FATAL ILLNESS TAKES CLIFFORD WILSON TUESDAY

Former Fire Chief and Councilman Dies Quietly At His Summer Home; Had Long Record Of Valuable Public Service To Town

FUNERAL TOMORROW

After a long period of failing health, death came quietly to E. Clifford Wilson, on Tuesday morning, at his summer cottage at Charlestown, Maryland. Funeral services will be held at his late home on Main street, Newark, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, advanced time. The Reverend Everett Hallman will conduct the service. Burial will be in the Head Christians Cemetery. Mr. Wilson was born July 18, 1873, and would have celebrated his 56th birthday one week from today.

Mr. Wilson was born in Wilmington, where his father, the late Jordan Wilson, had an undertaking establishment. He learned the undertaking business in his father's establishment and thirty years ago came to Newark, where he took over the undertaking business of his grandfather, the late Edward Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, a man of unusual energy and public spirit, entered heartily into civic affairs, and his influence felt not only in Newark, but throughout the whole state. He was the father of the firemen's carnival idea to raise money for fighting equipment, and to a great extent it is due to his personal efforts that the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company, of Newark, has its present excellent equipment and building. Other fire companies throughout the state owe much to Mr. Wilson for his ideas, which they have followed successfully.

In 1911, Mr. Wilson was elected chief of the local fire company, about the time that motorized fire apparatus was being installed in large cities. He

FIRE BURNS BARN

On Monday night fire destroyed the barn on the farm of Joseph Mills, near Milford Cross Roads. As five loads of new hay had been placed in the barn on the day of the fire it is thought that it was caused by spontaneous combustion. The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company responded, but nothing could be done to save the building. The Christiana Fire Company also responded.

Mr. Mills was in the adjoining house asleep when the blaze started. The fire was inside the barn and had gained great headway before it was discovered. All the contents of the barn, including farm machinery and some chickens, were destroyed. The loss was estimated at near $3,000, part of which was covered by insurance.

WILL STOP CAR S NOT INSPECTED

State Police Will Examine Cars Which Do Not Bear Certificate Of Safety; Drivers Of Faulty Machines Will Be Prosecuted.

While the state-wide Save-A-Life Campaign of inspection of the safety devices on motor vehicles, sponsored by the Delaware Safety Council, is not a legally compulsory affair, it has been made practically so by the State Highway Department. After the close of the month's campaign, July 15, any car that does not bear the official certificate of safety, will be stopped by State Highway Police and inspected on the spot. If any of the safety devices on the car do not comply with the laws regulating them, the owner of the car will be prosecuted.

Through its campaign, the Delaware Safety Council has made it possible for every car owner in Delaware to have his automobile or truck inspected free of charge. Garages and service stations in every community in the state have been acting as inspection stations and inspecting cars. The response so far has been gratifying to the officials conducting the campaign, but Superintendent Reynolds, of the State Highway Police, has pointed out that with only a few days of the campaign left, many Delaware cars have not as yet been presented for inspection.

Mr. Reynolds issued orders Monday to all State Highway policemen to stop all automobiles after July 15 that are not displaying the sticker. "It is hoped that this will not be necessary, but we mean business," said Captain Reynolds, "and we are after those people who do not pay any attention to their own safety as well as to the safety of the other people using our highways."

"This is the last warning to those people who have not submitted to the free inspection of their motor vehicles. Two hundred and fifty-seven official stations are appointed who will give a free inspection to every motorist, and no excuses will be accepted after July 15 from those who have not seen fit to rally to this most worthy cause of trying to make our highways a safe place to travel."

Up to Monday of this week the following statistics had been compiled: Brakes O. K., 14,563; adjusted, 3,805; relined, 1,311; lights O. K., 11,862; adjusted, 7,225; replaced, 560; horns O. K., 19,032; adjusted, 557; replaced, 90; steering O. K., 18,934; adjusted, 512; repaired, 233; mirrors O. K., 19,170; adjusted, 334; replaced, 175; windshield wiper O. K., 18,318; adjusted, 677; installed, 684; license tags O. K., 19,168; corroded, 511; clearance lights O. K., trucks only, 13.

MAKE LISTS FOR SCHOOL BUSES

Pupils Requiring Transportation Must File Applications Before August 1

The office of the Newark Public Schools is now working on the transportation lists to be submitted to the State Board of Education so that contracts can be made to provide bus transportation for pupils in outlying districts. It is urgently requested that pupils, who will need state furnished transportation during the coming year, make application at once at the school offices in the new building so that the lists can be completed. Delinquency in filing application may mean that transportation will be refused those who delay in filing applications.

Last year the Newark Schools furnished bus transports to approximately 200 pupils in 17 districts surrounding the Newark Special District. These pupils attend grades 7 to 12. In addition, Newark transports all children in District 36, which is a closed district. Approximately 30 pupils received compensation for private transportation. All transportation is paid by the state out of a special appropriation for this purpose. A special appropriation is also made to and administered by the Newark Schools for transportation of colored pupils from Newark to the Howard High School, Wilmington.

Transportation is granted all pupils in grades 1 to 6 in all districts, whose homes are two miles or more from the school, and to all pupils in grades 7 to 12, whose homes are more than three miles from the school. The state carries $10,000 in insurance on each child who is transported in a bus.

It is estimated that the number of pupils requiring transportation for the coming year will be in excess of last year, and that an additional bus will be needed. However, to date only enough pupils have applied to fill one bus. Last year three buses were used on the two routes. The State Board is planning to make the bus contracts by the first of August, and it is essential that all application for transportation be filed before that date. Blanks are available at the school office and the staff will assist in filling the blanks out.

59 COWS REACH 1000-LB. CLASS

New Castle County Association Herds Show Fine Averages

Fifty-nine cows produced over 1,000 pounds of milk during June in the New Castle County Cow Testing Association according to the monthly summary recently reported by Mr. Alois Leinen, tester for the 21 farmers of the organization. The highest cow for the month gave 1791 lbs. of milk testing 3.9 per cent, making 69.84 lbs. of butterfat. This cow is in the Holly Hall Farm herd of Elkton, Maryland. This report was submitted in a statement prepared by County Agent Ed. Willm, Jr., of Newark.

