Katie Myers of Washington, D.C., Sharon Collyer of Shoreham, N.Y., and Julie Solomon of Huntington, N.Y., completed one final chore as they prepared to leave Newark following their graduation from the University of Delaware. Thank-you notes to Moms and Dads for the years spent in college are seen each May on many residences throughout the city.

Water projects in works

Water Coordinator issues report

According to the first progress report issued last week by the state's Water Coordinator, Jerry Kauffman, five projects that will enhance long-term water supplies in northern Delaware are on schedule.

Kauffman prepared the report in cooperation with a 19-person Water Supply Coordinating Council appointed by Governor Thomas Carper last year.

The five projects identified in the report are: the Newark reservoir; Wilmington Hoopes Reservoir deep storage; Artesian's water wells north of C and D Canal; a south wellfield iron treatment plant in Newark; and Artesian's aquifer storage and recovery.

Carper said the state is aggressively rolling out a cohesive strategy to better serve the long-term water supply needs in Delaware. "Though much work still needs to be accomplished on

ABCC hearing postponed

Liquor store owner blames city council

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A hearing before the Alcohol Beverage and Control Commission was postponed last week as the owner of a local liquor store continued his efforts to move his business.

According to E. C. Reader, owner of Triangle Liquors, he wants to relocate to a space in the Mill at White Clay, under construction on Paper Mill Road.

The building where Reader operated for the past 25 years, at the intersection of Cleveland Avenue and Paper Mill Road, has been torn down. In order to reopen an alcohol-related business in Delaware in a new site, the owner must get permission to relocate the store's license to sell liquor and the new location must

Death on railroad tracks was accident

According to Newark Police, the death of a man on the CSX Railroad tracks around 3 a.m. on May 28 appears to have been a "casualty." Media Officer Mark Farrell said the toxicology report will take several weeks, but police do not believe the accident was foul play or a suicide.

Brandon D. Baer, 24, was visiting in Newark from the Harrisburg, Pa., area when he was struck and killed by the train traveling from Philadelphia to Baltimore. Police do not know why the man was on the railroad tracks.

Road rage leads to injury and arrests

Delaware State Police arrested Christopher Wolski, 33, of Newark and Edward A. Dower, 19, of Earleville, Md., in a road rage incident on May 28 around 2:15 p.m. Police reported Wolski was attempting to turn left onto Old Baltimore Pike from Otts Chapel Road when Dower got in front of him.

The two drivers stopped on the side of the road and Wolski threatened Dower with a steering wheel locking device called a "Club" as Dower sat in his car. Wolski then spat on Dower's car and hit it with the "Club."

As Wolski was walking back to his car, Dower allegedly drove his car into him, pushing Wolski about 50 feet. A passing Newark Fire Company Ambulance stopped and prevented further fighting between the two men. Wolski suffered a bruise on his abdomen but refused medical treatment.

Robbery at Horton Bros. Mobil station

Newark Police are investigating a robbery at the Horton Brother's Mobil station, South College Avenue/Route 896, on June 4 around 7:15 a.m.

A suspect described as a black male, 25 to 30 years, 5 feet, 6 inches to 5 feet, 8 inches tall, and weighing about 160 to 170 pounds, entered the station and demanded money from the clerk.

He fled on foot in the direction of the rear of the station with an undisclosed amount of money. Anyone with information is asked to call 366-7111 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Newark Police seek armed robber

Newark Police are seeking information about a suspect who robbed the Little Cesaers pizza shop on New London Road around 11:30 p.m. on June 3.

Witnesses told police the suspect described as a white male in his 20s, 5 feet, 8 inches to 5 feet, 10 inches tall with a medium build and wearing a maroon baseball cap and a black jacket, walked into the shop and displayed what appeared to be a handgun in his waistband.

He demanded money from the register and then fled with an undisclosed amount of cash. A search by Newark Police and a New Castle County K-9 Unit proved negative. Anyone with information is asked to call 366-7111 or Crimestoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333.

Motorcyclist dies after crash

Delaware State Police are investigating a fatal crash which occurred around 1 a.m. on June 3 in the intersection of Routes 2 and 7. Police reported Timothy Tolbert, 43, of Newark was driving a Harley Davidson motorcycle eastbound on Route 2/Kirkwood Highway when a second vehicle traveling westbound turned left into his path at the intersection. The unknown vehicle fled southbound on Route 7/Limestone Road, toward Stanton.

Tolbert and his passenger, Yvonne Giordano, 41, also of Newark, fell to the ground and were recovering the motorcycle when Tolbert was struck by 1991 Honda Accord driven by Sarah Barker, 27, of Wilmington.

Tolbert was taken to the Christiana Hospital in Newark, where he died of injuries he received in the crash. Giordano was also taken to Christiana Hospital where she was treated for a fracture to her left arm.

Alcohol appears to be involved on the part of Barker and the investigation is still ongoing. Tolbert and Giordano were not wearing helmets at the time of the crash.

Troopers are looking for any witnesses that may have information concerning the identity of the driver who fled the scene. Tips may be phoned in to Troop 1A, by dialing 477-8501.

Man arrested with cocaine

New Castle County Police arrested a 25-year-old Newark man for trafficking cocaine after a surveillance team stopped him around noon on June 1 at the Carlton Court apartments where police witnessed him in an apparent drug transaction. The suspect, Wayne Kelson Earl, a resident of the West Park Place Apartments in Newark, was later found to have over nine grams of cocaine on his possession.

During the arrest, a crowd gathered and became disorderly. Stanley Black, 25, of Welsh Track Road, Michael Brown, 22, of the Strawberry Run Apartments, and Darius Boyles, 23, of Kenard Drive, were charged with disorderly conduct after refusing to disperse. Todd Lee Parsons, 19, who resides in the Kimberton Apartments, was charged with possession of marijuana.

this front, we have come a long way in the last year," Carper stated. "The teamwork in the immediate future and next few years promises to be an important part of protecting our quality of life well into the 21st Century."

The appointment of a Water Coordinator and Water Supply Coordinating Council were the direct result of recommendations made by a Water Supply Task Force which Carper formed during last summer's drought.

After working several months as a group last fall and examining ways to more efficiently manage water supplies in Delaware, the task force forwarded its recommendations to Carper in early December.

Task force recommendations included forming and appointing the Water Master and Water Supply Council and proposing the legislation to help address Delaware's longterm water supplies.

The report is to be issued quarterly to the governor and legislators. The progress report precedes legislation pending in the General Assembly that would also help to enhance water supplies in Delaware. The General Assembly was expected to consider two measures sponsored by State Senator Harris McDowell (D-Wilmington North) and State Representative Michael Mulrooney (D-Pennwood) when it reconvened this week.

Senate Bill 307 would require water providers who want to expand their service areas to demonstrate that they have adequate capacities to meet demand. Under current law, water suppliers can apply for service area expansion with only the property owner's approval.

Under the bill, regulation of water providers would be transferred from the Department of Natural Resources to the Public Service Commission.

