COLLEGE NOTES

Delaware suffered her first defeat of the season, Saturday, from Swarthmore on Whittier field. Starting out in a drizzling rain against a heavier team somewhat dampened the spirits of the Blue and Gold boys. Swarthmore started off snappy and soon rushed the ball over for a touchdown. Followed this Swarthmore had things pretty much her own way, landing three more goals and a drop kick. Swarthmore worked her forward passes to perfection, and Delaware's men could not seem to block them.

Final score, Swarthmore 27, Delaware 0. Touchdowns, Dubarow 2, Eberle 2; goals, Perkins 4; goal from field, Miller; Referee, Hamilton, Colby University; Umpire, Guiney, Haverford; Field Judge, Shaw, Ohio Wesleyan.
Y. M. C. A.

Last evening the Delaware College Y. M. C. A. held its annual reception to the Freshman class. Messrs. J. L. Marshall, '11, H. E. Spruance, '11, and S. M. Tammany, '12, told of their trip to the Northfield Conference last year. Professor McVey who addressed the Freshmen and members of the subject of "Christian Life of the College." Besides these speakers there were others from the Association and also a number of Alumni. After the speaking refreshments were served in the Boarding Club.

SMOKER OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Friday evening the Athletic Association of the College is scheduled to hold a smoker in the College Oratory. There will be speaking, singing, and instrumental music. A number of the Alumni are to be present to address the student body in general and the football team in particular on the present status of football at Delaware. The College Orchestra and Glee Club are also on the program and an interesting time is promised.

DANCE IN THE GYM.

The Athletic Association of Delaware College will hold its first dance of the season in the College Gymnasium Saturday evening next. This is to be an informal dance given in honor of the football team. A large crowd is expected, as the game with Muhlenberg is played Saturday afternoon and this is the "big" home game of the season.

Smoker At College

The Athletic Association of the College will hold a smoker on Friday evening. The following announcement has been sent out to the Alumni:
AVE ALUMNI.
Drop into the Oratory, Friday October 28th, about eight o'clock. There will be lots of smoke and some fire too, if it's a cold night. We're going to roast the football team (they play tomorrow, when you get 'em good and hot) and we want all the old boys we can round up to help do it. Some of the faculty will talk, some old time players will try to talk, and the coaches will make funny noises. You needn't bring your own tobacco unless you are pessimists.
We play Muhlenberg the next afternoon at 2:30. Better stop over and see it; it will set you back half a dollar, but you'll get your money's worth. If you have the other half left, borrow fifty cents and take in the informal dance at 8 o'clock, in the Gym. No glad rags.

Prof. Short Entertains Ushers' Union

The Ushers' Union of the M. E. Church of Newark held its regular monthly meeting last Friday at the home of Prof. C. A. Short. Officers were elected as follows:—President, Dr. M. T. Cook; Vice-President, Mr. E. L. Richards; Secretary, Earl Dawson.
Following the business meeting Prof. Short introduced Prof. H. S. Goldrey, who gave an address on his travels in the Eastern World. Illustrations with pictures and photographs taken by himself. Prof. Goldrey led his audience over the 10,000 miles through Egypt and the Holy Land, Greece, Italy, the Mediterranean Sea, Madiera, the Rock of Gibraltar, then to England, Ireland, Wales, and gradually back to the United States. After the address refreshments were served and the Union adjourned.

Expansion Of A Newark Firm

In addition to all kinds of plumbing, heating and concrete work, L. B. Jacobs is preparing to install electrical plants and all else of that line. Howard Ferguson, Electrical Engineer, class of 1903 Delaware College, will have charge of that department of the work.
Mr. Ferguson has been with the West Penn. Railway Company, of Greensburg, Pa., for several years. He expects to move to Newark about Thanksgiving.

Meeting At Oglethorpe

At Oglethorpe tomorrow night, October 27th, at 8 o'clock, there will be a local option meeting, public in character, at the home of Mr. Robert Hawthorne. Rev. Leonard White, of Wilmington, will be the principal speaker. All the people of the neighborhood are invited, and it is hoped to have a large audience.

AN APPRECIATION OF NEWARK

Our Town As Seen By A Stranger—Her Impressions

It was a beautiful April night when I first came to Newark. As we were approaching on the train, the town seemed, in the bright and shining moonlight, a forest of trees pierced here and there by some dim and distant lights. The calm and quiet reigning in the streets, when we entered the town at half-past nine, revealed at once what Newark was. It was not a noisy and boisterous town. No rushing pedestrians crowded the streets; we had scarcely met a single man. All had evidently retired. Then came the pleasant thought that Newark must be a place of happy homes. A glance at the town by daylight soon confirmed this impression. In contrast to the crowded apartment houses of the cities, were many small and private houses, separated from one another by sufficient ground to allow plenty of air, light and room, comfort which cannot help but make the passers happy. And indeed this happy exterior one soon finds to be but a faint reflection of the home within.

Peace, order, a very sweetness even, emanates from every corner and betokens the love of those who live there—truly a picture of family life hard to find in the larger cities where the struggle for life tears away the son from the father, the daughter from the mother, husband from wife during the long, hard day, leaving the home deserted. It is not in those large cities where all extremes of wealth and poverty, greatness and lowliness, morality and licentiousness exist side by side, that one can learn the true characteristics of American life. It is in these small towns, in these quiet and unbroken homes which exert so great an influence upon the character of the individual that we are to look for the keynote of the American character, or at least of the Western and Southern Americans.

To one coming from New York this domestic atmosphere of Newark makes the deepest impression. What a beautiful democracy in the relationship of husband and wife, parents and children, brothers and sisters! What a noble attitude towards household work so different from that prevailing in the so-called aristocratic cities! Women of education and wealth do not think it at all beyond their dignity to leave their conversation run on the subject of canning and preserving and other matters of housekeeping, while professors and ministers are seen in the morning going to the butcher shops, the groceries, the fruit stores, doing whatever they can to lighten the labor of their wives. These conditions of things could only exist in happy and contented homes.

That Newark people are on the whole satisfied—and he is wise who is satisfied with his lot—is evidenced by the fact that every acquaintance the newcomer meets after greeting him with the hundred times repeated question of how he likes Newark, gives him the assurance that he will like the town in a little while. Now is this confidence ever misplaced? It seems that whatever Newark is or is not, it has that blessed peculiarity that all those who live in it become attached to it. Whether that attachment be the result of appreciation for the town and its opportunity for development, whether it be attachment to its little circle of friends, or to its profession, or to its own undisturbed and regular life is a thing which one finds out later.

But the general impression is a favorable one, and this is the more startling to one coming from those large agglomerations in which we meet all kinds of likings and dislikings for the page we live in, where one even finds people cursing Columbus for having discovered a land where so much enjoyment and luxury can exist undisturbed near so much suffering and misery.

Certainly Newark is not a place of extremes. By thrift and industry every family seems to have reached to a little income which enables it not only to provide for its comfort and needs, but also to lay something aside for a "rainy day." This simple life, one might say, certainly yields to them more health and happiness than any ostentatious and extravagant mode of living. Newark people impress as being really industrious. One may affirm that there is not a single idler in the town. Men are devoted to their profession and their families, mothers to the home and the children. Yet this very activity, so beautiful and praiseworthy in itself, may raise in the stranger's mind the suspicious question as to whether this activity is not sometimes wholly directed to one's small circle, forgetful of the wider and richer family which we call the community or town. How much interest does the Newark citizen show outside of his daily occupation and family concerns, to the business of his home town? The answer to this question can of course be found only in examining Newark, for the spirit of the Newarker for his town must be judged by its practical results.