Nine cows produced over 50 lbs. of butterfat during the testing period of June. Two of these were registered Jerseys testing 6 per cent and 6.7 per cent respectively, and owned by J. Howard Mitchell and Sons of Hockessin. During May the Mitchell herd led the Association with a herd average of 34.6 lbs. butterfat per cow. Their herd during June averaged 28.4 lbs. butterfat, putting them in third place with the Holstein herd owned by Wallace Cook of Newark leading with 29.7 lbs. butterfat per cow. Mr. Cook has seven animals in his herd while the Mitchell herd has 33 animals in it.

Mr. Leinen presents the association totals in the following statements. Twenty-one herds, 398 cows, 37 dry cows, 249,381 lbs. of milk during month, 9566.6 lbs. butterfat, $10,283.02 value of product, 66,190 lbs. grain fed, $798.00 cost of roughage (pasture) $1,560.15 cost of grain, $2,358.18 total cost of feed, $8,040.54 value of product above cost of feed.

The average cow in the association produced 627 lbs. of milk and 24.3 lbs. butterfat. Her milk was valued at $25.84 with $5.92 the cost of feed, making the value of her product above feed cost, $20.20. For every $1.00 expended for feed she returned $4.36 in the value of her product sold. Each pound of butterfat was produced at an average cost of 24c while 55c was the feed cost per 100 lbs. of milk.

Seventeen of the 21 dairymen in the association had one or more cows

BOYS DRUNK ON BOOTLEG LIQUOR

Mike Smith, Aged 16, Fined $200 For Driving While Intoxicated

Mike Smith, aged 16, was arraigned in Magistrate Thompson's court, this morning, charged with driving a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was fined $200 on the charge. The fine was paid by his father, John Smith.

The boy was arrested on South Academy street, about midnight, last night, by Town Officer Cunningham, after complaints had been made that drunks were fighting in the vicinity of Park Place and Orchard Road. Cunningham found two boys on Park Place, and a gallon jug of alleged liquor under a tree on the front lawn of Dr. Thomas F. Mann's residence. Persons in the neighborhood said that they had seen the boys play the liquor under the tree. The two boys picked up on Park Place were Harry Moore, aged 19, and Harvey Moore, aged 17, cousins. They told Officer Cunningham where Smith and his car could be found. Cunningham trailed the car and found Smith on Academy street. With him was John Moore, a brother of Harry. Harry and Harvey showed no evidence of having had anything to drink, but John Moore and Mike Smith were intoxicated. Smith was taken to a physician and pronounced drunk.

In court this morning the boys admitted that the liquor had been stolen from a bootlegger on Elkton Road. John Moore was charged with being drunk and disorderly and released on payment of a fine of $10. No charges were made against the other two boys.

The mother of two of the Moore boys was in court and stated that bootleggers on Elkton Road, just over the Maryland line, had been giving drinks to the boys. She stated that she had reported the matter to the prohibition authorities to stop the practice of selling and giving liquor to youths of that age, but that nothing had been done about it.

Christian Science Churches

"God" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 7. Golden Text: "Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion; and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O thou that hearest prayer unto thee shall all flesh come." (Psalms 65, 7, 2.)

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord. And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy might." (Deuteronomy 6: 4, 5.)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God, the great I Am; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Prin-

Services during July, in the Presbyterian Church, will be held at seven-thirty p. m., standard time, instead of in the afternoon, as heretofore.

Rev. Disston W. Jacobs, district superintendent of the Wilmington district, will preach in the Christiana M. E. Church this coming Sunday, July 14, at eleven o'clock a. m., and at Salem M. E. Church at two-thirty p. m., standard time.

The Christiana Improvement Association will have a picnic at Deemer Beach on the afternoon of Saturday, August 3. The association is eleven years old, and it has been the custom to have an anniversary celebration each year, until last year, when a picnic was held at Deemer's instead. This was so much enjoyed by everyone that it was decided to hold another one this year, on the above date.

The Firemen's Carnival closed last Saturday evening, after a two weeks' session. Due to bad weather and various other hindrances the Carnival was not quite so successful as it has been in other years, but still a goodly sum was netted for the treasury. The Chevrolet coach was awarded to Henry Mitchell, a Newport youth, while H. T. Hart, of Chester, won the radio. Mr. John W. Moore was chairman of the committee in charge of the Carnival, and much of the success of the affair was due to his untiring efforts.

In spite of the warm weather, the school orchestra, organized during the past year by Mrs. Ethel M. Hill, teacher of the upper room in the public school, is keeping up its practice. The boys and girls meet each week to receive instruction from Messrs. Barker, Chalmers and Mayer, all of Newark.

The firemen were called out late Monday evening for the fire which destroyed the barn on the Mills farm, at Milford Crossroads. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy were not injured, but Mrs. Taylor received severe cuts on the head and arms, besides being painfully bruised and shaken up. She is improving rapidly now, however, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Moore, and is under the care of Dr. Merritt Burke, of Newark.

JULY 11, 1929

E. C. Wilson

This week we sadly record the passing of another devoted servant of the community. Last Tuesday morning, E. Clifford Wilson quietly slipped from this life at his summer cottage, where he had gone to fight an illness which had been weakening him for several years. Clifford Wilson has passed, but he leaves monuments in this town, that but few of us realized he was building. The Aetna Fire House and its splendid equipment and apparatus are monuments to his name, for his brain, initiative and courage made them possible. The profitable Town of Newark light, power and water enterprises were built almost wholly by his personal effort. This last monument is etched with his very life blood, for he had punished himself cruelly the last few years of his life to give his immense service, gratis, to the town. This effort, which brought on frequent physical collapses, undoubtedly shortened his span of life.

Clifford Wilson came here thirty years ago to enter business. Almost immediately he showed his intense interest in civic affairs, and since then he has shared his time, and strength and energy with the town. As chief of the Aetna Fire Company, he conceived the idea of a carnival to raise funds for equipment and maintenance. He not only conceived the idea but put it into such successful execution, that the Aetna Company has since then been far in advance of any other volunteer company in the state in fire fighting service.

