Council votes to up tax rate in parts of county

By Eric Fine
Post Staff Reporter

The county council approved tax increases that will cost homeowners living in the county's unincorporated areas about $35 for fiscal year 1994.

The council voted 6-1 on May 25 to raise sewer taxes by about $14, or 5 percent, and it raised sewer taxes by about $20, or nearly 12 percent.

"In the end it was done very reasonably," said John Carney, a Greenhouse aide. "The bottom line figure didn't amount to much. It was conservative and appropriate for the economic." It also represented the public's desire for increased services, he said.

Council member Karen Venezky, D-Newark, said residents living in incorporated areas such as Newark and Wilmington would pay even less. Venezky said the tax increases were the first since 1988.

Council member Chris Roberts, D-Odessa, voted against the budget, calling his district a "growth area," particularly the area bordering U.S. 40 and south. He said new homeowners pay between $4,000 and $6,000 for sewer hookup, building permits and real estate transfer taxes.

Capano agrees to replace bulldozed trees

By Eric Fine
Post Staff Reporter

The county council postponed a decision on whether to ask a developer to repeat the application process for building 288 townhouses off Songsmith Road in Bear.

Residents there said the developer, Mario Capano, used a bulldozer to remove trees on an area of deeded open space measuring between one-quarter and one-half of an acre.

Sherri Carbone, who lives on Iris Lane in Spring Mill, said Capano was cutting an access road through a 5.62 acre wooded area between Songsmith Road and the parcel of land owned by Whitington Sand & Gravel, Inc., on Pulaski Highway.

Capano had no approval from the county for the road, she said.

Robert Burns, a former county planner representing Capano at the May 25 meeting, said Capano would replant the trees and reimburse the residents any legal fees. Under the name of the Iris Lane Alliance, about 15 residents had opposed the project.

homeowner and business owner responsible for repairing sidewalks adjacent to their properties.

Sponsored by councilwoman Karen Venezky, the amendment is an effort to close the cracks on the question of who is actually responsible for sidewalk repair.

"This (my amendment) is to clarify a situation that has never been clarified before," said Venezky. "In all the communities in Newark and Wilmington, the practice has been that the homeowner has been responsible for the sidewalk in front of his home."

Code does not officially define the homeowner as the owner of the sidewalk when the sidewalk lies in the state right-of-way.

Venezky's proposed amendment would require, among other things, that "every sidewalk or footway between the curb stone and the building line" be maintained by the owner of the lot that

Snake makes surprise visit, wins friends

'Monty' the ball python calls Park Place home, for now

By Tonja Castaneda
Post Staff Reporter

While most University of Delaware students are leaving Newark for the summer and selling dressers, beds, bikes and books; Charity Stubbs has been trying to get rid of her snake.

Funny, she has had many inquiries, but everyone has shied away from taking it off her hands and her mom has flat refused to let the snake come home with her to Ridgewood, N.J.

"I wanted to take him home and put him in our greenhouse, but my mom says she wants a garden in there and doesn't want a snake hanging from the rafters," said Stubbs.

The ball python snake was found in Park Place Apartments in September when Stubbs moved into her apartment. Stubbs said she found the snake in her bedroom the second day when he slithered into one of her boxes. "I freaked out," said Stubbs. "I had one of my friends come over; I thought someone was playing a cruel joke on me."

"I had my friend put on oven mitts and put the snake in a box, so we could take him to a pet store," said Stubbs.

She said she called the pet store and they said it was probably just a rat snake. "But when I took him there, the pet store told me it was a $150 snake," Stubbs said. "They wouldn't buy it from me, only take the snake."

Stubbs decided to try and sell the snake herself. "A girl at the pet store said she would buy the snake from me, but she called and said she wouldn't have the money for a week," Stubbs said.

"I fell in love with the snake over that week," Stubbs said. She named the snake Monty.

Stubbs convinced her roommate, Fern Zamoff to let her keep the python. Zamoff said she made a couple requests of her roommate if she kept the snake.

She asked that the snake never be out of the glass cage when she was around or when the snake was fed his meal of two live mice every other week. She also said she did not want to know when the snake was fed. "She's been great about sticking to my request," said

High school life a little different decades ago

By Eric Fine
Post Staff Reporter

What was Newark High like between the two world wars? For one thing, it wasn't on Delaware Avenue.

The city's first high school was in the building that is now the University of Delaware's Newark

Hall on Academy Street. But it was much smaller, recalled LeRoy Hill, whose Class of 1937 had about 75 members and was the first to publish the school's newspaper, The Yellowjack Buzz.

"The school was very good academically," said Hill, 75. "Everybody had to have two years of Latin, believe it or not." After their sophomore year, students had the option of taking French, the only other foreign language the school offered.

But learning about other cultures did not receive nearly the same emphasis as language study, he said. They were taught where the other countries were on the map and what was important about them. For example, they were responsible for knowing about the beginnings of Communism in China. But that was it.

In his civics class, Hill said they were required to memorize the preamble to the Constitution. He never forgot the teacher telling them that it's the responsibility of Congress to make budget decisions, not the president.

The president "can recommend stuff, but he's not the guy who spends the loot," Hill said.

The school also awarded three kinds of diplomas, Hill said: an academic, a science and a general. And no one was merely pushed through the curriculum. There was no commercial curriculum.

"If you didn't keep up with the academic standards, you failed."

Teachers worked overtime to help the slower kids. But if students didn't score high enough, they had to repeat the grade.

Things were different socially

Olan Thomas, class of 1941

on Main Street during Hill's high school days. Landmarks such as the Rhodes Pharmacy and the Deluxe Luncheonette belonged to the university, he said.

A soda fountain called Goodie's, located next to what is now Jude's Diner, was where the high school kids hung out. "That's where you took your girlfriend," he said. The same building is now occupied by the Main Street Florist and Plant Shop.

Zamoff. "Weeks go by and I forget that the we have him."

Since having the snake, Stubbs has found out that it is most likely a pet from the students who lived in the apartment before. Stubbs said that by asking neighbors she found out the people who lived in the apartment last year owned snakes, tarantulas and ferrets.

"The snake must have got out and they lost him," said Stubbs. "The neighbors upstairs remember them asking around if anyone had seen a snake."

Stubbs said she must have asked the pet store 10,000 questions, like what and when to feed the snake and does she give him water? "I give him a bowl of water, but I don't know if he drinks it, knocks it over or it evaporates," said Stubbs.

Stubbs said the snake has bit her once, she believes he thought she was dropping in mice. "It didn't hurt too much because he has tiny teeth, but it shocked me," said Stubbs.

"Once I did wake up and he had gotten out (during the night)," she said. "I found him in the couch cushions."

"I've held snakes and baby alligators, but I never thought I would want one (a snake.)" Stubbs said she is not a cat person. "I'm allergic to cats and they are boring," she said. She said she does like dogs, but "It's interesting to have a snake. He's a good conversation piece," said Stubbs.

Stubbs said she does not think she would buy another snake because they are so expensive.

Stubbs and Zamoff have to find a new home for the snake. Monty is brown with tan spots and about two and a half feet long. "He grows depending on his environment (how big his cage is) and how much he gets fed," said Stubbs.

Stubbs said the snake also requires having his cage cleaned out about once a month. "Hopefully someone will buy him who already has snakes and knows what to do," said Stubbs.

Anyone interested in owning the snake can call Stubbs and Zamoff at 737-8772.

SCHOOL/from 1A

then, and every kid in the seventh grade had to study music, Hill said. For recreation, the school had noon dances once a week.

Sports also were popular. Hill pitched and played first base on the baseball team and was a guard on the basketball team.

But the school may have been ahead of its time in one sport: The four-member golf team, traditionally composed of guys who didn't play baseball because their parents belonged to the Newark Country Club, had a young woman on the team. "That was rare in the Thirties," Hill said.

Joe Peel, whose Class of 1939 included 63 members, remembered having to get home from school on time. His home was a farm on Ox Chapel Road. His responsibilities included milking the cows and pitching hay.

Peel was permitted to play football by his parents, but that meant walking home afterwards. The walk took anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour, depending on how much energy he had left after practice, he said.

Peel, 72, was a halfback on the football team, a shortstop on the baseball team. Going to school was something his parents required of him.

"We had to go to school," he said. "We had to get an education." Peel said he was never part of the Main Street scene after school. That was for the guys living closer to downtown, he said.

"When you're on the farm, you never have time." Back then farm work was done manually, he said. There were no machines. But for holding up his end of the workload, his parents rewarded Peel with a car.

Olan Thomas, 69, graduated from Newark High in 1941. His class totaled about 90 students and was the first to publish a yearbook, by the name it still goes by: Krawen, which is Newark spelled backward.

Thomas went on to play an active role in the city, first as a member of the fire department and later as a member of the city council, which he has served on for nearly three decades.

"Very few drove to school," he said. "Most walked or were dropped off." Thomas said the school had three classrooms during his senior year. The school's athletic fields were to the rear. He said that space now serves the university as a parking lot.

University talks up student center, but some question proposed site

By Eric Fine
Post Staff Reporter

The University of Delaware's proposed 100,000-square-foot student center will benefit Main Street businesses by attracting more people to the city's main drag.

It won't create traffic congestion or parking hassles.

These were two major points made by university officials and consultants during a two-hour presentation on May 27 which drew about 100 people to the Bob Carpenter Center.

The $21 million center will be located at the intersection of Elkton Road, Main Street and New London Road with construction of the building slated to begin sometime next summer. Construction of a $6 million parking garage could begin as early as next February.

Although the university has freedom from city zoning codes, the plans still must go through the land development process and be approved by the city council.

As expected, not everyone agreed the building and garage will have a benign impact on the community.

Area merchants objected loudly to the project last fall when the plans included about 10,000 square feet for retail use. The merchants feared:

- The university would lease space to stores stocking similar product lines.

- The center would cut into the walk-in traffic Main Street businesses need to survive.

- The university would offer attractive rents and other benefits that would make competition by the small businesses dotting the central business district unrealistic.

School officials have since eliminated retail from their plans save for a food court, a mail room and a bookstore.

Traffic and parking were the primary concerns of those attending last week's forum.

"I think the traffic around the site is going to be horrendous," said Stuart Dick. "I think this is the poorest place you can put this."

Martin Quanci likened the traffic that could result from the center's placement in the center of town to a "holding pattern at an airport."

School officials disagreed, saying the center would be used mostly at night, which didn't conflict with peak traffic times during the day. But Quanci believes area companies will want to use the site to hold daytime meetings and conferences.

"You watch," Quanci said. "You'll have DuPont in there. You'll have Zeneca. You'll have MBNA. It's going to offer a lot to everyone."

Erich Hizer of Orth-Rodgers, the Philadelphia firm hired to analyze the traffic around the proposed site, said any plans at this time were indefinite until the state Department of Transportation examined the results of their traffic study.

Does Hizer think the public's fear of heavy congestion was valid?

