Newark's Memorial Day Parade will mark its 75th anniversary on Sunday at 2 p.m.

In attendance will be marching units representing all branches of the service, veterans organizations, schools and community organizations.

Prior to the parade, at 1 p.m., at State Memorial Ceremony will be held outside Memorial Hall on The Green at the University of Delaware. The ceremony honors those who have died making the ultimate sacrifice for their nation.

At 2 p.m., Maj. Thomas E. Kelly, USMC Retired, will lead marching bands, military units, and community participants down Main Street. The parade will follow a route North on South College Avenue, East on Main Street, South on South Chapel Street, and end at Haines Street. The reviewing stand will be located at Academy and Main Streets. A City Memorial Ceremony will be held at the Academy Building following the parade, with a performance by the U. S. Coast Guard Training Center Drill Team. The Master of Ceremonies for the event will be Col. Robert Hyland from the Delaware National Guard.

Street closures and detours for the parade will go into effect in stages starting around 12:30 p.m. Delaware Ave is closed starting at 12:30 p.m. Main Street is closed starting at 1:30 p.m. Traffic is diverted to Park Place and Cleveland Ave which causes long delays.

Parking fee change ok'd for proposed Chipotle Grill

The Newark City Council unanimously approved a compromise parking waiver fee plan for a restaurant that wants to open on Main Street.

Chipotle Grill, which calls itself a "Fresh Mex" restaurant, sought a 50 percent reduction in the parking waiver for a cafeteria-style location at the site of the former Copy Maven on Main Street. Its name refers to a smoky pepper used in Mexican food.

Instead the council adopted a suggestion to levy the remaining 50 percent of the $74,000 parking waiver over 10 years. Officials of the chain stressed that the compromise is subject to approval by the company. It would allow the Chipotle to reduce its development costs for the site, with the 50 percent paid over 10 years shifted to the operating budget. Those costs, with the parking waiver money added in, had resulted in the company walking away from the project.

Chipotle agreed to seek the compromise at the urging of Newark Mayor Vance Funk.

The city charges the waivers as a way to pay for parking costs and future expansion in Newark. A long-discussed parking ramp in downtown has been on hold, as the city works to improve its finances and avoid taking on additional debt.

Funk, in arguing for a modification of the waiver, cited the fact that the building has been vacant for five years. He also noted that the city would eventually get the waiver money through the development of the site. It was also reported that the location had been shown by real estate agents 100 to 150 times, but had not generated any firm commitment until now.

Councilman Paul Pomeroy expressed concerns about the proposed fee reduction setting a precedent for future projects, but was happy with the revised payment plan.

In other action, the council:

- Agreed to look for ways to ease the burden on non-profits, schools and other tax-exempt organizations in paying for refuse pick up. Those pickups had been paid for by the city, even though the organizations do not pay property taxes. The city is asking nonprofits to pay for services as it struggles with a downturn in real estate transfer tax revenues. Nonprofits outside the city have to pay private haulers for refuse costs.

- Heard a presentation on a proposed natural gas generation expansion at a power plant in Smyrna owned by the Delaware Municipal Electric Corp. Newark accounts for 35 percent of the generation from DEMEC, which serves a number of municipalities in the state.

POLICE BLOTTER

Thief takes boat from storage area

Police are on the lookout for a 23-foot 2003 Sonic sport boat with trailer that was taken from a Newark business. The boat's owner told police that he has kept the boat in storage during the off-season for the past five years without any problems. The boat is white and features a purple, yellow, and lime checkered flag pattern on its side. It is valued at $36,000.

The owner said that he co-owns the boat with his brother-in-law, but that he has no idea who would take the boat. The trailer could have been moved by a light-duty vehicle or an SUV.

Police are reviewing video footage from adjacent businesses in order to get a better look at the incident.

