Newark scores a 'triple play'

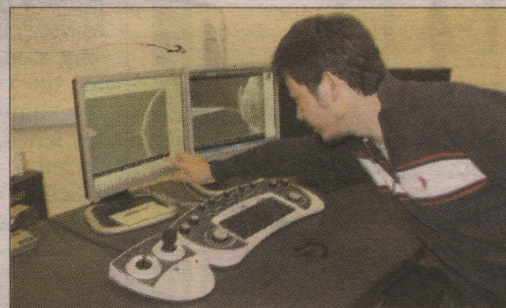

NEWARK POST PHOTOS BY KARIE SIMMONS

K.R. Sridhar, Bloom Energy co-founder and CEO, said last week he hopes Bloom becomes the "nucleus around which an entire ecosystem can be created." The fuel cell manufacturing company officially opened Oct. 16 on the former Chrysler plant site in Newark.

Last week, Newark celebrated the grand opening of Bloom Energy, the University of Delaware's new Interdisciplinary Science and Engineering Lab and Natural Dairy Products, adding up to what Deputy Mayor Jerry Clifton called a "triple play" for Newark.

Bloom Energy, a fuel cell manufacturing hub, opened on Oct. 16 as the first tenant of UD's STAR campus, located on the former Chrysler plant site. The company plans to hire 100 more workers in the next few months.

The following day, UD officially opened its state of the art, 194,000-square-foot ISE Lab. The building was completed over the summer and boasts a research wing and a teaching wing meant to foster collaborative learning.

To close out the week, Pennsylvania-based Natural Dairy Products opened an organic dairy production facility in Newark on Oct. 18, making it the first organic dairy in Delaware. The company will make organic milk, butter, ricotta cheese, half-and-half, buttermilk and whipped cream and brings 19 jobs to the area.

Changes coming to annual festival

Newark Day renamed; vendors limited to downtown merchants

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

One of Newark's premier festivals is in for a major overhaul next year, as officials transition Newark Day to a smaller-scale event focused mainly on downtown businesses.

Rather than the street festival event that drew vendors from around the region, next year's event, called New Night Downtown, will be limited to only businesses that are located on Main Street or South Main Street.

The idea is to turn the attention back to the downtown businesses after some in the business community raised concerns about the previous incarnation of the event. Food and products for sale will focus on what makes Newark unique, rather than "fair food, trinkets and junk," said Ricky Nietubicz, administrator of the Downtown Newark Partnership.

"You're not going to see guys selling gutters or windows," Nietubicz said. "This will focus on what we have downtown."

The festival will still feature children's games and music acts.

This marks the second time in three years the festival has undergone a change.

After 26 years as Newark Nite, the festival was moved to daytime hours in 2012 after some council members and residents raised concerns about several crimes that happened following the 2010 event.

Though city officials correctly pointed out that the incidents, which included a shooting at Newark Shopping Center, happened after Newark Nite ended, some argued that the event drew the criminal element into town.

While the 2012 and 2013 Newark Day events were crime free, they failed to attract the same crowds as did Newark Nite, which was sometimes attended by upward of 30,000 people.

"In a lot of ways, a daytime event is a recipe for a lack of success," Nietubicz said, noting that the midday heat and humidity kept many people home this year.

The DNP board, which includes business representatives and city officials, had several discussions about changing the event, and it was decided that the DNP will take over the planning from the parks and recreation department, Nietubicz said.

This year's event will move back to the evening and run from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. Its footprint will be smaller, encompassing only the area of Main Street between Chapel

UD's new ISE Lab fosters collaborative learning

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

University of Delaware President Patrick Harker and Gov. Jack Markell cut the ribbon on yet another new facility in Newark last week, officially opening the university's Interdisciplinary Science and Engineering Laboratory Oct. 17.

Located at the corner of Academy Street and Lovett Avenue, the 194,000-square-foot facility was completed over the summer. It boasts a research wing and a teaching wing meant to bridge the gap between students and faculty so they can teach, learn and conduct research in a collaborative environment, something Provost Domenico Grasso said is "another first of the University of Delaware."

"It's no longer sage on the stage," he said. "It's more like guide on the side."

In contrast to traditional, direct instruction where the professor relays information to the students, the ISE Lab allows for a constructivist approach, which encourages hands-on learning for content requiring problem-solving and critical thinking skills. Research done at the ISE Lab provides the content for classroom curricula, and students learn through the exploration of real-world problems.

Harker said he is thrilled with the new addition to the campus and looks forward to the scholars, Ph.D. and doctoral students it will bring to the university.

"This is a dream come true for the entire community," he said.

Harker said his favorite part about the building is that it's "unbelievably collaborative," noting the many spaces with tables and armchairs throughout the building where students can work out problems in small groups.

The ISE Lab also features four problem-based learning studios with lab spaces connected to classrooms so students can discuss problems and test solutions. Classrooms, which each hold no more than 48 students, are equipped with mobile furniture that allow students to work flexibly both in groups and individually.

Markell said he is thrilled with the facility and called it a good investment for both the state and the university. Like Harker, he said the building is well-suited for the cross-collaboration it was intended for, adding that his favorite part is the labs connected to the classrooms.

"It's a whole new model of education," Markell said.

Grasso said the facility was built to show the university's commitment to sustainability and has successfully achieved LEED standards. Waste from the construction phase of the project was recycled, lighting controls maximize use of daylight, each air handler is equipped with a heat recovery system, and the top of the building boasts three green roofs. The landscaping around the new ISE Lab also includes a rain garden to eliminate storm water runoff.

The research wing of the ISE Lab has an imaging and microscopy suite, a 10,000-square-foot nanofabrication facility and an advanced materials characterization lab, which has allowed research associates like Jennifer Sloppy and Fei Deng more space than when they previously worked in Spencer Lab.

Sloppy and Deng use a $1.8 million scanning electron microscope that uses a beam of electrons as the source of light to look at materials. Prior to the ISE Lab, the machine was nearly as big as the room it was kept in at Spencer Lab, with little space for students and researchers to move around and work.

"We had inadequate space before for the quality of our instruments," Sloppy said. "This is a big upgrade."