House Bill 549 would provide statutory authority for the Water Coordinator and Water Supply Coordinating Council. Currently, these positions have authority by virtue of an Executive Order that Carper issued in December 1999.

Without statutory authority, which requires an act of the General Assembly, the Water Coordinator and Council will sunset on Dec. 31, 2000.

Kauffman, a water resources engineer with the Water Resources Agency at the University of Delaware, oversees the progress of projects and initiatives that are designed to increase water supplies over the next three years.

Carper also appointed 19 members to the Water Supply Coordinating Council.

Last fall, Carper lifted a 35-day drought emergency in northern Delaware. Although dry conditions existed throughout the state last summer, the most vulnerable non-agricultural areas were in northern New Castle County due to the dependence of that region on water taken from the White Clay Creek and Brandywine River. Roughly 70 percent of the water used in northern Delaware comes from surface waters. Also, the lack of rainfall in 1999 meant a rainfall deficit of nearly 8 inches in Delaware for the past year. The summer and fall of 1998 were also drier than normal.

Trash, traffic among drawbacks at liquor store sites conform with state law and local zoning.

Reader said he believes he is having difficulty in his quest because Newark city council has expressed their opposition to his plan. "The only reason I'm not getting the new license is because the city had their solicitor write a letter and oppose it," Reader said in May. "This is unfair to my business. There are other liquor stores in Newark already and the city allowed that."

In March, Newark resident Dorothy Miller asked city council to oppose a liquor store at the Mill. "I didn't realize (a liquor store) was part of the bargain when this was approved," said Miller. "I have a problem with it along the White Clay Creek because you usually get a lot of trash around them."

"I also think this would be a terrible traffic generator in that area. It's not an appropriate site for a liquor store."

Mayor Hal Godwin told Miller that the city was only responsible for the zoning at the site and if it was permitted under the zoning, there was nothing the city could do. "We'll have to take a look at the zoning," Godwin said at that time.

Jeffrey Lang, president of Commonwealth Development which is developing the Mill property, told council he had not leased space to Reader. "Triangle Liquors is only a prospective tenant," said Lang in March. "He asked me about using the address for his ABCC application and I referred him to (city planning director) Roy Lopata about discussing whether he can go there (under the zoning)."

According to Lopata, a liquor store would be permitted under the zoning. "We don't regulate liquor stores, only whether there is consumption on the premises," Lopata said.

Lang stressed there had only been "a very preliminary" inquiry about the space from the tenant. "I told him, until I secure a restaurant tenant, I will not commit to any retail component at the site."

Lang added he had a list of retailers interested in space at the Mill.

Councilmember Jerry Clifton noted that there would be a lot of students living in the apartments also planned at the Mill. "I would be disappointed to have a liquor store that close to that many apartments," Clifton said.

Newark resident Jean White told council she was also against a liquor store at that location. "It's inappropriate to have in an area with a lot of students," she agreed. "There also will be traffic flow problems because vehicles have to make a right turn in and out either way they go."

White also urged the city to send a letter to the ABCC opposing the application.

Councilmember John Farrell noted council had discussed the developer's plan for a restaurant with extended hours to serve alcohol when the rezoning came before them. "This is well outside our discussion of extending hours, though," he said.

Gerald Grant, then councilmember for District 6, said he never would have approved the zoning if he knew a liquor store was part of the plan.

Lang said he did not "plan" to have a liquor store and that the business owner came to him with the proposal. "A liquor store is not an ideal tenant," said Lang. "I thought the city would tell him he couldn't go there - I think an upscale wine store would be OK, but not a keg store - how do you regulate that?"

City council ultimately voted to put their concerns in a letter to the ABCC.

In response to an inquiry from the ABCC in May, Lang said he told them Triangle Liquors did not have a lease at the Mill location, although that address was listed on the application for the new alcohol license.

Godwin told city council he intended to oppose the application as a resident when it came up for a hearing, now postponed, in late May.

Carper urges rehab of old St. Georges Bridge over C & D Canal

Span need to prevent gridlock on other roads

A new traffic report revealed that the old St. Georges Bridge is needed to prevent traffic gridlock on other Chesapeake and Delaware canal bridges - starting as early as this summer.

After reviewing the report issued by the Delaware Department of Transportation on June 2, Governor Thomas R. Carper immediately sent a letter to Congressional leaders, urging them to keep the bridge on Route 13 open and to rehabilitate it.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, responsible for owning and maintaining the C and D Canal and its crossing, plans to close and remove the old bridge. Congress allocates funding to the Corps and its projects.

Carper said recent traffic models based on development plans approved by New Castle County indicate the span is needed to prevent other bridges over the federally owned canal from becoming gridlocked with traffic.

"The modeling clearly shows that if the St. Georges Bridge is taken out of service as the Corps plans, the federal government will fail to meet its legal obligation to provide good and sufficient crossings over the canal at the Summit Bridge this summer and at the Route 1 bridge as soon as 2003," wrote Carper.

Based on these numbers, Carper noted, if the Corps proceeds with its plans to close and remove the St. Georges Bridge, the federal government will be obligated to construct additional capacity over the canal at one or more of the remaining spans. "The cost of such action could exceed $100 million," Carper said. "Instead, I urge you to take action in the Energy and Water Appropriations bill that will ensure that the St. Georges Bridge remain open to traffic and that the span is rehabilitated so that it can continue to provide service necessary for the federal government to meet its legal obligations in the future."

Carper also urged Congress to direct the Corps to take ownership of the new bridge retroactive to the date that it was completed, May 12, 1997, and to repay the state of Delaware and private vendors for operations and maintenance costs on the Route 1 Bridge incurred since.

"Since construction of the span was completed in 1995, the Corps has refused to acknowledge their ownership of the bridge and have refused to pay for the spans operation and maintenance," Carper wrote. "Legislative action is necessary now to prevent senseless litigation relating to the payment of expenses incurred to date and in the future on the maintenance of the bridge. As the bridge is now going on five years old, significant maintenance expenses continue to mount."

According to Carper, the state recently spent $159,000 on a federally-mandated bridge inspection, which should have been paid for by the Corps. "This inspection showed that substantial repairs are needed," Carper wrote. "If this issue is not resolved shortly, there will be a need for even more money to fund bridge repairs that could have been avoided or mitigated by prompt action."

Attention Newark Residents:

Triangle Liquors would like to re-open in the Mill at White Clay (still under construction), one block north of the original 104 N. Chapel Street site. Two residents and the Newark City Council have opposed this move. The Council will again be taking up this matter in its June 12 meeting at 7:30 PM at the Newark Municipal Building on Elkton Road. I sincerely thank all of you who have already written letters of support for my move. Unfortunately, there is still a strong possibility the Council will oppose the move and keep me out of business. We ask any and all townspeople who have enjoyed the convenience of my store over the past 25 years to attend this brief council meeting for a show of support.

Local students sailing along with tall ship

Students from Kirk Middle School who have been "crossing" the Atlantic Ocean with the Ukrainian tall ship "Bat'kivshina" as it sails to Wilmington experienced sailing for themselves on the small ships of the New Castle Sailing Club.

