THIS WEEK

Christmas Is For Children

The NewArk Post announces a Christmas Is For Children holiday project in which newspaper employees will present toys to children being treated at Christiana Hospital during the Chanukkah and Christmas seasons.

"We ask you to help children have a more joyful holiday season by contributing new, unwrapped toys," said Neil Thomas, editor of the Post. "Toys can be dropped off at our office in the Robscott Building on Chestnut Hill Road from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Remember, Christmas is a time for sharing."

Children range in age from infants to 13 year olds, according to an official with the hospital.

It is estimated that the project will require toys for about 40 children.

For details contact Jill Johnson, Christmas Is For Children project coordinator, at 737-0905.

The fabulous inns of old New Castle

by Nancy Turner

Of the Post staff

While fallen leaves of scarlet, gold and brown swirl and dance outside along damp cobblestone streets in Old New Castle, warm hospitality awaits just inside the town's half dozen colonial bed and breakfast guest houses.

During the past decade, bed and breakfast lodging has become increasingly popular among tourists who have found that an overnight stay in a privately owned home adds extra dimension to their vacations.

Historic New Castle has six guest houses, which combine with the popular David Finney Inn to create a total of 32 available tourist rooms.

Often impeccably decorated with period furnishings and antiques and brimming with cozy extras ranging from bedside snacks to video movies, the real lure of B&Bs is their ability to make guests feel "at home."

What kind of tourists like bed and breakfast accommodations?

Generally, they are easy going persons who appreciate variety, don't mind surprises, enjoy meeting new people, and don't over value their privacy. B&B guests are usually couples and almost never families, since supersonic sneakers and uncontrollable curiosities are not welcomed in the presence of valuable furnishings and rare antiques of most B&B homes.

"You have to be bed and breakfast types," said Julia Cripps, co-owner of the Ross House at 129 E. 2nd Street.

"A lot of these places don't have private baths," explained Cripps, adding that, unlike our European cousins, "this turns many Americans off."

"I would say that 50 percent of the people who call for reservations are not prepared to share a bath," said Cripps. Her guests have their choice of either queen or double bed accommodations; however, the house's one guest bathroom and sitting room is shared.

Occasionally she makes an exception by renting one bedroom with exclusive use of the bath and sitting room, for an adjusted rate, obviously.

Cripps and Lu Jones purchased the Ross House in 1983 and began extensive renovations, exposing original brick work, hammered tin ceilings and pine plank flooring, before introducing mostly contemporary furnishings.

Brader elementary dedicated Sunday

by Cathy Thomas

Of the Post staff

Something that hasn't happened in Delaware for 14 years happened Sunday in Newark.

A new school was dedicated.

The Henry M. Brader Elementary School in Four Seasons opened its doors when the school year began in September.

"As lieutenant governor, I attend a lot of openings," said Dale Wolf during the afternoon dedication ceremonies. "This is the first opening of a new school I've ever been to in Delaware."

A one-story building with a brick exterior, the school cost about $6 million to build. The 28-room facility is considered a state-of-the-art design.

"We appreciate the design," said Dr. Leslie T. Morrill, Brader principal. "It reflects our focus on the children."

The Christina School District

paid for construction of the school through a referendum approved by voters several years ago.

"This building...is a recognition by the people who live in Christina of the importance of public education," said Paul Fine, state board of education president. "It will help us make Delaware one of the shining stars."

Dr. William E. Russell, acting superintendent of the Christina District, said the school is the result of cooperation between the state, the district and parents.

"This is a very happy time for us," he said. "There have been a lot of people in Delaware who worked in a cooperative effort with us."

Property tax proposal up for discussion

by Cathy Thomas

Of the Post staff

Citizens can comment on a proposed three percent Newark city property tax hike during a public hearing Monday night.

The tax increase — the first since 1983 — is included in the city's 1990 budget.

The $14.9 million budget is an 11.7 percent increase over the city's current spending plan.

City Manager Carl Luft said the increased revenues from property taxes will fund the debt service from bond issues. The bond issues have been proposed to fund major capital improvement projects.

"The budget is predicated," said Luft in a memorandum to City Council, "on the authority by public referendum to borrow approximately $5 million to $5.5 million to fund portions of the water treatment plant, police facility and parkland acquisition projects."

Council is expected to ask residents to approve the bond issues on an April referendum.

If approved, the hike would raise the tax rate to $36 per $100 of assessed value. Taxes on a home with an assessed value of $75,000 (real market value is usually much higher) will increase approximately $23 a year.

The city's budget includes $12.3 million for the operating budget and $900,000 for the capital budget. Funds are also allocated to debt service and unappropriated surplus.

The city's operating budget increases 10.9 percent in 1990 with most of the funds — $8.8 million — going to personal services.

The budget increase, according to Luft, is due to the addition of eight full-time city positions. Among the new positions proposed are four police officers.

Council will conduct the public hearing at 8 p.m. Monday night during their regular meeting in the municipal building. Final consideration of the budget is slated for Dec. 11.

Time capsule taken

by Cathy Thomas

Of the Post staff

A time capsule buried in Newark may have been opened 87 years too early.

University of Delaware Police are investigating the disappearance of the time capsule and vandalism to the granite slab which covered it.

At the same time, police are checking into the possibility that the capsule, buried during the city's bicentennial celebration in 1976, was already missing when vandals removed the granite slab late Thursday or early Friday.

Henry Galperin, editor and publisher of the old Newark Weekly Post, spearheaded an effort to bury the time capsule 13 years ago.

The capsule was placed in the ground in front of the Academy Building on Main Street during a special ceremony on July 1, 1976. The Academy Building housed city offices at that time.

The vandalism was discovered Friday by a University employee reporting to work in the Academy Building.

Bob Thomas of the Newark Historical Society said the capsule may have been removed by vandals two years ago. He received reports then that the capsule was disturbed.

Rather than remove the granite slab to check, Thomas said Society members decided to leave it alone.

News of the time capsule's disappearance shocked Galperin.

"It was the only time capsule that the whole City of Newark buried during the bicentennial," he said. "It was to be a piece of history that people could enjoy 100 years from now."

Galperin said the capsule contained pieces of memorabilia — copies of the Post, maps, snapshots. He said the contents of the capsule did not have great monetary value.

"There's nothing of any material value in there," he said. "We'd like to get it return-

Colonial Garden report is due

□ Newark fire investigators are awaiting a engineering report before they can determine what caused the Oct. 26 fire at Colonial Garden Apartments.

City Fire Marshal Ken Farrall said preliminary evidence indicates that electrical problems may have caused the fire. However, a final determination on the cause cannot be made until the damaged building is torn down.

Farrall said the engineers must provide a structural report on the building before the process of demolition can begin.

No one was injured in the mid-day fire that destroyed Building G of the apartment complex on Main Street.

Woman injured in hit, run

□ A 27-year-old Greenville woman was injured Nov. 2 when she was struck by a car on West Main Street, city police said.

According to police, the driver of the car left the scene of the accident.

Melissa Haendler of Senatorial Drive is listed in fair condition at Christiana Hospital.

Police said she was crossing Main Street about 8:55 p.m. when a small, dark car hit her. According to the report, she was carried about 20 feet and thrown to the pavement.

Anyone with information about the accident is asked to contact the Newark Police Department at 366-7118.

UD student hurt in crash

□ A University of Delaware student was critically injured in a two-car collision early Saturday morning at Academy Street and East Park Place, city police said.

Michelle Howland of Huntington Village, Pa. is listed in critical condition at Christiana Hospital.

Howland was a passenger in a car driven by Matthew Jones, 20, of Newark. Jones is in fair condition at Christiana Hospital.

According to police, Jones' vehicle and a car driven by Robert Stella, 20, of Wilmington collided in the intersection about 2:14 a.m.

Another passenger in the Jones vehicle, Ilse Kalfus, received minor injuries in the accident.

Shields speaks on gun control

□ A nationally recognized spokesman for handgun control will speak in Newark Nov. 16.

Pete Shields believes that violence can be reduced and lives can be saved by limiting the use and availability of handguns.

Shields helped form Handgun Control, Inc., a national citizens' lobby, after his son was murdered in California's 1974 Zebra killings. Handgun Control, Inc. now has a budget of more than $4 million and has more than a million members and supporters.

His talk is scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16 in Newark United Methodist Church on Main Street.

Carper talks to future voters

by Cathy Thomas

Of the Post staff

U.S. Rep. Thomas R. Carper received minimum wage of $1 an hour from a part-time job twenty years ago. Today, a wage of $5 per hour would have the same spending power, he said.

The minimum wage hike approved by the U.S. House last week was on the minds of Christiana High School students meeting with Carper Monday.

Carper conducted a town meeting with the students, giving them the opportunity to question him about recent events in Congress.

Carper told the students that the House voted to raise the minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.25 by April 1991. The bill will also establish a training wage for teenagers with less than six months of experience.

Carper, who sits on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, answered questions about environmental problems. Pesticides are a threat to the country's water supply, he said.

"One of the biggest problems we have is use of pesticides on the land," said Carper. "The pesticides lay on the land and some of it goes down in the ground into the aquifer."

Once the aquifer is contaminated, Carper said, the water runs off into the bays.

"It's happening all over the country," he said. "We need to pass a law that controls the use of pesticides and insecticides."

Carper was critical of the Reagan administration environmental policies but said things are changing under the Bush administration.

Carper started off his talk with the students telling them about a day in the life of a congressman.

"I start my days early," he said. "I catch the 6:30 train (from Delaware to Washington, D.C.)."

After he arrives in Washington, Carper said he works out a gym and then reports to Congress. Much of the day, he said, is spent in subcommittee meetings.

"Usually, I finish up in Washington about 6:30 p.m.," he said.

Carper said when he returns to Delaware each evening, he often has two speaking engagements to attend.

Salary increases in UD request

University of Delaware officials are requesting $70.1 million from the state for 1990, a 6 percent increase in operating funds over the current year.

University President Dr. E. Arthur Trabant presented the budget request to the governor's staff, focusing on the need for salary increases, curriculum enhancement and facility improvements.

Trabant also requested $7 million in capital funds to continue financing for the construction of a new science building and a new sports center.

In making the funding requests, Trabant said the University places a high priority on addressing employee salary inequities.

"Salaries paid in the local economy continue to increase faster than those paid by state and non-profit employers," he said.

While some progress has been made, Trabant said, the university has "not reached a level of compensation that will ensure our ability to hire and retain the highest quality employees."

Two significant additions to the curriculum of the University have resulted in program funding requests, Trabant said.

The request includes $90,000 for faculty in the new hotel, restaurant and institutional management program in the College of Human Resources and $136,625 to fund the equivalent of three, full-time faculty and support costs associated with implementing three new degree programs in southern Delaware.

Also among the university funding requests were:

- $25,000 to expand the training component of a minority recruitment program.

- $408,000 for library materials and binding.

- $205,500 increase in the energy allocation for the state-funded portions of new facilities on campus.

- $200,000 for aid to needy students.

- $1.1 million for minor capital improvements aimed at increasing safety and handicapped accessibility on the campus.

The University's capital requests include $3 million for the science building and $4 million for the sports-convocation center.

Two men arrested for string of bank robberies.