The ISE Lab is also the new home of the University of Delaware Energy Institute, the Delaware Environmental Institute and the Catalysis Center for Energy Innovation.

In the building's lobby students, faculty and visitors can enjoy food and coffee at an Einstein Bros. Bagels cafe.

Police euthanize injured deer on Shue-Medill soccer field

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

State police shot and killed an injured deer on the campus of Shue-Medill Middle School Oct. 17, according to district officials.

At approximately 6:30 a.m., a male deer jumped over a fence onto a soccer field at the school, located on Kirkwood Highway, said Wendy Lapham, spokeswoman for the Christina School District. When the animal attempted to jump back over the fence, it became entangled and broke its leg.

School officials called 911, and responding troopers determined the animal needed to be put down and did so, firing four shots, Lapham said. Christina facilities staff later disposed of the deer's carcass.

The incident happened as students were arriving at the school, but teachers and administrators rerouted buses and kept students away from the soccer field. Students were never in danger, Lapham said.

Lapham credited the Shue-Medill staff for resolving the incident quickly.

"People in schools have to rise to any occasion," she said.

School officials will send a letter home with students explaining what happened.

Delaware's first organic dairy opens in Newark

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

A Pennsylvania dairy has relocated its headquarters to Newark and has plans to stay in the new facility for several years or, as they say, until the cows come home.

Natural Dairy Products Corporation, originally from Avondale, officially opened Oct. 18 in the Sandy Brae Industrial Park and is now the only certified organic dairy in Delaware. It brings 19 jobs to the state.

The company's product line of organic, grass-fed dairy products called Natural By Nature includes milk, butter, ricotta cheese, half-and-half, buttermilk and whipped cream made with milk from 22 family-owned, certified organic dairy farms in Lancaster County, Pa.

One of those farms is SpringWood Organic Farm in Kinzers, Pa., run by Roman Stoltzfoos and his family. Stoltzfoos decided to take an organic approach when he took over the farm in 1987 and said he remembers when people doubted his methods.

"We were hooted at at first," he said. "They said, 'This won't work.'"

Today, SpringWood Farm is the largest supplier of organic milk to Natural Dairy Prod-

Ned MacArthur, president and founder of Natural Dairy Products, thanked the farmers, workers investors and state and local officials who collaborated to bring the dairy from Pennsylvania to Newark. The dairy officially opened Oct. 18 as the only certified organic dairy in Delaware.

ucts and, although the farm's commitment to organic has been overwhelming for Stoltzfoos at times, he said in the end it makes all the difference.

"I want you all to know what good things taste like," he said, comparing organic milk to ultra-pasteurized milk which is heated and cooled at a higher intensity. "If it can sit on the shelf for 30 days and not spoil, you don't want it."

Milk at Natural Dairy Products is heated to 165 degrees, the lowest temperature that kills bacteria without sacrificing freshness and milk's natural nutrients. Because of this process, Stoltzfoos said, organic milk has a shelf life of just 17 days, is fresher, healthier and tastes better.

Gov. Jack Markell said he swears by organic milk because it's all he and his family drink at home.

"If this is not the product you're already drinking, you gotta switch," he said.

All the products made in the new 30,000-square-foot dairy facility are gluten-free and available at nearby locations such as Newark Natural Foods in Newark, Janssen's Market in Greenville, Harvest Market Natural Foods in Hockessin, Delaware Local in Wilmington and Whole Foods Market in Chadds Ford, Pa.

Markell applauded the company for using local farmers, hiring local workers, five of which are Delawareans, and distributing its products to local businesses.

"This is like a no-brainer," he said. "You are very welcome here in Delaware. Thank you for your confidence in our state."

Ned MacArthur, president and founder of Natural Dairy Products, said he feels welcome in Delaware and privileged to be located in Newark, which the company chose due to the city's proximity to its former Avondale headquarters. He thanked the farmers, investors and workers who have been with him since he started the company in 1994.

"We're all family here," MacArthur said.

Natural Dairy Products received a $140,169 Delaware Strategic Fund performance grant for the creation of 19 jobs, as well as a $134,831 capital expenditure grant.

Deputy Mayor Jerry Clifton called Friday's ribbon cutting ceremony at the dairy a "triple-play" for Newark and a positive for economic development. Earlier in the week the community also celebrated the opening of the University of Delaware's new Interdisciplinary Science and Engineering Lab and Bloom Energy, located on UD's STAR Campus.

"Trust me," he said. "Delaware is open for business and Newark is open for business."

UD student struck, killed by truck on Rt. 896

Second student being treated at Christiana Hospital

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

A University of Delaware student was killed and another was injured Oct. 18 when they were struck by a pickup truck on Route 896 near Glasgow.

Ethan Connolly, a 19-year-old sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences from Medway, Mass., died at the scene.

Daniel Bernstein, an 18-year-old freshman in the Lerner College of Business and Economics from New York City, was taken to Christiana Hospital to be treated for non-life-threatening injuries.

State police say the accident happened at approximately 12:30 a.m. as the students were attempting to cross the northbound lanes of South College Avenue near Gbc Drive.

A 2008 Ford Ranger, which had the green light, went through the intersection and struck the students, according to Master Cpl. Gary Fournier. The driver, Linwood A. McLean, 48, of Bear, was not injured. Fournier said there was no crosswalk where the students were struck.

Police are continuing to investigate the crash.

UD officials making counselors available to any student who needs to talk.

"On behalf of the University community, I would like to extend our heartfelt sympathies to Mr. Connolly's family and friends. Our thoughts and prayers are with Mr. Bernstein, his family and friends," Dawn Thompson, interim vice president for student life, said in a statement. "We are all deeply saddened by this tragic event and the loss of a member of our community."

Police: Theft suspect shoved officer

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

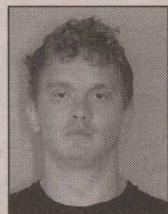

Police arrested a man Tuesday on a slew of charges after he allegedly attempted to break into a store on Main Street.

According to Cpl. James Spadola, spokesman for the Newark Police Department, the man tried to break in to Cameras Etc. on Main Street at 1:46 a.m. by kicking in the front plexiglass door. A witness saw him kick in the door, shattering the lower right corner and setting off the store's alarm.

