After five years behind the superintendent's desk at the Christina School District headquarters on Main Street in Newark, Dr. Iris T. Metts dreams of transforming the district into the leader of technology-based education in Delaware.

BIG DREAMS

Superintendent eyes more computers in
Christina classrooms

BY TONJA CASTANEDA

BY THE 21ST CENTURY, local students could be learning from laptop computers what they now learn from books.

Christina Superintendent Iris Metts has this and other visions for the Christina School District which she hopes to realize by the time she retires from her job in the year 2000.

While it is yet to be seen if the technology will advance that far in schools within five years, Metts is pushing for the district to be a statewide leader in the technology students and teachers will come to use on a daily basis.

"In four or five years, we can afford to substitute laptop computers for text books," Metts said. "This doesn't mean textbooks won't be available."

"Technology is my love," Metts said. "If things could really shake up to make teaching and learning exciting — it's technology."

She said the ideal technology in schools is four to six computers in every classroom, which is literally thousands of computers district-wide.

"That isn't that far away," Metts said. "With the bond referendum passage, that's 10 schools we can duplicate like the Marshall model."

Marshall Elementary School is the newest elementary school in the district and a technology school-model for the state.

There are telephones and television monitors in classrooms and teachers do work on laptop computers they take to and from school.

As the administrative leader for five years with Christina, Metts in an interview last week reflected on her accomplishments and her vision for the future.

"I'm very happy about the first five years," Metts said. "I think we've managed to refocus the budget process."

She said she does not take all the credit for these achievements. The

Parking board to expand

Push is on for business rep on parking board

By RON PEEL

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Nearly five years after the Newark Parking Authority was granted two more board positions by the state legislature, it seems likely that those spots will be filled.

Both Mayor Ronald L. Gardner and Newark City Council member Irene Zych suggested that, due to the recent difficulties between the Parking Authority and the Newark Business Authority (NBA), filling the vacant positions on the authority with at least one member of the business association would benefit both groups.

"The two extra positions were requested by former parking authority chair Anita Puglisi," said Gardner when asked where the positions originated "and since that called for state action, nothing was done over night."

Puglisi, who left the authority before the additions were passed by the state legislature, was surprised by the vacancies.

"I'm real surprised to hear that the positions

Post office struggles with growth

By MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The current post office in Bear continues to be too small for sorting mail and parking is limited as a result of mushrooming development in the area.

In addition, increased population in the 19702 zip code has already forced Bear Postmaster Bruce Cataldi to hire additional staff and carriers despite a lack of sufficient facilities or even mail trucks.

"We're in the process of doubling our staff here and currently need seven more carriers," states Cataldi. "But they need to have their own vehicles and the civil service process is time-consuming so it's taking a while."

Cataldi himself was recently forced to spend several days out of the post office delivering mail due to the lack of sufficient person-

Bypass not likely soon, mayor says

By DAVE ZELIFF

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

ELKTON — Newark's mayor detailed Newark's traffic woes for a handful of Cecil County citizens who cared to listen.

The Wilmington Area Planning Council (WILMAPCO) held an information meeting at the Elkton Town Hall last week to discuss solutions to the Newark traffic problem.

Although other solutions were mentioned, a bypass is not likely to be built anytime soon, said Ron Gardner, mayor of Newark.

"(A bypass) wouldn't be there for a couple of years," he said.

"What the city of Newark is looking for is relief from the current traffic problem.... If all of the other (solutions) fail, then that will be an option for us to discuss." The mayor told the Cecil constituents March 15.

Traffic jams during the morning and afternoon rush hour are clogging streets in Newark making it difficult to travel through the area, officials said.

"The problem is too much auto and truck traffic is coming through Newark," said Roy Lopata, planning director of the City of Newark. "The road system we have is the same we've had for the last 100 years."

The problem dates back to at least the 1950s, one of the earliest times a beltway was proposed, Gardner said.

Officials from WILMAPCO are conducting a study of the area to determine which solutions would offer short-term as well as long-term relief.

Neighborliness still reigns on Kells Avenue

By TONJA CASTANEDA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

RESIDENTS LIVING along Kells Avenue are working to preserve the character of their neighborhood and it seems their assertive tactics are successful.

While some neighborhoods within walking distance of the University of Delaware are losing their make-up of single-family and owner-occupied communities, the people living on Kells Avenue are aggressively seeking just this type of home buyer.

They are also embracing students and other renters in their neighborhood but suggesting guidelines to happily coexist together.

The three block stretch of Kells Avenue off South College Avenue includes a diverse community of people living there as long as 60 years to those just moving in three months ago. The approximately 50 houses were built in three phases, during the 1920s, before and after World War II.

This community has held block parties, Easter egg hunts and celebrated high school and college graduations. Neighbors even give retirees going-away parties as they leave the neighborhood for retirement homes.

"There is a real sense of community here on Kells Avenue," said Cornelia Weil, a more than 20-year resident. She said names and telephone numbers have even been circulated from neighbor to neighbor for emergencies. "It's a nice gesture for those who live alone," she said.

This proactive stance on Kells Avenue is producing positive results. At a recent meeting with Newark Police, there were not any compelling problems needing to be addressed.

"I admire their initiative in try-

Taxpayers still paying off old bond debts

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Taxpayers are still working off some old school debts as they take on the burden of a recently approved bond issue.

Voters in the Christina District overwhelmingly approved a bond issue earlier this month. Proceeds will be used to build new schools and renovate existing buildings. At the same time, taxpayers are still paying off earlier bond issues. Because the local school district has changed names and boundary lines three times in 25 years, local monies are paying three separate debts.

The bond debt for each district is as follows:

- Newark School District — $220,000
- New Castle County School District — $1.6 million
- Christina School District — $1.5 million

Assistant Cash and Debt Manager for the State Treasurer's Office Wayne Gault said the Christina School District will pay off the 1971 bond debt from the Newark School District in February 1996. The Newark district was in existence prior to 1978.

Tax money is also paying off debts for construction and renovations to buildings in the New Castle County School District, which was the school district from 1978 to 1981.

Brandywine School District officials coordinate the payments on the debt for the New Castle County School District. Brandywine official Patrick Miller said $1.6 million is yet to be paid.

Miller said that $5.6 million total from 1980 bonds will be paid off in 2001. He also stated that the total payments for this year are about $671,000 and for next year are $551,000.

The current configuration of school districts came after court-ordered desegregation of schools. The State of Delaware is now seeking to have that order overturned, but is not asking for a return to a single district.

Although the debt could be tallied, records were not available to say specifically what the bonds paid for in the older school districts.

The Christina School District, without the cost of the recently passed referendum, has a total bond debt of about $1.5 million.

Christina School District Director of Business and Finance Ken Brown said Christina is paying on referendums from 1986, 1988 and 1990.

He said the 1986 debt is for building Brader Elementary School and renovations to Palmer Elementary School. In 1988, voters agreed to pay to build Christina's newest school, Marshall Elementary School and the renovations to Drew-Pyle and Pulaski schools.

The 1990 bond referendum is paying for renovations to the district's middle schools — Shue, Gauger and Kirk and for the roof replacement at Christina High School.

Three arrested on cocaine charges

Three Newark residents were arrested on crack cocaine charges March 17 by Newark police.

Newark police detectives and members of the Drug Enforcement Agency task force found 135 bags of crack cocaine when they executed a search at 51 Grays Avenue in Newark. Police said about $3,000 was also recovered.

Police arrested Cecil Sharp, 50, of 51 Grays Avenue and charged him with federal charges of possession with the intent to distribute crack cocaine. Sharp is being held at Gander Hill Prison by federal authorities.

Also arrested were William Brown, 44, of 51 Grays Avenue and June Webster, 33, of 425 Strathaven Court. Brown and Webster were charged with trafficking in crack cocaine, possession with the intent to distribute cocaine, maintaining a house for the sale of drugs and second degree conspiracy.

Customers line up along Main Street for Gershman's second annual St. Patrick's Day bag sale.

Lines form on Main Street for popular St. Patrick's sale

By RON PEEL

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

ST. PATRICK'S DAY stroll down Main Street was difficult around the area of Gershman's bargain store as crowds swarmed sidewalk racks to fill bags full of bargains.

The second annual sale where shoppers pay only $10 for whatever merchandise they can pack into a medium-sized shopping bag is becoming a Newark favorite.

According to store owner Norm Gershman, many customers asked him to repeat the sale and urged that it be held more often.

"We only hold the sale once a year so that it does not lose its popularity," explained Gershman.

"We've always been a bargain store and this is a really unique way of selling goods, that for one reason or another have not sold previously, for only pennies on the dollar."

