Newarkers seek adequate water supplies

by Cathy Thomas

Water service east of Newark prompted some complaints during Monday night's City Council meeting.

Some residents who live in the area between Windy Hills and Harmony Road have experienced low water pressure or have had periods of no water at all. Last week, mandatory water restrictions were issued for the city's 9,000 customers in that area.

David Onn, operations president for Citizens Advocacy Possum Park Area (CAPPA), advised Council of a state law requiring water service at all times.

"We (CAPPA) would like to remind you of the legal obligation to provide water," said Onn. "Some of (the residents) have moved in and found no water in their $150,000-plus homes."

Water customers inside the city limits are only under voluntary restrictions, not under mandatory restrictions. Onn suggested that customers outside the city are discriminated against by city policy.

"All of your customers should receive equal water service for the same rate," said Onn. "Residents in this area do not vote in the city and we're beginning to wonder if Newark should provide water service to that area."

Onn told Council that he could pack the meeting if necessary to demonstrate citizen's concerns about the water problems in the area.

"You can pack this meeting all you want," said Mayor William Redd. "We'll do the best we can. That's all we can do."

Monday night, Council approved construction of the Milford Crossroads water pumping station and water main. The $738,000 project is expected to alleviate many of the water service problems east of Newark.

In other action Monday night: • Consideration on whether to disband the Conservation Advisory Commission was delayed until Aug. 8. The Commission is expected to submit a report to council on possible responsibilities.

Council earlier discussed whether the Commission is needed since many of its duties overlap with those of other city boards.

Yorkshire ditch a deep problem

The issue of who should maintain a drainage ditch was discussed for several hours Monday night as Newark City Council considered the planned Yorkshire Woods development.

Council approved the annexation, zoning and subdivision plan for the development, to be located on 12.5 acres of land south of Robscott Manor and north of the Diamond State Industrial Park.

The controversy centers around a 900-foot long drainage ditch that runs between the planned development of Yorkshire Woods and the existing neighborhood of Yorkshire.

For several years, residents of Yorkshire who live near the ditch have had erosion problems in their back yards. As homeowners, they have been responsible for maintenance of the ditch.

Eleven years ago, New Castle County, the City of Newark and other government groups spent nearly $100,000 to improve the ditch. However, problems have persisted for area residents.

In an agreement between the city and the developer of Yorkshire Woods, DMS Associates, the developer will spend several thousand dollars improving the ditch. However, long-term maintenance will be the homeowners' responsibility. Council dropped a clause that would have made the new homeowners in Yorkshire Woods responsible for the ditch with the right to seek half of the cost from their neighbors in Yorkshire. State Rep. Steve Amick, R-Newark, said that clause could set up a civil war between neighbors.

"We're asking some residents of the city to assume an obligation of monumental proportions," said Amick. "We're asking for a civil war 15 years down the road. You want the neighbors on one side of the ditch to sue the neighbors on the other side?"

Council decided to remove the clause and insert the city code which requires homeowners to maintain responsibility of such ditches.

Council members agreed to have city staff study the issue further to determine a long-term solution to the problem.

Yorkshire residents expressed their displeasure at having responsibility for the ditch.

"I think it's ridiculous for individual homeowners to maintain a public storm sewer system," said James Bowman, a Yorkshire resident.

"Maybe it's time we raised taxes to support the kind of public works system we need. I don't think it's right. I don't think it's fair."

Inaugural first First State Games to open Friday night in Newark

by David Woolman

The inaugural First State Games, a celebration of Delaware amateur athletics, will be held this weekend in Newark.

The Games will begin Friday with an Olympic-style torch run and opening ceremonies. Most of the sporting events will be held over the weekend.

The Games are patterned after the Olympics, with an opening ceremonies, indoor and outdoor events, team and single events, and participants representing all regions of the state. New York was the first to hold a state games, and 35 states now hold similar athletic competitions.

Eric Conrad, a bicycle racer who participated in the Olympic trials in 1984 before retiring after an injury, is the executive director of the Games.

He will be joined in running the Games by a host of state sports figures, from University of Delaware basketball coach Steve Steinwedel and volleyball coach Barb Viera to Olympic ice skating coach Ron Ludington.

"They're the key," says Conrad. "They have the experience that I don't have in their individual sports."

According to Conrad, the goals of the Games are to develop a grassroots amateur sports network to boost the Olympic effort, provide a source of recognition for amateur athletes, and promote physical fitness through participation in the Games.

Approximately 1,500 athletes of all ages will participate in 15 sports. Five sports — the 5-kilometer race, fencing, taekwondo, track and field and diving — will continue to accept post-registration of athletes up to Friday afternoon at Newark High School.

AT A GLANCE

Following are First State Games events, with information on times, places and other important facts:

• 5-kilometer run will start on Delaware Avenue at 7 p.m., and end with the runners going through the school bus yard and into the Newark High School's Robert Hoffman Stadium the back way, with the race ending on the 50 yard line during the opening ceremonies. "It will probably be the biggest crowd these runners have ever finished in front of," says race director Thomas Fort. About 300 are expected to participate, and there will be awards for men and women in five age categories. The race is part of the Delaware road race championship series. Post-registration for the race will be taken up to 6:30 p.m. Friday in the Newark High gym. Fee is $12.

• Basketball will be held in the University of Delaware Field House 2-9 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday. Participation will be in two divisions, scholastic boys (grade 12 and under) and open men.

• Fencing will be held in the Field House 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Thomas Priest, director of the fencing event for the Games, is hoping for 20 competitors in the mens division and 10 competitors in the womens division. Standard foil and rules will be used, with Saturday competition used as a qualifying round, and Sunday as the finals. Qualifying will probably be done by Brazilian rules, in which the competitors are put into pools, each one fences the other, the competitor with the worst record is dropped from the pool and new pools are formed with the remaining fencers. In the mens division, Priest, Mike Baboutz, Kevin Collins and Paul Fleming are the fencers to watch, and Michele Kosch and Justine Tumas are the favorites among the women. There will be

Habitat For Humanity walkers visit Newark

by Cathy Thomas

"Everybody knows these homes were built by people who have love and concern in their hearts."

Millard Fuller, founder, Habitat for Humanity

Twenty years ago, Millard Fuller was a successful businessman and lawyer in Georgia.

Then a personal crisis made him give up that well-paying career and find riches elsewhere.

Today, he is the leader of a successful non-profit organization that helps provide housing for the poor.

"I'm making more money than I did in business, but it isn't for me. It's for the poor," said Fuller.

Fuller is the founder of Habitat for Humanity, headquartered in Americus, Georgia.

The organization is celebrating its twelfth anniversary this year with the House-Raising Walk '88.

The walkers were in Newark Wednesday as they head for a rally in Washington, D.C. on Sunday.

And Fuller visited the city Tuesday to talk about Habitat for Humanity, raise funds and gather volunteers.

As a part of the anniversary celebration, Fuller hopes Habitat can help add 120 houses along the walking route and raise $1.2 million. The 12-week walk will end on Sept. 15 with a celebration in Atlanta.

"The goal of Habitat for Humanity is to eliminate poverty housing," said Fuller. "We will build simple houses for these people and sell these houses at no profit, at no interest with long-term loans."

Habitat is working in several cities in the United States and Canada and in several other countries. In each city, there is a core group of paid staff, but the rest of the work is done primarily by volunteers.

Families in need of housing are chosen by a selection committee. The family is involved in the construction and renovation. In most cases, there are more families needing housing than Habitat can shelter.

"In Zaire, we announced we were going to build 114 homes. Six thousand people applied," Fuller said.

Fuller said the response from families who have received the homes has been overwhelming. One mother's response was, "My boys are no longer ashamed to say where they live."

"Everybody knows these homes were built by people who have love and concern in their hearts," said Fuller.

The fact that the people are paying for the homes gives them pride and an incentive to keep the home nice, according to Fuller.

One of the most recognizable members of Habitat is former President Jimmy Carter. Carter and his wife, Rosalyn, were in Philadelphia last month to renovate several homes.

Newarkers fed Habitat for Humanity walkers Wednesday, and attended a special service that evening at White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church.

Bill on 'nutritionists'

Although the 1988 session of the Delaware legislature ended only a few weeks ago, legislators are already looking to the next session.

Some of the bills which failed to make it through this year may reappear next year.

State Rep. Ada Leigh Soles, D-Newark, hopes to push for legislation calling for the licensing of nutritionists and dietitians.

"It's a bill that says who can call themselves nutritionists," said Soles.

Currently, there are no state laws governing dietitians and nutritionists. Soles said anyone "can hang out a sign and call themselves a nutritionist."

The danger with that, she said, is that lives can be endangered by someone who is not qualified to dispense dietary information.

The bill, which has failed to make it through three legislative sessions, was refused for consideration this year by the Senate Sunset Committee.

"I think you'll see the bill resubmitted," said Soles. "We may try a different strategy."

Soles said she may try to get another sponsor of the bill to introduce it first in the Senate instead of the House.

Deacon's Walk

New Castle County will soon be upgrading its Meeting House Hill-Deacon's Walk playground, and State Rep. Steven C. Taylor is seeking recommendations from community members about the types of equipment and facilities that should be included in the project.

Taylor, in a letter to residents of the Newark communities, said he hopes to incorporate their ideas in a final playground plan to be drafted in September.

Work on the playground, located on Ware Road, is expected to begin in spring 1989.

Tip

Crime Stoppers

Delaware Crime Stoppers is seeking the identity of a person who robbed the Marstellars Market near Dover about two months ago.

At 4:25 a.m. Wednesday, May 11, a man walked into the store and confronted the clerk with a knife. The man stated to the clerk, "Give me all the money. This is no joke."

The man then fled on foot around the side of the building.

He is described as a black male in his late 20s, approximately 6 feet tall and 180 pounds. He was wearing light faded blue jeans, a sweatshirt-type jacket with a nylon stocking pulled down over his head and face.

Delaware Crime Stoppers is offering up to $1,000 for information that leads to the arrest and indictment of this individual. Persons with information should call 1-800-TIP-3333.

State orders investigation of Artesian

by Cathy Thomas

An investigation of Artesian Water Company has been ordered by the Delaware Public Service Commission.

The investigation will center on the adequacy of the facilities and services of Artesian following water outages in the Hockessin area on June 14 and July 4.

Residents in the Hockessin area have complained to PSC that a lack of planning on the part of Artesian to meet increased customer demand has led to water shortages.

However, Peter N. Johnson, Artesian senior vice president, told the PSC that unrestricted use of mechanical water sprinklers was the primary reason for the problems and that company imposed bans on their use had eased exceptionally high demand in recent weeks.

Bernard L. Dworsky, administrator for the Water Resources Agency for New Castle County, said causes for the recent outages may be due to a number of factors, including significant growth in population, a large number of new homes trying to establish lawns and outdoor landscaping and the lack of rainfall.

The PSC has also directed that a determination be made as to whether Artesian should be prohibited from servicing new customers.

The company must submit specific plans to enhance the supply of water for its present customers as well as its plans to meet the demands that can be expected to be placed upon its system from future customers in areas presently being developed or for which development has been approved.

The PSC will also decide whether any fines should be imposed against the company following its investigation.

Earlier this week, Artesian lifted the mandatory ban on non-essential water use. However, customers are still restricted from lawn watering during non-designated hours.

Justice: Planning process will change

by Cathy Thomas

A major change has been made in the land planning process in New Castle County following water outages in the Hockessin area.

County Executive Rita Justice initiated the change last week stating that "development cannot be permitted to outstrip water supplies."