Prank turns into damage for car owner

Last Thursday morning, officers were called in to investigate a criminal mischief complaint where several suspects had flipped a white Subaru Legacy onto its passenger side. The car, registered to a 56 year-old Annapolis, Md. woman, was parked under the South College Ave. bridge. A neighbor reported that he had heard a loud crash and saw the car lying on its side. He did not see any vehicles or anyone leaving the scene before he called the police.

When officers arrived, the car had had its passenger side window shattered and brown and red fluids were leaking from the engine compartment. The car also suffered several scratches and dents and a broken side mirror. Total damage was $1,500. No fingerprints were recovered at the scene.

Trespasser turns out to be a fugitive

A Newark man was arrested for trespassing at the Studio Green Fitness Center, at 9 Thorn Lane, by employees with Bayside Security Patrol Services.

The 37 year-old suspect had gained entry into the facility and was found to be intoxicated. When asked if he was a resident of the apartment complex, he replied "No" and was detained while security called the police. The man became combative and was handcuffed before police arrived.

Police performed a breathalyzer test on the subject who showed a reading of .223 blood alcohol content. While being held on the trespassing charge, police discovered that the man has active capias from both the New Castle County Family Court and NCC CCP.

Hotel customer finds room ransacked

A robbery of a customer staying at the Howard Johnson's on south. College Ave. occurred on Saturday morning. The victim, a 38 year-old resident of Allentown, Pa., was staying at the hotel while performing maintenance work at the WalMart in Elkton, MD.

The man told police that he had been staying all week with two other men who were also working at the WalMart. The victim reported that all three of them worked at night and that since the job was completed, the other men went home. He reported that the unknown suspects had stolen several items of personal and job-related computer equipment and some electronic items belonging to the hotel. The estimated total of all goods is over $8,900.

An investigation of the room showed no forced entry from either the wide-open front door of the room or from the balcony. No fingerprints were recovered.

Employees at the hotel stated that they saw the door open, when they passed, and that the room was in disarray, but no more so than when they saw it previously in the week.

Video tape footage of the hotel is being reviewed by Newark officers.

Gunman takes iPod

A street robbery occurred on South College Avenue, Newark on Sunday May 9 around 1:20 a.m. The victim was walking northbound on S. College Avenue, near Winslow Road, when he was approached by the two suspects. One of the suspects lifted his shirt to show a handgun that was tucked into his waistband. The suspects then demanded the victim's iPod, which he was listening to at the time of the encounter. The victim surrendered the iPod, then ran north on S. College Ave. The suspects were last seen fleeing westbound on Winslow Rd.

Both suspects are black males, 18 to 20 years of age, with average to athletic builds. One was wearing a gray hoodie.

The victim, a 21 year-old male University of Delaware student, was not injured.

Information about this robbery can be reported to Det. Fred Nelson at 302-366-7110 ext 136 or Frederick.Nelson@ej.state.de.us. Information can also be anonymously reported to Crime Stoppers at 1-800-TIP-3333, where a reward may be available.

Man surrenders in Pike Creek area

New Castle County Police have arrested Andre Choury, 34, whose last known address was in the Valleystream Garden

Apartments in the Bear area. He has been transported to the Christiana Hospital where he is being evaluated. Upon his release, he will be charged with 18 criminal offenses that include two counts of kidnapping, aggravated menacing, reckless endangering and multiple weapon offenses.

On Monday, at 5:43 a.m., County Police responded to the Fox Woods Apartments in Pike Creek for a report of a domestic dispute involving a weapon. When the officers arrived, they found a 31 year-old female victim who reported her estranged husband had just grabbed and pulled her out of her car and pointed a handgun at her. She also advised her boyfriend overheard the sounds of her car horn (she sounded the horn) and came outside the see what was going on.

Choury then turned the weapon on the 24 year-old male and forced him back into the apartment at gunpoint. Once inside, Choury fortified the front door and barricaded the two of them inside. Police learned the gun discharged while he was moving furniture around inside the apartment. No one was injured as a result of the shooting.