In 1911 Mr. Wilson was elected to the Council of Newark, and served on that body up to April of this year. He took the power, light and water departments, as puny, struggling enterprises, and made them so profitable that large public utility corporations have been for years trying to gain control of them. Mr. Wilson fought these interests and fought them successfully. He out-matched them in vision and business generalship and made contracts that have always been to the advantage of the town. His work as chairman of the power and water committee, in itself, was a life work for a big man, but it was only a part of Clifford Wilson's service to this town.

Clifford Wilson's work was done quietly. He built largely, substantially and lastingly, but in such a manner, that few realized the size and permanence of the work that he was doing. He refused to quit, even on the entreaties of his friends, fearing for his health, until he was satisfied that his task had been brought to the point where it would carry on automatically. He then stepped quietly from public life, where he had spent almost the last ounce of his physical strength, and lived the life of a private citizen but a few short months.

The Claim of Cooch's Bridge

It seems that the press story published in June, relative to the first unfurling of the Stars and Stripes in battle, was over-enthusiastic in favor of Cooch's Bridge. In view of the fact that the Fort Stanwix claim as the place where that historic event occurred had been broadcast and never publicly refuted, we, who believe in Cooch's Bridge, may be excused for feeling that a happy balance had been struck.

But it is not the wish of the Cooch family or of this community to encourage dramatic propaganda. The basis of the recently published articles seems to be a letter which was sent from the War Department to Thomas F. Bayard during his term as United States Senator (not to Senator Townsend, as the article stated.) In that letter, the Fort Stanwix claim was definitely refuted, but no positive declaration was made concerning the validity of the claim of Cooch's Bridge.

However, a challenge to the latter seems definitely to be lacking. We hope that the occasional outbursts in public print will have the effect of bringing to light positive evidence which will silence all those who doubt.

59 COWS REACH 1000-LB. CASS

giving over 1,000 lbs. of milk during June, while seven had cows with 50 lbs. or over of butterfat. The six highest butterfat producing cows were as follows: 1st, R. M. Fontaine, Holly Hall, Farm, Elkton, Md.; Pure Bred Holstein, 69.84 lbs. fat with 3.9 per cent test; 2nd, Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, Grade Jersey, 59.29 lbs. fat, 5.9 per cent test; 3rd, J. H. Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, Pure Bred Jersey, 58.32 lbs. fat with 6 per cent test; 4th, Brookwood Farm, Greenville, P. B. Holstein, 57.12 lbs. with 3.3 per cent test; 5th, J. H. Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, P. B. Jersey, 56.68 lbs. with 6.7 per cent test, and 6th, R. M. Fontaine, P. B. Guernsey, 55.75 lbs. with 4.5 per cent test.

Three of the six highest average butterfat producing herds were Holsteins. Two were Jersey herds owned by J. H. Mitchell, Hockessin, and Wilson Price, Porter, and one the mixed herd of Pusey Passmore, Wilmington.

The six highest average butterfat producing herds were: 1st, Wallace Cook, Newark, 29.6 lbs. butterfat; 2nd, Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, 28.5 lbs. butterfat; 3rd, J. Howard Mitchell and Sons, Hockessin, 28.4 lbs. butterfat; 4th, Wilson Price, Porter, 28.2 lbs. butter; 5th, Brookwood Farm, Greenville, 27.9 lbs. butterfat; 6th, Thos. H. VanSant, Newark, 26.7 lbs. butterfat.

Holstein herds were the highest milk producing herds for the month, according to the County Agent's summary. The six highest herds in milk production were: Brookwood Farm, Greenville, 917 lbs. milk; Thos. H.

VanSant, Newark, 832 lbs.; B. V. Armstrong, Middletown, 772 lbs.; Wallace Cook, Newark, 762 lbs.; T. Harold Little, Newark, 723 lbs., and Pusey Passmore, Wilmington, 716 lbs. milk.

Mr. Willim believes that the association is doing a good piece of work among the county dairymen, and that any one who wants to intelligently breed up his herd should belong to such an organization. He says that there will be room in the organization for a few more dairymen on October 1st, and if any are interested he wishes they would get in touch with him at once.

POSTAL DIARY OF 1698

A postal diary dated 1698 has just been found in a vault at the Royal Palace of Stockholm. It reveals the system of mailing then used. Stamps were not yet thought of and letters and packages were weighed at the post office and the charges paid in cash. Mail to other parts of Sweden and the outside world was sent from Stockholm twice a week.

FIRST POET LAUREATE

The first poet laureate of England was John Kay, who was appointed to that position by Edward IV, according to Arvine's Encyclopedia. The only composition that Kay left to posterity is a prose English translation of a Latin history of the siege of Rhodes. In the title, addressed to King Edward, Kay styled himself "hys humble poete laureate."

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy, floral offerings and use of automobiles, at the time of the death of my wife, Katharine E. Davis.—John L. Davis.

40 MILES OF WATER TUNNELS

There are sugar plantations on Kauai, Oahu and Maui, in the Pacific, with 40 miles of tunnels and ditches to carry life-giving water, and a famous aqueduct on Oahu taps four valleys and traverses a tunnel 14,443 feet long. One plantation uses more water than the city of San Francisco, says Nature Magazine. Thousands of artesian wells dot the countryside. In 1926, about 776,000 tons of sugar worth $65,000,000 were raised on the 6,449 square miles that comprise this daub of water-surrounded land. The pineapple crop brings a revenue of nearly $35,000,000 annually.

AS TO SHOOTING STARS

Meteorites differ greatly from meteors or shooting stars in many respects, possibly even in their origin. Meteor swarms are known, says Nature Magazine, to be the debris of disintegrating comets, following the same orbits. Meteorites or fireballs rarely appear in connection with swarms of meteors, though they occasionally appear in groups and many individual meteoric stones or irons often have been found in a single fall. In some instances their appearance is accompanied by loud detonations or a series of sharp reports, like that of artillery, or again the stone may burst into fragments with a sharp explosion.