After police got the witness's account, an officer stopped a man who matched the suspect's description while the man trying to remove a bike from a bike rack on East Delaware Avenue. Police arrested 22-year-old Joshua Renai, of Hockessin, in connection to the attempted break-in at Cameras Etc.

While in the cell block at the police station, Spadola said, Renai was uncooperative, used profanity and "talked about how big his triceps were." He also grabbed and shoved an officer to the ground who was trying to fingerprint him.

Renai was charged with criminal mischief, attempted theft, failure to comply with fingerprinting and photo-taking, offensive touching of a law enforcement officer and resisting arrest.

Air conditioners, power washer stolen from shed

Police are looking for thieves who broke into a shed earlier this week and took several items worth hundreds of dollars.

The incident occurred sometime between 10 p.m. on Monday and 7 a.m. on Tuesday at the 1300 block of Wharton Drive. According to Cpl. James Spadola, spokesman for the Newark Police Department, the thieves cut the lock off the storage shed, which was in a parking lot behind Pine Brook Apartments, using a pair of bolt cutters.

They removed four items from the shed, including three Frigidaire air conditioning units worth an estimated $480 each and one Costco power washer worth $350.

Laptop, quarters stolen from parked car

A car parked on Wilbur Street was broken into last week, police say.

The theft occurred sometime on Oct. 17 between 5 and 8 a.m. at 120 Wilbur Street, according to Cpl. James Spadola, spokesman for the Newark Police Department. The victim said her boyfriend's Apple laptop computer was taken from the trunk of her car, and a $10 roll of quarters was also missing from the vehicle.

Police have no suspects at this time.

All four tires and rims removed from man's car

When a man walked out of his home on Welsh Track Road last week to leave for work, he noticed his car was laying on the ground with all four tires gone.

The incident occurred sometime between 10:30 p.m. on Oct. 15 and 9 a.m. on Oct. 16, according to Newark Police Spokesman Cpl. James Spadola, who said all four tires and wheels had been removed from the victim's Honda Fit.

The victim asked his neighbors if they had seen anything related to the theft and then he contacted police.

The tires and rims have a total estimated value of $800 and police have no suspects at this time.

Man charged in peeping tom incidents in Newark

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

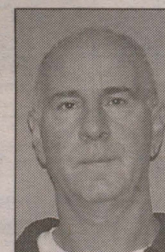

A 55-year-old New Castle man is facing charges after allegedly peeping in windows on South Chapel and Benny streets early Oct. 17, police said.

Officers with the Newark Police Department's Street Crimes Unit were on patrol about 1 a.m. when they saw the man "lurking" in the backyard of two homes in the 100 block of South Chapel Street, according to spokesman Lt. Mark A. Farrall.

While police and K-9 units were searching for the man, two residents of a home in the unit block of Benny Street reported seeing a man with the same description peeping in their windows a short time earlier.

Police eventually found the man, later identified as Cory J. Disabatino, walking on South Chapel Street near the intersection with Wyoming Road, Farrall said.

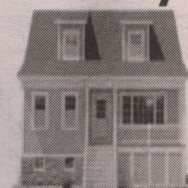

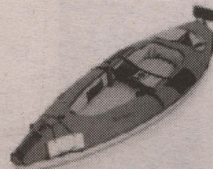

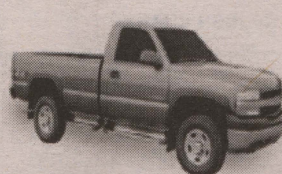

DISABATINO

Disabatino is charged with two counts each of third-degree criminal trespassing and trespassing with intent to peep. He was released on $400 unsecured bail.

Pet store seeks help finding stolen albino ferret

Mike Howard, manager of Pet Kare II in Pencader Plaza, holds one of the store's remaining ferrets. An albino ferret was stolen from the store Saturday night.

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

The manager of a local pet store is hoping that tips from the public can help him ferret out information about the theft of a live animal over the weekend.

Mike Howard, of the Pet Kare II store in Pencader Plaza, said a woman walked out with an albino ferret just before 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Security footage shows the woman chatting with several employees about the eight-week-old male ferret, Howard said. Customers are allowed to handle the animals, so an employee took the ferret out of its cage for the woman before being called away to help another customer.

"She waited until it got busy and then walked out," Howard said.

The theft was not discovered until two days later.

"I came in this morning and I was missing a ferret," Howard said Monday, adding that it was then that he reviewed the surveillance footage.

He said the store often deals with thefts but they usually involve food or supplies, not the animals themselves. The ferret is worth $180, but Howard's main worry is that whoever took the ferret is not properly equipped to take care of it.

He recalled an incident a few months ago when a kid brought in an emaciated ferret and told employees that his friend had stolen it but did not take care of it.

"It was bone thin," Howard said.

Sgt. Paul Shavack of the Delaware State Police said officers have reviewed the surveillance footage and are investigating the incident. The suspect is described as a white woman approximately 23 years old and was last seen wearing a gray jacket. She was with a second woman, but police believe she acted alone, Shavack said.

Howard issued a plea for anyone with information to come forward.

"I'd like to have the ferret back so we can make sure it goes to a good home," he said.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Delaware State Police at 302-

834-2630, or by utilizing the Delaware State Police Mobile Crime Tip Application available to download at: <http://www.delaware.gov/apps/>. Information may also be provided by calling Delaware Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333, via the Internet at www.tip-submit.com, or by sending an anonymous tip by text to 274637 (CRIMES) using the keyword "DSP."

CarMax to bring more than 90 jobs to Newark

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

Another first for the first state is set for this December when CarMax Inc. opens its first Delaware store right here in Newark.

The nation's largest used car retailer is set to open a new 50,000-square-foot location at 2070 Stafford Way in Newark on Dec. 11.

"The Newark area was identified as an area that fit our growth plan and we are now able to reach this audience to provide the unique CarMax car-buying experience," spokeswoman Michelle Ellwood said.