Under the new policy, each time a rezoning or subdivision application is submitted, the waer supplier for the area will have to submit a definitive written response.

The response must identify the supplier's ability to service the proposed project with existing facilities, the status of previously committed projects in the service area and whether the system improvements are needed to meet projected demand. Necessary improvements and their anticipated completion dates must be provided.

Under previous policy, lack of response from a supplier was interpreted as an unconditional ability to service the proposed development. With this change, a supplier has a limited time frame in which to meet the service needs of the proposed development.

"We cannot afford to make uninformed land use decisions," said Justice. "We cannot presume that no response from the water companies implies there is no problem servicing a project. This policy change, along with analysis by the New Castle County Water Resources Agency, should give us a clearer picture of the impact a proposed development will have on the water supply network."

Study of parkland offer raises questions

by Cathy Thomas

Just as many questions as answers have come out of a study investigating the feasibility of adding 30 acres to Rittenhouse Park.

Currently, the state owns a 30-acre tract along Christina Parkway next to the City of Newark's Rittenhouse Park. The state would apparently be willing to sell the land to the city for a token price — that is if the city wants it.

The recently-completed study, conducted by city staff, brings up several questions that must be answered before the issue can be seriously pursued.

One of the major questions deals with the right-of-way along the Christina Parkway. Because the Christina Parkway is a state-owned road, the state now maintains the right-of-way.

City Manager Carl Luft is concerned that if the city takes over the land, maintenance of the right-of-way might then become a city responsibility.

The right-of-way, which lies along the Christina Parkway, is expensive to maintain. Annual maintenance costs are projected to be $4,400. However, first year costs could run as high as $19,000 for the purchase of equipment and landscaping materials.

Another major concern for Luft is that a "risky precedent" might be set concerning other state roads through Newark if the city takes over maintenance of the right-of-way along the Christina Parkway.

One option is for the city to take over the 30 acres and leave the right-of-way under state ownership. Maintenance costs for the 30 acres is much lower. City staff projects an annual maintenance cost of $3,000 with clean up costs during the first year about $5,000.

That option would be more reasonable to consider, according to Luft.

"The 30 acres outside the right of way is not going to cost a great deal to maintain," said Luft. "I don't consider that ($3,000 for annual maintenance) a burdensome figure. It's not that big of a cost."

Luft said the state acreage would be a natural addition to Rittenhouse Park. Most of the maintenance money would go to the clearing of fallen trees from the Christina Creek.

One of the main reasons for the city's interest in the land is to keep open space within the city.

However, most of the 30 acres is in floodplain, making unlikely future development of the land.

"Since most of it (30 acres) is in the floodplain, it essentially has to remain in its natural state to a large degree," said Luft.

Because development of the land is restricted, the significant advantage to municipal ownership of the land is questioned.

The city study of the land was prompted at the urging of City Councilman Edwin Miller. Miller believes the acquisition of the land would be a good deal for the city.

Miller will be meeting soon with city administration to discuss the staff findings.

The 30 acres of land originally belonged to the Chrysler Corporation. However, when the Christina Parkway was built several years ago, the land was isolated from the plant, rendering it useless to the automaker.

The state purchased the property from Chrysler and has basically left the land unchanged.

University tuition to increase 7%

The cost of attending the University of Delaware will increase more than 7 percent this year.

University President Dr. Russel Jones has announced that tuition will increase 7.3 percent for the 1988-89 school year.

The cost of tuition for a Delaware resident will increase $175, to $2,560. Non-resident students will pay $6,300 for tuition this year.

According to information released by the University, increased revenue from student tuition and fees is necessary to fund the increased costs the University must pay for supplies and expenses. Those expenses include library books, computing and laboratory equipment, the upkeep of facilities and salary increases.

"Fortunately, University endowment income, State of Delaware appropriations and gifts and grants make it possible for the University to maintain a level of student tuition and fees that is less than one-half of the cost of a University of Delaware education," said Jones.

Overall, full-time undergraduates from Delaware will pay about $441 more in the coming year than last year for tuition, room, board and health service fees.

The University's appropriation from the state for operations totals $56.26 million, up by $3.26 million over last year's appropriation of $53 million. Overall, the state appropriation to the University, excluding debt service, is $62.8 million, up $3.3 million over last year.

The University's operating budget for fiscal 1989 is $259 million. In addition to student tuition and fees and state funds, support for operations is received from endowment income from gifts and from grants and contracts.

Veterans Cemetery in final stages

After several years of planning, final steps are now being taken for the development of the Delaware Veterans Memorial Cemetery.

The cemetery will be located on a 52-acre tract of land north of the Summit Bridge along Del. 896.

"In July, 1986, a state-funded office was created to provide general services to Delaware veterans. The cemetery will further the state's commitment to honor our veterans," said Delaware Secretary of State Michael Harkins.

Six years ago, the planning, site selection and engineering process began for the development of the cemetery.

A total of $2.8 million has been appropriated for the cemetery. The funding is a combination of state bond bill appropriations and money from the U.S. Veterans Administration.

Officials believe that the site will provide space for approximately 20,000 interments through a relatively new process of pre-installed burial vaults.

Construction contracts were awarded recently to begin work on the first 2,500 vaults.

"The award of these contracts will bring the veteran's community one step closer to the realization of a long-awaited, appropriate place of rest," said William C. Meredith, chairman of the Delaware Commission of Veterans Affairs.

Opening of the cemetery is expected on Memorial Day, May 30, 1989.

Public hearings are to be held within the next few months to determine the operation and requirements for admission to the cemetery.

GAMES

Spectators can buy a $5 weekend pass that will get them into every event over the course of the Games, or they can buy a $3 pass good for one of the days. Parking is extra.

Participants in the events will register at Newark High School by 6:30 p.m. Friday and participate in the parade of athletes at the opening ceremonies.

The Games begin with the opening ceremonies and 5-kilometer run Friday evening at Newark High School's Robert Hoffman Stadium.

The opening ceremonies will feature exhibitions of taekwondo, gymnastics, Jazzercise, skateboarding and trick bicycling, beginning about 6:30 p.m.

The Diamond State Band will help kick off the official opening of the Games at 7 p.m., and the run will start soon after. The finish line for the race will bring the runners right onto the field before the assembled spectators.

Also beginning right after the welcome will be the parade of athletes, with all of the participants in the Games taking a tour of the stadium. The ceremonies will also include a hot air balloon launch, a dove release, and a musical review with the Miss Delawares of 1987 and 1988, Irish dancers, cloggers, and the Newark Dixie Ramblers.

There will be an introduction of the VIPs, among them Delaware Olympians Frank Masley and Vicki Huber, then oaths by the athletes and officials, the lighting of the torch and fireworks to top off the evening.

The torch run will begin in Dover at 7 a.m. with Gov. Michael N. Castle taking the first leg. The torch will make its way towards Newark, and be brought into the stadium by the Delaware state fitness champions Bill Boyd and Wendy Weaver.

"Barb Gross (Games assistant director) has done a fabulous job in coordinating the whole thing," says Conrad.

The ceremonies should last until approximately 9:30 p.m. Parking for the public will be available at the Newark Shopping Center and the College Square Shopping Center.

Two sporting events, the cycling and the yachting, have already been held. The 12 remaining events will take place Saturday and Sunday. Six will be held at the University of Delaware Field House Complex, three at the University's Carpenter Sports Complex, and the other three at separate venues. Parking close to the complexes will be limited. Directions to more distant lots will be provided.

The team events had pre-qualifying rounds in the weeks preceding the Games. The competition in each event will consist of four teams, one representing each area of the state: North, Canal, Central and South.

When possible, participants have been placed on teams representing their home area. In many cases, such as the open division of field hockey, all four teams will have players from all over the state in order to have a fair and equal competition.

EVENTS

demonstrations in sabre and epee as well.

• Field hockey will be held on two fields at the Field House Complex—the varsity field hockey field (behind the Ice Arena and pool) and the soccer field (inside the track, behind the football stadium), from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. There will be a scholastic and open division, the latter featuring some players who have played on the U.S. national team, according to field hockey director Joan Couch. Saturday's play will be in a round robin format, with the results used to seed the teams. Sunday, the teams will play in a single elimination format, with a consolation game for the teams that lose the first game.

• Lacrosse will be held at the Field House Complex on the varsity lacrosse field (the field closest to the corner of Del. 896 and 4) on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The First State Lacrosse Association will be running the event, according to its president, Kevin Adams, the director of lacrosse at the Games. The Association runs a summer league, and three of the teams will consist almost totally of players from that league. The fourth team will come from the Rehoboth area, and will be coached by Cape Henlopen football and lacrosse coach Rob Schroder. Adams says to "look for a lot of fast action," in the double elimination tournament. The championship game will be held Sunday at noon, or at 3 p.m. if the team from the losers bracket wins the noon game. Players to keep an eye out for, says Adams, are Dave Tevebaugh, Brad Minnich, Kevin Kane, Jay Black and Bob Welshmer.

• Taekwondo will be held in the Field House 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. There will be three age divisions: open (16 and up), scholastic (12-15) and primary (11 and under), sex divisions within the open and scholastic ranks, and weight divisions within most of the other divisions. Only black belts will be allowed to participate. Competition will consist of sparring only, with two minute matches. A single elimination format will be used. Some of the local participants will be David Addley, Doug Stewart, Todd Prevanto, and Gary Bifferato.

• Track and field will be held at the Field House complex 6-9:30 p.m. Saturday. There will be three age groups, scholastic (all athletes who were in 12th grade or under this spring), open and masters (40 and over). Track events will range from the 100 to the 3000 meters. The mile race is part of the state mile grand prix competition. Field events will be the high jump, the long jump, the shot put, the discus and the pole vault. There will be no field events in the masters division. Newark's Rob Rainey will be one to look out for in the mile event.

• Diving will be held at the Carpenter Sports Building Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. Competition will be held for men and women in four classes: 10 and under, 11-14, scholastic (15-18) and open. There will be required dives in every class, but they will not be as difficult as those required in most competitions. "We tried to gear it to be a little less stringent than AAU diving," says John Schuster, co-director of the diving event and diving coach at the University. "A lot of kids aren't up to that level, and we want them to be able to participate. It's a good meet for the beginners, and that's one of the goals of the First State Games." Schuster says the largest, most competitive categories will be the 10 and under and scholastic divisions, despite the fact that a number of high school divers "including state champion Grant Merrill, Anita Schwendt, third in the state, and Amanda Klockers" will be diving at the junior nationals this weekend and will not be able to participate in the Games.

Former high school state champions Vince Gullotti, Carl Schaumann and Tucker Smith may compete in the open division, and co-director Tammy Chapman may be convinced to participate as well.

• Swimming will take place at the Carpenter Sports Building Saturday and Sunday, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. There will be different events events will be split among both days, with preliminaries held in the morning and finals held that night. There will be five divisions of competition, 10 and under, 11-12, scholastic (14 and under), open and masters (25 and up). The younger divisions should be the most competitive, says director Mark Fawcett. Few swimmers are expected in the Masters division, and the open division will be thinned out because the junior nationals will be held this weekend. Still, top high school swimmers such as Danielle Van Dyke, Seth Van Neerden, Carl Stetter, Alyss Lang, Michael Wright and Brian DiPietro will participate.

• Volleyball will be held at the Carpenter Sports Building on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. There will be four divisions: open men, open women, coed, and scholastic girls. There was a general tryout, with the qualifiers drafted onto one of the four teams in the scholastic girls division, while the open divisions had whole teams playing for one of the four spots in a qualifying tournament last month. Teams to watch for in the open division will be the Originals, consisting of some of the original male volleyball players in the state, including "Laudy" Damico, and the Lady Blue Hens, a team consisting of college players who starred at Christiana, Newark and St. Mark's high schools a few years ago.