GIVE TULIPS LITTLE REST

Tulips should be dug and replanted every other year, says Bulletin 31 of the American Nature Association of Washington, which you can have free. If solid beds are wanted, it is best to use new bulbs each year, as some of the old ones always fail to bloom. However, the old ones will bloom after a year's rest and may be placed in a border where evenness of bloom is not required.

The visiting firemen. During the meeting, the death of E. C. Wilson, of Newark, was announced, and a period of silence was observed out of respect for the deceased member.

The parade this afternoon is in five divisions, with William H. Todd, millionaire shipbuilder of Brooklyn, and a former volunteer fireman of Wilmington, as grand marshal. The companies will compete for $1500 in cash prizes and loving cups donated by Governor Buck, Mr. Todd and Mayor Forrest, of Wilmington. Aetna expects to cop the prize offered for the best equipped volunteer company.

The parade will be reviewed by Governor Buck, Ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and other officials. Following the parade there will be a banquet at the German Hall, given by the Wilmington Volunteer Firemen's Relief Association. Governor Buck and Ex-Governor Smith will be speakers at this banquet.

saw the need of motorized fire fighting equipment for the country, and put his mind to work to find a way to secure the money to buy it for Newark. He broached the carnival idea, and the first carnival was held the following year. Another carnival in 1913 netted the company enough money to buy a motor fire engine, and Mr. Wilson was appointed to make the purchase. He bought a triple combination engine, which was the first motorized piece of fire apparatus in Delaware outside of Wilmington.

In 1922 the Aetna Company had grown wealthy enough through its carnivals to consider Mr. Wilson's suggestion of a new fire house, and he was appointed chairman of a building committee to erect the present finely equipped fire house. It

HOW PEONY GOT NAME

In the days of the Greek gods and goddesses, the peony first came to the world's attention. Leto, Apollo's mother, was the one to introduce it, says Bulletin 38 which Nature Magazine of Washington will send you free. Apollo was known as the god of healing and his son, Aesculapius, was the god of medicine.

It seems that a pupil of Aesculapius named Paeon was the physician of the gods, and to him Leto first gave the plant, which he employed to cure Pluto of a wound received at the hands of Hercules during the Trojan War.

The fact that his pupil could surpass him in effecting such a cure made Aesculapius angry, with the result he attempted to kill Paeon, but Pluto, indebted to Paeon for his own life, rescued the physician of Mount Olympus from death by changing him into the plant that had saved his life. Until this day that plant bears Paeon's name and is known to us as the peony.

The history of the peony in China and Japan is of a sentimental nature. Fittingly enough, the words "Sho Yo," meaning "Most Beautiful," were applied to the herbaceous peony, while the tree peony held sway as the "King of Flowers."

The Poor Richest Nation In the World

By J. L. Oberwager, U. S. Engineer

Mr. J. L. Oberwager, the United States Government engineer in charge of the construction of the new Federal postoffice building in Newark, has written the following article on the Osage Indian Nation for The Newark Post, as a subject of timely interest in view of the policies announced by Charles J. Rhoades, of Philadelphia, who has recently been appointed United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs. Mr. Oberwager has served the United States on several of its Indian reservations. He spent two years as construction engineer on the Osage Indian Reservation, and is one of the few white men who have gained the full confidence of the tribe. Mr. Oberwager, who has a thoroughgoing knowledge of the nature and the psychology of the Indian, takes issue with Mr. Rhoades' theory that the Indian should be weaned from government guardianship. Mr. Oberwager uses the wealthy Osage Nation as an example of the necessity of continued and rigid government supervision of the affairs of the Indian as a tribe and as an individual.—Editor.

On April 1, 1923, I was detailed to Oklahoma to supervise government construction work under the control of the Department of the Interior. As I had read a special article in the New York Evening World about the blackest chapter in the history of White Man's dealings with the richest tribe of Indians, I welcomed the opportunity to get first hand information of the sordid story that has been written in blood in Osage County, Oklahoma.

The Author—Taken on the Osage Reservation

In the early part of 1922, seventeen members of the tribe of Osage Indians had bitten the dust for no other reason than that when the White Man wants what he wants, he generally gets it.

The Osages came to Oklahoma in the "eighties" from Kansas. This tribe has since melted fast. The Reservation given them by the United States Government is the northeastern part of Oklahoma. The land is hilly and with but little inducement for agriculture, and practically no industry. They lived their easy, simple life, secluded; they were then poor but happy and contented. Today they are rich and miserable.

In 1912 and 1913 the discovery of oil made the Osages, almost overnight, the richest nation in the world. The mineral is leased for the fabulous sums of from one to two and one-half million dollars per allotment parcel, which is one hundred and sixty acres. The royalty from the oil is the sixth barrel produced. The market price for raw oil from the ground ranges from $1.75 to $2.25 per barrel. Hundreds of thousands of derricks were erected and oil flows day and night. Unable to manage their wealth and unaccustomed to riches, they fell prey to a lot of unscrupulous tricksters.

Pawhuska is the Capital of the Osage Nation, a town then less than five thousand in population and now double that number. Private people were then custodians of the Indians. Their duty was to take care of their ward's interests and manage for them their affairs. Today the Indians are legal wards of the United States Government and under the direct supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, who appoints a Commissioner of Indian Affairs for the administration.

Inter-marriage was on the daily program. White men who were too lazy to work came from every part of the country and married women of the Osage Nation, not for love but to participate in their wealth. Pot-Lickers, as they are generally called, became bold and abusive. They fed the Indians poison, bad whiskey flew in, in big quantities although a rigid law passed prohibiting the delivery of Fire Water for Indians.

This slow process of getting rid of the wealthy Indians did not satisfy the scoundrels. An organized band of diabolical and ruthless murderers sprung up. W. K. Hale, a wealthy ranchman of Fairfax, Oklahoma, and known as "The King of the Osage Hills," was credited as the master mind of the plot for the murders on a large scale. (He and his associates were tried in Federal Courts and convicted.)

The wholesale murder began with the killing of Anna Brown, a wealthy aquaw of the tribe. She was shot in the head from behind and found dead in the outskirts of Fairfax. A few weeks later Henry Roan, a relative of Anna Brown was also killed in the same manner. Charles Whitthorn, another relative of Anna Brown, was the third victim. He was shot and found dead in the outskirts of Pawhuska. The killings were not only by means of shot guns or pistols, but they took to poisoning, dynamiting, etc.