University officials "are the experts about who's going to use the facility," he said. "We're basing our analysis entirely on their information."

Expanding the Perkins Student Center, located on Academy Street, wouldn't work for the same reasons: traffic and parking.

Officials said a larger center would necessitate tearing down Perkins so that a parking lot could be included on the site. That the proposed three-level garage would provide no more parking than the existing lot located next to Daugherty Hall also provoked criticism.

"We are in a city without room for expansion," said Al Root. So any construction should increase the capacity of what it is replacing, he said.

Do university officials anticipate more students enrolling at the school?

David Hollowell, a senior vice president, said population at the school peaked during the 1980s when no construction occurred. He called the project an example of the school "playing catch up."

The center's first floor will include a large room with the capacity to sit nearly 1,000 people. The school's hotel/restaurant program will be on the second floor with meeting rooms for student government organizations and clubs.

The basement will feature a 300-seat movie theater.

The architecture will blend in with the buildings around it and will be highlighted by an 18-foot archway running between Main Street and Delaware Avenue on South College Avenue.

Funding will come from a student fee, food court and bookstore revenue, parking and private fund raising.

NHS teacher receives top citizenship award

By HEATHER HARTRIM
SPECIAL TO THE POST FROM NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

Jodie Gwinn, a Spanish teacher at Newark High School, was recently honored by the Christina School District with a Citizenship Award.

This year Mrs. Gwinn has been advisor to the Key Club. The Key Club participates in numerous volunteer activities in the community.

Along with advising the Key Club, Gwinn advises the Spanish Honor Society and teaches three levels of Spanish. She and her husband recently returned from taking fourteen students to Spain during spring break.

Mrs. Gwinn was nominated for the citizenship award by a board member. She received a plaque, a $50 gift certificate to the Hotel DuPont, and she was honored at the last board meeting which was on May 11th.

NHS biology teacher, Rick Gwinn said of his wife, "She just really cares! She never stops trying to do better and be better." He said, "Sometimes my mouth hangs watching her work."

Newark part of national conference

By RENEE CLEMENT
SPECIAL TO THE POST FROM NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

A national student government conference will be held at Glasgow High School from June 26-30.

Several Newark students will be participating along with 1,400 other students across the U.S.

Jim Doody, advisor to Newark's Student Government Association, will be attending some of the conference and has a good feeling about it. "Any time you get that many people together to learn better leadership skills, it will inevitably be a positive experience for every student participating," commented Doody.

The leadership conference will focus on uniting and bettering student governments across the globe while sharing ideas.

State-of-the-art desktop publishing now at NHS

By VIRGINIA NAVARRO
SPECIAL TO THE POST FROM NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

Desktop publishing is now being offered at Newark High. Taught by business department chairman Mrs. Patsy Perry, it is the only course in the Christina School District that offers PageMaker 4.0.

Funded by the Warranty program, Desktop publications combines computer text and graphics to produce professional documents.

Mrs. Perry's class has made flyers for the spring dance, a newsletter, and advertising for the school newspaper, The Yellowjacket Buzz.

"We are hoping that the class time will be expanded to a two period block," said Mrs. Perry. She plans to make the class into a small company for the school's needs.

As for the future of the class, Mrs. Perry believes that "it will be a top priority class in the business department."

Newark students reprise community service club

By ANNE HERMAN
SPECIAL TO THE POST FROM NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

"CARING... OUR WAY of Life" is Key Club International's motto, and Newark High School students are showing that they can live and work by this motto.

Key Club, a community service club sponsored by the Kiwanis club, has recently been refounded at Newark by Mrs. Gwinn, Spanish teacher, and Miss Cerniak, math teacher.

In the late 1950s, there was a successful Key Club here, but it was all-male and stopped operation in the mid-sixties.

The goals of Key Club include developing initiative and leadership in students. It provides experience in living and working together. The club also emphasizes serving the school and community.

Elected officers for 1992-1993 are president Elizabeth Kang, senior; vice-president Renee Clement, junior; secretary Greg Grube, senior; and treasurer Greg Munson, senior. There are also representatives from each grade to the club.

Says Elizabeth Kang, president, "I think we are a large group of capable people. I know that we can accomplish a lot."

Key Club is one of the largest clubs at NHS. While many members are upperclassmen, efforts are being made to recruit freshman and sophomores.

"I think it's important to be a member of Key Club," said senior Megan Rys, "because everyone needs to do his part to improve the school and community."

Some of the projects that Key

Club is involved in are painting the Yellowjacket trash cans placed around the school; helping with a children's book drive; Read Aloud Delaware; and working to set up the Newark Senior Center Bazaar.

Mrs. Gwinn said that outside requests for community service are "mushrooming," and projects will have to be prioritized. The variety of service opportunities available to members allows each person to choose the projects he wants to do.

Treasurer Greg Munson said, "It is a good idea that we are doing so much."

Students are eager to begin projects. Senior Lara Olchvary said

"I'm ready to do a lot of good things for Newark." Lisa Taber, junior, said, "I like doing things for other people. This is a way to help the community."

To be a member of Key Club, students may pay $9 dues and fulfill a required number of service hours.

Most students agree that it is worth the effort. As junior Mika Vincent explained, "The club will bring students together for a good purpose. Hopefully we can make a difference."

Newark business pros place in competition

By GREG GRUBE
SPECIAL TO THE POST FROM NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

Business Professionals of America is a national organization which enables students to gain an understanding of the business world. To perfect their skills, BPA students compete at both the state and national level.

At the state leadership conference held March 4-6 at the Wilmington Hilton, Newark High's BPA students placed in over 35 competitions.

Senior Ben Zhao won first place in five events: business math, business knowledge, business law, parliamentary procedure, and personal finance. Other first place finishers were junior Dorian Perry in employment skills and freshman Monique Hite in verbal communications.

Placing second in a number of events were seniors Heather Hartrim and Catherine Goralski and freshman Robert Anderson. The small business management and the parliamentary procedure teams also placed second.

Members attending the state leadership conference spent three months preparing for the competition. Practices were held on week-ends and after school on a regular basis.

At the state conference, state officers are elected as well. Seniors Heather Hartrim and Ben Zhao served as state officers this year. Junior Dorian Perry was elected as New Castle County Regional Director for the 1992-3 school year.

"It is a great honor to be picked as a state officer," said Hartrim. "Not only am I able to represent Newark High at the state level, but I am also able to represent the state of Delaware at the national level."

In addition to Hartrim and Zhao, six students also competed in the national Business Professionals competition held May 5-9 in San Antonio, Texas: seniors Ursula Cornish, Tammy Pyle and Frank Spencer, freshman Monique Hite and juniors Dorian Perry and Robert Anderson.

Business Professionals not only prepares students for a career in business, but it also gives them skills which will help them throughout their lives, explained BPA advisor Patsy Perry.

"The students gain professionalism, self confidence, responsibility, and worth," said Mrs. Perry. "The experience gained from BPA will serve as a stepping stone to their future." Business teacher Ms. Paula Harvey also advises the club with Perry. Business teachers Chris Bekowski, Pat Coverdale, and Beverly Swann also helped prepare members for the competitions.

Drug arrests net 3 in separate incidents

By Diane Heck
Post Community Editor

Three people were arrested in two separate incidents on drug charges in Newark on Wednesday, May 26, according to Lt. Alex von Koch of the Newark Police Department.

Two Newark-area men were arrested at 2 p.m. after allegedly selling an ounce of cocaine to undercover police officers in the 300 block of East Main Street, von Koch said. The arrests followed a two-month investigation by Newark and University of Delaware police. Scott W. Dickinson, 18, of the unit block of Fairway Road and David T. McDowell, 19, of the unit block of O'Daniel Avenue were arrested and charged with trafficking and delivering cocaine, maintaining a vehicle for the sale and use of drugs, two weapon offenses (for allegedly carrying a loaded, .25 caliber handgun), resisting arrest and conspiracy. In addition, McDowell was charged with delivering and intending to deliver marijuana.

In a separate incident at approximately 8:30 p.m. in the 100 block of College Square Shopping Center, an illegal alien from Mexico allegedly sold marijuana to an undercover Newark police officer, von Koch said. Officers recovered over two pounds of marijuana and $2,500 from Octavia Peres who was arrested and charged with delivery of marijuana and maintaining a vehicle for the delivery of controlled substances.

The highlight of the trip was a Saturday afternoon parade performance by the band at Epcot Center. The band enjoyed the Magic Kingdom, MGM Theme Park and Sea World while on the trip.

The band marched in the Newark Memorial Day parade and will finish out the 1992-93 school year with the Wilmington Memorial Day parade on May 30.

Local synchronized swim team to perform June 11

By Diane Heck
Post Community Editor

Most people have only seen it on their television screens during broadcasts of the Summer Olympics. Some in the area, however, practice it weekly.

Delaware's only synchronized swimming team, a type of dancing in tune with a partner in the water, has been thriving two years now. The "Whirlwinds" are putting on a show for the community June 11 at to demonstrate their talents and to hopefully recruit more people to the sport.

The team evolved out of a class that's been taught at the Western YMCA for several years. Paula Cooper got involved in 1987 as a parent when her daughter Alexis began taking lessons. Pam Welch, who did synchronized swimming competitively in high school with her twin sister, joined with Cooper two years ago and led the girls into the competition mode.

And the seven-girl team, ages 9 to 14, has done excellent for being so new. They have collected many ribbons and medals.

At the competitions, the girls do figures and routines, Welch explains. "Figures are particular stunts the girls do. It takes a lot of body control to get into a prescribed position," she says. Some figure names are the flamingo, blossom, nova and the list continues. Routines are simply a combination of figures that flow together with an artistic flair.

Alexis Cooper and Tina Welch, the instructors' daughters, do a duet to "Beauty and the Beast." Alexis, 12, who's been doing synchronized swimming for six years, says the best thing about the sport is the competitions. "The hardest part is doing the support skull, which helps you keep your body above the water while doing a stunt," Alexis says.

Erin Engebretsen, 9, says she got into synchronized swimming because she loves to swim and likes doing tricks in the water. "It's not hard to hold your breath under water, but it is hard to hold your body under while holding your leg up in the air," Erin says.

Cooper and Welch want to make it clear that the class can just be taken for fun. Class members need not compete, but, as the girls have expressed, competition has been very rewarding for them.

Things are not perfect for the team, though.

"The problem is since we are Delaware's only team, we need to always go to Pennsylvania to compete," Cooper says. The groups at the competitions have been very supportive of their team, but they feel it would be more convenient to stay in Delaware. The Brandywine YMCA had a recreational class for awhile, but, unfortunately, they were not into competition, she says.

Another problem is the group's lack of time in the pool. "We have one hour per week for our class," Welch says, "and half of that time is spent sharing the pool with the moms and tots class."

