Packed house as council OKs Campus Edge

By DOUG RAINEY

DRAINEY@CHES PUB.COM

The Newark City Council faced a packed house as residents spoke out against outsourcing refuse service, followed by citizens, landlords and a virtual who's who of county land use attorneys making their case for and against the Campus

Edge project.

The council went on to unanimously approve rezoning for Campus Edge, despite opposition from landlords and some residents.

The refuse issue was not on the agenda, but that did not stop a handful of residents from voicing their views.

"I would really hate to see the fellas go," one resident said of the city crews that could lose their jobs in an outsourcing plan. Refuse service typically has a high approval rate in surveys of residents who like the fact that crews go out of their way to be helpful.

Mayor Vance Funk and Councilman Stu Markham stressed that no decision has been made, but added that costs have to be studied every year.

The possibility of outsourcing the service came after the city learned that Middletown saved several hundred thousand dollars by outsourcing pickups.

Councilman Ezra Temko agreed that the proposal was in the research stage and would not be approved unless the service saves money over the long term.

Councilman Douglas Tuttle

said it "would take a lot" to convince him to outsource service, but added that the proposal was in its early stages and deserved further study.

The newest council member, Mark Morehead, said he had received numerous e-mails regarding the matter. None registered support for the idea.

There had been no public announcement of a study, but word had spread among residents in recent weeks, with the Newark Post publishing a story last week.

The council then waded into a revised Campus Edge project on Delaware Avenue, behind the Trader's Alley retail space, off Main Street.

How Delaware wooed Bloom Energy to Newark

Fourteen months ago, Collin O'Mara and Gov. Jack Markell flew out to northern California. The goal was to look at green energy companies that might expand to Delaware.

O'Mara, the Secretary of the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, had held an environmental affairs position in the Silicon Valley and had contacts at Bloom Energy, a fast-growing and reportedly secretive company that builds energy generating systems, known as Bloom Boxes, and has reportedly raised $400 million.

Bloom was skeptical that Delaware had anything to offer, Gov. Jack Markell said, but the two men asked that the company keep the state in mind when they made plans to expand to the east.

That message was not forgotten and now Bloom is planning to build a manufacturing site at the former Chrysler plant in Newark. The project is contingent on Delmarva Power allowing Bloom to hook up its generators at a local substation and feeding power from the natural gas-fired units into the grid.

Delmarva would charge customers an additional 70 cents per month for the alternative power under the agreement. Customers would not be on the hook if Bloom failed to feed power into the grid.

Bloom would also get a financial package from the state for building the plant.

At a telephone press conference announcing Bloom's decision, it was noted that Delaware triumphed over a number of states that were vying for the site. Markell spokesman Brian Selander said other states probably offered more lucrative aid packages, but Delaware's business advantages allowed it to win out.

Both the state and Bloom did a great deal of "due diligence" before completing a deal, Markell said. Bloom

POLICE BLOTTER

Thieves return for air conditioner

Newark Police are investigating a second burglary of a residence on Madison Drive.

Recently, the house had been broken into and unknown suspects had removed copper piping from the basement. Last Wednesday, suspects had returned and removed a central air unit from the site.

The owner, a Hockessin resident, told officers that plumbers and contractors had been on the premises to repair the damage caused by the first burglary. Workers stated that the unit was in place when they had finished their work on May 31. The owner said that he noticed the missing AC unit when he inspected the house on June 8.

A search by authorities showed that the power had been cut by removing an exterior breaker from the unit. The owner could not provide the make and model of the air conditioning system at the time.

Witnesses could not provide much additional information, though one neighbor said that he saw a white or possibly Hispanic worker, with a tool belt, walking around the property during the time frame. Since workers were coming and going at the time, the man did not think anything was unusual.

Copper pipe missing from home

An owner of a residence on Wedgewood Road in Newark reported that approximately 100 feet of copper pipe had been forcibly torn out of his basement ceiling.

Responding officers questioned the man, who said that the home was being renovated and that a "For Sale" sign had been posted in the front yard. An inspection by police showed that entry was gained through an unsecured garage door, which allowed access into the interior of the home. The owner showed the police that the missing pipe had been removed by bending and snapping it off at the fittings. The pipe is valued at $500. The unknown suspect also broke a water heater, causing an additional $500 of damage to basement.

Fingerprints were recovered from site and are being entered into central database for comparison with known offenders. Neighbors did not see any unusual activity at the house.

Equipment stolen off of Main Street

Employees with Mid Atlantic Hood and Duct reported that unknown suspects had taken their power washer as they were preparing to use it at 190 East Main Street last Friday.

The employees told officers that they left the gas powered unit on the street and that one of the workers walked around the building as the other one parked the truck at the rear of the site. When they came back, the washer was gone.