George Bigheart became ill one day and was taken to a hospital. With him was Hale and his nephew, Burkhard, Anna Brown's brother-in-law. Bigheart was poisoned, but before he died he consulted his lawyer, Mr. Vaughn, who was found next day beside the railroad tracks. He knew too much Upon my arrival at the Osage Reservation, I found that the building activity suffered because of lack of efficient employees. There was only one man, named Wm. Groth, and he was too slow to catch cold. In reorganizing this department, the Government assigned employees, such as construction foremen, draftsmen, and office help and as we changed in the Administration Building to more appropriate quarters the construction work began rapidly to function and the appropriated money of approximately two and one-half million dollars for buildings, highways, gas, electric and telephone lines was quickly used up. Marked improvement was visible, everybody profited by the busiest period in the history of construction work.

I gained the confidence of the Department as well as of the Indians. My curiosity was aroused and I took advantage of all opportunities to get acquainted with all the rites and ceremonies of the Indians. I was named after one of their patrons, Ochwachwa, which means lightning, and I enjoyed more privileges than any other white man in the government service.

The Government did not approve of spending money in building Indian churches which are known as the Round House. In July, 1922, the aged Mi-Ki-Wah-Ti-An-Kah called at my office asking me to intervene for his Round House where he held periodical meetings. The building was condemned and yet, in spite of the danger to enter this old structure, they assembled regularly. To get around this law, I had recommended to the Department that he be permitted a certain amount of money to repair and remodel his residence on his allotment, and all other outbuildings; among others was his old church. This old church was then converted into a splendid new one. When I suggested to build the church in a more modern way, he insisted that this church be built in one continuous circle. The reason for that he stated was that while worshipping the Great Spirit, the Devil cannot corner them.

One of their ceremonies begins Saturday with sunset and lasts all night and until Sunday sunset. During this period they take no other food but Piattote in a liquid form. Piattote is a vegetable that grows in Mexico and is smuggled in by the Indians, cut up, dried, and boiled. It produces a narcotic effect in a mild form and causes the user to vomit it thereby purifying their system.

Marriage ceremonies are still conducted in their old Indian style. The couple to be married must obtain a certificate in accordance with the law before proceedings with the Indian wedding, which is usually held in the Indian village. Most expensive blankets are spread on the grass for the feast which is partaken of from the ground. The bride is led by her bridesmaids who begin to undress her of her many dresses that she wears, all of which are given to her friends. On one occasion I had counted eleven dresses taken off her body and yet she was not left nude; eight pair of stockings taken off her feet and distributed among those that are entitled to receive these gifts. The groom gives ponies, saddles, cattle, etc. Fancy dishes are then served, not in the manner of the olden style barbeque.

A NAPOLEONIC TREASURE

The romance of recovering sunken treasure is again being enacted off the coast of Elba, where a ship, after a century at the bottom of the sea, is being salvaged. One hundred and twenty years ago the Polluce left Naples for Spain, her cargo consisting mainly of valuable and treasures belonging to Ferdinand IV, who had been deposed by Napoleon. Orders had been given the captain of the Polluce to stick closely to the shore of Elba in case of interference by the French.

The wealth of the Osages seems really to be a curse to them. They are suffering morally, and bodily. They are now visiting physicians, accepting their medical aid and hospital treatments. They no more take the advice of their Medicine Man, who used to play an important part in the tribe. In one instance He-Ni-Op-Pe, known as John Stink, took sick. He grew worse from day to day and the Medicine Man was consulted. While in a coma he was pronounced dead by the Medicine Man who had said the last words and consigned him to the Great Spirit. He was then taken outside the Indian village and left to die and the mourners were hired. The hired mourners have one whole year in which to mourn for the Departed to the happy hunting grounds.) By some miracle John Stink survived. He could not return to the Indian village, however, because to them he was dead, the greatest Medicine Man had pronounced him so, and so he was in the eyes of the tribe. No Indian would have anything to do with him. John built himself a little hut on his allotment and began gathering dogs, as he had a passion for animals, and lived his simple life happily. Once in a while John went to the town to buy food for himself and for his dogs. One day he started on a two mile walk to Pawhuska, his dogs running about him. A mad-dog scare had broken out in town and constables had been ordered to kill all dogs running around the streets. As John Stink was spied with his dogs, the officer's pistol began popping. The Indian begged him not to harm his pets and he would take them back to the country but the only reply was a popping pistol, John Stink, now curing the white men, started back to his little cabin. Since then he has hated the white man. He now lives in solitude, speaking to no one, accepting no visitors. He is known as the Hermit of the Osage Indians. This lonesome, poor, rich man with an income of many thousands of dollars has a guardian who visits him occasionally and brings food and smoking tobacco for him and he is the only person that John will permit near his hut.

A SPEECH ON THE ART OF SPEECH

Lord Chief Justice Hewart's presidential address at the annual meeting of the English Association is called "Modern Oratory." A half or more of it deals with the Greeks and Romans, who cultivated "rhetoric" and "oratory," words that have almost come to have a derogatory sense among the gifted moderns, as one of the finest of fine arts requiring years of study and discipline. If one gets a little tired of the billingsgate of admired ancients like Demosthenes and Eschines, one may choose to admire the great age of the Sophists, in the second and third centuries. The Emperor Gallienus thought of building a city of philosophers in Campania. In the prime of the Sophists the Roman Empire was an empire of their rivals, professors.

They were ambassadors, social chiefs, plutocrats. They were trained scholars, admirable actors, often stately of presence and entrancing of voice. It was not their fault that they lived in a period of political decline. Could Lord Hewart make King George V weep as "the divine Aristides" did Marcus Aurelius? Rhetoric is the art of persuasion, the art of speech for a particular purpose, which may be entirely dishonest. Lord Hewart praises Cicero's plea for Cluentius. The latter, a gentleman suspected of jury-fixing in a previous trial, was acquitted. His counsel bragged that he had pulled the wool over the eyes of the jury. So the old rhetoric, deliberative or forensic, was not essentially different from ours, except that it was more polite. The old was prepared in what Cicero called an "oratorical laboratory." It is the modern affectation, Lord Hewart says, to scorn the set speech, to hide the labor of preparation, to maintain "the illusion of the extempore."