• Bowling will be held at the Brunswick Blue Hen Lanes Saturday from noon to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Men and women will compete in three game scratch, three game handicap, six game scratch and six game handicap events. Fifty to 55 women and 50 men will be competing, according to Ward Novak, director of the bowling event. "There are no standouts," says Novak. "It's a pretty good cross section of averages." Most of the best male bowlers in Delaware are not amateur, and will not be eligible to compete. Female bowlers to look out for are Jane Sassaman, Marty Newirth and Rhonda Molden.

• Roller skating, both speed and artistic events, will be held at the Christiana Skating Center, Del. 273. Roller hockey will be held in the Field House. The speed competition will be held from 6 to 7:30 a.m. on Saturday. There will be three divisions, primary, scholastic and open, and mixed relays as well as individual races. The artistic events will be held Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and consist of figures, coed solo dance and singles, in three age divisions. As the U.S. artistic nationals will be held that week, the competition will not feature the best that Delaware has to offer, but a number of fine regional competitors will perform. The hockey will be played in the Field House on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Teams will be coming from the four regions, and they will use Junior Olympic rules, which include five men on the floor per team, and eight minute halves.

• Softball will be held at the Delcastle Recreation area Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Medical Center names AIDS patient coordinator

A new position of AIDS patient care coordinator has been created by the Medical Center of Delaware.

Arlene Bincsik has been appointed to the position, the first of its kind for a Delaware health care facility.

As AIDS patient care coordinator, Bincsik will provide coordinated patient care and education.

Those duties will include ensuring proper management of AIDS patients who are treated as in-patients and at the infectious disease out-patient clinic and ensuring that patients themselves understand how the AIDS virus is transmitted and recognize the signs, symptoms and importance of seeking medical care.

Bincsik will also render psychosocial support to patients and their family members.

The Medical Center has been involved in AIDS patient care and professional education in Delaware for several years.

"We started our infectious disease clinic two years ago with two AIDS patients," Bincsik said. "Now, we have 140 patients who range in age from five weeks to 76 years. This increase shows us that AIDS is not going away."

A $10,000 grant from the University of Maryland has been awarded to the Medical Center to help educate health care professionals in the state and to increase the number of health care people qualified to administer to AIDS patients.

"Simply speaking, we want to improve the quality of care for an increasing number of AIDS patients and to offer them readily accessible resources," said Bincsik. "We can't stop the disease, but through a comprehensive education program, we can help prevent it from spreading."

The Medical Center of Delaware, a private, not-for-profit organization, has two acute care hospitals and a rehabilitation facility. One of the acute care facilities is Christiana Hospital in east Newark.

Edward Maxwell Jr.

Maxwell

County officer honored

A New Castle County police officer has been recognized for his work.

Edward Maxwell, Jr., 36, of Newark, last week received a promotion to sergeant and this week was named Officer of the Quarter by the Brandywine Hundred Kiwanis.

Maxwell joined the police force in 1975, and has served as dispatcher, in the tactical enforcement unit, the supply and evidence unit and is currently assigned to the Family Services Unit.

A graduate of Wilmington College, Maxwell has received extensive training in the study of ritualistic child abuse and related crimes.

The Officer of the Quarter award recognizes Maxwell's work in uncovering the sexual exploitation of juvenile females by an adult male using satanic ritual items in a dungeons and dragons-type game to lure victims into sexual acts. The investigation led to the arrest of one man in May 1988.

Pied Piper

Center closes

The Pied Piper School and Day Care, located on Kirkwood Highway near Newark, has closed following announcement of a Delaware State Police investigation into allegations of sexual abuse.

According to police, a complaint was filed July 6 and involved a young boy. During investigation into the alleged incident, detectives received a second complaint involving another young boy.

As of Wednesday, police has made no arrests in the alleged incidents but were continuing their investigation. The Delaware Attorney General's Office is also involved in the investigation.

Moore

Library board

A University of Delaware employee has been appointed to the New Castle County Library Advisory Board.

The assistant director of admissions at the University, Rourke A. Moore, became a member of the board earlier this month.

The board consists of 12 members and one chairperson whose duties include advising the New Castle County Library Department and recommending programs concerning local library needs.

The Library Department is comprised of 11 libraries, including Newark Free Library and Kirkwood Highway Library.

Need a room? Check with Homeshare program

by Cathy Thomas

• An elderly gentleman finds it increasingly difficult to maintain his property. He would be willing to share his home with someone who could help with household chores.

• A young man cannot afford to pay high rent on his salary. He is looking for affordable housing.

It is possible these two people could live together. But how do they find each other?

That is where Homeshare can help. Homeshare is a unique housing alternative operated by Independent Living, Inc., a private non-profit United Way agency.

Homeshare attempts to match compatible people based on common needs and interests. Primarily, the program tries to connect home providers with home seekers.

"There are all kinds of reasons people want to share a home. Each match is unique," said Jennifer Karakul, Homeshare program director. "Some are people are just not interested in living on their own."

In some cases, an elderly person may want someone to care for their property in exchange for a place to live. Sometimes, a homeowner may wish to rent out part of their home for financial reasons. Other people find they do not like to live alone.

Most of the homeseekers are people who cannot find affordable housing. The shortage of housing in New Castle County has also contributed to the problem of finding a place to live.

"I think the rise in rent, the housing shortage and property taxes, all of these things contribute to it (interest in Homeshare). We had over 1,200 inquiries last year," said Karakul.

Forty-five people have been involved in 18 matches during the past year. Although most matches involve matching one person with another, in some cases a single parent with children is matched with someone.

Making a proper match is a time-consuming and extensive process for the Homeshare staff.

"We put a great deal of time in trying to match the right people," said Karakul. "It's challenging, but it's also rewarding."

Relationships vary among the homesharers, according to Karakul.

"Sometimes it may just be a strict rent-for-room situation. Other (matches) tend to develop very close relationships," said Karakul.

"We matched two gentlemen who have been together quite awhile. One provides services for the other. We don't see them as coming apart."

When a person calls

Homeshare for information, a basic explanation of the program is given. If more information is requested, a packet is sent to the possible homeshare candidate. Included with the packet is a request for references that must be returned to Homeshare.

Following a check of the references, an interview is set up with the person. A homeseeker will come to the Homeshare office for the interview. Interviews of home providers are usually held in their homes.

"We want to find out what kind of person they would want to share their home with," said Karakul. "From the interview, we can get a fairly good idea."

If a match is found, arrangements are made so the people can meet.

"That's the chance for them to get together and find out a little bit about each other."

If the potential home-sharers feel they would like to live together, there is a two-week trial visit. If the two-week trial visit goes well, a home share agreement is drawn.

"It resembles a lease," said Karakul. "It is designed to help avoid any trouble down the road. It seems to make our potential sharers more confident."

The agreement is very specific about the living arrangement, detailing the rent to be charged or services to be provided.

Although Homeshare is a non-profit group, there is a fee to cover the costs. A $10 fee is charged at the time of interview and a $50 balance is due when a match is made.

Persons who are interested in the program can call Homeshare at 658-3664.

"The larger the pool (of potential homesharers) we have, the easier it is to bring people together," said Karakul.

State seat belt bill must pass... someday

Gov. Michael N. Castle signed four important highway safety bills into law last week, bills he hopes will slow the spiraling death toll on Delaware highways.

The new laws would:

- Make it illegal to consume alcohol while operating a motor vehicle, a law it would seem was long overdue.

- Make universal the requirement that children under age four be secured in safety seats while riding in automobiles. Previously, only parents or legal guardians were required to use such seats.

- Make it illegal to alter a driver's license, or to possess an altered driver's license.

The laws are good ones, but thinking Delawareans must be upset that the legislature did not go further in its highway safety actions.

If the state's representatives are serious about highway safety, they absolutely must pass two bills — one for mandatory seat belt use and the other for mandatory use of helmets while operating or riding on motorcycles.

Passage of the bills would send strong messages about the state's concern, and the need is clear. Seat belts prevent injury and death, and motorcycle helmets protect heads which were not designed to touch down on concrete at high speeds.

Delaware's General Assembly, so often in the forefront, has fallen well behind the times in failing to act on these issues.

Crabbing: Generation to generation

by Neil Thomas

It was 5 o'clock in the morning and the sun was not even fully awake when I heard my grandfather in the living room of our tiny Fenwick Island cottage doing his exercises.

Sit-ugh-up. Push-grunt-up. I pulled the covers up over my head with thoughts of going back to sleep. But then I remembered Pop-pop had promised to take me crabbing this morning, and he wasn't about to wait for a sleepyheaded kid.

So I stretched, yawned, rubbed my eyes and pattered out.

After toast and milk, we went to the dock to prepare for our journey. I put on a huge, puffy orange life preserver, helped tote out the bushel baskets and hopped aboard. Tiny drops of oil painted a blue, yellow and silver rainbow across the still water by the 12-horsepower Buccanner outboard. With a tug of the rope, a puff of smoke and a throaty rumble, we were off.

It was great fun, watching Pop-pop stand at the bow and scoop crab after crab from the marsh grass banks. It was even greater fun eating the catch later that evening.

This week I took my own children on vacation to that same Fenwick Island cottage and, for the first time, took them crabbing.

Crabbing, I figured, is essential to their upbringing, their family having lived on the Delmarva Peninsula for many generations.

We got ready, the boys (Noah is 6 and Adam 3) wearing huge, puffy orange life preservers and collecting a bushel basket and a crab pole.

Then we tied chicken parts onto weighted lines and waited for the crabs to strike. It wasn't a long wait, crabs being notorious scavengers. Noah pulled his line up through the green water to where we could see the brilliant white underbelly and blue claws of a medium-sized crab.

Adam insisted on netting, but being only 3 he had neither the coordination to bring the net slowly under the crab nor the ability to be quiet while doing so. He clobbered the crab.

Remarkably the crab, evidently quite hungry, stayed with the chicken and on second scoop Adam bagged his prize.

I helped him lift the net to the basket, and we dumped the crab in. It clunked down, then turned over with claws clicking. Both boys jumped back. I have to admit, I kept my distance, too.

Carefully, I turned the crab over to teach them male from female. Surprisingly, they caught on.

They loved this game, checking their three lines every two seconds or so. And after an hour and a half, we had two dozen small crabs and six big enough to eat. Which we did.

I mixed the water and vinegar and steamed them in Old Bay seasoning. Noah heard the crabs struggling to escape the large metal pan, and said he was "kind of sad because they were dying." Adam, on the other hand, thought that was just fine because "then we'll get to bash them with hammers."

Indeed, cracking the crabs with wooden mallets was their favorite part of the meal. Which was fine with me, because I got the meat ready-picked.

Let's talk advertising...

by TINA MULLINAX
MANAGER NEWARK POST

WHY ADVERTISE

It's been said millions of times. "Business has been so good I don't need to advertise" or "times are tough and I can't afford to advertise." So why advertise?

New prospects. Twenty percent of families will move this year. Some .5 million people will be married. The market is in constant change - new jobs, new incomes. Ironically, even the unemployed are seeking new, less expensive places to shop and live.

Advertising must be continuous. The National Retail Merchants Association says that "mobility and non-loyalty are rampant... you must promote to get former customers to return and seek new ones." Your competition isn't quitting. There are only so many people in the market at one time. You've got to advertise to get your share or lose it to the stores that do.

Advertising gives you a sharp advantage over competitors who cut back or cancel advertising. A five year survey of more than 3000 companies found advertisers that maintained or expanded advertising saw their sales increase an average of 100 percent. Companies which cut advertising averaged sales increased only 45 percent.