The company offers a no-haggle, no-hassle process when buying or selling a vehicle and will buy any car whether or not the seller buys from CarMax, she said. Before they become CarMax cars, vehicles go through a 125-point inspection and to make customers feel more secure, a free history report is provided with every car.

Ellwood said there will be more than 250 vehicles on the Newark lot of almost every make and model. Customers can also use the website or mobile app to search CarMax's 35,000 vehicle inventory and transfer nearly any car to the Newark location, although a fee may apply.

The new CarMax will bring more than 90 full and part-time jobs to the area including service advisors, technicians, sales, business office and inventory workers. Automotive experience is only required for technician positions.

The Newark facility is currently under construction, so those wishing to apply should visit www.carmax.com/delawarevalley. After an initial review of applications, Ellwood said CarMax will contact applicants and set up interviews.

POST STAFF REPORT

Trout are once again swimming in the White Clay Creek.

Last week, the Delaware Division of Fish and Wildlife stocked the Newark-area creek with 2,000 brown and rainbow trout. Volunteers used float boxes to carry hundreds of fish upstream from the truck access points along the creek.

Most of the fish were between 12 and 14 inches, officials say.

"It's a beautiful time of year to enjoy some peace and quiet and catch some nice fish," Fisheries Administrator John Clark said in a statement. "And, since rainbow trout are a cold-water species, fish stocked in the fall should provide action throughout the winter."

Anglers are required to have a Delaware fishing license as well as a trout stamp, though people under 16 and over 64 are exempt. Revenue from the trout stamps helps cover the cost of stocking the creek.

Anglers are limited to six trout per day.

Bloom Energy opens on former Chrysler site

Company to hire 100 people in coming months

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

Bloom Energy officially opened its new Delaware facility last week, and many dignitaries, like University of Delaware President Patrick Harker and Gov. Jack Markell turned out in support of the company's clean energy manufacturing model.

The California-based company recently finished constructing the 200,000-square-foot facility located on the University of Delaware's STAR Campus, the former Chrysler plant site. The building is a manufacturing hub that builds "Bloom boxes" in which fuel cells are used to convert fuel into electricity through an electro-chemical process that does not require combustion.

K.R. Sridhar, Bloom Energy co-founder and CEO, told the crowd Oct. 16 that he felt extreme pride at how far Bloom has come and talked about the company's early stages and philosophy.

In the last few decades, he said, the world has been through a telecommunication revolution and a computing revolution in which items like cell phones and laptops, once expensive and unavailable to the average person, can now be purchased at a low cost by almost anyone. Sridhar said he wanted to create a technology for generating electricity that had those same characteristics of access and affordability.

"To become a nucleus around which an entire ecosystem can be created," he said.

Sridhar said Bloom's customers purchase the "Bloom boxes" for reasons like affordability, security, sustainability and reliability, using Bloom as the primary source of power and the grid as a backup. Because these boxes generate reliable power using less fuel, companies are able to purchase electricity at a lower cost and with less of an environmental impact. Fuel is converted to electricity at the highest efficiency, Sridhar said, which releases less emissions and is what makes the energy "clean."

"Bloom is the best technology," he said.

While Sridhar talked to the crowd, four Bloom boxes at the facility quietly buzzed in the background, producing enough to power about 700 Newark homes. According to information posted near the equipment, each server provides 200 kilowatts of electricity, which is enough to power a 90,000 square-foot office building or 160 average homes in the United States.

Bloom has customers all across the country such as Google, Adobe, Apple, eBay, Bank of America and Walmart, which uses "Bloom boxes" at 44 of its locations.

During the ceremony, JPMorgan Chase announced plans to install 500kW to help power its data center in Christiana.

Gov. Jack Markell took to the mic to say how pleased he was that these "first class customers" are doing business with a company now located in Delaware.

"Can you image a more blue chip list of customers?" he said. "That's where we want to be."

Markell also recognized Bloom's "first class workers" in the crowd who will manufacture the boxes.

"You're the reason behind why the new face of manufacturing is not only right here in Delaware, but it's right, here in Delaware," he said.

Officials say there are approximately 80 people working in the facility now, and the company has plans to hire another 100 in the next few months. When the company announced plans to locate in Delaware, it estimated that the plant will eventually employ 900 people.

Harker welcomed Bloom to the first state and thanked them for seeing the potential in building the facility on the STAR Campus, a site the university had slotted for innovative industries and entrepreneurs making a global impact. Bloom Energy is the first tenant of the STAR Campus, and Harker said he is impressed with positive economic impact, jobs and new technology the company has brought to Newark.

"They've set the bar high for every lease agreement that comes after," he said.

Parade on Main Street among highlights of region's Halloween events

By KARIE SIMMONS
AND JOSH SHANNON

1. Newark will hold its 66th-annual Halloween parade on Sunday at 3 p.m. The parade, complete with marching bands, floats, antique automobiles and costumed characters, will begin at Tyre Avenue and proceed down Main Street toward South College Avenue. Individuals who would like to march in the parade should check in with city staff at George Read Park at 2:30 p.m.

2. After Sunday's Halloween parade, kids are invited to participate in Trick-or-Treat Main Street. Merchants will be offering candy to costumed children, and Main Street will remain closed for safety. The event runs until approximately 5 p.m.

3. The University of Delaware Police Department and UD Student Wellness and Health Promotion will host the Halloween HERO 5k Walk & Alcohol Awareness Fair on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the Laird Campus turf field as part of a national campaign against driving under the influence. The minimum donation fee to participate in the walk, which starts at 11 a.m., is $20 for adults, $15 for UD staff and alumni, $10 for high school and college students and $5 for children 14 and under. All are invited to dress up in Halloween costumes.

4. SAS Cupcakes (134B E. Main St.) is featuring special cupcake flavors to celebrate fall, including pumpkin spice topped with cinnamon vanilla buttercream, cinnamon apple topped with tart apple buttercream, sweet potato topped with caramel buttercream and vanilla topped with Frangelico Hazelnut buttercream.

5. Iron Hill Brewery (147 E. Main St.) has released its own Pumpkin Ale, a medium-bodied copper ale malty sweet in flavor with a balancing bitterness. Instead of finishing hops, the beer is spiced with pumpkin pie spices and vanilla.