The students got a better idea of the life of sailors while cruising on the Delaware River in six-to-eight person groups on the club's sailboats last week.

Teacher Adam Carpenter reported a mix of excitement and anxiousness among the students, as many of them had never been on boats of any type.

Carpenter and the seventh and eighth grade students have joined with Tall Ships Delaware to create a study unit called "Cargoes and Cultures" and have been in touch with the crew and captain of the large sailing vessel since it left Kiev, Ukraine, in April.

Students have used email, the Internet and postal services to learn about geography, navigation, cultures and languages as the sailing vessel makes its way to the United States.

Vessels from many nations will assemble in Wilmington for the Tall Ships festival this month.

Seatbelt use in vehicles should be a state priority

It is hard to believe that passing a first offense seatbelt law could be difficult in Delaware.

Almost 80 percent of the people killed in motor vehicle accidents in Delaware since Jan. 1 of this year were not buckled up.

And the number killed is disheartening in itself.

According to the Buckle Up Delaware Coalition, 34 people have been killed in car crashes this year, and 23 were not wearing seatbelts.

The Coalition believes that at least half of the deaths could have been avoided with use of the restraints.

Yet, the state's current seatbelt use is only 64 percent — lower than the national average and much lower than the national goal of 85 percent.

Children in vehicles where adults don't use seatbelts are safely restrained less than 25 percent of the time.

This week, business people rallied in Dover to urge passage of House Bill 88 which would make not using seatbelts a first offense in the state.

Currently it is a secondary offense which means the drivers must be stopped for some other traffic violation before they can be cited for not using seatbelts.

This was of little use to those who committed a traffic violation and almost immediately died in the resulting crash.

Their unrestrained passengers, adults and children, had even less say in the matter.

The General Assembly session is coming to an end and if the bill is not passed, it will die with the final bell.

This means it will have to be reintroduced and go through the whole process again next year.

Americans are notorious for their resentment of authority and infringement of personal choice and rights.

But needless deaths of innocent victims like children should not be in question.

Buckling up is a no-brainer and Delaware should make it a priority for every person in a vehicle on the roads.

GUEST COLUMN

Child abuse does not know a month or season

By PAMELA MAIER

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

In April, we in Delaware observed Child Abuse Prevention Month and recognized the many groups who work year round with families, educators, and elected officials to address the causes of child abuse and relieve suffering.

Although we take time in April to boost awareness of child abuse, the real work is timeless and ongoing because child abuse does not know a month or a season. I would like to take a moment to address the ongoing efforts in our state to minimize and stop the tragedy of child abuse.

Along with colleagues in both the Delaware House of Representatives and the Senate, I have sponsored much needed legislation to protect our youngest victims of child abuse — the infants and newborns who are especially at risk.

Last year HB 404 was signed into law and for the first time, Delaware has an office of Child Advocate to speak for these children. The Advocate has been granted the power to review and propose regulations aimed at improving protections for abused and neglected children.

Our Child Advocate, Tania Culley, works under the Child Protection Accountability Commission that oversees the child protection system in Delaware. A portion of this legislation permits the Advocate to provide legal representation for abused and neglected children in certain cases to protect their interests in non-criminal matters. The Office of Child Advocate is located in Wilmington and can be reached at 577-8490.

I joined Senator Myrna Bair and other legislators in sponsoring a task force to study the creation of a crisis nursery program in Delaware. We found out that Delaware currently has a program run by Children and Families First. It is based on a foster family respite care model. We hope to expand upon this and have arranged for National Council of State Legislatures to present a workshop in June to local interested groups. For further information, call Legislative Council 1-800-282-8545. A report on the Task Force's recommendations will then follow.

Modeled after a similar program in Minneapolis, the proposed program would provide a respite for caregivers in times of family crisis. It is hoped that this program will benefit families by offering a safe place to temporarily house infants so that the parents can work out their problems. By removing the infant, problems can be resolved more quickly and potential child abuse or neglect could be avoided.

Finally, I have co-sponsored HB 555, an act that will save the lives of abandoned newborn infants. If passed, this bill will provide a way for a parent to abandon a newborn at a hospital or other medical facility without fear of arrest. The health and safety of the child will be protected. The alternative is the risk that the child could potentially be abandoned in an unsafe location without adequate care, leading to possible death.

This bill does not encourage parents to abandon their newborns. It does provide a

Everything is in readiness for Newark High School's largest Commencement Friday night. On that date, in the new building on Academy street, thirty-two girls and boys will receive their diplomas from John S. Shaw, president of the Newark Board of Education.

Crashes into Shed

A small building immediately to the rear of E.L. Richards' office, at Newark Center Station, was crushed in and a side of the office itself splintered when an empty freight car backed through the abutment at the end of the siding and fell over on its end shortly after noon Monday.

The car was being shunted in the siding and too much push was evidently exerted by the locomotive.

Parents seeking merger of elementary schools

Parents whose children are slated to attend West Park or Central Elementary Schools next year are proposing consolidation of the two schools.

Under the current New Castle County School

District student assignment plan, Central would use only 22.2 percent of its capacity, and West Park, 34.8 percent of its capacity. In addition, the New Castle County Board of Education has assigned only one principal for both schools. The two schools will share music, art, and gym teachers also.

Is county facing severe water shortages?

Negotiations, involving the city of Newark, the city of Wilmington and two private water companies, have been going on for months in an effort to set up a water supply interconnection system in the county.

An interconnection system has been recommended by the county water and sewer, management office.

Presently, officials from the city of Newark, Suburban Water Co. and Artesian Water Co., indicate they have limited water supplies and are searching for ways to boost their supplies.

Seatbelt use in vehicles should be a state priority

It is hard to believe that passing a first offense seatbelt law could be difficult in Delaware.

Almost 80 percent of the people killed in motor vehicle accidents in Delaware since Jan. 1 of this year were not buckled up.

And the number killed is disheartening in itself.

According to the Buckle Up Delaware Coalition, 34 people have been killed in car crashes this year, and 23 were not wearing seatbelts.

The Coalition believes that at least half of the deaths could have been avoided with use of the restraints.

Yet, the state's current seatbelt use is only 64 percent — lower than the national average and much lower than the national goal of 85 percent.

Children in vehicles where adults don't use seatbelts are safely restrained less than 25 percent of the time.

This week, business people rallied in Dover to urge passage of House Bill 88 which would make not using seatbelts a first offense in the state.

Currently it is a secondary offense which means the drivers must be stopped for some other traffic violation before they can be cited for not using seatbelts.

This was of little use to those who committed a traffic violation and almost immediately died in the resulting crash.

Their unrestrained passengers, adults and children, had even less say in the matter.

The General Assembly session is coming to an end and if the bill is not passed, it will die with the final bell.

This means it will have to be reintroduced and go through the whole process again next year.

Americans are notorious for their resentment of authority and infringement of personal choice and rights.

But needless deaths of innocent victims like children should not be in question.

Buckling up is a no-brainer and Delaware should make it a priority for every person in a vehicle on the roads.