All inhabitants of Newark are very proud of their little town. They would not exchange it for the most wealthy and luxurious cities. No doubt Newark is a beautiful little place. The healthy natural climate, the surrounding woods, the stately sky, all these are indeed things to be proud of. Happy the people to whose lot it has fallen to enjoy nature in such a beautiful spot. But all these the stranger thinks are but the gifts of God, in the face of which we cannot but exclaim with the Psalmist: "How great is Thy work, O God." When I consider the heavens the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him? * * * v. 3. But what are the works of men? The more profuse the gifts of nature, the more incumbent it is on us to maintain and improve those natural gifts. Little bands of men, through persevering and united efforts, have succeeded in making prosperous towns and cities out of the unpromising wilderness. What then are we not to expect from a place where everything is favorable to the efforts of man?

It is hard for a stranger to estimate the achievements of Newark, for one cannot judge a country town by a comparison with the larger cities that surround it, but only by a consideration of the change it has undergone from its past to present conditions and of the advantage it has taken of all the opportunities that have offered themselves in the course of its development. What Newark was in the past a stranger can little say, but the small houses yet existing in some of the sections of Main street, with their small windows, low roof, oil lamps, well water may well attest the age of the town.

NEWS HERE AND THERE

We were presented with some perfectly matured raspberries of delicious flavor this week. The fruit represents the second crop of this season grown by Robert Potts in his garden at the East End.

Do not miss the opportunity of hearing ex-Governor Robert B. Glenn, of North Carolina, in the Methodist Church next Sunday night. Governor Glenn is an eloquent man. All voters should be anxious to hear him handle the local option subject.

Mrs. Mary E. Brown entertained the Misses Lafferty and Miss Elizabeth Lynch at a farewell dinner at the Deer Park Hotel on Monday evening.

The delegates representing the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church will read their report of the convention at the regular Endeavor meeting next Sunday night.

A number of our townspeople enjoyed the play "Paid in Full" at the Avenue Theatre, Wilmington, last Saturday.

The Misses Lafferty entertained Mrs. Walter H. Steele on Wednesday last.

The Bachelor Girls' Club was entertained by Miss Agnes Medill, on Monday night, the evening proving their reputation for having good times a warranted one.

All those who were suffering from diphtheria seem to be enjoying health again. No new cases have been reported and it is hoped all trouble from that cause is over.

A. L. Stiltz has opened his new store next to G. Eder's, Main street. Everything is so bright and attractive as to suggest a successful business.

The shirt factory proposition seems to be at a standstill. Mr. Diggs left it at the hands of the townspeople—if he could get the help he was anxious to consider locating in this place. No response has been made to the advertisement for girls, so it looks as though the industry will be lost to Newark.

Revs. W. G. Rowan, Ph. D., of Newark Presbyterian Church, I. W. Lowden, of White Clay, and Joel S. Gillilan, D.D., the Presbyterian Evangelist, attended the meeting of Baltimore Synod, held in Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore, yesterday.

Mrs. Charles H. Lafferty and family will close their country home "Maplehurst," and return to their town residence in West Philadelphia the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Leonora Lake, of St. Louis, who was to have worked during the latter part of Newark's temperance campaign and was also scheduled as a speaker at the W. C. T. U. convention in November, will be unable to do as was expected, owing to the illness of her son, who is slowly dying of tuberculosis.

Squire Lovett announces that he is in touch with our town officer at all hours. Any needed help can be quickly secured by calling his residence over the phone at night, or his office during the day.

A box social will be held at Welsh Tract School on Thursday night, November 2. The public is cordially invited. Proceeds for the benefit of the school.

The Baltimore American this morning compliments Dr. Gillilan on this address, "The Mission of the Country Church," before the Presbyterian Synod, now in session at Brown Memorial Church in Baltimore. "What we need are ministers who understand the country people and who do not look to the tall steeples of city churches beneath which their eloquence may be heard. The country people get more out of one sermon than the city people get out of two, because they are a responsive people."

The annual banquet of Goldey College Alumni Association will be held at the Clayton House, Wilmington, to-night.

Able Arguments For Local Option

A street meeting was held last Saturday evening in front of H. M. Campbell's store in behalf of the "dry" cause. Mr. R. B. Adams, of Philadelphia, who is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work of that city, spoke to the crowd that assembled. Mr. Adams emphasized the fact that the fight is a war of extermination—that one county in Delaware alone might be of little importance to the country at large, but when each such victory represents a gradual gain in a war of extermination, it is worthy of consideration. He also stated that 70 per cent. of the land area of the United States, representing 50 per cent. of the population, is under prohibitory laws.

Horace Greeley Eastborn, of Wilmington, was to have been present, but he was obliged to send regrets, owing to illness.

Another meeting will be held at the same place next Saturday night at 8 o'clock. The speakers on this occasion will be R. G. Houston, editor of the Sussex Republican, Georgetown, well-known in Republican circles over the State, and Mr. Daly, of Dover, who has gained much experience in work in the lower counties.

A Surprise For Mr. Dobson

On Thursday of last week October 20th, a most agreeable surprise was given Mr. George T. Dobson, it being his birthday. About fifteen of his Delaware is practicing hard for the Muhlenberg game on Saturday. Several members of the team are crippled—Ayerst being hurt in the back in the Swarthmore game and Captain Taylor being out with a case of water on the knee.

The Synod of Baltimore, which includes the New Castle Presbytery (of the Presbyterian Church) convened in Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore, on Monday night. At the Tuesday evening session Rev. Joel S. Gillilan delivered the address on "The Mission of the Country Church."

Thursday, October 27th is donation day for the Homeopathic Hospital, Wilmington. On that day the managers will be glad to conduct visitors over the building.

The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Presbyterian Church met last evening and dressed dolls which will be sent to a school at Harlen, Kentucky, where they will be given pupils for work that is well done.

A. L. Fisher, of the East End, has just gathered a crop of peanuts from his garden. They are large specimens one in our possession being three inches in length and three inches around it. The seed, which was the Jumbo variety, came from Burpee's.

Another midnight visitor entered a house on Delaware avenue, Monday night. The town is beginning to insist that someone catch the thief.

Mrs. J. W. Gemmill and children have returned from a stay with relatives at Columbia, Pa. The visit included excursions to the chestnut groves on the farm, where five hundred acres are planted in that kind of trees. A ton of this large cultivated variety was shipped by the owner of the farm last year. The entire crop for 1910 has not yet been gathered.

A record breaking yield of corn is reported from the Naudain farm near Marshalltown this week. The yield was 120 1/8 bushels from one acre. This will be one of the competitions in the corn show of the State Board of Agriculture, to be held in Dover early in 1911.

Many churches are preparing to celebrate National Temperance Day on November 13.

Two children of Charles P. Wollaston, Iva and Wesley, are ill with typhoid fever. They are under the care of Dr. Blake and Miss Groves, trained nurse, of Wilmington.

The first issue of the Delaware College Review appeared this week—and a fine appearance it makes. With the able Board of Editors and the renewed interest shown in this College publication, it should meet with success. The printing done by the Star Publishing Company is in keeping with their reputation for good work.

A representative of the Delmarva Telephone Company has been in town working up business. The prospect is the installation of 'phones in this locality.

The store of the Golden Eagle Tea Company changed hands this morning. The purchaser is George Dunlap, of Philadelphia, who is the owner of thirty-four other stores.

Miss M. Frances Hamilton is ill at her home and will not be able to resume her work with her music class for a few days. She has had some symptoms of typhoid but her physician, Dr. Blake, thinks he has got the better of it, and that she will be up again in a few days.

The football game on College field next Saturday, promises to be of unusual interest.

Miss Anna Hossinger entertained the Bridge Club on Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. S. M. Perry for several years pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Chesapeake City has accepted a call to Pender Presbyterian Church at Glasgow. Rev. T. C. Potter, the former pastor, has resigned to take up literary work in Philadelphia.

Friends gathered at his home. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poole and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Roberts and son, Miss Florence Poole, Miss Anna Hall, Mr. Edward Cummings, of New York, Mr. W. R. Austin, of Western, R. I., Caterer Jacob Zimmerman, of Wilmington, and others.

