Newark's Nite!

They're flying in Saturday from around the world

For the 15th year in a row, Newark Nite gets underway at 5 p.m. tomorrow on Main Street with music, food, friendly faces and plenty of fun.

Some of the faces may be out-of-the-past as hundreds of alumni and their families enjoying Newark High School's Millennium Reunion reacquire themselves with Main Street and take in the sights.

In addition to 104 crafters, food vendors, exhibitors and entertainers lining the length of Main Street, downtown businesses from Market East Plaza to the Galleria will have special sales and promotions for the evening.

The most important thing parents need to know this year is the Pony Rides have moved to the west end of Main Street across from the University Mall. Tickets and the Pony Rides will be available on the grassy area next to the University of Delaware Old College building.

The Dance Area at Choate Street is back for a second year starting at 5:30 p.m. with free mini-lessons. Each "class" will have 45 minutes to try out their new moves.

New this year are Tennis Lessons by the U.S. Tennis Association at Chapel Street. These free instructions continue throughout the evening as people arrive.

Another innovation is a Dog Station near Margarita's Pizza where canine revelers can get a drink of water during a hot night on the town.

As far as we know, no one is landing in a jet plane on Main Street, but the U.S. Air Force will have a real airplane on display in front of the Marine Recruiting office.

Nearby, Newark Police officers again will be identifying children for parents in the event they are lost.

For the fourth year in a row, Newark Rotary will host a dunking booth on Academy Street where you can land someone in cold water for a small price. No limit on the number of times you can get in line.

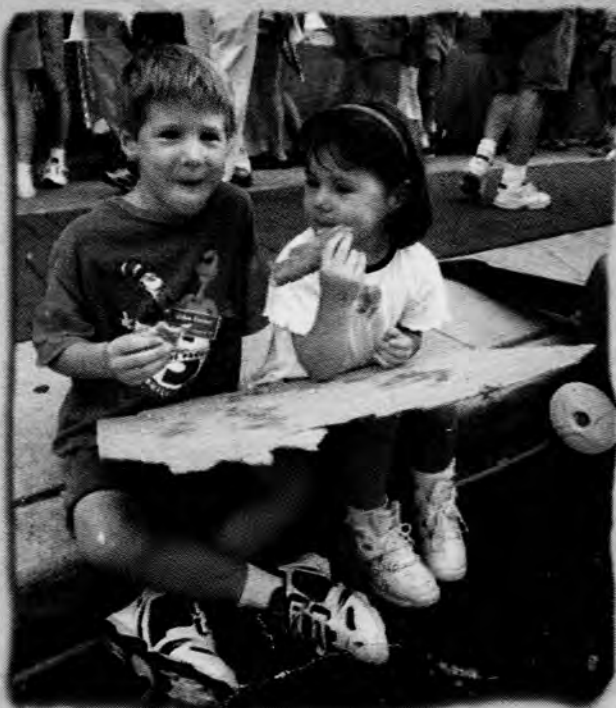

Musical entertainment can be found on the East Stage at Market East Plaza/Tyre Avenue where the The Banjo Dusters, Flip Richards and Planete Folle will perform throughout the night starting at 5 p.m.

Jerry & the Juveniles at 5:30 p.m. will be followed by Music from WRDX and then Delirium Theory on the Central Stage near Academy and Main streets.

Michael and the Melody Marvels debut their act at 5 p.m. with Alfie Moss and Soul Avengers rounding out the evening on the West Stage near the Galleria.

Teens killed in Newark crash

Special from the Cecil Whig

Four friends gathered last week at a telephone pole that sits dangerously close to Elkton Road in Newark, not far from the Maryland line, to leave a note and have a moment of silence.

They chose that utility pole — their makeshift memorial — to leave their note because it is where their friend Kevin Talanca, 19, died the night before. It is where Shannon "Lamonte" Earl, 14, died, too.

Talanca, whose family had recently moved to Newark from Elkton, Md., and Earl, a seventh-grader at Elkton Middle School, were both killed on the night of May 25 in a single-vehicle crash on Elkton Road near the intersection of Otts Chapel Road in Newark.

Earl of East Village Road in Elkton, and Talanca of Janice Drive in Newark, both died at the scene. They were pronounced dead at Christiana Hospital shortly after the 10:50 p.m. accident. Both were back seat passengers.

The driver of the vehicle, Robert E. Brown, 18, and the front-seat passenger, Shane Earl, 16, both of East Village Road in Elkton, were admitted to Christiana Care Center and listed in fair condition Friday afternoon.

Both boys have been released from the hospital.

Newark police officers said alcohol was a factor in the accident and that Brown was speeding when he lost control of his car and crashed into the telephone pole. The teens were on their way to Newark.

The accident is still under investigation by Newark police and officials said more details are pending further investigation by the medical examiner's office.

Talanca's friends gathered at the pole on Friday afternoon to give their note to him...to think about Lamonte...to take a few moments to reflect on their lives, their friends' lives, and those whose lives will no longer be lived.

Zack, 15, and his brother Mike Hollenbaugh, 20, Heather Jaquette, 18, and Alyse White, 19, all of Elkton, Md., couldn't believe their friend was dead.

"It doesn't feel like it happened," Mike Hollenbaugh said. "It feels like he's still home, like I just didn't see him yet today."

The group called Talanca "a soldier," adding that he had been through a lot. They said he had totaled his car three weeks ago, and didn't get hurt.

"If it could happen to Kevin, it can happen to anyone," Alyse White said.

White said she and Talanca had been friends for many years, but had become really close in the past couple of months. He had been staying the night at her Newark apartment a lot, lately. Something she will miss.

But, the truth is, the group will miss a lot more.

His laugh.

His stutter.

"I'll miss his advice," White said.

The same outfit, the same T-shirt in different colors that he always used to wear, with his pack of cigarettes tucked in the pocket.

His hook shot.

"That's all he ever did, a hook shot," Mike said.

Newarker killed in Fair Hill collision

Special from the Cecil Whig

A Newark man died Saturday, May 27, when a truck driven by a 17-year-old North East resident attempted to pass another vehicle and slammed head-on into his car on Route 273 near Gallagher Road in Fair Hill, Md.

The collision occurred around 4:40 p.m., police said.

The victim, Curtis M. Sieckert, of Salem Church Road in Newark, was pronounced dead on the scene. The 33-year-old Delaware man worked as a troubleshooter for an Internet service provider. He owned his own web server, which hosted music-related websites.

He was the third person killed on a Cecil County highway on the Memorial Day weekend.

His passenger, Ann-Marie Ridgely, 20, of Maryland, was taken to Christiana Hospital, treated and released.