Child abuse does not know a month or season

I, along with other family members, have made over 600 trips to recycling bins in the last years. We take all our papers, magazines, bottles, cans, etc. We spend many hours and much gasoline doing this.

I have tripped on the ice at the bins and been stung by yellow jackets while putting bottles in the bins.

We recycle to help the environment and because it feels good.

But, it occurs to me that the state (and all states) should find some way to thank regular recyclers such as a yearly party (with nice, non-alcoholic refreshments at the Riverfront), awards, free sports tickets, etc.

I suggested this to Lt. Governor Minner and former Governor Peterson recently and they both thought it to be an excellent idea.

We wish to bring to the attention of the greater Newark community a situation occurring at the University of Delaware.

At the start of the 1999-2000 school year, UD had too many freshman students, so many were randomly placed in extended housing.

This means, in certain locations, that three students were placed in a room designed for two. As a resident of this situation all year, I can tell you how cramped and uncomfortable it is. We have fewer drawers and less closet space than our doubled counterparts. Even with space-saving organization, it is often difficult to get from one side of the room to the other.

Students in this situation were given a $300 refund on the $1405 housing fee for the fall semester.

UD is refusing to give a refund for the spring semester, although we were never offered a place to move.

Even if we had been offered a suitable alternative living space, who wants to be uprooted in the middle of the year? And among three people, who decides who would leave?

We think it is shameful that the university will not give students in triples a proper refund. Many of its competitors have taken action to correct such problems.

UD seems content to let this injustice continue, to make a profit off their students' uncomfortable situations. This policy is wrong and it cannot continue.

Delaware now 5th in AIDS cases

Teens can test for HIV status

Delaware now has the fifth highest rate of AIDS cases in the country, according to AIDS Delaware. The state, previously ranked eighth, falls behind Washington, D.C., New York, Florida, and Maryland. The rankings are based on a report issued by the state's Division of Public Health.

"Since the beginning of the AIDS epidemic, Delaware has unfortunately held a top ranking in the country for the rate of AIDS cases," said John Baker, deputy director of AIDS Delaware. "New treatments have been developed. But, as of today, there is no cure. And, these new figures are an awful reminder that the state of Delaware continues to be at higher risk."

Delaware has the nation's highest rate of AIDS cases among I/V drug users, Baker added. Within Delaware, the report listed Wilmington as having the state's highest number of reported AIDS cases followed by New Castle County outside of Wilmington, Sussex County, and then Kent County.

"We believe the figures on reported AIDS cases don't accurately represent our state's situation. Many Delaware residents, especially those in high-risk groups, do not know their AIDS status because they have never been tested," Baker said.

Teens can learn about their HIV status and get a chance to DJ with Mellie Mel from KISS FM by taking an HIV test on Teen Testing Day, June 27 from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the YMCA Central Branch.

The test takes about 15 seconds and can be taken at any time during the hours above. For more information, call AIDS Delaware at 652-6776.

AIDS Delaware, founded in 1984, is Delaware's largest and oldest AIDS service organization. It works for health in the human family by providing social and support services to clients and their families as well as prevention and education programs to halt the spread of HIV and other STDs. It also advocates compassionate public policy.

Donations increase for Delaware's United Way

Bucking national United Way trends, donations to United Way of Delaware's CommunityCare fund grew by four percent during the 1999 annual fundraising campaign, mirroring the campaign's overall growth from 1998.

Increased contributions to the CommunityCare fund will result in more than a half-million new dollars for the 63 Delaware agencies who depend on their United Way award to run 179 vital programs and services throughout the state.

The CommunityCare fund is the pool of undesignated gifts which United Way volunteers and staff distribute to eligible programs based on the program's ability to fill a critical need in the community.

In 1999 United Way of Delaware established a two-year funding cycle for its member agencies.

Therefore, during the 2000 funding cycle, member agencies will receive a four percent increase to their 1999 program awards. No new programs will be funded and no programs will receive less funding for the year 2000.

Internet auctions can be addictive

Since their appearance in 1995, Internet auctions have been one of the hottest things on the web. They offer buyers a virtual "flea market", with an endless range of material from all over the world.

If you can collect it, you can buy it on the web. I collect stamps. As

By Mark Manno

I write this, there are over 100,000 stamp related items up for bid on Ebay alone.

I also collect 4-H memorabilia, and there are 50-100 items up for bid at any given time. In that regard, internet auctions are a great place to find things that would be impossible to find otherwise.

You can often buy items well below what you would normally expect to pay. It's quite easy to get addicted to this kind of buying however. You sit in the comfort of your own home and place your bids over the computer. The next thing you know, you've bid on 20 items!

The problem can come when you win something that you really didn't want or maybe can't afford. Since no money changes hands until the auction is over, it's quite possible to bid on something that you can't possibly afford.

That's what happened last year when a New Jersey boy had the winning bid for a valuable antique. He bid over $600,000.00. Further research later showed that he had bid on items in other auctions that he didn't win. Some of his bids were over one million dollars.

Needless to say, his parents were mortified.

Pornography isn't the only bad thing on the web for kids! There are several quick tips for buyers in these alluring auctions.

The most important is to know the seller. On some auction sites you can check feedback that other buyers have listed on particular seller. Since most sellers don't ship your item until they receive your money, you can easily get burned.

Secondly, know the product you are buying and read the fine print. Many auction sites list pictures of the item. I never buy sight unseen.

Thirdly, know the auction site and read the rules before you get involved. If you do bid online, make sure you protect your privacy and set a bid limit for yourself and stick to it.

Also, keep a transaction list

Stampeding Downes' students on the playground at recess time are not always headed for the jungle gyms and swing sets. Many go straight for the school's soccer field eager to run laps.

Yes, that's right. Drove of first through fourth grade children enjoy physical activity as they run down the miles in Downes' Trek Across America program.

Introduced last year by Downes' physical education specialist Debbie Wilson and first grade teacher Mary Jo Reighart, the program was created to boost school morale while promoting fitness and educational skills.

"We asked ourselves what would be good to improve school spirit?" explained Wilson.

Their solution was to give students an incentive to exercise by giving them the choice to accumulate enough miles, through lap running or walking, to walk across America. After reaching that goal, students and classrooms contributing the most miles received prizes such as gift certificates or a pizza party.

This year the goal is a little more challenging, said Wilson, since the students must earn enough miles to travel the perimeter of the United States.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, participating students spend part or all of their recess time racking up mileage - weather permitting.

"I do it two days a week when it works out," said third grader Breana Barker. "Last year I only did two laps a week, but now I like it more and I do more laps each time."

Every time the students complete a lap, they receive a straw. Six straws equals one mile.

When they decide to stop, the total number of straws collected is recorded on sneaker-shaped paper which is turned in to the student's homeroom teacher.

At the end of each week, teachers tabulate their classroom's total mileage and submit it to Wilson.

The entire school's totals are then calculated and marked on a United States map that hangs near the main entrance.