Except in the case of a public man suddenly attacked or surprised in debate or any orator perforce called upon without expectation or in spite of promise to the contrary at a public dinner or other occasion, a speech is usually prepared. The extemporal address looks more direct, simpler, but it is usually an artifice. The happier speakers have at least drawn the skeleton. They trust in their skill to fill it out. In a sense, Lord Hewart may be said to have been preparing this address ever since his school days. He is for plain speech, as a judge and a follower of the House of Commons manner would be. He quotes with approval Jebb's assertion that "the broadest characteristic of modern oratory, as compared with ancient, is the predominance of the sustained appeal to the understanding."

There may be a good many Nos to that motion. If only a sixth of the content of Cicero's speeches is really relevant, that is more than we should have supposed. The Lord Chief Justice ought to spend a week in the United States Senate. Unfortunately, Mr. Gladstone is the last "modern orator" whom he mentions. He admits the complexity, obscurity and verbosity of the moderns. Some of these faults are intentional:

The hearer or reader of many an oratorical performance finds himself asking: What has the speaker in substance said? In the case of a politician, especially of a Minister of the Crown, the obscurity may sometimes be studied. It would be easy, though it would be impious, to give instances. Who was it who said that a politician is never so obscure as when he assures his audience that he is taking them into his confidence? And did not the same philosopher add that the confidences of a Minister are either an imposture or an infidelity?

It has long been the fashion to beate Mr. Gladstone's art of ambiguity. The younger Pitt, one of Lord Hewart's sheaf of orators, was perhaps of unequalled ingenuity in bedeviling and perplexing the House of Commons and the public when he needed the cryptic in his business. Lord Hewart properly exalts simplicity of diction, but Jeremy Taylor and Burke are hardly famous for it.—N. Y. Times.

A TOWN CALLS BACK ITS PAST

For one day each year the picturesque life of Colonial times is recaptured in the quaint old town of New Castle on the Delaware. The narrow streets are once more populous with ladies in the brilliant silks of another century; with men in silk coats and periwigs; with children who seem to have stepped out of old prints; and with soldiers in Colonial uniforms of buff and blue. A score of the stately old Colonial homes and gardens are thrown open for the day, so that the public, on entering, steps back a century and more.

Perhaps no stage setting, however skillfully contrived, could reproduce so faithfully the atmosphere of the Colonial period. A score of the old homes are veritable museums. Every bit of the furniture—the old portraits and prints and silverware—seems to have been cherished for half a dozen generations.

It was here that William Penn first landed on October 28, 1682. A tablet marks the spot, recording that he received "the key to the fort, and the twig, turf and water as symbols of possession." The quaint old Court House erected the year before his arrival still stands.

Nowhere else in the country, perhaps, can be found so many houses of the Colonial period, so rich in historic associations and so little disturbed. In the Old American House, built in 1789, a marble tablet before the fireplace indicates the place where Washington stood during a wedding ceremony. One of the most beautiful of the dwellings is that of the descendants of Rodney, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. This house contains manuscripts and letters of the Revolutionary period.

One of the great charms of the annual reception at New Castle is in the original costumes of the Colonial

The atmosphere of the past is retained with scrupulous care. The tables are set with old family silver, the kitchens are equipped with cooking utensils of another period. FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A KITCHEN CONVENIENCE

Now that the number of cans of food consumed in the United States has jumped as ther billion, annually, it is more necessary than ever to know just how to handle the many kinds of food that come in this form. It's the simplest food in the world to handle, but one of the problems which the housewife runs up against is to know just what size can of any particular food to buy. If your recipe calls for two cups, for instance, of any particular food, you want to know what size of can contains nearest to that amount. The contents of most cans are stated in ounces in the label, and the sizes run by numbers, that's a help.

Here's the solution. Paste it up somewhere in your kitchen, and you'll find it a great convenience in planning your purchases of canned foods. The following table, based on tomatoes in all cases, gives the sizes of cans you ask for at the store, their net weight and their contents as measured by a standard eight-ounce measuring cup.

Can Size	Net Weight	Contents in Cups
No. 1	10 oz.	1 1/4
No. 2	1 lb 3 oz.	2 1/4
No. 2 1/2	1 lb 12 oz.	3 1/2
No. 3	2 lb 10 oz.	3 3/4 to 4
No. 5	3 lb 8 oz.	7
No. 10	6 lb 7 oz.	12 1/2

The use of this table will not only simplify your shopping, but enable you to buy more thriftily and have fewer left-overs. One good thing about left-over canned foods, however, is that they can always be combined with other foods in second day dishes, and they do not, therefore, represent waste. There are few other foods on the market, all of which can be used, except canned foods.

KEEP YOUR COFFEE RIGHT

Are you a coffee lover? Then nothing will replace that steaming cup of succulence with its tempting aroma with which you are accustomed to start each day. But are you going to get good coffee where you go this summer? You can, easily, if you'll observe only one simple rule.

There are lots of brands of good coffee on the market, but scientists have recently discovered that no coffee is good coffee if it is not fresh. It has been ascertained beyond the possibility of a doubt that from 65 per cent to 70 per cent of the coffee gas and an appreciable part of its aromatic oils disappear in the first twenty-four hours when freshly roasted coffee is exposed to oxygen. After that period it expels the gas most slowly, but in ten or twelve days it has lost all of its gas and a great part of the aromatic oils which constitute its flavor.

The only way in which fresh roasted coffee can be kept fresh and flavorful is by packing it in a container which is absolutely impervious to all climatic influences. This method of packing is known as the "vacuum process" and more and more coffee packers are adopting it. After the vacuum packed can has been opened, the coffee should be put into Mason jars and their covers screwed down tight on the rubber rings. It's just as simple as that, but it makes all the difference. Try it this summer, and you'll see.