Music and games were the features of the evening. At a late hour refreshments were served and every one wished Mr. Dobson many more such pleasant events, even though it was a surprise. Their host had proved equal to the occasion and those present declared they had had a pleasant time.

Grange News

Delaware Grange, No. 40, Patrons of Husbandry, gave a Halloween celebration on Monday night, in their hall at Newport. The regular grange meeting was held in the meeting room and the celebration in the hall proper. A large number assembled to enjoy the fun.

HOCKESSIN.

Harmony Grange met in the hall on Monday night. A Halloween social was planned for the next meeting night. A literary entertainment, ever feature of which will be suggestive of Halloween, will precede the usual fun and frolic which marks this observance of All Hallows' Day.

A WEEK IN DELAWARE

In my reading the other day, I came across something like this: "Restlessness without a purpose is discontent; restlessness with a purpose is progress." The people of these little counties seem to be a pretty restless lot, but since most of the restlessness has a purpose, we may call it progress.

Wilmington's superintendent of associated charities gives us a report which shows that there are busy workers along that line. A particular feature of this season's work was the "Country week," the outcome of the efforts of the Fresh Air Fund. This department is especially interested in sending mothers and children to the country for a change and rest. The committee tries to find homes for their charges, which are "better than they are used to," so as to fill the short time with comfort and gladness and enable them to store away memories of happy times.

During the season of 1910 54 mothers and children were sent for one week, and 6 for two weeks to the beautiful rolling country of Chester county, near Avondale, Pa., where they found pleasant homes. The restlessness of the folk engaged in this work seems to have gone far toward accomplishing its end.

In the Y. M. C. A. world there is more than ever before to interest.

There are new ways and means constantly being provided for the expenditure of that surplus energy for the possession of which the boys are proverbial. The teams which have been organized for contests in the Wilmington gym are doing excellent work. And the voice we loved, so still, O, how lonesome is our home now. Without the one we loved so dear, it seemed hard for her to leave us. But it was the Good Lord's will. Resting by the waters still. Husband, Daughter and Son.

The smaller towns are gradually making use of the idea. Georgetown is discussing the matter of a gymnasium for the boys of her Sunday Schools.

Georgetown seems to be right up to the mark along all educational lines. The Board of Education of that place has rented the lower room of the Masonic Temple which will be converted into a school of stenography, typewriting and penmanship in connection with the public schools. As an aid to meeting the running expenses young men and women who have been out of school for some time, may take up the course by paying a small sum. Delaware's Band, whose object is to bring more happiness into the world and scatter the clouds of despair—the Delaware Branch of the International Sunshine Society—held its quarterly meeting last Tuesday night. An election of officers was held, the president and vice-president, Miss Elizabeth Gaves and Miss Reba Smith were re-elected for the ensuing term.

The Temperance workers of New Castle are in the midst of a strenuous campaign. Their schedule shows meetings in all parts of the "disgraced territory," every night between now and election day.

Many able speakers are on their list who cannot fail to impress all those whose chief consideration is the moral welfare of our community.

And these are only a few of the purposes toward which our people are courageously striving!

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of our mother, who departed this life April 25, 1910.

Mother, mother, how we miss you.

One that was so kind and true.

God thought best and called her from us.

To that home beyond the sky.

Mother, dear, O how we miss you.

Through the toils of life each day.

In our home that is so silent.

In our home that is so still.

She was a quiet and peaceful sufferer.

For she put her trust in God.

And quietly, tenderly He called her to Him.

Where there is no suffering there.

There is a spot that is so vacant.

And the voice we loved, so still.

O, how lonesome is our home now.

Without the one we loved so dear.

It seemed hard for her to leave us.

But it was the Good Lord's will.

Resting by the waters still.

Husband, Daughter and Son.

Interesting Missionary Meeting

Miss Mary E. Johnson gave an interesting talk in the Presbyterian Church on Friday night, when she told of her work in India where she has had charge of the girls' school.

She described the mass movement which is a modern idea for helping the convert to Christianity.

The dressing of several children in Indian costume added interest.

Refreshments were served after the lecture and a social hour was spent.

Convention Of Delaware C. E. Union At Seaford

The twenty-first annual convention of the Delaware Christian Endeavor Union met at Seaford on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Seaford gave the delegates a genuine Southern Delaware welcome.

The convention was called to order by the Rev. H. E. Halman, of Brantford, the State President. Addresses of welcome were delivered by the pastor of the Church, Rev. J. Ernest Linsinger and G. W. Donahoe, mayor of Seaford.

Rev. T. P. Holloway preached a sermon from the text "Therefore my Beloved Brethren, be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Mr. Holloway extended an invitation to the Union to meet in his church in Wilmington next year.

A letter was read from Rev. Francis Clark expressing regret at being unable to meet with them but promising to do so next year.

The afternoon session became a "school of methods" under the direction of Rev. Willis L. Gelston, superintendent of young peoples' work in the Presbyterian Church.

This same speaker made the address of the evening, giving a discussion of the practical ways of winning boys and girls to the Master and confining himself especially to such ways as would best be successfully carried out by Endeavorers.

Some of his suggestions were to go after the "unchurched"; set a particular object as your goal; canvass every field that is open; carry persistence into the work; let every member of the Society consider himself a part of the lookout committee, supplement all by fervent prayer.

Friday's work began with a quiet hour at 8 a. m. which were followed by devotional exercises at nine.

During the morning the various reports were read, which were filled with encouragement. Rev. W. L. Gelston again talked on methods relating to "Your Society."

Junior and Intermediate work was considered in the afternoon. Miss Ellison's talk showed a close knowledge of her subject and much enthusiasm for her work. The Seaford Juniors were called into service to illustrate "How We Conduct a Meeting." The brief address that followed on "Our Boys and Girls" showed where our greatest hope for future good lies. The reports of the work being done by this encouraging generation were particularly gratifying.

Rev. Avery Donovan, of Laurel, conducted a song service in the evening.

The committees on resolutions and nominations reported. In their resolutions was the statement that the C.

E. Union of Delaware put itself on record as being directly opposed to all lines of liquor traffic and also the submission of the liquor question in any part of the State where no license now prevails.

Rev. J. Ernest Linsinger, of Seaford, was elected State President; Vice Presidents, Rev. D. M. Cleland, Rev. T. P. Holloway, Wilmington; Rev. P. L. Price, Camden; and Rev. Charles L. Caudre, Wilmington; Secretary, Miss Margaret Pearl Warner, Smyrna; and Treasurer, Samuel H. Reed, Wilmington.

The invitation extended by the Second Baptist Church of Wilmington, for the convention of 1911, was accepted.

UNDERWOOD STANDARD TYPEWRITER

A LEADER

The principle of construction in the Underwood was found first in the Underwood, and every typewriter seeking business in the same field with the Underwood which has been put on the market since the advent of the Underwood, has been an imitation of, and in general appearance like, the Underwood.

The last "Blind" advocates of importance have now fallen into line, and there is not to-day a single "blindwriting" typewriter actively on this market. Recall all the arguments you have heard in past years by Underwood opposition, and you will realize what an advance agent to progress the Underwood has been; then bear in mind that the Underwood was the first fully "visible", has had time to develop and improve, and is to-day the most perfect typewriter made.

The Bee Keeper's Equipment

BY DR. JOEL S. GILFILLAN.

There are some few things that a live beekeeper must have if he would get all out of the bees that he can. The illustrations referred to in the preceding article are given here in a separate article, where they can be given a better description than in the text of that article.

The first requisite is a suitable hive. The bees themselves are not particular what kind of a place, so it shelters them from the storms and can be closed against the severe winters.

They frequently find a home in a hollow tree or stump or an old keg. Not infrequently they find a way into a building, settling themselves comfortably between the joists or between the weather boards and the plaster. I have taken bees out of houses where they had stored honey by the tub-full. In all such places the bees build the comb according to the space they find and the comb is shaped to the peculiar shape of their home.

