

Swimmers Prepare
For Hopkins Meet*Swimming Meet With Baltimoreans
To Be Held On February 7
In The Taylor Pool

The University of Delaware men have been practicing for their forthcoming meet with the Johns Hopkins swimming team on Thursday night, February 7. At the last meeting of these two teams the Delaware tankmen splashed to an easy victory. Hopkins was not represented in the tank last year, but the addition of several high school stars has strengthened the "Blue-Jays."

The coming meet should be of considerable interest to campus followers of the sport, because of the performances of the local "fish" during the latest work outs. "Bill" Brown broke the local pool record in a recent time trial in his favorite event. The times of Reybold and Reese, in the 50-yard free style, have bettered their past performances this year. The Delaware entrants will probably be the same as represented the University in the Lehigh meet.

As an added attraction there will probably be a water-polo game between two picked teams from the campus. It is the first time that such a game has been played in the Taylor pool.

REVIEW RECEIVES BRITISH PROSPECTUS

Gresham School of Economics, London, Will Have Summer Course for Americans

The editor of the Review recently received a prospectus of the 1929 Summer School of the Gresham School of Economics, of London. This Summer School will be open from July 22 to August 23d. The courses have been prepared exclusively for United States Citizens and Canadians. Students must be actually engaged in study at a University or approved college in the United States or Canada.

The following subjects will be given: (a) The English Banking System, (b) Public Finances of the United Kingdom, (c) European Markets, (d) Joint Stock Companies and Corporations and (e) Foreign Exchange. Laboratory classes will be conducted during the courses, involving either practical work in the School, or visits to public institutions in elaboration of lectures. Subsequent to the courses, subjects for thesis work will be set and students will be invited to submit original theses of between 5000 and 10,000 words before October 31st.

This set of courses will answer the plea which has been made for so many years by statesmen and educationalists for a closer co-ordination in the educational systems of the great English speaking countries and for increased facilities for the interchange of ideas between the peoples of Great Britain, Canada, and the United States of America.

Students or faculty members interested in the school may learn further particulars if they will come to the Review office where they may examine the Prospectus, or see the editor, who will be glad to lend it.

PROF. REES SPEAKS AT NEWARK HIGH

At the Junior-Senior High School Assembly Wednesday, Professor Carl Rees, of the University of Delaware, made an address, the keynote of which was intellectual honesty and co-operation in doing things. After completing his address, Professor Rees congratulated the Newark Schools on the showing of last year's senior class in the University. He stated that Newark scholars ranked first among all others in the preliminary examinations in mathematics.

MORE SLEEP FOR STUDENTS

A growing tendency on the part of the American undergraduate to sleep too little was noted by President Livingston Farrand in his address to the Freshmen at the opening of the scholastic year at Cornell University. "The failure to get the proper amount of sleep is one of the growing evils of American undergraduates," he said. "Your efficiency, your competency, your health and your future can be wrecked without the proper amount of sleep."

EUREKA PRESIDENT RESIGNS TO AVERT STUDENT STRIKE

Eureka, Ill. (IP)—Because his students threatened to strike if he remained at the head of Eureka College, President Bert Williams has tendered his resignation. The students were incensed by the dismissal of two popular professors to relieve the school's strained financial conditions.

LIBRARY NOTICE

The library will be open next Saturday, Jan. 26, 1929, from 8 a. m.-12 m., and from 1 p. m.-5 p. m. This will enable students to make more use of the library during the examination period that would otherwise be possible.

Interfrat Basketball
Season Starts Soon*Interfraternity Basketball League
Issues Rules And Schedules

On February 4 the inter-fraternity basketball contest will begin officially with the game between Kappa Alpha and Phi Kappa Tau. The rules of the tournament have been drawn up by the representatives of the different fraternities which compose the Interfraternity Basketball League. The League has decided on the following rules to govern the contest:

1. To be eligible to play in the inter-fraternity basketball competition, a man must be an undergraduate of the University of Delaware.
2. To be eligible, a man must be either a member or a pledge of the fraternity for which he plays.
3. To be eligible a man must not have played in a previous varsity basketball contest.
4. Each team must have its men on the floor in time to start the game promptly at the time scheduled.
5. Any game not played at the scheduled time must be played in the same week; the date to be agreeable to the parties concerned. If not played, a game must be forfeited by the team not present.

6. Protests are to be decided by the majority vote of the Inter-Fraternity Basketball League. Each fraternity represented is to have one delegate.