Delaware State Police believe they have solved a string of bank robberies, including one in Newark, which plagued New Castle County this summer.

Last week, troopers announced the arrest of two Wilmington men in connection with the robberies.

Detectives arrested William Yeates, 27, and Edwin Corbin, 32, on Nov. 1 and charged them with six bank robberies that occurred between March 6 and Sept. 27.

"What we hope everyone has learned from this is that Delaware is a bad place to commit a bank robbery," said Col. Clifford M. Graviet, State Police superintendent, in announcing the arrests.

There have been 23 bank robberies in New Castle County this year, 12 within the jurisdiction of the State Police.

These arrests, Graviet said, clear State Police bank robbery investigations.

Graviet said Yeates was arrested in connection with an Oct. 28 robbery at Silverside Liquors in Wilmington. During the investigation of the liquor store holdup, detectives determined that Yeates' palmprint was found during one of the bank robbery investigations.

Further investigation led detectives to Corbin, and the two men were arrested without incident.

"We believe drugs were a motivating factor in these robberies," said Graviet.

Edwin Corbin

William Yeates

Graviet said during most of the robberies, Yeates would go in the bank by himself and Corbin would drive the get-away car. During the last robbery, Graviet said, Corbin entered the bank with Yeates.

No one was injured in the robberies, but Graviet said "Yeates became more and more aggressive each time."

Police suspect that Yeates and Graviet may be connected with at least one out-of-state bank robbery — the May 10 holdup at the Elmwood Federal Savings and Loan near Franklin Center, Pa.

Patrick Murray, State Secretary of Public Safety, was on hand when the arrests were announced to congratulate the State Police.

"We knew we had an epidemic of bank robberies here in northern Delaware," said Murray. "They all fit the same MO (method of operation)." Murray said several State Police detectives worked long hours to solve the robberies.

Both Yeates and Corbin are charged with six counts of first-degree robbery and second-degree conspiracy. Yeates was also charged with the robbery of Silverside Liquors on Oct. 28.

The charges are in connection with the following robberies:

- Mellon Bank in Concord Mall, Monday, March 26.
- First Federal Bank in Brannan Plaza, Tuesday, April 18.
- Mellon Bank on Marsh Road, Thursday, June 22.
- Mellon Bank in Chesnut Hill Plaza, Tuesday, July 25.
- WSFS in Claymont, Thursday, Aug. 17.
- Mellon Bank in Concord Mall, Wednesday, Sept. 27.

Yeates and Corbin were committed to Gander Hill Prison in lieu of bond.

ed no questions asked."

The capsule measures about five feet in length and 10 inches in diameter. Rounded on both ends, the capsule was designed and donated by the DuPont Company.

The capsule, made of Aldyl polyethylene, was actually piping for gas distribution. In a June 30, 1976 issue of the Post, Galperin said the capsule was months in the designing stages to assure that the artifacts placed inside would endure the test of time. The capsule was to be opened during the nation's tricentennial celebration.

"We hope that it will bring history closer to the people of that era in a way unlike that normally provided by books and photographs," Galperin said in the June 30, 1976 issue.

Among the items in the capsule were:

- The Post's special bicentennial edition.
- Snapshots and tape recordings of the bicentennial ceremony.
- Winning entries in the Newark bicentennial writing contest.
- A dictionary.
- A telephone book.
- The 1976 Guinness Book of World Records.
- A copy of the People's Bicentennial Commission Book.
- A $2 bill.
- Special bicentennial coins.
- A map of the Newark School District.
- A tie clasp with the New Castle County seal.

□ A copy of the Newark city budget.

Anyone with information about the time capsule is asked to call University police investigator Dennis Anderson at 451-2222.

BRADER

sion was the man for whom the building is named, Henry M. Brader.

Brader, a long-time educator and administrator in the Newark schools, reflected on his experiences with children.

One day, a red-haired child spotted Brader's secretary in the hallway.

"I know you," the child said to the secretary. "Mr. Brader works for you."

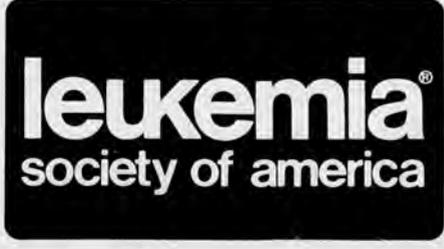

Another child was told to put the flag on the pole outside the school. A few minutes later, the child returned with the flag.

Brader asked the child if he was having problems with the flag.

"I got it on the pole," the child replied, "but it wouldn't wave."

Another elementary school near Newark is already in the planning stages. A site has not been finalized but it will likely be built in the area of the Salem Woods development.

EDITORIALS

Hope for return of time capsule

July 4, 1976 was a particularly festive day in Newark.

The United States celebrated the 200th anniversary of its Declaration of Independence from Great Britain and Newarkers rejoiced by burying a time capsule in the front lawn of the Academy Building.

The capsule contained various mementos of the day — newspapers, photographs and a tape of the ceremony.

Community members became a part of the event, dropping business cards and snapshots into the tube before it was hermetically sealed to be opened by a new generation of Newarkers in 2076.

July 4, 2076. That, too, was to have been a festive day.

Not now.

At least not in the same way.

Vandals dug up the time capsule last week and stole a piece of Newark's history.

It was a particularly mean thing to do. The time capsule contained nothing of real worth except for the inherent historic and celebratory value.

We hope it will be returned.

ERCON aids victims

When disaster strikes, the Emergency Response Committee of Newark is on the scene to serve as a link between the victims and organizations which offer relief.

Most recently, ERCON attended to victims of the devastating fire at Colonial Gardens apartments.

Now ERCON is in need of help from the community. Its funds were depleted in meeting the needs of fire victims and must be replenished so the committee can help the next time disaster strikes.

To make donations, send checks to the Emergency Response Committee of Newark, Newark Emergency Center, P.O. Box 7559, Newark, DE 19714, or call 738-4017.

Football memories score big

Growing up in Newark, I've always had this thing about football.

I guess it comes with the territory.

In the early Sixties, the sport was on a roll nationally thanks to the backyard touch football games enjoyed by President John F. Kennedy and family.

And it was particularly popular here with successful programs at both the University of Delaware and Newark High School.

The Blue Hens were running that strange formation called the Wing T under the watchful eyes of David Nelson and later Tubby Raymond, while Newark High was building a dynasty under Robert Hoffman.

My first love was for the Newark High School Yellow-jackets.

Like nearly every other kid in town, I was equipped with a ratty black curduroy jacket with "Newark" stitched across the back in bright yellow letters. I must have gone through five or six of those jackets during the course of my adolescence.

I'll never forget my first Newark game because my aunt, then a student at Newark High, was nice enough to take me. And our companion, her best friend, was the Yellow-jacket mascot! I'd died and gone to heaven.

I remember tuning my transistor radio (that dates me) to WNRK to listen to Newark High games featuring the peerless offensive trio of quarterback Bob Tucker, halfback Pedro Swann and end Gary Hayman.

The phrase "Tucker, Swann and Hayman" still carries a lot of magic.

My father was kind enough to drive me to Middletown for the Delaware high school game of the century when Newark ended Middletown High's 50-plus game winning streak.

As I was learning to enjoy the game, I had grown old enough to join in the neighborhood sandlot games.

Those were wild affairs which at one point evolved into competition between neighborhoods. I played for Windy Hills, and we did battle against Chapel Hill (most often) and occasionally the kids from all the way across town in Oaklands.

Fifteen or more raggedy kids would troop down Kirkwood Highway and up Possum Park Road to Holy Angels field for the big game.

Unlike the organized versions, these football games featured inverted lineups in which the largest kids played the fun positions — quarterback, running backs, ends — while the little kids played the line.

There is no sight quite like an 80 pound defensive tackle trying to bring down a 200 pound halfback.

But we had fun and nobody got hurt.

Arming the law for drug war

For the past two months the U.S. Senate has been wrestling with the fine details of the national drug strategy — what it should accomplish, how much it will cost and who will shoulder the responsibility of making it work.

A great deal has been accomplished in this short period of time. We have expanded the goals of the drug policy to get better results and to provide a yardstick to measure what works and what doesn't. We have added new programs, in areas such as anti-drug education and treatment, to create a more balanced and effective anti-drug effort. And we have directed new resources to our

SENATE REPORT

law enforcement agencies, to provide them with the tools to do the job. A truly comprehensive, bipartisan policy is taking shape.

Last week, we focused attention on the front line of the drug battle — state and local law enforcement agencies. While drugs are a problem of international scope, the impact of the drug problem is felt most dramatically at the local level — in our streets, in our neighborhoods and with our families. The police who patrol their beats and collar local drug dealers are our first line of defense against this enemy.

I proposed, and the Senate accepted, an amendment to the criminal justice funding bill that would more than double federal assistance to Delaware's police and law enforcement agencies. Last year, Delaware received $734,000 in federal assistance. Under the measure passed last week this figure would grow to more than $1.9 million in 1990, an increase of $1.2 million above last year's level.

Our national effort to combat drugs will not be solved with one drug policy or in a given year. It has taken decades to become the massive problem that it is today and it will take years to bring under control. But I am hopeful when I see the kind of support exhibited by Congress last week in providing our law enforcement officials with the basic resources they need.

Bank of Delaware announces the end of bankers' hours...

'Trick or Treat' was overwhelming

Marguerite Ashley
Development Coordinator
Newark Business Association

On the evening before Halloween, the Newark Business Association and most Main Street stores invited children to "Trick or Treat Main Street." We were astounded at the response! More than 1,000 young beasties and beauties jammed the sidewalks and turned a small promotion into a major event.

Among Main Street merchants, "Trick or Treat Main Street" has quickly achieved the status of a legend, with tales of spending hundreds of unplanned dollars to replenish candy supplies four and five times — recounted with a smile at the memory of the sense of goodwill and community that inhabited Main Street that night.

We regret any inconvenience caused to participants by stores that ran out of treats to give away. Because this was the first "Trick or Treat Main Street" ever, we had no idea there would be such a massive turnout.

We wish to thank everyone who did turn out for the event — the children whose costumes warmed and amused us and the adults for bringing the kids and waiting patiently in line with them.

See you all downtown.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving

In just a few weeks the holiday season will be here. While the holidays are a joyous time of the year, they are also a time when alcohol is very much a part of the social scene.

Police departments

throughout the state work long hours to insure the safety of Delaware citizens, and especially so during this time of year. Increased law enforcement will mean escalation in roadside sobriety checkpoints.

The checkpoints are important, although the general public and opponents of checkpoints believe they relate to arrest totals and (they) argue based on this belief that checkpoints are not efficient in terms of arrests per patrol hour.

The public perceives them at times as an inconvenience. However, the number of arrests made is not the primary objective. The primary objective is deterring the potential impaired driver by raising his perception of the risk of arrest. Documented studies have proven that checkpoint operations do this more effectively and efficiently than any other form of DUI enforcement.

Each year some 1.8 million arrests are made for drunken driving in this country but it is also estimated that for each arrest anywhere from 300 to 2,000 trips are made by undetected drunken drivers. The probability of an impaired driver being stopped is minimal using standard DUI enforcement procedures. It is then essential that efforts be carried out in a manner which has the greatest impact on the individual who is likely to drive impaired.