The beekeeper desires the honey in new comb and in a shape attractive and neat for the market. For this purpose the hive is selected with that end in view. The hive has gone through a great many changes. The first form was the tree trunk. The tree in which the hive had lodged was cut just above and below the colony and that piece of the trunk carried home and set up as a hive.

Then when hives were made they were made in cylinder shape. Straw came into use at an early stage for making hives or "skeps," as they are called. They are made in the shape of a bell. These are still largely used in England and other European countries, where lumber is costly and straw cheap.

The one essential thing about a hive was some mode of construction by which the beekeeper could obtain the honey without destroying or seriously disturbing the colony itself. A usual way of taking honey was to kill the bees and take all the honey. This was done by digging a hole in the ground and burning sulphur in it and setting the live over the hole when the sulphur fumes would kill the bees. This was neither gentle nor kind, nor did it give the honey in a neat condition.

Some way by which a top could be put on the hive would serve the purpose.

A hole was bored in the top of the hive and a box set on into which the bees would go and fill it with honey. This honey was usually clear and white and free from young brood. This had another advantage and that was it need not be put on until the flowers or blossoms were producing honey that the beekeeper desired.

This top box idea is carried out in all modern hives. The greatest and most marked and valuable change made in the construction of hives is that invented by Huber, the blind beekeeper. It was the movable frame. This was invented in 1789, and virtually revolutionized the culture of bee keeping.

The movable frame enables the beekeeper to examine carefully every part of the colony, to take any or all and place in another hive, if necessary. Remove the queen and replace her with another and the hundred and one operations that are so necessary to the successful work with bees. The following illustration shows a modern movable frame hive.

This consists of a bottom board with entrance, a cover, a division board, and eight frames. The division board is placed next the side of the hive and crowd the frames together, and when it is removed the frames will be eased up so they can be readily lifted out.

The frame is seen resting on the top of the hive.

The number of these frames in a hive designates the size of the hive. Thus if there are eight frames in a hive, it is an eight frame hive. The bees fill these frames with comb and use their comb for rearing the young. They usually place honey on the outside frames and along the top of the after frames in a semi-circular shape, thus making the lozenge in the middle of the hive.

This is all that is necessary for a colony of bees, but that the beekeeper may secure honey and in that shape that it will be marketable, there is needed what is termed a super. This is placed in the top of the brood chamber for the bees to store the honey for the beekeeper.

The next illustration shows the hive with super on. This is called a story and a half hive.

At the side of the hive is shown the inside of this super. It is filled with round boxes, that is with boxes that when nicely filled just hold a pound of honey. These boxes are placed so close together that the bees cannot put any honey outside the boxes and fences or partitions are placed so that the boxes are so separated that the bees can not build the comb from one box to another. At the bottom of the super is a bee space for each row of boxes for the bees to enter the super.

In order to have the best honey in these boxes the super is not placed on the hive until the kind of honey desired is in the hives. As soon as the bees have gathered honey from white clover or Linden or whatever kind of honey is desired the super is placed on the hive and the honey is stored in it. As soon as the super is taken off to avoid the bees storing the honey by running over the top.

This much for the hive, now how to handle the bees in the hive without danger. Next to a good hive comes a good smoker.

The smoker is made by burning old rags, old rotten wood, or anything that will make a smoke. A little smoke across the entrance of the hive will drive the bees out and a puff of smoke across the top when lifting the cover will drive the bees down from the top. By this time the bees are as we say, "subdued." You can lift out the frames with the bees on them and no inclination to sting will be shown by the bees. At the same time just as with horses or cattle or dogs, the unexpected will happen or sometimes a colony will not be as amiable as desired or the beekeeper is a little nervous.

It is well to have a bee veil handy, and if any uneasiness is noticed the veil can be put on. The bees fly to the face and only when they are very cross will they fly at the hands.

The veil comes over the hat and the coat is buttoned over it. The veil gives one assurance even if the bees are not inclined to be cross.

Very few beekeepers wear gloves, although some do, but the gloves should be loose on the hand. A sting through a tight glove is worse than on the bare hand.

Railroad Tracks—If You Must Follow Them, Walk Outside, Not Between Them

Two men, one young and the other grizzled with middle age, were walking beside the railroad track in a Boston suburb on their way to the nearest station. The younger stepped between the rails. "Better walk here," he advised. "It's better walking."

"No," replied the older man. "I never walk on the railroad tracks." "And we are facing the direction from which trains come," persisted the other. "It's safe." "My son," said the middle aged man, "I was a railroad engineer for more than twenty years, and I learned one thing from the poor chaps I've seen picked up it was not to walk on a railroad track when there is a possibility of walking anywhere else. If the law stopped all trains running on Sunday and if this was Sunday I wouldn't do it. It's the fellow that sure he is taking all the precautions that gets killed."

There was a man who knew about railroads from intimate connection with them. His advice was the advice of a man who knew. Every railroad man of experience will say the same as he. In England the tracks are private property, and nobody is allowed to walk upon them, so accidents are rare. Here hardly a day passes that we do not read of men being killed while making a thoroughfare of the railroad right of way. And usually it is noted that they were on the "safe" side of the track, became confused by the approach of two trains and stepped in front of one or the other. Occasionally something is gained in ignorance by taking to the railroad instead of the public highway. The man who knows that he must to this will be wise always to walk besides the track and never on it. It may not be quite as good walking, but he is not likely to suffer regrets in a hospital—Boston Traveler. Reprinted by request.

Work Of The Referendum League

The Referendum League of Delaware is presenting a "rain question to all candidates for office."

Under three plain statements asking for a constitutional amendment, "providing for the mandatory initiative and Referendum for our State—a matter of delegating the supreme power to the citizens to whom it belongs," and telling the States and cities in which such a measure is in force, they ask:

"Will you, if elected, support such a measure, to be submitted to the people?" The candidate is obliged to reply by the last sentence: "Silence on the subject will be considered a negative answer."

Delaware To Be Represented In Monument Project

A movement is afoot to erect a memorial to the North American Indian in New York Harbor.

It is were introduced in the last Congress authorizing the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to designate a suitable site on some government reservation in the harbor. The idea originated with Rodman Wauamaker, of Philadelphia, who intended to contribute the funds himself, but as it is the general opinion that this movement should be the gift of the entire country and all who desire to participate may do so.

The Red Men of Delaware will give active support to the idea, many of the tribes having passed resolutions pledging their co-operation.

OCTOBER, 26, 1910

THIS afternoon, before we go to press, we have received an advertisement from the Anti-Bribery League with urgent request that it be inserted in this week's issue.

Agreeing with everything in this advertisement and wishing to put our stamp of approval on its object, we gladly release our space. As we said in reply to the Every Evening on July 20th in their wholesale denunciation of the Republican press for failing to properly appreciate the object of Booker Washington's visit—the corruption in Delaware politics as elsewhere traced to its original source, in regard to the negro, can be found in the illegal use of money by Democrats (and Democrats have used money) and the free use of Democratic grog. Without these, with few exceptions, the negro would vote "with unfailing regularity" the Republican ticket for the colored man in his normal state is not an ungrateful creature and without the lure of the dollar or the temptation of the election bottle, he would remember his best friend, (When discussing the buying of the negro vote, trace it to its source.)

And present indications out here around the hills show this to be timely. Without the use of money and grog at the coming election, the Republicans will roll up a good majority.

With this advertisement and citizens facing the crisis of election debauchery—the men who so conduct election—we warn them.

HAVE A CARE.

A MAN may stand on the street corner and with brazen trumpet proclaim his goodness, and yet not be a whit better than the simple folk who go about and honestly perform their duty. And just because the "Star," the only paper in the State smothered by that abominable colored supplement, makes a weekly display of ink accusing the Republican papers as advocating or condoning bribery, does not make it so, nor does it add glory to its belittled editorials.