Compelled to do something different, Gershman invented the sale to "do something special for the St. Patrick's day holiday." Overstock is traditionally at its highest at this time of year.

Nearly 250 people attended the sale in its first few hours, and the crowd remained steady throughout the day. The line to the cash register frequently stretched to more than 25 people as employees struggled to fill bags faster than customers could present the merchandise.

Although most shoppers were too busy riffling through the many bargain racks and boxes to comment on the event, John Barber did find the time to relate his view of the frenzied buying.

"This is the second year that I've come to hold things while my wife keeps shopping. We've filled two, maybe three bags so far," explained Barber. "It's a nice crowd and you're only paying about 10% of the regular price."

The sale drew more customers this year due to the unseasonably warm weather.

"After the cold weather for last year's sale, I would say we definitely caught a real good break with the warm weather," said Gershman. "It seems like hundreds and hundreds of people have stopped by for a good deal."

UD student labels traffic as priority

THIRTY-YEAR-OLD University of Delaware student Kevin R. Crocco has declared his intention to challenge sitting Mayor Ronald C. Gardner in the upcoming April 11 Newark mayoral election.

Crocco stated that his decision to seek election is fueled by two overriding factors. He says that the traffic situation in Newark needs attention and that the relationship of the university and the city must be made more workable if either is to benefit from their dealings with each other.

First and foremost, Crocco, who is currently working on a second bachelor's degree in civil engineering to go along with a degree in aviation from Ohio State University and five years of military service, believes that with some in-depth study and pressure on the Delaware

Department of Transportation (DelDOT) that congested conditions on Newark roadways could be relieved.

"I'm going to be studying the traffic conditions at one of Newark's worst intersections, Kirkwood Highway and Cleveland Ave., for a class this semester and some of my classmates will be doing a study of of the other major problem area, the intersection involving North Chapel, South Chapel and Main St.," said Crocco. "With this information already in hand the traffic issues can be addressed immediately through work with DelDOT."

Crocco understands that nothing is a sure thing just because the council asks a state organization to take action.

"All you can do is make a proposal," admitted Crocco "and then you just have to keep pushing the issue until something is accomplished."

Kevin R. Crocco at the UD

The City's relationship with the University would have to be handled in a point by point fashion suggested Crocco.

"The City and the University are like twin brothers or sisters that are consistently at odds with each other," said Crocco. "You would think that since the University occupies almost half of the city that there would be better lines of communication."

Crocco is trying to bring a new and younger point of view to the Mayoral race. The Crocco campaign will kick into high gear as soon as the University closes for spring break.

"I plan to knock on doors and let people know who I am during the break," announced Crocco. "I really want people to come out and vote for either candidate. The citizens of Newark should voice their opinion and get out and vote."

Lowering a 'sin-tax'

IT ISN'T UNREASONABLE to levy substantial taxes on wine, beer and spirits, given the array of alcohol-related problems society faces every day.

But what if the top part of your state is only a few miles across and borders Maryland?

The Free State is a cheap state when it comes to liquor taxes and it isn't hard to figure why Newark area residents are making a run for the border.

The result has been tough times for Newark-area liquor store owners, disappointing alcohol tax revenues for the state and a booming industry in Cecil County, Md.

The numbers speak for themselves. Cecil County liquor sales have risen nearly 18 percent and Delaware sales are down by a comparable percentage.

Since we can do little to convince Maryland to raise its taxes, a lower alcohol beverage levy championed by the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce is worth supporting. The result would be a small boost for liquor stores and restaurants, with little or no penalty for taxpayers.

We would also tie this tax cut to an effort to deregulate an industry that is tightly controlled on the state level. While firm enforcement is necessary in a few obvious areas, the powers of the Alcohol Beverage Control Board border on the ridiculous when it comes to areas such as serving as a collection agency for overdue bills, monitoring the percentage of food to beverages sold in one license category and limiting chain store ownership — to name only a few.

The option of Sunday hours for liquor stores should also be part of the package, although this might be politically impossible in the short term, given the views of Gov. Carper who vetoed a similar proposal last year. The governor seems to think that open liquor stores will disrupt family life in a state that sanctions vending machines dispensing lottery tickets.

Those of us living near the border see the darker side to this situation when witnessing carloads of lit up Delawareans weaving west on Sunday to add a few dollars to Maryland's tax system.

We may be asking too much in seeking an overhaul of the current system. But if we are going to the trouble of lowering liquor taxes, we might as well begin the process of reducing regulatory burdens in areas outside of enforcement of laws governing after-hours operation, underage drinking and selling to the intoxicated.

Homebuying: It's a city, county choice

By TONJA CASTANEDA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

SOON my husband and I will decide where to buy our first home.

We have narrowed it down to the local area, but are still deciding if we want to live within the City of Newark or opt for living in New Castle County in the Bear/Christiana area.

We have lived in an apartment in Christiana for two years. Except for a few quirks such as not having a garage or even a designated parking space and no storage, I like were I live.

The author has been a staff writer for the Newark Post since 1992. She and her husband, who met through a "Dear Abby" column that solicited letters to servicemen away from the United States during the holidays, live in Newark.

Castaneda

Whenever something breaks, leaks or makes a funny noise, we call the office to complain and eventually they fix it free-of-charge.

I'm content in my residence, but I realize we need to make the financial investment of buying a home.

My husband and I have been looking for a home in the Bear area. There is a glut of new homes to choose from and the prices for a single-family home seem to be less than within the city limits.

Also I like the area for its natural beauty. But when purchasing a home in a new development, one must realize the wooded area in the neighborhood has a good chance of being a lot with new townhouses the next year.

Even though living in the county has its advantages, have you recently tried to find a public park in the Bear/Glasgow area? My husband and I wanted to play tennis the other day. Where did we go? To Newark.

I understand Newark residents pay higher taxes to buy park land, but I will gladly vote to increase taxes if county officials would develop parks with tennis and basketball courts.

Stand-in excelled: I had hard time

By MARVIN HUMMEL

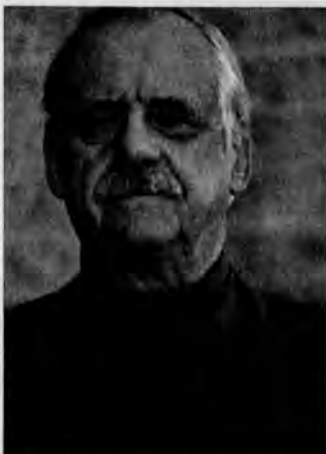

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

BRECHT'S "Mother Courage" is an all-time great play, so we were really looking forward to seeing it at the University's Hartshorn Hall. The performance had to be canceled because the actress playing Mother Courage was seriously ill.

The theatre company and the audience tried another time—but the actress was still too ill to perform.

However, rather than cancel a second time, Ms. Susan Sweeney was a last-minute replacement, and the audience was asked to grant her the indulgence of bringing her playbook on stage with her. (???)

The audience saw the playbook for the first five minutes, and then Brecht, Ms. Sweeney, and the supportive cast triumphed; she still had the script in hand, but everybody did so well that the audience quit "seeing" it. The script-in-hand became like Radar's deformed hand on "Mash"—you once knew Radar had one—but he was so good and "Mash" was so good, you forgot it. Only when somebody mentioned the deformity did you even remember it!

Congratulations, Ms. Sweeney! You came out of an emergency splendidly!!! I want to tell you of two of my emergencies in the theatre, neither of which got me any congratulations!

A long time ago when I was playing Torvald Helmer in Ibsen's "A Doll House", the leading lady became seriously ill just hours before curtain time.

We should have canceled, but a bonehead professional director got a woman named Kay with a photographic memory and handed her the script. After she said she had the entire dialogue photographed, the director ordered the curtain up, and an unrehearsed Kay took on 100+ pages of difficult dialogue without a script!!!

I had never met a person with a photographic memory before—she had photographed every word with her mind's eye—but she must have dropped and scrambled the photos! She responded to my question on page 2 with a fine answer on page 42! Then she roared off to page 98, and gave her closing speech in the middle of the first act. I gave up trying to make sense of things and just tried to match my responses to her pages so the chaos would at least be coherent!

Ms. Sweeney, you had a supportive cast—I did not! The actress playing Mrs. Linde had a scene with me through all of which she knitted. She looked in her bag, saw she had left her yarn and needles at home, and started pantomiming knitting! When she felt so stupid she couldn't go on, she walked off-stage and left me with nobody to say my lines to!