Traditional enforcement methods require police officers to patrol and watch for erratic driving which may provide a sign that the driver is impaired. The officers must be alert to these drivers while at the same time being involved in other aspects of highway safety and responding to complaints and emergency calls.

Sobriety checkpoints increase the probability of catching offenders by introducing an element of unpredictability — the driver can be stopped even though no other driving infractions are apparent.

Checkpoints are well-planned and executed. They are usually conducted during nighttime hours when most drinking and driving occurs. After a motorist is stopped, he or she is briefly interviewed.

If the police find no impairment, the motorist is permitted to continue.

Generally, this phase of the checkpoint takes one minute, a minute amount of time out of our daily schedule for a procedure that is helping to save lives.

State services not up to par

State Rep. William A. Oberle Jr.
Newark

(Following is a copy of a letter sent to Gov. Michael N. Castle.)

It has become apparent to me over the last several years that the quality and level of state services are not what they should be. Rather than point a finger at any one individual or cite statistics similar to those recently released naming Delaware as the unhealthiest place in the nation, I would like to offer a suggestion or two aimed at turning this trend around.

As you know, I refused to support your most recent tax cut proposal. I did so for what I consider to be sound and prudent reasons. Contrary to popular political reasoning I believe that, again, shorting the revenue stream at the expense of Delaware's needy and deserving is simply not in the best interest of our citizens, short or long-term.

Obviously, money does not solve problems or alleviate suffering. However, the lack of it certainly limits our ability to address legitimate problems in a meaningful way.

The many statistics and surveys that cast a pall over Delaware can no longer be considered anomalies. They reflect a serious trend that will at some point far outweigh any economic gains that we have made in reducing our personal tax burden.

I am told that my objection to your tax cut proposal, my drive for competitive salary levels for state employees and my bipartisan support for a statewide paramedic system makes me a "bad Republican," or at least one who is "off the reservation." I would like to think of myself as being in tune with my constituency and their needs.

In closing, I would like to ask you to rethink your position with regard to your tax cut proposal. Since the Senate has yet to act, and it may be one of the few times their inaction is a God-send, it is not too late.

Let's collectively and aggressively deal with the serious problems that impact us all. It is in that spirit that I make this request.

Glasgow man is honored

The Governor's Distinguished Service Award was presented to George B. Wallace Sr. of Glasgow on Nov. 1.

A communications operations manager for the state, Wallace was cited for his more than 30 years of state service.

According to Gov. Castle, Wallace saved Delaware taxpayers thousands of dollars during his tenure.

"Because of Mr. Wallace's great expertise in the communications field," said Castle, "the services of outside consultants have not been required...instead we just let George do it."

Wallace is credited with making sophisticated modifications to the radio system of the Delaware State Police in 1987.

Wallace entered the communications field while serving in the U.S. Navy from 1955 to 1959. He began working with the state shortly after his naval discharge.

A volunteer fire fighter, Wallace was honored as State Fireman of the Year in 1966 for rescuing a 7-year-old girl from a burning home in Glendale.

Child knows a good neighbor

by Robin Lucas

When nine-year-old Lauren Lydic went to Newark Community Day, she was not expecting anything out-of-the-ordinary to happen.

But what happened was indeed extraordinary because when she entered the Newark Area Welfare Committee's short essay contest, she won first place and a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

"The sign at the booth said to write what I thought a good neighbor was, so I said OK. And then I thought about my old neighbors in Texas," said Lydic.

"They were really nice. They had this really hilly yard that was great for sledding, and they'd let us sled there. Our yard was flat so we used to sled on their. They were good neighbors to us."

The contest involved completing in 25 words or less the phrase "A good neighbor is...."

Lauren's went like this: "A good neighbor is someone who is kind, who shares and gives help when needed."

Although the message is simple and basic, according to the Newark Area Welfare Committee, her words reflect their mission exactly.

Says the contest's creator and NAWC volunteer Marie Ruskay, "In the simplest terms, this committee is based on the notion of neighbor-helping-neighbor, and the winning essay expressed that in a succinct way. Her definition truly reflects the mission of the Newark Area Welfare Committee."

Ruskay says that the goal of this contest was to reach out to Newark area children and have them think about what being a neighbor really means. "To get a child to think about an abstract and somewhat grown-up issue like being a good neighbor is a real challenge. We're hoping to raise the consciousness of our youth and a contest such as this one can help."

Another reason for children to be aware of the mission of the NAWC is because many of those served by the organization are youngsters. According to volunteer Marian Leibfried, a large portion of funds and food go to a younger sector of the Newark area population.

"In 1988, we helped out 141

people with our cash assistance committee — 125 of those people were children," said said. "And, in 1989, in just seven months we had served 609 people from the food cupboard, 345 of whom were children."

Participating in the NAWC essay contest was not the only activity that Lauren engaged in during Community Day. She also managed to make a doll bed, draw a horse poster, and make a clay bowl.

But, according to Lauren, winning the contest, was the most exciting result of the entire affair. "After I wrote down what I thought a good neighbor was, my mom and I left. But then a few days later, someone called on the phone and said I won!! It was really neat!"

And according to Lauren's mother, the youngster has always had friendly neighbors from which she has learned the notion of good neighborism. "In the 2 1/2-years that we've lived in Newark, our neighbors and I have done quite a bit for one another. We water each other's plants, mow one another's lawns, and just help out where we can," says Joan Mettler.

Marie Ruskay says that if each person does their own little good, then together, regardless of age, it will make the difference. "The Newark Area Welfare Committee was founded by one person with that vision, and look what it's grown into."

The Newark Area Welfare Committee provides food, emergency cash assistance and Christmas baskets to residents of Newark who are in need. To volunteer your time, canned goods or funds, call 731-5364.

For the annual Christmas Basket drive, the Welfare Committee will be collecting canned goods Dec. 16-20, packing baskets on Dec. 21 and delivering them the next day. For information call 731-5364.

Smokers asked to put down cigarettes

Area smokers are being encouraged to "leave the pack behind" by the American Cancer Society, which will hold its Great American Smokeout on Thursday, Nov. 16.

During the week before the event, now in its 13th year, smokers in Newark and across the state will be provided opportunities to pledge to quit on Nov. 16 by signing any of 13 giant cigarettes that will be placed at various businesses, schools and hospitals.

Non-smokers can sign the cigarettes with the names of friends and relatives they hope will curb their habit on Smokeout day.

The American Cancer Society's Newark Unit will display its cigarette Nov. 13 at Christiana High School and Nov. 14 in front of National 5 & 10 on Main Street.

On Smokeout day, that cigarette and a dozen others from around the state will be taken to Legislative Hall in Dover where they will be crushed in a garbage truck.

Also that day, the Newark Unit will be handing out buttons, literature and rings from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the University of Delaware Perkins Student Center on Academy Street and at National 5 & 10.

Delaware March of Dimes has joined the American Cancer Society in marking the Great American Smokeout. It urges pregnant women and women planning pregnancy to stop smoking.

"Cigarette smoking is clearly associated with an increase in stillbirth, miscarriage, prematurity, low birthweight and infant death," said John Henry Felix, March of Dimes chairman. "We hope that pregnant women who smoke will take advantage of the Great American Smokeout to give their babies the best chance for a healthy birth."

For information on the effects of smoking during pregnancy, contact the March of Dimes office in Newark at 737-1310.

Has it been a year, it seems like yesterday
A whisper of an angel's wings and then he went away
No more limps for soccer, school or football too
Now alone, no small arms to hold and comfort you
The funny smile that greeted you, the lips to kiss goodnight
Don't leave me yet, please don't turn out the light

How tired you were and the energy gained
When he stormed into the room and called your name
Come on let's do it, right now I say
It's got to be now, can't wait another day
Okay I'm coming just wait please do
Good glory some days I can't keep up with you

But now the memories are all that are left
So numerous to count hold tight to them yet
For as long as they're there and his face you can see
The comfort of knowing beside you he'll be
And no matter the years that slip slowly past
All through eternity love for Jason will last.

Education is not just for kids

Beinvolved. That's the message Gov. Michael N. Castle wants to get across to the community during American Education Week. "It is absolutely essential that every parent in the community understand the importance of the education of their children," said Castle. "Education is not just for the kids. It's for all of us." Castle signed a proclamation Tuesday morning at Newark's Cobbs-Gauger School declaring Nov. 12-18 as American Education Week in Delaware.

Castle visited an integrated classroom, which mixes special education and non-handicapped students. The class is taught by Susan Mason and Phyllis Sokol. In speaking to the seven and eight-year-olds, Castle emphasized the importance of working hard now. "You must really pay attention to your teachers," Castle told the children. "They can make a big difference in your life." "Everyone in Delaware thinks your education is important." After signing the proclamation, Castle opened the floor to questions from the children. "Should we kill animals and stuff them?" asked one boy. "I think that should be done carefully," said Castle, "especially in this day and age when animals are threatened with extinction." The questions varied from his job and travels to whether he had prisoners and if he was mean. Castle joked with the children that some people might think he is mean but that he tried not to be. "Can you stop grownups from drinking beer?" asked one child. "We won't prohibit people from drinking beer," said Castle. "Frankly, you're better off if you don't drink at all." Following his meeting with the students, Castle said he faced some tough questions from them. "The kids seem very bright and alert," he said. "They asked good questions. "I thought it was a class in which the teachers were interested in what they're doing. I got a sense of the true interest in education."

School needs minority teachers

Christina School District officials are looking at innovative ways to attract minority teachers to their schools. College placement directors visited the district last week at the invitation of Christina officials. The hope is that the placement directors will encourage minority students to consider a teaching career with Christina. "The minority teacher shortage is a growing problem across the country," said Dr. Ethel M. Hines, Christina supervisor of personnel. "I've been recruiting for the district for six or seven years. What I've noticed is other schools are experiencing the same thing we are." Hines said the district has been growing so rapidly, they have not been able to recruit enough minority teachers. Such minority teachers are necessary, she said, to serve as role models to minority students. "That is a big issue with us," said Hines. "We believe students should have role models representing their own cultural and ethnic backgrounds." More minority students must be attracted to the education field, Hines said. She said there are many reasons that students don't enter the education field, including low teacher salaries. "Business and industry have opened their doors much wider for minorities," she said. Hines serves on committees studying the issue and is hopeful that more minorities will enter the teaching profession. One step being taken, she said, is to convey positive attitudes about the profession, encouraging younger students to enter the field. Hines said the meetings with college placement directors gave her a chance to showcase the district. "What we wanted to do is make them aware that Delaware has a lot to offer," she said. "Christina has a lot to offer."

