Faculty To Send Resolutions To President; Also To Delaware's Representatives In Senate

First Urges Entrance To World Court And Second Favors Senate Ratification Of Kellogg-Briand Pact

At a recent meeting of the faculty of Delaware College, the following resolution was passed. This resolution will be sent to President Coolidge as soon as the faculty of the Women's College pass favorably on it.

Resolved, That the Faculty of Delaware College in the University of Delaware congratulates the President of the United States upon his recent decision to resume negotiations in the matter of the entrance of the United States in the World Court. It is the sincere hope of the Faculty that the laudable efforts of Mr. Coolidge in bringing about this salutary step in the interest of peace among nations may be crowned with eminent success. Any prolonged failure on the part of our country to participate fully and generously in such a body would foster suspicion of our national motives and actions in relation to other states. The presence of a representative of the United States in the World Court will inevitably strengthen that body, make it a powerful agent for international order and security. Moreover, by completing our adherence to the World Court the United States would confirm the intent of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact.

The following resolution will be sent to Delaware's representatives in the United States Senate—Senator Thomas F. Bayard, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.; Senator Daniel O. Hastings, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

Resolved, That the Faculty of Delaware College in the University of Delaware strongly urges upon the two senators from the State of Delaware the importance of their support of the ratification of the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy, which is now pending before the Senate. The immediate favorable action by the United States in this matter will not only redound to the credit of our country, but will greatly advance the substitution of the rule of reason for the rule of force in international relations.

Both resolutions are subject to the approval of the Women's College Faculty, which has not yet had the opportunity to pass on it. As soon as this is done the Resolutions will be sent as the resolution of the General Faculty of the University of Delaware.

The University of Delaware will meet Paul Garvine's Y team of Wilmington tomorrow night in a practice game. The Y quintet is expected to give the locals a stiff workout and help condition them for the University of Baltimore game, which will be played here on next Tuesday night. Little is known of the strength of the Baltimore team but it is thought that the Baltimore team will extend the locals to the limit.

The team has practiced faithfully for three weeks and is expected to be in top form for the season opener. Coach Joe Rothrock has been using five letter men as the varsity team in practices this week. The team has been composed of Hill and Barton forwards, Captain Jaquette center, Lecarpentier and Hugh Holt guards. This combination has been very impressive in the scrimmages, decisively outscoring and outplaying any opposition offered to them.

Coach Rothrock has been using Johnny Roman and Bill Shelday some with the varsity and apparently this pair of Freshmen will see considerable service with the varsity this winter. Both of them are smart and experienced basketball players and although the competition from letter men is rather tough both have given sterling accounts of themselves in the daily workouts.

Coach Rothrock will probably carry a varsity squad of twelve men this year. The seven letter men are almost certain to be retained while Toby Jones, Walt Green, Shelday and Roman are making strong bids for the squad.

W. C. D. Press Club Publishes New Paper

The First Number of "Pambo," New Literary Quarterly, Will Appear This Week

A new campus publication will make its appearance at Delaware this week. The Press Club of the Women's College is sponsoring this new venture. Its name is "Pambo," the name being derived from Browning's celebrated poem. There will be three issues between now and June. The Press Club includes as its members the following:

Mildred Phillips, Helen Stayton, Eleanor Edge, Edith Nunn, Edith Passmore, Rebecca Hobson, Elizabeth Beatty, Helen Elliott, Roslyn Cohen, Ethel Merritt, Ann Barclay, Charlotte Rambo, Margaret Middleton, Ann Walker, Dorothy Stanley, Sybil Young, Teresa Tehan, Adeline Dawson, Ruth Kastenhuber, Margaret Shallock, Mildred Fabian, Martha Stone and Dorothy Kraemer.

"Pambo" is a creation of inspiration. Bound within its covers are compositions reflecting the qualities of Browning's student who, upon entering college, determined to penetrate the depths of wisdom and to so live that he might be influenced by the highest ideals.

The name boasts no echo of sophistication. Under a definitive pen and a searching scrutiny come essays, articles and stories. As a sponsor of this literary whirl, Pambo is found looking back upon an inspired achievement.

Powys Speaks On Self Culture

College Hour Address Arouses Much Comment; Most Interesting Talk Of Year

The Student Body of the University of Delaware had the privilege, last Wednesday morning, of listening to one of the most interesting and forceful speakers in several years, according to the comment heard on every side since that time.

John Cooper Powys was a typical Englishman, even to the unpressed tweed suit and the Cambridge accent. His actions were energetic and forceful—he shook his head, bent over, walked around, waved his arms, pounded the table, and in general acted in the most approved politically oratorical manner. His lecture on "The Art of Self Culture" was interspersed with witticisms, with philosophical outbursts, and adjectival tirades. He forced the conclusion on those who were able to penetrate his London accent that self-culture should be attained at any cost. If you need leisure to satisfy your ideals, "chuck your job—to hell with your job."