Then Nora (Kay again) didn't make her entrance for 10 minutes! The janitor had mistaken her tarantella dance costume for a gym suit and placed it in "lost-and-found!" During those 10 minutes (by actual count!) I told the darkness out there in the audience about a Norwegian banker's life in 1879, and the more I hated Nora (Kay), the more I declared my love for her!!! She

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's "Out of the Attic" photograph shows the Steele house, located at 12 West Delaware Avenue. It was formerly the home of Charles P. Steele who for several decades owned and operated a butcher shop which was later the location of Herman's Meat Market on West Main Street across from where Willard Hall is now located. The house is best remembered as the home of Sara Steele, his daughter who was well known for having taught in the Newark school system for forty-five years. Miss Steele lived in the house until around 1984 and until that time it was one of the few homes in Newark still occupied by members of the same family by which it was occupied shortly after the turn of the century. It is now owned by the University of Delaware. The photograph was provided by Mrs. Vernon Steele with research provided by Bob Thomas for the Newark Historical Society. In an effort to provide more complete descriptions of our "Out of the Attic" photographs, volunteer historians of the society are identifying and researching the historic shots. Readers are encouraged to send old photos to the Newark Post, "Out of the Attic," 153 E. Chestnut Hill Rd., Newark, 19713. Special care will be taken. For more information, call 737-0724.

finally returned, gave a line from page 34, followed it up with one from page 9, rolled her eyes, and a merciful curtain man put everybody out of their misery.

At the reception following in our "honor," the three most popular topics were the weather, plantar warts, and the use of leeches in modern medicine.

But I didn't quit—I was a thespian right out of Mother Stupidity sired by Father Disaster! Sometime later in an English drama I looked ever so keen as a Scotland Yard inspector and sounded like every Ohioan's notion of an Englishman—unless the Ohioan had met one.

The set was a posh (bilious) drawing room in a Victorian mansion, replete with a corpse on the floor which was my reason for being there. All went well until the maid came in and nervously announced, "Sinner is served!" The 'corpse' on the floor started having spasms—the kind associated with bad little boys who have to laugh but can't.

I covered it up rather well, I thought: "Well, he can't have been dead veddy long—rigor mortis is just setting in!" With that, the corpse's no longer suppressed laughter burst out all over my career in the theater.

The curtain came down two hours early, we repaired to an establishment that featured mind-altering beverages, and we all changed our majors!

Ms. Sweeney I salute you and your most helpful cast!!!!

ketball courts in my area.

Another downside of being a county resident is that our government does not meet in the local area. Even worse, when you attend county council meetings you'll notice that your elected representative sits with her or his back to you. They do this to face the speaker of council, but I believe it would make it more difficult for county council officials to vote against constituents if they had to face them while doing it.

This is opposite of the way Newark city council members vote. They face the public audience attending their meetings.

Other advantages to living in the city limits include having municipal offices such as planning and park services in close proximity, more of a cohesive community feeling and a police department.

On the other side of the coin, there are more stringent laws for noise and parking. Also the student and vehicle traffic in some areas is extremely congested in the City of Newark.

As I investigate further facts about living in the county, I wonder if I want to live without the extra services an incorporated area provides. I recently was surprised to find out that New Castle County does not provide garbage collection to residents. County residents hire their own trash haulers.

This makes no sense to me to have a number of trash trucks running through one neighborhood all days of the week.

I'm not trying to pit the city folk against county residents. The Newark Post covers the area included in the Christina School District boundaries and I meet a number of both residents. Also, I have ties to the city and county. I live in Christiana and work in the Robscott Building on Chestnut Hill Road, near the city limits.

I'm asking myself aloud what is important to me, before purchasing a home.

Although I do not yet know where Home Sweet Home will be, I know I will be happy to live in either of these fine communities.

THE BY-PASS ..... WHEN ???

Without a doubt, one of the most important issues facing the City of Newark is traffic congestion. As your Councilman, I will remain diligent in our struggle to obtain the by-pass our city most desperately needs.

I will be your voice on City Council

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Look beyond driver education for budget cuts

To: The editor

From: John A. Lannutti
Newark

The Educational Improvement Commission, set up in August by Governor Carper, wants to eliminate state funding for Drivers' Education.

This would divert 3 million dollars to "New Directions." I would urge the legislature to oppose this proposal.

Driver Education, in Delaware, is an outstanding program and a model for the rest of the country.

Driver education makes up only 1/700th of the entire state budget.

Indeed, the EIC wants to spend 5.2 million on a three day teacher in-service program!

In essence, a paid holiday for public school teachers.

Live among neighbors

To: The editor

From: Stephen E. Turner
Newark

Our congressional delegation should come home for at least part of the year to live among their neighbors who elected them.

Local problems like the Newark Bypass dispute with Cecil County are neglected by Senators Biden and Roth and Representative Castle who are spending too much time in Washington. Cross-border disputes are ideal for federal mediation.

If Newark must make a federal case out of the bypass issue to get something built, then so be it.

Furthermore, if Maryland prices its cooperation at tax reciprocity for Marylanders who are employed in Delaware, then let's give it to them. Or maybe we should raise their taxes? Through negotiation all parties and interests will have to compromise some; but we must build the Newark Bypass.

Any community newspaper receives many letters over the course of a year. The number per week fluctuates, of course, the determining factor usually the degree to which our readers are upset... about the council rep, the mayor, the superintendent of schools, the guy next door.

We want to let people have their say, for or against, praising or criticizing, and to vent their frustrations over what they usually perceive to be an injustice. Generally the subject of a letter is someone in government. That's okay with us. We see that as a fact of life. So, blast away, if you wish. No doubt a salvo or two will be lobbied in the direction of this newspaper and that's okay, too.

What we need from you and what we cannot allow is spelled out in our letters policy, which is printed every week in the staff box on the Opinion Page. It isn't very long because we don't have a lot of rules.

Craft crazy

Crafty couple creates business

By TONJA CASTANEDA
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

NEWARK RESIDENT Jane Goodwin is similar to an artist. She does not paint bowls of fruit and vegetables, but instead creates polka dot carrots and plaid apples from fabric.

Jane and her husband, Bob, of Christianstead in Newark work together creating crafts. Being married for 33 years, they know how to work as a team. She does the sewing and fabric work and he does the glass cutting, wood work and stained glass art.

While Jane learned to sew in junior high and used her talent for a number of years as a home economics teacher, as well as sewing clothes for her family, it was not until two and a half years ago she started selling her handiwork at craft shows.

Bob said it was prior to moving to Newark six years ago, when Jane was a buyer for a museum gift shop. She and Bob searched craft shows for homemade items to stock the store inventory and realized they could make most things they purchased.

Today they make and sell a variety of crafts including antique doily t-shirts and sweatshirts, fabric garters to go around baskets and lamp shades, coordinating fabric mirrors and picture frames, blue jean purses and pog holders, quil-lows (pillows which fold out to full-size quilts) and baby bags which fold out into blankets.

"Some people do the same thing," Jane said, of the number of craft items she makes, "but I get bored doing the same thing over and over."

The most challenging part, Jane said, is to get an idea and work to create it. "The first design goes to the family," she said, before a pattern is perfected to be mass produced by hand.

Their most popular seller is a $5 fabric basket made using recycled plastic soda bottles, collected from neighbors. The couple makes them in batches of 50 to 75.

"People like the idea we're recycling," said Bob. The baskets were first made to be plant or flower holders, Jane said, but customers have told them the baskets are also used to hold bathroom guest towels, combs and brushes, decorative soaps or pens and pencils.

It was just a few years ago that Bob took a class in stained glass making. He now creates the colored designs in home windows and kitchen cabinets and even makes a stained-glass ornament in the shape of the state of Delaware. The ornaments sell for $5.

The Goodwins are already beginning to create Christmas crafts. Jane is busy sewing with red, green and white fabrics. "It takes so much stuff to sell for Christmas," she said. They will begin selling these holiday crafts at September shows.

"We've done quite well," Bob said of their craft business. "We have tried to do different things."

"It's fun," said Jane. "I love to sew. It's a creative outlet."

Currently, the couple has crafts for sale in three local stores. The Classic Crafter in Polly Drummond Shopping Center, Crafter's Corner in Elkton, Md. and the Riverwalk Shoppe in Milton.

The Goodwins will be at craft shows the next few weekends.

They will be exhibiting their wares at Glasgow High School tomorrow (March 25), Dupont Country Club on April 2 and at Hodgson Vo-Tech School on April 8.

To order handmade crafts or donate empty 2-liter plastic soda bottles, call the Goodwins at 737-7304.

Easy to make crafts: bows, stamps, stencils

By MARY PETZAK
NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

WHAT COMES TO MIND when you hear arts and crafts?