UDeI student studying life cycle of insect

Many people welcome the onset of winter as a time when bugs are, for the most part, either dead or dormant. Not Chris DeHeer. The Newark native is spending his winter trying to keep his bugs alive. That might seem peculiar, but there is a good reason for DeHeer's unusual concern for his bugs. The University of Delaware junior is studying the behavior and life cycle of Piesmatidae, a relatively unknown group of insects, as part of his Science and Engineering Scholar fellowship. "If my bugs die this winter, I'm left high and dry in terms of my research," DeHeer explains. "One of the more interesting things about Piesmatidae is their mate-guarding behavior. The male rides the female and fends off other males," DeHeer says. DeHeer has been studying Piesmatids since May under the guidance of Dr. Douglas W. Tallamy, associate professor of insect ecology in the university's department of entomology and applied ecology and initiator of the research. He received a $2,000 scholarship from the university's Science and Engineering Scholar Program that helped to fund his research through the summer. DeHeer, a graduate of St. Mark's High School, is also the recipient of a $5,000 scholarship as one of six State of Delaware Carvel Agricultural Scholars. The scholarship is part of a scholars program that supports twenty outstanding students in the university's College of Agricultural Sciences. DeHeer is working on a degree with distinction. At present he has a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Surfer to share success secrets

Michael Tomson

If you're into surfing, fashion or starting your own business, Michael Tomson has a message for you.

Tomson, 35, a former professional surfer and founder of Gotcha Sportswear Inc., will share his secrets of success at 2 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10 in 140 Smith Hall on the University of Delaware campus in Newark.

Tomson was a competitive surfer from age 12 and turned professional in 1974, competing internationally.

In 1978, he was ranked fifth in the world and was named the International Professional Surfers Association Sportsman of the Year.

The following year, Tomson and college classmate Joel Cooper formed Gotcha, which operated from a house in Laguna Beach, Calif.

Cooper was responsible for finance and production, and Tomson for design and marketing.

Friday, Tomson will explain how the pair built their beachwear business from $500,000 in sales that first year to full line sportswear company which last year had U.S. sales of more than $100 million.

Tomson credits the success of Gotcha to a knowledge of beach styles gained through the world surfing circuit, innovative designs, provocative advertising and a good deal of energy.

Tomson and Cooper have developed markets for their designs in Europe and Japan and Gotcha is now the second largest surfwear maker in the world.

The talk is free and open to the public. It is presented in celebration of the 75th anniversary of the University of Delaware Department of Textiles, Design and Consumer Economics.

UD faculty recognized for software

"Introduction to Statistics," a package of computer-based instructional lessons developed at the University of Delaware, has won the 1989 National Center for Research to Improve Postsecondary Teaching and Learning Higher Education Award for Best Tutorial software of the year.

Three University faculty members — Arthur E. Hoerl, professor emeritus, and John H. Schuenemeyer, professor, both of mathematical sciences; and Victor R. Martuza, professor of educational studies — jointly authored the package.

Design and programming support was provided by the research and development unit of Academic Computing and Instructional Technology (ACIT).

Mary Jac Reed, who is now at Grand State University, served as development manager for the program.

The award winning package was partially funded by Digital Equipment Corporation (DEC) as part of a cooperative program with the University of Delaware designed to test and demonstrate DEC's computer-based educational development and delivery system.

The program consists of 24 different modules that cover topics in basic and intermediate statistics. Each permits considerable learner control over instructional sequence.

Award winners were selected by a national panel of judges. Of the 200 programs evaluated, 14 were presented with best software awards at the EDUCOM annual meeting, held last month in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

EDUCOM is a consortium of more than 500 colleges, universities and other institutions founded in 1964 to facilitate the introduction, use and management of information technology in higher education.

Newark runs away with county title

Echoes of the past were called to life Saturday in Carpenter State Park when the Newark High School boys cross country team topped archrival Salesianum for the New Castle County championship and set its sights on a state title.

Newark has a long, proud tradition in cross country and the unbeaten 1989 Yellowjackets compare favorably to the 'Jacket teams of yesteryear, particularly the undefeated 1972 team led by John Greenplate and Jim Bray.

Saturday the names were Barry Pollock, John and Lee Brannon, and Bill Conley.

It was Pollock who won the individual county championship, beating out Delcastle's Anthony Stewart to pace Newark to the title.

Pollock, whose first place finish helped Newark edge Salesianum 54-65 in the meet, held off the highly-touted Stewart by 1.3 seconds, coming in at 16:26.7 to Stewart's 16:28.

Newark coach Bob Ward praised Pollock, a transfer student from William Penn, saying that he ran a smart race, pacing himself in the first mile and finishing hard in the third mile.

Also for Newark, John Brannon ran in fourth place at 16:45 and Lee Brannon in seventh at 17:09.

Bunching three runners in the top ten helped Newark immensely.

William Cummings of St. Mark's finished in 10th place at 17:19, Dan Amberg of Glasgow in 11th at 17:28, Brian Conley of Newark in 15th at 17:41, Vin Houck of St. Mark's in 16th at 17:45 and John Thomas of Glasgow in 20th at 17:45. All were named All-New Castle County for their efforts.

The A.I. duPont team won the girls title, its runners winning three of the first four places. Linda Anderson finished first in 20:05.

Teammates Therese Hanley and Lisa Kondraschow finished third and fourth, with Delcastle's Erica Vari sandwiched in second place.

Eighth-ranked Christiana and fifth-ranked Newark advanced to the second round of the 1989 Delaware state high school soccer tournament with victories Tuesday night at Robert Hoffman Stadium.

The Vikings ousted ninth-ranked St. Andrews 4-1 in overtime, scoring three goals in the two ten-minute overtime periods. Newark outgunned a tenacious St. Mark's squad 4-2.

In the Vikings-Saints game, Christiana midfielder Keith Kendall scored the only regulation Viking goal 3:24 into the game.

St. Andrew's tied the game at the 10:00 mark, and when neither team could score in the rest of the first half or the second half, tournament rules called for two ten minute overtimes to be played to completion.

The overtime periods belonged to Christiana. Gary Estep netted what would be the winning Viking goal at the 84:55 mark off an assist from Kendall. Viking sweeper Stan Brunson added not one but two insurance goals, getting his first on a 37-yard rocket restart at the 88 minute mark and his second off an Alex Minor assist at 94:51.

Christiana keeper Tom Copeland, who had ten shutouts during the season, game up with several big saves in the game, including a punch deflection at the end of regulation which helped send the game into overtime.

"We're in real good shape," Christiana coach John Kendall said after the 100 minute marathon game.

Newark and St. Mark's squared off after the double overtime Viking victory in a game that played like a great prize fight.

The 12th-seeded Spartans landed the first scoring blow early in the second half. At the 42:00 minute mark, St. Mark's Joe Beal sent a corner kick to teammate Steve Tolmie, who blasted a header into the back of the Newark net before the Yellowjackets knew what hit them.

But like a championship fighter, the 'Jackets regrouped and landed their own scoring blow only a minute later. 'Jacket midfielder Eric Voigt got through the Spartan defense and connected on a rebound from teammate Chris Ross to tie the game at 1-1 at 43:00.

Ross scored a go-ahead goal for Newark at 52:00 when he headed a Miles Dean throw in past Spartan keeper Travis Ceriaco.

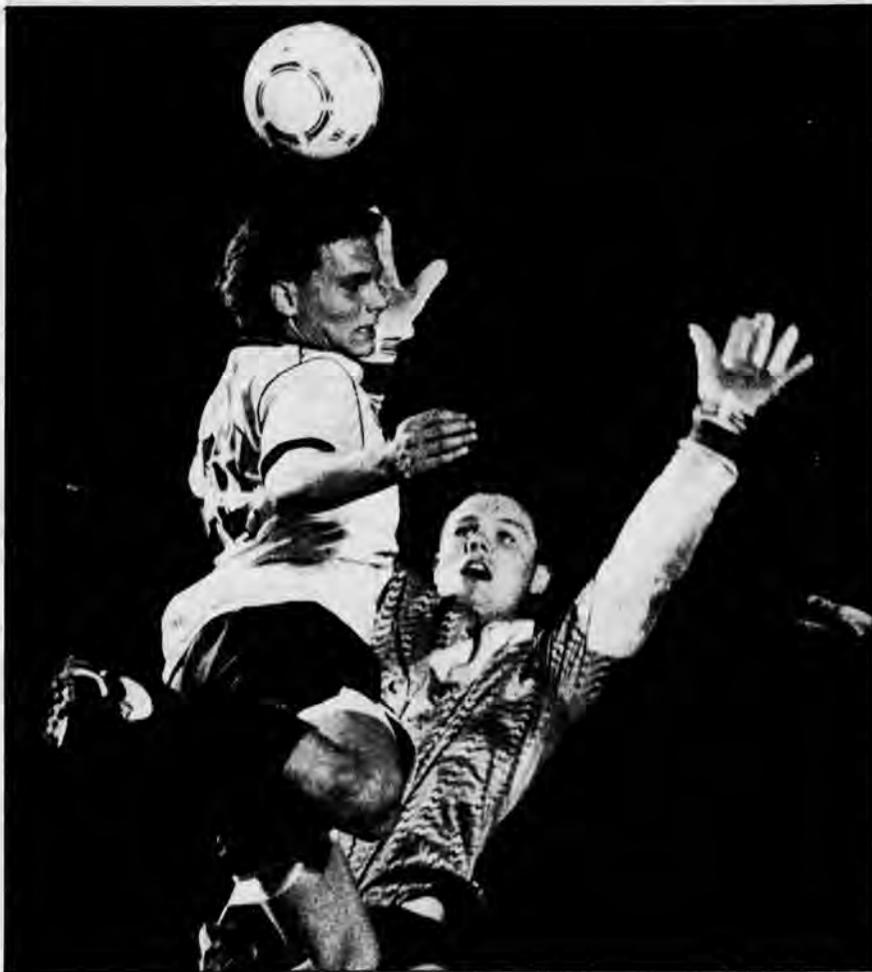

It was St. Mark's turn to strike back, and the Spartans did just that. One minute after the 'Jackets had taken the 2-1 lead, sophomore Jeff Northey took a Chris Louie pass and put it past Newark keeper Doug Rice to tie the game at 2-2.

Newark finally finished off the Spartans when Miles Dean netted the winning goal on an unassisted shot past Ceriaco at the 55 minute mark. Craig Klockars hit an insurance goal off a Steve Smith assist at the 75 minute mark to ice it at 4-2 for the 'Jackets.

"We knew it was going to be a tough game," Dean said after the contest. "St. Mark's came in really emotionally high, we knew it would be tough."

"St. Mark's deserves an awful lot of credit," Newark head coach Hugh Mitchell said afterwards. "It was a great game. We came out a little flat in the second half, and boom, the ball's in the back of the net. But the kid's didn't give up, and we scored in the next couple of minutes."

"I can't say enough about this team," proud Spartan head coach Tom DeMatteis. "The effort was just fantastic. All we heard all year is that this was supposed to be a rebuilding year, and look what these guys have accomplished. We were 1-3 after our first four games, and we ended up only losing two of our last 13 games. I'm really pleased with what these kids did."

St. Mark's stages comeback

by Steve Canaday

Of the Post staff

After the St. Mark's High soccer team lost three of their first four games, few people would have guessed that the Spartans would be one of the 16 teams in Delaware to qualify for the state tournament at season's end.

But the Spartans have done just that.

After a rocky 1-3 start, the Spartan booters have turned the '89 campaign into a very successful one. They've gone 9-1-2 since the fourth game, and with their 10-4-2 overall record, are seeded 12th in the state tournament pairings.

