syl-vaaaaaaaanians!"

Every Pennsylvania player rushed at Gus. And every one of them grabbed his hand. Big Bill Hollenbeck hugged him.

"Can you do it again, Gus?" yelled Bill. "Just once more?"

"Till Christmas," replied Gus.

Walders, the Cornell fullback, took the ball. Thompson summoned every ounce of his great strength, lowered his head and charged. And Gus met him half-way. There Thompson stopped and fell. And Walders, smashing against the back of the giant, seemed to rise perpendicularly. Up he went. Down he came. And there he stopped.

The timekeeper's gun sounded. The game was over. The ball was just a foot from Penn's goal.

Thompson was the first to grab Gus. And there on the twilight field, with 50,000 men and women gone wild in the stands, Gus Ziegler and Big Thompson stood in a bear hug—patting each other on the back."

FRATERNITY PIN LOVE SUFFERS IN MICHIGAN

The college widow in Michigan is going to have a poor time gathering fraternity pins.

The fraternity pin, long the symbol of affection in campus courtship, has been ruled out of that realm. The legislature at Lansing has made it a misdemeanor for anyone to wear a badge or fraternity pin if not a member of the organization the insignia represents.

J. V. FOOTBALL SCHEDULE CANCELLED

Due to injuries and other causes, the remainder of the schedule of the Junior Varsity Football team has been cancelled. There were only one or two other games to be played.

The following letter was received from Dean Robinson in reply to the request for the Freshman Parade to be allowed to march through Residence Hall:

October 30, 1929
Mr. David Anderson,
Student Council
University of Delaware
Newark, Del.

My dear Mr. Anderson:
We shall be very happy to have the Freshman Parade pass through Residence Hall of the Women's College at 8:00 o'clock on Friday evening, November first. I think we can promise you an appreciative audience.
Yours sincerely,
Winifred J. Robinson,
Dean.

Rat Court Holds Second Session

Light Penalties Inflicted

Tuesday night of this week brought the second setting of the Rat Tribunal. Seven disobedient rats answered to seven summons.

The meeting was apparently a success. Certain rather trivial penalties were dealt out but no unusual trouble was experienced.

It is the aim and earnest desire of every man on the tribunal that the present freshman class shall be fundamentally assimilated by the spirit of this university. All bad rats many not be summoned by the tribunal but it is at least striving to select those men to whom it can be of the most help. If it is to succeed the upper classmen must remember that they too have a part. They should demand the respect of the freshmen. They should not hesitate to take a slip simply because they are anxious to pledge a man. If they will give the Rat Tribunal an even chance it will serve its purpose.

The freshmen, also, need to consider a few things about the Rat Tribunal. They should respect and heed the advice of the men on this tribunal. They are the friends of the freshmen and are anxious to help them. It must be remembered that the time to do one's work is before a slip is taken. If the summons comes, a freshman should be mindful of the fact that the man who is looked up to makes the best of things.

Will Give Caste Next Friday Night

Next Friday at 8:15 p. m. the curtain rises, marking the opening of the Delaware College dramatic season. The entertainment offered at this time will be the best, and the participants ask only for a good turn-out to reward them for their four weeks of concentrated effort.

At a meeting of the local cast of Alpha Psi Omega this week, Frank Sasse, who has a leading part in the forthcoming production, was elected to membership in the fraternity. At the same time, Paul B. Smith was elected secretary of the organization.

Mr. Conkle has accepted the fraternity's invitation to become its faculty advisor in place of Mr. Blair, who was forced to resign by newly acquired official and marital duties.

SLOAN HURT; MAY BE OUT OF PLAY

Sam Sloan, whose work on the end for Delaware has been especially notable this year, received an injury to his hip in the Mt. St. Mary's game last Saturday, which may keep him out of the play tomorrow. It is feared that the hip may be cracked, and the injury is rather painful, but it is hoped that it will not be so serious as to keep him out of the game entirely.

Stop! John, don't you dare! Please, please!
Very well, dear, but if we get on an open highway, I'm going to pass that guy like a rocket.

Delfor

By the number of students who have asked me questions about my year abroad and by the variety of questions asked, I judge that there is a general interest on the campus concerning the year abroad organized by our University. I shall, therefore, endeavor to enlighten the interested in a series of a few articles by importing through this medium some of my impressions on the subject.

Among the various foreign-study groups now in operation, the Delaware Plan is the best known to the educational authorities of the world. It is known for its most effective methods and results. The Delaware Plan is also the best known to the general college public in this country because it includes representatives from many states in the Union and from a great number (41) of our universities, large and small. The Delaware Plan is also the best known in foreign countries, and especially in France, because of the extraordinary size of its membership and of its scope of activities. The point I wish to emphasize here is that of any of our students have any doubt as to the wide interest shown in our Plan, they can reassure themselves of this fact by verifying the above given indications.