Beaded leather comb cases made in summer camp? Carefully-worked potholders and misshapen ashtrays constructed at brownie meetings? Lots of sentimental value but not much else. Right?

Not so fast. According to the Hobby Industry Association, the sale of craft supplies and instructions reached an all-time high of $9.63 billion in 1993. That surpasses sales of recorded music, amusement park rides, and movie tickets.

Crafts today are more popular than ever despite the fact that more people than ever work full-time and leisure time is at a premium.

Ninety percent of U.S. households have at least one family member engaged in craft-hobbies according to a nationwide consumer study. And they're not always who you might think.

Mary Jane Mooney, classroom coordinator for A.C. Moore on Kirkwood Highway, says men, women and children sign up for their array of craft classes as fast as they announce them.

"Rubber stamping is extremely popular right now. And bow classes are really hot. We offer two stenciling classes a month and they're always full," Mooney said. "And something that might surprise people is that oil painting has become very popular with children and adults."

Mooney says that boys and girls as young as 8-years-old are signing up for the three-hour oil painting classes in which a complete painting of a different subject is done each month. "The one we did of a killer whale was especially popular. We had to promise to repeat it," laughs Mooney.

When they recently offered silk-ribbon embroidery classes for the first time, Mooney was overwhelmed by 95 calls in one day. They had to run four classes each day of the scheduled two-day session. People from "age 14 to the very, very old" showed up to learn.

Men are most often found in woodworking but Mooney says they also sign up for other classes. One man in her stenciling class told her "my wife picks the colors but I have to do the work," so she sent me to take the class."

Onalee Baldwin, merchandising manager for Jo-Ann Fabrics in University Plaza, sees male "closet sewers" come in to purchase fabric to make clothes.

Local crafters engage in an unbelievable variety of crafts including but not limited to stenciling, sponging and marbling, decoupage, silk flowers, transfers on shirts, clay beadmaking, watercolors, wreath making, oil painting, crocheting, rubber stamping, tole painting on wood, metal and fabric.

People also do calligraphy, knitting, counted cross-stitch, silk-ribbon embroidery, bows and swags, needlepoint, quilting, pillow-making, stained glass, beading, macrame, candle-making, flower arranging, woodworking and hand-made works of art from every material imaginable.

Quilling and scheren-schitte are two of the more odd-sounding but beautiful paper crafts. Both have been cottage arts for over two hundred years without becoming household names.

Quilling starts with rolling paper into colored shapes which are then arranged in flower pictures.

Scheren-schitte is the art of cutting paper into designs and shapes of which the silhouettes found at carnivals and fairs are only the beginning.

And what do people do with all these crafts once they're done? According to consumer studies by Market Facts, 79 percent give them away as gifts, 67 percent use them personally, 64 percent decorate their home, 49 percent make holiday decorations and 16 percent sell their projects.

Mooney claims she hasn't bought a greeting card in years since she learned to do rubber stamping and make her own.

Baldwin believes the large number of people learning crafts after work and on weekends do it "so that you have something when you're done. It's a creative effort that lasts."

Whatever the reasons, they're as varied as the crafts themselves.

For information on craft classes call A.C. Moore at 994-9016 or Jo-Ann Fabrics at 737-2759.

Food pyramid guide to healthy eating

NEWARK OUTLOOK

FROM THE STAFF OF THE COOPERATIVE EXTENSION OFFICE AT UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

Children, teens and active men can choose larger number of servings.

Many people wonder how to eat that much food. Some of the mystery is reduced when you take a look at what a serving is.

For example, in the bread group a serving consists of 1 slice of bread, 1 ounce of dry cereal, or a 1/2 cup of cooked rice, pasta or cereal. How many of us eat only a 1/2 cup of pasta for dinner. In reality we may be eating 3 servings in one sitting.

The meat group consists of items such as nuts, beans, fish, eggs, poultry, beef, pork and other meats. Three ounces of cooked meat is considered a serving. One half cup of cooked beans, 2 tablespoons of peanut butter, or one egg counts as one ounce of meat or 1/3 of a serving.

The dairy group consists of foods such as milk, cheese and yogurt.

One cup of milk or yogurt and 1 1/2 to 2 ounces of cheese count as a serving.

As for fruit, one medium whole fruit is a serving. This is about the size of a tennis ball. Also 3/4 cup of juice or 1/2 cup of canned fruit is a serving.

Vegetables are about the same as fruits. One half cup of cooked vegetables or a cup of tossed salad is a serving.

Fats and sugars are identified in the pyramid to help us recognize the fats and sugars that we add to foods, such as syrup, jelly, oil, salad dressing and mayonnaise, should be used sparingly because many foods naturally contain sugar or fat.

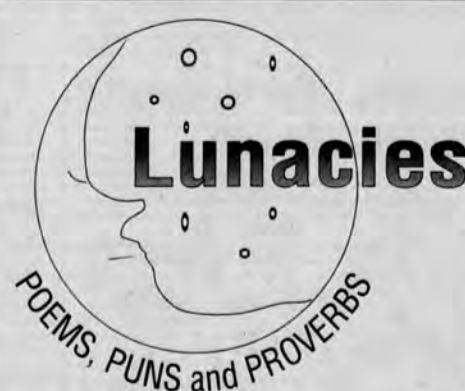

Using the guide can help you provide a balanced diet. For those recipes or products that have a variety of foods in them such as casseroles, pizza or sandwiches, you should consider all the groups that are included and count them as best you can.

Arts calendar packed with variety

Those of us who have been in this area any length of time know what a valuable cultural resource the University of Delaware is to us. Sometimes, however, there is so much being offered that I don't know just where to begin.

Enter Beth Thomas of UD's Public Relations office with an idea that worked! Rather than trying to devote a full column to each important cultural and artistic event, I am going to share an overview of the remainder of this month and next month, so get your calendar out now and see how many that interest you might demand your attendance.

On Tuesday, April 4, the Mendelssohn String Quartet and flutist Eileen Grycky will present a concert in the Loudis Recital Hall of the Amy E. du Pont Music Building at 8 p.m. Works of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart will be featured on the program. Tickets are $7.50, $5 for senior citizens and $2 for students.

Mitchell Hall will be aglow on Friday, April 7, as the new national touring company presentation of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" will offer one performance only, at 8 p.m. This is a fun-filled show. I last saw it at Lincoln Center, and though it was written many years ago, it is still as fresh as ever. Songs like "I Get a Kick Out of You" and "You're the Top" are running through my head right now — how lucky you are you can't hear me singing! Tickets are $18, $13 for senior citizens.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

zens and $10 for students.

More great theater the next evening as the Bacchus Players debut their new musical, "1-800-THE-SHOW." The curtain goes up at 8:15 on a look at telephone dating and other ways of making electronic connections in this frenetic decade of ours. Performances are also set for April 13, 14 and 15. Tickets are $10, $8 for senior citizens and $5 for students.

The following week will begin with a duet in Loudis Hall featuring Marcy Rosen, cellist, and Christine Delbeau, pianist, on Monday, April 10. On the program, works by Beethoven and Brahms. Admission is free.

Another free offering at Loudis comes on Wednesday, April 12. Robert J. Streckfuss will conduct the 12th annual University of Delaware Student Concerto Concert. Performing will be winners of the 1995 Student Concerto Competition with a symphony orchestra composed of professionals from major regional orchestras. The downbeat is scheduled for 8 p.m.

The University's Professional Theater Training Program will begin the run of William Inge's "Picnic" on Wednesday, April 19, at 8 p.m. and continue the run on April 20, 23, 29 and a 12:30 matinee on Sunday, April 30. "Picnic" is an American stage classic and was later made into a motion picture. The plot ignites in a small town when a handsome, mysterious stranger arrives and eventually goes to a town picnic. Prices range from $10 to $13 depending on the day of the performance.

Theater of a different kind, a one man show, will hold forth Friday, April 21, at 8 p.m. on the stage of Mitchell Hall. John Amos, perhaps known best for his portrayal of the adult Kunta Kinte in "Roots," will present "Haley's Comet." Amos has been touring the country with the show he wrote about an 87 year old man who is sharing his life experiences with the famous comet. In this performance, the author-actor takes on the role of several compelling characters. He will repeat "Haley's Comet" on April 19 and 20. Tickets are $18, $13 for senior citizens and $10 for students.

