Mr. Pyle, from the joint committee to ascertain the result of the election respecting a Constitutional Convention, made a report,

Which, on his motion, was read as follows:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Delaware in General Assembly met:

Your special joint committee, appointed to ascertain whether the number of votes cast for a Convention at the general election held for Representatives in the General Assembly, on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1894, which said general election was prescribed by the General Assembly at its regular session next preceding the said election as the proper occasion for ascertaining such sense, is sufficient to authorize the calling of such Convention, would respectfully report:

That we have examined the records in the office of the Secretary of State and have ascertained that the highest number of votes cast at the three general elections next preceding the day of voting for a Convention were as follows:

In 1888, the highest number of votes cast was 29,720.

In 1890, the highest number of votes cast was 35,285.

In 1892, the highest number of votes cast was 37,198.

The total vote cast for a Convention at the general election held as first above mentioned was 22,842 and the vote cast against said Convention was 2,365, a total of 25,207 votes cast for and against a Convention.

Your committee would further report, that the said number of votes cast for a Convention being 22,842, is equal and more than a majority of all the citizens in the State having right to vote for representatives, ascertained by reference to the highest number of votes cast in the State at any one of the three general elections next preceding the day of voting for a Convention, to wit: The general election held in the years 1888, 1890 and 1892 as above set forth, and is therefore sufficient to authorize the calling of a Convention by the General Assembly.