The 17-year-old driver of the truck and his 14-year-old brother were taken to Christiana Hospital, treated and released.

According to Maryland State Police, Sieckert's 1987 Mazda 626 was heading west on Route 273 when the 17-year-old's 1989 Chevrolet Blazer, heading east on the same road, pulled into westbound lane while trying to pass a third vehicle.

Sieckert drove onto the westbound shoulder to avoid the Blazer, however the boy also pulled onto the shoulder and the two vehicles hit head-on.

Police in Maryland said the accident is still under investigation and charges against the 17-year-old are pending.

Ridgely, during a telephone interview Monday, said she and Sieckert were on their way to a friend's house from Newark when the accident occurred.

Caroline Milburn, 34, of Elkton, who arrived at the scene immediately following the accident, called 911. "The boy kept sobbing and saying, 'If that man dies, I'll never be able to go on,'" she said.

Christina District breaks ground for new school

Keene honored in ceremony

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Christina School District could not have asked for a more beautiful day last Friday when construction for their new elementary school was officially kicked off with a meaningful tribute to the school's namesake, Dr. William B. Keene.

The groundbreaking was crowded with friends, family, former colleagues and school and state administrators who know Keene well enough to have showed up in rain or shine.

Long-time friend Eugene Trivits proudly described Keene's contributions.

"Today is a true indication of what (Keene) has done for the state of Delaware," Trivits said. "Having moved up the ranks from a teacher to superintendent, always working for the kids, this is a fitting tribute — maybe late, but fitting."

Although demonstrating much success in education, Keene's career was not originally headed in that direction.

"This is something he fell into," said daughter Susan Keene of Newark. "He was first working with the family hardware business before he became a teacher."

"He loves children and he's always tried to be at the top of his game and this is the ultimate recognition for that."

Keene, a resident of Windy Hills, received even more praise once the ceremony got underway.

Christina School Superintendent Dr. Nicholas Fischer described Keene's experiences. "Bill is one of those people who is a complete educator... he has worked both sides of the fence and demonstrated that ultimately we are here to help children move along to become adults."

Over the past 30 years, Keene moved through the ranks of Delaware's public school system as teacher, vice principal and principal in Red Clay School District, in addition to serving on the Newark District School Board.

He accepted the superintendent's position in the Appoquinimink School District before ultimately moving to the Delaware Department of Public Instruction where he served as deputy superintendent and then as state superintendent of education.

Before taking a turn with the ceremonial shovel, Keene gave thanks to those who have been beside him all the way, especially his family.

"I want to make sure my family gets their deserved recognition," he said. "They really had to put up with a lot because, the fact is, for people in public service, it takes a lot of time, energy and effort to do the hustle," said Keene.

grades K-4.

Buck Simpers and Associates designed the 64,500 square-foot building which will sit on 27 acres of land. Total cost, said Simpers, was $7.3 million.

According to Christina's assistant superintendent for planning and facility, Dr. Capes Riley, Parsons Engineering conducted an archaeological dig in which traces of previous use was found at the site.

"From their findings it did show that there were various Indian reservations here and they are still looking at the pieces to determine more information," said Riley.

Riley added that a booklet describing the area and highlighting what was found will be put on display in the school when it opens.

International audience applauds UD graduates

The rains held off on Saturday, May 27, while the Class of 2000 received their degrees in front of family and friends at Delaware Stadium.

Over 4,000 people received degrees before the rains came down at the 151st Commencement of the University of Delaware last Saturday.

Family, friends and graduates gathered at the outdoor ceremony in Delaware Stadium where neurosurgeon Dr. Ben Carson was the featured speaker.

Carson, who received an honorary degree from the University of Delaware in 1997, told the graduates that "brainpower" and expectations were the key to success.

"When I was a fifth-grader, I thought I was stupid...so I achieved like a stupid person," Carson said. "When I was a seventh-grader, I thought I was smart, so I acted like a smart person and achieved like a smart person."

Hannah Rebecca Gurman of New York, who earned a bachelor's degree in both history and English, and Erin Daniell Klene of New Hampshire, an Honors graduate with a degree in both animal science and biology, were honored for achieving the highest cumulative grades in full-time study.

Gurman plans to work in Philadelphia for public advocate Michael Karp.

Klene, also captain of the varsity soccer team at UD, will pursue a doctorate in veterinary medicine at Cornell University.

Carson

According to the University of Delaware staff, the graduates came from 36 states and 66 countries, including senior Kestutis Marciulionis, whose parents traveled from Lithuania to see him graduate in Delaware.

Armed robberies in Newark

He displayed a handgun and demanded money from the clerk. The suspect then fled on foot to the rear of the restaurant with an undisclosed amount of money.

On Tuesday, May 30, around 3:25 p.m., two suspects entered

Ignition Interlock ordinance tabled

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Newark City Council is waiting for more information before deciding whether to pass an ordinance which would provide an alternative penalty for DUI first offenders in Newark.

According to city manager Carl Luft, an Ignition Interlock Device can be used on vehicles which "senses alcohol on the breath" of the driver and will not allow them to start the vehicle.

The Delaware General Assembly has already passed a law which allows persons eligible for the DUI First Offender's program to use the device. Following a one-month suspension, offenders can obtain a conditional license permitting them to drive their vehicle when it is equipped with the device.

Jim Donovan, a University of Delaware Police Officer, said the driver must "blow into the device like a breathalyzer" before they can drive the car.

In response to questions, councilmember Christine Rewa added she believes the device only works when the driver, the person blowing into the device, is seated behind the wheel and the door of the vehicle is shut. "It's very difficult to cheat (once the process is started)," she said.

City solicitor Roger Akin said the vehicle can't be operated by anyone for a "certain time" after the driver fails the test.

"This was proposed as an alternative penalty because a lot of violators claim they will lose their job if they lose their license and can't drive for a time," Akin said. "It compounds the problems for the family."

Councilmember Jerry Clifton said he thought the ordinance was simply "feel good" legislation and said he would not support it.

"It almost makes it OK for someone picked up for DUI to get back on the street again," Clifton said.

Councilmember Thomas Wampler agreed with Clifton but John Farrell of District 1 said, "This is just mirroring the legislation passed by the state and I assume the state took all these things into consideration. I wouldn't want to vote it down, but I would like a little more information on it."

However, Farrell also noted that a "first offender" meant it was the first time they got caught. "It's not necessarily the first time they drove DUI," Farrell said.

State representative Stephanie Ulbrich (R-Newark South) told council the General Assembly wanted to make things easier for the families, not the offenders. "We made the legislation very restrictive on who could use this device," Ulbrich said.