Advertising sets the record straight. Advertising corrects gossip, shoots down false reports, projects positively. Continuous advertising strengthens your image...for today and tomorrow. When people who postponed buying come back to the marketplace, you've got a better chance of getting their business if you've continued to maintain a solid, reliable advertising image.

Advertising works. Businesses that succeed are strong, consistent advertisers. Sears and K-Mart are among the most aggressive and successful retail advertisers. Advertising is the only way to generate store traffic. NRMA tells retailers that bringing in traffic is the first step not only to making a sale, but also to sell additional merchandise. For every 100 merchandise items which shoppers plan to buy, they make 30 unanticipated purchases.

To maintain internal morale. When advertising and promotions are cut, sales people become demoralized. They may believe the store is cutting back, even going out of business.

Your doors are open. Sales people are on the payroll. As long as you're in business, you have overhead and you've got to advertise to generate a steady flow of customers now...and in the future.

The Safety of the Blood Supply

No test is perfect, and to expect perfection is unrealistic. But the test for AIDS is close. Out of 50 million blood products transfused in the U.S. since the test was first used to screen blood in 1985, only 13 cases of exposure to the AIDS virus have been reported — none in Delaware. We think you'll agree that's as close to safety and perfection as you can get.

At Blood Bank of Delaware, we're working hard to keep the blood supply safe and adequate for everyone.

Babe Ruth stars win state championship

by David Woolman

It took five days, two rain delays and one game longer than it had to, but in the end the Newark Babe Ruth League 13-year-old all-stars won the state championship.

Monday night saw Newark defeat New Castle 7-2 behind a three-hitter by Shawn Swartout, thus gaining the state title.

Newark won the game after losing to New Castle 3-2 in the previous contest, which started

Thursday and, through rain delays, ended Saturday.

In the championship game, Swartout struck out four and walked two in his seven-inning effort. He threw the curve for strikes, and allowed only three well-hit balls all day. A single and a double in the fifth inning combined for one New Castle run. The other came on a walk, an error and a wild pitch.

"I wasn't nervous, I was confident," said Swartout, who had defeated New Castle earlier in the tournament. "The ball had big seams. It was easy to throw."

Newark struck for five runs in the first two innings, getting two in the first on back-to-back RBI doubles by Butch Singleton and Keith Duzan. A double and three straight singles in the second scored a run (knocked in by Danny Stout) and left the bases loaded. Singleton hit a ball mishandled by the shortstop to score Stout and Jason Lloyd.

Newark scored its other two runs in the fourth, when Brown and Lloyd singled and were brought in on errors on balls struck by Keith Duzan and Chris Carlini.

Rain in the early part of the week caused the tournament schedule to be pushed back, and Newark and New Castle first met on Thursday rather than Wednesday. The game got as far as the middle of the fourth before rain caused a postponement, with the score tied 2-2.

The game was continued late Saturday after being further held up by the rain, and New Castle squeezed out a run in the fourth to win 3-2. The delays were to the disadvantage of Newark.

"We had a lot of momentum," said Danny Stout, who anchored the team at shortstop with some fine defensive play. "We were on a roll."

"We were all psyched to go, and the rain calmed everybody down," said Theron Hutton, who pitched the loss in the Thursday-Saturday game. "We really wanted to win this game though. Almost every person on this team made it to the state championship last year (with the Newark American Little League 12-year-old team) and we lost that one. We wanted this one pretty bad."

"I was worried (after the first game)," said Newark Manager Vic Maggioni. "(New Castle) is a regional level team. New Castle could beat us any given day. We were fortunate to be able to keep their offense down."

Newark now moves on to the regional Babe Ruth tournament to be held in Cherry Hill, N.J. The first game is Saturday, Aug. 6.

Dalrymple sets swim marks in Suburban meet

by David Woolman

Newark swimmer Missi Dalrymple had set a number of goals entering the Suburban Swim League championships held Saturday at Wilton Pool. None of them was setting records.

The 14-year-old surprised herself a little bit in the trials, breaking the girls 14 and under 100 individual medley record by three seconds, then improving on one of the league's oldest records in the girls 14 and under 50 backstroke. She did not improve on those times in the finals, but won both by seven and three seconds.

"I thought it was nice, but I wasn't planning on it," said Dalrymple, a member of the Nottingham Green team. "That wasn't really my goal. My goal was to swim my best time."

"I think I've improved a lot this year. I've never broken any records before."

Dalrymple, who will enter Newark High School in the fall, hopes her performance will inspire her in the upcoming junior nationals, to be held this coming weekend in Florida. She does not find it difficult to compete on a local and a national level at the same time.

"It's pretty much the same thing, if you keep it in perspective. It's just swimming, and you always try to do your best."

"This meet, it's fun, because it's all for the team, and it's summer league. It's not as much pressure as it is when I swim in Florida."

"This kind of meet, I just let the kids swim and put no pressure on them," says Brian Collins, coach of the Fairfield team. "I just let them have fun; that's what it's all about."

"They get to compete with people from all around, people they compete with in the winter and spring. They get to see all their friends from the other teams. They worked hard all season practicing. This is for them."

But as fun as the Suburban meet can be, it is also highly competitive. "This is very serious," said Burt Dryden, coach of Drummond Hill. "This is the height of the season for them. This can make or break a whole season, in their eyes."

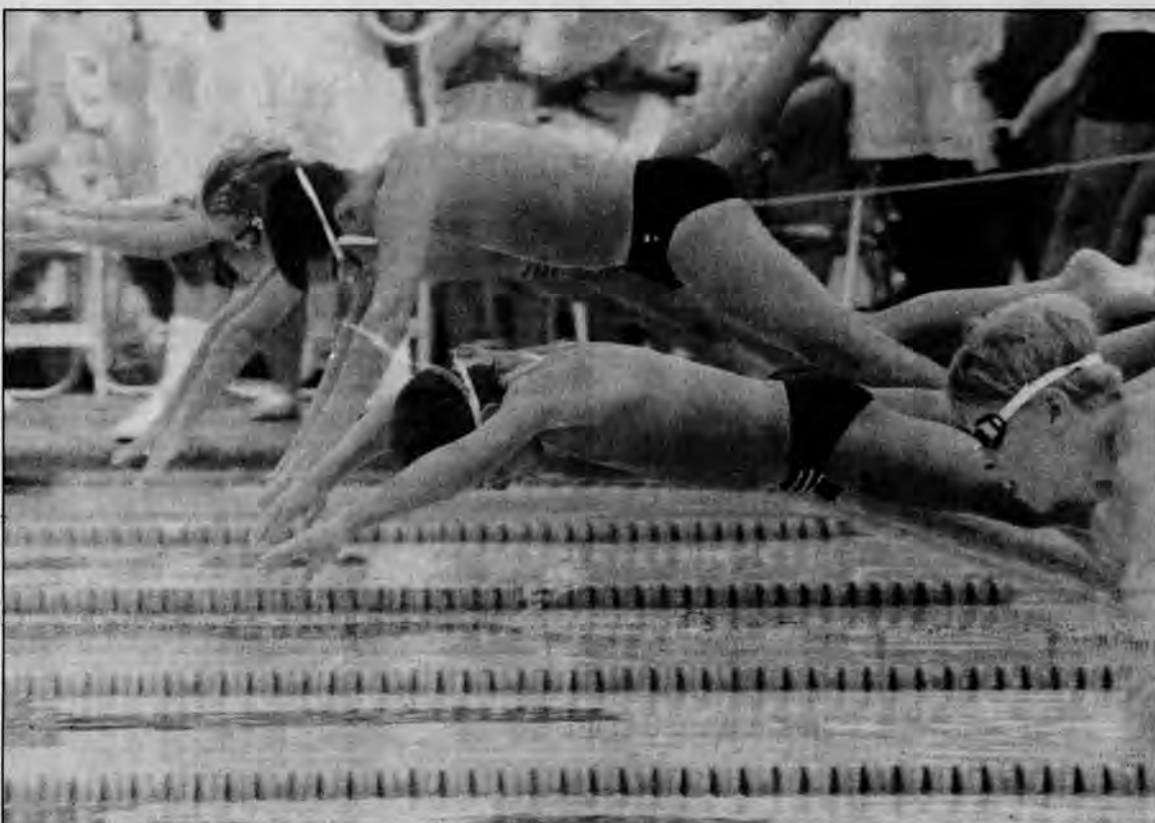

Drummond Hill won the "Good Sportsmanship Award" in its division by showing good spirit throughout the season.

"We concentrated more on having fun and having a good competition. If we win, we win. If we lose, we lose," Dryden said.

Maple Valley's Deni Rudy took a first in the girls 15 and over 50 freestyle and seconds in the 100 freestyle and 50 butterfly. Rudy, who came third in the 50 free in the high school state championships as a freshman in February, finds the Suburban League to be a little different than high school competition.

"The Summer League is more laid back," said the Newark High student, who is also a member of Team Delaware. "I have fun in the winter, too, but it's a lot more intense."

Nelson steps down as UD dean

David M. Nelson has announced his retirement from the position of Dean of the College of Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation for the University of Delaware as of Jan. 31, 1989. Nelson, 68, will remain with the University as a professor of physical education.

Nelson has served as dean of the college since 1981 following the elevation of the former University division to college status. He served as the University's athletic director from 1951 to 1984, and was the head coach of the football team from 1951 to 1965.

Much has happened under Nelson's tenure, including the elevation of the department, the expansion of the Carpenter Complex, the building of the Field House Complex, the introduction and expansion of the ice-skating program, the establishment and growth of the sports medicine program, and the establishment of the intercollegiate women's athletic program.

As head coach of the Blue Hen football team, Nelson compiled a 84-42-2 record and won the 1963 wire service national championship. He is perhaps best known as the developer of the Wing-T offense, now the trademark of University of Delaware football. Nelson was recently elected to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame.

"You simply can't say enough about what Dave Nelson has done for the University and community," said University Trustee R.R.M. Carpenter, who brought Nelson to the school in 1951.

Taylor record

Masters athlete George Taylor of Newark set a world record during the Reading, Pa. Track Club decathlon held July 23-24 at Muhlenberg High School.

Competing in the international decathlon, using open division implements (16-pound shot, two-kilogram discus, 42-inch high hurdles), Taylor scored 1,582 points. That is a world record for 57-year-old athletes.

Taylor finished in first place in the 50-59 age division at the Reading TC meet.

Also participating in the meet was John Jones, a former track standout at St. Mark's High School who now runs for Marietta College. Jones took second place in the open division in his first career decathlon. He won the 100 meters, 400 meters, high hurdles and discus.

Wildcat stars

The Newark Girls Wildcat League 16-18 representative softball team finished fourth in a regional slow pitch tournament in Richmond, Va. The placement may qualify the team for a national tournament to be held Aug. 6-7 in Pine Bluff, Ark.

Favored Nastique wins the Delaware Handicap

Nastique slips on the Reassert Yourself during Saturday's Delaware Handicap.

by David Woolman

It rained Tuesday, and it rained Thursday and it rained more Saturday afternoon at Delaware Park in Stanton, and Stephen DiMauro, trainer of Nastique, could have cared less. He'd seen his horse win on every kind of track.

"I'm really very fortunate," said the New York-based trainer after his charge won the Delaware Handicap by six and one-half lengths. "She can win on both turf and dirt. She had never won on the turf before, and then she reels off two in a row (in New York, one of them the Grade II Sheepshead Bay Handicap) and then she comes back for this one. I don't have to worry when they take races off (the turf)."