When asked about the turnaround after the first four games, Spartans head coach Tom DeMatteis said that the Spartans had to overcome the inexperience of youth.

"We have a young team," DeMatteis said. "We have ten sophomores, which is more than St. Mark's has ever had on the varsity at once. I think the sophomores got their feet wet in varsity play in the first four games."

DeMatteis explained that the seniors on the team helped the younger players to adjust to varsity play.

"The seniors started to provide the leadership about a quarter of the way into the season," he said. "The team has really come together."

Come together they have. In the 12 games since the 1-3 start, the Spartans only loss has been to top-ranked Salesianum.

Even in the 3-1 loss to the Sal's, DeMatteis was proud of the Spartans' effort. Salesianum scored their final goal in the waning seconds of the game as

Fight-marred victory angers

Glasgow coach Dave Scott

by Steve Canaday

Of the Post staff

It's a rare sight to see a football coach upset after his team has just won a football game. Glasgow High head coach Dave Scott was not merely upset, he was livid.

In a hard-fought and emotional game, his Dragons soundly defeated a strong Delcastle team 22-7 and drew ever closer to a Blue Hen Conference Flight A championship.

As both teams were lining up to shake hands words were exchanged and a brawl broke out between the two teams which sent helmets flying, players to the ground, and took several minutes to break up.

Scott was furious at the actions of the Delcastle team, which he said instigated the brawl. Nor was he happy with his own squad, who he said could have done more to avoid the confrontation.

"I've known (Delcastle head coach) Vinnie Scott a long time," Dave Scott said, "and he's a class guy and he runs a great program. But he's let things get out of control."

Dave Scott said that a Delcastle assistant coach was "unable to keep his cool," and at the end of the game, was encouraging the Delcastle defensive players to dive over the top of the line onto the Glasgow quarterback who was dropping to one knee to let the clock run out.

"The first time we fell on the ball and Vinnie didn't call a time out, I knew Vinnie said, okay the game's over, let's get out of here," Dave Scott said. "And then (an assistant coach) is telling his kids to dive over the top and to try to hurt our kids."

Delcastle coach Vinnie Scott said after the game that things got a little out of control, but that it was ridiculous to blame one team for the brawl.

The fight marred which was otherwise a strong showing by the Dragons. Delcastle scored the game's first touchdown and their only points on a first quarter punt return. The Glasgow defense, which has played stellar ball all season, came through again, stopping the Cougars on every drive.

Offensively, Glasgow tailback Pat Williams had another big game. He rushed for 140 yards on 21 carries and one touchdown. He caught a 35-yard pass from quarterback Shawn Money for a second Glasgow score. The other Dragon touchdown came on a Shawn Money keeper from one yard out.

"I think we just wore them down," Dave Scott said after the game. "We came out a little flat. We had 13 kids take the S.A.T.'s this morning, and I guess, like the Newark game, we had to give up seven points before we started playing."

"This was a great win because we took the ball 96 yards in over six minutes to really put away a good football team."

If Scott was happy with the

Jackets spike Spartans

by Steve Canaday

Of the Post staff

The Newark Yellowjackets downed St. Mark's last Saturday night 15-7, 15-8 in an important non-conference volleyball match. The victory assured the 'Jackets of a non-losing season, their 15th straight.

While the loss didn't eliminate the Spartans from post-season play, it made Monday's match with Christiana a must win for the Spartans.

"I stand up in front of the new kids every year and I tell them that since we joined the Blue Hen Conference in 1974, we've never had a losing season," said the relieved but happy Newark coach Barb Apichella after her 'Jackets had defeated the talented Spartan squad. "I'll tell you what, we came preciously close this year."

"When you're two and six, you say, 'Oh my gosh,' and you just have to keep pulling them out," Apichella said. "We did. The second half (of the season) was much better than the first half. We improved a lot."

Apichella said that she was worried before the match, because she had seen the Spartans turn in an impressive effort the night before against Ursuline Academy, a team which defeated Newark earlier this season.

"St. Mark's is a good team," she said. "I watched them play Ursuline and they nearly knocked them off, and that's without one of their best hitters (Katie Lindsay, who's missed much of the season with a broken hand). I have a lot of respect for what (Spartan coach) Dave Stover has put together. He always has them ready by the end of the season."

On the other side of the net, Stover paid compliment to the 'Jackets, but agreed that it was tough for his team to play two highly ranked opponents back to back.

"Tonight we never got the offense going," he said. "Last night (against Ursuline) our passing was good, our setting was good, and every hitter attacked the ball. But it's tough to have to come back 24 hours later. We probably didn't play as intense or as emotional because we played Ursuline last night."

"But Newark played smart," he added. "They hit a lot of balls down the line, and they did a lot of good dinking...they kept pressure on us and let us make the mistakes."

The first game featured the serving of Newark's Adrienne Smucker. Smucker served for seven of the 'Jackets 15 points, including the last four. Newark took a quick 4-1 lead on the serving of Kim Burke, and the Spartans never got any closer.

The second game saw the 'Jackets power game emerge, as Smucker and fellow hitter Jenn Sternberg provided some devastating kills to help the 'Jackets rally from a 6-2 deficit. Sternberg finished the match with eight kills, Smucker had six.

Newark's Stephanie Leedle helped to set up her teammates throughout the match. She finished with 11 perfect passes. Setter Kim Burke had 15 assists.

"Everybody was playing really smart," Sternberg said after the match. "Everybody just wanted to win so bad because this game was really important to us."

FOOTBALL

□ Glasgow (5-0 in Blue Hen Conference Flight A, 7-0-1 overall) The Dragons remain unbeaten, as they knocked off conference foe Delcastle. For details on the game, see story.

□ Caravel (7-0-1) The Buccaneers have yet to fall from the ranks of the unbeaten. Caravel played their eighth game of the year to a 20-20 tie against a powerful 5-1-2 Germantown (PA) team. Caravel quarterback MacAdoo Harrison-Dixon romped for 72 yards on the first play from scrimmage to give the Buc's the lead, and hit Matt Kelly with a 41-yard touchdown pass late in the fourth quarter to draw the Buc's even at 20-20. Caravel's final extra point kick attempt sailed wide, and the game ended as a draw. Buc back Derek Shaw scored the other Caravel touchdown, a second quarter six yard run. Shaw finished with 67 yards on nine carries — the first time this season that he's been held under 100 yards in a game. However, the 67 yards were enough to put him over the 1000-yard rushing mark for the season. Other key performers in the game were Rick Zoeltsch who made ten tackles and recovered a fumble, Jeremie

Smith who made 13 tackles, blocked a PAT, and had an interception, and C.J. Hoffman who made 12 tackles and recovered a fumble.

□ Newark (1-3-1 in BHC Flight A, 4-3-1 overall) The Yellowjackets edged the Spartans of St. Mark's 22-14. For details, see story.

□ Christiana (3-2 in BHC Flight A, 4-4 overall) The Vikes overcame the A.I. duPont Tigers 26-10 despite fumbling five times. Sophomore quarterback Joe Roberts led the way offensively, running five yards for the first touchdown, and passing 52 yards to Jamie Duncan for the second. Roberts finished six of nine passing for 188 yards. His second touchdown pass came in the third quarter when he teamed up with Gerald Boyce on a 21-yard scoring toss. Gerald's brother, Darius Boyce, accounted for the final Christiana score, a one yard third quarter dive.

□ St. Mark's (3-5 overall) For details on the Spartans 22-14 loss at the hands of Newark, see story.

UD loss reflects the season

by Steve Canaday

Of the Post staff

A dejected Tubby Raymond called Delaware's 21-17 loss to the University of Connecticut "the story of our season."

In this 100th year of Delaware football, the Blue Hens have been oh so close in a number of losses and are a fumble here, a penalty there from being the top team in the topsy-turvy Yankee Conference.

When Delaware beat Maine two weeks ago, they proved that they can play with the best of Division I-AA. But the Hens proved with last weekend's loss to the UConn Huskies that they are incapable of playing consistent winning football.

The conference loss to UConn eliminates Delaware's shot at post-season play as the Hens slipped to sixth place in the Yankee.

"We could easily have lost two games, or one game, or be undefeated," a glum Raymond said. "I think that's the important part for (the players) to realize. They're not failures, and this is not a lousy football team. It's not one that's been abandoned by everybody. It's not one that's hopelessly mired in its own inefficiencies. That's not true, and I think that's what they have to realize."

Nevertheless, Saturday's loss to Connecticut capsulized problems that the Hens have had all season.

On offense, the Hens outgained the Huskies. Delaware had 325 yards rushing in the contest to Connecticut's 142. And the Hens held heralded UConn quarterback Matt DeGennaro to Delaware fullback Daryl Brantley crashes through defenders during home victory over Maine.

194 yards passing, 28 yards below his game average.

Still, Delaware couldn't score when it had to and couldn't come up with the big defensive play when the game was on the line.

Connecticut got on the board first when Huskie tailback Kevin Wesley (115 yards on 23 carries) went 20 yards for a first quarter UConn score. The Blue Hens came right back as freshman quarterback Bill Vergantino marched Delaware 79 yards in 11 plays, scrambling the last five yards himself for the Hens first score.

A Don O'Brien 22-yard field goal made it 10-7 Delaware, by UConn went into the half with a 14-10 lead when DeGennaro hit Brian Kozlowski with a second quarter two yard touchdown pass. The touchdown came two plays after the Hens defense had kept the Huskie drive alive by roughing DeGennaro after he threw incomplete on third down and seven.

Although the Hens controlled the football for most of the third quarter, defensive breakdowns helped UConn score what would be their winning touchdown.

"We're certainly unhappy about the ballgame," Raymond said. "I think it was another ballgame that we might have won, could have won, should have won."

"We also learned that we're not a very fortunate team. Things didn't bounce our way. It's particularly difficult to accept when we played as well as we did."

After Connecticut took the lead, the Blue Hens had several chances to win the game, but were unable to convert.

With the devastating loss, the Hens goals have changed from conference champions and playoff contenders, to posting a winning season.

Danielle St. Laurent scored the winning goal against Lake Forest with one minute left in the overtime period on an assist from Shelly Austin. Austin also assisted the first Buc goal, a score by Tanya McIntyre.

□ St. Mark's (4-0-2 in Catholic Conference, 7-6-3 overall) The Spartans split a pair last week, beating conference rival Padua, and falling to highly-ranked William Penn. Gretchen Fayerweather scored the lone goal in the 1-0 Soarten win over Padua. Colleen Geisen registered five saves for her ninth shutout. Although the Spartans fell to the Colonials of William Penn by a 3-0 count, their record was still good enough to earn them the □ Christiana (0-13 in BHC Flight A, 0-14-1 overall) The Vikings dropped their final two games of the fall, a 2-0 loss to A.I. duPont, and a 4-0 defeat at the hands of William Penn.

Crawford leads Newark victory

by Steve Canaday

Of the Post staff

Last Friday night, in his final high school home game, Newark fullback Kenny Crawford rushed 17 times for 118 yards to help lead the Yellowjackets over the Spartans of St. Mark's 22-14.

Crawford's most important run came with 1:33 left in the game, and ironically, he didn't even touch the ball.