He tells us that we should treat life like amateurs; that "We, as individuals, have the right to appropriate our own culture." According to Mr. Powys, "we should get the most out of life, no matter what anyone else thinks—we should wear what we jolly well please, say what we jolly well please, think what we jolly well please, and do what we deucedly well please."

He advances a few suggestions for the seeker after culture—in that "the real cultivated person never argues, never disputes; he whispers his conclusions;" and moreover, the real cultivated person seeks the society of fools, of idiots, of simpletons." He remarks, possibly for the benefit of the faculty, that the teacher who is not a dangerous teacher is not a good teacher.

And as for the attainment of that typical British air of utter indifference—"the American people are afraid to make asses of themselves—I have cultivated the unembarrassed, unconscious ease of a genuine aristocrat."

Mr. Powys closed his address with an appeal to his audience to read Wordsworth and Matthew Arnold, but above all, to read, day by day, the Oxford Book of Verse.

FRESHMAN ELECTED ASSISTANT MANAGER OF RIFLE TEAM

Benjamin Cohen was elected Assistant Manager of the rifle team at a meeting of the Rifle Club held Tuesday, December 11, at the rifle range. He filled the position formerly held by Kadel, who left college. Cohen, who will act as manager of the Freshman rifle team, has accepted a challenge for a meet with the Freshman team from the Carnegie Institute of Technology, to be held after the mid-year exams, and is arranging a series of meets with the Freshmen teams of other colleges.

DR. BENNER SPEAKS

Dr. Claude L. Benner, formerly head of the Department of Economics, University of Delaware, and now on leave with the Continental Insurance Company, spoke Thursday night at the monthly meeting of St. Thomas' Men's Club. His subject was "My Journey Through the West." The meeting was held in the Parish House at 7:45.

Druids Prepare For Big Annual Dance

To Be Held Immediately After Delaware-Lehigh Meet On Jan. 5

A Play in One Act
Characters—Yourself and Someone Else
Scene—Anywhere

"Dance?"
"Where? Where?"
"January 5, Old College. Druid dance. . . . And a red-hot affair with George Kelley's ten-piece band. Hot, huh?"

"Oh! The Druid dance. . . . After the Delaware-Lehigh swimming meet, Oh! . . . Will we dance. Ooo! ow!"

"Got a date? Well, get one, boy, for good babes are sure in demand on that P. M. You bet, she's hot. That's O. J. then. All set for the Druids. A big yell for the team!"

Finis
Author's note: Omission of the tax, was made. But to those interested it's $2.00; to those not interested any contribution above $5.00. Note also that the recurrent "hot" is a touch of realism.

The seventh annual Druid Dance will be held on January 5, immediately following the Delaware-Lehigh swimming meet. Tickets are in demand, and only a limited number of tickets are on sale. The definite conclusion could be no other than get your tickets early. The Druids ask that you get them before the Christmas holidays.

There will be novelties. "Joe" Moran, officiating on the decoration committee, promises some rare decorations. "Bill" Brown will act as head of the dance committee for other arrangements.

Members of the Lehigh and University of Delaware swimming teams; Druids from Bucknell, Penn State and Franklin and Marshall and patronesses will be the guests of the Delaware chapter of Druids on January 5.

PROF. MacDANIELS SPEAKS ON SOCIALISTIC SYSTEM

Interesting Discussions Mark Second Open Forum of Debate Club

Tuesday evening marked the second Open Forum of this season. As in the previous meeting, an interested audience gathered to take place in the discussion. The listeners were fortunate enough to hear once again Professor MacDaniels, who kindly gave an informal talk on "Socialism." While discussing this question, Mr. MacDaniels explained the Socialistic System in imaginary action, and he capably distinguished Bolshevism, Humanism and Socialism from each other.

Before carrying on very long with his speech, Professor MacDaniels was led astray and discussed the Revolution in Russia. This subject proved to be more than interesting. Soon the various governmental systems were discussed in regard to our own country. "Midst satirical and humorous remarks, a few heated arguments made a little headway."

Because the discussions were so interesting and had such a high educational value, those present were sorry that the meeting finally had to be adjourned, and they left with their brains packed full of new thoughts and ideas.

State Grange Meets In Old College; Governor Robinson Re-elected Master For Third Term

Annual Convention Of Delaware Grangers Held On Local Campus Ended On Thursday; Much Important Work Done

At the biennial election of officers of the State Grange, held Wednesday afternoon, Robert P. Robinson, Governor of the State of Delaware, was re-elected State Master for a third term. With one exception all other State officers were re-elected. This election was a part of the State Grange annual meeting, which was held at the University of Delaware, on invitation of Dr. Hullahen. The session convened Tuesday morning and closed Thursday afternoon. Memorial services were held Thursday morning for departed grangers.

Tuesday, the Grange went on record as favoring gradual elimination of all county highway departments, and the legislative committee was instructed to draft a bill to be presented to the next General Assembly.