The YMCA is nice enough to give the team special practice hours on Sunday before their competitions and shows, and the members often practice at recreational swims at the center, but they are hoping that enlarging the group will help their situations.

"In order to grow and become better, we need more people," Cooper says.

To become a part of the synchronized swimming class and/or team, a person must be able to swim three basic strokes, Cooper says. The coaches make the final decision.

All ages are welcome into the class. "A majority of the girls are 14 and under, but we'd love to see older girls join as well," Welch says.

To sign-up for the next class beginning in September, call the YMCA at 453-1482.

The June 11 free show will be held at 8 p.m. at the indoor pool of the Western YMCA at 2600 Kirkwood Highway across from Best. All are welcome.

SIDEWALK/from 1A

house," said Venezky.

"We all know that it is not realistic to expect the state to repair all the sidewalks. Then we get into which is fair, to have somebody repair that piece of sidewalk that is in front of their house, or to have everybody share in a tax to repair sidewalks everywhere. How about people who don't have sidewalks in their development?"

"The county has had trouble in places where the sidewalk is dangerous and damaged in getting anybody to fix them up," she continued. "The County Complaints Department is complaints driven. There has been nothing that the county could hold on to that would settle this once and for all."

Venezky believes that her amendment would give the code some teeth. It gives a property owner, who has been cited in violation of the code 20 days to make repairs. Any owner who fails to comply will be charged with a misdemeanor and fined not less than $100 for the first offense. A second offense carries a fine of not less than $250, and subsequent offenses, not less than $750 and/or imprisonment of no more than 30 days.

State Rep. (R-Newark) Steve Amick suggests that there is a precedent for setting up a system in which people are required to make an annual contribution to a fund which repairs sidewalks periodically throughout a community.

"In lower Delaware, we have what are known as tax ditches, which are part of the drainage system that is constructed and maintained in just that way," said Amick. "They are maintained by a region which adds a certain dollar amount to its tax bill."

"There would be some inequality in this method because some individuals have maintained their own sidewalks as it was assumed they were supposed to do while other individuals have not.

"So it is not entirely fair to collect taxes from those who have always maintained their sidewalks perfectly and collect the same amount from those who have not. But I have suggested to Brookside Community Inc. (in light of the 1991 Thomas et. al. sidewalk case) that if they want me to introduce legislation, I am prepared to do it.

They have never indicated to me that they are prepared to go ahead with it."

"The bottom line," said Amick, "is that DelDOT is not going to repair sidewalks. As a legislator, I'm not going to vote to allocate funds for them to do that and I can't conceive that others would either. We just don't have that kind of money."

THOMAS/from 1A

to have his crumbled sidewalk repaired, Thomas and some neighbors took the matter to court.

Thomas filed the case in Justice of the Peace Court 10 on August 28, 1991. He was joined by Frances and Brenda Chambers, and Betty Montgomery, who were also in the same boat with ailing sidewalks.

The County's position was that the homeowners violated New Castle County Code 10-35P or failing to repair an unsafe sidewalk. According to court manuscripts, the county held that "the sidewalks were the responsibility of the homeowners of the Brookside Community and the sidewalk should be an appurtenance accessory to the defendants' property."

When presiding Judge Rosalind Toulson ruled in favor of Thomas and the co-defendants, finding that the county was unable to establish their liability. Thomas felt that justice had been served.

Thomas and the others had contested the county code was unfair and did not apply to their situation because; They had never maintained or replaced the walkways, and they felt the state should be responsible for the sidewalks since originally, through resolution, the state highway department agreed to maintain the streets and sidewalks when the development was established during the late 1950s.

According to New Castle County office of Complaints in almost all instances, sidewalks lie within the right-of-way streets new to them. The streets are owned by either DelDOT or an independent entity like a community corporation that maintains them.

In addition to her ruling that released Thomas and his neighbors from responsibility for their sidewalks, Judge Toulson ruled, "the court cannot in any instance consider the sidewalks an appurtenance (an accessory) to the defendant's property."

State Rep. (R-Newark) Steve Amick, whose 25th District includes part of Brookside, specializes in real estate law, disagreed with Judge Toulson's decision.

"The assumption among real estate lawyers in New Castle County for many years," said Amick, "has been that the individual was responsible for maintaining the sidewalk even though code language has been rather vague."

"In my opinion," continued Amick, "the court's decision was in error and it is the county law that each individual land owner should try to maintain his sidewalk."

"Justice of the Peace Court has not precedential value," said Amick. "I also think an error was made in that the county did not appeal it. It could affect many properties in the county and it was important for the county to appeal it."

In cases like Thomas', the state (i.e. the County Complaints Department) has five days to launch an appeal in Superior Court if it disagrees with a Justice of the Peace Court's ruling.

Charles Fitzpatrick, executive assistant to the county executive, who was complaints officer of the County Complaints Department when the case was heard in 1991 and could have appealed said he didn't because Judge Toulson had made a fair ruling.

Fitzpatrick said county legal advisors agreed.

According to county code, in a subdivision with at least five homes, the state will consider repairing sidewalks if at least half the homeowners agree to an additional tax for the maintenance.

Thomas says after the court decision, he approached the Brookside Community Board asking for their support in drafting and circulation such a petition among the community's 1,338 homeowners, but they refused.

"I don't think that it is anyone's responsibility to fork out two or three thousand dollars in a lump sum of money to maintain something that belongs to the state, per their own laws," said Thomas.

"I feel that I have been let down by the county, state and Brookside Community Board."

Rose Yannes, Brookside Community Inc. board president, says when it comes to paying taxes to fix sidewalks, "A lot of residents that I know won't go along with it. They will say that they don't want to help someone else pay for their sidewalks when no one helped them when they paid thousands of dollars to have their sidewalks repaired," says Yannes. "Personally, I'm against it too. I feel that it should be each individual homeowner. You may not own it, but the sidewalk is your responsibility to repair and maintain."

Nearly two years after the Justice of the Peace Court 10 decision, Thomas still has a granulated sidewalk around his property. He feels that when it comes to repairing the sidewalk, he has fallen through the cracks.

THE POST

Get ready for crab cakes, clowns and more Saturday

By Marguerite Ashley
Special to The Post

I wish I could go to Newark Nite.

In a vast irony my 23 year love affair with Main Street has robbed me of the chance to be carefree during her biggest party—it's been my job since 1987 to organize downtown Newark's largest special event.

Newark Nite started in 1986 as the first big event of a business association forged from merchant concern, city responsiveness, and university technical assistance. Newark Nite '86—the only one I wasn't responsible for—was a delightful celebration of pedestrians overrunning Main Street to the tune of the Newark Community Band. It was the quintessence of the popcorn-smelling democracy that makes Main Street enjoyable on a daily basis.

Apparently Newark Nite has grown through the years into a beloved Newark tradition, but my memories are colored by the staffperson's directive to initiate, coordinate, budget, book, solicit, promote, outline, explain, brainstorm, and schlepp. Spontaneous fun and stress are braided together when I think of the first Saturday in June.

One of the best parts of planning Newark Nite is I get to hire my husband's band. Playing together for 20 years under various names, North Street Four is a product of the rich vein of North Wilmington musicians that has yielded the Watson Brothers, Gary Cogdell, and George Thorogood. Nationwide, few bands are better than this underrated, underpromoted, and badly dressed ensemble, and my wild Swede of a husband is the sexiest rock and roll singer in Delaware.

North Street Four's classic rock and roll is a good fit for Main Street's zero hype authenticity, much the same as Muzak seems compatible with the manicured inscape of Christiana Mall. To me, Newark Nite is a celebration of truth—we aren't trying to sell you an illusion of small town life, we invite you downtown to experience the real thing.

So see you Saturday night for crabcakes and clowns, dancing in the street, and good fellowship in the center of our community. Or so they tell me.

The author has been a Newark resident for 23 years. Newark Nite is sponsored by the Newark Business Association and the City of Newark.

A SINGLE SPIRIT

Italian festival unforgettable

By Diane Heck
Community editor

On Sunday, June 6, the annual Saint Anthony's Italian Festival in Wilmington will start up once again. Being a part of that parish and attending the school there as a child, my memories of the week-long celebration are exciting and unforgettable.

Every year, my experiences there are new and different, which, I guess, just follow the normal patterns of growing up, but one thing always remains the same—my wonderful Italian grandmother sitting in the same spot on the hill under the tree over by the Antonian—every year, every night.

When she worked, this was the week she took vacation.

She and my grandfather would be constantly surrounded by some friends and family they'd hadn't seen all year, and would be chatting away about new happenings or times gone by, every once in a while breaking into Italian dialect.

No matter how I changed, momm on the hill was a given. It's where people of the families of George, Ignudo, Bianchino, Conforti, Corrozi... etc. meet. It's where my friends know where to find me.

When I was a young girl in St. Anthony's grade school, I only knew of the midway. Forget the cafes, music and dancing, I wanted the rides. We felt on top of the world. We got out of school early because of the carnival, and were even able to buy discount, advance ride tickets.

I would ride the paratrooper and hurricane all night waving to momm on the ground below me.

I remember being a pre-teen and dancing through the crowd with my cousin Chris, probably just trying to get to the cannoli stand on the other side of the cafe, and getting stuck in the middle of the chicken dance, something I had never heard of before, and it was great.

That year I would run down to the midway and buy momm those instant jackpot tickets. I felt very adult.

And who could forget the year when the big storm came rushing through, and we ran to the little house across from the church. We got soaked, but it soon ended and we were back outside in the sun again.

Over the past few years, I've bumped into many girls from Padua—some I was thrilled to see, others I had hoped to never see again.

And I always practice my Italian before I go because I know I'll talk to Fr. Mario, my old teacher. The man used to throw chalk, but he was excellent.

Bridget, Shelly and I usually get ravioli from the Ballad Room, the grade school cafeteria, and sit up

Hats off to good sportsmanship

By Elbert N. Chance
Post columnist

A couple of weekends ago, thousands of golf enthusiasts attending the Kemper Open at the Avenel Golf Course in nearby Potomac, Md., and millions more watching this event on television were treated to a rare display of sportsmanship. It was unusual and refreshing at a time when most athletes appear concerned with their won achievements and statistics, particularly those affecting their pocketbooks.

Tom Kit, golf's leading money winner, was engaged in a head-to-head battle for the Kemper championship with Grant Waite, a young Australian who had performed well at home, but had not yet won on the American tour.

Waite found it necessary to take a drop without penalty from a marked area. He did so, but when he took his stance, part of one foot remained in the marked zone. Before he could strike the ball, Kit suggested that he drop it again so that his stance would be completely clear. This advice saved the young man from incurring a two-stroke penalty for a rules violation of which he was unaware and proved the eventual margin of his victory over the man whose advice he had followed. One wonders how many players in hot pursuit of a title and the thousands of dollars involved would have shown the decency and good sportsmanship that make Tom Kite shine in the galaxy of 20th century athletic stars.