6. On Saturday at 1 p.m., the Newark Free Library will host "Body Snatching and Grave Robbing Tales" as told by local storyteller Ed Okonowicz. The program is free and open to the public, however visitors are asked to register at 302-731-7550.

7. Newark High School presents "Spooky Shakespeare," 13 of Shakespeare's most gruesome scenes, on Thursday and Nov. 1 at 4 p.m. and Nov. 2 at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. General admission is $5, and the shows will take place in the high school auditorium at 750 E. Delaware Ave.

8. Kids who come into IHOP (108 E. Main St.) on Thursday will be treated to a free "scary face" pancake. The treat, offered to customers 12 and younger, is a buttermilk pancake decorated with whipped cream, candy corn, Oreo cookies and a strawberry.

9. Dairy Queen's "Blizzard of the Month" has a decidedly Halloween taste. The Pumpkin Pie Blizzard is vanilla ice cream blended with pumpkin pie pieces and topped with whipped cream and nutmeg. The frozen concoction is available at the chain's Brookside location, 374 E. Chestnut Hill Rd.

10. Home Grown Cafe's seasonal soup, Pumpkin-Miso, has returned this year. It is served with roasted edamame and ginger creme fraiche. The soup is available by the cup ($4.50) or the bowl ($6) at the restaurant, 126 E. Main St.

11. Days of Knights (173 E. Main St.) in Newark is having a "Great Pumpkin Sale." The entire store is discounted from Wednesday through Nov. 3, and customers can save anywhere from 5 to 50 percent off.

12. Newark Baptist Church will hold a trick-or-treating event on Saturday. It is set for 1 to 4 p.m. at the church, located just over the state line at 6011 Telegraph Road in Fair Hill, Md.

13. On weekends through Nov. 17, groups can book hayrides in White Clay Creek State Park. Rides are $100 per wagon and include a bonfire. Call the park office at 302-368-6900 to register.

14. The University of Delaware presents "Music for a While: Halloween" on Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m. in Bayard Sharp Hall (23 S. Main St.). University organist David Herman will play the concert featuring UD's Jefferson Pipe Organ. The event is open and free to the public.

15. Enjoy the reimagining of the classic horror film "Carrie" at Cinema Center 3 in the Newark Shopping Center. In the R-rated movie, Carrie White, a shy girl bullied by classmates, uses her telekinetic powers to unleash hell on her peers during senior prom. Visit www.cinemacenter3.com for showtimes.

16. Mojo Main (270 E. Main St.) will hold a "Freaks and Geeks Halloween Party" on Thursday. Tickets range from $8 to $10 for the 8 p.m. event.

17. Chipotle (136 E. Main St.) will hold its "Boorito" party on Thursday. Starting at 4 p.m., anyone who comes into the restaurant dressed in a costume will be able to purchase a burrito, bowl, salad or order of tacos for $3. Proceeds benefit The Chipotle Cultivate Foundation, which promotes sustainable farming.

18. TGI Fridays (650 S. College Ave.) will celebrate Halloween on Thursday with extended happy hour specials until 9 p.m. plus various prizes. Customers are encouraged to wear a costume.

19. Frightland in Middletown is open this weekend and features haunted attractions such as Zombie Prison, Horror Hayride, Ravenwood Cemetery and Idalia Manor. Frightland is located at 309 Port Penn Rd. in Middletown and opens at 6 p.m. each night. Admission costs $30 on Friday, $35 on Saturday, and $25 on Sunday.

Symphony orchestra kicks off season Sunday

By ZAC CROCE

Special to the Post

The Newark Symphony Orchestra will kick off its season of performances on Sunday.

Consisting of roughly 80 volunteer musicians, the orchestra was founded in 1966. The performance will take place at 3 p.m. at The Independence School — located at 1300 Paper Mill Road — and is a family-friendly spectacle that is not to be missed, according to Sharon Little, a spokeswoman for the NSO.

"It's professional level music performed in a very easy-to-get-to setting," Little said.

This show will be the first of the Symphony Series, which feature a theme to the performance. The theme of the show will be "Earth and Heaven." The NSO will also be celebrating the 200-year anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner, the lauded German composer, by performing four of his pieces including "Overture to Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg" and "Rise of the Valkyrie."

Simeone Tartaglione, who serves as the orchestra's musical director, will also conduct the NSO. His raw emotion and passion for the music can be felt during every performance, Little said. Tartaglione is highly accomplished both domestically and abroad, and is a reflection of the quality the

World cultures on display at Newark Charter festival

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

The cafeteria at Newark Charter School could have been mistaken for a meeting of the United Nations on Saturday morning as the school held its annual multicultural festival.

Families at the school were invited to sign up for booths representing their culture, and dozens of cultures were represented, according to school director Greg Meece.

"It shows you how diverse Newark has become," Meece said.

Some participants dressed in traditional garb, others served up ethnic foods, and others brought posters depicting their nation's history. On the stage, students performed traditional dances and songs.

"The families are so proud to represent their culture," Meece said.

NCS has held the festival for the past eight years, he said. As the school grows — it added ninth grade this year — so, too, does the event.

"Every year, it gets bigger," Meece said.

He said the festival is a fun way to supplement what students are learning in class.

"Kids can learn more here than in a year of geography class," he said.

Newark cruises past Appo in homecoming game

By MATT BITTLE

Special to the Post

After losing their previous two games, the Newark Yellowjackets played what coach Butch Simpson called their best half of football all year Oct. 18, as the team stormed out to a big lead over Appoquinimink in the first two quarters on their way to victory in front of a large homecoming crowd.

Simpson said he felt an unusual energy from his team before the game, something that had been lacking thus far in 2013.

"Well, what I really liked was I felt we were intense," Simpson said. "Before the game, I felt a little bit of a vibe in the locker room. I felt a little bit of energy that I can't explain."

Newark started off strong, scoring on its first drive with a 22-yard rushing touchdown by senior running back Austin Lockett to take a 7-0 lead. After a field goal by Appo cut it to 7-3, senior running back Keith Stubbs scored a short rushing touchdown for Newark.