Governor Robinson, in his recommendation for centralization of road control in Delaware, contended that with the construction and maintenance of the entire highway system of the commonwealth vested in one body, not only would the building of roads throughout the State be more efficiently coordinated and receive the benefit of State funds, insuring more rapid progress in their construction when needed, but taxation would be reduced through the taking over of the work of three county highway departments by a single State Highway Department.

The Governor was careful to point out that he would consider it unfeasible for the State to take over the control of every county road at one time, but that provisions should be made for the gradual assumption of control by the State Highway Department as circumstances surrounding the present operation of the county roads permit. Details will be worked out in due time, it was asserted.

Less expensive material than that now employed in the construction of secondary lateral roads was declared by the Governor as a way to materially reduce the cost of road building, releasing funds for the use of more frequented highways.

Tuesday night there was an interesting open meeting held in Wolf Hall, which is one of the social features of the annual session. A. Bailey Thomas, State lecturer, had arranged an interesting program for this meeting, which was presided over by Miss Emily Mitchell, of Hockessin, lady assistant steward of the State Grange.

Dr. Walter Hullahen, president of the University, extended cordial greetings to the visitors and an equally interesting (Continued on Page 4.)

Delaware Swimmers Meet Lehigh Soon

First Match Will Be Held January 5; Last Year's Varsity All Back With One Exception

The Delaware swimming team will open a hard schedule when they meet Lehigh in their own pool on January 5th. Our mermen took them over last year to the tune of 30 to 29, and Coach Weir anticipates a repetition of this victory by a more comfortable margin.

Nobis, high point gatherer of last season, is the only varsity man lost to the team, and with the aid of Sortman and Murray, two promising Freshmen from Wilmington High, the prospects are bright. Murray will probably see action in the fifty or the hundred, and Sortman cavorts with the divers.

Captain Taylor will be at his old post in the 440 and anchor in the relay. In the same event, ex-captains Reese and Reybold are also expected to shine, and with the fourth position to be filled by either Bill Brown or Hap Howell, the team is complete and powerful. "Champ" Brown and Howell are also supplying the adroit back-stroke.

The above-mentioned Reese and Reybold will enact their usual stellar roles in the 50 and 100 respectively, while the breast-stroke positions still hang in the balance with H. Fox, Mitch Smith, Milo Gerow, and M. Fox leading the field.

Tony Russo, veteran diver, will head the list of springboard artists, and with Sortman's assistance, should materially strengthen this department which has suffered since Boyer left school.

As a whole the team looks impressive, and they will need to be inasmuch as the schedule includes more talented opposition than ever before. Manager Rose has compiled the following schedule:

Jan. 5—Lehigh Newark
Jan. 19—Catholic U. (tentative) Newark
Feb. 16—Lafayette Newark
Feb. 21—U. of Virginia (tentative) Charlottesville
Feb. 23—William and Mary Williamsburg
Mar. 8—Franklin and Marshall Newark
Mar. 19—Temple Newark

Engineering Seniors See the Big City

Have Red Hot Time in Gotham; Also Visit Engineering Laboratories and Exhibits

On Wednesday, December 5, the Seniors of the Electrical and Mechanical Departments of the University, journeyed to New York City, where they inspected the latest developments in the Electrical and Mechanical fields.

In order to get an extra night in, one group of the students left Tuesday afternoon, while the remaining section left Newark on the seven thirty-five Wednesday morning. Upon arriving in New York at 11:30, they immediately went to the Manger Hotel on 7th avenue, at which place the entire body registered.

After lunch, everybody met at the Grand Central Palace, which is located at 47th street and Lexington avenue, to inspect the first floor of the building. The survey was most interesting to the Mechanical students as the displays mainly dealt with Power and Mechanical Engineering.

Thursday morning at 8:30, however, the Electrical Engineers traveled to the Laboratories of the Bell Telephone Company; and at the same time the Mechanical Engineers voyaged in taxis to several steam power plants, which were on the program to be inspected.

Puppets Establish Dramatic Precedent At Women's College

Delaware College Students Will Participate In Play Given By Senior Honorary Dramatic Society

An event quite epochal in dramatics at the University of Delaware will have its culmination on Friday evening, January 18, 1929. For the first time, in recorded history, a play will be given by the Women's College, under the auspices of the Puppets, Senior Honorary Dramatic Society with the male members of the cast conscripted from our own ranks.

Because of the inaugural feature of this play the Women's College is particularly anxious to see it succeed and as success promises repetition in the future—so should we.

The vehicle in preparation is "Mary the Third," by Miss Rachel Crothers. It is a charming little comedy in two prologues and three acts principally concerned with the much touted "Younger Generation," who discover that the "Older Generation" face just about the same problems as they themselves.

There is a slightly moralistic thread running through the play, but do not let this deter you, it is more than balanced.