For though golf is intended to be a sports for ladies and gentlemen, it is burdened with a superabundance of rules, many of them patently absurd. Many followers of the game will recall that several years ago, Craig Stadler was assessed a penalty for allegedly improving his stance when he placed a towel on the ground to protect his trousers from the mud when he knelt to punch out an errant shot from under a tree.

Unfortunately, almost every country club has one or two self-appointed rules interpreters who enjoy nothing more than calling a penalty on a hapless opponent for some hypothetical offense. Often, when the brouhaha is resolved, the troublemaker is found to be in error, but he frequently has succeeded in unnerving his rival or disrupting his rhythm, which undoubtedly was his intent from the beginning. It is nothing more than gamesmanship employed with the self-righteous justification that the action was taken to maintain the integrity of the game.

Having witnessed attempts by the unscrupulous to use the rules to obtain unfair advantage, it was particularly impressive to see one of the nation's finest players demonstrate for all of us that there is a place for sportsmanship even when the stakes are high.

It's a lesson worth remembering the next time we step on the tee.

Telephone Girls at the Front: One Hundred Over There and More Ready to Embark

Besides conforming to the qualifications set by the United States Signal Corps for membership in the Telephone Unit, which is a part of the United States army, the operators are now required to pass a psychological examination to determine their motives for wanting to go abroad.

These girls are stationed in groups of ten in American bases of supplies, and points of embarkation in France, according to Captain Wesson. They will not be nearer than twenty three miles from the front. New York state sent the greatest number of telephone operators, and California and Massachusetts tied for second place.

Stick to Your Jobs: Women Teachers of America Urged to Meet National Emergency

"There is no national asset today so much desired as a completely full school room. Stick to your jobs," is the statement of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense.

"City teachers should do war work during the summer. Let them join the army of women who are going on the land or get into some outdoor occupation where they will get the things God lets exist there which cannot be found indoors. They will return to the school with greater health and treasures of memory to bestow upon the children in their charge."

Thrift Shop Welfare Project To End For Lack of Quarters

The Newark Thrift Shop will conduct its final regular sale of used clothing on Friday, June 7, and a final clearance sale on June 14, with an enforced move from Thrift Shop quarters in the basement of the Academy Building.

A major fund-raising project of the Newark Area Welfare Committee, which provides emergency relief for needy persons on the local level, the Thrift Shop has operated from the Academy Building since 1961, after a move from quarters over the Newark Police Station.

City need of basement facilities in the Academy Building basement, precludes further use of this area by the Thrift Shop.

Fair To Feature Children's Safety With Eden Event

A Safety Fair will be held at the Eden Elementary School at the Eden Elementary School next Monday, with a rain date of June 4.

Activities for students in grades one through three will be held in the morning, with students in grades four through six having activities in the afternoon.

According to Eden Principal Elwood C. Bittenbender, the program was made possible through the cooperation of the Delaware Safety Council, Delaware State Police, Diamond State Telephone and Christiana Fire Department.

Sunday Memorial Program Featured By Ideal Weather

Newark's annual Memorial Day program headed by C. Vernon Stelle, former city councilman and retired U.S. Army captain, was conducted last Sunday afternoon with perfect weather, and Gold Star mothers and families of servicemen killed in Vietnam were honored guests.

Lt. Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt, represented Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. Only three Spanish American War veterans were able to attend this year's Memorial Day rites.

Chicken theft ruffles feathers

Why did the chicken cross the bridge? Newark police aren't entirely certain, but they believe it was to become a Delaware Blue Hen.

But let's start at the beginning of this fowl story.

Frank, the seven-foot chicken which invites customers to shop at Fisher's Food Center in Bridgeton, N.J. was stolen from his perch sometime in the early morning hours of May 23.

Frank was last seen in the back seat of a convertible crossing the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Until Sunday, that is, when Newark police officers were responding to several calls, found the fiberglass chicken in the 100 block of West Main Street. The luckless chicken was now cluckless, as well, having been beheaded.

Girls Club facility opening in Newark

The largest girls club facility in Delaware will be dedicated during ceremonies Thursday, June 9 in Newark.

The $2.1 million facility, located at Wyoming Road and Library Avenue in the city, will be the first permanent girls club building in Newark.

In order to serve area residents, Girl's Clubs of Delaware officials have rented spaces in the Newark area for the past 13 years.

County police officers, both Newark residents, honored for service to others

New Castle County Police Officers Sergeant Daniel Yeager and Patrol Officer George "Chip" Bell, both Newark residents, are being recognized as having a great commitment to the citizens' of New Castle County.

Yeager has been selected as the Officer of the Year for 1992, by the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington West. He is being recognized for his actions on January 12, 1992, which led to the arrest of a suspect involved in the rape and robbery of an 85-year-old woman.

The rape occurred in the Hyden Park area of Wilmington and a general broadcast was put out with the suspect's information. Yeager was working as a patrol supervisor in the Newark area and ascertained that the suspect resided in the area of his responsibility. The sergeant established surveillance in the residence which led to the arrest of the rape suspect.

During the subsequent interviews, a witness gave the sergeant information concerning the suspect's involvement in a homicide which occurred earlier that date in the city of Wilmington.

The Wilmington bureau of Police confirmed that they were investigating a robbery-homicide and stated that they had very little information. Yeager's data led to the arrest and conviction of those individuals who perpetrated the crime.

Yeager is a 16 year veteran of the police department. He resides in the Newark area with his wife Bernadette and their three children-Amanda, Michael, and Ashley.

Bell was named Officer of the Fourth Quarter for 1992. Bell was recognized for his quick action and display of sound judgment that resulted in saving the life of a 10-year-old boy trapped in an apartment fire.

Bell, who resides in Newark with his wife Wendy and their son James, was responding to an unrelated complaint on Nov. 3 when he discovered a fire in Building 19, apartment No. 4 of the Silver Spring Apartments.

The fire had not been reported and no one was aware of the potential tragedy building up. Bell conducted an evacuation of the building's tenants who were unaware of the fire's existence.

He then reentered the apartment building in an attempt to arouse the occupants of apartment No. 4. He made contact with the boy who had inadvertently started a grease fire. The boy did not flee the apartment for fear of parental punishment. He was lying down on the floor of the living room. Bell took the boy to safety, but suffered minor smoke inhalation which required treatment at the Christiana Medical Center.

and eat with my grandparents. For some reason, I usually wear a new white shirt, and have it speckled with sauce and wine before the night's out. I guess it's sort of a tradition.

"You don't have to sit with me," she always says. "Go and have fun with your friends, and check up with me later." I usually walk off, even though I'd rather hang back and peoplewatch with her.

The only year I remember her not being there was when she had her heart attack. Fortunately, she was OK, and was at the St. Francis Hospital right up the street from the festival. She probably could hear the commotion right outside her window, but we brought her up some red, white and green flags and meatball sandwiches to make her feel at home.

I thought the festival just might be a lot less sunny this year as well. She was very sick in the beginning of the year, but has steadily grown stronger and healthier. She already has some of her colorful outfits picked out for next week's festival, and her time on the hill where she meets and greets all who come her way.

The only time I find her angry there is when someone mistakenly takes "her table." She'll sit there close-by on one of her folding chairs she's brought from home, saying, "Look at them. Can you believe that?!" Eventually she'll get it back and the festa can continue.

I love her and hope to see her on that hill for many years to come. Hey, someday I'm going to need someone to watch my bambini when the chicken dance begins.

COUNTY/from 1A

with those fees," Roberts said.

As an example, he said people purchasing homes in the development of Country Woods near Del. 7 have paid out nearly $230,000 for building permits alone. That doesn't include real estate transfer taxes and newly taxable property, he said.

But isn't it a contradiction to vote for a budget then not vote for the tax increase that will fund it?

"Not when you represent an area which not only subsidizes itself but also contributes to the general fund," Roberts said. Though the impact fees his constituents pay out are county-wide, he said an area like Brandywine Hundred is built out and isn't contributing to the county the way his district is.

The council unanimously approved the $137 million budget. It includes money for a new library in Hockessin and for adding five new police officers to the county police force. It also includes money that will give county council members a 10 percent raise over the next two years.

Council members will receive raises of $1,250 this year and next, bringing their salaries to $27,500. The council president will receive a $3,000 raise over that time, bringing his salary to $33,000.

The council postponed considering a proposal to increase the county executive's $67,000 salary by 40 percent beginning in 1996. The proposal must be reviewed by the state legislature before the council can vote on it.

The salary increase would not affect the current county executive, Dennis Greenhouse, whose second and final term expires at the end of 1995.

"It is not an issue of great concern," said Carney. "He knew what the salary was when he ran for office."

Carney said the first proposal for the council members - which called for a $2,500 raise and a $2,500 expense account that would have been paid up front - did evoke concern from the public.

However, the raises that were approved did not appear out of line when residents were made aware of the salaries other counties paid out to both their elected and non-elected officials, he said.

CAPANO/from 1A

Burns said Capano also would agree to recognize the open space classification by not building the road.

Burns said repeating the county's rigorous application process for land development would push the project back at least six months.

Carbone said a meeting between her group and Burns was scheduled for this week. In addition to a lawyer, the group is represented by council member Roberts and state Rep. Richard Davis (R-Sherwood Forest).

The council approved a revised plan on April 13, permitting Capano to alter the plan from apartments to townhouses. Roberts said the original plan the council approved dates back to the 1970s.

Roberts said he favors voiding Capano's old plan.

THE POST

YOU ASKED

A feature devoted to discovering the answers to curious questions about people and places in Greater Newark

BY NANCY TURNER

You asked: Why does the Memorial Day Parade march against traffic on Main Street?

Resuming the regular traffic flow after the parade would probably be easier if the parade went in the same direction; but the explanation for this local phenomenon has more to do pre-parade festivities than it does with routine parade procedure.

What most parade watchers don't realize in Newark is that when the Aetna siren blares at 2:00 p.m. and the one and one-half hour wave of marching bands, fire trucks and marching units roll through town, the Memorial Day celebration is actually drawing to a close.

Before noon, the honorary veterans, American Gold Star Mothers and military units are served a regulation roast beef and potato dinner in the mess hall at Newark High School. The desert comes from the home kitchens of a dozen gracious cooks.

After the guests and troops have chewed the fat, they are shuttled to U. D. Mall for a 1 p.m. ceremony of honor and remembrance. Not until noon is it finally time to march off the starchy.

It is convenient to line-up the ranks on the west end of Main Street, where the marchers are already assembled on the U.D. Mall and the motor units can park on South College Avenue. When the parade starts, they all fall into step.

Newark's Memorial Day parade, now boasting more than 100 spit-shined units, is a proud tradition that predates 1940. During the half century that it has been in existence, it was canceled only once, during the heat of World War II. And although there is never a rain date for the Memorial Day parade, it has been rained out only twice.