The game was tied 14-14, and Newark had the ball on the Spartans five yard line. It was fourth down, and the Jackets needed three yards for a first down. Newark head coach Butch Simpson took a time out to talk over the options, and then ran exactly that — the option.

Quarterback Rob Callahan put the ball in Crawford's stomach, and pulled it back out as the entire Spartan defensive line converged on the powerful fullback. The decoy worked, and Callahan's pitch to tailback B.J. Bias went for the winning score.

"In no way did I leave the field thinking I had made a 'good call,'" Simpson said afterward, "you just have to make a call."

If the call works, it's good, and this one worked. It worked the Spartans were pushed forward in an attempt to tie the game and send it into overtime.

SPARTANS

"Even in the loss to Sallies we played them really tough," DeMatteis said. "Our defense did a great job. It was a good effort for us. You always like to win the game, but it was a good effort for us, regardless."

DeMatteis said that the Spartans are playing well due to a total team effort. "I could really name all the kids," he said, "they've all done a really nice job."

It seems that every Spartan player has found a way to contribute and help the team to win.

The Spartan defense has been shutting down teams regularly since giving up nine goals in the first four games. Brian Carberry, Joe Beal, Jason Giles, and Blair Hickman make up a fullback team that's learned to be very stingy in giving up goals.

Brian Carberry at stopper has really come on," DeMatteis said. "I think he's been one of the top fullbacks in the state. He's done a good job of marking all year."

because Callahan and Bias executed, but most importantly, it worked because Crawford was the decoy.

In a game where they really needed him, Crawford chewed up important yardage for the Jackets. The Spartan defense had to figure that Crawford would get the call on fourth and short. He did, but he didn't — touchdown Newark.

"I think the key tonight was probably Kenny Crawford," Simpson said. "Kenny's as hard a runner, as good a power runner, as anyone I think I've seen this year."

Crawford was pressed into extra duty after Gerhart went down in the first quarter. Bias, who scored the winning touchdown on the option pitch, saw limited time as well, after missing three days of practice prior to the game with strep throat.

"With Gerhart not being able to play, and Bias being sick, it kind of became Kenny," Simpson said.

Crawford said afterward that the team really wanted this game after dropping three in a row.

"Our coach wouldn't let us quit," he said. "We had it in our minds that we weren't going to lose this game. Everybody was pumped up."

Crawford gave credit to his offensive line for his performance as well.

"The holes were really big," he said. "Anybody could get through some of those holes, they were so big."

Crawford scored the game's first touchdown on a 55-yard run on the sixth play of the game. He dove into the left side of the line, broke several tackles, and outran the rest of the field into the end zone.

St. Mark's came right back to tie it at 7-7 when Spartan quarterback Sean Mahoney capped a 14-play, 77-yard drive with a one yard sneak late in the first quarter.

The Spartans went into the half up 14-7 on a second quarter 16-yard scoring pass from Mahoney to John Ziemba.

Newark came out in the second half and established their offense with an 11-play, 64-yard drive of their own. Callahan hit Bias with a 32-yard touchdown pass to knot the game at 14. The tie held up until the option pitch to Bias cemented the win for the

"In years past," DeMatteis explained, "we've always had one guy way ahead of everybody, especially in scoring. This year, we've got six or seven guys between five and nine goals. There's a lot of balance, and hopefully that's going to make a difference. It's a plus for us."

Leading the Spartans' attack are Tom Janeka, Josh Mihaly, and Nick Papanicolas.

way his team was able to control the ball on the field, he wasn't so pleased with his team's control off the gridiron.

"It's something we've been talking about for a long time," the coach of this year's 7-0-1 Glasgow team said. "We knew sooner or later a team would try something like this, and I told our team that I wouldn't stand for it. It's not what Glasgow football's all about. This team represents our school, and this is not what we're all about."

Scott said that he would talk the situation over with Glasgow's principal, Robert Anderson. He said that if it is determined that he didn't handle the situation the best way he could, that he would tender his resignation. Scott's resignation would be a demoralizing blow to Glasgow's rejuvenated 7-0-1 program.

"I don't want my kids to think that I don't want them to protect themselves," Scott said, "but this isn't what I want to represent."

Get the jump on car care

It's a statistical fact: Every year tens of thousands of motorists are caught unprepared for the first cold weather. It can be time-consuming and expensive trying to take care of anti-freeze, battery or snow tires at the last minute, when everyone else in the neighborhood is rushing to do the same thing.

- 1) Cooling System: If it hasn't been done in a while, flush it out with a good chemical cleaner and install fresh anti-freeze. Note: Use in proper proportion. Pure anti-freeze (ethylene glycol) does not cool nor protect as well as the proper mixture prescribed on the container. Check connections, belts, hoses, pressure cap and thermostat.
- 2) Battery and electrical system: If your battery is over a few years old, have it checked. Cold weather is hard on batteries. Be sure connections are clean and tight. Corroded or loose connections can give the symptoms of a weak or dead battery.

- 3) Engine: Is it time for a tune-up? Faulty wiring, worn spark plugs, a sticking choke or emission control devices that need attention all can lead to hard starting. A diagnostic check-up of the engine can be a good pre-winter investment.
- 4) Oil and filter: Dirty oil can give you trouble in the winter. Now's the time to change it. Change the oil filter, too. Your car may have several other filters that need changing at this time, including the fuel, air and transmission filters. (The latter is changed when transmission fluid is changed as a periodic maintenance procedure.)

5) Tires: For every 10° of temperature drop, your tire pressure decreases by one pound. Obviously if you haven't checked tire pressure since last summer, they're likely to be several pounds under-inflated.

Periodic rotating of tires (putting them on different locations on the car for more even wear) along with wheel alignment and balancing all contribute to longer tire life.

6) Body and paint: Be sure to give the car a good protective coating of wax before the weather turns nasty. This is critical in areas where salt is used for snow removal.

Whether you're a "do-it-yourselfer" or a patron of the professional repairman, there's a lot to be said for getting the car care chores out of the way before the severe weather arrives.

Cold heater blues?

You are halfway to work and your heater still is blowing only cold air. This ailment, while not uncommon, is likely to get your undivided attention on a bitter cold morning, especially if you have no windshield defrosters. There are a half dozen possible reasons for a cold heater, says Car Care Council, most of which can be pinpointed through the process of elimination.

Check the easiest things first. Is the blower fan working? If not, check the fuse first. Perhaps there's a loose connection or the switch could be faulty. Usually fan motors give a warning before failing completely. Has yours been getting weak or noisy?

How's the anti-freeze/coolant level? If it is too low you may not get any heat.

One of the more common culprits is a faulty thermostat, which can prevent the engine from reaching normal operating temperature. If there's a temperature gauge on the instrument panel, that's a simple diagnosis. If not, it will be necessary to raise the hood and feel the radiator and hoses (with the engine shut off). If they're hot to touch, your problem is not a cold engine. When in doubt, however, have a mechanic check the coolant temperature with a radiator tank thermometer.

NOTE: Replace a defective thermostat as soon as possible to avoid inefficient engine operation and rapid wear of engine parts.

Next possibility: the flapper control door which admits air to the heater. Because these generally are vacuum actuated, there could be a vacuum leak. Listen for a hissing sound from a loose or broken vacuum hose. On manual controls the linkage could be broken or disconnected.

Restricted circulation of coolant through the heater core is another cause of cold operation. This usually can be traced to an inoperative heater control valve, a collapsed or obstructed heater hose or a clogged heater core.

If your vehicle recently has had major work on the radiator core and you still have the original heater core, that soon may need replacement, says Car Care Council. Another indication of heater core deterioration is accumulation of moisture inside the car caused by seepage of coolant from pinhole leaks.

For winter safety:

Check lights and windshield wipers

This is a difficult time of year for people who do much of their driving on two-lane, secondary roads. Darkness arrives early and the weather often is at its worst.

This can be especially hazardous when driving in the proximity of vehicles with inadequate lighting. No less dangerous than the car with one headlight out is the one with headlights improperly aimed.

Two statistical facts emphasize the need for regularly checking one's lights: 1) one out of three cars inspected by the American Automobile Association had one or more lights inoperative; 2) nighttime motor vehicle death rates (per mile) are nearly triple daytime death rates.

Unfortunately, we're often unaware of our lights' condition, says the Car Care Council. Have you taken a walk around your car recently to see if all your lights are working? One or more brake lights or turn signals could be out of order without the driver realizing it.

How long has it been since you checked your emergency flashers?

Be sure the windshield wipers and washers are in good working order, too. Protect yourself from the menace of ice and snow by having an adequate supply of windshield washer anti-freeze solvent. For added safety through the winter, install winter wiper blades, which resist icing up in extreme cold.

At this time of the year, suggests the Council, especially during the heavily travelled holiday season, it's comforting to know that you can see and be seen.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION LAST & LAST...

TIPS FROM TRANSMISSION SPECIALISTS:

- AFTER STARTING THE ENGINE, ALLOW IDLE SPEED TO SLOW TO NORMAL BEFORE SHIFTING.
- NEVER HOLD ONE FOOT ON THE BRAKE, THE OTHER ON THE ACCELERATOR.
- NEVER ROCK YOUR CAR MORE THAN A FEW TIMES WHEN STUCK IN SNOW, ROCKING OVERHEATS THE TRANSMISSION.
- CHECK TRANSMISSION FLUID REGULARLY.
- IF FLUID HAS TURNED BROWN OR SMELLS BURNED, CHANGE FLUID AND FILTER.
- IF YOU NEED TO ADD FLUID, CHECK FOR LEAKAGE.

NOTE: IF YOU ARE A "SEVERE SERVICE" DRIVER (TRAILER TOWING OR OTHER ABNORMAL LOADS) CHECK YOUR OWNER'S MANUAL FOR SPECIAL SERVICE REQUIREMENTS. CONSIDER INSTALLING AN AUXILIARY TRANSMISSION COOLER.

BED & BREAKFAST

The circa 1721 house was built by George Ross, the first pastor of Immanuel Episcopal Church and uncle by marriage to famous flag maker, Betsy Ross. It was transformed into a bar about 1840, later a hotel, and was operated as a package store until 1975.

Staying at the Ross House is a bargain at only $40 per room per night, including continental breakfast, but from the owner's economic standpoint, bed and breakfast business is sporadic. "It's kind of a weekend thing here in New Castle," said Cripps. "April, May and June are good months and by the time the leaves change, people in the city have had time to get antsy and are ready to come back. We get a lot of business from the candlelight tours at Christmas."

With the exception of the William Penn Guest House, each of the town's B&Bs offers no more than two bedrooms or bedroom suites for rent by reservation. If they rent more than two, their owners are required, by county fire code, to install exterior fire escapes, sprinkler systems; and if they offer more than four rooms, they must pay a higher rated commercial hotel tax.

The 1682 William Penn Guest House, the oldest guest house in town, rents three bedrooms and is exempt from the current code because it was in business when the code was adopted.

Richard and Erma Burwell, owners of the William Penn Guest House at 206 Delaware Street, have opened their doors to travelers for over 15 years.

"The houses in New Castle are small," explained Richard Burwell, a retired diesel mechanic. "There were a lot of young couples living in them years ago when we first got started and on holidays and weekends, when their parents would come to visit, they would need extra room for them. We usually knew them and let them stay with us for nothing."