Nastique, a daughter of Naskra out of the Le Fabuleux mare La Fantastique, owned and bred by Chaus Stables, went off 8-5 as the choice of the 5,691 in attendance.

She ran the one and one-quarter miles over a sloppy track that was quite slow all day in a leisurely 2:07 3-5, 7 and 4-5 seconds off the track and stakes record, and earned $67,410 for her effort. She was ridden by Eddie Maple, who ran the race he wanted to, sitting behind pacesetter Up the Appalachee and making his move around the far turn.

"I just stayed right behind the filly on the lead," said the 39-year-old rider, also based in New York. "Bracciale (on 11-1 shot Reassert Yourself), once he ran by me, I thought he might go up and pressure the leader a little bit, but he didn't, so leaving the four and a half (the 9-16 pole) I just decided that I was going to go ahead and get out where I wanted to be."

"I was more worried before the rains came, because of the slowness of the track (which was caused by the midweek rains). I've never ridden her before, but I've ridden against her, and watched her about 20 times, and I know she gives all she's got."

Maple was a last minute substitute for her regular rider, Robbie Davis, who was unable to ride due to a recent injury. Maple was originally scheduled to ride in a race at Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben race track Saturday, but his mount was scratched Friday morning, right around the time DiMauro found out

SPORTS CALENDAR

• Newark's Department of Parks and Recreation is now accepting registrations for the Newark Youth Soccer League. The registration deadline is Aug. 12. There will be three leagues, for children 6-7 years old, 8-10 years old and 11-13 years old. Participants must meet age requirements by Nov. 1, 1988.

The league will be instructional. No standings will be kept and every child plays in every game. New registrants will be assigned to teams on a random basis. Returning players will play for the same team they were on last year. Late registrants will be placed randomly. Shin guards are recommended.

Practices will commence the week of Aug. 22, and first games will be played Sept. 10. The fee is $18 for residents of Newark, and $21 for non-residents. Fee includes team t-shirt and excess coverage insurance. Stop by the Recreation Office, Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Road to register, or call 366-7060 for more information.

Volunteer coaches, with or without experience, are needed for the program. Coaches' organizational meetings will be held at 5:45 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16 for 6-7 year old division, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16 for 8-10 year old division, and at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 17 for 11-13 year old division.

• The Greater Newark Flag Football League will hold registration and tryouts at the Leisure School, U.S. 40 and Del. 7, Bear, on Saturday, July 30 at 10 a.m. and Wednesday, Aug. 3 at 6 p.m. The league wants football players ages 8-12 and cheerleaders 7-12, as well as volunteer coaches, cheerleading coaches and referees. For more information, call Mike Chaney at 454-8024.

• Kirkwood Soccer Club is accepting registration for its fall instructional season. Boys and girls born on or before Dec. 31, 1983 and after Jan. 1, 1974 are eligible. Instructional league teams are formed by neighborhood and age group, practices are held twice a week, and games are played Saturdays. The Kinderkickers, a clinic program for children with little or no soccer experience, will be held for children born in 1983 and those born in 1982 with no soccer experience. For the first time this year, the U-8 (under eight year old) teams will play games on smaller fields with seven to a side. An all-girls league is also available. The application deadline is July 15, after which registration will be accepted only if team vacancies remain. For more information and registration forms, call the Kirkwood Soccer Club office at 994-5055.

• Community Athletic Association will hold registration for its fall soccer program 5-8 p.m. Aug. 7 and 14 at the Aetna Fire House, 6-9 p.m. Aug. 9 at the Four Seasons Pavillion and 6-9 p.m. Aug. 11 at the Aetna Fire House. The program is open to all children ages five through 13. Registration fees are $18 for the first child, $12 for the second child and $9 for the third child. For more information, call 453-1176 or 834-1273.

• The first annual Biathlon for the Homeless, sponsored by the YWCA of New Castle County, will be held in Wilmington on Sunday, Aug. 7 at 8:30 a.m. The race will begin at the Y's soon-to-open facility and 3rd and King Street with a four mile run, a 22.2 mile bike race and a three mile run. The entry fee is $35, and will be limited to 500 entrants. Volunteers are needed for set-up and breakdown of equipment, monitoring along the race routes, registration on Aug. 6 and other related tasks. For more information, and registration forms, call Sonia Sloan at the YWCA, 658-7161.

SOCIAL SECURITY?

MANY PEOPLE ONLY KNOW HALF THE STORY.

Mike Soccio, on the mound for Canal Little League in season-ending tournament loss to crosstown rivals Newark American.

Newark National's Buffone stops Newark American 3-0 in tourney

Given nearly identical performances by the pitching, offense and defense of the two teams, to say that the Newark National Little League all-stars soundly and irrevocably defeated Newark American 3-0 in their 1988 major hardball tournament second round matchup seems unfair. Baseball is like that sometimes.

"The difference in the game was that we got the hit with runners in scoring position and they didn't," said Frank DiStefano, manager of the Newark National team.

A good size crowd showed up to see the intra-town rivals face off. American's Antoine Haman and National's Brandon Buffone both went all six innings, giving up six hits. Buffone struck out two and walked one. Haman struck out four, walking two, one intentionally. This was the first loss of the season for Haman, who dominated the Newark American league with a 10-0 record.

"I saw him pitch four times this year, so we knew he was an outstanding pitcher," said DiStefano. "You try and downplay that, because you don't want the kids to think he was invincible. I thought he did a good job tonight."

National scored two runs in the third with two out. Brian August singled, and moved to second on an error. Mike Fischer was intentionally walked, and Danny Rubini hit a double down the right field line to score both runners. The other run scored in the fourth, when Ryan Flickenger singled, moved to second on Mike Sherer's walk and scored on two wild pitches.

Rubini made two tag plays at the plate despite not having

Newark American staves off Canal to keep hopes alive

by David Woolman

When Wayne Walker's fly to left center dropped over the Dairy Queen sign for a home run to give Newark American Little League a 3-0 lead in the third inning, there was a feeling that the host team had its losers bracket game against Canal in hand. It did not exactly work out that way.

The fight for survival in the Little League 12-year-old northern division tournament still had three comebacks in store, the final one being a two-out rally in the seventh inning that brought Canal within one run, but no closer.

Newark American advanced with an 8-7 win.

Canal drew within one in the bottom of the third with a walk, a fielder's choice, a ground out and three wild pitches. Jamie French knocked in Brian Stetina with the ground out, and David Heiber scored on one of the wild pitches.

Antoine Haman, the starting pitcher for Newark American, lasted until the fifth, when he was removed in favor of Greg Hollinger after giving up a walk and a single. Those two Canal base runners, Stetina and Heiber, eventually scored on Jamie Nichols' ground ball through the infield. Nichols scored as well on a throwing error to give Canal a 5-4 lead.

Newark American tied the game in the sixth when Will Breitigan singled in Keith Amberg. The game went into extra innings and American took the lead in the seventh, with a Timmy Abshagen walk and base hits by Keith Amberg and Scott Walter, which loaded the bases.

An error on a fielder's choice put Kevin Delcollo on and brought in Abshagen, a fielders choice by Haman scored Amberg, and an error on a Breitigan grounder cashed in Walter. American had a 8-5 lead but Canal refused to concede.

Stetina and Heiber drew lead off walks and French singled to load the bases. Nichols walked to drive in a run, and Greg Harrison hit a comebacker to Hollinger who got the force at home. Canal scored another on a fielder's choice hit by Dave Milhorn, but the next fielder's choice was the third out, and left American with the 8-7 win.

"We think Antoine got tired," said American manager Dennis Hellams. "That's why we pulled him. Hollinger is just as good, and there is no tomorrow, so we put him in."

This leaves American without its two best pitchers for the next game (tournament rules prevent a pitcher from throwing in two consecutive games, even if they only threw one pitch) but the team is loaded with pitching talent.

Newark defeated Midway 22-3 and Stanton-Newport 8-2 after losing to Newark National in their first game to reach this game, and advanced to play Naamans Wednesday.

"Nobody in the league thought we'd go this far," said Hellams. "One more win, and we're back in the finals."

about Davis' injury, and the two connected, to the good fortune of both.

"I don't have to stick with her, but I'd sure make myself available if the opportunity rose again," said Maple of the prospect of riding Nastique again.

DiMauro is not sure what he will do next with the filly, who also won the Grade I Ladies Handicap at one and one-quarter miles over a fast track at Aqueduct last fall.

"We're going to go up to Saratoga and maybe take a breather and decide what we'll do then," said DiMauro, who did not rule out a trip to Kentucky this November for the Breeders Cup. "We're going to point for it. We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

With her talent on any surface, the question might not be whether to run her in the Breeders Cup, but in which race.

Ms. Eloise, the second choice at 2-1, finished second, nine and one half lengths ahead of Lawyer Talk. Up the Apalachee, third choice at 3-1, finished fifth, beaten by 24 lengths. As the only speed in the race, the Apalachee filly had an excellent chance to steal the race, but set fractions of 23:1, 47:4 and 1:13.1, much too smart over such a slow track.

"I wasn't comfortable on the front end," said her rider, Tracy Herbert. "That's where she runs her best races, but she was trying to get out the whole trip."

"Every time I tried to reach down and grab her she'd try to get away from me. She was trying to get out something serious. Something is really bothering her. I couldn't rate her at all."

Some local flavor was added to the race as Reassert Yourself, owned by Regal Oak Farm and trained by Richard Dutrow, ran in the silks of Mrs. Linda Conner, whose horses are trained by local conditioner Sam Cronk.

"Regal Oak didn't bring silks," explained George Ross, in charge of jockies colors at Delaware Park. "For a $100,000 race, I wanted to match them up as close as possible. They were the closest in color."

It made Mrs. Connor feel "fabulous."

"It just made my day. I love Delaware, and I love the Delaware Handicap. It makes me feel good. I'll bet the horse."

Reassert Yourself finished sixth.

Mrs. Connors nominated a horse for the Delaware Handicap two years ago, but the filly never made it to the big race.

Delaware Park held two races for amateur riders as part of the Delaware Handicap Festival. Both races were run as a competition between foreign and American riders.

Annie Weeden of the United States won the women's race on Wednesday, a maiden stake for Arabians, aboard Topaz Ku. Hugh Morshead of Canada won the men's race, a turf race for thoroughbreds, on Will Be, owned by Mrs. Miles Valentine and trained by Hall of Fame steeplechase trainer W. Burling "Burly" Cocks.

Will Be, who had won a race in his native Chile last year before finishing unplaced in two steeplechases this year, led the race every step of the way and paid $34 to win.

"He has throat problems, and he can't get his air (when rated)," explained Cocks, who said his instructions to Morshead were "just to let him run on his own and not try to hold him."

"He wants to go out too fast most of the time. I didn't know if he'd go that far."

"He's a pretty good jumper," said Cocks, who said the reason the horse ran so poorly in the steeplechases was that the jockey tried to rein the horse in to set him for a jump.

SWIM

"It is harder. My times are not as fast in the summer as they are in the winter. I go on vacation and miss practices. I'm not as serious. I like to have fun."

Another Newarker who did well was Ben Tabb, a member of the Persimmon Creek team. Tabb won the 25 backstroke on the way to earning the high point award for the eight and under age group.

Other Newark area winners were: J. Fernandes, boys 10 and under, 25 breaststroke, Nottingham Green; J. Willis, boys 12 and under, 50 freestyle, Nottingham Green; J. O'Neill, boys 12 and under, 50 breaststroke, Persimmon Creek; K. Firchak, girls 12 and under, 50 breaststroke, Nottingham Green; S. Craig, girls 14 and under, 50 butterfly, Nottingham Green.