Annual street festival Saturday

By Tonja Castaneda
Post Staff Reporter

This year's 8th annual Newark Nite Family Street Festival will be Saturday, June 5 from 5 to 9:30 p.m. and is estimated to be the biggest ever.

No admission is charged to attend.

New events planned for Newark Nite, which will shut down Main Street to all vehicles from Chapel Street to South College Avenue, include two more live music stages and areas—for a total of five, a craftsman show and a country dance at Newark Shopping Center.

"In 1986, the first year for Newark Nite, the festival was low key with one music stage and children's entertainment," said Marguerite Ashley, economic development coordinator of the Newark Business Association. "This year there will be five live music areas playing all at the same time."

"It will be music all night long with a big variety including cajun, classic rock n' roll, Dixieland and reggae," she said.

Ashley said the live music performances will be at the Old State Theatre Lot, Main and Chapel Streets, the Christina School District

Building, Newark Shopping Center and next to TCBY.

The "Best of the Homegrown Hour Concert," hosted by WXCX Radio and Nucar Pontiac, will be at Newark Shopping Center where the Harford County Dance Association will be giving dance instruction.

The Kid's Craft Corner on the Academy Lawn includes crafts, storytelling by Clem Bowen, the Clowns of Delaware, face painting and temporary tattoos. Barney, the famous purple and green dinosaur, will be a Volume II Books at 7 p.m.

Two food courts, located across from Klondike Kate's and at the Old State Theatre Lot, will serve a variety of food including funnel cakes, popcorn, hot dogs and hamburgers.

Bleachers will be set up at Center and Main streets to watch dance and fitness exhibitions.

John Casablanca's

Modeling Agency will be assisting with the fashion show at Main and Academy streets from 5 to 7 p.m., which will feature fashions from local stores. People wishing to pursue a career in modeling are invited to talk to the agency.

Other activities include an antique auto display and a raffle to win a $1,000 shopping spree in downtown Newark. Raffle tickets cost $1 and can be bought at the Newark Business Association booth at Center and Main streets.

"People come to Newark Nite to have fun," said Ashley. "One year some (people dressed as) Gorillas were walking down the street."

Bands performing at Newark Nite include: Schuykill Bayou Ramblers, Newark Deltones, North Street Four Classic Rock and Roll, Roaring Twenties Jazz Band, Newark Community Band, the Elderly Brothers and Nazaries Original Reggae.

The Schuykill Bayou Ramblers are part of this year's Newark Nite lineup.

"Non-profit groups like to fund raise and disseminate information at Newark Nite," said Ashley. "They are welcome to come set up a booth, but if they want to sell food they need to obtain a license."

She said craft sellers are invited to sell crafts for a fee of $25. Both craft sellers and non-profit groups should call Ashley at 366-1680 for location assignments.

According to Ashley, the public can park free in Newark Parking Authority lots, with the exception of the lot at Main and Academy which will be locked. She also said the public can use University of Delaware parking lots, but do not park in the reserved spaces.

The Newark Nite rain date is June 12. The Newark Business Association co-sponsors Newark Nite with the City of Newark.

Newark Outlook

From the staff of the Cooperative Extension Office
at the University of Delaware

I don't know about you, but I can't wait until fresh, vine-ripened tomatoes are available again. Those of us who grow our own were pretty disappointed with last year's crop and are looking forward to bumper crops of the tasty vegetable.

Last season was so cool and wet that the tomatoes took forever to ripen. The wet weather favored many of the leaf blight diseases and resulted in premature defoliation of many tomato plants in the area. Fortunately tomatoes are relatively easy to grow most years. They will thrive in most any soil, but do best in fertile, well-drained soil. As with most plants that produce fruit, they do best planted where they receive direct sunlight all day. For the little bit of effort to grow tomatoes you can expect each plant to yield about 8-10 pounds of fruit.

Besides being tasty they are actually good for you too. Dr. Sue Snider, our Extension Nutrition Specialist, tells me that a fresh tomato is a nutritious low fat, low calorie veggie that can provide substantial amounts of vitamin C, vitamin A, and folic acid. A four ounce tomato can provide 24 milligrams of vitamin C towards the RDA of 60. It provides 77 RE of vitamin A towards the 800-1000 that are recommended as well as 18 milligrams of folacid which is a hard nutrient to get into our diets. It also contributes fiber which is always needed in American diets. That one tomato can provide 0.8

A problem my brother-in-law has experienced is plants that produce plenty of leaves but no fruit. The solution to this malady is to avoid heavy nitrogen fertilizer use until after the first blossoms appear.

grams of fiber towards the 20-30 grams that are recommended.

To insure a good supply of tomatoes all season think about planting a few plants around the 4th of July for harvest into the fall. To keep the ones you have healthy and free from yield robbing early blight and other diseases I suggest spraying them every 7-10 days with a fungicide such as Daconil 2787, maneb, or mancozeb. A good organic alternative is using copper spray or dust on a regular basis. As the first fruit mature we are often deluged with calls about the bottom (blossom end) of the fruit being rotten, especially if the weather has been dry. This rotten bottom is usually dark, sunken and unappetizing. The problem is caused by a lack of calcium in the fruit, which occurs when there is not enough water available to carry the calcium from the soil into roots then to the developing fruit. Mulching plants to provide an even supply of water cures the problem as well as adequate watering during dry spells.

A problem my brother-in-law has experienced is plants that produce plenty of leaves but no fruit. The solution to this malady is to avoid heavy nitrogen fertilizer use until after the first blossoms appear. Once the first fruit is the size of a half-dollar, tomatoes will benefit from a heaping teaspoon of 5-10-10 or 5-10-5 mixed into the soil 8-10 inches from the stem of each plant. Repeat every couple of weeks.

I wish all you gardeners the best this season, and I hope all your tomatoes are all juicy and plentiful, and hopefully earlier than last year. If you need some ideas on what to do with your bounty we have a fact sheet on preserving tomatoes including making juice, salsa, hot barbecue sauce, ketchup and others. # These quick dishes can involve the whole family

The American family is so different from what it was even just a few decades ago. There have been so many changes in lifestyles, eating habits and food preparation.

Today cooking has become more of a joint project—and that is good. It is my goal to bring us all together around one stove—especially the kids.

The following recipes can be used individually or as a complete menu. Try to get the whole family involved in the preparation. You'll be glad you did.

CHICKEN BROTH WITH CUSTARDS (serves 6 to 8)

This soup will be fun for the kids. The recipe comes from the turn of the century, when people in this country thought soup a necessity, not an addition.

If you use a small cookie cutter to cut the custards you can make some funny shapes for the younger members of your clan.

8 eggs, beaten
3/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
Pinch of cayenne pepper
2 1/2 quarts chicken stock, fresh or canned
2 bay leaves
1/4 cup cornstarch
1/4 cup cold water
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Salt and freshly ground white pepper to taste
2 carrots, peeled and julienned
2 stalks celery, julienned
1 medium yellow onion, peeled and julienned

Parsley for garnish

In a mixing bowl combine the beaten eggs with the milk, salt and cayenne pepper.

Pour the mixture into a greased 8-by-8-inch baking dish and cover with aluminum foil. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until set. Set aside to cool.

In a 6-quart pot heat the chicken stock and the bay leaves.

Mix together the cornstarch and the water until smooth. Stir the cornstarch mixture into the pot and bring it all to a boil.

Simmer for 5 minutes, stirring until smooth and lump free. Add the Worcestershire sauce, salt and white pepper.

Stir in the carrots, celery and onions and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Remove the bay leaves.

Remove the cooked egg mixture from the baking dish. Cut into fancy shapes with a small cookie cutter or cut into squares with a knife.

Add to the soup and heat for a minute or two. Serve with parsley garnish.

LOW-SALT/LOW-FAT CHICKEN CRAIG (serves 3 to 4)

Craig Wollam, my assistant, thinks like I think. When he says "low-fat" he means low animal fat.

The amount of olive oil in this dish does not bother either of us because olive oil is one of the helpful rather than hurtful oils. Besides, most of the marinade is drained from the chicken before cooking.

This dish has a bright and herby flavor.

1 3-pound chicken, cut into eighths
1 tablespoon fresh sage
1 tablespoon fresh rosemary
1 tablespoon fresh oregano
4 cloves garlic, peeled
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 cup olive oil
1/2 cup dry white wine
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Cut the wings off the breast and pull all the skin off the chicken pieces. Save the wings and skin to make stock at another time.

Chop the sage, rosemary, oregano, garlic and black pepper together to make an herb paste.

Rub the chicken well with the paste and place in a bowl. Add the oil and toss so that everything is coated.

It is best to marinate this covered in the refrigerator overnight, but 2 hours of marinating will work fine.

Drain most of the marinade before cooking.

Heat a large non-stick frying pan and saute the chicken about 10 minutes per side. No additional oil will be needed because of the marinade.

The chicken is done if the juices run clear when pierced with a knife.

Add the wine and lemon juice to the hot pan of chicken and simmer a couple of minutes to reduce the liquid and form a sauce.

Serve the chicken with the sauce spooned over the top.

Note: The remaining marinade can be refrigerated for several days and reused to prepare another chicken dish.

The Frugal Gourmet By Jeff Smith

STUFFED POTATOES (serves 6)

I remember the first time I tasted a stuffed potato such as you will find in this recipe. It was in a rather mediocre restaurant, but I thought I was in heaven.

You know from this story that I was very young at the time, since stuffed potatoes were dumped in the American restaurant business for the sake of a newer, somewhat cutesy vegetable line.

Well, I want my stuffed potatoes to come back and thus I offer this recipe.

3 large baking potatoes
2 tablespoons olive oil
Kosher salt to taste
1/4 pound bacon
1 bunch scallions, chopped
1/2 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
Paprika to taste

Wash the potatoes and drain. Place in a bowl and rub with olive oil and kosher salt.

Place the potatoes directly on an oven rack in the center of the oven. Bake at 375 degrees for 1 hour. Remove and allow to cool until the potatoes can be handled.

Fry the bacon until crisp. Drain on paper towels. Chop the bacon coarsely and set aside.

Cut the cooked potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out the insides, leaving about 1/4 inch of potato attached to the skins. Set the skins aside. Beat the potato with the bacon, scallions and half the butter. Add the sour cream, Worcestershire and salt and pepper. Refill the skins and place on a baking sheet. Drizzle the tops with the remaining melted butter and sprinkle with paprika.

With the oven on broil, bake the potatoes in the center of the oven until nicely browned and hot throughout, about 10 to 15 minutes.

CABBAGE SAUTEED WITH CARAWAY (serves 6)

This method of cooking cabbage keeps the flavor fresh and bright. Overcooked cabbage is not a joy to anyone.

3 tablespoons olive oil
3 cloves garlic, peeled and crushed
1 medium yellow onion, peeled and sliced

2 1/2 pounds green cabbage, cored and sliced 1/8-inch thick
1 1/2 teaspoons caraway seeds

DRESSING

1/2 cup olive oil
Juice of 1/2 lemon
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste.