Shakespeare's "Richard III" will be front and center in the Hartshorn Hall Theater April 26 and 27 at 7:30 p.m. and on April 29 at 12:30 p.m. It is a presentation of the University of Delaware's Professional Theater Training Program. This play has all those things which make going to the theater so much fun — corruption, murder, passion, villainy, etc. Whether you are hearing about "...the winter of our discontent..." for the first or fiftieth time, it does stir the emotions. Tickets range from $10 to $12 depending on the day of the performance you choose.

Opera hasn't been overlooked either. The U. of D. Opera Workshop under the direction of Frank Evans and Marie Robinson, both members of the music faculty, will present scenes from three centuries of opera Friday, April 28, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 30, at 3 p.m. in Loudis Recital Hall. Admission is $5.

By the way, as with all university offerings, there are discounts for faculty and staff as well as students.

There should be enough there to keep you involved with the arts for a while. I hope you will be able to enjoy some, or all, of them.

YWCA offers programs

By TONJA CASTANEDA
 NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

IN ONE HUNDRED YEARS, the methods have changed but the goal is still the same for the New Castle County YWCA.

In 1896, the YWCA provided a place for women to make money by selling baked goods and handicrafts. Today, the organization continues working with women to help them enhance their careers.

Historically at the Newark YWCA, fitness and child care programs have been offered but currently the local branch is expanding to offer several new free programs.

One program, called Women Achieving New Directions (WAND), helps lower income single working mothers make good career decisions and earn more money.

The other new programs are: Working Capital Delaware for local self-employed business leaders and Centers for Homeownership, to help people qualify to become first-time homeowners.

"We're excited about these new programs," said Ruth Sokolowski, director of the New Castle County YWCA. "These programs meet special needs in the community which help women become economically self-sufficient and gain financial independence."

WAND is for single mothers working in lower wage jobs. The program is designed to help women develop skills needed to boost earning power. "It's not a problem of a glass ceiling but a problem of the sticky floor," said Mary Dupont, director of the women's center for economic options. "These women have been passed over in the market place."

Newark resident Dot Wheat, mother of five children, is currently enrolled in WAND. She said she enrolled in the eight-week classes to get back on a career track. "I left the work force to raise my children,"

Wheat said. "Now I've been under-employed so I could spend more time with my children."

Melissa Bailey of Newark is raising her 10-month-old daughter by herself. "I'm hoping to get on track in my field and advance as a culinary worker," she said.

Newarker Kim Rogers wants to upgrade her career. "I'm not making enough to support my three kids," Rogers said. She said she currently works as a secretary for the state and wants a new job because she is a seasonal employee.

Small business owners can gain networking opportunities in the Working Capital Delaware program. The program helps small business owners access credit and small business loans. The requirement to be in this program is to be a self-employed business owner in Newark or want to start your own business locally.

Dupont said she wants to focus the effort in a specialized area to see a lot of business growth in a specific area such as Main Street.

Working Capital information meetings will be held March 30 at 10 a.m. and April 6 at 7 p.m. Both meetings will be held at the Newark YWCA.

The Centers for homeownership program is to help first-time home buyers be financially ready for the commitment.

"This program is designed for anybody who someday wants to buy a home," said Alice Walker, director for centers for home ownership. Walker said the program is individualized for each person and lasts from a 12 to 18 months.

She said the process includes setting household budgets, working to resolve past credit problems, helping find a real estate agent, selecting the right lender and going through the mortgage and closing process with participants.

For more information on these new programs at the Newark YWCA, call 368-9173.

► METTS, from 1A

school board, administrative staff, business manager, principals and parents have worked together.

Metts said when she came to the Christina School District it was a critical time financially. "We had to cut $2 million out of the budget to meet payroll," she said.

Now a new budget procedure has been set, an outside auditor has assessed the district's finances and a citizen's financial advisory committee is set up.

"We now monitor our cash on a monthly basis, like balancing a checkbook," Metts said. "We look at what we can afford to do at this time (before deciding to do it)."

"Being the twelfth largest employer in the state," Metts said, "this is big business." She said Christina has an annual budget of about $117 million.

Christina, said, also has the largest transportation system and one of the largest food services in the state. "It's about children and education but the district has to be run like a business," Metts said.

Metts' other accomplishments include increasing school building budgets 5 percent or more the past five years. She said this translates into the schools having more money for paper, workbooks and supplies.

She has worked to replace textbooks, starting with math books across the board from kindergarten to grade 12.

"When I first came to the district in 1990 a group of teachers showed me a book still being used, which I used to teach the last time I was in the classroom (1978)," Metts said.

Next, she said, language arts and social studies books will be replaced.

Metts is also pleased that the recent bond referendum passed for money to renovate the community sees the big picture," she said, because if maintenance is put off, it costs more money.

She is also glad to work with the teacher's union with win-win negotiations. "We now work on common problems and don't have confrontational negotiations," she said. Metts said teachers and staff recently applied for a $1 million staff development grant together.

For the future of the district, Metts' vision is to "be the best school district in the nation, both academically and with good discipline." She said she wants Christina to be competitive with private schools and wants parents to feel it is their school district.

"I'm pretty optimistic that we can get there," Metts said. "I've turned down offers from other districts because I believe the vision I have, can be completed."

NPA vacancies yet to be filled

► PARKING, from 1A

have yet to be filled," stated Puglisi. "I know it takes a while with new members coming on the board, but it should have been done before now."

The intent behind creating the new positions, according to Puglisi, was to allow for more input into NPA decisions, with a special focus on the business community.

"Due to the type of decisions and budget that were being considered, the board felt that we needed more input and a voice from the business community," reported Puglisi. "If these positions had been filled earlier, some of the traffic problems that now exist may have been avoided."

It is expected that with a business perspective added to the authority that some relief may come to the traffic and parking problems plaguing Main Street.

"There have been Business Association members on the board in the past," said Parking Authority Director Bob Whitman. "It is not any intent that there are not any serving at this time. It's always good to have a member of the business community serve on the parking authority."

With the suggestion officially presented to the Newark City Council the process of finding citizens to fill the open positions has begun.

"I've talked with the mayor a couple of times," acknowledged the president of the NBA John Wisniewski, "and I've given him a short list of names. As far as I know he has a short list of his own and those people are now being approached about the situation before it is decided who will be nominated."

"It would be a good idea to include some involvement from Main Street and the businesses that see the problems everyday," concluded Wisniewski. "It's definitely a perspective that is needed."

Although the mayor fully intends to appoint two more members of the authority, with at least one of those being filled by a business representative, there are still some factions that are not positive that the move will actually take place. "These are only a couple of optional positions," reminded Whitman "and the authority is comfortable with only five members. So this is far from definite."

Concern about parking downtown increased recently in a series of meetings.

At a two-day fact-finding session here with representatives of the Washington, D.C.-based National Main Street Center, Newark businesspeople and others agreed that parking or at least the perception of a lack of parking downtown is a major concern.

The leadership of the NBA, in a series of stories in the Newark Post, complained that the parking authority board was "out of touch" with local business operators and their concerns.

Earlier this year, NBA leaders visited a parking authority board meeting to request better signage downtown and increased attention and action to the business operators' concerns.

Proactive residents keep Kells as they want it

► NEIGHBORHOOD, from 1A

ing to preserve the character of their neighborhood," said Newark Police Chief William Hogan. He said the neighborhood works closely with the police department when there are issues, where police can enforce laws to solve the problem.

Residents not only work with police, but get involved when a house in this community is for sale. Residents have sent letters to real estate agents to inform them about the Kells Avenue community.

Specifically, they are promoting the area as a great place to live and are working for homes to be sold to single families.

A letter to one local realtor in part said, "Those of us who have lived here ten years or more - most of us, by the way - find it a most distinctive, remarkable and attractive place to live."

The letter goes on describing the demographics of the neighborhood and how a number of homeowners have renovated and added on to their homes intending to stay here.

"We work hard to communicate our concerns to real estate agents and people selling their houses," said Peter Weil, a Kells resident since 1971.

While there has been talk about resident's selling their homes in Kells Avenue putting in writing the property must continue to stay owner-occupied after a sale, this is not popular because the property deed has to be restricted.

Kells neighbors do not stop at getting outside help. They expect support in this effort to come from people residing there. A code of expectations for residents, which was distributed a few years ago, is currently being updated.

The rough draft of this includes respect for the rights of neighbors to peace and safety, using common sense and courtesy if behavior will affect another neighbor and being attentive to noise levels so as not to obtrude on neighbors.

The document also includes respect to property lines, maintaining properties to reflect pride in ownership and observing parking etiquette.

Twelve-year-resident Lloyd Kline said about 90 percent of the homes are owner-occupied. He said some houses are being rented by university students and business professionals.

Residents of Kells Avenue have not created a formal civic association and most feel their system of informal communication works to their advantage.