7. A neutral referee for each game is to be selected and secured by the managers of the teams concerned.

8. The manager (or his representative) of one team will act as time-keeper. The other manager (or his representative) will act as score-keeper.

9. The time of each half of the game shall be fifteen minutes.

10. Time for practice of any one team is to be limited to one hour, providing that five men of another team are waiting to use the floor.

11. The standing of the teams is determined by the percentage of games won. (Games won divided by the number of games played.)

12. A cup for permanent possession is offered to the team leading the league with the highest percentage score at the end of the season.

U. OF D. REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND MEETING OF BUDGET COMMITTEE

On Monday, February 4th, representatives of the University will go to Dover and appear before the budget committee of the House of Representatives of the Legislature to encourage the passage of the bill pending that body favoring an increase in the budget of the University for the next two years and the bills for appropriations for new buildings on the campus. These bills are of vital importance to the University, and it is hoped by the authorities that they will be passed without amendment or reservation.

Yale Press To Publish
Book By Dr. Ryden*Head Of History Department Will Also Edit Papers Of Caesar
Rodney

Of particular interest to those connected with the University of Delaware is the research work being done by Dr. George Herbert Ryden, a member of the faculty at the University in the Department of History and Political Science.

Dr. Ryden, during the past three years has been making an intensive study of the expansion and diplomacy of the United States in the Pacific with especial reference to the Samoan Islands. In order to carry this work forward with greater dispatch, Dr. Ryden was away on a leave of absence during the whole of the year 1926-1927 and during the spring semester of 1928. In this period, his researches were carried on in the archives of the Department of State in Washington and at Yale University. As a result of this work a manuscript for a book to be published by the Yale Press this year was practically completed last May. This manuscript was of such a quality that at commencement at Yale University the next month, Dr. Ryden was awarded the John Addison Porter Prize of $500.

In order to add a final chapter to the forthcoming book, research work was continued at Washington during the past Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and Dr. Ryden left for Washington yesterday morning to be gone three days to complete this phase of his work.

Another project which has been begun by Dr. Ryden is the editing of the Caesar Rodney papers which are in the possession of the Historical Society of Delaware. The work of publishing these letters has been entrusted to the committee of publications of this society, which is composed of Mr. Christopher L. Ward, Judge Rodney and Dr. Ryden.

Three biographical sketches of famous Delawareans have been prepared for the American Dictionary of Biography, the first volume of which came out before Christmas. Sketches of Governor Burton and Governor Cannon, Delaware's Civil War governors, will appear over Dr. Ryden's signature in the second volume of the Dictionary, and a sketch of the first president of Delaware College, Dr. Eliphalet Wheeler Gilbert, will appear in a later volume.

In 1927, Dr. Ryden furnished the article on Delaware, which appeared in Volume I of a supplementary series of the Encyclopedia Britannica. When the next edition of this publication is brought forth a revised article on the history and government of Delaware will appear also over Dr. Ryden's name.

PROF. WIDGERY SPEAKS AT NEXT COLLEGE HOUR

Professor Philosophy of Religion at Bowdoin College Will Speak on February 6

The speaker scheduled to appear before the next College Hour is Mr. Alban G. Widgery, professor of the Philosophy of Religion at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine.

Holding the Stanton Lectureship in the Philosophy of Religion in the University of Cambridge since 1922, Mr. Widgery was from 1915 to 1922 professor and head of the Department of Philosophy and Professor of the Comparative Study of Religions at Baroda, India. Formerly he held academic positions in Philosophy in the Universities of Bristol and of St. Andrews, and was a research student at the Universities of Jena and Paris.

While in India, Mr. Widgery established and conducted a research Seminar in the study of religions, from which a number of books were published. He founded and for some time edited "The Indian Philosophical Review," and "The Indian Journal of Sociology."

Among his publications are: "The Comparative Study of Religions," "Outlines of a Philosophy of Life," and "Contemporary Thought of Great Britain." He is joint author of many other books.

He has lectured in many of our Universities, and was recently invited to give the Upton Lectures at Oxford. In the realm of Indian Art Mr. Widgery has been a keen student and has made a valuable collection of Indian paintings.

WASHINGTON ATHLETES ARE ALL SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS

Seattle, Wash. (IP)—Out of all the six-week notices of poor work, sent out by the University of Washington authorities, not one was sent to a man who had turned out for freshman or varsity sports, it was revealed by the athletic manager.