A check of the surveillance camera at Main Street and North Chapel Street showed a dark pick-up truck driving past, reversing direction, and finally stopping at the power washer. Two white males put the unit in the bed of their truck and drive off on Main Street.

No suspects have been named yet, but police are still reviewing the footage to attain a better description of the men and their vehicle.

Break-ins continue at car dealerships

Three break-ins were reported last week at dealerships located on or near the East Cleveland Avenue area.

The first incident occurred at Martin Honda's used lot, at 298 E. Cleveland Ave., where employees said that an unknown suspect had broken the front passenger window on a black Acura that had been left as part of a trade-in. The vehicle had had its stereo system removed, which is worth approximately $250. Officers recovered several fingerprints on the exterior of the passenger door, along the top edge.

A similar report was made by employees at Newark Dodge Jeep Chrysler, at 244 E. Cleveland Ave., who told authorities that the passenger side window of a silver Mazda RX8 had also been broken and the stereo system removed. The Mazda was also a trade-in vehicle, with the arrangement that the previous owner would remove the system, which is valued at $1,600. The damage to the window is valued at $250.

Both incidents were believed to have been committed over the weekend prior to June 6, which was the date of the reports.

The third incident was reported on June 10 at Porter Ford, located at 600 Ogletown Road. Employees reported the theft of four wheels and locks from a white 2011 Ford Mustang parked on the front lot. Suspects broke into the glove compartment, removed the wheel lock key, and jacked up the car to remove the wheels, which are valued at $3,000. Police could not find fingerprints on the car, but are reviewing video footage of the scene.

Tools taken from business van

Quantum Controls, located at 802 Interchange Boulevard, told officers that unknown suspects had broken into one of their parked vans and removed over $1,800 worth of hand and power tools from the interior of the vehicle sometime on the weekend surrounding June 4.

Responding officers found that the thieves had broken a rear, passenger side window of the white 2007 Ford van, causing $250 worth of damage.

The business reported that a bag of hand tools was taken, as well as a Bosch hammer drill, a red and white Milwaukee reciprocating saw, and several cordless power tools. Several of the tools were marked with QCI or Quantum Controls on their cases.

No fingerprints were recovered, but police are searching through video footage from surrounding businesses.

City council denies demand to send project back to project planners for the Campus Edge project, made a lengthy presentation on the merits of the project, which was reduced in size following meetings with the community and council members. Under the proposal one large building with five stories was replaced by two three-story structures. A parking structure was also dropped and two large trees on the property will be kept.

The development near Chapel Street calls for student housing and retail space on a tract west of the TD Bank branch. The project would raze buildings at 206, 208, 220 and 224 E. Delaware Avenue.

Goodman said the project fits in with the city's comprehensive plan, with developers confident that the buildings can gain 32 LEED "green building" points. The project also includes 4,800 square feet of retail space.

Coming out against the project was Robyn Harland, who ran unsuccessfully for the council seat won by Morehead. She read a statement urging that the revised proposal go back to the Planning Commission. She also claimed that the apartments would be occupied by six to eight students, a violation of the comprehensive plan. Council later approved capping the total number of persons residing at Campus Edge at 140.

Morehead did end up in a heated exchange with representatives of the developer, claiming that a drawing of the two buildings misrepresented the narrow space between the structures. He later apologized for the tone of his remarks.

Local landlord John Bauscher claimed the project would add to a glut of apartments in the city. He claimed his properties would not compete with Campus Edge, but said he was speaking as a resident of the city. The outspoken Bauscher, at times, shouted out from the audience, at one point leading Mayor Vance Funk to tell him to pipe down. Two other landlords were also critical of the project.

However, some owners in the area around Campus Edge, including residents of the Washington House condominiums, came out in support of the project and praised the developer for making the changes.

Larry Tarabicos, a well-known development attorney representing the owners of the Traders Alley retail area behind Campus Edge expressed concerns over issues related to parking and whether enough spaces were set aside. Tarabicos did disclose that the Traders Alley owners plan to build apartments over their retail development. He also called for the plan to go back to the Planning Commission. Representatives for the Campus Edge developer said the owners of Traders Alley were attempting to tie the projects together, due to long-running parking issues on their property.

Chris Locke, general counsel for Lang Development, by some accounts, the biggest apartment landlord in the Main Street area, said he welcomed the competition and dismissed concerns about vacancy rates. He said Lang has only four of approximately 200 apartments without leases.

Shawn Tucker, also representing Campus Edge, said attorneys representing parties seeking to send the project back to the Planning Commission hoped to delay and perhaps kill the project. "Delay is deadly," said Tucker, who also made a point-by-point rebuttal of earlier claims.