Following a turnover on downs by the Jaguars, the Yellowjackets took all of one play to score again, with junior quarterback Benjamin Campbell connecting with senior receiver Emmanuel Griffin on a 62-yard pass to go up 21-3.

Stubbs then scored his second touchdown of the night, this one coming with about 4:30 remaining the first half. A Newark fumble gave Appo a first-and-goal with less than two minutes to go, but Lockett picked off a pass at the one-yard line moments later to preserve a 28-3 halftime lead for Newark.

Lockett said the players knew they had to come out strong and play with passion.

"It's the seniors, our last homecoming," Lockett said. "We had a great crowd. You know, we just wanted to give the fans a great show because they come to every game, it's homecoming, everybody's real excited."

On the first play of the third quarter, Lockett took the handoff and rushed 65 yards to the end zone to put Newark up by 32 points. A Yellowjackets turnover later in the quarter set Appo up with good field position, and the Jaguars took advantage, scoring their first touchdown of the contest.

The two teams then traded turnovers before Newark scored one final time, making the final score 42-10. The Yellowjackets advance to 3-4 for the season.

Simpson said he took his foot off the pedal a bit in the second half due to both the big lead and the fact he felt his team had started to play a bit sloppy.

Newark hosts Hodgson on Friday and then travels to Middletown.

"The challenge that we have is coming off of a high and a good week, we have Hodgson, which is, you know, No. 1 in Division II, and then we follow that up with Middletown," he said. "So let's face reality right now. We have to be flawless against these two teams."

Newark defeated Appoquinimink 42-10 Oct. 18.

Newark-Hodgson football kicks off busy week of local sports

By JON BUZBY

Newark Post Columnist

Newark High hosts Hodgson Vo-Tech tonight in a 7 p.m. nonconference football clash that features the No. 1 Division II Silver Eagles looking to upset the Division I Yellowjackets.

Hodgson (5-2) is coming off a convincing 49-0 win over Brandywine in a game which it held the Bulldogs to just 38 total yards. Senior running back Rakeim Woodland rushed for two touchdowns and senior linebacker Bilal Nichols scooped up a fumble and returned it 30 yards for a score to pace the Silver Eagles. Hodgson has forced a running clock in four of its five wins this season and has pitched shutouts in two of the last three games.

But Hodgson will have its hands full against a Newark offense that rolled up 42 points last week during a homecoming celebration against Appoquinimink. In that game, Austin Lockett and Keith Stubbs ran for two touchdowns apiece as the Yellowjackets piled up 368 rushing yards. Newark (3-4) needs to win its final three games – and probably get some help – to have any chance of making the playoffs.

Glasgow Care Walk is Saturday

The inaugural Glasgow Care Walk is Saturday at 10 a.m. Registration ($10) opens at 9:30 at the football stadium. The walk benefits the local Red Cross and the school's athletic program.

Caravel Academy hosts football national powerhouses

On Saturday at 3 p.m., two of the top football teams on the East Coast square off at Bob Peoples Stadium on the campus of Caravel Academy. Poly Prep Country Day (Brooklyn, N.Y.) faces Friendship Collegiate Academy (D.C.) in a game that features several Division I prospects. Poly Prep defeated No. 2 Salesianum 28-20 on October 4. able at the game and are $5 for adults and $3 for students.

UD hosts Special Olympics Fall Festival

The annual Special Olympics Delaware Fall Festival is Nov. 2 at the University of Delaware athletic complex.

Nearly 700 athletes and Unified partners (peers without disabilities) are competing in bocce, flag football, soccer and volleyball in the Bob Carpenter Center and on surrounding fields.

The opening ceremony is at 10 a.m. in the Bob Carpenter Center arena, emceed by NBC 10's John Clark. The event, sponsored by Chase, is free and open to the public.

Newark High soccer alumni game

The 3rd Annual Newark High School Men's Soccer Alumni game is Nov. 2 at 6:30 p.m. at Hoffman stadium.

There is a $20 registration fee (includes a commemorative T-shirt) for former players interested in playing. Players can register at www.company-casuals.com/newarksocceralumni. Admission for spectators is free, but donations are gladly accepted. All money raised benefits the Newark High boys soccer program.

State Indoor Track and Field Championship finds new home

The Delaware Field House, former site of the championship, is no longer one of the nicest indoor tracks in the area. In fact, it's no longer a track at all. Instead, it's now covered wall to wall with artificial turf to allow for year-round indoor practices by UD teams.

There were fears that this would be the end of the indoor track and field championships. And with all three local public schools fielding very competitive teams over the years, the impact would be felt even greater here in Newark.

The student-athletes' worse fears have been alleviated. At least for this year.

Last week, the Delaware Interscholastic Athletic Association's board of directors voted unanimously to hold the DIAA Indoor Track and Field Championship on Feb. 21, 2014, at the Prince George's Sports and Learning Center in Landover, Md. The venue is obviously farther away than the Field House, but according to the DIAA, it has much better spectator seating and sight lines.

The motion approved by the DIAA board is for one year and the future of the event will be re-assessed after the 2014 indoor meet.

Street and South College Avenue, meaning that cars will still be able to access Newark Shopping Center and business at that end of Main Street.

It will also be held two weeks later in the year, June 21, so as not to conflict with the University of Delaware's alumni weekend. Businesses are already busy that weekend and thus hope that pushing New Night Downtown back will provide a second boost during the normally slow summer months.

Nietubicz said that the large number of outside vendors at Newark Nite and Newark Day overshadowed some of the local businesses, meaning that many downtown merchants did not participate.

"They weren't exactly seeing the value in it," he said.

Ryan German, owner of Caffé Gelato and a member of the DNP board, said he hopes the new event will be a positive for businesses.

"We really want to focus on what every business does well," German said. "We thought it would be nice to focus on that rather than fair food you can get anywhere."

Nietubicz said the new event will not be judged by its ability to bring in the same crowds that Newark Nite did.

"We're not looking to set any attendance records," he said, noting that he expects the event to attract the same type of crowd as does the Food and Brew Festival and the Wine and Dine Festival. Those events typically draw about 5,000 people.