Just as in the athletic sphere we are proud of our excellent teams, so from an educational angle we ought to realize that the Delaware Foreign Study Plan sponsors an activity which makes us all belong to a university which stands out among the others due to its international educational activities.

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles written by Louis Blum, a member of last year's Foreign Study Group, about the activities of the Group in France. Delfor is the cable address of the Foreign Study Group in Paris.

HAZING IS ABOLISHED AT SWARTHMORE

Men students at Swarthmore College Thursday voted to abolish physical hazing of freshmen.

A secret ballot, taken among the students, showed 15 against the practice to 88 in its favor. The decision does not affect freshman rules relating to the wearing of caps and tags and other milder forms of initiation.

CRAIG ELECTED FRESHMAN CHAIRMAN

Thomas "Scottie" Craig has been elected permanent chairman of the Freshman Class. He was elected from a large number of nominees; Rice and Tucker being his closest competitors. Craig is a graduate of Dupont High School. Besides being a popular member of his class, he is a regular on the football team.

Faculty Grid Team Starts Practice

Profs Hold Daily Workouts In Front of Wolf Hall

The faculty of the University has organized a football team and are holding daily practices on their soft-turfed gridiron in front of Wolf Hall. To date uniforms have not been secured and no scrimmages have been held, but the teachers are working hard on the fundamentals, and will soon be ready to start signal practice and (it is hoped) tackling the dummy.

The team has issued a challenge to the senior class to resume the once annual faculty-senior game which was abandoned a few years ago. The fourth-year men have not answered yet, but it is believed that an affirmative reply will soon be issued.

The faculty has many good players out for the team. Dr. Manns, captain of the team, is a former star of the faculty and is a tower of strength in the line. The place of F. A. Wade, the big blonde two-hundred-pounder has not been determined, but he should be a valuable addition either to the line or backfield. Bunny Russell, all-Liberian end, is looking well this season, and with Dr. Skinner as running mate, should prevent many end runs, as well as complete many forward passes for the profs. George Worrlow seems to be a mystery man, but when the water-bucket has been purchased it is certain that his place will be assured. A number of the other members of the Wolf Hall gang are also out for the team, and while the Purnell Hall toughs are requesting that they be permitted to join the squad, it has been learned that they have been asked to sign a statement that they will not use brass knuckles, before they will be admitted to practice. Just what part the Recitation Hall all-stars will play in the team has not been determined, but it is hoped that the modern language department will be liberally represented. From the economics, physics, and philosophy departments, no reports have been received.

Next week it is the hope of The Review to furnish information about the Senior team.

W. C. D. NOTES

In the Hilarium on Monday evening the students at W. C. D. enjoyed the play "Nevertheless," by Warner. It was a one-act play given under the direction of Ann Walker. There were only three characters, Camille Downing, the appealing little girl who worshipped her fourteen year old brother; Lib Wilson, the all-knowing, worldly wise brother and Em de Huff, the big, gruff burglar. They each cleverly played their parts while the audience laughed more than once and declared it is a really enjoyable success. This was the first of a series of plays to be given every Monday evening for nine weeks. They are being worked out through the cooperation of the Dramatic Board and the "Puppets." Each member of the Puppets is given two weeks in which to coach and present a one-act play. By this arrangement the "Puppets" is no longer merely an honorary society but an active organization.

The Hallowe'en dance was held Saturday night in Old College. About 125 couples were present. Although there were only a few masked those that were, were really good, especially the sailor boy and the vagabond Gypsy girl. Those in the receiving line were Tulla Hagen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Reed, Miss Templeman and Miss Gillespie. Music was furnished by Orville Jacobs' orchestra.

ORCHARDS SELECTED FOR CONTROL WORK

It has been announced through the University Experiment Station of Delaware that the coddling moth life history and control work which has been carried on in the fruit belt of the State in central Delaware, especially in Kent County, under the direction of the Extension Department and the Experiment Station, will be continued for another year in view of the most serious pests attacking the apple orchards.

Observation cages containing the larvae of the coddling moth have been placed in several apple orchards in Kent County each Spring for the purpose of securing more definite information concerning the life history changes and the dates of adult emergence in order that the fruit growers may be informed as to the right time to apply the sprays containing the arsenicals.

The plan of this work, however, was changed in 1928 when it was decided to place these observation cages in the orchards in the Fall of the year instead of the Spring, so that the larvae would have the opportunity to pass through the winter months on a more natural state without being disturbed by being placed in the cages early in the Spring. The orchards selected for this purpose this Fall include those of J. Leonard Soper, Ed Todd, Herbert C. Richardson, Frank C. Bancroft, J. H. Richter, Ernest B. Raughley, Arthur Bowman, and the W. L. Smith Orchards, Inc.

At the present time this work is being conducted under the supervision of L. L. Williams, assistant entomologist in charge of the Insectary at Camden, and County Agent Russell E. Wilson, who will keep a careful check on these cages preparatory to mailing to the fruit growers next Spring the usual notices in regard to the maximum emergence of the adult moths and information relative to the spray program for the control of the pest.