Heat a large frying pan and add the oil, garlic and onion. Saute over medium-low heat for 5 minutes until the onion becomes tender. Do not brown.

Add the cabbage and caraway seeds and saute 3 to 4 minutes until the cabbage just becomes tender but still a bit crisp. Pour onto a sheet pan and spread out to cool completely.

Combine the ingredients for the dressing in a mixing bowl and add the cooled cabbage mixture. Toss well, chill and serve.

CELERY SLAW (serves 6)

Though I love sauteed cabbage, I do not like cabbage coleslaw. I know that sounds like some sort of heresy, but I dislike that sweet dressing on cabbage.

This celery slaw is not sweet at all, though it is rich enough to simply add to other chopped greens.

1 1-3/4-pound head celery, cleaned and julienned
1 large white onion, peeled and thinly sliced
1/4 cup chopped parsley

DRESSING

1/2 cup olive oil
1 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup sour cream
3 tablespoons white-wine vinegar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon celery seeds, whole
1/2 teaspoon Colman's dry mustard
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

Combine the celery, onion and parsley in a large stainless-steel bowl.

Blend together the ingredients for the dressing.

Toss with the vegetables, cover and refrigerate for 6 to 8 hours or overnight. Toss a few times while refrigerating.

June ushers in summer festivals at Longwood

To borrow a line from "Carousel," "June is bustin' out all over!" Along with the month comes the beginning of the wonderful summer festivals, outdoor concerts and we turn our performing arts desires away from the concert halls and opera houses to the out of doors.

In this area, when one combines the performing arts and a beautiful natural setting for performances, one thinks of Longwood Gardens, the former estate of Pierre S. duPont in nearby Kennett Square, Pa. And well one should!

Priscilla Johnson, head of performing arts at Longwood, has issued their schedule of events in a 16-page brochure. Eleven of those pages are event listings! The variety Priscilla has lined up for the warmer months is truly astonishing. There are programs for every taste and age. At Longwood this summer, concert going really can be a family affair.

The 18-week celebration of flowers, fountains and fireworks will feature 58 concerts, theater and dance performances on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening beginning at 7 p.m. The settings are as diverse as the gardens themselves, from the great outdoor theater with its water curtain, to intimate nooks surrounded by verdant growth. The finale? The world famous fountains with the light display.

As far as taking your whole family, or just yourself, is concerned, it is important to note that most of the events at Longwood are free of any extra charge. Just the garden admission covers all the fun and covers it all day long. You may go early, have dinner at the restaurant on the grounds and then attend the concert of your choice. There are some concerts for which admission is charged, but not many.

THE ARTS Phil Toman

I will not attempt to repeat Priscilla's eleven pages of information in my column today, but I will highlight a few of the events for you.

This weekend the Savoy Opera Company will be performing their annual Gilbert and Sullivan operetta and this year it is "The Gondoliers." The Basically Brass Quintet will offer music from Bach to the Beatles and Beyond on June 8. On June 12 the Brandywine Ballet Theater will offer The Rose Adagio from Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty" among others. Mirth, Music and Magic with the Bellringer Theater Works will hold forth on June 24. Two days later the Kennett Symphony Orchestra will offer a "pops" concert and the Newark Community Band will round out this month.

This summer Longwood Gardens will offer 58 concerts in beautiful outdoor settings, everything from ballet to folk songs to magic - and more!

July will be a busy month too. On the first of the month the Chester County Community Band will be on tap. Anne Hills will sing folk songs on the sixth and Landis and Company will perform magic on the 13th. The Wind Symphony of Southern New Jersey will be in the open air theater on the 17th. The Brandywiners, Ltd., will be an extended run of their annual musical on July 29, also in the open air theater. This year it's "Camelot." That is sure to be a great evening, especially with the fountain display added.

August will find some fine programs in the outdoor air. The Brandywiners, Ltd., will continue "Camelot" through August 7. Timlin and Kane's "Celtic Fancy" will be offered the 10th. The

POST GAME

Softball tourney showcases best

Delcastle's Recreation Complex was the place to be Saturday if you have any interest in high school softball.

There were three quarterfinal round games of the Delaware High School Softball Tournament going on simultaneously. All three were great games and provided great drama.

Glasgow's 3-1 victory over St. Mark's was the first game to end. Most of that crowd made its way over to the William Penn-Mt. Pleasant game. The Green Knights upset the second-seeded Colonials 2-0 as Erica Schwanke did it all for Mt. Pleasant.

William Penn, the Flight A champions, lost only twice all year and both came to Schwanke and Mt. Pleasant. That quarterfinal matchup for the Colonials was as tough an assignment that early in the tournament as a team is going to get.

When that game ended the crowd ambled over to the St. Elizabeth-Padua tilt. It was another terrific game decided by just one run, Padua coming out on top 2-1.

The committee did a good job in getting the complex at such late notice. If Delcastle wasn't secured as a site, the Glasgow-St. Mark's game would've been played in Smyrna. There's no sense sending two upstate teams down to Smyrna if a suitable site is upstate.

Certainly any of the four remaining teams can win the championship. Although Mt. Pleasant beat William Penn twice, it fell twice to Glasgow. The Dragons, on the other hand, were probably happy to see Penn bounced from the tourney, since they lost twice to the conference champs.

Look for the state titlist to come from the Padua-Glasgow semifinal. They seem to have the best all around teams. Don't, however, expect that prediction in stone because anything can happen and usually does.

St. Mark's boys survive

The St. Mark's High baseball team got all it wanted and more from Lake Forest in the opening round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament.

The second-seeded Spartans nipped Lake 6-5 in a game that had an unusual ending.

St. Mark's Coach Tom Lemon elected to intentionally walk a batter with the bases loaded and the score 6-4 in the seventh inning. The batter had hit a monstrous home run in the previous inning. With the score 6-5, the next batter hit a shot to left field that Brad Silcox hauled in to preserve the win for St. Mark's.

The win, coupled with Tuesday's, advanced the Spartans to the semifinals.

Kudos for the gutsy call by Lemon. It's certainly something you won't see in a while.

MILLTOWN — The Glasgow High softball team moved a step closer to another championship appearance with a 3-1 win over St. Mark's Saturday in a quarterfinal round game of the Delaware High School Softball Tournament.

Beth Phipps' two-run single with two outs in the fifth inning provided the Dragons (16-3) with the winning runs and winning pitcher Julie Geissler scattered eight hits in limiting the Spartans (10-9) to just one run.

Defense, however, was the main reason that Glasgow advanced to the semifinals and St. Mark's didn't. The Dragons turned three double plays, threw two runners out at home plate and another out at third base. St. Mark's, on the other hand, committed four costly errors that directly led to the Glasgow runs.

"It was great," said Glasgow Coach Larry Walker whose team has advanced to, at least, the semifinals of the state tournament in each of his first two years as coach of the Dragons' softball squad. "All those double plays were unbelievable. Anytime you get defense like that it picks up the whole team."

Glasgow jumped on top in the bottom of the first inning.

Leadoff hitter Laurie Brosnahan reached on an infield single and

Spartans' baseball squad wins two games

MILLTOWN — The St. Mark's High baseball team was looking for a breather in the second round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament and got one with a 9-2 victory over Delmar Tuesday afternoon.

The Spartans (18-2), after squeaking by Lake Forest 6-5 in the tournament opener Saturday, had a much easier time in Tuesday's victory. St. Mark's jumped to a 6-0 lead, and after Delmar threatened to make the game close like Saturday's, pulled away for the victory.

The win advanced St. Mark's to the semifinal round of the tournament. The championship game is scheduled for Saturday at 2 p.m. at the University of Delaware.

"We hit the ball really well today," said St. Mark's Coach Tom Lemon whose team banged out eight hits. "We even hit a lot of outs hard."

St. Mark's took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on Jack Birch's two-run bloop double to left field that scored Jamie Nichols and Jimmy Lynch.

The lead was stretched to 6-0 in the third inning.

Shortstop Brian August led off with a walk and Jason Thomas followed with a single to left. John Griffith hit a double to left that

Newark nine ousted by Caesar Rodney

The Newark High baseball team's magnificent run finally came to an end.

The Yellowjackets (10-8), who stormed through the second half of the season for an improbable berth in the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament, fell 5-4 to Caesar Rodney in the opening round Saturday in Camden.

Falling behind 4-0, the 'Jackets rallied to tie the game with two runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings.

"Early on, our nervousness was a big factor," said Newark Coach Harry Davies of his team's slow start in the tournament game. "We don't have anybody with real tournament experience and, initially, that showed."

The Riders (14-5) got a pinch-hit, run-scoring single from Kenny Mitchell in the bottom of the fifth to provide the winning run.

"We hit the ball hard and they made some great plays," Davies said. "You have to give them credit."

The loss doesn't diminish, however, the fine turnaround the 'Jackets completed. The team's record was 2-6 early on and just getting back to .500 seemed out of reach.

"I think when we beat William Penn (a 5-1 victory in April) that was a sign we could be competitive in the conference," said Davies, whose team finished third in Flight A. "After we were beaten by Concord and Brandywine the first time around, we had a meeting in which I told the team that [Brandywine and Concord] were the type of teams we should be playing with."

That goal was certainly met as Newark rebounded in the second half of the conference schedule with six straight conference wins, including ones over Concord and Brandywine.

"Our pitching was just great," Davies said. "Jeff Parent and Mike Johnston did a fine job for us, especially after the games were spread out and we weren't playing three games a week. They both through a lot of strikes and kept us in games."

"Our defense was also very good, especially the left side of the infield. We were able to catch the ball really well."

Caravel falls 1-0 to Delmar in first round tourney game

Hackett throws two-hitter in last high school game

By Marty Valania
Post Sports Editor

BEAR — The Caravel baseball program just can't seem to get over the hump.

The Bucs, who have never won a state tournament game, lost a 1-0 pitcher's-duel to Delmar Saturday in the opening round of the Delaware High School Baseball Tournament.

Jason Hackett, Caravel's fireballing left hander, pitched a two-hitter with 13 strikeouts but the Bucs' offense was stymied by Delmar pitcher Chris Lloyd. Lloyd allowed just four Caravel hits and just two over the last six innings.

The lone run of the game came in the fifth inning.

Delmar rightfielder Jimmy King, with one out, drew a walk and advanced to second on a wild pitch. Following a strikeout, John Layton hit a bad-hop single to left field that enabled King to score. Layton's hit appeared headed right for Buc third baseman, John Markle, but took a big bounce over his head and into left field.

"This was a tough one to lose," said Caravel Coach Paul Niggebrugge. "It was a great game, though."

"It's really a game of inches. That ball was hit right at our third baseman and it hits a pebble, or something, and goes into left. That's the ballgame."

Caravel, which completed its season with a 10-7 record, had its best opportunity to score in the first inning.