Fairfield won the girls 10 and under medley relay, the boys 10 and under freestyle relay, and the girls 12 and under free relay. Nottingham Green won the boys 10 and under medley relay, the girls 10 and under free relay and the girls 14 and under free relay.

Russell to compete in Soap Box

Brian Russell of Glasgow won Delaware Soap Box Derby July 10 and is off to the national All-American Soap Box Derby to be run Saturday, Aug. 13 in Akron, Ohio.

Russell, who has been racing seven years, won the senior layback division on the Quigly Boulevard course in New Castle to earn the honor.

He has participated in layback racing (in which the drivers literally lay on their backs in their banana-shaped aerodynamic cars) for three years. Injury before the state Derby prevented him from participating last year.

The 16-year-old, now entering his junior year at Glasgow High School, has also participated in the conventional sit-up cars as well in the DAP (Delaware Association of Police) Pushmobile Derby races, finishing first in the senior division last year and second overall.

Russell, son of Lynn and Jim Russell, will be participating in the All-American Soap Box Derby for the first time.

Webb to retire from ag office

Has been 'voice of agriculture'

Jerry Webb will retire August 31 after more than 27 years of service to the University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences — 22 of them as coordinator of the office of agricultural sciences communications.

For nearly three decades Webb has been the voice of Delaware agriculture.

Webb was raised on a farm near Springfield, Mo. He was active in both 4-H and Future Farmers of America. A 1955 graduate of the University of Missouri with a B.S. in agriculture, he served two years as an artillery officer in Germany.

Following military service he worked four years as a county Extension agent in Missouri before joining the University of Delaware as assistant agricultural editor. He was named head of the agricultural communications office in 1965 and assistant professor of agricultural communications in 1969. He earned a master's degree in agricultural economics from the university in 1968.

For 19 years, Webb wrote a weekly column, "Delmarva Farming," which appeared as a regular feature in the Wilmington, Del., Morning News. Another weekly column, "Farm Talk," appeared in Delmarva Farmer and other papers circulating in the mid-Atlantic region.

An enterprising photographer, Webb has assembled an extensive collection of black and white photographs over the years. Topics range from the scientific developments emerging from the Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station to the practical and human side of agriculture as found on Delaware farms.

Webb is a former director of Agricultural Communicators in Education (ACE) and currently serves as president of the board of directors of the Delaware Agricultural Museum Association. He was one of the first proponents of an agricultural museum for Delaware, using space in his weekly farm column to call attention to the need and to rally interest in the project.

During his career, Webb has received numerous citations, including an Agricultural Spokesman of the Year award, an agricultural journalism award presented by the Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, and Pioneer ACE award and a National Farm-City Council Award.

A reception and dinner in honor of Jerry Webb will be held Tuesday, August 2. For further information, contact: Doris Crowley, Ag Communications Office, Townsend Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, DE 19717-1303 (302 451-1125).

University acquires Brayman papers

The University of Delaware Library has acquired the papers of the late Harold Brayman, a prominent journalist and author who served as director of the public relations department of the Du Pont Co. from 1942-65.

The library received the papers as a gift from Brayman's wife, Martha, and his two sons, Harold and Walter.

Brayman was born in Middleburgh, N.Y., in 1900. After graduating from Cornell University in 1920, he began his journalism career in Albany, N.Y., where he worked for six years as a legislative correspondent for several newspapers.

In 1928, Brayman became the Washington correspondent for the New York Evening Post. That same year he covered his first national political convention. He went on to attend every national political convention from 1928-40, becoming one of the nation's leading political correspondents.

Brayman's journalism career was highlighted by his election, in 1938, as president of the National Press Club and, in 1941, as president of the Gridiron Club. He was one of the few Washington correspondents to hold both offices.

Brayman was a regular participant in the Gridiron Club's renowned annual dinners and wrote the definite history of the group, "The President Speaks Off-the-Record," published in 1976.

In 1944, Brayman joined the Du Pont Co. as assistant director of public relations, and he became director two years later. During his career at Du Pont, Brayman supported the philosophy that the business world had to gain the understanding and trust of the public. This concept of public relations, widely emulated in the American business community, was articulated in Brayman's 1967 book, "Corporate Management in a World of Politics."

Editor of Public Relations Journal in 1956, he was honored by the Public Relations Society of America in 1963 for "his distinguished service in the advancement of public relations." He also was named "Public Relations Professional of 1963" by the Public Relations News.

After retiring from Du Pont in 1965, Brayman received the "Golden Plate" award of the American Academy of Achievement, the first award of that organization in the field of public relations. In 1966, he was awarded the Presidential Freedom Award of the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

He remained active as a consultant and was involved with a number of charitable organizations until his death early this year.

Brayman's writings include "Developing a Philosophy for Business Action" and "A History of the Lincoln Club of Delaware," as well as numerous professional articles.

His papers will be housed in Special Collections. The papers comprise materials relating to virtually every aspect of his career.

CAMPUS FILE

Goldey

Appointees named

Goldey Beacom College has announced the following appointments:

• Roy E. DeWalt has been named chairman of the Computer Information Systems/Mathematics Department. DeWalt is an associate professor, having taught in the Evening Division since 1982. He holds a masters degree in mathematics from West Chester, Pa. University.

• Elma B. Doberstein has been named assistant director of the Evening Division. A graduate of the college, she was formerly administrative assistant to the director of the Division.

• Dr. William Rivers has been named assistant professor of English in the Business Administration/Arts and Sciences Department. He holds a doctorate in linguistics from the University of Delaware.

• George W. Lee Jr., professor in the Office Technologies and Administration Department, is serving on the Eastern Business Education Association executive board. He is director for four-year colleges and universities.

Awards

Goldey fund

In recognition of a colleague's anniversary, Goldey Beacom College will offer the John R. Kotula Book Awards.

The award, a $10,000 fund for graduates of Delaware Technical and Community College, honor's Kotula's tenth year as president of Delaware Tech.

"The awards apply to textbook purchases related to any course in one of our four-year degree programs," said William R. Baldt, president of Goldey Beacom College.

Delaware Tech offers two-year degrees.

"I am grateful," said Kotula. "I am honored to have the bookstore fund for Delaware Technical and Community College graduates, in celebration of my tenth anniversary."

Both full-time and part-time students may apply for the awards, no matter when they graduated from Delaware Tech.

Course

Non-English speakers

The University of Delaware will offer a course this fall specifically designed for non-English speaking persons such as scientists, engineers, research associates and others.

The class will begin Sept. 13 and continue each Tuesday evening through Dec. 13.

All participants in the program will receive small group instruction which will focus on developing communication skills through emphasis on listening comprehension, speaking, reading, writing and vocabulary.

Class discussion will provide an opportunity for students to learn American English usage and culture. In addition, all students may receive additional instruction on a one-on-one basis at the University of Delaware Writing Center.

The program will be conducted in Memorial Hall on the University's Newark campus. Instructor will be Dr. Louis Arena, associate professor of linguistics.

The fee is $225 per person.

Even the most sophisticated television equipment can't focus on an issue.

In-depth, hard-hitting coverage makes for better informed, more responsible voters. That, in turn, makes for better, more responsible elected officials. And that's good for everybody.

Unfortunately, too often these days we're asked to vote on images rather than issues. Information is being replaced by slick video production techniques and meaningless phrases.

In this age of the 30-second candidate, newspapers are more important than ever. Not just because of what newspapers have to say about the candidates, but because of the opportunity candidates have to say something about themselves.

Over the coming months, you'll see a lot of campaign information in these pages. Some in the form of articles and editorials. Some in the form of paid political advertisements.

This paper offers candidates a public forum for discussing the issues... without a 30-second time limit. We hope both you and the candidates will take advantage of that. After all, a candidate who won't come to the point on the issues just doesn't get the point of the campaign.

Use the newspaper for all its worth. Our issues can help you decide where to stand on a whole lot of other issues. That responsible coverage... for responsible citizens.

"National Business Manager" Editor of Advertising Week 1988. National Newspaper Association.

Investors should 'balance' portfolio

by Steven V. Chantler

With the endless list of investments available today, it's often difficult to make the right choices for a balanced investment portfolio. Many people question themselves after committing their dollars to an investment.

It's important to develop a "balanced" portfolio. A portfolio is an individual's composite of investments (for example, a mutual fund portfolio, or a stock portfolio). When a portfolio is "balanced," it combines the features of the selected investment to suit the particular needs and objectives of the individual.

To logically develop a balanced portfolio, investors should ask themselves a series of extensive questions to determine which investments fit their situations most comfortably. And, within that questioning process, two key factors should remain prominent: personal goals and risk tolerance.

Goals and objectives must be determined — along with a projected timeline. This way, investments can be selected to meet each goal. For example, if a particular need or goal must be reached within one or two years, the return on the investment may need to be greater. Conversely, a greater return also means greater risk.

After defining the timeline of your goals and your risk tolerance, review the investment objectives of different investments. Take mutual funds, for example. This investment is grouped according to specific objectives so you'll know what types of funds suit your particular investment personality and personal goals. Some funds stress long-term growth of principal, others offer steady income and others focus on tax-exempt income. The following descriptions may shed some light on a few of the types of funds now available:

• Aggressive growth: These funds seek capital growth, generally from common stocks. Aggressive growth funds feature high risk, hence the potential for high rewards.

• Growth and income: These funds focus on securities of large, well-established companies that offer long-term capital appreciation and reasonable income from dividends and interest. Growth and income funds usually fall into the moderate risk level.

• Income: The objective is to seek a high return of dividends or interest income. Capital growth and preservation are secondary objectives. The risk level generally ranges from moderate to modest (although high risk income funds are sometimes available).

• Tax-exempt income: Tax-exempt income is provided by investments in municipal bonds. Usually, income is free from federal income tax, and, in some cases, from state income taxes as well. The risk level will vary according to the quality of the bonds.

Choose carefully when selecting mutual funds, whether you're new to the investment field or a veteran mutual fund investor. By matching your investment personality with the types of investments with which you're comfortable, you can design an investment port-

These headlines are pun-ishable

Grace is my acerbic friend. She's the one who pointed out that if I used a red table cloth, the guests in my newly painted yellow-green dining room could pretend they were eating inside a Spanish olive. As you might suppose, Grace is not one to mince words — or to look for polite, if oblique, ways to make her point.

Don't get me wrong, Grace doesn't believe in rudeness. She believes that people who are too intent on not hurting other people's feelings neglect sharing important information. If she ever chose a personal motto, it would be "private chagrin is infinitely preferable to public humiliation."

So, the other day when Grace commented — over lunch of low-fat cottage cheese, fresh strawberries and cardboard-tasting salt-free crackers — that I was going to have to do something about the headlines for this column, I decided it was time to let the truth out.

Therefore I want to make it absolutely, utterly and completely clear that I accept responsibility for the contents of this column but not for its packaging.

That responsibility belongs to the editor of this paper, Neil Thomas — a man who favors pink paisley polyester ties right out of the '60s. Now that I've gone this far, let's discuss Neil Thomas's name.

But first, a bit of background. For those who may have forgotten, acerbic Grace also espouses a theory that a person's face gives important clues about her character traits. She thinks I look like a good speller. So much for Grace's theory. I am, by hereditary quirk, a phonetic speller, and by the lights of every teacher I've had since Miss Hobbeman, I am a wretched speller. Yet I get a boss whose name is an affront to every single phonetic speller in the entire world. Why not Neel or Kneel or Gneel or Nele or Neal Tarnus? Or couldn't he at least have stuck to "i before e except after c"?