Chapel Street buzzing with original works

By MARGARET DARBY

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Margaret Darby blogs about the arts in Delaware for deart-sinfo.blogspot.com

Even though there was no performance on the marquee, the Chapel Street Players Theatre was humming this past Friday and Saturday as they were the venue once again for the Eastern States Theatre Association ESTAfest/Original Works 2010.

The ESTA is a regional association of community theater groups from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia. Each state division sent two entries to be judged a winner on the regional level.

Marsha Amato-Greenspan, Festival Chairperson, told me that this was the third year in a row that the festival has been held in the Chapel Street Players Theatre.

I went to the Saturday morning session — one of four in which each community theater group had to put all props, cast and stagewrights in a small square on the stage outlined in tape ('the box' was what Amato-Greenspan called it). Once all materials and personnel are in the box and ready to go, they call 'start' and the timer begins. Cast and stagewrights place props and furniture and then wait for the lights to come up to run the show. Then they break the set, stuff the materials back in 'the box' and call 'stop'.

The event was fun, but clearly not intended for public consumption. It was more like being in a large backstage audience, watching everything the stage crew would see, including bringing props in from the parking lot. The brave lights and tech crew were trying to follow the instructions of 15 different casts and errors inevitably occurred, but I saw four solid performances of original works on Saturday morning.

Three were quite humorous: Flowers, by an 88-year-old playwright, Sherman C. Ward, Jr. from the Little Theater of Watertown (NY) was a humorous story about a mother/daughter team who scarfed up silk flowers from cemeteries for resale. Midnight Train to George by Delaware's own Matt Casarino is a tightly written play about two women on a bus together who figure out they know each other rather intimately. The third comedy was Clean, produced by the Silver Spring Stage (MD) story about a shy Italian chef who has been in love with a waitress for five years and finally lets it slip. The fourth, presented by RAPA East End Theatre of Rochester (NY) was an all too realistic story of a factory worker who has just received his severance package.

Chapel Street Players deserves kudos for hosting such a large event.

The stage was a busy place as original works were performed at the Chapel Street Players Theatre.

Winehouse now open to all ages

Stone Balloon Wine House has seen an upturn in business, after receiving a revised liquor license that opened the establishment to families.

General Manager Javier Medina reports a 15 to 20 percent increase in business or four to six additional tables a day for the restaurant that opened last year at the location of the legendary night club on Main Street that featured rock giants such as Bruce Springsteen, Dave Matthews Band and Metallica in their early careers. The change went into effect about a week and one-half ago.

"It has been a pleasure to see families come in," Medina said.

The liquor license was a legacy of the night club roots of the Stone Balloon, which was only open to adults. Liquor licenses are hard to get on Main Street and owners stayed with the 21-only bar license, even though a large percentage of sales were to come from food. There had been concerns the night spot could become a college hang-out. The establishment recently applied for the change and the request was granted by the state.

"We want guests of all ages to come feel the energy and music history that lives in the stone on our walls. We want the world to enjoy the culinary adventure being created every day by Chef Jason Dietterick. It wasn't fair to share this experience only with guests over 21 years of age," Medina said in a release announcing the change.

With an appearance that had the feel of a restaurant, rather than a bar, the Stone Balloon had to turn away families even when it came to underage college students who were accompanied by their parents.

The Stone Balloon features "New American" cuisine featuring local products and a wine bar.

Medina says the change is also helping graduation week business late this month, with the weekend "almost locked down" in terms of the number of available tables.

The Stone Balloon Winehouse www.stoneballoonwh.com serves lunch and dinner 7 days.

Go green and save green

By CARRIE MURPHY

UD COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

Take an environmentally sensitive approach to your landscape and "go green!" By implementing the following sustainable landscape techniques, you will provide support and protection to our natural environment and ease up on your budget at the same time.

Choose plants carefully.