"Our strong identity comes in part from shared concerns," said Weil. "We have a positive concern that the neighborhood stays a good neighborhood."

"It's the kind of neighborhood where you live your own life but care about other people you know in passing," Kline said.

"We are a variety of people oriented with the larger world," Weil said, "and we want a warm, solid community base to come home to."

Traffic concerns addressed in Maryland

► TRAFFIC, from 1A

The problem is broken down into the following categories:

■ Big trucks are coming through the area on their way north to Pennsylvania, or coming south to Interstate 95 or U.S. 40. Trucks on I-95 are also using Newark streets to bypass the Toll Plaza, costing the state millions of dollars in lost tolls and road repairs, Gardner said.

■ Commuters from Cecil County and Pennsylvania. Fifty percent of the Cecil County workforce is employed outside of the county, usually in Delaware, said Michael Pugh, economic consultant to the county.

■ Pedestrians and bicycles, particularly from the University of Delaware area. Most traffic signals in Newark aren't synchronized, slowing traffic unnecessarily.

Residents have also complained of heavy trucks and Maryland traffic on Old Baltimore Pike bypassing the Toll Plaza on I-95. Old Baltimore Pike crosses the Delaware state line into Maryland. It lies outside Newark town limits, but was recognized by Gardner as a problem.

The possible solutions being discussed and studied at this time are:

■ Synchronizing all the traffic signals to speed traffic through

Main Street and College Avenue (Del. 896) are state roads and lights can't be adjusted very easily, Gardner said.

■ Extend Del. 4 into a bypass connecting Del. 273 and Del. 896. The Christina Parkway, which extends Rt. 4 from 896 west to Elkton Road, was originally considered as a bypass to link with Rt. 273, but houses have been built through the area it would go through since that time.

■ Widen the sidewalks in Newark to keep pedestrians and bicycles off the streets.

■ Make portions of Elkton and New London roads, Main Street and Delaware Avenue open to two-way traffic.

■ Extend Wyoming Road from Library Avenue east to Marrows Road.

■ Provide rail service to Wilmington and Philadelphia with park and ride stations in Cecil County and the Newark area to alleviate traffic passing through Newark to I-95.

"Getting around Newark has always been a problem," said Clifford Vannoy, an Elkton resident and candidate in last fall's county commissioner race who attended the meeting. Vannoy worked as a crane operator in New Castle County for 35 years and has driven extensively through the area.

The city needs to focus on immediate solutions, Vannoy said.

Bear PO to open

► POST OFFICE, from 1A

nel. The location of the new Bear post office is still unknown as the bidding and site selection process grinds on.

Cataldi says that bids on land along the Route 40 corridor closed on March 9 and final site selection is expected within 60 days. Decisions on the bids are made at Post Office Facilities Services in New Jersey.

A new 29,900 sq. ft. post office is still scheduled to open in Bear by September 1996.

Ideas on Traffic Congestion

I favor routing traffic around Newark. However, City Council may not have the power to force this issue. We need to focus on what can be accomplished. Items such as synchronizing traffic lights on main traveled routes; increasing safety by increasing lighting on our streets & higher definition for bike and walking paths; upgrade and make available public bus and rail transportation services from Newark to Wilm., Phila., and to Elkton, and Baltimore, MD. These are a few ideas. I welcome your suggestions and ideas. Contact me @ 366-8022 day, 368-9753 eve.

The movements are painstakingly graceful. The beauty of the fluidity is like ballet, and the flexibility rivals gymnastics. In China, people of all ages practice Tai Chi, and a few hundred local residents had an opportunity to enjoy this and other martial arts events on Sunday at the Carpenter Sports Building.

While the uniformed may view events like Tai Chi as peaceful, and even the informed refer to Wushu-Kung fu as a soft martial art, most of these skills can be escalated into deadly forms of self-defense.

The recently established United States of America Wushu-Kung fu Federation (USAWKF) sanctioned this first-ever Delaware State Tournament, which was co-sponsored by the Delaware Karate/Kung fu Academy (DKKA) and the University of Delaware Chinese Martial Arts Club.

Michael Nichols, a freshman at Newark High, is learning Tai Chi at DKKA, but he prefers the events of Traditional Weapons and Contemporary Wushu. Nichols placed first in those Senior defenseman Mike Joyce celebrates a goal during Delaware's 23-2 romp over Fairfield on Saturday in a nonconference lacrosse game.

Senior attacker sets assist record

By CHUCK PIERSON

NEWARK POST SPORTS WRITER

Like fine wine, All-Americans just seem to get better.

That's good news for Delaware lacrosse as Anthony DiMarzo, the Blue Hen All-American continues to improve and hopes to lead the Hens to the NCAA playoffs. DiMarzo is one of only four seniors on a very young but highly talented, nationally ranked squad.

On Saturday against Fairfield College, he combined 2 goals with 8 assists to become Delaware's all time assist leader. His 125 lifetime assists broke the old mark of 124 set by Rich Mills in 1977. DiMarzo took the record in stride. "I don't think it has really set in yet, though I was kind of excited when it first happened," he said. "I'm sure it will in a couple of days, when I have time to think about it."

The 18th ranked Blue Hens evened their record at 2-2 with the defeat of a totally out-manned Fairfield College. The Hens scored 4 goals in a 53-second span of the first period and romped to a 23-2 victory. The win was their largest margin of victory since 1983, when they battered Lehigh 26-4.

Delaware got goals from 12 different players with six of those players scoring on feeds from DiMarzo. Senior Captain Brad Glowaki scored a career-high six goals including three that were unassisted. Freshman Kevin Gattie added three goals of his own while Bill Crotty, Chris Mach and Roger Jordan each scored twice. Newark native Jason Beaulieu added a goal and an assist. Pat Gately added two assists and a goal.

The win helped Delaware rebound from a rough start after it lost a 10-9 heartbreaker to 20th ranked Yale and then suffered their first-ever North Atlantic Conference defeat at the hands of 14th ranked Hofstra.

The Hens have six ranked teams left on their schedule and a couple of teams that may be ranked by game time. Games of particular importance are home games on April 1 against Rutgers and on April 8 against 6th ranked Towson St. On April 26, in a night game at Glasgow High School, they host defending national champion and currently 4th ranked Princeton.

Along with DiMarzo and Glowaki, the only other seniors on the team are Captain Jason DeCarlo and defender Mike Joyce. Another senior, Chris Crotty would have added to the team strength, but was forced to redshirt after suffering a knee injury.

Even with a team that was hurt by graduation, Coach Bob Shillinglaw shows confidence.

"Our guys were really excited just from the way they played Saturday and we'd like to continue that kind of performance," he said. "We've got some pretty good players that are freshman and sophomores that have seen a lot of playing time. Mark Cornes has really come on very well. He was player of the year in the state of Maryland."

The youth on the defensive end of the field doesn't bother DiMarzo.

"Our defense may be better than last year in the fact that they can push the ball for us on offense," DiMarzo said. "I spend most of my time behind the goal trying to set them up rather than me shooting."

Blue Hens bomb UConn, take two

By JOHN HOLOWKA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

ANDRE DUFFIE and Brian August are quickly adding up to a winning equation.

The freshmen figured in all of Delaware's runs to help the Blue Hens blank defending Big East champion Connecticut 3-0 on Saturday in nonconference baseball game at oft-times blustery and chilly Delaware Diamond.

Duffie, a graduate of Christiana High, hit 2-for-3 including a double in the sixth inning and came home on Dan Hammer's base hit to right field with what turned out to be the winning run. August, from St. Mark's, knocked in Delaware's second run with a double and scored the Hens' final run on Ethan Jack's single in the seventh.

"I just relaxed today and waited on the ball," Duffie said. "In the early season I have trouble waiting and I try to anticipate. So I'm letting the ball come to me and everything came out well."

Left fielder Duffie was an all-state selection in 1994 and hit .475 with five triples and 16 RBI for the Vikings. He walked his first at-bat, singled his second and was stranded at third and then uncorked a screaming double down the right-field line for Delaware's first extra base hit.

"It was a 2-0 up-and-in fast ball; I was just sitting on it," Duffie said. "I got lucky and it was there. Indoors the pitching seems a bit faster and when I anticipate the ball's not there, but outside I think it's slower. We've been practicing for about a week, week-and-a-half outside so I'm getting used to it."

Senior Chris Schnur from Butler, Pa., hurled a seven-hit shutout and recorded his first win of the season (1-3). Schnur went the distance, struck out eight and gave up two walks. He set the Huskies down in order in six innings and didn't allow a runner past second from the fourth inning, when he pitched out of a man-on-second-and-third jam.