The cast is one not new to dramatics and is quite aptly chosen, excellent performances by all are indicated. Miss Nora Bean Keely, of the Faculty, is directing. The players are:

Prologue, the First
Mary, the First. . . . Myrtle Simpler
William . . . . . Roger Holt
Prologue, the Second
Mary, the Second. . . . Myrtle Simpler
Robert . . . . . Roger Holt
Richard . . . . . Ross Ford
The Play

Footlights Club Will Present Three One-Act Plays

Casts Will Be Composed Entirely Of Underclassmen; Tryouts Immediately After Christmas

The Footlights Club, after long contemplation and pondering, has decided to present a set of three one-act plays shortly after the mid-year examinations. These plays, as in the past, will be chosen from a selected group of the very best plays of the type available, and it is expected that they will be well worth-while. The casts of these three plays will be drawn strictly from the Freshman and Sophomore classes, especially the Freshman class. The Footlights are on the lookout for men to carry on the work of the organization in ensuing years and so it is giving these productions that it may find out where the most talent lies and where the men may be found who are to be our Hemphens and Garriks in future years, when the noble class of 1930 has become an active group of the Alumni. The plays will, of course, be managed and produced by members of the Club abetted by members of the English Department of the Faculty. Tryouts will be held as soon as possible after the students return from the Christmas holidays, as the Footlights are anxious to have plenty of time in which to prepare their productions.

President de Valinger and Secretary Wilson have accepted the kind invitation of the Adas Kodesch Center to be present at the performance given on Sunday evening, December 16.

Frosh Defeat Juniors In Inter-Class Game

The Frosh defeated the Juniors in a bitterly fought inter-class league game, 27 to 21. Both teams were well organized. The Juniors, who have been the class champions for the past two years, fought all the way, and experienced great difficulty in breaking through the stubborn five-man defense which the Frosh presented. The score was in favor of the Frosh all through the game, although the Juniors stuck close behind them until the final few minutes of the game when the Frosh ran away with the Juniors.

Moon Worshipper

What I remember of the week, per High Heels,—the skating at St. Moritz,—the coffee at the Greeks,—dinner with Eugene O'Neill and Otto Kahn at the Blue Hen,—the girl in the one-piece suit at Deauville,—the races at Tia Juana,—the pack of Old Golds,—the eight o'clock class I attended,—the earthquake in Peru,—"Meaning No Offense" by John Riddel, known to his family and friends as Corey Ford. It is a series of parodies on popular moderns, the best probably being the one on Samuel Hoffenstein. No, the library doesn't have it.

But I promised you more form letters, if you remember, and you must remember if you are the conscientious follower of this column I'm sure you are, you conscientious follower of this column. Let us introduce a hypothetical girl into this thing and write her a few. Alright, now what shall we write her about? That's a bad suggestion, Kimble, too many people send the Review home, and some of them haven't warned their families against reading this, to say nothing of our customer in the W. C. D. To be really fundamental, suppose you have just learned that you are definitely scratched from her books, your status is nil and becoming nillier. She has told you as much in a few well chosen words and you wish to reply in the best usage or something.

"My Dear Phillips,
"Your very welcome letter received and perused with as much care as usual (Ha ha). Now I'd love to say, 'Well, my dear, you know your business better than I do, and though I am broken hearted, I want you to consider me always your friend, and an ever-present help in time of need. In short, let me be a brother to you.' But, to be as candid as you were, that doesn't even slightly resemble the way I feel about it. You know, old biscuit, you never did quite appreciate me, but you no doubt will begin any minute and I won't know about it. That's the real joke, he laughed, but under his painted face his heart was shattered, but the show must go on, it matter not how strait the gate, how charged with punishment the scroll, the show must go on.

Yes, he continued, wait until my name is the charmed word on the lips of the multitude, hailed from the rock-ribbed coast of Maine to the sunny slopes of California as the leading what-not,—you'll be sorry. But not soon enough,—I shall be as inaccessible as the stars at least.

Just for the sake of making the "beau geste" and things like that, I wish you as well as possible and hope you can overcome your inclination to stoutness.

I'll see you in my dreams some night after eating Welsh rarebit.

Remember me to the iceman.
Oscar."

And if that doesn't do the trick, she loves you.

PROMINENT ALUMNUS

WILL MANAGE PORT

J. Alexander Crothers, assistant general manager of the Wilmington Harbor Commission, has accepted the post of traffic manager of the South Jersey Port Commission and general manager of the Camden Marine Terminals.

Announcement of Mr. Crothers' acceptance was made by Upton S. Jeffreys, secretary of the commission, who said that Mr. Crothers will start to work December 31. He succeeds M. R. Beaman who resigned November 10, to become transportation head of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Crothers is familiar to many of the students of the University of Delaware. Graduated in 1916, "Alec" Crothers has always taken a lively interest in his Alma Mater and has been active in her behalf. He has been active in the Alumni Association, and for several years has been a member of the Athletic Council, representing the Alumni.