Not familiar with native plants? Native plants grow naturally in our region with minimal care; they are well adapted to our climatic and environmental conditions. In most cases, when used in appropriate growing conditions and once firmly established, native plants will thrive without supplemental water or chemical treatments. Native plants allow you to have nature's beauty close at hand, they conserve natural resources, invite local wildlife into your landscape for food and shelter, and they are beautiful. The more natives we plant, the more popular they will become; and the more widely planted, the greater the environmental impact. In addition to nativity, consider plants that are appropriate for your site; evaluate growing conditions, height and width, and the needs of the plant. Provide proper spacing between plants and use proper planting procedures. Finally, do your research and choose plants that are disease resistant and with few problems.

Designing with native plants reduces landscape maintenance costs; management is less intensive because native plants are low water, fertilizer and pesticide users. Proper siting, planting, and maintenance ensures that your plants get a good, running start; compromised plants lend themselves to foraging insects and diseases. By supporting healthy growth, you will have fewer replacements and spend less time and money trying to control insects and/or diseases.

Recycle organic material on your property. Compost. Mulch.

The organic material you "clean up" from your property including lawn clippings, fall leaves, branches, and herbaceous material can be composted on site. There are millions and gazillions of (micro and macro) organisms like earthworms that break down organic matter into a usable and rich product called compost. It's easy to maintain a compost pile and make rich compost to improve the soil. Use compost on lawns, as a soil amendment, mulch, or in a potting media for containers.

Mulch is distinct from compost. Although you can mulch with compost, generally, mulch is not fully decomposed. Mulch with organic material; use lawn clippings, leaves, or seasoned hardwood mulch in your landscape beds to suppress weeds,

George Evans turned out in Christina board election

Long-time Christina Board of Education member George Evans was trounced Tuesday night by Eric Anderson in a race for another term.

Evans, an attorney, is the current president of the board and had served on the body for three nearly decades.

He lost his race to Anderson by a lopsided 869 to 217 margin. A third candidate, Paul Falkowski received 104 votes.

Anderson is a teacher (at the Charter School of Wilmington), has served as a teacher's aide, coach, and substitute teacher.

The candidate used social media in his election win, with a page on Facebook that had 900 friends. Evans by contrast, seemed to rely on lawn signs.

Evans suffered from low turnout in the city of Wilmington, where he won precincts. By contrast, Anderson racked up huge margins in the Newark and Bear-Glasgow areas. The sprawling district includes the above areas, with a narrow sliver running near the Christina River into Wilmington.

As board president, Evans took a lot of heat over a code of conduct with a zero tolerance policy that resulted in the suspension of a young student at a Newark elementary school.

The suspension was later overturned, after a New York Times story brought unwanted national attention to the district and a triggered wave of criticism from both sides of the political spectrum.

A revised code of conduct awaits final action from the board.

Later this month, a referendum will be held in an effort to ease a budget gap and avoid teacher and staff layoffs that were approved by the board at a meeting earlier this month.

On his Facebook page, Anderson indicated he supported the referendum.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic item is an undated picture of the Color Guard and Firing Squad of Newark's J. Allison O'Daniel Post 475 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Tomorrow, the third Saturday in May, is designated Armed Forces Day. Sunday is the State of Delaware memorial tribute to veterans who gave their lives. Ceremonies will be held at Memorial Hall on the university green. Then the City of Newark will host the annual Memorial Parade followed by local ceremonies at the Newark War Memorial on the Academy Building lawn. On Memorial Day, the VFW Honor Guard visits each local cemetery and renders honors including a three-volley salute to the fallen.

The picture is on loan to the Newark Post from the Newark Historical Society collection. Visit the Newark History exhibits at the Newark Free Library and the Municipal Building. The Society invites donations or loans of stories, pictures and other artifacts of places, activities, and life styles in the Greater Newark Area for its permanent collections and the Newark History Museum that is being prepared to reopen in the late spring.

Take an environmentally sensitive approach to your landscape retain moisture, and as it breaks down, provide nutrients to the soil.