"Our pitching has been keeping us in all our games," said shortstop August. "Curt pitched a good game. We got some clutch hits here and there. There's a big difference between college and high school. The pitching's better, you see a lot more sliders and everything; you have to pick your spots."

August played for the state champion Spartans last year and was selected by the Baltimore Orioles in the 1994 June draft. He was a two-time all-state and three-time All-Catholic selection and hit .473 with 20 RBI as a senior.

August's RBI-double over the centerfielder's head scored Troy O'Neal (A.I. du Pont), who had walked and gave Schnur some leeway. August's shot chased UConn starter Jeff Velez (1-1) and Jack's base hit off reliever Chet Kasper scored August.

The Huskies, that play the regular season in the Big East, used three pitchers that surrendered six hits and six walks.

"Every game is the same," said August, looking ahead to the conference opener. "You go in there focused and ready to hit. Our pitching is going to be there and all we have to do is hit and we'll come out winners."

Co-captain Curt Schnur hurled a seven-hit shutout to help the Blue Hens beat Connecticut on Saturday at Delaware Diamond. Delaware also beat UConn 2-0 on Sunday.

Delaware swept the weekend series against Connecticut by shutting out the Huskies 2-0 on Sunday at Delaware Diamond.

Adam Lamanteer, a transfer from Wilmington College, struck out a career-high 12 batters and held UConn scoreless through eight innings before being relieved by Scott Gellert, a fellow Millville High (N.J.) graduate.

Christiana High graduate Andre Duffie scored the Blue Hens' first run in the fourth off an RBI ground out by Cliff Brumbaugh. The Hens scored an insurance run in the sixth when Dan Hammer singled home Courtney Batts, who walked two batters earlier.

Following the weekend's games against UConn, Delaware lowered its ERA to 2.13.

But this year coach has got me a little more in a role of actually going to the goal and taking the shot when I would have passed."

The result is 14 goals in four games.

"The thing about Anthony is that he has such good vision, he makes other players look good," Shillinglaw said. "If he continues at the pace he's at, he has a shot at breaking the career scoring record of Randy Powers. Powers was the best player I ever coached, he was just awesome, and Anthony is in that category."

Shillinglaw commented on the shortage of Delaware natives on his team with the simple fact that the state is just beginning to establish the programs needed to develop talent. There are presently six teams throughout the state that concentrate on grades 5-6 and 7-8. With the aid of people such as Caesar Rodney football coach John Coveleski, who runs the Dover program, the programs hope to encourage more kids to enter the sport and establishing feeder systems.

Newark has a program with which Shillinglaw helps.

"If I were a football coach I would send my players out here," he said. "It's a great off-season thing for football players because of the contact and the footwork involved."

Anthony DiMarzo had three goals and six assists to help the Blue Hens beat Hartford 15-6 on Tuesday. DiMarzo set the UD all-time record for assists on Saturday against Fairfield. He currently has 131 assists.

Cox on USA team

Newark resident and St. Mark's junior Erin Cox has been named to the 1995 USA Under-16 Select field hockey team.

Cox, who has started on the Spartan varsity for the past two years, will be part of the first United States team to compete internationally on this level. The squad is scheduled to travel to the Netherlands for the Sixth International Easter Field Hockey Tournament in April.

Team members were chosen following two days of trials last December in Piscataway, N.J. and will compete in tournaments at Northeastern University and against club teams in England before flying to Europe.

Skaters eye nationals

Three Delaware ice skating teams representing the University of Delaware Figure Skating Club qualified for the National Precision Championships to be held in San Diego on April 7 and 8.

The Delaware Diamonds finished second out of four teams in the adult open division, Skating Edge placed third of seven in the novice class and the Precisionaires were awarded a bye in the senior division of four teams.

Qualifying teams had to place in the top four of their respective divisions at the Eastern Precision Championships held in February in Fitchburg, Mass. The Blade Runners placed fifth out of 15 teams in the intermediate division and are alternates while the Gold Blades placed eighth in a field of nine in the teen introductory division that does not have a national competition. This is the sixth consecutive appearance at the national competition for the Delaware Diamonds.

►KUNG FU from 1B

events on Sunday.

"Tai Chi is harder for young people, because the movements are so slow," said Nichols, who played soccer for seven or eight years before getting interested in Kung Fu. All other sports are played at a fast pace, which makes Tai Chi difficult for a younger person to adapt to, according to Nichols.

Unlike learning how to use a hammer or throw a football, learning martial arts is more akin to mastering the piano whereby the student learns everything slowly — one note at a time.

There have only been two World Championship Tournaments in Wushu-Kung fu to date, which were held in Beijing in 1991 and Malaysia in 1993.

The 1995 edition will be at Baltimore Arena during the week of Aug. 16. That international event will include two days of invitational competition, with the finalists demonstrating their skills at the four-day championship meet Aug. 19-22.

Tim Niiler, chairman of the Delaware Association USAWKF and Sunday's tournament director, recently competed in Dallas for a spot on the U.S. team; however, his workload as a graduate student in Biomechanics and Movement Sciences at the University of Delaware and teaching at DKKK several days a week limited his practice to two events.

"Most people were competing in three events," said Niiler. Because a back-up team is always selected, it is important to enter as many events as possible. It is possible to earn the highest score in two events and still miss placement because another competitor received good scores in several events, according to Niiler.

Black belt instructor Niiler, who plans to go into research to make sports safer, points out that serious injuries are frequent. "The top traditional forms person in this country recently pulled his Achilles tendon," he said, noting that the problem was probably caused by overtraining. The jumps and landings are particularly troublesome, he said.

There have been several incidents in the broadsword event where a competitor has cut off his own nose, he noted.

Possibly the best description of these martial arts was given by Dianne Nichols, Michael's mother: "The strength, agility, and split-second timing, required in karate, are incorporated in flowing athletic forms."

Michael adds, "I like this better than the 'hard' style of martial arts, because it's more fluid and flexible." He accepts WushuKungfu as a sport, but said he looks forward to also learning the fighting aspect.

King chosen All-American

Newark graduate Debbie King

Debbie King, a graduate of Newark High and a member of the Yellowjackets' state championship swimming team, earned All-American and All-North Coast Athletic Conference honors for the third straight year at The College of Wooster, Ohio.

King, a junior co-captain, set a school record in the 200-yard breaststroke at the NCAA Championship Meet with a time of 2:24.30. Her top performances at nationals included first place in both the 200-yard and 400-yard individual medleys.

"Debbie had another great year," said Wooster Head Coach Keith Beckett. "She proved once again that she is one of the top swimmers in the nation."

Wooster, an independent liberal arts school with a coed enrollment of approximately 1,700, finished the season 7-2 in dual meets and placed fourth in the NCAC Championship Meet and 15th in the NCAA Division III national championships.

Trout season opens April 1

Christopher Demmer, 15, of West Main Street is looking forward to his first spring of fly fishing. He began practicing on White Clay Creek in January of this year.

By RICK ELLER

NEWARK POST OUTDOORS WRITER

IT'S 7:23 in the morning, you check your watch for the zillionth time, your mouth is dry and there is a slight tremble in your hands. Looking to your left you see 30 other anglers whispering, tying their rigs, and jockeying for position in the slowly moving waters of your "secret pool." The adrenaline starts to flow as you check the time once again and realize the time has come. It's 7:30, and the official 1995 Trout season has just begun.

I started fishing the White Clay Creek on opening day four years ago and have been hooked on trout fishing ever since. This has led to many hours of wandering the creek and experimenting with different methods to trick the wily trout. While I am not an expert, I believe I've collected enough information to help beginning trout angler to fill their stringers and later their stomachs with freshly grilled trout. I'm told there are a few tastier treats than a freshly grilled rainbow trout, but I haven't found them. Read on and you also can enjoy a great fishing experience and a fine meal on the same day.

Location: The White Clay Creek from the Pennsylvania line to the downstream side of the Curtis Mill dam. This is an easily accessible creek that offers many different scenarios in which to fish for trout. There is fast moving water throughout this stretch, but there are also many very nice deep pools with slow currents flowing through them. This is idea for trout fishing.

Equipment: I highly recommend for first-timers an ultra-light medium action spin-casting rod (ideally 4-foot to 6-foot long) and a small spin-casting reel capable of handling 2 to 8 lb. test line. I personally use 6 lb. ultra-thin line because it's strong yet looks like 2 lb. test, making it that much harder for the fish to see.

You will need a stringer to hold your fish. These are available in many shapes and sizes and most will work just fine. Be sure to secure your stringer or you will not be the first one to watch your days catch drift away forever lost.