Council tabled the ordinance on May 22 until they could obtain information concerning how the device works and the driver's license suspension time which would be imposed if this provision was not used.

His research has shown that the Earth's surface received more precipitation than was thought, especially over tropical South America and where there is abundant snowfall. He and his colleagues also demonstrated that the Earth's land surfaces are cooler, on the average, than is apparent in weather-station records alone, because the Earth's cold regions are under-represented in weather-station networks.

The joint will be jumpin'

Newark will be packed with visitors this weekend. They're literally flying in from all over the place.

In addition to the annual Newark Nite festivities on Main Street tomorrow night, alumni at Newark High School are hosting a Millennium Reunion which invited the surviving members of every class since the school opened. At last count, at least 300 from around the world had accepted, along with their family members.

As if that is not enough, the Delaware Special Olympics with athletes and their families and friends from throughout the state takes place today and tomorrow at the University of Delaware.

And college students are still packing up and trickling out of town with mom, dad or graduate behind the wheel of the rental truck.

It promises to be a weekend to remember — but we hope not a weekend to try to forget.

Last year, some vendors and entertainers at the Main Street event complained about vandalism and criminal mischief from young people. At least one threatened not to return to the annual street fair at all because they claim the city did not assist them enough.

The fact is, there are always instances of rowdy behavior which cannot be foreseen or prevented. And some high spirits and youthful foolishness has to be tolerated in small doses.

But this is a family event — and even in years without a monster high school reunion — a major extended-Newarker-family reunion at that.

Let's try to behave, shall we? Company's coming.

Parents whose teens normally cruise downtown each Saturday night to "hang out" have a good reason to take a drive themselves and see what's up at "out."

Teens and other young people could try restraining themselves for a few hours, at least. Not all of your bad jokes are entertaining.

Graffiti and assaulting people and property with objects, substances, and personal appendages are often criminal — let alone annoying. You and your parents could wind up this exciting weekend with a tour of the police station.

For the rest of us, this is a chance to see Newark at it's very best: jumpin' with fun, happy faces and energy. Give yourself a treat and find out what's in your own front-yard on Main Street tomorrow night.

Glasgow Honor Society speech (how did they pick me?)

By JACK BARTELY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

The following is a partial transcript of a speech I delivered at the induction ceremony for the Glasgow High School Chapter of the National Honor Society. On the recommendation of my wife, I have removed most of the inside jokes. They probably weren't very funny, anyway.

Aren't you glad you're out of high school and don't have to sit through stuff like this?

I would like to thank the officers of the Glasgow Chapter of the National Honor Society for inviting me to be their guest speaker tonight. When Kenny Rivera, Honor Society President, approached me about speaking, my first question to him was, "You must have been scraping the bottom of a very shallow barrel to end up with me as your keynote speaker." Kenny assured me that the barrel was, in fact, quite large and that no scraping, or at least very little scraping, was done to arrive at my name.

In any case, I considered it an honor to be able to address many of the students I have thoroughly enjoyed having in class, and to recognize the accomplishments of many of the new inductees that I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting. Notice that I used the past tense of "considered" because I considered it an honor UNTIL I realized I had to sit down and write a speech. The feeling of "honor" diminished as the deadline approached, and I soon began to feel like a procrastinating honors student who needed to not only finish a term paper for senior English in 24 hours, but who also had to fabricate note cards and a rough draft to make it appear that the correct writing process had been followed diligently. You know who you are.

I hope the new inductees realize the importance of being selected to the ranks of the National Honor Society. I never had the opportunity to become a member "back in the day" when I was in high school. First, my grades, especially from my troubled early teen years of ninth grade, were less than stellar. Second, there was no "National" Honor Society when I was in school since the 13 original colonies were not officially recognized as a nation. Somehow, the "Colonial Honor Society" never caught on. As far as I know, the only member of the Glasgow staff that was an honor society member before there was a National Honor Society was Mr. Higgins, a charter member of the Renaissance Honor Society of Western Europe.

I first became associated with the National Honor Society about 10 years ago when I became a co-advisor for the Society with Ms. Jane McFann. It was Ms. McFann's vision that took the Glasgow chapter from being primarily a scholastic organization and transformed it into the active service organization that has become an important and integral part of the Glasgow and Newark communities. However, Ms. McFann's vision and hard work alone were not enough to bring about the many successes experienced over the years by this chapter. It was the willingness of the officers and members to

Blaze at local farm is seen for miles

Sunday evening about nine o'clock, the large barn on the J.P. Perkins farm, between Cooch's and Christiana, was destroyed.

When the first of seven fire companies to respond, reached the farm the horde of pleasure cars practically blocked any entrance to the farm yard.

Seven companies attended the fire: Newark, Middletown, Newport, Christiana, New Castle, Delaware City and Holloway Terrace.

Delaplane Tract Brings $19,000 at Public Auction

The prospects for another attractive real estate development on the outskirts of Newark boomed skyward last Saturday on the east side of town.

About 200 choice building lots, a small farm, and a mansion house, comprising the entire Vought farm long the Lincoln Highway, went under the auctioneer's hammer.

Oberle's bill sparking controversy

Rep. William Oberle's (R-Scottfield) bill to provide statutory rights for public school pupils, their parents, and public school employees has triggered mixed reactions from various citizen's groups.

Grouping of students by ability, would provide both achievers and underachievers with the special attention they need. "It's ridiculous to have them all in the same atmosphere," said Oberle.

Martin urges tax protection

Senator Roger Martin (D-Windy Hills) has introduced a resolution into the General Assembly to assure that no homeowner loses his home as a result of property tax hikes caused by desegregation.

"A lot of people in the county are concerned that in some areas such increases in tax rates would cause them to lose their homes," said Martin.

Included in the extensive damage was graffiti with the number "95" prominently displayed which suggested to school officials that members of this year's graduating class were responsible.

In addition, bleachers, ticket booths, goalie stands and athletic equipment were moved, overturned and strewn around playing fields. Picnic tables were put up on roofs and two outside lights were broken.

Special Olympics start tonight

Today and tomorrow, Newark welcomes 550 athletes to the Delaware Special Olympics 1995 Summer Games at the University of Delaware Sports Complex on South College Avenue.

Opening ceremonies begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Bob Carpenter Center with a parade of athletes, organizational awards, fireworks, and the arrival of the Olympic Flame, which has traveled 112-miles in a relay run across the state.

The joint will be jumpin'

Newark will be packed with visitors this weekend. They're literally flying in from all over the place.