EDITORSHIP HAS BEEN VINDICATED

Student Ballot of Colby College Gives Ratings of Various College
Positions

The much-abused, seldom-lauded, hard-working editor of a student publication has a position which will prove of more value to him after graduation than the leadership of any other campus activity, in the opinion of the students of Colby, a poll conducted by the Echo, student weekly, discloses. The captain of the football team might just as well take all the pleasure in his position that he can during his term of office, for, after graduation, the fact that he headed the eleven will mean next to nothing, the students of the college believe.

According to the returns to the questionnaire, distributed among the students by the weekly, the student office which is the most valuable in after-college years is the editorship of the weekly. Second in importance are the various managerships of the different sports and publications. The office considered the third most valuable is that of president of the Student Council. The votes were cast as follows:

- 65—Editor-in-chief of weekly.
52—Manager of some sport or publication.
33—President of student council.
23—Editor-in-chief of Oracle (year book).
14—President of senior class.
5—President of any class.
4—Captain of football.
2—President of Y. M. C. A.
2—President of athletic association.
1—Class treasurer, captain of baseball, member of deputation team, president of checker club.

WORK PROGRESSES ON BLUE HEN

The "Blue Hen" is rapidly nearing completion with the members of the board most optimistic as to its success. Virgil Van Street reports that the one handicap at the present moment is the lack of cooperation from the rest of the school in having their pictures taken for the "Blue Hen." This is particularly true among the upper-classes, there being some forty or fifty of them who have not attended to this important matter. The Photography Editor, Herbert Cohen, has been active in securing quite a few novel views of the campus. It is up to the rest of the school to get behind these editors and help them in whatever way they can. It is practically impossible for one man or even a group of men to produce a year book like the "Blue Hen" without the support of the rest of their fellow students.

MICHIGAN HAS OVER 200
AERONAUTICAL STUDENTS

Ann Arbor, Mich. (IP)—The University of Michigan now has over 200 students studying to become aeronautical engineers. The University plans to extend its facilities soon so that such students may come to the university during the summer to keep in touch with the latest developments in the new engineering profession.

West Point Cadets
Smother Delaware*Blue And Gold Weakens In Last Half After Holding Cadets To 15-14 Score In First Half

The University of Delaware basketball team suffered its second decisive defeat within the week last night, when the West Point Cadets deluged it under a barrage of field goals in the second half to win 40 to 21. The game was played at West Point.

The Army used a number of substitutes in the first half, and the Blue and Gold showed its mettle by closing that period with the score only 15 to 14 against it. In the second half Army put in its fresh varsity, which has won nine straight games, and it was too fast for the Delaware boys to cope with. LeCarpentier played a great game for Delaware, scoring 8 points. Hill, his running mate on the offense, scored 7. Score:

DELAWARE QUINTET BOWS TO MT. ST. MARY'S

Malloy's Men Play Rings Around
Rothrock's Protégés

The University of Delaware basketball team suffered its most severe trouncing of the season, last Saturday night, when the Mt. St. Mary's quintet from Emmitsburg, Md., came to Newark and ran away with the long end of a 33 to 16 score.

Ryscavage and McGarrigan, St. Mary's smooth forwards, played rings around the Blue and Gold defense and accounted for 19 points between them. The St. Mary's defense was equally good and, with the exception of Johnny Roman, the Delaware offense, couldn't penetrate it effectively. Roman played a great game on two counts, getting 8 points from the field and doing fine work on the defense.

In a preliminary game the Delaware Jay Vees won from the Swedesboro High School, 35 to 29. Score:

HAVERFORD RETAINS COACH HARMON

Through the Haverford News, it has been learned that Harvey Harmon, head football coach, has been re-elected coach with a three-year contract. There were many rumors, following the Delaware game, that Coach Harmon was considering acceptance of another position with larger remuneration, but this announcement dispels all such rumors.

This three-year contract will lengthen Mr. Harmon's stay at Haverford to a decade. During the time he has been there he has raised the standard of athletics very much. Haverford, therefore, welcomes the announcement of his return.

FRESHMAN RULES

Inasmuch as the decrees of the Rat Tribunal and the attitude in which they were taken by the Freshman has aroused much discussion on the campus, we have decided to give brief excerpts from our exchanges which show how rat rules are being taken at other colleges.

"Ridiculing of frosh at games should be discontinued decided the Board of Athletic Control at their recent meeting.

The consensus of the board disapproved such incidents as the vail dance which three freshmen were forced to perform between the halves of the Muhlenberg game Saturday. Inasmuch as the board alone has not the power to restrict such 'undignified conduct,' the matter will be referred to Acadia for action."—Lehigh Brown and White.