Between September and November of last fall, students trekked enough miles to reach Washington state. By the end of April, the students traveled as far as southern California.

With only about a month left of school, Wilson said she would be thrilled if the students make it all the way back to Delaware.

"We took a short winter break, and, so far this spring we've had a lot of rain," said Wilson. "And now we've got really hot weather so I encourage them to walk instead of run."

Even in the blistering heat, however, there are some kids who want to run. "You'll see my soccer players out there running all the time," Wilson said. "They'll just run their hearts out for this."

Third graders Sarah Ilvento, Rachel Attenberger and Bobby Wagner are a few of those on soccer teams. "We love to run because it's really good exercise and it's fun!" they said.

The biggest reward, said Wilson, is to hear about how kids want to be more active.

"I have kids come up all the time now to tell me what they do for exercise at home and I think that is fabulous," she said. "The enthusiasm some of these kids have put into this is unbelievable."

Progress can also be seen in Wilson's testing for the Presidential Physical Fitness Program. Every fall and spring students are tested for strength and endurance, and, according to Wilson, most students made a dramatic improvement overall.

Cindy Wagner, a parent volunteer, said she is really impressed by Wilson's ability to motivate children.

"It's amazing how she gets these kids involved in some form of activity. And they really get excited about running around the track to collect those straws," Wagner said.

Wagner usually assists Wilson by handing out straws or recording each student's mileage, but she also gets a lot of help from the kids which adds to the benefits of the program.

Downes' principal Chuck Haywood noted the multiple skills students are gaining through Trek Across America.

"It takes a lot more than getting out and walking or running for this program," he said. "There is a lot of organization going on and there is socializing going on as well."

Students are even learning lessons in the classroom. "Each teacher keeps a chart showing each individual student's number of laps," said first grade teacher Karen Bartkovich. "This can develop into a math lesson for the kids or even a social studies lesson."

Next year Wilson said she will change the course again and have students trek to Hawaii or Alaska which will help them learn about the location of those states.

Looking even further to the future, Wilson dreams of obtaining grant money to build a paved 1/6-mile track with a life course in back of the school. "It's something the public could use and I think it would be a great skills course for the students," she said. "Just another way to build confidence in students."

Internet auctions can be addictive

Since their appearance in 1995, Internet auctions have been one of the hottest things on the web. They offer buyers a virtual "flea market", with an endless range of material from all over the world.

If you can collect it, you can buy it on the web. I collect stamps. As I write this, there are over 100,000 stamp related items up for bid on Ebay alone.

By Mark Manno

I also collect 4-H memorabilia, and there are 50-100 items up for bid at any given time. In that regard, internet auctions are a great place to find things that would be impossible to find otherwise.

You can often buy items well below what you would normally expect to pay. It's quite easy to get addicted to this kind of buying however. You sit in the comfort of your own home and place your bids over the computer. The next thing you know, you've bid on 20 items!

The problem can come when you win something that you really didn't want or maybe can't afford. Since no money changes hands until the auction is over, it's quite possible to bid on something that you can't possibly afford.

That's what happened last year when a New Jersey boy had the winning bid for a valuable antique. He bid over $600,000.00. Further research later showed that he had bid on items in other auctions that he didn't win. Some of his bids were over one million dollars.

Needless to say, his parents were mortified.

Pornography isn't the only bad thing on the web for kids! There are several quick tips for buyers in these alluring auctions.

The most important is to know the seller. On some auction sites you can check feedback that other buyers have listed on particular seller. Since most sellers don't ship your item until they receive your money, you can easily get burned.

Secondly, know the product you are buying and read the fine print. Many auction sites list pictures of the item. I never buy sight unseen.

Thirdly, know the auction site and read the rules before you get involved. If you do bid online, make sure you protect your privacy and set a bid limit for yourself and stick to it.

Also, keep a transaction list

Stampeding Downes' students on the playground at recess time are not always headed for the jungle gyms and swing sets. Many go straight for the school's soccer field eager to run laps.

Yes, that's right. Drove of first through fourth grade children enjoy physical activity as they run down the miles in Downes' Trek Across America program.

Introduced last year by Downes' physical education specialist Debbie Wilson and first grade teacher Mary Jo Reighart, the program was created to boost school morale while promoting fitness and educational skills.

"We asked ourselves what would be good to improve school spirit?" explained Wilson.

Their solution was to give students an incentive to exercise by giving them the choice to accumulate enough miles, through lap running or walking, to walk across America. After reaching that goal, students and classrooms contributing the most miles received prizes such as gift certificates or a pizza party.

This year the goal is a little more challenging, said Wilson, since the students must earn enough miles to travel the perimeter of the United States.

Every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, participating students spend part or all of their recess time racking up mileage - weather permitting.

"I do it two days a week when it works out," said third grader Breana Barker. "Last year I only did two laps a week, but now I like it more and I do more laps each time."

Every time the students complete a lap, they receive a straw. Six straws equals one mile.

When they decide to stop, the total number of straws collected is recorded on sneaker-shaped paper which is turned in to the student's homeroom teacher.

At the end of each week, teachers tabulate their classroom's total mileage and submit it to Wilson.

The entire school's totals are then calculated and marked on a United States map that hangs near the main entrance.

Between September and November of last fall, students trekked enough miles to reach Washington state. By the end of April, the students traveled as far as southern California.

With only about a month left of school, Wilson said she would be thrilled if the students make it all the way back to Delaware.

"We took a short winter break, and, so far this spring we've had a lot of rain," said Wilson. "And now we've got really hot weather so I encourage them to walk instead of run."

Even in the blistering heat, however, there are some kids who want to run. "You'll see my soccer players out there running all the time," Wilson said. "They'll just run their hearts out for this."

Summer concerts coming from Philadelphia Orchestra

No matter who assembles a list of the world's greatest orchestras, you are sure to find high upon the list The Philadelphia Orchestra. We in the Newark area are very fortunate that the Academy of Music, home to the orchestra for its regular season, is so accessible.

We are equally fortunate that its home for the summer season is equally accessible, The Mann Center for the Performing Arts in Fairmount Park. The difference is that many of the seats for the outdoor series are offered to us at no cost!

Beginning on Monday, June 26 and continuing through Thursday, July 27, the Philadelphia Orchestra will hold forth on the stage with a magnificent assortment of guest conductors and soloists.

On every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday (with one exception) at 8 p.m. the sound of the orchestra will begin in the great music shed and spread across the lawns that surround the edifice named to honor Ambassador Mann.

It is all at the Mann this summer with the 2000 season opening with Itzhak Perlman week when he both plays the violin and conducts, an opera evening with Frederica von Stade and Samuel Ramey and a season finale featuring Gerard Schwarz on the podium with Kathleen Battle as soloist. But there is more, much more.

On Monday, June 26, Lawrence Foster will conduct the orchestra and Itzhak Perlman will play violin in a concert which includes Enescu's Romanian in Ravel's Rhapsodie Espagnole, Bruch's Scottish Fantasy and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 2. That Wednesday Mr. Kalmar will be on the podium again with Peter Serkin on piano to present Schubert's Overture to "Rosamonde," Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 19 with various waltzes and polkas by Strauss.