The "Star" does not uphold bribery. That is good. But that does not mean that the Star has a monopoly of political cleanliness of the State, nor does it mean that the little and more modest country weeklies and Republican tendencies are disgracefully negligent of the duty of a clean press.

There are Republican papers in this State whose editorials have stood for right, with just as much force and character as ever was the privilege of our friend "The Star," and the men back of those editorials have been tried and found to stand for the best in the community and State just as much as the man behind the Star desk.

The Newark POST is young and claims no superior notions of journalism—but in the matter of liberty they yield first place to no paper. We stand with the Star, its intimate friend the Every Evening or any other paper for clean elections, and what influence we may have shall serve to that end.

THE NEW INDUSTRY

IS IT possible that the Board of Trade is going to let the shirt factory proposition die without further effort? It seems to us that if another meeting were held and the subject thoroughly discussed, that, with concerted action, something definite could be done. A prominent business man said this last week that no results would come unless the matter was made thoroughly plain to the people. In spite of the election excitement, we should not neglect this opportunity. Mr. Diggs, the proprietor of the industry, is waiting to hear the verdict of the Board. What will they do? The citizens are waiting to hear the verdict before confirming the suspicions of the inactivity heretofore displayed. Many of them are willing to help you—what do you wish?

BELVA LOCKWOOD

ONE of the sweetest gifts bestowed upon us by the Creator is the power of appreciation.

The expression of it enriches the one who may express, the person to whom the expression applies and radiates where we do not dream.

To deprecate is to devalue; to appreciate is to elevate.

It is as sad a loss to ourselves as to others whenever we allow to slip an opportunity to give reward, where reward seems due. And reward so often consists in just a few words. How gladly the friends of Mrs. Belva Lockwood must show their appreciation of her worth and how sweetly the words must have fallen upon the ears of the woman who has reached the eightieth milestone of such an interesting and active life. A native of Royaston, N. Y., she was graduated at the National University Law School, in Washington, in 1872, and is claimed by Washingtonians as their most distinguished woman of affairs.

She secured the passage by Congress of a bill giving women employed in government positions the same remuneration as men doing equal work. She also secured the enactment of the law admitting women to practice before the United States Supreme Court, and in February, 1879, she was the first woman attorney to be so admitted.

In 1884 and 1888 she was nominated by the Equal Rights party for President.

dent, in 1901 she was elected president of the Women's National Press Association. Mrs. Lockwood's greatest activities have been along the line of improvement of the condition of woman, the spread of temperance and the advancement of international peace.

BOOKER WASHINGTON'S WORK

THE visit of Booker T. Washington to Wilmington last summer aroused considerable interest in this State in his work in Alabama. Few persons perhaps know the good that he is doing and the extent of his labors. They may have heard something of his school at Tuskegee which is larger and more important than most people think.

The annual report of the institute shows that last year 1662 colored students paid $14,457 in fees. This sum does not include board, which was partly paid for by labor. The total receipts of the institute for the year were $319,000 and $118,000 of this amount came in the form of donations. The endowment fund is $1,401,440, and the annual report says that an endowment of $4,000,000 is needed. The institute owns almost 20,000 acres of coal lands and has prospects of a great many legacies.

Principal Washington declares that the institute intends to make farming in all its branches the chief work, and it has five demonstrators busy in various parts of the South.

There is a school for training nurses and which can answer but one half the calls made upon it for trained nurses. Principal Washington says that although the monetary needs of the institute are still very large the interest of the general public in the work is increasing. Colored people in various parts of the country are beginning to contribute to the support of the college, one New York colored woman having given during the past year $12,781.

The institute is looked upon with high favor by the white people of Alabama. The Birmingham Age-Herald says that the spirit of self-help is spreading among the negroes throughout the South and Tuskegee is promoting that spirit to the utmost. Self-help is the key-note of Dr. Washington's addresses, and it is the main solution of the so-called negro problem. The colored people in the end will have to work out their own economic salvation and Principal Washington is doing much to help them in this important task.—Evening Journal.

People's Column

To Our Mayor

To our Mayor:—There is a rumor about town that your chairman of Street Committee takes good care to see the instructions of your honorable body "The Council" is carried out to the letter in some cases, while in others he either forgets said instructions or is afraid, for political or other reasons which probably he will say.

I will illustrate. I have it from the President of Newark M. E. Cemetery Co. that the Council insisted on the curb and pavement being put along their property, for which they were compelled to borrow the greater part of the money to pay for same, at the same meeting of Council. The Cemetery Co. was notified to do this work. Newark Academy was requested to do some work of same kind—I am informed they have money at interest. Not a tap of this work has been done, just why either yourself or your worthy street chairman should say. At the same meeting North College avenue was to be made proper width, remove the row of old trees, and make the 14 foot alley a street for the accommodation of the manufactories and dwellings that have this their only street to our Main street. Neither has this been done. It looks as though for political or some other reasons, those that are able to pay are excused, and the poor are compelled to comply. It is up to you to let us know why this work has not been done, or see that your street chairman complies with the Council instructions. I am only a poor taxpayer, but like to see all have a square deal, and believe you do.

Mechanic and Citizen.

Teacher-Parents' Association

Editor of the POST:

I recently entertained a friend from Dover, who told me something of the aims and accomplishments of the Parents-Teachers' Association of that place. Why would such an organization not be of benefit to our town? I have numbered among my best friends for years several teachers, and I know something of their aims and disappointments. I can see many misunderstandings disappearing on the part of all concerned. Upon a closer acquaintance and heartier co-operation of these two forces in child life. The idea seems to me a splendid one. I wonder upon how many I could depend for the necessary support in starting such an association in our midst? Y.

Yes, Dover has a Parents-Teachers' Association. Milford has the same.

WHY cannot Newark have one? There is so much that could be accomplished and yet many would be willing workers who sit with idle hands.

That Newark's mothers are as deeply interested in the welfare of every thing pertaining to school, as those of other communities is not doubted. Their action in the past has shown their readiness to take part in these affairs. The suggestion has been made. We hope it may soon outgrow the limits of that term and reach the zone of reality.

AN APPRECIATION OF NEWARK

the town as well as its condition a hundred years ago. These little dwellings existing side by side with the new and modern buildings, with all their improvements, help the stranger to read at a glance, as if it were, the progress achieved. But while this contrast no doubt attests the advance of the town, the very existence of these old houses, preserved not by an historical motive, but by the force of their own self preservation, no doubt also testifies to the existence of many a conservative nature as yet unimpaired by the march of new ideas. This simple case is mentioned only as a little instance of many a phrase of town life. Of course, no one could attempt to criticize Newark for lack of mechanical improvements. Each town like each individual has its own excellencies, and it is in the measure in which these are fulfilled that the place is living up to its standard. The primary excellencies of a country town, whatever other advantages it may possess, is undoubtedly sanitary conditions. People flee from the congested cities to the beautiful country towns to seek health. How great then is the surprise of the newcomer to Newark, when he first sees all along the gutters pools of filthy water, full of flies and mosquitoes and other carriers of disease.

The city person on seeing those conditions cannot help but think that the city is actually more sanitary than the country. In the city there are effective measures for the supervision of water and milk supplies, but there are no such provisions in rural communities. So long as their well water is cold and limpid and they cannot see with the naked eye, those things which the college professors call microbes, the people will hold on to their wells. There are, it is true, some voices from the press and other enlightened centers crying out for the need of a sewerage system. But it is as yet a voice crying in the desert. When one thinks of all the industrial advance it would have meant for Newark to have a sewerage system, and still more of the loss of many dear ones, one cannot help believing that the town is somewhat slow to act, and content with conditions which would have alarmed other communities. Slow not in planning and advising efficient and economies means for success, but slow in realizing the need of the thing in question.

To one coming from a more sanitary place the sewage question appears to him a moral question. The loss of the many friends in Newark, which can never be repaired, ought to weigh on the conscience of each inhabitant of this town and awaken every one's attention to the need of co-operative work in the line of sanitary improvement.