"R. H. Zuber, '32, was sentenced by the Customs Committee to roll a hoop with boxing gloves and wear a large Eton collar and a pink bow around the campus for an indefinite period at a meeting Tuesday night.

The entire Freshman class was required to skip between the dormitories and Class Hall as a penalty for not having tipped their hats to Seniors or members of the Customs Committee. No time limit was set for this penalty."—Haverford News.

"Everywhere, all the time, these hold frosh are breaking the rules set up for them to obey. No restriction, however deep in tradition it may be imbedded, is sacred to these children who call themselves men. They walk on the forbidden stones of the North side of College street, where frosh have trod before but with painful results when discovered. They smoke anywhere they please about the campus. They stay away from smokers, meetings, and games.

It is quite evident that Vermont will have to revert to the old system of corporal punishment. If the freshmen do not like this idea, now is the time for them to start reforming."—Vermont Cynic.

"Rules are being broken continually by the freshmen and they have lost all respect for the upper classes. This is due to the carelessness of the upper classmen themselves since they make no effort to enforce them. These rules have long been a Rutgers tradition and it is the duty of every loyal Rutgers man to uphold the traditions of his Alma Mater. Make the freshmen respect the customs and he will carry them on."—Rutgers Targum.

"While we believe that the majority of the Freshmen have been obeying these rules in good spirit, we admit that there are some who have shown a willful disposition to disregard them. We wish to emphasize the fact that such negligence and obedience on the part of the Freshmen is not a subject for jesting. If it is, let us abandon all Freshman rules at once and be done with it."—Swarthmore Phoenix.

"The sportsmanship of the freshmen is determined every day by whether or not they obey the rules, especially the wearing of the caps.

No one thinks you are 'smart' or 'pulling something over on the upper classmen,' but you are looked on just as you should be—a mighty poor sport.

So, come on, freshmen, your honor is at stake. Wear your caps."—Catawba Pioneer.

"A man is a freshman in college but once in his life, and every movement in which he participates as a member of a class unit is one of the dearest recollections of his college life.

Old time college life when freshmen were really freshmen is rapidly passing from America."—William and Mary Flat Hat.

"That freshmen shall wear 'frosh hats' is the almost unanimous vote of the men of the class of 1932.

By renewing this old tradition the first year students are trying to show their school spirit, according to William Dove Thompson, Associate Director of Physical Education, in whose freshman gymnasium classes the resolution was passed."—George Washington Hatchet.

These clippings show the great unrest which exists in practically every American university over the subject of Freshman rules. The tenor of these articles vary from threats of corporal punishment to downright pleading in an effort to induce a favorable reaction to rat rules from freshmen. There can be no doubt but that practically all student bodies are either in the midst of a process of adjustment to changed conditions or faced with the necessity for the tackling of a problem involving a readjustment. Only in the most conservative institutions do the old traditions remain in full force. We at Delaware can readily appreciate such a situation; inasmuch as we ourselves are at the present moment engaged in the solution of it. In one respect we have the advantage of some of our fellow student bodies in that we have already established the fact that physical horse play is out of date and that its existence on the campus is, upon the whole, a reflection upon our intelligence in the opinion of the world outside. Sooner or later those colleges which have not already abolished hazing will be forced to do so. Either they, themselves, will soon reach the conclusion or outside pressure will convince them that "padding" and twentieth century civilization do not mix. We have freed ourselves from the hazing question (or been freed from it—have it any way you want) and have now resolved to find out whether there is any point in having Freshman rules without hazing. To that end the Freshman Tribunal has been appointed. Whether or not such a system is successful depends upon the ability of those men on the Tribunal and the reaction of the student body as a whole to the question of building up among the Freshmen a desire to uphold Freshman traditions. And then one asks—is the whole business worth bothering with? With our usual caution we will withhold our answer to that and concentrate upon giving the Tribunal a fair trial; inasmuch as the majority of the student body manifest a distinct hesitancy towards endorsing the complete abolition of rat rules.

In the Editor's Mail

University of Delaware
Newark, Delaware
January 23, 1929.

The Editor:

Much has been said about the spirit at Delaware this year. Some have said that it is as strong as ever. Many have said that it is a thing of the past.

Whether or not it is dead, I do not intend to discuss, but I thoroughly believe that if the Commons was reopened the student life here at Delaware would be more real than it is at present. Those few minutes spent in the Lounge before the head waiter shouts, "Let's go!" make a vast difference in the relationships established by the students among themselves.

Don't misunderstand me when I say that student life would be more real. I don't mean to infer that it isn't real at the present time. Far from it. Consider the number of real friends a fellow has under the present arrangement. At the best they are very few. Most of the people we know are mere acquaintances. The Commons would enable one to form more real, lasting friendships.