In the only Friday evening program of the season, on July 7, a program called "Bugs Bunny on Broadway" will be offered. Roberto Abbado, who will be on the podium all week, and Jon Kimura Parker, piano, will join forces for two works by Gershwin, Cuban Overture and Piano Concerto in F and Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 on Monday, July 10.

That Wednesday with Suzanne Mentzer, mezzo-soprano, Berlioz' "Les Nuits d'été" and Mendelssohn's Incidental Music for "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be heard. The following night with Roberto Diaz, viola, the orchestra will present Berlioz' "Harold en Italie," Rossini's Overture to "L'italiana in Algeri" and Respighi's "Feste Romane."

The fourth week of the series will open Monday, July 17 with "A Night at the Opera." Conducting the Philadelphia Orchestra will be Miguel Harth-Bedoya with Frederica von Stade and Samuel Ramey teaming up for works by Rossini, Offenbach, Mozart and more. David Robertson will be on the podium for the other two concerts that week.

On Wednesday, with Pincas Zuckerman, violin, an all Beethoven program will include his Violin Concerto and Symphony No. 3. On Thursday the Mendelssohn Club will join the orchestra for Prokofiev's "Lieutenant Kije" and "Alexander Nevsky" and Borodin's Polovtsian Dances from "Prince Igor."

Gerard Schwarz will conduct a "Tchaikovsky Spectacular" to open the final week on July 24. Guest soloist will be Alexander Toradze, piano, in a program which includes Coronation March for Alexander III, Piano Concerto No. 1, Fantasy-Overture "Romeo and Juliet" and the 1812 Overture with fireworks to conclude.

On the 26th, Andre Raphael Smith will conduct "A Symphonic Night at the Movies."

The season will close with Schwarz on the podium and soloist Kathleen Battle in an all American program, Copland's "Billy the Kid," Prokofiev's "Honey and Rue" Songs and selections from Bernstein's "West Side Story."

For more information or reservations, you may call 215-893-1955. There is also a full color brochure with more information which is yours for the asking at that number.

The Philadelphia Orchestra will be at the Mann Center for the Performing Arts this summer. Shouldn't you and your family be there too?

Enjoy.

History of Arden now on display in Wilmington

A new exhibit, "You Are Welcome Hither: Arden 1900-2000," will be on display from June 20 to Nov. 10 at the Historical Society of Delaware with photographs, memorabilia, and documents from the Society's collections.

Two Philadelphians, sculptor Frank Stephens and architect Will Price, founded the community as a place where they could bring their economic and social ideals to life. In 1900, they purchased the Derrickson farm in northern New Castle County. Price designed a town plan that preserved communal open space and encouraged people to mingle with their neighbors.

They wanted Arden to be a place open to people of all economic levels and political views in an era when restrictions were the norm.

Price never lived in Arden — he was more deeply involved in Rose Valley, another idealistic community in Delaware County, Pa. — but Stephens did.

Land in Arden was not sold but leased for 99 years. At first, Arden was a summer community. Year-round residence began in 1905 and by 1909, all the land had been leased. There were 115 leaseholders and 50 houses, but only 50 year-round residents. Arden proved so popular that it expanded twice, with Ardencroft in 1922 and Ardencroft in 1950. Today, the Ardens remain an open, single-tax community encouraging all sorts of artistic and intellectual expression and a strong community life.

Mega-reunion was a mega-success

Newark High School's Reunion largest ever in state

By SHARON R. COLE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

For one day in Newark, everyone "knew your name." From people over 65 to those under 20, from as far away as Hawaii or Michigan or Florida, to right here in Delaware, everyone was a possible old friend.

The historic moment came as hundreds of Newark High School alumni and their families descended upon the city for what was called the Reunion of the Millennium, a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to reconnect in the biggest such high school event ever held in the state of Delaware.

Starting at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 3, former students swapped stories and caught up on old times while sitting for group photos and listening to the Alumni Concert Band, 76 musicians from the classes of 1962 to present directed by Ernest Wilder, '45.

Inside the cafeteria, souvenirs were sold and hundreds sat down to a luncheon with their families. Still talking, many walked down Main Street for Newark Nite before finishing the evening with cocktails and dancing at the University of Delaware Trabant Center.

Old friends stopping in Newark High's hallways to hug, cry or laugh was a common sight on Saturday afternoon. Beth Rightmyer, '68, wiped her eyes as she explained she kept crying every time she saw an old acquaintance.

"It's strange to see that some people I knew in school now have gray hair," she said jokingly. "And it's interesting that some have stayed in Delaware and work closely with the schools and politics."

After graduating from Newark, Rightmyer worked at the high school for 10 years before moving to Fairfax, Va., to work as a counselor. This week her niece, Melissa Sklut, graduated from Newark High as well.

"This is a terrific school; they had so much for everybody and I feel lucky that there was a very diverse population here," Rightmyer said. "And, everyone got along; when I was in school there was a sort of cohesion between people."

This sentiment was shared by the Campbell family of Newark who, with five siblings, represented the largest family group attending the reunion.

"I think this is a very good thing and I'm glad somebody had the gumption to get this up and running," said Glasgow resident Leroy Campbell, '46.

Campbell attended Newark High in the building on Academy Street that is now the University of Delaware's Pearson Hall. Newark High School students used that building between 1925 and 1955 before moving to the Academy Building now used as district offices on Main Street.

"There were 67 graduates in my class," said the 40s graduate with a smile. "Most of them have aged so much, but I look the same as when I graduated!"

Annabelle Campbell Carlisle, '49, said they had to keep checking name tags since they couldn't recognize everyone, while Alice Campbell Cain, '39, admitted, "I have to tell you, I'm just so proud to be here."

Inside the school, walls were decorated with class pictures from years past, old newspaper articles and yearbook memorabilia. Former students looked for themselves and friends in the photos and recalled special events.

Dorothy Handloff, Class of 1935, and Bill Fraser, Class of 1936, together with other "old" students, had lunch in a high school cafeteria for the first time in many years.

Reunion organizer Kay Cole Buglass, '78, said many alumni told her stories of memories they had.

"The ones that stuck out the most in my mind were about people remembering where they were when they found out President Kennedy had been killed, and those who recalled people who were lost and remembered from World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War and the bombing of Lebanon," Buglass said.

Also attending the celebration were non-graduates like Newark Mayor Hal Godwin, Christina School Superintendent Nicholas Fischer, and Christina District school boardmember Michael Guilfoyle.

Godwin graduated from Christiana High School but was able to reminisce with old classmates who attended West Park Elementary School with him. "There was still a feeling of nostalgia for me to see people I organization and the fact that everyone talked about the positive memories they had of the school and community.

"It brought a unity to Newark, and what made it interesting, is that everyone was able to share in the history," Godwin said. "(In the) memorabilia arranged chronologically starting from 1897, I found out that there were only seven graduates in 1904."