In addition to the annual Newark Nite festivities on Main Street tomorrow night, alumni at Newark High School are hosting a Millennium Reunion which invited the surviving members of every class since the school opened. At last count, at least 300 from around the world had accepted, along with their family members.

As if that is not enough, the Delaware Special Olympics with athletes and their families and friends from throughout the state takes place today and tomorrow at the University of Delaware.

And college students are still packing up and trickling out of town with mom, dad or graduate behind the wheel of the rental truck.

It promises to be a weekend to remember — but we hope not a weekend to try to forget.

Last year, some vendors and entertainers at the Main Street event complained about vandalism and criminal mischief from young people. At least one threatened not to return to the annual street fair at all because they claim the city did not assist them enough.

The fact is, there are always instances of rowdy behavior which cannot be foreseen or prevented. And some high spirits and youthful foolishness has to be tolerated in small doses.

But this is a family event — and even in years without a monster high school reunion — a major extended-Newarker-family reunion at that.

Let's try to behave, shall we? Company's coming.

Parents whose teens normally cruise downtown each Saturday night to "hang out" have a good reason to take a drive themselves and see what's up at "out."

Teens and other young people could try restraining themselves for a few hours, at least. Not all of your bad jokes are entertaining.

Graffiti and assaulting people and property with objects, substances, and personal appendages are often criminal — let alone annoying. You and your parents could wind up this exciting weekend with a tour of the police station.

For the rest of us, this is a chance to see Newark at it's very best: jumpin' with fun, happy faces and energy. Give yourself a treat and find out what's in your own front-yard on Main Street tomorrow night.

Glasgow Honor Society speech (how did they pick me?)

By JACK BARTELY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

The following is a partial transcript of a speech I delivered at the induction ceremony for the Glasgow High School Chapter of the National Honor Society. On the recommendation of my wife, I have removed most of the inside jokes. They probably weren't very funny, anyway.

Aren't you glad you're out of high school and don't have to sit through stuff like this?

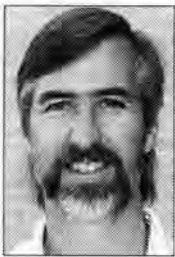

I would like to thank the officers of the Glasgow Chapter of the National Honor Society for inviting me to be their guest speaker tonight. When Kenny Rivera, Honor Society President, approached me about speaking, my first question to him was, "You must have been scraping the bottom of a very shallow barrel to end up with me as your keynote speaker." Kenny assured me that the barrel was, in fact, quite large and that no scraping, or at least very little scraping, was done to arrive at my name.

In any case, I considered it an honor to be able to address many of the students I have thoroughly enjoyed having in class, and to recognize the accomplishments of many of the new inductees that I have not yet had the pleasure of meeting. Notice that I used the past tense of "considered" because I considered it an honor UNTIL I realized I had to sit down and write a speech. The feeling of "honor" diminished as the deadline approached, and I soon began to feel like a procrastinating honors student who needed to not only finish a term paper for senior English in 24 hours, but who also had to fabricate note cards and a rough draft to make it appear that the correct writing process had been followed diligently. You know who you are.

I hope the new inductees realize the importance of being selected to the ranks of the National Honor Society. I never had the opportunity to become a member "back in the day" when I was in high school. First, my grades, especially from my troubled early teen years of ninth grade, were less than stellar. Second, there was no "National" Honor Society when I was in school since the 13 original colonies were not officially recognized as a nation. Somehow, the "Colonial Honor Society" never caught on. As far as I know, the only member of the Glasgow staff that was an honor society member before there was a National Honor Society was Mr. Higgins, a charter member of the Renaissance Honor Society of Western Europe.

I first became associated with the National Honor Society about 10 years ago when I became a co-advisor for the Society with Ms. Jane McFann. It was Ms. McFann's vision that took the Glasgow chapter from being primarily a scholastic organization and transformed it into the active service organization that has become an important and integral part of the Glasgow and Newark communities. However, Ms. McFann's vision and hard work alone were not enough to bring about the many successes experienced over the years by this chapter. It was the willingness of the officers and members to

Sunday evening about nine o'clock, the large barn on the J.P. Perkins farm, between Cooch's and Christiana, was destroyed.

When the first of seven fire companies to respond, reached the farm the horde of pleasure cars practically blocked any entrance to the farm yard.

Seven companies attended the fire: Newark, Middletown, Newport, Christiana, New Castle, Delaware City and Holloway Terrace.

Delaplane Tract Brings $19,000 at Public Auction

The prospects for another attractive real estate development on the outskirts of Newark boomed skyward last Saturday on the east side of town.

About 200 choice building lots, a small farm, and a mansion house, comprising the entire Vought farm long the Lincoln Highway, went under the auctioneer's hammer.

Oberle's bill sparking controversy

Rep. William Oberle's (R-Scottfield) bill to provide statutory rights for public school pupils, their parents, and public school employees has triggered mixed reactions from various citizen's groups.

Grouping of students by ability, would provide both achievers and underachievers with the special attention they need. "It's ridiculous to have them all in the same atmosphere," said Oberle.

Martin urges tax protection

Senator Roger Martin (D-Windy Hills) has introduced a resolution into the General Assembly to assure that no homeowner loses his home as a result of property tax hikes caused by desegregation.

"A lot of people in the county are concerned that in some areas such increases in tax rates would cause them to lose their homes," said Martin.

Ulbrich seeks re-election

State Representative Stephanie A. Ulbrich (R-Newark South) announced this week she is running for a fourth term in the Delaware House of Representatives.

"I am very excited about seeking a fourth term to the State House," Ulbrich said. "I have enjoyed serving the residents of the 25th District, and over the next several years I plan to continue my focus on issues including education reform, tax relief and public safety improvements."

As chair of the House Government Accountability Committee, Ulbrich has led the effort to reform the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. She has also served as chair of the House 800 Megahertz Committee charged with investigating the in-building and outside communications problems with the State's public safety radio system. The Committee has proposed three bills as part of its recommendations for improvements to the system.

Ulbrich serves as vice-chair of the House Education Committee. This legislative session, she sponsored legislation to link parent accountability to student performance. Under the legislation, a student's performance would be excluded from a teacher's evaluation if the student's parent or caregiver demonstrates indifference to the student's academic success.

Legislators want study of benefits resulting from 'Graduated Licensing' Bill

State Representative Tim Boulden (R-Newark) has introduced House Concurrent Resolution 49 asking the State Insurance Department to review the effects of the graduated driver's licensing legislation passed in the last general Assembly. Boulden was joined by State Senator Dave Sokola (D-North Star) and State Representative Pam Maier (R-Drummond Hill) in calling for the request.