There, I think, is the solution to this problem of school spirit. How can a student body have any real spirit if the members of that body don't know each other?

As one who has known the advantages of the Commons, may I suggest that this question at least be raised in the minds of the students at this college?

Sincerely,

C. O.

The Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir:

To begin, I am not "Joe Plunger." Nor his accomplice. But I am one who heartily believes in criticizing even my own "college paper" when the printed policies of that organ become inoperative.

Last week in the Editor's note following "Joe Plunger's" interesting advertisement concerning the wholehearted support of swimming by our paper, you made the following statement: "Naturally an event that happened the night before the Review appeared should get bigger heads than any event that took place almost a week before the Review went to press." And yet in this very same paper, in the greatest and blackest type, foremost and above everything else of current interest, appeared this most unusual head, "Delaware Wins Exciting Game with Pratt." It may be possible that I have gotten my dates mixed, but I am reasonably sure that this happy event took place the same number of days before the issuance of last week's paper as did the victory of the swimming team the preceding week. Yet, there it was—in glaring headlines. Possibly the rarity of a basketball victory prompted you to make the best of this uncommon occurrence. At any rate your stand seems a bit fallacious.

Very truly yours,

M. Glasser.

Editor's Note:—The basketball games of last week were the foremost topics of current interest. When a swimming meet arouses as much interest as the Pratt game did, it will get heads as large. The editor deplores both Mr. Glasser's and Joe Plunger's efforts to boost the swimming team by knocking the basketball team. Both sports will receive as much publicity as they deserve regardless of whether they win or lose.

Wilmington, Delaware,
January 19, 1929.

The Review,
University of Delaware,
Newark, Delaware.
Gentlemen:

As an alumnus of the University of Delaware, I am naturally interested in the welfare of the different organizations in which I, at one time, took a very active part.

The system of rushing, which the fraternities have adopted, impresses me as a very aggressive move and it should be continued during the future. I am also pleased to note the success which the representative Delaware teams have experienced during the past season, and I am now watching the basketball squad very carefully.

There is one thing, however, to which I should like to give constructive criticism, if it is pardonable of me. The present critical policy of the "Review" is the factor of which I am thinking. At various times, I have noticed that a marked critical attitude is taken towards the establishment of new organizations on the campus. The society of which I particularly speak is the new secret society composed of members of the Junior class, and appropriately called the "Blue Key." The "Blue Key" society, as I understand, is a body of representative students, who have shown during their first two years that they are capable gentlemen and fitted as "salesmen" of personality, having as their objective the selling of Delaware Hospitality to visiting teams. There is a question. Should such an honorable group be reprimanded at every turn? One of the basic principles of a true Delawarean is "Boost and Don't Knock." I believe it would be fitting, therefore, that we should pass a word of praise along to the members at times.

Other from this, I believe that the "Review" should be lauded for the fine work it has been doing among the students.

In closing, I wish to express my wishes to all members of the faculty and the student body, wishing them each a world of real hearty success.

Respectfully yours,

A Recent Graduate.

Editor's Note:—Now, I ask you, do you think he could be serious in his references to the Blue Key?

Moon Worshipper

The Dream Girl Question

If frowning critics should try to force me to eat my words and recant, I should gently but firmly point out, that, in spite of my tender years, my acquaintance with Dream Girls is just as wide and variegated as the most learned of them. This assertion is based on the hypothesis that there are only a certain number of Dream Girls and that they are apportioned to one at birth. One's chances of increasing the number are practically negligible for all impractical purposes, and the attempt to branch out will inevitably result in chronic neurosthemia, insomnia, incipient arteriosclerosis, loss of halcyon hallucinations, and malfeasance in office. The moral could be "Don't look a gift-horse in the mouth," but it isn't, because I could never bring myself to look in any horse's mouth, gift or otherwise, so, like Mary Baker Eddy or Ted Dreiser, we create a new moral: "Chacun a sa femme de rêve, monde sans finis." I put it in French because it looks a lot better than in English; I know, because I just tried it, and it was a bitter disappointment.

If you think it was a petty subterfuge, try to make up an absolutely original, ingenious and ingenious moral like mine, and then write it in English. I'll tell you if I like it, and how I think it compares with mine. This very naturally clears up all questions concerning fidelity to Dream Girls and morals. It may even prove something about psychiatrists and allopaths—it's hard to tell, and besides I haven't read it over. No really good author ever does, and I've always found it discouraging.