In a 35-page program booklet, former Newarkers following all walks of life were recognized, including the graduate who has traveled the most (Rudy Frame, '73, 100 countries) and the grad with the most great-grandchildren (Samuel Buckingham, '23, 10 great-grandchildren).

In a special letter, Buglass stated, "Our students cover almost every occupation from accountants and actors, to state and national representatives and even zoologists. As a whole, we have not left a single stone

Buglass said there are many people to thank who stepped in to help organize the reunion, including the 40-member reunion committee, local sponsors and patrons, and school administrators, as well as her husband and

Phil Buglass created and maintained the website that ultimately reached more than 2,200 people.

For those who decided to attend, the experience rekindled a sense of pride, togetherness and a necessary injection of good will towards others.

When all was said and done, wonderful memories lead back to a high school that still remains in their hearts as a place where longtime friendships formed and futures began.

"We spent a year of our lives planning this, contacting everyone, making new friends and meeting people we would have never met otherwise," Buglass said. "This reunion brought this town together in a way that has never been done before, and I am so proud to have been a part of that."

As the sun sets

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Yes, the Athletes of the Year are now known and will be revealed here in this paper next week, most likely.

I will also present "The Marshy" awards for the 99-00 high school sports season. The categories will be team of the year, coach of the year, play of the year, quote of the year, and story of the year.

To offer a suggestion for winners in any of those categories or to suggest another category, call the sports desk by Monday at noon.

Things to Remember

There are some things that will stick out in my mind about this past scholastic sports year, that won't necessarily be so noteworthy in a year end wrap-up.

I'll never forget the time I invited the William Penn field hockey team to be guests on my radio show, the Brandywine Sports Corner. The power went out in the area and to the station, so I did an impromptu television interview instead with head coach Paige Ferneau and the players she brought with her.

Co-Captain, and Player of the Year Erica LaBar, decided that she wanted to take over the interviewing of her own team, and so she did.

She did so well, that I went about other business in the station until I heard a commotion coming from the hall where we had set up to tape. In the hall, the group was now assembling a pyramid, with their head coach in the middle, and having a pretty good time.

When I saw reviewed the tape the next day LaBar, who will be attending the University of Delaware in the Fall, had extended an invitation to her prom to me. I'm saving that tape for a special year-end television show, and also for my personal collection.

Homiak fires shutout as Bucs repeat

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

SMYRNA- At eleven o'clock Saturday morning, the last championship day of the high school season began with a repeat title for the Buccaneers of Caravel Academy.

The Bucs won 4-0 in the softball final over the William Penn Colonials behind yet another shutout by pitcher Jackie Homiak and the sparkling Buc defense.

The lack of defense on the other side proved to be the difference in this game.

In the top of the fourth inning, the Bucs scored three times when two consecutive errors set up two consecutive squeeze plays for runs.

The Bucs had been trying to bunt a few runners over in the first few innings but weren't executing. With the two runners on second and third in the fourth, head coach Steve Baker sent Homiak up for the designated hitter, Danielle Austin, to "lay one down."

Homiak wasn't in the starting batting order because of a sore toe, but this was the championship game and the go ahead run was just 60 feet away.

The Colonials didn't appear to be thinking squeeze and when Homiak laid it down on a 2-1 count, Alexis Niggebrugge scored and it was 1-0.

Then catcher Nancy Tokar followed with another apparently surprising squeeze and Ashley Niggebrugge scored to make it 2-0.

Baker said, "The suicide is part of our game. We work on that alot. We think if we can get some speedy kids over to third that we can push that ball up the first base line. If they play their first baseman back, they just can't throw you out."

Leadoff hitter Megan Richardson was next, and a great candidate for a third consecutive bunt, but she ripped a single instead, scoring Homiak for the third run of the inning and that was all that Homiak needed to win.

Baker said, "We looked at another bunt because the first baseman wasn't adjusted, but Jackie was at third base still with the injury and I looked down and she didn't have her slider on so we didn't want to risk her."

William Penn (17-5) managed to get two runners aboard the basepaths in the second and fifth innings, but couldn't keep from becoming the 18th Homiak shutout victim of the season.

Richardson said, "We had a great feeling about this game and we were so excited and pumped up. We just come out and do our best and we know we'll be fine."

Homiak said, "They had confidence in my bunting ability, but Danielle could have done it too. We work really hard on bunting, but it can still be tough to do it in game situations. We came through when we needed it. We knew from the scrimmage (in Spring training) that they had a few power hitters; Erica LaBar, Michelle Whalen, and I talked with my coach who calls the pitches, Mike Salony. I wasn't going to give them anything down the middle of the plate. They hit the ball but our defense made the plays."

Baker said, "This team is real young, real good. It's easy to coach a team like this. We have a great coaching staff; Mike Salony calling the pitches all year, we had 18 shutouts; Dana Hicken our hitting coach had our kids ready to go; Jeff Campbell the dugout coach had the kids ready to go; it's a whole team effort. It feels really good."

Spartans win soccer crown

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Tom DeMatteis became the only coach to take a boy's and girl's soccer team all the way to the top one minute after Ashley Dilworth blasted a 30 yard goal for the game winner in the state championship.

The Spartans became the first Delaware team to beat A.I. duPont, the four-time defending champions, since 1996.

The final score was 3-2 but just four minutes into the game, the Tigers were on a pace to score 80 goals in the game after Kristin Goldrick and Kristin Hanna scored for A.I.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

ASHLEY DILWORTH — ST. MARK'S

For leading her Spartan soccer team to the state championship, Senior Ashley Dilworth is this week's Post Athlete of the Week.

Dilworth scored two goals in the final game of the year against the defending state champion A.I. duPont Tigers.

Her second goal of the game was the game winner in the game's final minute and came less than 20 minutes after being briefly knocked out as the result of a collision with the Tiger's Danielle Nourie.

Dilworth was a five-year varsity soccer player who scored 14 goals as an eighth-grader at Ursuline Academy.

In her four years with St. Mark's she scored 95 goals for a career total of 109.

This coming Monday, Ashley's efforts this season will be honored as she will be named the 2000 Delaware Soccer Player of the Year at the soccer banquet being held in Wilmington.

Dilworth's coach, Tom DeMatteis said, "She showed why she is going to be awarded the Player of the Year in that final game. She is as hard a worker as any player I've ever coached; in games, practices, state final, you name it. That's why good things happen to her."

St. Mark's falls in baseball final

By MARSHAL MANLOVE

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

The Mt. Pleasant Green Knights won the baseball championship game with a 7-1 win over the defending champion St. Mark's Spartans.

The Spartans were never in this game. Mount scored three runs in the top of the first, and three in the second to open up the Spartan grave.

Brent Rogers went 4 for 4 with two RBIs, stole three bases, and scored twice for the Knights, who won the first Mt. Pleasant team championship since the 1981 football team won the state title.

In the first inning, Rogers singled, stole second, and advanced to third on a error on a bad throw on the attempt to catch him stealing. Daryl Holcomb was then hit by a pitch.

Both runners scored when Kevin Leach singled and reached third as St. Mark's made two throwing errors on the one play trying to catch runners advancing.