GARNISH HINTS FOR

COLD MEAT DISH

Garnishes are important at all times but it is so easy in the summertime to dress up the serving dishes that this way of making our food more appetizing should not be overlooked.

Curley endive with its blended yellow and green leaves makes fascinating little nests for the molded meat salad or the tomato filled with sweet-bread salad.

Celery curls need not be alien to the home table—they are not hard to make, according to Inez S. Willson, home economics specialist. Cut the stalks into two or three inch pieces and gash many times almost to the end. Place in ice water and the ends will curl back.

Stuffed celery makes an attractive edible garnish for the meat platter. The stalks may be filled with a number of different fillings—cream cheese alone or in combination with crushed pineapple, minced green pepper, finely chopped pimiento, nut meats or olives. Roquefort cheese is a favorite for filling.

Radish roses are another attractive garnish. They are made by peeling the radish, which has been washed, in 1/4 inch strips from top to bottom, leaving the bottom end attached to the radish. Drop in ice water and the strips spring away a little like the petals of a rose.

Watercress with its dark green leaves is another garnish which should not be forgotten.

Slices of lemon, cut in fancy shapes and sprinkled with minced parsley, tomatoes, cut in slices or wedges, hard-cooked eggs and olives all have their place in the garnishing scheme.

It is only the work of a moment to draw parallel lines with the tines of a silver fork down the sides of a peeled cucumber, and it gives the edge a fluted appearance which is very pretty.

A FEW RULES ON CARE OF MEAT IN SUMMER

With the advent of summer the housewife should keep in mind a few simple precautions in caring for the family supply of meat, and particularly that which is purchased on Saturday to use over the week-end. The meat is in good condition when it arrives from the market and the housewife can maintain it in this condition if she will follow these few rules laid down by the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

As soon as the meat arrives home, it should be unwrapped and placed in a clean refrigerator. The reason is this: when the meat is wrapped up at the shop a certain amount of air is enclosed in the paper. This air is the same temperature as the air of the shop. If the paper is not removed the cold air of the refrigerator is prevented from reaching the meat. Consequently the surface of the meat spoils.

Meat, as well as every other food, should be protected from contamination.

After meat is cooked there is frequently a large piece left over and it sometimes happens that the housewife puts this into the refrigerator while it is still warm. This is not a good practice because the warm meat heats the air of the refrigerator so that other foods may be impaired, and also because a large piece of meat will often cool thoroughly on the surface but the inner portion may spoil because it does not become cool. Warm meat should be cooled at room temperature before putting it in the refrigerator.

SUMMER COOKING

The wise housewife takes advantage of the occasional cool day to cook a large piece of meat which she can use to prepare left-overs without the expenditure of much time or effort. The home economics department of the National Live Stock and Meat Board offers some timely suggestions on how these left-overs make summer meals easy.

Cooking a whole or a half ham provides meat dishes for several days. A roast of lamb, beef, veal, or pork may be utilized in any number of quickly prepared main dishes. A pot roast of beef or veal, or a beef or calf's tongue are other possibilities.

Meat salads are always acceptable as the piece de resistance of the summer meal. With them may be served one or two warm vegetable dishes, such as creamed potatoes, asparagus, peas, green corn.

Creamed meat dishes may be made ready and assembled just before serving time.

A mousse of ham or veal, molded in large or small molds, is nice for the company luncheon or informal dinner because it may be prepared early and forgotten about until time to serve. A well-seasoned sauce such as a horseradish sauce adds zest.

A simple, but a very attractive way of serving left-over meat is to slice it and arrange on a prettily garnished platter.

Tomatoes or green peppers may be filled with left-over meat and baked.

STUFFED PEPPERS

1/2 cup minced ham, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1 chopped onion, 1 chopped pimiento, 1/2 cup bread crumbs, 1/2 cup tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, green peppers.

Scoop out peppers. Drop in salted boiling water and boil for fifteen minutes. Cook diced celery in butter until tender. Mix with other ingredients and fill the pepper cups. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and place in a shallow pan containing a half inch of water. Bake in a hot oven for ten minutes.

MILKMAIDS ARE OBSOLETE

Milkmaids, those picturesque figures of prose and poetry, have vanished from our mundane scene. This is partly because men do the milking now, but mostly because the latest statistics reveal that more than a billion and a quarter pounds of evaporated milk were consumed in the United States last year.

To produce this quantity of milk 600,000 cows had to work, if you call it work, twenty-four hours a day for twelve months. At the present rate of increase in consumption virtually the entire cow population of the nation may be working for condenseries a few decades from now.

In the immaculate Government inspected dairies where not only evaporated, but condensed and dried milk are produced, men, as we have said, do the milking now, and the cow has become a pampered creature whose every physical want is promptly attended to. She is not only fed correctly, but groomed to perfection, and carefully kept in the best of health. The importance of correct feeding is due to the fact that the vitamin content of milk is directly affected by the amount of vitamins in the cow's diet, and dairymen are now feeding much more intelligently than in former years.

"While no food can be considered a perfect food," said R. Adams Dutcher, Head of the Department of Agricultural and Biological Chemistry of Pennsylvania State College, in a recent article, "milk in all its various marketable forms comes about as near to this ideal as we can hope to find in a single food product."

MAKE CHRISTMAS GIFTS IN THE SUMMER-TIME

Summer-time Christmas gifts—the very phrase sounds incongruous, doesn't it? Yet summer-time is the season during which the wise woman will make out her Christmas list and decide what gifts she is going to make and which she will buy. Then, during the long, hot months of summer, she can sit out on her shady porch and prepare the gifts at her leisure, in time when she would be doing nothing else of value.

With Trusty Lacquer

One class of gifts may be made with particular ease. Suppose you have heard Mrs. Roberts say she wanted a really good French paring knife. You price them and find that the type she wants come only with black handles. So the thing for you to do is to buy the black-handled knife, bring it home and use your trusty can of lacquer to give it an up-to-date appearance.

Knives can be purchased with unfinished handles and colored as you please. The handle of the bread knife is, of course, painted to match the other colors in the kitchen for which it is intended.