Like their more concrete sisters, these ladies should be alternately cajoled and brow-beaten. If, for example, your favorite blond tries to slip into a mental nebulosity, and refuses to become distinct or tractable, she should be concentrated upon until she is thoroughly plastic and can be summoned at will. It is wise to have one so malleable that she will cheerfully replace in the mind the less pleasing fleshly one at your side.

should the occasion call for it. Many consider it superfluous to mention this transaction to the earthly one. Dream girls, on the other hand, always understand, are without jealousy, and do not connive. I like them very much, and so do you.

THE JUNIOR PROM

The Junior Promenade will be held in the Gold Ball Room of the du Pont-Biltmore Hotel in Wilmington, on February 8, 1929, from 9 until 2. The music will be furnished by George Duddy and his Moulin Rouge Orchestra, from Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. It has been announced that the Ball Room will be decorated this year. The favors, the nature of which have not as yet been divulged, are promised to be unusual and attractive.

The patronesses will be Mrs. Pierre S. du Pont, Mrs. H. Rodney Sharp, Dean Winifred J. Robinson, Mrs. Charles B. Evans, Mrs. Herlauf Olsen, and Miss Norah B. Keely.

Tickets, which are $5.50 apiece, may be purchased from any member of the Prom Committee.

Great states from wheat seeds

It was unprofitable wilderness, most men thought. But James J. Hill had faith that it could grow wheat and so he built his railroad. Settlers turned the waste-land into wheat-land, the wheat into wealth, the wealth into great western states.

Faith in the economic future still points the way. Right now men in the Bell System are planting the seeds of vast possibilities for even better communication.

Out of the belief that the public needs a broader use of the telephone is growing a constantly improved long distance telephone service. Like the railroads of an earlier day, this service is now tapping and helping to develop rich new territories of commerce.

"OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN"

Drama Review

On Friday evening, January 18, the Puppets' dramatic organization of the Women's College presented Rachel Crothers' play, "Mary the Third," at Wolf Hall.

The theme of the rather inane comedy is that human nature is inherently the same in all ages and will continue to be the same. As a means of showing this, the play portrays three entirely different eras in history, namely, 1870, 1897, and 1923.

The acting of Theresa Tehan as the shrewish grandmother, of Dorothy Baylis as the modern mother, of Frank Swezey as the proverbially bellowing father, and of Ross Ford as the sophisticated lover of the companionate marriage type, was beyond reproach. Myrtle Simpler, arrayed in her splendid gown, was ideally chosen to enact the role of the heroine, but the lack of audibility and distinctiveness of her voice detracted a great deal from making her performance exceptionally noteworthy. John Walker, as the exuberant and precocious son, gave as usual a sterling portrayal. Considering that it was Roger Holt's first appearance as an actor at Delaware, this critic is fain to overlook many irregularities in his performance. However, I do not believe that he received the part best suited for his high nasal voice. Then, again, there was lacking the fire and vim in his pantomime that one associates with an impulsive lover.

Special commendation must be given to those responsible for the selection of costumes. The color harmony and true adherence to the vogue of the era presented were most assiduously accomplished, even to the smallest details.

The stage at Wolf Hall was entirely transformed by the ingenious settings and the mellow lighting effects. In fact, in Act II, Scene 2, the on-looker thought that a perfect "Chesterfield" advertisement was being shown on the stage even to the extent of the absence of dismayed looks on the faces of the performers. It was a beautiful picture of "They Satisfy."

The performance by the Puppets is the best that this writer has ever seen produced by any dramatic organization from the W. C. D. Miss Nora Bean Keely is to be complimented for her excellent direction and supervision of the entire performance. The large audience that was present left with that benign feeling that comes of contentment.

MOVE TO DRY UP CAMPUS OF MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

Ann Arbor, Mich., (IP)—The cry of "paternalism" has been raised once more on the campus of the University of Michigan, as the undergraduates protest the recent invitation issued by President Clarence Cook Little to federal prohibition agents to investigate conditions on the campus.

Federal "snoopers" visiting fraternity houses, smelling breaths and tapping hip pockets to determine whether students are drinkers are possibilities pictured today by opponents of President Little's plan to "dry up the University of Michigan campus."

Those who accuse the university authorities of becoming paternalistic recall that one year ago the university instituted a rule banishing the automobile from the campus.

The university authorities, however, have sided with the president in his campaign. It is believed that Dr. Little plans to have agents nab bootleggers and liquor transporters, rather than to put a stop to "parties" which already are under way.