Not only does this man misspell and mispronounce his name, he adds to his sins by being a hopeless, hapless, and helpless punner. If I remember Dante correctly, there is a special spot in hell reserved for people who intentionally abuse language. Their perpetual punishment involves having the silence randomly punctured and punctuated with phrases like "lettuce practice our puns," "carrot we have some rest from our puns," "it's about thyme for another pun," "he's a berry bad punner," "why can't he come up with an oregano pun?" and "I bean punning too long." To which the punner is compelled to respond, through eternity, with "peas stop this punning at once."

It was Neil who headlined a column I wrote about the fact that people are nicer to turtles who are crossing a road than they are to snakes crossing that same road with "Close Encounters of the Turtle Kind." A few weeks later I did a column on the worrisome travails of Madonna's husband. What was Neil's response? "Sean's trials land us all in the Penn-itentiary."

Would you trust a man who headlines a column I wrote about an overgrown house plant with "It's pure shrubbish!"? Continuing in the horticultural line, there was the time I discussed the frustrating problems of squirrels eating my daffodils and tulips. He made light of my agony with "This gardener's just bulb, bulb, bulbing along."

When I addressed a little known cause of air pollution, Neil responded with "To air is human." After seeing that wouldn't you think that the national headline police would incarcerate him for misrepresenting himself as journalist. And if that headline didn't do it, surely "The days of wine and roses," "Christmas Mom: Yule love her," and "Tuna, ice cream make purr-fect cat-a-tonic" would.

Fortunately, the staff of the paper still has some clout. This community owes a huge debt of gratitude to the employee who wrestled him to the carpet and made him promise on his most recent copy of the Associated Press handbook that he would not headline an article about a horse farm with "The best little horse house in Cecil County."

Root beer time

After a long summer day of runnin' doggies and riding a bike through the neighborhood, a "real man" knows how to go for the gusto of an ice cold root beer.

Dodge City may have had Miss Kitty, but bellying-up to the ice box at "Mom-said-O.K.-Corral," has never been better.

Each year, Americans purchase liter upon liter of frosty delicious root beer from top manufacturers like Hires, A & W, Ramblin Root Beer, and Shasta.

After more than a century of quenching thirsts, good old-fashioned root beer hasn't lost its appeal. In 1988, it is still uniquely rich in flavor, inexpensive in price, and American in origin.

Long before there was Coke or Pepsi, there was root beer.

Charles E. Hires, a Philadelphia druggist, is the father of commercial root beer, having introduced it to the world more than 100 years ago.

According to Belinda Baxter Welsh, Proctor and Gamble public relations spokesperson, Hires discovered the exciting new drink in the 1870s, while he was spending his honeymoon on a New Jersey farm. The beverage, quite popular in rural areas, was generically known as "herb tea."

Hires returned to Philadelphia with the herb tea recipe in his pocket and in no time began selling it in his drug store.

One of the first Philadelphians to try Charles E. Hire's Herb Tea was Dr. Russel Conwell, founder of Temple University. Conwell suggested that more people, especially hard drinking Pennsylvania coal miners, might buy it if it had a more stimulating name than herb tea. He recommended calling it Hire's Root Beer.

The original recipe for Hire's Root Beer contained 16 different roots, herbs and berries like juniper, pipsissewa, spikenard, wintergreen, sarsaparilla, and hops.

Earlier cousins, "ginger beer" and "carbonated mead" (patented 1819), were often slightly alcoholic. Carbonated mead, for example, was made with fermented honey.

Enjoy root beer? Make your own

Making root beer is not difficult. Some people have become root beer hobbyists and enjoy brewing their own brand of root beer at home.

In the summer, bottles of the non-alcoholic drink are often sold, along with the usual array of green beans and farm tomatoes, at roadside stands especially those that are operated by nearby Amish families.

Wine Hobby, U.S.A., on Newport Pike in Stanton, sells the soda extracts that can be used to make carbonated beverages at home in a number of flavors, including root beer, birch beer, and sarsaparilla. Manufactured by Rainbow Flavors, Inc. of Osage Beach, Mo., each bottle of soda extract retailing for $2.75, when combined with water, sugar, and yeast, will produce 4 gallons of naturally carbonated beverage.

Wine Hobby also sells bottles, crowns, and a large variety of capping machines that range in price from $3.50 - $27.95.

"It's so easy," said Dottie Blaskovitz, owner of the store. "A lot of schools and scout troops make it."

"Actually this can be better than what you get in the stores because it is made on a smaller scale. They say on the instructions that you can drink it in a week, but we like it after 2 or 3 weeks. People who don't want the carbonation can drink it fresh and just mix one glass at a time."

At long last, Newarker meets Dutch pen pal

by Nancy Turner

Pen pals Ann Hamrick and Marinus Vogelzang (seated), and spouses Everett and Jacobsa, relax in the Hamricks' Newark home. After many years, Hamrick finally met her Dutch "pal."

It took 42 years, but international pen pals Ann Hamrick and Marinus Vogelzang finally met, face to face.

On July 12, Ann, her husband Everett and daughter Cassie, of Old Mill Manor, welcomed Marinus, a retired banker from Baarn, Holland, and his wife, Jacobsa, into their home for a one-month visit. It was the first time either "Rinus" or "Cobi" had been to America.

Ann and Rinus began writing to each other in 1946. Ann, a junior high school student in rural West Virginia, was given Rinus's address by her English teacher. Rinus, who was about 19, got Ann's address with the help of a pen pal association in Holland and a small fee.

Ann recalled the beautiful picture post cards and photographs that Rinus sent over the years. She enjoyed hearing about his school studies.

Rinus remembered the year Ann mailed him a stuffed bear and included a cute stuffed dog for his 13-year-old sister. He enjoyed hearing about Ann's travels to California and about her glass dog collection, having "never seen such a thing as a glass dog."

To say that "plenty of water has passed under the bridge" since 1942 is an understatement.

In 1956, Ann married a dashing young pilot named Everett and the following year, Rinus married a lovely girl named Cobi. Children followed, one for Ann and Everett and two for Rinus and Cobi, along with career moves, family vacations, and about 32 years of "honest living."

"When we first started writing," said Rinus in good command of his English, "the distance was far. I could not imagine ever going to America."

In 1962, Everett and Rinus had the opportunity to meet briefly for lunch, when Everett, then a commercial pilot for Capitol Airways, worked a flight to Amsterdam. But Ann had never even spoken to Rinus on the telephone until the couple began planning their trip.

"When they got here, they settled in just like family," she said. "It was like we had known them all our lives."

Miss Hemisphere

Diane Maloney, 17, of Newark, is representing Delaware in the beauty/model division of the 25th annual Miss Hemisphere Pageant this week in Miami Beach, Fla.

Maloney, who will be a senior at Christiana High School this fall, won the Miss Delaware Hemisphere Teen Pageant in January.

She also represented Delaware in the 1987 international finals of the Miss North American Teen Pageant in Indiana.

Maloney is an honor roll student who is active in cheerleading, band front, track, softball, student government, German Club and Students Against Drunk Driving.

Mrs. Delaware

Four Newarkers are among 14 state residents vying for the title of Mrs. Delaware America.

The Mrs. Delaware America Pageant, open to married women ages 18 to 50, will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday, July 31 in the Wilmington Hilton on Naamans Road.

Newarkers involved in the competition are Wanda Clevenger, Lyvonne Crocco, Vicki Little and Kay Noll.

The pageant is open to the public. Tickets cost $5 at the door.

Miss Teen D.C.

Heidi Marie Yancey, daughter of Joseph and Diane Yancey of Glasgow, won second place in the Miss Teen Washington, D.C. USA Pageant held recently in the nation's capital.

Yancey also won the Contestant's Choice Award, selected by vote of youths participating in the pageant.

Yancey is a ballet student at Duke Ellington School of Arts in Washington. She is in the advanced ballet program.

Plants

Varying needs

Plants differ in how much water they need to survive and prosper. As another dry summer threatens your trees, shrubs, lawn and garden, what can you do to save them?

University of Delaware Extension garden agent Dave Tattall suggests saving available water for plants that can't survive without it. Reduce watering of others to a subsistence level.

Lawns can go without water for a long time and still green up again when they get some moisture. But don't plant annuals when they're likely to be water stressed, cautions Tattall. They need plenty of moisture to establish roots. Many perennials can go without water better than annuals can. Trees and shrubs set out within the last two years will need weekly watering whenever rainfall is inadequate.

Corey Geisler, 8, of Brookside, enjoys a cool, foaming mug of root beer.

ROOT BEER

Sarsaparilla, already being used in the production of a soda beverage that was patented under the same name in 1824, was one of the primary flavoring agents in root beer. Sarsaparilla is derived from the roots of Smilax vines.

Americans were making non-alcoholic "soda pop" prior to the patenting of the soda fountain in 1833. Usually produced from naturally carbonated spring waters that were sweetened, flavored, and put into bottles with cork stoppers, Soda pop got its name from the characteristic "pop!" that it made when it was opened.

During the 1870s, about the same time Charles Hires was busy perfecting his root beer, American soft drink manufacturers began to experience a boost in sales. The boost stemmed, in part, from a growing public interest in alcohol temperance.

American temperance advocates reached an important milestone in 1876 when they managed to have alcoholic beverages banned from the Centennial Exposition of Philadelphia. The ban was advantageous for all soda beverage sales, especially Hire's, since it was at this famous Exposition that the company first presented Hire's Root Beer household extract to the public. An overnight success, the home brewer or soda fountain proprietor could purchase the soda extract, add water, sugar and yeast, and have a delicious drink that cost only 5 cents per gallon.

Root beer was not commercially bottled by Hires until 1893. Birch beer, another popular soda beverage, made from the steeped bark of the red birch tree, is still enjoyed by Americans, but it was initially sold in the 1880s to directly compete with Charles E. Hire's Root Beer.

By the time National Prohibition arrived in 1920, clever advertisers from Hires were already "on the wagon." Hire's Root Beer had been given a strong new identity as "The National Temperance Drink." And to this day, many persons still identify root beer with its earlier temperance origins.

Prohibition is over, but doesn't the thought of ice cold root beer foaming over the sides of a tall frosty mug just make your upper lip quiver?

PEN PALS

The "Hollanders," as Rinus and Cobi are fondly named by the Hamrick's daughter, Cassie, have enjoyed touring throughout the country by train during their visit. They went to the Rocky Mountains, Denver, and the Salt Lake City Copper Mines, just to mention a few stops. They ate freshly made fudge at the Baltimore Inner Harbor and bought a child's jump suit from Saks 5th Avenue in New York, and the gift was wrapped with full glitter and glitz.

Cobi even found her way to Ann's kitchen and whipped up a few Dutch supper dishes with pork, potatoes and fish, as special treats.

Since Ann works during the day, she worried about having enough time to spend with her guests, showing them the local sights. She didn't want them to be bored.

Everett came to the rescue by giving Rinus and Cobi an itinerary, a road map and his car keys.

"That fixed it," Everett interjected with a snicker.

Rinus shook his head. He knew what was coming. Everett was about to tell another one of his stories from a collection entitled, "I Got This Call, Rinus Said He Has 'Lost the Road.'"

Everett loves to tease his Dutch friend and his favorite chapters are: "New Jersey Traffic Circles," "Going Shopping at Christiana Mall," and "A 24 Hour Drive Will Get You A Ferry Ride At Cape May."

"That's alright," said Rinus, who promised to show Everett "where the little boy put his finger in the hole in the dike," when it's his turn to be host.

They laughed. Then Everett said something about Rinus getting his first pair of Op shorts and Rinus suggested buying Everett a pair of wooden shoes because he talked like a farmer. They laughed some more.