Much also could be said on the way the educational situation impresses the stranger, if space would allow it. The privilege that Newark has in possessing the college in its midst, few of the people can realize to its full extent. The college not only benefits the few that seek knowledge under its roof, but has an influence far more reaching; it raises the standard of life in the community in the midst of which it exists, improves the whole run of our mental, moral and physical well-being, even though we may be unconscious of it. That Newark would not have been what it is to-day, without the college is a thing easy to realize. But on the other hand that it is not what it could have been because it does not sufficiently co-operate with the college activities is a thing which few people as yet recognize. One notices with regret that a town which possesses so many scholars, college professors, men of science, ministers trained as well in secular as in church knowledge, a press standing for enlightened ideas, should take so little advantage of all these for the betterment of the schools, an establishment of a valuable town library and all means for the spread of education among the young and old. The stranger who has attended the college debates, orators and lectures and found the halls deserted with the exception of the few seats occupied by college students and professors, cannot but regret the lack of patronage on the part of the people, as much for the encouragement of the students as for their own benefit; one who sees those deserted halls, who has attended the many interesting and uplifting church sermons, has read the many enlightened articles from the press, cannot but think that efforts are not lacking on the one side.

I shall not begin a new chapter on woman's education in Delaware. Strange, indeed, does it seem to the new comer who learns that Delaware is the only State in the Union which offers no opportunity for women's higher education, for white girls at least, for the colored girls, I am told, have a right to enter Delaware State College, Dover. It is claimed that women need no higher education because they may perchance get married soon after the completion of their college course, as if those who were to build up the homes and make up the next generation were not as much entitled to the enlightenment of their ideas, broadening of mind, improvement of health, and as if the State could not afford to pay for the expense of those enlightened mothers who were to bring up their sons in the right path of citizenship.

It is only as the college and town will go hand in hand, the town interested with the welfare of the college, and the college with the development of the town that all these mistakes will be remedied. The source of all neglect in Newark is due again and again to lack of co-operative work. Newark people have little faith in one another. There does not sufficiently prevail a communal idea; every one is too much to himself.

We must not fail to mention that the churches in Newark are perhaps the strongest factor in uniting the people among themselves. However, the aim and scope of the churches is confined to spiritual matters in which they have no doubt, through the efforts of their able ministers, greatly succeeded. But there is also a life on this earth, and it is now for Newark people to unite their efforts for the betterment of physical conditions, and lend their interest to the college activities for our own intellectual development and that of the younger generation.

Around Town

"Come in," said the man from around town who had just stepped in from a man going by who had asked for his vote.

"Have you heard the latest? Well, sir, two of the strangest things have happened in this town that I have ever heard of."

"What is it?" I asked, knowing that the old man was worked up. "Sit down and I'll tell you—it is simply proofs of my old theories that you have laughed at, though I never expected they would come in such striking illustrations. Well, the first is that I was speaking of. You know Council ordered that police register all the dogs in town. He got the Constable to assist him and between them they expected a pretty good thing out of it. Nothing more than right. You know on question a man about his dog is dangerous unless you have the kindest feelings for man's best friend. Everything went well, and my prediction of trouble looked as if it was going to be pretty shy. When they goes up to a man and pointing at a measly dog known as he is so kind to the children, said, 'Is that yours. We are registering.' You can't register that—it is not a whole dog—one foot cut off and a lot off the other foot. And the fun of it is they did not register him because it was not a whole dog. The Council must pass a ruling now on whether what was a dog is a dog."

"I'm due to Council next week. You know a pup according to Council is a dog, but a three legged dog is not a dog, or is he?"

The other thing—you know I have always said that preachers were men first, and I also always held that they were men during and after. (I believe that is the legal phraseology) regardless of the length of their coat or whether they wore a tie of Methodist white or merely a chest protector—and being men I knew that they liked a little dram for the stomach's sake; I knew they smiled when they spoke of the miracle of turning water into wine. I knew that on Christmas or at a wedding that a little dog or wine was not objected to—that is seriously—but they were always men then—not preachers.) I saw a preacher who would go out in the ram to pay calls to get something to keep him from catching cold, but always laid aside the priestly robe when he lifted the glass.

I have known preachers or clergymen rather, I beg your pardon, who would hesitate to speak their views on wet and dry questions—that is, men who they are wet—saying he did not wish to have the clerical office smirched with public tattle.

But I never knew a preacher to come out and publicly advocate the use of whiskey in any shape, just so there was plenty of it, and to hire himself to a Liquor Association, neglect his weekly prayer meeting and only defend but advocate it. Well, week that happened, and I had my eyes opened for those dries, for he said that where there was whiskey sold—there was Christianity—and a preacher got a bigger salary, more popular with his congregation where saucers were than where it was dry.

He said Maine which went Democratic and wet this year that it's simply awful, and in Dakota you have to drive 100 miles for a beer and 200 miles to a church—not many people up there you know—(though he never mentioned that.) But where he flourished me was when he said typhoid fever—all this talk around here this year, you know. He said there was more typhoid fever in a glass of water than there was in a barrel of whiskey. And there I fell down. I had to admit it. Now can you dispute that—"Well," said I, "you know whiskey is a poison that a germ could not live in it and water—anything can live in that."

My, I wish you had been there. But he dropped his voice like preachers do, falsetto isn't it—and told the story of the Man from Galilee and the wine—and said it wasn't sacrifice. Had I been a preacher there would have been some sacrifice there before he smirched that name.

Let a man think what he pleases, but don't you bring the Man of Sorrows to defend the traffic that is causing more crime and death than all others combined. And he was a preacher, they say. Any MAN can voice the sentiment of whiskey, but show me a MINISTER of whatsoever denomination, and I'll say he—

There are lots of them. They have to—their congregation demand it. I guess so, said the old man; they'd lose their jobs.

Little William became disgusted with his companion and said, "That dam kid has been following me around all day." The remark was overheard by an elder, and he was told how very naughty such talk was. They suggested that he ask the Sky man to forgive him when he said his prayers that night. After a while the child came back and caught the man's hand. A pucker of worry was on the little brow. "Let's go into the fax-shur-in-room," he said. When the door was closed, shutting out all sounds, he lifted his eyes and earnestly said: "Sky man, I'm sorry I said that bad word, 'scuse me, please.'"

I am still at the same pace ready to serve you with notions at the least prices. Call and see me: 300 Main street.

EMMA BARNEY, Newark, Del.

Heart Cheer

All knowledge is lost which ends in the knowing, for every truth we know is a candle given us to work by. Gain all the knowledge you can and then use it for the highest purpose.

"Every hardship, every joy, every temptation, is a challenge of the spirit, that the human soul may prove itself. The great chain of necessity where, with we are bound has divine significance, and nothing happens which has not some service to perform in working out the sublime destiny of the human soul."

"I know that love is never wasted, Nor truth, nor the breath of a prayer; And the thought that goes forth as a blessing Must live, as a joy, in the air."

"We never know for what God is preparing us in His schools—for what work on earth, for what work in the hereafter. Our business is to do our work well in the present place, whatever that may be."

"On the bare side of yonder hill See the dark shadow coming still; Its cause, the small cloud bright as light, In the clear blue above the height."

"Tis thus with sorrow, cheerless here, A shadow on some spot most dear; Yet thrown from His brightness high above, Reflected from God's smile of love!"

"O, God, animate us to cheerfulness! May we have a joyful sense of our blessings, learn to look on the bright circumstances of our lot, and maintain a perpetual contentedness."

"Good taste is essentially a moral quality. Taste is not only a part and an index of morality—it is the only morality. The first last and closest trial question to any living creature is 'What do you like?'—and the entire object of true education is to make people not merely do the right things, but enjoy the right things. What we like determines what we are, and is the sign of what we are; and to teach taste is inevitably to form character."