Book Review

This week we have chosen for review two books. The only reason they might be thought of at the same time is because they are so different. The first is one which has been on the market for several months. It is Louis Bromfield's "The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg." Mr. Bromfield is one of our young modern writers who spends the most of his time on the Riviera. Most of his stories deal with Americans or Englishmen living in these colonies in France and Italy. I understand that he writes his books also in French.

"The Strange Case of Miss Annie Spragg" is a typical Bromfield work. It is written in his "episodic manner." In this book there are three or four stories, all pretty well separate except perhaps one of the characters in one will be or is related to the character in another. Thus the main story of Mr. Winery living in Brincoe, Italy, leads to the story of Aunt Bessie, that of the Prophet and still another of Father d'Aster.

Mr. Winery is a religious skeptic, living on the scant income coming from his uncle in England. He is writing a book on "Miracles and Other Natural Phenomena." Miss Annie Spragg, an old eccentric American, dies suddenly and arouses a great uproar in the village as the ignorant peasants believe her a saint. At her death the stigmata or marks of the Crucifixion are found on her. In investigating this supposed miracle to include it as an actual laboratory study in his book, Mr. Winery meets a middle-aged lady who has been a poor relative slave to her aunt, Mrs. Weatherby. He becomes romantically inclined, falls in love and marries after having received the legacy of his uncle.

Miss Annie Spragg, it evolves, is the daughter of a lustful old man who starts a religion in the Middle West and calls himself God. Annie and her brother run away from the settlement. Her brother becomes morbidly religious, believing that he must atone for his father's sins. Annie, who is beautiful, falls in love but is forbidden by her brother to marry. He afterwards chains her to her bed at night and otherwise persecutes her. The marks of this torture are those construed by the Italian peasants to be stigmata.

Despite this seeming jumble and sketchiness of plot, the book is intensely interesting. You will also like the story of Aunt Bessie and the contrast of the struggle in the highly intelligent mind of Father d'Aster to that of the ignorant peasants is fascinating. It is a book entirely different from anything you have read unless you have read other Bromfield books. If you read this book and like it, look up his "The Green Bay Tree."

"Coming of Age in Samoa," by Margaret Mead is an anthropological study of primitive adolescence. You may ask why this is being considered in a literary column. As one reviewer has said, it contains enough sex material to make it popular and it is well enough written to take its place among good books. Perhaps this is one of the things with which the book might be reproached. That if it is a scientific study, the author has forgotten her scientific role in making it interesting reading.

Miss Mead has made her book a fascinating one. Her descriptions of Samoan daily life, details of their social and sex relations and customs are marvelously portrayed. Miss Mead made a nine months study in three Samoan villages of the adolescents. She found their attitude toward sex quite frank except for a few taboos. These taboos are those which any group recognizes for the good of the group and its perpetuation. One of the most important discoveries noted by Miss Mead is the fact that among these people puberty and adolescence are not problem periods and difficult or confusing for the child. She seems to contribute to the lack of repression and modesty in regard to the question of sex.

These findings are well handled and evidently by one who knows her end. However the scientists may reproach her with her lack of scientific presentation. To the lay reader, however, a discussion of Samoan adolescence may seem of no import, but in the study of anthropology a great stride has been made for this is the first study in comparative cultures of the present day to throw light on our civilization.

MUSINGS OF A FROSH

Well for the love of E51—here's Mid-Years almost on us and I've not prepared my parents for the shock. Ye Gods, father will raise the roof (and me with it). Just as I get those darned conditions worked off and everything smoothed over at home, I see another list of "answer that one."

What stand shall I take? I can't tell him that I was sick because he saw my name among those arrested in Wilmington last week. Maybe a nice letter stating that I don't need any money would lull him to sleep. No, I only got his check yesterday so he knows I still have money.

Could mother help me in this hour, do you suppose? OH, I forgot, mother is still mad over my pawing those shirts and socks, and I can't explain to her that I had to have money to pay back Louise them ten iron-men.

And Uncle Bud says he's through; all he ever did for me was to bail me out last time. If fifty dollars is all he cares about me, I don't care.

I might write to Aunt Theresa, but her and my folks don't speak since I ran into her flower bed the night I got a quart by mistake.

I haven't a friend on this globe who would hint to my people to fix up (wait until my ENG. Prof. sees that) my room and set an extra place. No one.

I will send a telegram. Not pitiful; not threatening. Just plain fact:

"Affect. Parents: Expect trunk, package, and son any time. Explain. Love." Perhaps even that will be too much of a shock. This is better:

"Find position for expelled offspring. Disgraced college—" no, you can't tell by that whether the college, or I, am disgusted, or both.