"I would like our Insurance Commissioner to be proactive on this issue," said Boulden. "I would eventually like to see insurance rates reduced for teen drivers if the statistics indicate the new system is reducing fatalities and making the roadways safer."

Due to youth and inexperience, teen drivers are involved in a disproportionately large number of serious and fatal automobile crashes. Graduated drivers licensing, already adopted in many other states, is designed to allow young drivers to "graduate" through levels of licensing so that their responsibility for themselves, their passengers, and those with whom they share the road grows along with their driving experience and maturity.

In Delaware, motor vehicle crashes are the number one killer of teens - more than suicide, homicide, drugs and AIDS combined. The fact is that 16 and 17 year olds are involved in car crashes up to 10 times the rate of mature drivers and are nearly twice as likely to be involved in a single vehicle crash with three or more passengers than 18 year olds. Night driving statistics are even grimmer. Young male drivers are four times more likely to be killed in a car accident after nightfall than middle-aged drivers.

The new Graduated Drivers License law has two steps a teenage driver must follow before a Class D license is granted. The first step is the Learning Period ("Level I" Pen-nit). To be eligible, a teen must be at least 15 years, 10 months old, successfully completed a Driver's Education course and passed a written and road skills test given by a driver's education teacher. The teen's sponsor - either a parent or guardian, must sign the DMV application.

During the learning period, restrictions are in place to give the student time to master newly acquired driving skills for a full year. For the first six months, the teen must drive with a licensed adult at least 25 years old with no more than two other passengers. For the second six months, teens must drive with a licensed adult from 9 p.m. until 6 a.m. (except going to and from church, school, or work activities) and carry no more than two other passengers. From 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., teens may drive unsupervised with no more than two passengers.

During the Learning Period, the Delaware DMV can suspend driving privileges for one to three months if a serious driving violation occurs. Following the completion of the Learning Period, full driving privileges are granted embrace change and undertake the many difficult and tangibly unrewarding tasks that comprise a service organization's role in a community.

The leadership and character of this organization were never more in evidence than this year when the Glasgow chapter was forced, due to Ms. McFann's illness, to operate for most of the year without their formative advisor. The officers and active members assumed the mantle of responsibility, and under the diligent and patient direction of Ms. Houghton, rose to the high standards of community service set in previous years, including the most difficult production of the fund-raising fashion show "Transformations" that has ever been attempted.

For the new inductees and the officers that will assume the leadership roles next year, you have big shoes to fill. You have already addressed one of the four cornerstones of the National Honor Society, scholarship. It was your scholarly achievements that brought your names to the attention of the selection committee and swept you into this prestigious organization. However, now you will need to maintain your scholarship in addition to exploring your character as an individual and developing the leadership of this chapter to set goals after the ever-changing needs of the Glasgow and Newark communities have been assessed.

"Change" is what is important. Many people are afraid of change, yet it is something more "sure" than either death or taxes. Advisors, leaders and members of the Glasgow chapter all will change, and the needs of the community will change simultaneously. As integral parts of this organization, your success will be measured in how well you recognize, embrace, and deal with change, just as natural selection determines the success of an organism in a changing environment.

Things do not all change at the same rate. Many organisms, such as crocodiles and cockroaches, have remained unchanged for millions of years. In the same way, ideas or concepts can remain unchanged as long as they make sense or have meaning. These are known as "memes."

A saying such as, "A penny saved is a penny earned," has been bandied about for hundreds of years and constitutes a "meme." It may not be as apropos today as when it was coined, but it still has meaning. If it had originated today, it probably would have been, "A penny saved is a waste since it could have been invested in a 'dot-com' IPO."

One saying that may be nearing extinction is, "A stitch in time saves nine." Nine what? Nine minutes? Nine stitches? Today this saying would most likely be,

"A stitch in time was probably made by a kid working for Kathy Lee in a sweat shop in Indonesia." Not very catchy, but it's more appropriate for today's economy.

The new members and leaders of the Glasgow Chapter of the National Honor Society will have to decide if what has worked in the past will address the needs of the future. By the way, I am coming to the conclusion here in case you were contemplating nodding off. If you're already gone, then you can't hear me anyway. What has been done "traditionally" may not be appropriate, even though it is comfortable to continue along the same path. Tradition carries a lot of inertia. One word of warning, do not change simply for the sake of change. Many tried and-true ideas will continue to work better than any others you can create. The selective process for the success of this chapter is now in your hands. I have no doubts that you will succeed in changing what needs to be changed, and keeping what needs to be kept. If YOU have any doubts, just ask a crocodile.

Enjoy your county's fresh bounty

Now that spring is literally popping out all around us, why not plan how you will take advantage of this year's locally produced fruits, vegetables and nursery plants.

The Delaware Department of Agriculture has published the "Delaware Farm Market Directory" to help you to do just that. This publication, a voluntary listing of farm markets, is designed to help consumers find roadside fresh produce stands, pick-your-own operations or nursery markets throughout our county and state.

Shopping at these farm markets can be an enjoyable way to save money on fresh, delicious produce and provide your family with an opportunity for recreation and education at the same time.

The directory provides an alphabetical listing, by county, of farm markets. It also includes products available, an indication of pick-your-own (PYO) opportunities, as well as locations, maps and directions. In addition, there is a helpful chart showing the availability dates of Delaware-grown fruits and vegetables.

New Castle County is blessed with several PYO farms that include opportunities for gathering strawberries, pumpkins, cut flowers and apples.

Not interested? Not enough time? You might want to consider a Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) type supplier. These programs are an excellent way for members of the community to support local agriculture while being provided with fresh and, in some cases, organically grown, vegetables, fruits and herbs.

This concept is just catching on locally and can take many different forms. Typically, the producer talks with participants prior to the growing season to decide what produce to grow and to work up a budget for growing the items from seed to harvest.

The total cost of production is divided by the number of participants, which is how the cost of a share and the amount each member pays for participating is determined.

In exchange for investing in the program, shareholders get weekly produce deliveries throughout the growing season and, in some areas, year-round. There are a couple of CSA operations in the area. Be

A HAIRCUT WITH A PURPOSE

Once they had done it, Kati Winchester, Amanda Hall and Lauren Fischer were delighted with their decision to give away some of their hair for a good cause.

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

It's been a long time since 11-year-old Lauren Fischer of Newark has worn her hair short. Since kindergarten, she has been growing it out with only the occasional trim. But this year, something inspired the sixth-grade student at Bayard Elementary School to cut about 10 inches off the length of her blonde locks.