Hackett led off with a single up the middle and catcher Scott

McFarland followed with another hit to put runners on first and second. Shortstop Dave Milhorn then hit a groundball to the third baseman, who threw to second for the force out on McFarland.

Hackett, however, after rounding third base continued home where he was thrown out by the Delmar second baseman. A strikeout ended the inning.

In the fourth inning Caravel again looked poised to get on the scoreboard.

Second baseman Brad Hoffman led off with a booming triple to right-center. Lloyd, though, got the next three batters on a pop out to center field, a ground ball to first base and a pop out to second.

"They deserve to win," said scored August. Nichols singled home Thomas; and Lynch's sacrifice fly to center field plated Griffith. Nichols would score on Jack Birch's infield out.

Nichols, the Spartans' pitcher, appeared to be cruising to an easy victory, allowing just one hit while striking out nine in the first four innings. However, he ran into control problems in the fifth inning as he walked two batters and gave up a hit.

Mark Zych relieved Nichols but the Wildcats were able to get two runs following another walk and an error.

"We wanted to stop their momentum," Lemon said. "They were rallying and we were stagnated."

"Zych has done well in that role for us all year. I wasn't concerned about using pitchers for the next game; I was only concerned about winning this one."

Brad Silcox, one of the Spartans' starting pitchers, came in to pitch the last two innings.

August's booming home run over the hill in left field sparked a three-run St. Mark's rally in the sixth inning to seal the victory.

Softball tourney to benefit Newarker

Zeneca Pharm. tourney will benefit Jimmy Hoffman

Zeneca Pharmaceuticals will host a softball tournament this weekend to benefit former employee and softball team member Jimmy Hoffman.

The eight-team tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday at the Zeneca company fields on Old Baltimore Pike.

Hoffman was badly injured in a car accident a few years ago which left him paralyzed from the waist down. Each year, Zeneca's softball team raises money to give to Hoffman and his family in hopes of making his rehabilitation expense a little easier.

Dignitaries expected to attend the championship game on Sunday include Roger Martin (State Sen.), Bill Oberle (State Rep.), Bob Black (President, Zeneca Pharmaceuticals Group), Bob Milkovics (Vice Pres. Tech. Operation) and Ron Matthews (site Manager).

Teams slated to compete include East End Cafe, State Line Liquors, Newark Auto Bufts, Taylor's Ink, Delmarva Power, DWAGS and Dupont Crafts.

K'wood Warriors split four games

Despite allowing only four goals in four games the Kirkwood Warriors left East Stroudsburg, Pa. with a 2-2 record. A tough defense led by defenders Joe Goodfriend, Mark Prata and Robbie Sanderson along with goaltending by Joe Alessdrini and Andrew Bonis held two opponents scoreless.

Unfortunately, Sparta (N.J.) and Wyomissing (Pa.) each defeated the Warriors 1-0.

In the victories over Mt. Olive (N.J.) and Freehold (N.J.) goals and assists were awarded to mid-fielders Mark Facciola, Dusty Keith, Dan Watras, Chris Wyatt; and forwards Michael Ferenz, Richard Heffron, Josh Pyle and Michael Welsh.

The Warriors continue their season with the under-10 Delaware State Cup semifinals this Saturday.

Kirkwood Talons sweep through Maryland soccer tournament

The Kirkwood Talons under-9 boys soccer team chalked up another tournament win this weekend by defeating the West Chester Knights 3-1 in the finals of the Columbia (Md.) Invitational Soccer Tournament.

The Talons scoring was led by Ryan Dzielak (two goals) and Thomas Hodges with one.

Chris Maczynski was outstanding in goal as was the Talon defense of Jordy Hoerl, Jeff Merrill and Kyle Mullin. Strong midfield play came from Patrick Johnston, Jason Carty, Matt Goff and Mychael Cunningham.

The Talons win ended a 48-game win streak by the Knights.

In preliminary action the Talons defeated the Columbia Cobras 8-1, the Cinnaminson Hurricanes 3-1, the Baltimore F.C. 1-0 and tied the Columbia All-Stars 1-1.

Against the Cobras, Brian Healy and Adam Chandlee scored two goals each while Dzielak, Carty, Hoerl and Hodges each scored one. Against Cinnaminson, Healy and Dzielak scored.

Against the All-Stars, Dzielak scored the lone goal and against Baltimore Jeff Mangat scored the only goal.

The Talons will play in the Delaware Cup semifinals this Saturday.

moved to second on Dana Bumgardner's sacrifice bunt (Bumgardner also was safe on a Spartan error). Chas Friant followed with a single up the middle that, following a bobble in the outfield, enabled Brosnahan to scamper home from third base after stopping at the bag.

Geissler and St. Mark's pitcher Adrienne Maloney both took over the next few innings, not allowing the other team any serious scoring opportunities.

The Spartans, however, did threaten in the pivotal fourth inning.

Catcher Leslie King led off with a single to left field. Kristin Kayatta followed by drawing a walk, putting runners on first and second base with nobody out.

Jen Skinner then singled to left where Glasgow left fielder Cindy Neel fielded the ball cleanly and fired a strike to catcher Lisa Saulsbury, who — while making a strong block of the plate — was able to tag King, who was trying to score from second, for the inning's first out.

The throw home enabled Kayatta and Skinner to move up to third and second base with still just one out. The next batter, Andrea Beccaria, then hit a ground ball to third base. Glasgow's Amy Blouse fielded the ball, checked Kayatta, and fired to first base for the out. Kayatta, who broke home on the throw, was out at home on Diana Brown's perfect throw home. The double play ended the inning and set off a wild Glasgow celebration. "We only had one runner thrown out at home all year," said St. Mark's Coach Guy Townsend. "And we get two thrown out in one inning. Glasgow made the plays. You have to give them credit."

Two more runs in the fifth inning stretched the Dragons' lead to 3-0.

Neel led off the inning by reaching on an infield error. Following two outs, Friant walked and stole second to put runners on second and third for clean-up hitter Phipps.

Phipps, who singled and lined out in two previous trips to the plate, stroked a single up the middle to drive home both runners.

"I've been hitting the ball good all year," said Phipps. "I just tried to do the same thing in that situation."

"I've been in those situations before (for Midway's summer traveling team) and felt really comfortable."

St. Mark's added its only run in the seventh inning.

Skinner led off with a single, stole second and scored on Val Speakman's single to right field. Geissler, however, was able to get the final outs of the game securing the Dragons' second trip in as many years to the semifinals.

"It was one of our best games ever," said Friant, who had a hit and scored a run. "Those double plays really sparked us. It feels really good to still have a chance to win it."

PARKS &amp; REC SOFTBALL

Pat's, East End and Taylor's battle for Blue Division lead while Time Out leads Gold

By Charlie Remsburg
Special to The Post

A funny thing happened as Taylor's Ink and East End Cafe jostled for the top spot in the Blue Division of the Newark Softball League.

First, once-beaten East End blasted previously unbeaten Taylor's in a May 17 double-killing. A week later, Taylor's evened at least one score with a 10-3 romp over East End.

Oh, the funny thing?

As last week ended, neither team was in first place! There, albeit, by the narrowest of margins, was Pat's Delivery/Parkline.

Pat's ripped El Sombrero 21-4 and rallied past Yankee Restaurant 14-13 for eight straight wins and a surprising 12-2 mark in the division. Taylor's Ink is 11-2 after victimizing East End and bumping Crab Trap 14-1 and 5-2. After losing, East End advanced to 11-2 by outscoring El Sombrero 18-11.

"It's still too early in the season to predict how it'll end," said Pat's Delivery Manager Pat Roby. "We're happy to be in there. We've also been very lucky."

Pat's luck held against Yankee Restaurant. Down 13-11 in the seventh inning, Bob Green singled home the tying runs and Vito Demaco followed with a pinch-hit single to plate the winner in a 14-13 contest.

In Pat's sweep of El Sombrero 21-4 and 14-12, Tom Murphy and Mary Albert were 14-for-17 collectively while splitting four homers.

Taylor's 10-3 whipping of East End was led by Glenn Thompson and Ken Tompkins' combined 6-for-6 with five RBIs.

"In our games with East End, not one has been close," said Taylor's player/coach Dave Michaloski. "Someone just gets momentum, and they're hard to stop."

Crab Trap found Taylor's hard to stop, losing 14-1 and 5-2. Ernie Hopkins led the rout with a 3-for-3 and three RBIs, while Michaloski's two-run triple helped provide the difference in the 5-2 decision.

"In our three straight wins, a switch to Mike Wegman as pitcher has made a big difference," Michaloski said.

East End had its nine-game winning streak broken in the loss to Taylor's.

"We didn't hit," said East End Cafe Manager Mike Brogan. "The intensity we had in the doubleheader wins wasn't there."

"It did return in an 18-11 romp over El Sombrero. Joe Henry hit a three-run homer, Matt Bonk was 4-for-4 with a double, triple and three RBIs, and Mike Clarke returned from knee surgery with a 3-for-4 performance.

Pat's was 64-8 in the Gold Division the past two seasons, but with five key lineup changes, was not expected to challenge the big two Blues immediately.

"Pat's has a very good team," acknowledged Brogan. "They're very competitive, and always come up with enough."

"Pat's is for real," added Michaloski. "They're a very good ball club. Pat Roby is good for softball."

State Line moved into a solid fourth place position in the Blue Division by beating Vision Source 10-7 and Newark Auto Buffs 10-4 and 10-3.

"Doug Allen's averaging 4-for-5 for us, and is a hitting machine," said State Line's Larry Smith. "Our lineup constantly changes, but when we have it together, we're capable of beating anyone."

Adding Blue Division wins were Yankee

Restaurant over Glasgow Gulf 5-2 and 3-1, Crab Trap over Newark Auto Buffs 9-8 and 25-11, and Vision Source over Gulf 8-2 and 12-4.

While the race is tight in the Blue, Time Out Sports (14-1) has moved out to a three-game margin in the Gold Division. Manager John Slack, Sr.'s team has rung up six straight wins by victimizing Margaretten Mortgage 7-4 and 10-3; and Fair Hill Auto 13-2 and 9-4.

"We play great defense and make big plays," said Time Out pitcher Joe Krawczyk.

"Joe's the best pitcher," said Slack. "He's very consistent and also hits well."

A series of young legs headed by leadoff hitter Henry Wagner, has propelled Time Out.

In its recent four wins, Wagners was on base 11 times, scoring in most instances.

Scorer's Pub moved into second place at 11-4 with wins over Deco Signs 5-2 and 10-8 after a 14-8 loss to Williams' Realtors. The Realtors (8-5) moved to within percentage points of Deco (10-6) for third by also beating Thirtysomething. 16-7.

"Everything's falling into place," said Williams player/manager George Williams. "We're riding the hot bats of Zane Collings, John Friel and Mart Lukk. We're relaxed and benefiting by the doubleheaders."