"Breakfast didn't start here until about five years ago. The truth is, we became a bed and breakfast because there wasn't any place in town where you could get a good cup of coffee at 8 o'clock.

"Now people love to go in there and have conversations in the morning," he said, motioning toward their formal Williamsburg green dining room, located in the center of the house.

"The conversations get big and once in a while I'll have to chase them out of there, otherwise they might yap all day.

"I had the mother and father and a couple of their friends here for their kid's wedding once and before I knew it, there were 22 people in the dining room drinking coffee and yapping." For $40 per night, they were getting a good deal.

More than 300 guests visited the William Penn Guest House last year, Burwell estimated, leaving through the house register. Many of them have already reserved special weekends for the following year.

Of course, Burwell says money isn't everything and that running a B&B "pays off in other ways," like when he and his wife toured Australia and stayed in the home of one of their B&B guests-turned-friends.

The Janvier Black House is one of the most beautifully decorated guest houses in New Castle, having received first place in the best whole house and amateur category of Delaware Today magazine's 1989 design contest announced this month.

Annabelle and Henry Kressman opened their home to B&B guests in mid 1987 but before they moved into the residence in 1982, they employed the labor of 12 men for four months to revitalize the structure.

Built in 1825 by John Janvier for his daughter Ann and her husband, the renowned Dr. Henry Black, this fine Federal period residence is now a spacious showcase of antiques.

Guests may enjoy a refreshing river breeze from atop the third story sun deck or the full view of the Kressman's formal rear gardens from the sunny breakfast nook, while having homemade muffins and fresh fruit from the kitchen. With two large air conditioned suites, each with a private sitting room, brass beds (queen or singles), bath, TV, stereo, VCR, and complimentary port and sherry, the Janvier-Black House may well be the most luxurious of the New Castle guest houses.

Guests from all over the world have visited the Janvier-Black House, including an international banker from Ghana, a judge from Austria, lawyers from Luxemburg and Switzerland, a movie director from Hollywood, and corporate members of the DuPont and ICI business communities, to mention a few. According to Kressman, one of their guests stayed for a whole year.

Although the David Finney Inn, 216 Delaware Street, is not a private residence and therefore does not qualify as a B&B guest house in the traditional sense, it does offer excellent newly renovated 17th century accommodations. The Inn, which also incorporates a separate annex nearby, has a total of 20 rooms and suites that are larger than those usually found in local guest homes and all have private baths. The David Finney Inn was built in 1685 by Renere Vandercoolen in New Castle, a town of "Dutch and Finns addicted to drunkenness" with lodgings described as "both mean and dear." The Inn had many owners during its more than 300 year varietal history as a hotel, bar and private residence. Among them was Delaware Chief Justice James Booth Sr. Today it belongs to Tom and Louise Hagy.

Ranging in price from $85 to $110 for suites, bedrooms of the David Finney Inn have either queen or twin bed arrangements. A delicious continental breakfast is always included in the price and is served in the downstairs tavern.

Christmas is a coming!

by Nancy Turner

Of the Post staff

Delaware's newest holiday event, "Christmas Comes to Tudor Towne," is coming to Christiana Mall next week.

And the animated walk-through holiday display, set in 18th century England and featuring more than 100 storybook characters, was created here in Delaware.

It is the work of Mary Berg and Ray Daub, co-owners of It Figures Studio in Newport, and will be on view throughout the holiday shopping season, Nov. 13 to Jan. 6.

Berg, Daub and a dozen artists and carpenters started work on Tudor Towne last year. The total cost was more than a half million dollars.

While Tudor Towne is the studio's largest undertaking to date, its charmingly detailed foam and latex elves, fairies and personable forest animals have graced the windows of such fine department stores as Neiman Marcus, Saks Fifth Avenue and Bloomingdales.

It Figures characters have boosted the holiday spirit of Philadelphians through an annual "Christmas Carol" display at the Gallery Mall. The display was purchased by Strawbridge and Clothier in 1985 and donated to the city.

It Figures Studio was opened by Daub in 1979 and Berg, whose background is in elementary education and puppeteering, became a partner in 1982.

Their first animated scene, "Bear-A-Mount Studio," was a parody of a 1920s Hollywood movie lot with hundreds of glitzy teddy bears.

The studio produces about 300 characters per year and the number is growing with "each new project creatively surpassing the one before," Daub said.

Of Tudor Towne he says, "This is the best thing we have ever done."

"We are really drawn to characters that have a rich story to tell and giving them lived-in environments," said Berg, expressing disdain for "very well dressed, well-to-do, personality-less Christmas caroler types."

Tudor Towne will have a charming story foundation indeed. "We remember the wonderful stories that inspired us as kids," Berg said. "We don't think they exist as much today. We had Peter Pan and Cinderella. Now it's Smurfs." The story was written by Daub and Berg with music by T.J. Ford.

Tudor Towne can be found in the court near J.C. Penney. It is a 90-foot walk through featuring 15 scenes and 130 characters.

The make-believe town is populated by 18th century animal characters who have never heard of Christmas, and its tale concerns Meggie and Justopher Rabbit's quest to bring the holiday to their village.

The weasel Slezil and his band of troublemakers try to foil their work but as in all good stories there is a happy ending.

"This is our first major exposure in Delaware," said Daub, "and we feel we are contributing something to the Christmas spirit with it."

"And it's really for children," added Berg. "I feel so good that they are going to have a story that is sweet and meaningful."

Admission is $1 for adults and 75 cents for children. Proceeds benefit the Ministry of Caring, which assists the homeless.

Three of more than 100 It Figures characters created by Mary Berg and Ray Daub of Newport.

The thrill of victory, agony of unmatched socks

Like most American housewives I've lived a life filled with acts of gutwrenching determination and extraordinary derring-do. I was elevated into the advanced courage category of housewifery when I publicly tossed out 26 linear feet and 2,581 pounds of National Geographics two years ago. Well, what I did the other day will surely get me into the Guinness Book of Records.

Trumpet fanfare and drum roll, please: I threw out a big black plastic bag of unmatched socks.

It was not a task undertaken lightly or frivolously. Though it's a long story, I think it needs to be told, so that the rest of you may share in my liberating experience.

Background: There was a shelf in the bedroom where I jammed socks that left the dryer without their mates. Correction, it used to be a shelf, then two shelves, and before I could say "Darn it!" the socks had conquered the entire bookcase. On days when my psyche felt particularly secure or when my family was desperate for socks, I'd grab handfuls of socks and hope that I'd find two that sort-of matched.

Not that matching socks were always a bone of contention in the family. When the children were little, socks that matched were a drag. One morning my middle one strolled off to school wearing one green and one red sock. (Had it been near Christmas, I wouldn't have commented.) When I questioned his choice, he pointed out with five-year old logic that his shirt had a red stripe and a green stripe. Moreover, he was sorry he didn't have four legs because then he could have worn a blue sock and a yellow sock to match the other two stripes in his shirt.

Sadly, when the children got older, they got pickier.

However, as typically resourceful mother, I convinced them that "matching" is a vague word. According to Dorothy's Domestic Arts Dictionary, matching can mean two tube socks, one of which is wide blue, narrow yellow, wide blue striped, and the other is wide yellow, narrow blue, wide yellow striped. While my offspring see the logic in that, they will not accept maroon and blue on one sock and maroon and gray on the other. In fact, they will not accept maroon at all.

They used to believe that socks with matching tops, but of differing lengths, were OK. Once they passed nine years old, my children insisted that both socks be the same length. What confused me was that they never cared if one stayed militarily upright and the other drooped in wrinkled disarray.

Three weeks ago, I realized something had to be done when my sock collection avalanched out of the bookcase, or should I call it sockcase, engulfed our snoozing cat, and filled up the valley between the bed and the

Hawkins: Man-planned weddings

by Nancy Turner

Of the Post staff

Today is Nov. 9 and if you are a fan of the comic strip, "Li'l Abner," you already know that, most importantly, it is Sadie Hawkins Day in the mythical town of Dogpatch.

Sadie Hawkins Day was introduced in 1938 by cartoonist Al Capp as the one day of the year when maidens and spinsters went on a lawful manhunt. The beaus who were caught were obliged to "marry-up" with their captors.

Everyone knows that any modern observance of Sadie Hawkins Day is for fun only, usually limited to college social gatherings, charity benefits, and folk festivals.

In the spirit of role reversal, imagine how the event might be played out if the girl actually did propose. Would her fiance plan the wedding ceremony?

Man-planned weddings may not be a bad idea. In fact, there have been more than a few in recent years.

Grooms-to-be have found their way from the honeymoon travel agent's office and down into premarital trenches, mantilla mazes, and caterer's catechisms, and have emerged victorious, their participation in the decision making, insuring that the grand ceremonial event will reflect the sentiment and tastes of both they and their betrothed, equally.

"We have had couples come in the store and the groom goes right back and helps the bride pick out her gown and the two will go through everything together, step by step," said Cynthia Francois, manager of the Bridal and Tuxedo Outlet at Astro Shopping Center in Newark. "Some (men) look like they were dragged into the store, but most seem to be glad to be here."

"I did hear an interesting example of man-planning recently," she continued.

"A couple got married at sunset on one of the ferries that goes back and forth from the statue of liberty, Labor Day weekend this year. They had balloons and fireworks going off in the background.

"The wedding cake was a surprise from the groom. Since the couple became engaged in Egypt, he had this beautiful white iced wedding cake designed as a replica of a pyramid, complete with sphinx, cracks between the stones, everything. It was strictly the groom's idea." The bride, a marketing executive from New Image Bridal Designs of New York, had nothing to do with it.

Carolyn Kelly, press secretary for Martha Stewart, renowned hostess, heard about a wedding in Martha's Vineyard that was a second marriage for the bride and the groom.

"Both had children who participated in the ceremony and when the time came for the groom to present the ring to the bride, he gave all the children rings also," said Kelly.

"They were just little gold bands, but the groom wanted to symbolize that their families were joined."

Kelly said she heard of another wedding in upstate New York, where the groom was Scottish. The ceremony took place outdoors in the woods. All of a sudden, while the guests were gathered, waiting for it to begin, they heard bagpipes. The betrothed Scot emerged from the mist in full tartan folk attire, accompanied by his own kilted bag piper.

"I don't know what the bride expected him to wear," said Kelly, "but I don't think it was a kilt. I know she was very happy though because she knew that his heritage was very important to him."

Sentiment is important in any wedding ceremony and sometimes men are unfairly sold short in the emotional department. The following is an excerpt from an April 1989 wedding story that ran in a small town newspaper in rural South Carolina. A genuinely "masculine" wedding in the traditional sense, it is honest, Peter Elliott (right) is senior director of artists and repertory for RCA Victor and the man in charge of Broadway show albums, a series which has been boffo box in the industry.

RCA showcases stage hits

by Phil Toman

Post arts columnist

In the annals of collecting records and CDs there have been few times as rewarding as this year if your interest is in the Broadway stage. It is a bit strange because there haven't been that many great new Broadway musicals this year. None the less, it has been a collector's paradise.