"I found out that if I cut my hair it could be used to make wigs for people losing hair for medical reasons," said Fischer.

Holding her left hand below her right shoulder, Fischer indicated how long her hair used to be before getting it cut a week before Easter.

"So, for Lent, I decided to give up my hair for a good reason," she added.

Last December, Fischer and her mother, Vickie Fischer, discovered an organization called Locks of Love, based in Palm Springs, Fla. Through the not-for-profit group, financially disadvantaged children under the age of 18 who suffer from medical hair loss can receive wigs and hairpieces made from donated hair.

This was especially meaningful to Fischer who shares the waiting room at A.I. DuPont's Children's Hospital with many kids undergoing radiation or chemotherapy.

"I know what it's like to have to go to the hospital, and, when I go there, I see a lot of people who are (balding)," Fischer said.

In December 1998, Fischer was diagnosed with the blood disorder, Immune Thrombocytopenic Purpura (I.T.P.). This disease is caused by an abnormality in a part of the body's immune system that is responsible for making antibodies. Symptoms of many small bruises or tiny blood spots result from a low number of platelets in the blood.

Although little can be done to cure the disease, medical evidence shows that 80 to 90 percent of children will get better on their own in less than six months. Until then, medicine that maintains a safe platelet count in a child's body is prescribed and regular check-ups with a hematologist are scheduled.

"Since my daughter goes to A.I. a lot, I think she developed a certain compassion for patients with blood disorders and now she does something every year for the Leukemia Foundation," Vickie explained.

For five months, Fischer and her mom discussed donating hair.

"At first I thought, 'How short do I have to get it?'" Fischer said.

After considering the benefits, Fischer said she finally decided she would do it.

Fischer described her experience in the beauty salon chair at LUX in the Main Street Galleria in Newark.

"The stylist measured my hair with a comb, and then cut it," said Fischer. "Then, of course, she trimmed it."

According to Locks of Love's guidelines, the donated hair must be at least 10 inches (preferable 12 inches) in length, bundled in a ponytail or braid, and free of hair damaged by chemical processing.

The clean, dry hair must be placed in a plastic bag and mailed in a padded envelope. The hair is then used to create custom, vacuum-cap hairpieces suitable for girls or boys.

Sporting a fresh new summer cut, Fischer said her new look took some getting used to.

"I got my hair cut on a Saturday and when I went to school on Monday everybody was staring at me," she said.

Even shampooing felt different for the long-haired veteran.

"The first time I went to wash my hair I put a big pile of shampoo in my hand and then realized I didn't need so much," she said.

Fischer's bold move influenced a few of her friends, Amanda Hall, 10, and 8-year-old Kati Winchester, both also of Newark, to have their hair cut for the cause.

"I got it cut because my mom wanted it short for the summer and because it would help other kids," Hall said.

Fischer looked forward to showing her new cut to the nurses at A. I. who were thrilled about her decision to donate her hair.

"I told them about it over the phone and they said, 'Wow! You did it!'" the young girl said.

Dr. Gregory Griffin, Fischer's physician, said he didn't know she was planning to do this, but he wasn't surprised.

"Lauren is a very outgoing and enthusiastic person and I think for her to decide to do this says something about who she is," Griffin said.

For information, see website Locksoflove.com.

Lauren Fischer smiled bravely as her locks were cut off.

'Pay-what-you-can' Children's Theater coming to the Grand

Magical fairytales, classic adventures, and a famous foot-tapping entertainer move you through the summer break during pay-what-you-can Summer Children's Theater at the Grand Opera House, Wilmington.

Seven different shows are offered between June 26 and July 19, and tickets cost whatever you wish to give - $5, $1, 50 cents, or nothing at all!

On Monday, June 26, award-winning children's recording star and entertainer Red Grammer performs. Hailed by CBS This Morning as "Superstar to the young and a hit with parents too!" Grammer promises to "get you on your feet" with his amazing voice.

The Rehoboth Summer Children's Theater performs on Wednesday, June 28, in "Peter Pan," who leads his friends to Neverland to do battle with Captain Hook and his band of pirates.

"The Wizard of Oz," brings Dorothy, Toto, and their unusual friends on Wednesday, July 5. "Jack and the Beanstalk" has Jack matching wits with the giant on Tuesday, July 11.

Watch how Belle and a ferocious Beast learn to care for one another during "Beauty and the Beast," performed by The Gingerbread Players on Thursday, July 13. On Monday, July 17, "Pinocchio" must learn between right and wrong in order to become a real boy.

The series concludes on Wednesday, July 19, with "Silly Mixed Up Fairytales." Performed by Page Turner Adventures, this playful production shows you what happens when Sleeping Beauty, Little Red Riding Hood, and Jack & The Beanstalk share one Fairy Godmother.

Each performance lasts about 60 minutes. All showtimes are 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Reservations are required for groups of 20 or more and can be made by calling Quentina D. Robins at 658-7897. Individuals and small groups can attend without reservations.

This program is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Delaware Division of the Arts, a state agency committed to promoting and supporting the arts in Delaware. The Delaware Division of the Arts provides technical and financial assistance to artists and arts programs and serves as a clearinghouse for information on the arts.

Sullivan is 'Woman of the Year'

Newark resident Peggy Sullivan was named "Woman of the Year" by the University of Delaware Women's Club. Sullivan, a 1967 graduate of Newark High School, received a bachelor of arts degree in history from the University in 1971. She was a member of the UD Student Government Association and the first student representative for the UD Faculty Senate.

After graduation, she was secretary of the UD Alumni Association and served as class representative for 15 years. She also served as a summer intern in Governor Russell Peterson's office in 1971.

During over two decades at the University, she worked in the Admissions, Urban Affairs, and Alumni Affairs offices as well as Continuing Education before "retiring" to care for her mother in 1994.

As a volunteer, Sullivan has supported the Blue-Gold All-Star Football Game and been a "buddy" with a special needs child since 1985. She has also served as a campaign cabinet

Do's and Don'ts

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Just do it

Caravel Academy should change the name of their mascot to "Youth." The current Buccaneers moniker, though nice, is not as appropriate as my new suggestion, Caravel Youth.

The Buc softball team doesn't play with a single senior on the team and only has three juniors.

The Buc baseball team, first round victim of Caesar Rodney's Ian Snell (sure-bet pro draft pick), only has one senior on it and two of their freshman made big contributions during the year.

Manlove

Just don't do it

Never underestimate a William Penn Colonial sports team. Never.