PHI KAPPA TAU

HOLDS INFORMAL

The Phi Kappa Tau informal dance, which was held last Saturday night, was very well attended, despite the inclement weather. It was a very colorful dance, and was enjoyed by all in attendance. The syncopation was furnished by George Kelly and his popular orchestra. The patronesses were: Mrs. Thomas F. Manns, Miss Beatrice Hartshorn, Miss Elizabeth Kelly, Mrs. C. A. McCue, and Mrs. Hubert Wright.

THE STATE GRANGE MEETING

The University has acted as host this week to the Delaware State Grange, which used Old College as its meeting place. The importance of this meeting should not be underrated by the students, since it brought visitors to the University from all over the state. Many residents of the lower counties who had never had occasion to visit the University before were present and we all hope that they were favorably impressed by the College and its students. Undoubtedly many Grangers left with a renewed interest in our school and its welfare.

Such a meeting is important at this time, since we should try to impress upon the largest possible number of people the needs of the University. Of these the most outstanding at present is the appropriation of enough money to finish the work on the Engineering Building. It will take less than a hundred thousand dollars to finish the structure and grade the land immediately surrounding it. The present appearance of the building is very unsatisfactory, and since it can be completed for such a relatively modest sum we hope that the Legislature will see fit to appropriate the money as soon as possible. The Grangers can be very instrumental in helping to bring this about.

LACK OF INTEREST

For some reasons interest in extra curricular activities, with the exception of sports, has been gradually dying out at Delaware. The most glaring example of this recently is shown by Mr. Berry's postponement of the Glee Club Concert because of insufficient student support. The Glee Club, however, is by no means the only organization that is suffering. The Debate Club Open Forums are attended by a mere handful, the Footlight's Club audiences are but slightly larger, the Y. M. C. A. has been disbanded and the old Engineer's Club has been completely forgotten.

The typical Delaware attitude at the present time seems to be one of cynical indifference toward every line of activity. The explanation of this attitude is an extremely difficult one. The idea that the large number of commuters, whose interests seem to be centered in catching the first train home, is responsible for the present state of affairs is apparently fallacious, for these organizations could easily be supported entirely by the men who live on the campus. The Review does not agree with the Social Committee that the numerous social events do not give the students time for anything else. However, regardless of the explanation, the fact remains that the condition does exist and must be remedied.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, but the writer must sign his name to the communication. We will not print any anonymous notes. We will, however, publish letters written under an assumed name provided that we have the real name of the writer on file in the office. We have received an anonymous contribution from a certain C. Y., which we would be very glad to print if we knew just who C. Y. was. In reply to a notice that we posted yesterday, we received another note from this unknown writer which contained quite a bit of sarcasm but no hint as to his identity. The Review will publish his material without giving him what he calls the "doubtful reward" of staff membership and without making his name public, provided he makes himself known to the editor. Until he does this any contribution on his part will not be accepted. This holds good for all anonymous writers.

BETWEEN WAR AND PEACE: A

Handbook for Peace Workers, by Florence Brewer Boeckel. Macmillan Publishing Co. Price $2.00.

Miss Florence Brewer Boeckel has written a book entitled "Between War and Peace," which is at once "a handbook for peace workers" as the subtitle has it, and a literary product of no mean merit. A work of this nature, apropos at all times, is especially so at the present moment in view of the recent announcement made by President Coolidge that he intended to resume negotiations looking toward the entrance of the United States in the World Court, and also because the Kellogg-Briand peace pact is now pending before the Senate of the United States.

Miss Boeckel's book consists of four parts with a total of twenty-six chapters. Part two with eight chapters, shows what the various groups in society are doing in the interest of peaceful international relations. The titles of these chapters indicate clearly their contents, as for example, Education and Peace, The Church and Peace, Women and Peace, Commerce and Peace, Labor and Peace, Farmers and Peace, War Veterans and Peace, and Young People and Peace. Part three, with sixteen chapters, considers the forces and influences that operate for or against peace, such as The League of Nations, The Outlawry of War and the Kellogg Treaty, War Debts and Reparations.

It is interesting to note that in the chapter dealing with Education and Peace, Miss Boeckel gives considerable space to the Delaware Foreign Study Plan. On pages 52 and 53 she writes:

"Another plan recently initiated by certain of the colleges for the development of international understanding is known as 'Junior Year Abroad.' This experiment was begun by the University of Delaware in 1923 when it sent under the guidance of a member of the faculty, and after careful preliminary arrangements with French educational authorities, selected members of its junior class, ranking among the first one-third of their class in academic standing, for one year's study at the Sorbonne in Paris, in lieu of the regular work of the junior year. Preliminary to the scholastic year the students devoted three months in France to the intensive study of the French language. The University has since accepted among its group, students from other institutions. Following much the same plan, Smith College sent abroad a carefully selected group of 40 juniors. So valuable does this junior year abroad seem to the Institute of International Education that it recommends the establishment of fellowships, and offers to place its resources of information and advice at the disposal of colleges that wish to investigate the plan."—Dr. Ryden.