Rinus and Cobi returned to Holland on July 15 having had a wonderful visit.

After 42 years, pen pals Ann and Rinus aren't about to stop writing now. After this trip, they say they may just throw in a few telephone calls, to boot.

THE ARTS

Grand to feature Delaware musicians

Once Upon A Time, in a far off place named Wilmington, there was a great hall called the Grand Opera House. It was operated by a wise king named David with help from Scott and Maria. They brought the best orchestras in the world to the house, the best soloists, the best chamber groups, opera from the four corners of the globe. Audiences were happy, but David and his friends knew something was missing.

While the best artists in the world performed there, none of the great local talent was ever presented as part of one of the Grand series each year. Well, that void will be filled this year as part of the Grand's Gold Medal Series. I predict success and they will all live happily ever after!

The Gold Medal Series is one of five series offered by the Grand this coming season. It deserves special attention because of its second offering, The Grand Chamber Players. The group will make its first appearance at the Grand on Saturday, Feb. 4.

Commented Grand Executive Director David Fleming, "We have assembled a group of the finest musicians in Delaware to present an exciting evening of chamber music. Featured will be soprano Nancy Froyland Hoerl, French hornist Francis Orval, violinist Wendell Simmons and oboist Lloyd Shorter and several other exceptional talents." To me, one of the most important things is that the Grand Chamber Players will be on a regular series, not presented in isolation. I salute all at the Grand for this action.

The picture with my column today is of a member of the local group, Nancy Froyland Hoerl. I have heard this young soprano many times and now she will be part of a series in our center for the performing arts.

Also on the Gold Medal Series are Peter Serkin and Young Uck Kim, piano and violin respectively. They are recognized "giants" in the music of Mozart and now they are moving to Beethoven. Here in Delaware they will combine forces to present the sonatas of Beethoven. The date is Oct. 25.

Paul Neubauer, violist, will be the Gold Medal offering of Feb. 27. Neubauer is one of the most important talents in the world of music today. At the tender age of 21 he became the youngest man ever to occupy the chair of principal violist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. He has won many important competitions and earned standing ovations wherever he has performed.

The four offerings of the Gold Medal Series will close on April 6 with Michael Lewin at the piano. Lewin, a native New Yorker, first won international fame after the 1982 Tchaikovsky Piano Competition in Russia. Two weeks later he captured the top prize at the University of Maryland Piano Nancy Froyland Hoerl is one of the outstanding local musicians who will be featured in the Grand's Gold Medal Series.

Competition. Five years ago he won the Beethoven Foundation Piano Fellowship Award. All of this talent should make a fitting finale for this series.

Prices for all four concerts, regardless of the location in the Grand, are only $50.60. That is a 20 percent saving over individual ticket costs. On top of that it is important to remember that ticket costs for students are one half of that price. This would be a great series with which to introduce younger members of the family to the Grand Opera House.

This is only one of five series to be offered during the upcoming season at Delaware's Center for the Performing Arts, 818 The Market Street Mall in Wilmington. For more information, you may stop by the box office or call 652-5577.

Of all the series being offered, I am excited about this one because of the new policy of including local professional musicians. I hope you can make this series your series.

In the weeks ahead, I will be telling you about the other four series at the Grand.

Community Band seeks new director

The Newark Community Band is looking for a new musical director.

Current director Ed Schwartz, who helped found the band in 1983, has taken a faculty position in the Learning Resources Center at Virginia Polytechnic University in Blacksburg, Va. and will be leaving the area this summer.

The band, a non-profit organization sponsored by the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation, has 50 members and performs 30 concerts a year at nursing homes, community functions and other public venues.

The band rehearses Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 at the Newark Municipal Building, 220 Elkton Rd. Interested applicants should call the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation at 366-0607.

Schwartz, a charter officer of the newly-formed Greater Newark Arts Council, came to Delaware in 1983 after completion of his master's degree in music education at the University of Illinois.

Schwartz worked six years at the University of Delaware. He was instructional developer for the videodisc music series, which won several national awards, including the Nebraska Merit Award and the Gold Cincy.

His book, "The Educators' Handbook To Interactive Videodisc," has been well-received and is in its second edition with plans for a third edition next year.

Schwartz has been very active in the community, performing in more than a dozen musical organizations. They include the Newark Community Band, the Newark Dixie Ramblers, Opera Delaware, Arden Stadtkappelle, Loonie Tunes, Illidel Trombone Ensemble, Ardensingers, Brandywiners, Rhythm Doctors, the Bus, Old Colonial Band and the Sauerkraut Band.

He was also the catalyst and chairman of the Mid-Atlantic Community Band Conference and Clinic held in 1985 and 1988.

Actress Kim Hunter to speak at UD

Kim Hunter, who made her Broadway debut as Stella Kowalski in Tennessee Williams' "Streetcar Named Desire," and later won an Academy award for her performance in the film version, will be the guest of University of Delaware Professor Richard Davidson and his drama students at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3 in the Perkins Student Center Gallery.

Hunter will entertain questions about the theatrical process and reminisce about her various roles on stage and screen. Hunter also performed on Broadway in "Darkness at Noon," "The Children's Hour," "The Tender Trap" and in a revival of "The Women." Her screen credits include "Stairway to Heaven," "Deadline USA," "Lilith," "The Swimmer," "The Kindred," and "Planet of the Apes."

The program, sponsored by the Student Center Office of Cultural Programs and Special Sessions, is open to the University faculty and staff as well as the University community.

Newark cellist Ross Beauchamp to perform in O'Grady Memorial Recital

The Newark Symphony Society will present cellist Ross Beauchamp at its sixth annual Elizabeth O'Grady Memorial Recital.

The recital will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 18 in the Newark United Methodist Church, 69 E. Main St. It honors Mrs. O'Grady, who was a charter member of the Newark Symphony Society.

Beauchamp, a native of Newark, began his studies with the late Robert Fisher. His teachers have also included Louisa Marks, Marion Feldman and Douglas McNames.

He is currently pursuing a performance degree at Boston University, where he studies with Michael Reynolds of the Muir Quartet.

Beauchamp is a former member of the Newark Symphony Orchestra, the Delaware Symphony Repertory Orchestra and the Bridgeton Symphony Orchestra. He has performed with many other groups throughout the state.

Included in the recital will be works by Serge Prokofieff, Johann Sebastian Bach and Cesar Franck. Accompaniment will be by Carol Schoen-Pawlowski.

Admission is free, however there will be a free will offering. Proceeds will be used to perpetuate the Elizabeth O'Grady Memorial Fund, which is used to give performing opportunities to young musicians.

A reception will follow the performance. Mildred Gaddis and Marilyn Stritzinger are co-chairmen of the event.

Newarker visits Alaskan village

Ray Honaker, a long-time Newark resident now serving as administrator of the Carondelet Holy Family Center in Arizona, recently traveled north of the Arctic Circle.

Honaker, accompanied by Bill Saulsbury of Milford, spent the Fourth of July at Anaktuvuk Pass, Alaska, a remote and isolated Eskimo village of 200 residents.

The purpose of the trip, taken by bush plane, was to present the villagers a United States flag in honor of 30 years of citizenship for the Nanamut Eskimo tribe.

Honaker made the presentation to village mayor Paul Hugo on behalf of the Carondelet Center, an alternative care facility sponsored by the Roman Catholic Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet.

Ray Honaker, former Newark resident, hugs Eskimo children during Fourth of July visit to their remote village in Alaska.

The presentation was also made on behalf of his family, and of the Sahuarita, Ariz. School District, of which he is a governing school board member.

Said Honaker of the trip, "I really enjoy backyard barbecues and cooling off in the pool, but this year I thought I would do something different."

Honaker is a 1964 graduate of Christiana High School and a 1977 graduate of the University of Delaware.

Glasgow Reformed changes meeting place

Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church will be conducting worship services in the auditorium of Glasgow High School beginning Sunday, July 31.

The 500-member congregation had been meeting in the Wilton Corporate Center on U.S. 40, however that facility is being sold.

Services will be held at 9:15 and 10:30 a.m. Sundays at Glasgow High until spring 1989, when the church's new home on Del. 896 south of Glasgow is completed.

That facility, which will include a 1,000 seat sanctuary, is under construction on a 15-acre tract.

Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church was founded in June 1986 with 35 charter members. It has grown more than ten-fold since that time.

The church is affiliated with the Presbyterian Church in America, an evangelical denomination which holds to the inerrancy of scripture and the doctrinal distinctions of the historic reformed faith.

Methodist Num Num clowns attend seminar

The Num Num Clown Works from Newark United Methodist Church attended the Phoenix Power and Light Conference at the University of Maryland, College Park July 10-16.

Phoenix Power and Light, a national, non-profit organization, offered workshops which emphasized clowning in religion.

Local clowns learned that use of religious skits and other entertainment can promote ecumenical good humor and help heal sickness in the world with laughter.

Clowns were taught new skills for use in church worship services, entertaining the elderly, mentally retarded, the sick and prisoners. They also learned to work with children and adults of all ages and religions.

Techniques of mime, storytelling, puppetry, face painting, dance, mask making, and juggling were taught by many professionals in the entertainment fields.

Anyone interested in learning more about clowning with religious sensitivity may call 368-8774.

CHURCH CALENDAR

• Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church will be conducting its worship services in the auditorium of Glasgow High School beginning Sunday, July 31. The congregation will meet at the school until spring 1989, when its new church home on Del. 896 will be completed. Sunday services will be held at 9:15 and 10:30 a.m. at the school.

• The Fellowship has moved its meeting place during July and August because of renovations to its home, Newark Center YWCA. The Fellowship will be meeting through next month at the Newark Day Nursery, 921 Barksdale Rd. Sunday services are 9 a.m. Bible classes for people of all ages and 10 a.m. worship services. For details, call 737-3703 or 738-5829.

• Steve Wilson, music director at Newark's First Presbyterian Church, will leave that position to pursue a graduate degree in social work. A special reception to honor his three years at the church will be held after the worship service on Sunday, July 31.

• Pike Creek Valley Baptist Church, Polly Drummond Hill Road, will hold vacation Bible school 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 15 through Friday, Aug. 19. For details, call 731-7770.

• Calvary Baptist Church, 215 E. Delaware Ave., will hold vacation Bible school 9 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2 through Thursday, Aug. 11. It is open to children four years old to middle school age. Call 368-4904 for more information.

• The Newark Second Christian Women's Club will meet at 9:30 a.m. Monday, Aug. 15 in Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware's north campus for a "Sundae on Monday" brunch. Featured will be frozen yogurt from TCBY on Main Street and music by Jodi Jensen. Cost is $3.50, and reservations are due by 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 11. Call 738-6873 or 255-4742. There will be free nursery at 357

Paper Mill Rd.

• A Healing Explosion, featuring faith healers Charles and Frances Hunter, will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 19 in the Philadelphia Civic Center. The event will be unusual because 1,500 trained believers, rather than just one or two, will be laying hands on the sick. The Hunters, who have held more than 50 Healing Explosions, have appeared on the CBS News program "48 Hours" and ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America." They have also been featured in McCall's magazine. For details, call Debbie McAnally of Hunter Ministries at 1-800-231-3024.

• You Are Not Alone, a support group for persons who have lost loved ones, meets 1-2 p.m. Wednesdays at the American Red Cross Chapter House, 910 Gilpin Ave., Wilmington. The group is sponsored in part by the Catholic Diocese of Wilmington's Family Life Bureau. The program is designed to provide an opportunity for frank and open discussion, and each session is led by a trained counselor.