Waders are not essential but certainly a must if you want to get serious. Again there is a wide selection on the market and most will work just fine. Prices range from around $30 to $100 and up. Make sure you buy a good set of suspenders or you will spend the day fixing your cheap ones. If you already have a pair of waders, check for leaks and repair them or you will be in for one of your coldest experiences.

Bait, Lures and Rigs: There are hundreds of different types of bait to use such as night crawlers, meal worms, maggots, corn, cheese, salmon eggs, and many others. Power Bait, a brand name available where fishing equipment is sold, now comes in more shapes and colors than anything else I can think of and as far as I can tell they all work. Don't leave home without it.

My favorite method for fishing trout is with lures although I have caught my share with the different types of bait available. Again the types and styles are limitless and I suggest experimenting to find what works best for you. A couple of my favorites: any type of small spinner (3/8 oz.), small rubber minnows, tiny spoons and small crank-bait.

To rig your line with bait, the general method is to tie a small hook at the end of the line and to place a small split-shot sinker 8 to 10 inches above the hook. With spinners and lures, simply tie them to the end of your line and cast away. Be sure after every third cast or so to just hold your lure above the water with about 3 feet of line out and let it untwist. If you don't do this you're looking for tangles and serious aggravation.

Basically a first-timer should use the old standard hook-and-sinker method to have a good chance of limiting out. Just take your hook and thread or squeeze and mold your bait on the hook.

Methods: Stand on the inside part of a creek bend, cast at a slightly upstream angle and let your bait fall slowly to the bottom. To determine what size split-shot to use, your split-shot should lightly bounce along the bottom with your bait floating above it. This keeps the bait down where the fish are but keeps it from being hung up too often. Hang ups are a part of trout fishing, so get used to it.

With spinners and spoons I generally use the same method as above except with a little more versatility. On retrieval I'll change direction, pace, jig them up and down or anything else I can think of. Again experiment.

Fishing the creek can be a great experience for young and old. Pack up the family or just wander down for a solitary moment and soak up the atmosphere of opening day.

Opening Day Hints: Trout fishing in the White Clay Creek starts at the Pennsylvania line and ends on the downstream side of the Curtis Mill Rd. (Rt. 72) dam. Keep in mind that starting from a point 25 yards upstream of Thompsons Bridge to the Pennsylvania state line is designated fly fishing only.

Park Superintendent Nick McFadden suggests Thompsons Bridge, Hopkins Bridge, and the Pump House on Creek Road as a few popular hot spots that bear checking out.

McFadden also suggests that with the arrival of potentially 2,000 to 3,000 anglers fishing the creek, parking is a concern with litter being the largest problem. Please carry out what you bring with you and maybe carry out a little extra. This way we can keep the creek as pristine as possible for years to come.

Each year Delaware's freshwater trout program stocks the creek with fish that are purchased from commercial hatcheries. Fees collected from trout stamp sales are used to pay for the trout making it a totally self supporting program. Since Delaware stream temperatures are not ideal for a trout's survival and they do not reproduce, the fish that are stocked are meant to be taken.

This year 1,000 additional pounds of trout will be stocked.

In spite of the ongoing baseball strike, Nate Reed, a college-bound, Distinguished Honor Roll senior at Hodgson, recently had his own personal moment with one of the game's greatest players.

And his long-anticipated meeting was apparently timed perfectly, because the prolonged strike had almost turned all of Nate's interest elsewhere.

Also, ever since Nate enjoyed the special privilege of being a guest in the Chicago White Sox dugout at an Orioles game in July of 1992 his attitude toward the game's "greatest catcher" — Carlton Fisk — had lost intensity.

"I'll never forget this day!"

NATE REED

HODGSON HONOR STUDENT

When Nate sat in the dugout at that Orioles game three summers ago, where he met and was befriended by several Chicago White Sox players, his attitude toward his lifelong baseball idol was tarnished. For unexplained reasons, Fisk never stepped into the dugout during the hour-long, pregame practice.

Nate's personalized poster, made by the same friend who set up the trip, was signed by several White Sox players, but the special tribute to Fisk was never seen by the Hall Of Fame-bound catcher. After watching the seasoned Fisk steal a base, hit a long ball that nearly cleared the 410-foot marker, as Chicago rolled on to whip the Orioles 8-something, Nate left Camden Yards with his poster void of any proof he ever got close to Fisk.

On the long walk back to the parking lot, Nate philosophized, "I can't complain. I did something most kids can only dream about. I was in the dugout! And I met a lot of players, and they were all real nice to me."

But anyone could see that the hurt was there. In the months to follow, Nate's discussion of Fisk waned to near nonexistence. And talk of his collection, as well as the desire to attend baseball card shows to add to his large number of Fisk cards that were always "undervalued" in Nate's opinion, gradually slipped on this National Honor Society member's list of priorities.

After Fisk was suddenly let go by the White Sox, the catcher seemed to slip into seclusion.

Fisk was advertised to appear at a baseball card show recently in East Rutherford, N. J., Nate's friend decided to contact the show's promoter, Harvey Brandwein, who was optimistic about Fisk's reliability to appear, but he couldn't guarantee a private meeting. Regardless, a trip to North Jersey was planned.

Nate didn't know Fisk was appearing anywhere. He agreed to go to the show with his friend simply because he hadn't been to one for a long time. Also, Nate's friend said he didn't feel like making the trip by himself.

Nate's mother had already assisted by surreptitiously spiriting the special poster from its storage place, and it was safely hidden in the trunk of the friend's car. When they arrived at the show, Nate's friend presented Nate with the poster and Nate knew what was happening.

Nate was introduced to Fisk by Brandwein, and his friend (at Nate's request) briefly recounted the missed opportunity at the Orioles game. Then the poster was shown to Fisk.

Later, Nate recalled, "It's only positive thoughts two-and-a-half years after the first opportunity to meet [Fisk]...and he signed my poster of his own free will!"

"You could tell how much power he possesses. But, you could also see that he could be a very nice, gentle guy," Reed said.

"As a baseball player, I know who he is. Now that I've seen the other side of this guy I've always looked up to, I know he's a real nice guy. I respect that. I'll never forget this day!"

Phoenix Wizards sign Keegan girls go 1-1-1

Tim Keegan, a standout scorer at Georgetown University, has signed with the Delaware Wizards for the 1995 soccer season.

Keegan, from Woodbury Heights, N.J., is the Hoya's second leading scorer in history and was selected All-Big East three times and All-South Atlantic Region All-American. Keegan is the leading scorer in Gateway regional High School (N.J.) history.

Kirkwood Phoenix Under-14 girls won one game, lost one and tied another to open their season at the Jefferson Cup Soccer Tournament in Richmond, Va.

The Phoenix started with a scoreless tie against the Downingtown Lightning and then lost 2-0 to the Glyndon (Md.) Thunderbolts.

The girls finished with a 2-1 victory over Potomac.

Striker Beth Belanger took a pass from Laura Godsey and put a shot in from 10 yards out with seven minutes left in the first half. Lauren Sciochetti scored the second goal off assists from Katie Lashomb and Jill Biggs.

Netminders Christy Ganc and Suzie Grech combined for the shutout.

Polar bears take plunge for Special Olympics

By RON PEEL

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Three Newark businessmen plunged into the frigid Atlantic Ocean February 5 as part of a polar bear swim to settle an issue of pride, and to benefit the Delaware chapter of the Special Olympics.

Paul Beecher, vice president of Cameras Etc., along with Ed Edge and John Fletcher of Copy Maven turned a one day event to raise money for a worthy cause into a personal contest to see who could raise the most money and endure the icy water the longest.

The Copy Maven employees "caught wind" of Beecher's four-year involvement in the event and decided to join the expedition.

"It wasn't long before Paul came in running his mouth about how much money he could raise and how long he was going to stay in the water," joked Fletcher. "That was the start of the friendly competition that developed."

The three were able to raise nearly $1200 for the charity with Beecher garnering almost $800 by himself. Donations ranged from customers who donated $1 to a hundred dollar donation by a Camera's Etc. customer.

"I think we knew we were going to lose going in," said Edge of the differential in funds raised "because of sheer business flow we couldn't compete. Although it should be noted that we all finished in the top five percent of people who raised money for the cause."

The fact that three professionals from Main St. stores would join in such an event shows just how important the community is to Main St. and how important Main St. is to the community.

Diving into 32 degree water with windchill on the beach reading 18 below is not something people do without a reason.

"I won hands down," Beecher reported after the event "and we were all happy to help out a good cause and add a little excitement by turning it into a friendly competition."