"Of the future borrow, Clothe the waste with dreams of grain, And on the midnight sky of rain Paint the Golden Morrow."

"Life is a schoolhouse. Its rooms may be bare, but they are littered with opportunities of becoming fit for our great inheritance."

"The sweetest lives are those to duty wed."

Whose deeds, both great and small, Are close knit strands of an unbroken thread, Where love ennobles all, The world may sound no trumpets."

ring no bells; The Book of Life the shining record tells."

"You must love in order to understand love. One act of charity will teach us more of the love of God than a thousand sermons. One act of selfishness, of real self-denial, will tell us more of the meaning of the Epiphany than whole volumes on theology."

"Sow love and taste its fruitage pure; Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright; Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor, And reap a harvest home of light."

"As nothing reveals character like the company we like and keep, so nothing foretells futurity like the thoughts over which we brood."

"Only the steadfast, never waver, Nor seek earth's favor, But rest."

"Thou knowest what God wills must be For all His creatures, so for thee The best."

"The beauty of the house is order, the blessing of the home is contentment, the glory of the house is hospitality, the crown of the house is godliness."

"If we work upon marble, it will perish; if we work upon brass, time will efface it; if we rear tempers, they will crumble into dust; but if we work upon immortal souls, if we imbue them with principles, with the just fear of God and love of fellow-men, we engrave on those tablets something which will brighten all eternity."

"God never leaves thee in the dark. Slowly the dawn on unbelieving eyes Breaketh at last."

The safest investment is in real estate. Buy a lot 50x150 feet for $250.00, $100.00 down and $5.00 per month. No interest and no taxes. Lay the foundation for a home; or, if you want to build a home call and see me. Beautiful lots on high ground on North Avenue, $5.00 per foot.

A Noted Pomeranian Dead

Many will hear with regret of the death of the grand old Pom, bitch "Princess Katherine."

An English winner herself, she was the dam of more winners than any one bitch that ever came to America. Kitty, as she was called by the many who loved her for her sweet disposition and lovable ways, was born on March 6th, 1888, and was imported in the spring of 1890. She died October 15th in the care of Mrs. Avis' friend Miss Reba Storey, of New London, Pa., just as Mrs. Avis, her owner, returned from a Southern trip. Princess Katherine will always be held dear not only in the memory of her mistress, but also by her hosts of admirers.

This faithful doggy friend was of the stamp which led some one to exclaim: "The more one knows of men, the better they love dogs."

Improvements To St. Thomas' Church

St. Thomas' Episcopal Church of this town is about to be remodeled.

A part of the balcony is to be taken away, the old English windows removed and stained glass substituted. Walls and ceiling will be preserved and made to harmonize with the surroundings.

The pews will be arranged differently, giving a center and side aisles. An effort will be made to have new pews. Services will be held in the parish house, while the remodeling is under way.

The work will be begun about the 1st of November.

The contract has been awarded to Levi Patterson, the well-known contractor.

Senior Club

The Senior Club of Newark Grammar School held its regular meeting last Friday afternoon.

Two very interesting papers were read—"Life at Boarding School," by Miss Ruby Robinson, and a visit to Yellowstone Park, by Miss Myrtle Wakeland. Some popular jokes were read by members of the club. A very pleasant afternoon was spent. After singing several songs the club adjourned. Visitors were Miss J. Smith and Mr. Friedel.

MIDLINGS is often written on the bag—and mill sweepings IN THE BAG.

How can you tell good midlings?

The color of MIDLINGS is WHITE.

Now if you get a bag marked Midlings and they are dark—that means MILL SWEEPINGS.

Now all the proof you need to this statement is just to come take a look at the Midlings I am selling, any farmer in this section will agree with me when they compare the PURE WHITE MIDLINGS and MILL SWEEPINGS.

CHURCH NOTICES

Elder Enbank preached last Thursday morning at the annual meeting of the Old School Baptists of the Salisbury Association which was held in Syamore.

An invitation was extended by Central Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, to the Baltimore Synod of the Presbyterian Church to make that their next place of meeting in 1911.

The twenty-third annual convention of the Sunday School Workers of New Castle county was held in Red Clay Creek Church last Thursday. Rev. G. T. Alderson of this town, gave an address in the morning, his subject being, "Laying the Foundation."

Officers elected for the following year are as follows:—President, D. B. Maloney, Townsend; Vice-President, A. R. Baird, Wilmington; Recording Secretary, Charles H. Gray, Wilmington; Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer, J. C. Pyle, Wilmington.

J. Chandler Pyle, who held the same position last year read a report from which the following interesting statements are gathered:

There were in the past year 168 schools in the county; 24 unreported; two schools were reopened after being closed for some time; 104 schools were open all the year, with 2,454 officers and teachers and 21,257 scholars, a total of 23,711.

The report stated that 539 scholars had joined the church, and that 5,000 scholars were members of churches.

The following statistics were given: Home Departments, 34; home department members, 806; cradle rolls, 76; cradle roll members, 2,000; teachers' training school, 15; members, 163; organized adult Bible classes, 114; members of these classes, 1,913.

Mr. Pyle further stated in his report that the largest cradle roll in the county was 51. The largest cradle roll in the city was stated to be Delaware Avenue Baptist (140 members), at Epworth 90; St. John's, 89; largest home department at Grace, 60.

Delaware's Apple Orchard

We reprint from Middletown Transcript a very interesting account of a visit last week by Messrs. C. P. Cochran and Victor Green of that town to the Delaware apple belt.

Mr. Darby, one of the large apple growers, whose crop of 6,000 barrels is now being picked from 130 acres, is the largest raised this season in the State. The Nero, the Stayman Winesap, the York Imperial and the Old Winesap. From some single trees he will pick two baskets of prime fruit.

His orchards, as clean of weeds, etc., as any well kept lawn, are cultivated five or six times each year, and the trees sprayed as often. 60 or 70 persons are now picking and packing the fruit, the finest in boxes, the other grades in barrels, for shipment to the Reading Terminal cold storage plant in Philadelphia, to be put upon the market in February when apple prices have gone in the opposite direction to the thermometer.

We also visited another and even more widely known apple farm, that of Mr. Francis Soper—the father of this profitable industry in Delaware.

In his 100 acre orchard is grown many kinds of early apples, most of which were marketed several weeks ago. Mr. Soper has just sent a few barrels to the Minnesota apple show, where in former years he was one to take many prizes. He is truly "a jolly good fellow," and has a very proper pride in showing visitors through his finely kept orchards.

A third noted apple farm is that of Messrs. E. F. Bancroft and Son, well known horticulturists specializing in apple culture. They too grow many early varieties, having already shipped several carloads for which they received $1.00 a hamper, a measure something over a basket. They also receive fancy prices in Philadelphia for their cream, the product of a fine herd of thoroughbred Alderney cows, which are stable fed the entire year, and being well housed and cared for and in appearance look as sleek as moles. The cattle food is derived from huge silos year by year filled with green stuff for winter and spring feeding. These gentlemen raise large quantities of green crops and cut them in summer for feed. Their dairy returns them a handsome profit.

The Messrs. Bancroft also have a thrifty chicken farm which yields them a big return in eggs and broilers. They emphasize egg rather than fowl production, using for this purpose the Leghorns famed for laying, rather than other varieties, like the Dorking for example, in which the brooding instinct is more developed. Their methods from egg to egg, from incubator to broilers and layers, are methodical and scientific to the minutest detail. Each laying hen is expected to produce at least 100 eggs every year, though in fact they average more. About 60,000 eggs are marketed annually. They receive for their white eggs from a dealer in New York City, from 2 to 4 cents above the Philadelphia market quotations, the dealer also paying them freight on the eggs and on the returned crates!