Nietubicz emphasized that the event is still in the planning stage and noted that he is trying to find a way to involve non-profit groups that don't have a downtown location. However, he said, he does not want the event to become dominated by information booths.

He encouraged anyone with ideas for New Night Downtown to contact his office.

Out of the Past

Editor's note: Volunteers at the Pencader Heritage Museum have been digitizing old Newark City Council meeting minutes. They share excerpts with Newark Post readers in a weekly column.

On estimation the first tax levy would raise $611.52. Collector Ephraim Blackwell was bonded and took up his duties. The town was divided into districts each with a Commissioner. West from Newark Trust (now Catherine Rooney's): J. W. Evans and William Reynolds; from the Bank east: J. F. Williamson, John Pilling and James Armstrong. The latter three to oversee paving Pilling's Row which ran north and south.

After apparent rowdiness July 4, 1866, a special meeting July 6 passed a resolution: "any person or persons firing or causing to be fired any cannon, swivel gun, pistol, firecracker or other article of such nature on the public streets of Newark shall be deemed guilty of an infraction, fine not to exceed $5." Street repairs progressed but the request to gain control of town streets had not been answered by White Clay Hundred Road Commissioners.

September 1866 to March 1867 no meetings were recorded. Commissioners elected April 1867: William Reynolds, J. W. Evans, John Pilling, James Armstrong and George Williams. Town divisions remained the same and the treasury held $40.88. Jesse Russell was appointed Tax Collector.

The Commissioners were dealing with "numerous complaints made by citizens respecting various disorders & misdemeanors." Committeemen were appointed to "draft a set of ordinances for the better regulation of order." A request was made to have the sidewalk paved from the Village Presbyterian Church (now site of St. John's RC Church) to the Methodist parsonage.

See the original minutes at Pencader Heritage Museum, 2029 Sunset Lake Rd (Rt. 72 south of Newark). Regularly open first and third Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and other times by appointment. Contact the website pencaderheritage.org or call 302-737-5792 for an appointment. Family friendly, handicapped accessible, always free.

Out of the Attic

Newark Train Station — 1985

This week's Out of the Attic item is a Gerald Lynch 1985 Polaroid picture of the historic 1877 Newark Passenger Train Station located on the north side of the tracks by the South College Avenue bridge.

Track was first laid through here by the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company in the 1830s. The line carried both freight and passenger service between Philadelphia and Baltimore with a ferry crossing of the Susquehanna River from Perryville to Havre de Grace in Maryland. The train soon became the principal mode of local travel between Newark and Wilmington, leading to the replacement of the original station with the larger station pictured.

Heavy use of local rail passenger service continued through the first half of the 20th century. Growing use of the automobile with improved roads led to a decline in rail travel except during World War II when gasoline and tires were rationed. Amtrak followed the Pennsylvania Railroad as the passenger operator of the line. In 1974, Amtrak decided Newark no longer needed a passenger station, and closed it after 97 years of operation. A few trains would stop to pick up or discharge passengers at the old platform as is still done today. The station was abandoned and left to deteriorate as seen in this picture taken 11 years after the closing.

In the early 1980s, the station was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. The city of Newark raised grant money to buy the station from Amtrak in 1987 and to restore it as nearly as possible to its original state with the direction of a preservation architect. Several local non-profit organizations used space in the building after plans for recreation programs were set aside with the coming of high-speed trains on the adjacent northeast corridor tracks.

Today, the Newark Historical Society occupies most of the station with collections care on the upper floor and the Newark History Museum on the ground floor, showing the local history of the last 300 years presented by more than 30 exhibits.

Learn more about Newark history. Visit the Newark History Museum located on South College Avenue beside the bridge. It is open Sundays from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. now through November. It is also open by appointment at other times all year. Individuals, families, groups, and organizations may call 302-368-9845 to arrange a morning, afternoon, evening, weekday or weekend museum visit. For more information go to the Newark Historical Society website www.NewarkDeHistoricalSociety.org. Contact it by e-mail at newarkdehistoricalsociety@yahoo.com, by message phone at 302-224-2408, or by postal mail to P. O. Box 711, Newark, DE 19715-0711.

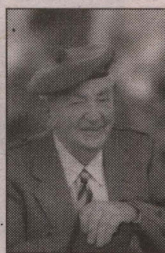

Murdoch Maclean Macleod

Murdoch Maclean Macleod, age 89, set sail for Tirnanog, land of the ever young, on Saturday, September 21, 2013.

Mac was a dyed in the wool Scot. He was born in Ullapool, a small fishing village in the north of Scotland. During WWII, he proudly served in the British Royal Air Force and flew 33 missions. After demobilization, he worked as a forester on the west coast of Scotland where he met and married the lovely Margaret Plow-man. They immigrated to the United States in 1956 with their young daughter.

His two passions were trees and the Great Highland Bagpipe. He was a tree surgeon and ran his own company for 30 years. Along with 4 others, he founded the Fairhill Colonial Highland Gathering and acted as either convener or president for the next 50 years. He dedicated his life to improving the standards of bagpiping by founding the Eastern United States Pipe Band Association and the United States Piping Foundation. In 1995, he was awarded the Balvenie Medal in Scotland for his services to the piping world. In 2010, he was inducted into the EUSPBA

Circle of Honor. Up until his 88th year, he continued his annual pilgrimage to the Glenfiddich Piping Competition at Blair Castle, Scotland.

He enjoyed a good laugh and had a joke for every occasion. He was a talented woodworker, a great storyteller, and a gifted singer. He will be remembered for his love of cribbage, crosswords, the cryptic byword, and a cuppa strong tea. The family would like to thank Heartland Hospice and Griswold Home Care for their many kindnesses.

He is predeceased by his wife, Margaret Macleod (nee Plowman) and his brother, Angus Macleod. He is survived by his three daughters and their husbands; Catriona and Stuart Binder-Macleod, Deirdre and Duncan Bonnell; Rowena Macleod and Mark Wygent; and grandchildren Benjamin Binder-Markey (wife Caitlin), Rina Binder-Macleod, Maclean Nagaswami, and Fiona Iyer.