This book may be purchased from the National Council for Prevention of War, 532 Seventeenth street, Northwest, Washington, D. C.

The Largest Hot Strip Mill in the World

Where do young college men get in a large industrial organization? Have they opportunity to exercise creative talent? Is individual work recognized?

SQUEEZED between giant rolls, heated steel bars flatten to form steel sheets for the bodies of the automobiles that our modern hurrying America demands.

So rapidly has this demand grown within the past few years that the American Rolling Mill Company, of Middletown, Ohio, recently found it necessary to install a "hot strip" mill larger than any before.

Such record-breaking capacity brought with it a train of new problems. Electric control had to be devised to keep the big 3,000 and 4,000 hp. D. C. motors "in step" and prevent irregularities in thickness or quality of the finished sheets. Huge generators and transformers had to be designed to handle the power requirements of this new mill—the largest of its kind in all the world.

To Westinghouse came the assignment of designing, manufacturing, and installing this equipment. Opportunities of this caliber are not rare in an organization with the resources which Westinghouse commands. Westinghouse attracts young men of enterprise and genius because it daily provides a class of opportunities which smaller companies can seldom offer.

Mr. Poufton Gives Impressions Of Library. Is Astounded At Students' Actions

Newark, Delaware,
December 14, 1928.

Dear Cuthbert:

I am all in a flutter. Really, I am overwhelmed; I have arrived, as it were; I have been recognized as a scholar and as a gentleman by one of the outstanding professors in the University. This man is one Dr. Straits, head of the school of social sciences. We are constantly together and I am profiting greatly by the association with this eminent Doctor of Philosophy. From his office in the library, we look out upon the world and consider, and rightly so, the futility of life, the vastness of the universe, and at the same time, the limited orbits in which our bodies move. But Cuthbert! Our souls—our thoughts. Ah! They travel in an ever widening scope which seemingly has no end. Infinity lies ahead—far, far ahead—and our thoughts are constantly striving toward that goal, which, undoubtedly, will be reached through our endless discussions of life and its problems.

Last night I decided to go through the library and take a mental note of the methods used by Delaware students in their outside readings. Arrived there, I was infinitely surprised to behold a large body of young people gathered around an altar-like affair in the center of the huge foyer. The young men held in their hands small pamphlets which looked suspiciously like dance programs. My curiosity being aroused, I called one of the young men aside and questioned him as to these strange proceedings taking place in a building whose sole purpose is for mental enlightenment. "Why don't you know?" he said, "the boys are just fixing up their nippin' program for the evening. Ten minutes for a nip—and then, change partners. Business is kinda slow this evening, though. They only have one car to park in. Terror's studyin' for a change and said they could use his, otherwise, they'd be out o' luck."

I was as mystified, then, as I was before I asked the question. "Will you please tell me in English, sir," I said, with what hauteur I could summon, "just what these young people are doing?"

And Cuthbert—actually, this creature laughed—snickered—brayed—a supercilious bray.

"Listen, Innocence," he whispered, "that gang there is a bunch o' neckers. They wing on each other—in the best of the King's English they are going outside for the sole purpose of kissing; it's an old Delaware custom, don't you see, just like the Africans rubbing noses." He turned away from me to a short-haired, snub-nosed feminine creature, and said, "Come on, babe, somebody'll cop that back seat if we don't get there first." He leered at me over his shoulder as he went out the large swinging doors, escorting his companion in a swaggering gait that would have put a South-Side cockney to shame.

I shuddered—then began to tremble all over. So this—this—was flaming youth. I stood astounded—my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth—my limbs refused to move. I was rooted to the spot. But finally, I regained my composure. I walked slowly homeward. Slowly I made my way up Quality Hill. Two fraternity houses on the other side of the street, from where I was walking, attracted my attention. Young men could be seen sitting under small desk lamps, pouring laboriously over books. Their faces had the qualities necessary to students. My meditations were here interrupted by Professor Byvans, who had walked up back of me. He remarked about the weather and I moodily agreed.

"Professor Byvans," I said suddenly, those young men studying so diligently over there in the Gappa Kappa House are true examples of Delaware men, aren't they?"

Professor Byvans regarded me suspiciously. He looked at my earnest visage closely. Then he snorted. "Studying? You think they're studying do you, Poufton? It's very evident that you don't know when College Humor comes out. Well, I'll tell you. It came out today and Wazo Green just sent in another order for a full car load. Every man on this campus grabs a copy of it and studies it until the next one is issued."

I gasped and trickled up to bed. My faith in humanity is undergoing a tremendous metamorphosis.

Dazedly,

Cecil.

Campus Chatter

Lieutenant Jolls—What is a component ration?

Numerous Freshmen—It is composed of two captains, two lieutenants and Major Glassburn.