We were met at the Wyoming depot by Messrs. C. H. Jolls and Edgar Witsel, and taken by them in an automobile to the farms described. Mr. and Mrs. Jolls entertained us in truly royal fashion at their lovely home in Wyoming, beautiful within and without, with choicest flowers. Our hostess, Mrs. Jolls, is especially an expert in growing large and handsome chrysanthemums of which she is very fond and has won many prizes with them at various floral exhibitions. Her yellow and white varieties were notably fine flowers and the many different kinds filled a small hot house with variegated bloom.

A large ice and cold storage plant is now being built at Wyoming with a capacity of 1500 barrels of apples. Wyoming's a wide awake town, with fine houses and well kept streets and sidewalks. They are erecting a water plant.

Farms around Wyoming which 15 years ago were a drug on the market at $15.00 to $60.00 per acre, are now readily selling for $60.00 to $100 an acre.

Can't some of our Middletown farmers duplicate these superbly profitable fruit specializations of Messrs. Darby, Soper or Bancroft? Or raise eggs and poultry in the scientific way the Bancrofts do?

We think they can if they only choose to do so. And then, why should not our Delaware farmers in groups put up their own storage plants and reap themselves some of the fat profits which now go solely to the city middlemen and dealers who ordinarily buy of the farmer his product when the market is at its lowest and keep it stored till it is at its highest. Why not? V. G.

In Connection With Schools

An interesting review of the Children's Commonwealth movement is given in the last number of the Saturday Evening Post.

The idea was first conceived by Wilson L. Gill before the war with Spain, when he began to develop the idea. At the invitation of Leonard Wood, he went to Cuba to train the children of that island in the science of citizenship. Since that time this idea so splendidly adapted to the needs of the American people, has gained popularity and is spreading over the entire world.

The particular example given in Mr. Whipple's article is the story of Mickey Melharity, a certain little incorrigible, who was never known to make an "unoffended" appearance at school. His home was such an uncertain quantity that the truant officers of several districts claimed him as under their jurisdiction. As he was found oftenest in the neighborhood of school

199, that was the place to which he was taken when caught, and had caused a policeman to laughingly name him "Convict 199."

One afternoon a visitor came and organized the room into a school city. Two girls, from a sense of humor and a little gronch for the popular candidate proposed Mickey's name for Mayor.

This incident suggested an idea which the teacher quickly grasped. She suggested to the boy-mayor elect that he appoint Mickey Melharity on the city police. The one American institution for which Mickey had the slightest respect was the city "copper." The little outlaw was assigned to the most difficult beat. As he marched to the front to receive his badge, his face was flushed with blushes that shone through the dirt. He left the building in an orderly manner for the first time in his life.

The instance marked a new chapter in the youngster's existence. The next day he appeared, his face bearing the scars of a siege of sand soap and vigorous rubbing. Each day some slight improvement was noted. Finally he presented himself clad in a new blue suit, leather belt, celluloid collar and a cap with "bee-front and bee-hind" like that of a real policeman.

When the teacher ventured a word of appreciation, Mickey's reply was filed with suggestion—"Yez knows it makes a mighty big differ whether ye're in or out—an yez sees it's a big thing to be a citizen and a place-man."

In the school mentioned eight grades composed of children from six to fourteen, represented so many States. Each room was a city—several rooms formed a state. The children of each room elected their Mayor, President of the Council, and Judge. The police and health officers were appointed by a mayor of the whole class acting as City Council. All officers operated with the teacher of the room.

From each room one boy and girl were elected to the State Legislature, all the rooms combining to elect a Governor, a lieutenant-Governor, one or more members of the State Court and a Secretary of State.

There was a judicial system, also a regular set of laws which were adopted.

This plan may be adopted to a school of almost any size—with only a few officers or many.

For the boys and girls trained under such a system, "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of happiness," no longer are merely empty phrases of some Fourth of July speaker, but well-understood facts. The result is inevitable and speaks for itself in the ever-increasing popularity of the whole movement.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY
$500 Reward

The Anti-License Campaign Committee for Rural New Castle County offers to pay the sum of $500 to the first person in Delaware, whether representative of the liquor interests or otherwise, who will prove that the closing of the saloons in Kent and Sussex Counties has resulted in increased taxation in those counties, or in any sense damaged their legitimate business interests. This offer is free to all, and will be held open until Nov. 8, 1910. Answers urgently solicited for submission to a competent board of Judges.

(b) Insane Asylum $ 82,368.00

Mass. State Bureau of Statistics of Labor estimates that 30 per cent. of all insanity is due to intemperance.

Amount chargeable to Saloon $ 24,710.40

New Castle County furnishes about 80 per cent. of all inmates to Asylum.

Amount chargeable to County $ 19,768.32

Total cost of Saloon to County $193,074.85

Deducting Revenue received from Saloon 68,591.80

Total Loss to County $124,483.05

When Kent and Sussex Counties voted for No-Licence, the tax rate in those counties was 55c. and 50c on the $100 respectively. There has been no change.

In New Castle County, under license, the tax rate is 65c on the $100.

Rural New Castle County tax payers pay in County and Poor and Road tax $194,000.

The Saloons in the County pay in license fees $6,400 or about 1-30 of the above amount.

Supposing the County was receiving every dollar of the $6,400 received from the Saloons, how much of an increase in the general tax rate would be brought about by the loss of this money in the light of above comparison?

But all this money goes into the State and is used for State purposes.

*Based on examination of 2065 commitments to the New Castle County Workhouse.

Based on 440 inmates at $3.60 per capita per week as given by Superintendent W. H. Hancker.

Note-In the preparation of above statistics we have dealt with the County as a whole for it is impossible to separate Wilmington from the Rural County in these matters.

WHAT GEORGETOWN CITIZENS SAY ABOUT LOCAL OPTION

Georgetown, Del., October 1, 1910.

We, the undersigned business men, merchants and professional men, hereby certify that, to the best of our judgment, the closing of the open saloon in our town has been of decided advantage to the business interests of the town.

We know of no interests of a business character (except saloon business) that has suffered any from the change. We know of many that have been greatly benefited by the closing of the saloons.

A great deal of money now finds its way into legitimate trade that formerly was spent in saloons, and we have no hesitancy in stating that, in our judgment, the closing of the saloons has been a great benefit to the ordinary lines of retail business of our town.

Moreover, disorder on our streets has greatly decreased and the morals of the community have materially improved under the new order. While the illegal sale of liquor may not have been altogether eliminated, drunkenness has been reduced to a negligible quantity as compared with what it was under the license system.

A CONVINCING TESTIMONIAL

My Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter under date 2d inst., will say that the conditions under local option in Georgetown and surrounding country were never better. We are almost absolutely free from drunken brawls upon the streets, which prior to local option were so prevalent. The change in conditions was noticeable in a week after the law went into effect, and I believe that any fair-minded citizen here will substantiate what I say.

I have served as Mayor of this town since Sussex went dry, and no one at that time, or at the present for that matter, is in a better position to know than I. At the present time, I am a Justice of the Peace of this county, and a search of the records reveals the fact that hardly one-fifth as many cases are brought to my notice as the result of intoxication as there were when the saloons were in a flourishing condition. During my incumbency as Mayor, I remember distinctly of one instance where there were two men, some of them prominent citizens and business men, arrested one night for being drunk and disorderly. No such conditions prevail now.

The shipments of intoxicants by express and freight are not as great at present as they were a short time before the ruling made by the Government, which was to the effect that all boxes containing liquors should be stamped as such upon the lid.

The merchants report that their sales are greater now than ever before, and a canvass made a month after this county went dry showed this to be the case.

At the April term of court, which came to a close last week, one of the noticeable features was that there was not a case tried that had its origin from drink, where heretofore nearly one-half of them were traced directly or indirectly to whiskey. This goes to show the marked change in conditions; and temperance advocates are highly pleased to know this.

I have endeavored to give you a resume of the situation in this county as it exists from the view point of an official, and hope what I have to say will be of benefit to you in the coming fight in New Castle County.

Yours very truly,
WILLIAM A. WARRINGTON,
Justice of the Peace.