A memorial service and reception will be held on Saturday October 26, 2013 beginning at 1:00 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 292 West Main Street, Newark, DE 19711. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the United States Piping Foundation attn: Maclean Macleod Memorial Scholarship Fund, 735 Mitchell Street, Ridley Park, PA 19078-3721.

4:30 p.m. - 7:30 p.m.The Department of Transportation (DelDOT) is holding a Public Workshop to obtain comments from surrounding businesses and the general public for two projects along Old Baltimore Pike. The workshop will be held on Monday, November 4, 2013, at Glasgow High School, 1901 South College Avenue in Newark. The public is invited to attend any time between 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.The project limits for the intersection improvement project at Old Baltimore Pike and SR 72 run approximately 1000 feet north and south of Old Baltimore Pike on SR 72 and approximately 600 feet east and west of SR 72 on Old Baltimore Pike. The project involves intersection improvements including the addition of a second left turn lane on eastbound Old Baltimore Pike. Median modifications at the entrances to Royal Farms from SR 72 and Old Baltimore Pike will also be included. These modifications are proposed to address congestion issues through the intersection as well as to address safety concerns.The project limits for the intersection improvement project at Old Baltimore Pike and Salem Church Road run approximately 700 feet north and south of Old Baltimore Pike on both legs of Salem Church Road, as well as along Old Baltimore Pike east and west between both intersections with Salem Church Road. The project involves intersection improvements including the expansion of single left-turn lanes to double left-turn lanes from Old Baltimore Pike onto both legs of Salem Church Road.Interested persons are invited to express their views in writing. Comments will be received during the workshop or can be mailed to DelDOT Public Relations, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903.This location is accessible to persons having disabilities. Any person having special needs or requiring special aid, such as an interpreter for the hearing impaired, is requested to contact DelDOT by phone or mail one week in advance.For further information contact Public Relations at 1-800-652-5600 (in

20. Trick-or-Treat Weekend at Milburn Orchards will take place Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 1495 Appleton Rd. in Elkton, Md. The event includes hayrides, a corn maze, non-haunted Boo Barn, Bale Trail straw maze, giant spider web, obstacle bounce and more. Admission is $10, seniors pay $5 and children under 2 are free.

21. Christiana Mall will host "Kidtoberfest" on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at Target Court inside the mall. Children 12 and under are invited to dress in costume and dance along to Jack-O-Lantern Jive, a live stage show with Dorothy and Scarecrow from the land of Oz at 10:15 and 11:30 a.m. There will also be festival booths with games, crafts and other activities. Children who bring a canned good or non-perishable item to Kidtoberfest will be able to exchange it for a candy gift bag. All donations will benefit a local food bank.

22. Wilmington's 34th annual Halloween Loop is Saturday from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. and is a shuttled, costumed bar crawl featuring 15 nightspots throughout the city. Wristbands cost $10 and cover admission to all bars on the loop as well as shuttle service between the venues. Wristbands can be purchased at participating locations as early as 7 p.m. on Saturday.

23. Punkin' Chunkin' returns Nov. 1-3 on Wheatley Farm, located at 9115 Freeland Ln. in Bridgeville. The nationally-recognized pumpkin-catapult contest begins each day at 7:30 a.m. Parking is free, but admission costs $10 per person, with children under 10 free of charge.

24. Enjoy the colors of fall at Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pa., open daily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. until Nov. 24. Children can enjoy the Garden Railway and Pumpkin Playground while the whole family experiences the glowing gardens in a lantern celebration as well as the Chrysanthemum Festival in the conservatory. Admission to Longwood Gardens, located at 1001 Longwood Rd. in Kennett Square, Pa., is $18 for adults, $15 for seniors and $8 for children, with those four and under admitted for free.

25. Families can take a hayride along the Brandywine River and experience the fall foliage on Saturday at Hagley Museum and Library in Wilmington. From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., visitors on the hayride will see a gunpowder explosion, the roll mill in action and working 19th-century machines.

The event is free with general admission to the museum, located on Route 141 in Wilmington, which costs $14 for adults, $11 for seniors and $5 for children.

26. Explore the darker side of Delaware history with a tour of the legendary Amstel House, one of New Castle's most haunted houses. Afterward, visitors will be guided through New Castle's darkened streets and alleyways, where they will be told stories of hauntings, death, crime and punishment dating back 360 years. This Hauntings in History Walking Tour will take place tonight and Saturday at 7, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. at 2 E. Fourth St. in New Castle. Admission is $12 for adults and $8 for children.

27. Hear ghostly tales and legends during Ghosts in the Graveyard at Old Swedes on Saturday in Wilmington. Tours at the Old Swedes Historic Site at 606 Church St. in Wilmington occur every half hour starting at 6:30 p.m. and ending at 9 p.m. Admission for adults is $10 and $6 for children, although the event is not recommended for children under 12.

28. More than 60 pumpkin carvers will gather in Chadds Ford, Pa. tonight and Saturday for The Great Pumpkin Carve. Carvers will detail giant pumpkins for prizes, and the whole family can enjoy live music, hayrides, food and fun from 5 to 9 p.m. at the Chadds Ford Historical Society at 1736 Creek Rd. in Chadds Ford. Admission is free.

29. Trick-or-treat at the Brandywine Zoo on Saturday from 5 to 8 p.m. in your Halloween costume. This family-friendly event is not scary and is fun for all ages. Admission to Brandywine's Boo at the Zoo, on 1001 N. Park Drive in Wilmington, is $4 for adults and seniors and $2 for children.

30. Enjoy Halloween in Hockessin on Saturday at Woodside Farm Creamery, where the whole family can trick-or-treat in costume at the creamery and other participating businesses on "The Candy Corn Trail." Admission is free and the event runs from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 1310 Little Baltimore Rd. in Hockessin.

31. The DuPont Theatre (1007 N. Market St. in Wilmington) presents "The Addams Family," a Broadway musical about the strange and abnormal family created by The New Yorker cartoonist Charles Addams. Tickets are $35, and the showtimes are as follows: Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., Thursday at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 1 at 8 p.m., Nov. 2 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Nov. 3 at 2 p.m. To purchase tickets, visit www.duponttheatre.com