In the softball game that St. Mark's lost to William Penn, a Spartan was heard telling someone that she couldn't make an event on June 3 because there was a state championship game to be played. Three Spartan errors and one hit (the only Colonial hit of the game) later, the player (who shall remain nameless) had June 3 open on her schedule again.

Time and time again these stories about Colonial comebacks keep appearing. Whether or not all the comebacks are wins, they are still shining examples of why their teams continue to put championship banners on the walls of their gym.

Not only do these athletes make all-state teams, they make my All-Heart team as well.

Say goodbye

I'm sorry to say that I will be leaving my job here to continue the pursuit of my vision at Delaware Sports. I will finish the high school season and turn my word processor over to the next stud sports writer who hopefully will be a tad more articulate than I.

Hopefully, we are parting ways with fond memories of my short stint.

Local softball teams collide

St. Mark's upset, Caravel triumphs

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Our area high school softball teams went to battle in the 2000 state softball tournament this past week.

The defending state champions from Caravel bit their nails through the game that head coach Steve Baker said was, "the game that worried me the most in our bracket."

That game was the rematch of last year's state championship final game with Sussex Central.

What high school softball fan could forget that classic, dueling no-hit contest between two of the four first-team all-state pitchers, Jackie Homiak from Caravel and Betsy Lecates from Sussex Central?

Ironically, both pitchers gave up hits to the first batters that they faced in the quarterfinal matchup.

Caravel took a third inning lead that would stand up through the end of their 2-1 victory. Erin McGlynn doubled into leftfield to score Lindsey Long and Kim Helm.

The Golden Knights struck back for one in the sixth when Suzanne Baker tripled and was driven in by Sandy Samsel's single.

Homiak didn't strike out a batter all game which meant the outstanding Buc defense, clearly the best in the state, was able to showcase their talents.

The Bucs ended the game with an infield double play, a fitting way for the still very young champions to advance to the semifinal round.

The Colonials celebrate their upset win over the No. 1 seed St. Mark's Spartans in the state softball tournament.

seriously enough to study the game tape from last year's game for four hours, staying up until after midnight to get an idea of how Lecates was going to handle Cavavel.

"She never threw to the same place twice in a row. If she threw one pitch inside, the next was outside. If it was low, it was coming high."

Baker and his coaching staff employed a series of codes to shout to their hitters. For example, once they thought they were pretty certain that they knew what the Rider College bound lefty was going to throw, they would shout a number for one location, a name for another.

Give Baker the unofficial Softball Coach of the Year right now.

Colonials take no prisoners

Completely unsatisfied with a share of the Blue Hen Conference Flight A crown with Glasgow, William Penn exploded for six runs against the 17-1 Dragons in the second inning of the first round tournament game and went on to win 7-0.

They made their claim to the conference championship, and rightly so, after the win.

Glasgow's only loss was to William Penn, and it was by the same 7-0 score.

The Colonials took the lead in the second when Kristen Lentelle was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded and no outs. Two ground-outs scored the next two runs, and then the heart of the order, Melissa Zebley, Erica LaBar and Michelle Whalen produced the next three.

Starting Colonial pitcher Kim Camponelli didn't strike out anyone and only walked two to pick up the four-hit win.

Whalen said, "Going into the game, we truly felt that we were playing, not only for a berth to the second round, but for a flight A championship. As long as we could keep our bats moving, like in our first meeting, we were certain we would cruise to victory."

Not through winning, the Colonials moved on and knocked off St. Mark's, the number one seed.

St. Mark's tops Glasgow in first round baseball

By JOE BACKER

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Defending State Champion St. Mark's needed some timely hitting on a miserable, rainy day to fend off a determined Glasgow High 5-2 Saturday afternoon in the first round of the State High School Baseball Tournament.

The Spartans starting pitcher, left-handed Mark Romanczuk, struck out 13 batters and surrendered only three hits en route to the complete game victory.

St. Mark's Head Coach Matt Smith had high praise for Romanczuk, who pitched in his first-ever tournament game. "Mark struggled early in the game, but managed to settle down and get stronger during the game. He did an excellent job in the later innings," said Smith.

Romanczuk, only a sophomore, outdueled the Dragon's top pitcher, Alan Haupt, for his sixth victory of the season against two defeats. Haupt finished his senior season with a 5-2 record.

Sherman takes over UD baseball post

NEWARK, DE — Jim Sherman, who has led the University of Delaware baseball team to national success as both a player and an assistant coach, has been named the new head coach of the Blue Hen baseball team, UD Director of Athletics Edgar N. Johnson announced Tuesday.

Sherman, 40, who has served as a Delaware assistant coach since 1995 and was named associate head coach this past fall, takes over for Hall of Fame head coach Bob Hannah who will step down following the 2000 season after 36 years at the helm. Sherman is just the 15th head coach in UD history and just the third since 1956.

"We are pleased to have Jim take over our baseball head coaching position at Delaware," said Johnson. "He is a quality young coach and an outstanding baseball person. His previous experience at both Wilmington College and as an assistant under Coach Hannah speaks for itself. He has been heavily involved in the transition this

Do's and Don'ts

Just do it

Caravel Academy should change the name of their mascot to "Youth." The current Buccaneers moniker, though nice, is not as appropriate as my new suggestion, Caravel Youth.

The Buc softball team doesn't play with a single senior on the team and only has three juniors.

The Buc baseball team, first round victim of Caesar Rodney's Ian Snell (sure-bet pro draft pick), only has one senior on it and two of their freshman made big contributions during the year.

Just don't do it

Never underestimate a William Penn Colonial sports team. Never.

In the softball game that St. Mark's lost to William Penn, a Spartan was heard telling someone that she couldn't make an event on June 3 because there was a state championship game to be played. Three Spartan errors and one hit (the only Colonial hit of the game) later, the player (who shall remain nameless) had June 3 open on her schedule again.

Time and time again these stories about Colonial comebacks keep appearing. Whether or not all the comebacks are wins, they are still shining examples of why their teams continue to put championship banners on the walls of their gym.

Not only do these athletes make all-state teams, they make my All-Heart team as well.

Say goodbye

I'm sorry to say that I will be leaving my job here to continue the pursuit of my vision at Delaware Sports. I will finish the high school season and turn my word processor over to the next stud sports writer who hopefully will be a tad more articulate than I.

Hopefully, we are parting ways with fond memories of my short stint.

Local softball teams collide

St. Mark's upset, Caravel triumphs

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Our area high school softball teams went to battle in the 2000 state softball tournament this past week.

The defending state champions from Caravel bit their nails through the game that head coach Steve Baker said was, "the game that worried me the most in our bracket."

That game was the rematch of last year's state championship final game with Sussex Central.