After Mr. Powys' speech at college hour last Wednesday, Dr. Evans was heard to remark that Mr. Powys was somewhat demented, but then Cambridge always effects a poor chap that way. Dr. Evans' loyalty for his Alma Mater is firmer than ever. A big year Oxford! Beat Cambridge! Beat Cambridge!! Beat Cambridge!!!

Mercy! what can those two young men be doing every morning on Main street. If I am certain they are former athletic captains who are at the present time bus dispatchers. The incentive for such procedure is undoubtedly the presence of two sprightly maidens who commute to Wilmington daily. Ain't love grand! No wonder Kerber is joyous over the promptness of a certain engineer in attending class.

der Kerber is joyous over the promptness of a certain engineer in attending class.

Sleepy Smith has not yet awakened to the fact that the Grange convention here was not for the purpose of the propagation of football professionalism.

Herb Fox, after a convincing talk with the able assistance of Butterball Ricard, was able to place the blame for disturbances in the dormitories upon extraneous circumstances. The letter was incorrect.

For those who are worried about the week-end excursions of Clem Rinard, the answer will be found in West Chester. Cherchez la femme!

Joe Rothrock has informed his warriors bold that it is very undignified and uncultured to argue over his decisions. However, what will happen when he encounters persons who have not heard Mr. Powys speak.

Perhaps Mr. Powys has had some effect upon the sojourners at the library. They are whispering their conclusions calmly. What! am I wrong? Our firm librarian has gently rebuked all gatherers in our mid-way rendezvous. Alas! gallant Romes and fair maidens to the dark, cold, steppes you must go.

Critic—Your jokes are rotten this time.

"Even you," murmured the Suave Senior as he rushed out on his way to the nearest telephone, "have a good idea once in a blue moon!"

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield!"

It is considered the height of bad form, they say, to carry your own sandwiches to a tea—or to pack your own blanket for the week-end—but luckily, no such outlandish conventions surround the smoking of your own cigarette.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield," fortunately, is a phrase which not only remains "good cricket" in polite circles—but at the same time brands the smoker as a person of rare discernment and excellent discrimination.

And small wonder, considering all the remark implies. Good taste, top quality, the rare sparkle of tobacco goodness—all these combine to justify the choice of that man who thus shows his keen judgment.

"I'd rather have a Chesterfield"—a neat line, that—the mark of a real connoisseur and the password of six million smokers.

Glee Club Postpones Concert Until Later

Lack of Interest in Club Given as Principal Reason

The Glee Club which started off so well last year and which promised such great things for this year seems to have met with obstacles during the past few weeks. For some reason, interest has seemed to lag, and Professor Berry, the leader of the Club, says that the number of men who are trying out for the Club has decreased very much within the past month. He is, however, willing and anxious to start again with the Club and asks that all students who are interested in the work of the Glee Club see him soon so that preparations for a concert, if any is to be given this year, may be started as soon as possible. Professor Berry feels that interest is not dead but that temporarily the students who formerly were active have turned their attention to other channels and that after mid-years, there will be a revival of interest in the organization.

Besides enjoying a good meal, they had the opportunity of looking through the oldest eating house, with all its rarities, in New York. At the American Society of Mechanical Engineering Building, the half-fare slips were signed by a very, very good-looking young lady.

The men finally left the A. S. M. E. Building and again went to the Grand Central Palace, where they completely inspected the third and fourth floors. After this, a few of the men returned home; but the majority remained to take in an evening show.

On this trip, which was under the supervision of Dean Spenser, Dr. Koerber and Professors Krewatch and Lindall, all the latest Mechanical and Electrical developments were observed and the men were taxed to their utmost capacities to understand that which they saw and was described to them.

Besides the fact that Anderson has a limp in his right knee because of an argument with a taxi and Pedrick is going to return to New York very soon, the men would like to know: What Dean Spencer was doing till 4 o'clock Thursday morning? Where Donohoe and Daughtery were during meal hours and evenings? and Who the three actresses were on the train, with whom Jacobson, Russo, Strazella and Anderson became so very intimate?

SNATCHES FROM A TYPICAL "LADY WINDERMERE" REHEARSAL

"Rotten, perfectly rotten! You simply don't get into your parts. You aren't acting, not really acting. Now let's get through the whole thing again. Where's Sassé? Is Lady Windermere here?"

"We can't start yet—"

"Why not?"

"Lord Augustus doesn't want to act. He says he's going to shoot himself and end it all."

"Gosh, don't miss your aim, Rouzer. One of us might get hurt. Besides, why try to croak before Friday night?"

"If that de Valinger doesn't keep away from my girl! I might as well shoot myself. Nobody would care."

"Aw, come on Hank. You're holding up the works. Save the melodrama for the big night!"

"Mr Conkle, how do you drop a letter? Just can't do it."

"Look, I'll show you. You see it's easy if you do it as I do it—just drop it."

"Cut out the 'darling.' Sounds too sentimental. Look at her, but don't hold her hand."