The past season has been an unusually difficult one for the fruit growers to control the various orchard pests, as the weather conditions in the early Spring were unfavorable for thorough spraying, and this was followed by a long dry period which made it possible for insect life to increase rapidly.

NEW RULES

Many times in the course of a game a penalty is inflicted, and the layman in the stands, ignorant of the cause is forced to conclude an offside had been committed, or some elementary error similar to it. Now anyone who is ambitious enough to acquaint himself thoroughly with the new set of twelve signals can assume a knowing attitude and condescendingly inform the less up-to-date brother at his side that of course it wasn't an offside. Couldn't he see the referee cross his legs to indicate tripping?

The first signal listed for the referee is the military salute, which will signify unnecessary roughness. The second, the placing of the hands on the hips, indicates that one of the teams is offside. The grasping of one wrist will be the signal for holding. This corresponds to a similar gesture employed in basketball for a like offense.

The fourth signal is not so complicated. A pushing movement with the hands, with the arms hanging vertical will mean that a side has been penalized for pushing or helping the runner with the ball. Crossing the legs will indicate tripping or clipping. This may be more difficult for an official who lacks a proper sense of balance. Assuming a Napoleonic attitude, with the arms folded will mean that one side has declined a penalty.

Pushing the hands forward from the shoulder with the hands vertical informs those in the know that there has been interference with a forward pass. An illegal forward pass, including the ball touching an ineligible player is wig-wagged to the stands by waving the hands behind the back. Both arms extended overhead will indicate that a score has been made. This one, at least, is a carry-over from previous seasons.

If a player fails to report to the referee, or communicates with other players, the referee must place his hand over his mouth. The last signal, fingers touching over the head the arms forming a zero, indicates a foul by both teams.

TALKIES MAY REPLACE PROFS

If the visions of Will H. Hayes, movie producer, ever become a reality, college students of the future will be taught by "talkies" and the work of many college professors may degenerate into the routine of merely taking class attendance.

In a recent letter to President C. R. Richards, Mr. Hays stated: "We are now faced with the possibility of audible motion pictures augmenting the usefulness of the screen as a collateral aid in the actual process of instruction. I am ready to recommend to the member companies of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America that we experiment on a major scale, involving, if necessary, considerable outlay of money from which there may be no expectation of financial return, to the end that the instrumentality shall move forward in educational services in keeping with any new possibilities."

Mr. Hays, in his letter, asked Dr. Richards for his opinion as to the feasibility of the project based either on research at Lehigh or upon his own personal opinion.

In reply, Dr. Richards stated that he is favorable to the project, but further added that its use will be limited, of course, to certain lines of instruction. He believes that the students will more readily remember that which they have seen and heard than which they have only heard.

However, Dr. Richards offers the objection that students are more influenced by the personality of their instructors than by anything they study and that the use of "talkies" will rob the instructors of some vital quality which would be detrimental to the students.—From Lehigh "Brown and White."

College will be present to invest the affair with a final attraction.

All of the costumed participants will be required to file across the stage in full view of the spectators. Prizes will be awarded by the Student Council. In this phase of the program groups of Freshmen have planned numbers or skits and "acts," as they refer to them for want of another term. The substance of these has been more or less guarded in the interests of surprise, but it is no secret that they will be original in every way.

Preparations for these have been going on since the meeting, held last Wednesday in West Wing, for the purpose of discussing the demonstration. Reports from Harter Hall have it that Freshmen rooms have ceaselessly been emitting strange sounds of gaiety for the past few days.

The prizes offered are: For the best song, $2.50; for the best dressed Freshman, $7.50, and $2.50; for the best original yell, $2.50; for the funniest costume, $5.00; for the best skit, $5.00.

The speakers will include Max Glasser, Lieutenant Jolls, Major Glassburn, Ace Taylor and Coach Ziegler. The members of the football squad will not be required to be in costume, but it is believed all will be present.

The judges will be Mr. Blair, Mr. Squire and Mr. Dunlap.

"Eyes" for blind flying!
Three new G-E contributions to the conquest of the air

LINDBERGH, flying blind much of the way, hit Ireland "on the nose" as he winged toward Paris. Now, as an aid to air navigation comes the magneto compass, a product of General Electric research, which gives pilots a navigating instrument of extraordinary accuracy. Meanwhile, two other General Electric contributions to aviation have been developed—the electric gasoline gauge and the radio echo altimeter. The ordinary altimeter shows only height above sea level. The radio echo altimeter warns the pilot of his actual distance above ground or water by flashing green, yellow, and red lights on the instrument board.

Every year hundreds of college-trained men and women enter the employment of General Electric. Research, similar to that which developed "eyes" for blind flying, is one of the many fields of endeavor in which they play an important part.