What high school softball fan could forget that classic, dueling no-hit contest between two of the four first-team all-state pitchers, Jackie Homiak from Caravel and Betsy Lecates from Sussex Central?

Ironically, both pitchers gave up hits to the first batters that they faced in the quarterfinal matchup.

Caravel took a third inning lead that would stand up through the end of their 2-1 victory. Erin McGlynn doubled into leftfield to score Lindsey Long and Kim Helm.

The Golden Knights struck back for one in the sixth when Suzanne Baker tripled and was driven in by Sandy Samsel's single.

Homiak didn't strike out a batter all game which meant the outstanding Buc defense, clearly the best in the state, was able to showcase their talents.

The Bucs ended the game with an infield double play, a fitting way for the still very young champions to advance to the semifinal round.

seriously enough to study the game tape from last year's game for four hours, staying up until after midnight to get an idea of how Lecates was going to handle Cavavel.

"She never threw to the same place twice in a row. If she threw one pitch inside, the next was outside. If it was low, it was coming high."

Baker and his coaching staff employed a series of codes to shout to their hitters. For example, once they thought they were pretty certain that they knew what the Rider College bound lefty was going to throw, they would shout a number for one location, a name for another.

Give Baker the unofficial Softball Coach of the Year right now.

Colonials take no prisoners

Completely unsatisfied with a share of the Blue Hen Conference Flight A crown with Glasgow, William Penn exploded for six runs against the 17-1 Dragons in the second inning of the first round tournament game and went on to win 7-0.

They made their claim to the conference championship, and rightly so, after the win.

Glasgow's only loss was to William Penn, and it was by the same 7-0 score.

The Colonials took the lead in the second when Kristen Lentelle was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded and no outs. Two ground-outs scored the next two runs, and then the heart of the order, Melissa Zebley, Erica LaBar and Michelle Whalen produced the next three.

Starting Colonial pitcher Kim Camponelli didn't strike out anyone and only walked two to pick up the four-hit win.

Whalen said, "Going into the game, we truly felt that we were playing, not only for a berth to the second round, but for a flight A championship. As long as we could keep our bats moving, like in our first meeting, we were certain we would cruise to victory."

Not through winning, the Colonials moved on and knocked off St. Mark's, the number one seed.

St. Mark's tops Glasgow in first round baseball

By JOE BACKER

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Defending State Champion St. Mark's needed some timely hitting on a miserable, rainy day to fend off a determined Glasgow High 5-2 Saturday afternoon in the first round of the State High School Baseball Tournament.

The Spartans starting pitcher, left-handed Mark Romanczuk, struck out 13 batters and surrendered only three hits en route to the complete game victory.

St. Mark's Head Coach Matt Smith had high praise for Romanczuk, who pitched in his first-ever tournament game. "Mark struggled early in the game, but managed to settle down and get stronger during the game. He did an excellent job in the later innings," said Smith.

Romanczuk, only a sophomore, outdueled the Dragon's top pitcher, Alan Haupt, for his sixth victory of the season against two defeats. Haupt finished his senior season with a 5-2 record.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

KATHERINE BUSHEY - ST. MARK'S

The Spartan sophomore tennis star Katherine Bushey is this week's Athlete of the Week for capturing the state number one single's tennis championship for the second year in a row.

Bushey once again needed to beat Tower Hill's Wallis Molchen, the 1998 single's champion, in the final.

The first four times Bushey played Molchen in her career ended in defeat. The first time Bushey came through against the stronger and older player was in the final last year.

After improving her strength and her stamina since the 1999 season, Bushey was undefeated and mowed through the state's competition this year as if there wasn't any competition.

She beat Molchen in the finals this year 6-3, 6-0. The three game losses in the first set were the most any opponent had managed to win against her all year.

Bushey just finished beating Molchen in a dual meet against Tower Hill in the previous week. Her deceptive quickness and consistent return play clearly frustrated a player who nobody else in the state can beat at this level of play.

Bushey, who wears a long pony tail threaded out through the back of her hat, helped her St. Mark's team to a third place finish overall. Her whole team rushed the court to congratulate her after the win.

The champ said, "That's the best part of this win, having it be celebrated as a team victory."

Iron Hill placed fourth behind such venerable fine dining restaurants as The Green Room, Harry's Savoy Grill and the Columbus Inn in the "Best of New Castle County" category.

Ginzberg named UD business dean

Michael J. Ginzberg, a professor and associate dean at the Weatherhead School of Management at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, was named dean of the University of Delaware's College of Business and Economics.

According to University Provost Mel Schiavelli, Ginzberg also will be Chaplin Tyler Professor of Business.

Schiavelli thanked Ken Biederman for stepping in and serving as interim dean after the death of Dana J. Johnson, who served as dean from 1996-99. "Ken's former experience as dean ensured a steady course for the college during the difficult period after Dana's death," Schiavelli said.

Ginzberg, 52, said the job attracted him because of the potential for growth, particularly in his primary fields of interest: international programs and information technology. "There are opportunities within the college, the University and the business community to build the college, and that's exactly what I want to do," he said. "I'm really quite excited about the opportunities."

Ginzberg joined the Weatherhead School faculty in 1985 as head of its management information and decision systems division and established the MIDS Department the next year.

The department faculty was awarded numerous research grants, including large grants from the National Science Foundation and Digital Equipment Corp. Today, it is considered one of the top information systems research departments, focusing on behavioral and organizational issues.

Ginzberg also worked to establish the Center for Management of Science and Technology, an interdisciplinary center for research and teaching, at the Weatherhead School.

The Weatherhead School also established exchange programs with business schools in several European nations, as well as in Israel, Mexico, Costa Rica, Australia and the Philippines. The school also offers short-term study tours in Europe, Asia and Africa. Ginzberg helped set up collaborative programs with schools in Hungary and Japan and worked to develop educational alliances with other institutions in Asia and Latin America.

Ginzberg led the school's effort to redesign its MBA programs, including the introduction of a new full-time program, a new core for the accelerated program and a revised part-time program. In 1997, he received the school's Theodore M. Alfred Distinguished Service Award.

Ginzberg earned his doctorate in management in 1975 from the Alfred P. Sloan School of Management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The author of more than 45 articles and books on information systems development, he has held leadership positions in various professional organizations, including two terms as chairperson of the executive committee of the International Conference on Information Systems.

The College of Business and Economics is UD's third largest, with 1,900 undergraduate and 600 graduate and executive program students.

Agway and Southern States announce retail relationship

The new product distribution and marketing system is expected to be in place by July. Terms were not disclosed.