With approval in place, construction on the site could begin in a few months. The developer has constructed other projects in the city including Amstel Square at the former Crab Trap site off Elkton Road.

In other action, the council: - Approved an ordinance increasing the mandatory fine when the victim is a law enforcement officer. The ordinance puts the ordinance in conformity with state law. - Bill 11-10 - An Ordinance Amending Chapter 22, Police Offenses, Code of the City of Newark, Delaware, By prohibiting the discharge of a paintball gun within the city limits.

Middletown was strong candidate for plant officials made numerous visits to the state and state officials checked out Bloom's installations at Silicon Valley, Calif. tech giants such as Adobe Systems.

Bloom has its skeptics, who do not believe its technology can lower electric generation costs enough to be competitive with other alternatives and also question the reliability of the source. Fuel cells have long been viewed as a promising technology that never quite worked out.

There were fewer doubts in Newark.

"Newark is No. 1 again," said a clearly happy Mayor Vance Funk, III. Funk believes that O'Mara and his ties to green industries made the difference.

"When I see him, I want to give him a hug," the mayor said of O'Mara. Selander also noted that Markell is not uncomfortable in dealing with the world of technology. He was one of the original employees of cell phone carrier Nextel.

Funk said the UD-Chrysler site was not a shoo-in for the plant, with Middletown also making a strong bid. At one point, there was talk in Middletown about an upcoming announcement on a major employer coming to the town.

The mayor said he learned that Newark was in a strong position when he was invited several weeks ago to visit Bloom's operations in California. He admitted that it was difficult to keep the good news to himself.

Special Olympics - Some things never get old

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

I attended my 22nd consecutive Special Olympics Delaware Summer Games last weekend, and while many of the faces of the athletes and volunteers have changed over the years, the spirit inside each and every participant remains the same.

In fact, it's more impressive than ever.

I watched an athlete bench press over 300 pounds. I saw another walk 15 meters. I saw an ace served on the tennis courts and a home run hit at the softball field. I also watched an athlete swim the butterfly stroke, and one propel herself while being held afloat by a special device.

I saw smiles on the faces of those winning gold medals; and something a rookie spectator at this event might find odd -- smiles on the faces of those who didn't. One thing I've learned over the years at this event is that winning is awesome -- just ask those who do -- but it's only a snapshot of a much bigger picture.

Jake Zonick, 15, of Newark, receives a gold medal from Sgt. Kristopher Thompson of the Delaware State Police Troop 5 at the 2011 Special Olympics Summer Games, held June 10-11 at the University of Delaware. Jake won gold medals in the 50-meter walk and softball throw at the 41st annual event, sponsored by DuPont.

During their training, which lasts over two months, the athletes learn to follow rules; they learn about getting along with teammates; and they learn that although sometimes you fail, the most important thing is how you react on the very next try.

The athlete oath is: "Let me win. But if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt." The athletes live that oath every single day of their lives, having to overcome obstacles and stereotypes most of us have never experienced. So it's easy to understand why a silver or bronze medal might elicit as wide a smile as a gold one.

Or why, when asked, an athlete might say the best part of the Summer Games isn't winning or even competing, but rather the opportunity to see old friends and meet new ones.

The athletes impressed me with their performances. They inspired me with their courage.

In one of the last races I watched, there was a runner who finished dead last in the 800-meter run. She crossed the finish line jumping for joy and shouting out: "I did it, I did it. I ran the entire race without stopping." It was a perfect snapshot of the big Special Olympics picture.

Perhaps the best lesson I've learned from these athletes over the years is one that all athletes at every level should remember: It's not always the end result that matters most, but rather the path you take to get there; and sometimes, the obstacles you overcome to do so. In fact, isn't that a life lesson for all of us?

Another Summer Games has come and gone. Next year I know I'll once again enjoy seeing familiar faces and meeting new friends. I'll enjoy watching the athletes perform and I'll applaud the coaches and volunteers who give so much of themselves to help make the Games possible.

Unlike a lot of things I've done for 22 consecutive years or even longer, this one never gets old.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Good Neighbor Award

Delaware Freezer Inc. was honored at the recent Newark Area Welfare Committee Annual Dinner. Beverly Stoudt, Christmas Basket Chairperson, presented Jesse Greene, Facility Manager with the annual GOOD NEIGHBOR AWARD, recognizing outstanding service to the community. Each year, Delaware Freezer, located on Elkton Road, donates freezer space for turkey storage. The turkeys are part the 320 boxes of food given out to area families for the holidays.

The Newark Area Welfare Committee, an all volunteer organization, in cooperation with community partners, is committed to helping Newark area families in crisis regain balance by providing them the necessities of life.