Another strange thing is the way one recording company has taken the lead, marched out ahead of any of its competitors, and continues on that route almost unchallenged. If you are at all interested in music you know how fiercely competitive the recording business is — cutthroat might be a better word. Yet one company has done just that.

The company which has captured the Broadway market and which is offering us great shows of the past and present on CD is RCA Victor. The person responsible for the effort is Peter Elliott, senior director of artists and repertory for the recording giant. His photo appears with my column today.

As you might expect, the hottest ticket on Broadway right now, "Jerome Robbins' Broadway," is also the hottest ticket at CD stores across the country. The album covers which also appear with my column today are of CDs for shows of a slightly earlier time. All of these have been digitally remastered and the sound is simply superb, far better than when the show was new and the music on an LP.

Most, but not all, of the current Broadway offerings of RCA Victor are available in three formats, LP, cassette and CD. The best of these is the CD, a quantum leap over the other two. I have been gorging myself on these shiny little discs for the past few weeks as I did research for this column — tough duty, but someone had to do it!

Let's take a look at the list of Broadway shows now available. Almost all of the list that follows has the original Broadway cast. I will only note the exceptions after the name of the show: "Ain't Missbehavin'," "Annie Get Your Gun," (Lincoln Center cast) "Anything Goes," (Lincoln Center cast) "The Boy Friend," "Brigadoon," "Chess," "Damn Yankees," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Finian's Rainbow," "Follies in Concert," (New York Philharmonic) "Forty-Second Street," "Gigi," "Hair," "Hello, Dolly!" "Into the Woods," "Jerome Robbins' Broadway," "The King and I" (revival cast with Yul Brynner) "La Cage aux Folles," "Legs Diamond," "Merrily We Roll Along," "Oklahoma!" (Broadway revival) "Oliver!" "Pacific Overtures," "Paint Your Wagon," "Peter Pan," "Sarafina!" "Shenandoah," "Showboat" (Lincoln Center cast) "Side by Side by Sondheim" (London cast) "Silk Stockings," "Starting Here, Starting Now," "Sunday in the Park with George" and "Sweeney Todd."

The man who is leading the Broadway "charge" at RCA Victor is a man well suited to the task, Peter Elliott. Before assuming his new duties he was a product manager at RCA where he was responsible for all phases of artist development for original cast recordings and the classical releases, bringing us 280 releases in the year 1988 alone. Earlier, as an independent producer, he brought us "Chess," now an RCA offering, and his recording earned a Grammy nomination and was named Best Cast Album of the Year.

Lovers of the music of Broadway, we are in good hands.

Chapel St. Players find excitement in 'Albania'

by Nancy Turner

Of the Post staff

After the very successful opening of "Albanian Holiday," they've got a mania about Albania at Newark's Chapel Street Theater.

This is the first staging of the show outside New York City, and the show is the Chapel Street Players' first musical in many years.

"Albanian Holiday" was written by Carl Sievert, a budding playwright and systems analyst from New York, and made its official debut last year in the basement of a Manhattan church. It was performed by members of the church choir on a $200 budget.

The plot, a musical spy mystery spoof, is about two young women — Ann and Matilda Jenew — who win a free trip to Albania in a CIA sweepstakes.

Of course, there is that simple matter of a prize verification envelope that must be delivered upon their arrival.

Valerie Pyle and Lynne Smith play the unsuspecting tourists. They are supported by Tony Bonavita as Gant Van Heusen, a stuffed shirt lawyer from Boston, Joe Campbell as an Albanian bellboy, Jack Witzman as the Soviet KGB's top gun, and Donna Gedman as his voluptuous accomplice Veronique Vichyssoise.

Asked where he got the idea for "Albanian Holiday," Sievert said, "Several years ago, when I was starting out to write things for my own amusement, I decided to write the worst musical ever written. I had no intentions of writing anything that would ever be produced.

"The problem was that I succeeded. The show was a terrible mess with about 17 major characters. It was a ridiculous monstrosity. I let it sit for about five years and then brought it out, tore it up, kept four characters, added a couple new ones, and tried to better construct the plot around the songs.

"This is the result. 'Albanian Holiday' aims to do nothing more than entertain and I sure hope it accomplishes that."

The Chapel Street production is directed and choreographed by Chuck DeLong, who deserves hearty applause for maintaining an even, quick tempo throughout the show.

The play is a punster's paradise. The script and 14 musical numbers overflow with clever phrases and humor.

Sievert wrote the lively music and lyrics, with arrangement by Kim Rich. The computer synthesized Chapel Street music is orchestrated by Dave Camoirano with Cal Bourgeault assisting as musical coach.

Marilyn Minster has done another fine job with set design, creating an abstract stage of rose and black arches with a lovely landscape mural backdrop. She uses the Albanian crest, a two-headed condor, as a repeating motif throughout the playhouse.

Because of limited stage space, the Chapel Street Players seldom attempt music productions. The first was "Cabaret" in 1971.

But "Albanian Holiday," with a six-member singing cast, is a perfect fit in the theater and offers patrons a nice vacation from traditional community entertainment fare.

On opening night the original New York cast members traveled to Newark, where they were greeted with a Chapel Street Players pre-play reception before taking their places in the audience.

During intermission, one commented, "It is so hard to sit still and watch. I just want to stand up, run on stage and sing along. This is really exciting."

Judging by Friday night's reaction, the locals agreed.

Dunham to discuss holiday wreaths and arrangements

Phyllis Dunham, owner of Everlasting Bouquets and Herbs, will present a program on Christmas arrangements and wreaths at 12:15 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16 at the Newark Free Library, 750 Library Ave.

Dunham will demonstrate different holiday arrangements that can be made with flowers and herbs.

The program is part of the Munch Your Lunch at the Library series sponsored by the Friends of the Newark Free Library.

Guests are invited to bring their lunches and eat while they enjoy the presentation. Coffee and tea will be available.

The sights and sounds of Christmas past will be featured through the holiday season at the Rockwood Museum, 610 Shipley Rd., Wilmington.

The Victorian mansion will be decorated in the manner of Christmas 1890 with a traditional tree, toys, stockings on the mantle, a complete Christmas dinner and appropriate live greens.

The tree will be decorated with paper and glass ornaments and beneath it will be family gifts, including toys and period items.

Typical holiday plants and arrangements will fill the 1851 conservatory and the music room will be arranged for Christmas tea, games and caroling.

Rockwood will be open 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, Nov. 21 to Dec. 30.

Tour fee is $5 for adults, $4.50 for senior citizens and $2 for children 5-16.

In conjunction with the tours, Rockwood will produce "A Christmas Play: An Evening with the Brighthouse Family."

Costumed actors will perform a short Christmas skit portraying the family members and servants who lived at Rockwood in the 1890s.

SADIE

without pretense, and reminiscent of days gone by. In its simplicity is reflected the best possible warmth sharable among families gathering to join their loved ones in holy matrimony.

"The wedding was held at the old homeplace of the groom's late grandparents. The site was appropriate due to the fact that through the years, many family gatherings were held there and friends were always welcomed to join.

"The beginning of the wedding was signaled by the ringing of a dinner bell on the front porch. The ceremony took place under the sheltering branches of a mighty oak tree with all present standing as witnesses. The base of the tree was surrounded by magnolia and ferns, interspersed with azaleas and blooming geraniums. A wooden cross was suspended in the higher branches above the wedding couple and minister.

"After the ceremony, a buffet supper was served on the porch, which was gaily decorated with an assortment of blossoming flower baskets and ferns. The wedding couple, along with their parents, served barbecued pork and chicken, baked beans, salads and other trimmings."

SOCKS

bookcase. Had it not been for quick thinking on the part of the sock patrol, the cat would've been a goner.

In that pile were two lace-topped baby anklets — one yellow, one pink — that my youngest wore when she was two. Considering her current age, what do you suppose the odds are of their mates showing up? Or of her wearing them?

In that same pile were socks that had perfectly good stripes around the top, but no toes or heels. (Historians believe these go back to the time when children thought it a sign of moral decay to put shoes over socks before a game of street hockey.)

I can't forget dozens of my husband's argyles. They separate from their mates as quickly and as regularly as some movie stars I know. Rumor has it that there is a divorce court for socks which offers both limited elasticity and varicose vein support.

If truth be told, I really didn't toss that Hefty bag of socks in trash. Instead, I left it on the doorstep of a local church with the following note: Take care of them, they deserve a better home than I can give them.

Young Women make commitment to family values

For 36 teenage girls in Newark and nearby Elkton, Md., November 18 is a day to look both to the past and to the future.

Looking to the past, the youths will celebrate the 120th anniversary of the founding of Young Women, an organization for teenage girls sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

"In 1869," said Joey Robinson, a local Young Women leader, "Brigham Young created the teens' organization so young women would set an example before the people of the world worthy of imitation. He warned them about getting caught up in the superficial trends of the day."

Looking to the future, Nov. 18 is a day of commitment to traditional values for each of the youths. They will join 350,000 other members of Young Women in 100 countries in making a commitment to home, religion, integrity, morality and avoiding use of drugs and alcohol.

"It's a chance not only for our young women to make commitments but also to know that there's a sisterhood worldwide that shares those same values," said Robinson. "Local Young Women such as Randi Parker, Katie Durkee and Colette John," she said, "are guided by a set of seven values which include faith in God, acknowledgement of their individual worth and divine nature, the responsibility for making wise choices, seeking opportunities for learning and growth, helping others, and having the moral courage to stay away from drugs, alcohol and promiscuity."

Hoppers to sing at Faith City

The Hoopers, considered among the best gospel musicians in the country, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 10 in the auditorium of Faith City near Christiana Mall.

The North Carolinians performed for President Reagan in 1981 and two years later were selected top mixed group by the Southern Gospel Music Association.

Concert tickets cost $7 and are available at the Salty Fisherman, Lighthouse and Sunshine House book stores. Tickets will also be available at the door.

A mainstay of the musical family group is Connie Hopper, who was nominated for a Dove Award by the Gospel Music Association, was voted "queen of gospel music" in 1985 by the Gospel Singing News and was named that publication's female vocalist of the year for 1984-85.

She has written numerous songs and the autobiography "The Peace That Passeth Understanding."

The late Ron Williams, editor of Nashville's Gospel Music News, once wrote, "Her sensitivity to the leading of the Holy Spirit has caused her to become a household name and favorite among gospel music lovers everywhere. Her sincerity is projected both on and off stage. She has become a role model for young ladies entering the realms of gospel music. Her charm, warmth and genuine faith in God have become her hallmark."

The Hoopers record on the Sonlite label out of Nashville and host the North Carolina Singing Convention and Camp Meeting each year.

Sponsoring the concert is the Sojourners Quartet Ministries of Wilmington.

Ernie Gorog of the Quartet has long been a fan of gospel music and decided to "trust the Lord" to help bring gospel concerts to New Castle County.

"The time and doors have opened," he said.

Are your attitudes about mental illness still in the dark ages?

Our notions about mental illness have a long, dark history. Sadly, age-old fears keep us from seeing mental illness for what it really is: a distressing medical disease. A disease that can be treated. For an informative booklet about mental illness, contact the American Mental Health Fund.

Learn to see the sickness.