Could I, as George Washington did, say "Father, I cannot tell a lie. I flunked?" I could, but I dare not.

How SHALL I tell father?

780,000 Chesterfield cigarettes are now sailing South-Polewards with the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. We are officially informed that the selection of Chesterfield resulted from the individually expressed preferences of a majority of the expedition's members.

When it is recalled that these are—in superlative sense—picked men...selected not only for bravery, ability and experience, but also by searching tests of physical fitness...we may be forgiven for our considerable pride in their vote. And something of this pride, we believe, will be shared by all Chesterfield smokers.

GOLDEY COLLEGERiggin and Ely Star in Game Played in Wilmington

The Delaware Jay Vees defeated Goldey College in the Hanover Gym, last Tuesday by the score of 33-25. First half ended with Jay Vees leading the Goldeytes 11-9. In the beginning of the second half the Goldey quintet started off with a bang and soon led by ten points. The Jay Vees found themselves in the closing minutes and by a few sensational goals made by Warren E. (Nipper) Riggin and Bob (Sexy) Ely they were able to forge ahead of the Business Collegians. Captain Riggin was the high scorer of the game with 13 points, while Ely made 8 points. Score:

LIBRARY NOTES

Notes by Mr. Moses on Some Recent Additions to the Library

BEARD, C. H.: Whither Mankind: a Panorama of Modern Civilization.—C. H. Beard is the editor and writes the introductory chapter. This introductory chapter is one of the best, if not the best, in the book, as might be expected. This is a symposium by eminent authorities selected by Mr. Beard, but given freedom to express their own views.

"In spite of their unequal merit the essays make an interesting and suggestive volume..." Sat. Rev. of Lit. Nov. 3, '28.

United States Catalog. Books in Print January 1st, 1928.—This is one of the most important bibliographical tools which we have. It is of primary importance to every library. Its usefulness to undergraduate students is not realized as much as it ought to be. It gives, accurately and concisely, the essential information about all books still in print in the United States at the beginning of 1928. Here may be found the name of the author, the title of the book, number of pages, date of copyright, name of publisher, price, etc.

All college students ought to know of this book and how to use it. It is generally found on the reference shelves of college and university libraries and of the larger public libraries.

MARTIN, EVERETT DEAN: The Meaning of a Liberal Education.—"The director of the People's Institute, New York City, discusses what education is and is not, condemning the utilitarian aim so prevalent today and pleading eloquently for an education which shall make a complete human being and reveal the spiritual values of life."—Book Rev. Digest, 1927.

The author defines the purposes of education as follows: "To lift men's thought out of the monotony and drudgery which are the common lot, to free the mind from servitude and herd opinion, to train habits of judgment and of appreciation of value, to carry on the struggle for human excellence in our day and generation, to temper passion with wisdom, to dispel prejudice by better knowledge of self, to enlist all men, in the measure that they have capacity for it, in the achievement of civilization."

"... The book is, however, by all odds the most important contribution to the understanding of adult education which has thus far been made in the United States, and the only man of our generation who is likely to write a better one is Mr. Martin himself."—F. P. Keppel in Yale Rev., July '27.

PILLSBURY, W. and MEADER, C. L.: The Psychology of Language.—A first attempt to treat the development of language from the psychological standpoint.

"The authors, who are respectively professors of psychology and professor of linguistics in the University of Michigan, have collaborated in producing this study of language from the psychological point of view."—Book Rev. Digest.

HARROW, BENJAMIN: Eminent Chemists of Our Times.—"We have several books dealing with the history of chemistry; there are a number of biographies of pioneer chemists; but, so far as I am aware—and this includes books in French and German as well as in English—the chemists of our time have been ignored completely. . . . To fill such a want is the object of this book. . . . This book aims to fill the wants of three classes of men:

"1. The chemist who wishes an account of the labors of some of the most illustrious men in his profession.
"2. The scientist, other than chemist, who desires information in a closely related field. What physicist can ignore the work of Mme. Curie? What biologist or medical man is not indebted to van't Hoff, Arrhenius and Fischer? And how has industry profited by the labors of Moissan and Perkin! These instances could be multiplied.
"3. The layman who wants a non-technical account of some of the more remarkable achievements in a science which is entering more and more into our daily lives."

This work emphasizes the personal side; it is a "human document"; but there are ample references to, and discussions of noteworthy achievements. The book is so written that any layman, without any previous knowledge of chemistry, can get an intelligent idea of the man and his work."—Preface.