"I can't hear a word she's saying."

"Aw, let me wear the monocle; I'm supposed to have one, anyhow. I can manage it better than you."

"... and all the little kangaroos in Australia ..."

"How do you dooh, Duchess?"

"La, de, da, dum. We're the mob scene in the French Revolution. No, we're just voices from off-stage."

"Mr. Conkle, I'll not kill myself before the night of the play. It would be just too bad without me; besides, I've thought of something. I've an idea."

"Oh, he's got an idea!"

"Look, we'll end it my way. It's got it all over Oscar."

"Well, if you'll all promise to be here early tomorrow, I'll let you go now."—Sibyl Young.

Frosh Defeat Juniors

Roman and Riggan were the high scorers for the Frosh and the Juniors, respectively. The backbone of the Frosh team were Roman, Shellady, and Hopkins, members of last year's Rutgers Prep team. The adept manner in which they dribbled, passed, and worked together drew forth much favorable comment from all who saw the game. "Slim" Ryan, "Gummy" Collins, and Riggan were the stars for the Juniors. The score:

State Grange Meets

Interesting response was made by Governor Robert P. Robinson.

During the meeting Mrs. Robinson, wife of the Governor, gave a talk on the recent meeting of the National Grange held in Washington, D. C. There was also an address by Dr. C. L. Benner, of the Continental Insurance Company, and formerly a member of the University faculty, on "Observations of farming in the Western corn belt."

In addition to these talks there were several fine musical numbers. Miss Lillian Steel gave a piano solo; violin solo by Alfred Willey, of West Brandywine Grange, and baritone solos, "Rolling Down to Rio" and "On the Road to Mandalay," by Dr. George H. Ryden, of the University of Delaware faculty.

After serving continuously for nearly a half century as secretary of the Grange in this State, Professor Wesley Webb, of Dover, declined re-nomination, but through a special act was named honorary secretary with full salary in compliment to his long and efficient service. He was replaced as worthy secretary by Mrs. W. C. Carpenter, of Centre Grange.

In addition to the Governor the official personnel re-elected comprises: worthy overseer, N. W. Taylor, Dover; worthy lecturer, A. Bailey Thomas, Wyoming; worthy steward, E. W. Palmer, Delmar; worthy chaplain, W. D. Wilson, Delmar; worthy treasurer, F. C. Bancroft, Wyoming; worthy gatekeeper, Harlan E. Phillips, Delmar; worthy Pomona, Mrs. N. W. Taylor, Dover; worthy Flora, Mrs. Robert P. Robinson; worthy Ceres, Mrs. H. E. Phillips; and worthy lady assistant steward, Miss Emily Mitchell, Hockessin.

H. R. Lemmex, of Milford, was elected a member of the executive committee as the representative of Sussex County, for a term of three years. E. H. Woodward, of Marshaton, for New Castle County, and J.

MUSINGS OF A FROSH

Have you noticed the fact that the boys are having exceptionally few dates these days? What's the cause? Righto, you've hit it. Christmas is coming and she wants such darned expensive things. Why the last time I had my date out for a stroll, she pointed out a beautiful bracelet.

"And it's only nineteen ninety-eight," she sighed.

"Umphum."

"Then this darling perfume container, $26.75."

"It is good looking," I answered.

Then my eye caught a glimpse of a sign. All was now clear. She was doing her Xmas shopping early. She was still cooing, "That toilet set, those ear bobs, that adorable wrist—"

But I had left. I shall buy no presents this year as I am saving to buy her a diamond necklace.

Have you heard of the guy on third floor A who was obliged to call up six girls before he could get a date? And that was in his own home town. That calls to mind, how these third floor Lady-killers love themselves. They know their women, yes sir. We wish we were half as well acquainted as they. Oh, well, vacation is coming. If we can get that little babe who has just moved around the corner, the old steady a couple of times, and some new date, we'll be satisfied.—C. H. '32.

Rastus—Hey, Noxious, I've just discovered a good place to neck girls.

Noxious—Sure, around the neck. I knew that all the time.

Cooch—I'd like you to paint a portrait of my late uncle."

Painter—Bring him in.

Cooch—I said my late uncle.

Painter—Well, bring him in when he gets here then.

Viper sent the following wire home to his sister: "Failed all my exams, prepare father."

She wired back: "Father is prepared, prepare yourself."

A year ago OLD GOLD'S holiday message to its many friends was entitled . . . "OLD GOLD'S first Christmas." OLD GOLD was then just the infant prodigy among cigarettes. But, thanks to its three million new friends, and its countless old ones, OLD GOLD has grown four hundred per cent. The infant has become a strapping young giant. OLD GOLD is America's fastest growing cigarette. You have given OLD GOLD a wonderful Christmas by your kind patronage and cordial good-will. And in deepest appreciation we say to all our friends . . . "May your Christmas be as merry as you have made OLD GOLD'S."

We thank you.