What could be a more welcome gift than a set of shoe trees? Or a combination set of shoe trees and coat-hangers all colored to match the guest-room fittings of one of your friends? Lacquer, again, is useful for these articles, since it dries quickly and is easy to handle. However, if you wish, enamel can be used in its place.

Then next winter, when all your friends are running around widely looking for Christmas gifts, won't you be glad you spent your summer leisure in such a forehanded manner?

SOAP HELPS IN SPRAYING

Effective for chewing insects is arsenate of lead, used in either dry or liquid form. Three teaspoons of the powder dissolved in one gallon of water gives a spray of sufficient strength. Plants that possess a glossy or waxy foliage are benefited by the addition of one ounce of soap to every gallon of spray says Nature Magazine. This addition aids in causing the liquid to adhere closely to the foliage. The same material may also be used in dust form when combined in the ratio of one ounce of powdered arsenate of lead to four and one-half ounces of hydrated or air-slaked lime and four ounces of superfine sulphur. Thorough coating of the foliage is essential to secure satisfactory results.

WHEN TO PLANT LAWN

When contemplating building a lawn, one of the most important things to be considered is the time to plant the seed, says Nature Magazine of Washington, which will send you Bulletin 40 for the asking. If the lawn under consideration is located in the North or in the region where northern turf grasses are to be employed the work should be done in the late summer and fall, as August 15 to September 30 is the best time of year to sow the northern grass seed for lawn or other turf purposes.

A friend to everybody is a friend to nobody.—Spanish Proverb.

When fate summons, monarchs must obey.

STORE PAPERS AWAY BEFORE VACATION

Many Wilmingtonians planning an extensive vacation away from home are seeing to it that all valuable papers and records are stored away safely in a safety deposit box, where neither burglars nor fire can steal or destroy them. In this connection the Security Trust Company, Sixth and Market streets, Wilmington, has one of the most modern and foolproof safety deposit departments in the city.

The new vault is probably the latest installed vault of its character in the State, and the number of patrons of the department are growing steadily. Bonds and mortgages and insurance papers stored in some supposedly secret place about the home, may very readily become the prey of flames or burglars, who with the family absent, could work at their leisure to find them.

PAYING TAXES WITH MORRIS PLAN MONEY

Many calls for loans have been made on the Wilmington Morris Plan Bank in the past week and the reason advanced is to pay taxes. Taxes are now due, and to those who pay promptly, there is a discount. That is the reason for seeking a loan, so the property owner can meet the levy and get the discount and yet not be embarrassed financially. He pays the loan off a little bit each week.

Others who want to lay by for "a rainy day," are purchasing Morris Plan 5 per cent certificates. Hundreds of citizens have found these certificates very appealing. There is no risk, such as is always present when buying speculative stocks, and the dividends are paid promptly every six months. For those who have a limited income, all that is required to start a saving is one dollar, and the money draws interest from the time of the first deposit. When the sum amounts to fifty dollars, a Morris Plan certificate is issued and the money immediately begins drawing five per cent interest.

MUNDORFF PLANT WORKING OVERTIME

This is the busiest time of the year for H. A. Mundorff and Son, Wilmington bottlers of Orange Crush and a score of other soft drink flavors. While there are many new flavors, that have been introduced to the public in the past few years, none seems to hold up like Orange Crush. It's been before the public for many years and its popularity does not seem to wane.

Other drinks that sell strong are grape and root beer. A new flavor, Pepsi-Cola, which tastes much like another drink of much similar name, is meeting with considerable success. In order to keep pace with the demands, Mr. Mundorff has found it necessary to operate overtime the past week, and even then has been hard pressed at times to supply all calls.

P. A. X. VOLUME STILL HOLDS GOOD

P. A. X. volume continues good down State. In some towns practically all of the supplies are hauled by P. A. X. trucks, the goods coming to this city via Bush Line and being distributed by motor from this city.

Arrangements are being made now to handle a heavy trade in Delaware peaches. The crop looks splendid and it is anticipated that the yield will be one of the heaviest for many years. Prices are also expected to be very profitable.

HIGH MARKET BOOSTS PERFECTION BROILER SALES

The money made in summer broilers this year has resulted in the Perfection Incubator Company, at the foot of Orange street, Wilmington, keeping its incubators hatching regularly to supply the many poultry raisers. According to John MacLeod, vice-president of the company, the broiler market is at its highest peak, for this time of the year, than it has been since the war. Because of the shortage of eggs and the fact that farmers are selling their layers due to the high prices being realized, the market promises to continue high the rest of the summer and fall.

A number of people on the Del. Mar-Va Peninsula and in close vicinity to Wilmington have taken advantage of the market and have gone in for broiler raising. Saleable at the end of about ten weeks, the chicks prove to be big money makers. So great has been the demand for them, that the Perfection Company has found it necessary to keep its plant operating all through the summer. At the present time, about 20,000 eggs are being hatched weekly.

WORK OVERTIME TO COMPLETE CONTRACTS

The large contracts received recently by the Art Stone and Tile Company, at 2500 West Fourth street, Wilmington, has necessitated the employees to work on an overtime schedule to complete the work. Most of these awards are for cast stone products, which are being used on a banking institution, in Chester, and for a base to a monument at Baldwin Locomotive plant, in Eddystone. Besides, there are a number of others.

Although the plant is one of the largest of its kind in the state, Arthur Pavoni, head of it, has had several extensions made, within the past few months. New equipment and facilities have been added, so that the biggest contracts may be turned out in specified time.

GET FRANCHISE FOR COIN-OPERATED RADIOS

With the awarding to the Shilling-Lake Company, at Fifth and West streets, Wilmington, of the franchise for the automatic, coin-operated radio, is marked the completion of a full line of automatic machines handled by this company. At first, the automatic piano was sold, and then the automatic phonograph, which has met with phenomenal sales. Installed in stores, hotels and other public establishments, they have, in many cases, resulted in an appreciable increase in business. Despite the fact that a number of salesmen are in the street, the number of inquiries have simply overwhelmed them.

And now comes the radio. A small coin, inserted in a slot, will provide music for a period of ten minutes. The individual has a choice of stations. Although just taken on a few weeks ago, there have been a number of sales, and interest aroused bids well for many more.