► GREEN, from 7

Conserve water.
It is so important to manage the water on your property responsibly. Reduce supplemental watering by using compost and mulch, and selecting native and/or drought resistant plants for your landscape. Try trapping localized stormwater on site with a rain barrel; use this water to provide supplemental water to your plants when necessary. Select irrigation systems wisely, and learn how to hand water properly. Set irrigation systems to water in the early morning, or if you are going to hand water, water in the morning as well; if you water in the middle of the day, much of the water is lost to evaporation, and watering at night encourages disease conditions. Remember to adjust irrigation settings when the seasons change or with persistent weather conditions, and check for leaks outside the house and in the irrigation equipment before installation, and yearly. Water deeply and infrequently; a deep soak ensures that the roots get the water they need.

Reduce lawn; and, with what lawn you have, grow it "green."

Lawns require intensive management; they demand a large input of water, labor, and often chemicals. Consider alternatives; small areas of lawn amongst garden beds, a meadow, or a vegetable garden. Select the appropriate turf species for your site, and mow, fertilize, and water correctly. Mow high and frequently, leave the clippings on the lawn, fertilize in the early fall, water early in the morning, do not overwater, and allow your turf to go dormant in the hot and dry of summer.

Practice Integrated Pest Management (IPM) and reduce or eliminate the use of chemicals.

A successful IPM program is supported by many of the practices we've already discussed; choosing the right plants for your landscape, providing plants with the growing conditions they need for success, providing plants with appropriate spacing, following proper planting techniques, and choosing low maintenance, disease resistant plants. Determine a threshold, and when pest problems are noted, try environmentally responsible alternatives and/or products to manage these issues. Know your landscape. Monitor your landscape regularly and use our Cooperative Extension office to help you identify pests and beneficial insects. Take preventative steps to avoid pest and disease problems in the landscape.

If a complete landscape overhaul seems overwhelming, try one technique at a time; immediately you will reap the environmental and financial benefits of implementing a new, sustainable landscape technique, and by adopting one or more each year, you will be well on your way to creating a new, environmentally friendly environment.

Don't make our water supply sick.

Are you dumping medicines down the drain?

Disposing of unwanted and expired medications in the sink or toilet leads to water contamination. The Delaware Division of Public Health and other community partners are offering homeowners an easy, anonymous and environmentally friendly disposal alternative for unwanted and expired medications.

Bring your old prescription and over-the-counter medications in their original containers—including unwanted vitamins and supplements, inhalers and liquid medicines; and even pet medicines—to the nearest Medicine Cabinet Clean-out Day site on Friday, May 14, 2010, from 8 a.m. until noon. Visit any of the following locations:

Kent County — Bayhealth Medical Center
640 South State Street, Dover, Delaware

Abuse of prescription and over-the-counter medications, most notably by teenagers and young adults, is an emerging health issue. All medications will be disposed of in an environmentally safe manner free of charge. For more information, call the Delaware Helpline at 1-800-464-4357 or visit DelawareHealthyHomes.org.

Bastianelli steps down at top of his game

By JON BUZBY

JONBUZBY@HOTMAIL.COM

It's not often a coach in any sport steps down at the top of his game, but St. Mark's wrestling head coach Jay Bastianelli has done just that.

"As much as I have cherished every moment spent coaching the St. Mark's wrestling program, I have decided to retire from coaching to pursue an administration position and to focus on my responsibilities and goals as a husband and hopefully one day as a father," said Bastianelli, who is a seventh-grade social studies teacher at Skyline Middle.

As a senior at St. Mark's in 1997, Bastianelli won the 135-pound state championship as captain of a team coached by his uncle, Steve Bastianelli. Then, in 2003, after serving as an assistant for several years, Jay continued a family coaching tradition by following in the coaching footsteps of his uncle, who himself won four individual state championships wrestling on a Sussex Tech team coached by his father, Herm. Collectively the three generations of coaches won 429 meets during a 50-year span.

"We are very appreciative of Jay's dedication and hard work he put into this program," St. Mark's athletic director Tom Rosa said in a phone interview. "He ran the whole program and did such a great job organizing everything. We wish him the best in his education endeavors."