In the second inning, the Green Knights scored their three runs with two outs. Adam Pfister, Rogers, and Holcomb each stroked RBI singles.

Scott Henning (7-0) went the distance for Mount and drove in the third run in the first with a sacrifice fly. He pitched his way into near trouble when he became wild in the third inning. With one out and the bases loaded, he walked cleanup hitter and opposing pitcher Tom Cochran (6-1) to drive in the only Spartan run of the day.

But Henning picked Kevin Maloney off of second base for the second out, and then walked Al Blanchard to load the bases again which would have driven in the second run of the inning. Henning said, "We worked on that play everyday, it seems, since we were freshman, and it payed off big today."

Geoff Ashton then launched a deep fly to center, but it was tracked down by Jared Savage to end the inning and the threat.

Mount stole seven bases in the game despite the best efforts by Tom Cochran. He picked five runners off of first, but four of them managed to slide in safely to second after poor throws to the bag.

Knight coach Rob Limmina

said, "We told the guys to run with the first movement and hopefully either beat the throw from the first baseman or get a big enough jump where it was going to be difficult for the catcher to throw them out."

Limmina said, "It's exciting, words just can't describe it. I'm happy for the kids and the coaching staff because I know how hard they've worked, and I'm happy for the school. There is nothing better than the first one."

The keys to the Green Knight success this year were pitching and defense, Limmina added. "They had great work ethic. They were unselfish. They had personal goals but never put them before the team goals. They wanted this and wanted to make this a reality, and that's what they did. This is a special group of kids. It's going to be difficult to let them go."

Mount Pleasant (20-2) becomes the first Blue Hen Conference Flight B baseball champion since Claymont in 1973 and prevented St. Mark's from becoming the first back-to-back champions since Concord in 1981-82.

Spartans win title

► NEWARK, from 16

DeMatteis said, "I would have bet my house that we were more prepared than that coming into this game."

The Spartans settled down near the 20 minute mark and Dilworth deflected a Michelle Huynh-Ba pass off the crossbar for their first goal of the game.

Two-thirds of the way through the second half, Dilworth had a nasty collision with the Tigers Danielle Nourie and laid face down on the turf. DeMatteis said, "When I got to her she was out (cold), but just as I said to the trainer she was out, she recovered."

As the trainers were attending to Dilworth, co-captain Megan O'Donnell pulled her team aside and forcefully reminded her team that they weren't going to leave that field without the number one trophy.

Dilworth shook off the stars floating around her head and returned to action on the next whistle.

With less than eight minutes to go, sophomore Shannon Bradbury took a Spartan corner kick and found Huynh-Ba's head near the front of the goal. Huynh-Ba directed the pass in for the game tying goal, and it appeared as if the championship was going into overtime as it did last year between these same two teams.

With three minutes to go, the Tiger's Katie Mazzio electrified her fans blasting a goal. But the play was blown offside, and overtime was on its way again.

Then Dilworth busted free down the right wing with about a minute to go in the game. From 30 yards away her powerful right leg connected with the leather sphere and sent it rocketing off the crossbar and down just over the goal line to cause bedlam on the other side of the bleachers.

Dilworth didn't exactly remember scoring the goal partially because of the excitement and partially because of the blow to her head. She did remember who she was and what her team's goal was though. "We were not coming off that field without that trophy. We said it coming in, and we said it on the field. Now we have it."

Huynh-Ba, a sophomore, said, "It took some time to get into this game for some reason, but we did it and we reached our goal."

The Newark Game

The Spartans routed the Newark Yellowjackets 5-2 in the semifinal round. This game was over after a minute and a half when Shannon Bradbury kicked the first of her two goals in the game.

Bradbury, who kicks well with either foot, was nursing a sprain and still cruised through the Jacket backfield as if it was nonexistent.

DeMatteis had high praise for the 15 year-old forward. "Bradbury is phenomenal; quick with the ball, and good with either foot."

The Spartans continued what Newark coach Hugh Mitchell said was a like a shark feeding frenzy with three more goals before the first half ended.

Brookside team to compete for title

The Delaware Dragons, composed of children from the Brookside Bambino Baseball League, have been selected to play in the Cooperstown Dreams Park National Youth Baseball Invitational Tournament in the mythical home of baseball, Cooperstown, N.Y.

In addition to competing against 48 teams from 26 states, members of the Dragons will be enshrined in the prestigious American Youth Baseball Hall of Fame.

The following children form the Dragons: Danny Baker, Joey Baseher, Mike Bender, Joel Drosehn, Sam Kaler, Bobby Pilato, Chancze Lepore, John Jenson, Bernie Saupee, Matt Botting, Chris Yetto, Mike

Robusto, Dusty Pettit, and A.J. Kolodi.

Governor Carper has supported this team with a kind donation of state pins to be traded at the tournament.

The Dragons are self-funded. Anyone who would like to help their cause can call Ed Pilato at 738-4770.

Rounding out the athletic year

► MANLOVE, from 16

I was traded in for a younger model with her next thought of course.

Things to Forget

I will, fortunately, soon forget the way I have been treated this past year by the Newark High School athletic department and one particular Newark athlete's lunatic mother during this past year. Trying to get a schedule was a chore, let alone trying to get any other information from the athletic director at the school.

With all the other schools in the area gladly supplying me with information, setting up appointments for pictures and interviews of their kids, those were the teams and schools who received more attention, and that's only fair.

PUBLIC WORKSHOP CHURCH ROAD (N 382) US 40 to Queensbury Village I CONTRACT #20-119-01

DelDOT, North District Office, Bear, DE
Conference Room

Thursday, June 15, 2000 • 4 p.m.-8 p.m.

The Delaware Department of Transportation (DelDOT) announces that a Public Workshop will be held to discuss the proposed improvements to Church Road, from US Route 40 to the proposed Queensbury Village I Development. The workshop will be held on Wednesday, June 15, 2000, between the hours of 4 p.m. and 8 p.m., at the Delaware Department of Transportation, North District office, Conference Room, 250 Bear-Christiana Rd., Bear, Delaware.

Improvements are needed on Church Road to address issues to the new Leasure School, and future transportation demands from proposed developments along Church Road. Church Road is currently a narrow road with no pedestrian or bicycle facilities. The workshop will provide an update of the project and present a recommended design for public consideration. Design alternatives were presented at a public workshop held in August 1999. The workshop will also provide a comparison of the recommended design, which includes a new public street through the Queensbury Village II Development, to a design that would not include a new public street.

Interested persons are invited to express their views in writing, giving reasons for support of, or in opposition to, the proposed projects. Comments will be received during the workshop or can be mailed to DelDOT's Office of External Affairs, P.O. Box 778, Dover, DE 19903. If requested in advance, DelDOT will make the services of an interpreter available for the hearing impaired. If an interpreter is desired, please make the request by phone or mail a week in advance.

For further information contact the Office of External Affairs at 1-800-652-5600 (in DE) or 302-760-2080 or write to the Office of External Affairs at the above address.