Spring Concert Series

Enjoy the music of local musicians as the City of Newark Parks and Recreation Department, once again, hosts the Spring Concert Series. Concerts will be held Thursday nights 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. (weather permitting) during the months of May and June (running through June 23). Grab a bite to eat and do some shopping on Main Street then join us for an evening of fun on the Academy Building lawn. This program is made possible, in part, by a grant from the Delaware Division of the Arts, a state agency dedicated to nurturing and supporting the arts in Delaware, in Partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts. For additional information on arts activities in Delaware visit the Division of the Arts web site, www.artsdel.org. Sponsored in part, by Newark Day Nursery. On rain days the concert will be held at the Aetna Fire House on Academy Street. Please call the Leisure Time Hotline at 366-7147 on rain days for more information.

June 23, The Jammers, Rock & Roll

Chapel Street Players Annual Fundraiser

In the same comedy spirit of Mel Brook's campy horror classic, "Young Frankenstein," comes the Chapel Street Players June FUNdraiser, "The House of Frankenstein" by Martin Downing. "The House of Frankenstein" is an all-star combination of horror and comedy, complete with some of the greatest creeps, ghouls and monsters in celluloid history. This monster mash won't scare the life out of you, but you might just die from laughter.

Directed by Scott F. Mason (known to audiences in Delaware far and wide for his award winning impersonation of Dame Edna) who has placed the entire show (set, props and even the actors) in black and white to cement the show as a classic horror film.

"House of Frankenstein" runs on June 18, 24 & 25 at 8 p.m. and June 19 & 25 at 2 p.m. All tickets for "Frankenstein" are only $15.

Mocha, Music & More 3rd Anniversary

On Friday, June 17 from 7 to 9 p.m., Friends of Newark, which sponsors Mocha, Music & More, celebrates three years of bringing live entertainment to Main Street. Once again, Friends of Newark, a community organization dedicated to building community in Newark by promoting creativity on Main Street, will present its 3rd Friday of the month coffeehouse at Central Perk, thanks to owner Pin Campbell.

The spoken word performer of the evening is Dan Maguire, a poet whose work has appeared in numerous publications and who has won such prizes as the Almeda Boulton Memorial Award and first prize at the Philadelphia Writer's Conference.

The second performer of the evening is Michael Brook, a finger-style guitarist and singer whose songs range from such styles as swing, Brazilian, classic country, blues to 50's and 60's rock and roll.

The evening closes with the American roots music ensemble, the Scrapple Creek Runners: Paddy Corcoran, vocals and guitar; Sarah Larsen, fiddle; J. C. Bell, Mandolin, tenor banjo and vocals and Dave Atherton, bass. Scrapple Creek Runners perform their own material and a wide array of old time American songs. The band performs in the Delmarva and southern Pennsylvania areas and can be spotted busking on street corners.

At every coffeehouse, Friends of Newark likes to hand out a door prize from a local non-profit or from a Main Street business. This month the door prize has been contributed by Rainbow Music & Books. To celebrate three years on Main Street, CD compilations of the past three years will also be offered as door prizes.

Mocha, Music & More offers opportunities for artists to perform original or non-copy-right material live in an intimate and friendly setting. To perform at a coffeehouse, contact Benscoter2 @Comcast.com. For more information about Friends of Newark, contact davidr41@hotmail.com or call 368-7158. Mocha, Music & More is free and open to the whole community.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is an 1898 photograph, perhaps of a special event, showing a Pomeroy & Newark Railroad passenger train stopped near the Pomeroy Station located where the tracks crossed East Main Street. Though the station and tracks have been removed, the crossing spot is at the new traffic light that is at the bus transfer station across from the Newark Shopping Center exit and the road to the Pomeroy Station commercial center where Ski Bum and the office of the Newark Post are located. The tracks were laid through Newark in 1868 allowing freight and passenger service between Pomeroy, P A and Newark serving the farms, mills, quarries, and villages along the White Clay Creek. Passenger service was ended in 1929 and freight service was phased out starting in 1935 except for Newark businesses that could be accessed from the Pennsylvania Railroad line south of town. Anyone who can give information about the people in the picture, or the event, or the Pomeroy Railroad is asked to contact the Newark Historical Society or the Newark Post. (Picture courtesy of Frank Mayer.)

Visit the Newark History Museum located at the historic 1877 passenger train station on South College Avenue. The museum will be open Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 p.m. through November. Individuals, groups, clubs, or organizations are welcome at other times by appointment. Call 368-9845 for arrangements. The Newark Historical Society invites donations or loans of objects, stories, pictures, and other artifacts of places, activities, people, and life styles in the Greater Newark Area for its permanent collections.

Contact the Newark Historical Society by voice mail at 302-224-2408, by postal mail to P. O. Box 711, Newark, DE 19715, or by email to newarkdehistoricalsociety@yahoo.com.