Bastianelli led the Spartans to a 78-22 dual-meet record and crowned 23 individual state champions during his seven-year tenure.

"In my eyes Jay had the proper mindset all along, which was to attempt to develop each wrestler in the program to the best of his ability," Steve Bastianelli, who currently serves as athletic director at Newark High, said in an e-mail. "By doing that he has not only continued a fine tradition but also raised the bar."

St. Mark's was 14-0 this past season, winning its second consecutive state championship team title. In addition, four Spartans signed letters of intent to wrestle at major college programs.

"Jay has a great feel for the part of the job which involves talking to college coaches and helping those wrestlers who are interested find a school that is a good match for them," Steve Bastianelli added.

Bastianelli learned from his uncle that the success of any sports program doesn't stem solely from the head coach, but rather his ability to see the big picture; to build on a strong foundation already in place, while adding his own personal touch to add another layer of success. When asked about leaving his mark on the program, he talked more about what leading the Spartans did for him as a person, than what he did for the team as its coach.

"This program has helped shape me into the person I am today. From being a fan as a little kid, to a wrestler for a legendary coach (Steve Bastianelli), to an assistant coach, and then eventually as the head coach, the pride I feel as a part of this program and its storied history, and bright future, will always be with me.

And I look forward to being a fan in the stands next year."

Donald Crossan

Dr. Donald F. Crossan died peacefully as the result of a stroke at the Christiana Hospital at the age of 84 on May 3. He was the son of Samuel Davis Crossan and Anna Bertha Spinken Crossan, both deceased. A native Delawarean, Don was brought up on the East side of Wilmington where he learned about hunting and fishing in the nearby ponds and fields and was an Assistant Boy Scout Leader. After graduating from P.S. DuPont High School in 1944, Don enlisted in the Army Air Corps and subsequently was stationed in Guam where he served as a tail gunner in a B-29 in the Pacific Theater of War with 15 combat missions.

He married Ruth Swanson, the "girl next door" while studying for his BS degree at the University of Delaware and received his MS degree followed by a Ph.D. degree in Plant Pathology at North Carolina State College. He spent his entire 39-year career at the University of Delaware where he worked in research, as a Professor, Vice President of University Relations and Business Management, and Dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences and Director of the Agricultural Experiment Station. Donald will be missed sorely by his wife of 62 years, Ruth Swanson Crossan; a sister, Dolores Brandt; three children, Connie C. Cox (Michael Cox), Donna C. Crossan, and Eric R. post and straw, harvesting radishes and planting cabbage and potatoes. Located on a third of an acre of land on the University of Delaware's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the garden will provide a steady stream of fresh vegetables, herbs and fruits to Delaware's hungry this season.

"What a great partnership we have with the University of Delaware," said Food Bank of Delaware CEO Patricia Beebe. "The abundance of fresh produce provided throughout the summer and fall months helps ensure that we get nutritious foods into the hands of those that need it most."

"The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources is very happy to continue our successful partnership with the Food Bank of Delaware by again planting our Garden for the Community," said Dr. Tom Sims, deputy dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "Last year, thanks to the help of more than 100 volunteers, our garden provided the food bank with more than 7,000 pounds of fresh, locally grown vegetables."

Volunteers will be needed at the Garden for the Community throughout the summer months to help harvest, pull weeds, plant early and late-summer crops and other tasks. Those interested in learning more may visit <http://ag.udel.edu/communitygarden/>.

In addition to helping at the garden, the Food Bank of Delaware also encourages the community to keep hungry Delawareans in mind as summer's crop of tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, string beans and more begin to sprout. Surplus donations can be donated directly to the organization's hunger-relief efforts. Donations are accepted at the Newark (14 Garfield Way) and Milford (1040 Mattlind Way) warehouses weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. For more information, please visit www.fbd.org.

The Food Bank of Delaware distributes between seven and 10 million pounds of food and grocery products each year.