Adding Gold victories were Thirtysomething; 9-8 and 18-11 over GRPC; Schumacher 14-9 past Moon Dogs Cafe; and Fair Hill Auto over Schumacher 12-11. Deco Signs split with Moon Dogs, winning 8-1 and losing 6-5.

The League paused for Memorial Day and will resume Wednesday and Thursday with make-up games Friday.

MILLTOWN — The St. Mark's High softball team made big improvements this season.

After going 5-11 last season, the Spartans posted 10-9 record this season against the state's strongest schedule — and they advanced to the quarterfinals of the state tournament, upsetting fifth-seeded Laurel along the way.

The Spartans season ended following Saturday's 3-1 loss to Glasgow in the second round of the Delaware High School Softball Tournament.

"I really can't complain about this season," said St. Mark's Coach Guy Townsend. "We went from 5-11 to the state quarterfinals. We made some real progress this season."

The Spartans had to contend with a nearly impossible schedule that featured the tournament's top-seed, Padua, twice; state quarterfinalist St. Elizabeth twice, Glasgow twice, Caravel, Wilmington Christian and William Penn just to name a few.

"We didn't concern ourselves with the Top 10 rankings," Townsend said. "We knew we had a good team but we played all the best teams in the state. Nobody plays a harder schedule than us. Any team will get some losses playing that type of schedule."

The Spartans jumped all over highly regarded Laurel in the opening round of the state tournament last Wednesday.

Shortstop Kristin Kayatta, who will attend the University of Delaware on a softball scholarship next school year, led the Spartans' attack by going 4-for-4 with a triple and two RBIs. Rightfielder Shannon Lipp was 3-for-4 with a three-run triple and centerfielder Jen Skinner added a double.

St. Mark's scored eight runs in its first four at-bats on its way to the win.

"We went down there and jumped on them early," Townsend said of his team's trip to Laurel. "We banged out 12 hits and played really well."

Freshman pitcher Adrienne Maloney, who posted a 10-9 record on the season, hurled a one-hitter.

"Adrienne has been a big part of our success this season," said Townsend. "She came in a did a great job."

CARAVEL/from 1B

Niggebrugge. "We had a guy on third and nobody out and couldn't get him home."

"I just really feel badly for the seniors on this team. They really wanted this game. The effort was there and that's what really counts."

"It's still great experience for us. We have to keep playing in games like this for us to be successful. We're just going to keep at it."

Caravel entered the tourney as the seventh seed while Delmar, the Henlopen Conference Southern Division champions, were the 10th seed.

Delmar advanced to play second-seeded St. Mark's Tuesday afternoon at St. Mark's.

The semifinals are Thursday with the final Saturday at the University of Delaware.

DE/PA WOMEN'S SOCCER

Yellowjackets 6, Pandas 0 — Jill Cope and Becca McKay each scored two goals while Mackenzie Streit and Karen Dennis scored one each to lead the Yellowjackets.

WRITING An Ad

- Start your ad with what you are selling.
- Be descriptive. List your item's best features.
- Avoid abbreviations. Too many abbreviations can confuse the reader.
- Always state the price of an item. If you are flexible on price, include "negotiable" or "best offer".
- Complete your ad with a phone number and the hours in which you will receive calls.
- Including the word "please" in your ad increases responses.

Ad charges and policies

Please check your ad the first day to see that all information is correct. This will ensure your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the very first day your ad appears to make any changes or corrections. By doing this we can credit you for the first day if an error occurred. The newspaper's financial responsibility, if any, for errors of any kind is limited to the charge for the space for one day.

The publisher wants to do everything possible within the confines of good taste and legal constraints to help you advertise your products or services to your best advantage. The newspaper does reserve the right to edit or reject any copy or illustration that does not meet the newspaper's standards of acceptance. We make every effort to ensure that our advertisers are reputable. However, we welcome your comments and suggestions concerning any of our advertisers. Call Classified and ask for the manager.

Newark High first called Main Street home

A map of the village of Newark dated 1757 which accompanied a request to England for a charter to operate a local farm market showed the sketch of a rudimentary building marked "school" at about the present location of the National 5 & 10 store.

In all probability, however, even this simple school was private. Public education began in Delaware in 1829 when the General Assembly, under the leadership of Secretary of State Willard Hall, passed the "Free School Act." School districts were drawn up and numbered, each to receive state appropriations.

Usually a district consisted of about 35 pupils and one building. It is said of that era that a school was a school district. When a district had enough pupils for two schools, another district was created rather than building a second school within the same district.

In 1831, citizens of Newark built the first school on record in what was termed, District No. 39. This was behind 53 East Main Street. Not long after, another one-room school house, No. 41 was constructed and is now part of the dwelling at 143 West Main Street.

In 1873, three years before General Custer met his fate at Little Big Horn, two school districts, No. 39 and 41, were joined into a United School District.

Prior to 1884, Newark residents were unable to obtain more than an eighth grade education within the area. For higher education, they either had to attend private schools such as the Newark Academy or moved in with friends and relatives in the Wilmington District.

Within 10 years, the two schools were replaced by a new two-story brick building erected at a cost of $10,000 at 83 East Main Street which was opened for use in 1884. This building is now the administrative office of the Christina

Newark opened its first high school on the upper floors of the new school building. The curriculum was designed strictly for college preparation.

class. Five months before this, the U.S.S. Maine was sunk in Havana harbor and the United States was now at war. The class of 1898 was a small one but it was already evident that the high school had outgrown its quarters at 83 East Main Street, the current site of the administrative offices of the Christina School District. That year, the Newark Academy, an old private school, closed permanently. Its location is on the corners of Main and Academy Streets. Its trustees leased the building to house the high school where it would remain for the next 27 years.

The year 1910 was a pivotal one in American education because a number of educational reports triggered wide-spread reforms. Not adequately addressed at the time, however, was the fact that schools were segregated by race. This would continue for several more decades. The story of this will be addressed in the months to come.

While these educational reforms were being implemented in this country, far greater forces were taking place and changing many societies. World War I impacted on many aspects of both American life and life at Newark High School. A number of former Newark students fought in the trenches of Europe. And when the war was over and the troops returned, a medical crisis hit. A world-wide influenza epidemic, actually the first pandemic, killed ten million more people than the war. In the United States, 500,000 people died. During the 1918-1919 school year, classes at Newark were canceled for three weeks in October because of the influenza epidemic. Newark High School had 109 students that year and graduated 21 seniors. Phineas Morris was the principal (really the "principal teacher") and he was assisted by six teachers. Home economics, a two year course, had been added and 42 students were enrolled. The district has 759 students. In the spring of 1919, Governor Townsend signed a new code into law which affected the composition of school districts. A "special school district," among other stipulations of the code, had to maintain a secondary school. Accordingly, the Newark Special School District came into existence on July 1, 1919. In the ensuing years, Newark High School's district would change its name and size several more times.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

May 11, 1993

To the Graduating Class of 1993:

Congratulations on your graduation from Newark High School.

Your achievement means a great deal to you, of course, but it also means a great deal to America and to the world. It is significant because you have successfully completed the first phase of your education. Now you will continue to educate yourselves, through college, vocational training, community service, and a wide array of jobs. But your greatest teacher will be life itself.

America needs your energy, creativity, vision, and determination. I challenge each of you to imagine the best future you can, and then make it happen. You can make our nation stronger and better than it has ever been.

The future belongs to you. Hillary and I send you our best wishes for your continued success.

TO THE COMMUNITY OF NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL:

To say that education has changed over the past century is an understatement and to envision what education will become in the next century is purely an exercise in futurism. Suffice it to say that with the societal changes, technological advances/innovations and the increased demand for highly skilled workers in the market place, education must and will restructure in order to fulfill its obligation to the global community. There are no blueprints to this process of change and this creates a level of discomfort to individuals who are attempting to change the process without the luxury of stopping the process. In other words, we are redesigning the airplane while we are in flight.

Is this an impossible task? Difficult yes! Impossible no! What is needed is a vision of what is needed combined with the faith that we are capable of making the fundamental changes in the "what" and "how" of the process of schooling. We have the resources that we need to effect the requisite changes. What we need to do for the future is to gather the courage to manage change and accept the temporary discomfort of changing paradigms to address the future. For example, there is a need for increased collaboration among the different constituencies of the system; students, staff, parents, community, business. This requires a level of trust among the parties so that we can realize the full potential of shared decision making coupled with a common mission of equity and excellence. As I indicated earlier this is not a simple endeavor. Rather, it is complex and with numerous stumbling blocks along the way. It is the direction for the future that we must take if Newark High School is to continue to be a school responsive to the needs, desires and dreams of its community.

While I cannot foresee the future with absolute accuracy, I am certain that we are moving in the right direction and our momentum continues to grow. As visitors to Newark High School in the 21st century, we will be amazed by the changes in the structure of education. Furthermore, we will be proud to say that we were part of the process of change which made the best even better!

Sincerely,

Frank J. Hagen

Move from 'fire trap' sets tone for 20th century

After World War I, a report on Delaware schools by a Columbia University research team spurred the drive for modernization and consolidation.

Our high school, according to the report, was an "inadequate fire trap of a building" and had a severely limited curriculum. The elementary school was cited for the absence of drinking water or a clock. The Columbia University experts insisted that "every evidence of educational poverty exists." The building was too narrow for school purposes. It had "almost inaccessible" toilets at the swampy rear of the site and its basement was "deep in mud and water."

In 1920, Newark residents passed a bond issue to raise more funds for schools. Later, Pierre S. duPont contributed a large sum to the school district for construction. These funds paved the way for a new school building on Academy Street. This site, built in 1925 and sold to the University of Delaware in 1983, contained part of Newark's Elementary and its entire Junior and Senior High Schools. J. Herbert Owens was then principal of the high school and superintendent of the districts 852 students. No new schools were built between 1925 and 1950. Although lavish compared to the previous high school quarters on Main and Academy streets, it was not what people expect in schools today. For example, the gymnasium, as in other Delaware high schools of the period, was the auditorium stage. Spectators at basketball games sat in the auditorium seats!

In June of 1953, for a cost of $65,000, the district purchased land for its most ambitious project to date - the building of a separate high school on East Delaware Avenue.

Under Ira Benson, superintendent from 1926 to 1935, the school added a thirteen-classroom wing and a gymnasium. He also oversaw various changes that helped update the school system. The district went from a grammar-high school system to an elementary-junior high-senior high system (grades 1-6, 7-9, 10-12.) Twelve students formed the first high school band and business education entered the curriculum.

During World War II, a shortage of teachers curtailed the agricultural departments and kept the manual training department closed. Some seniors were pressed into serving as teachers and more than a few eighteen year olds were drafted into the armed forces from high school. The district instituted driver education and broadened the curriculum in other areas. By 1945, there were 1,315 students enrolled in the district. After the war, the population started to soar. By 1963, there were 8,693 students in the district. Today there are over 18,700 students.

Overcrowding at the high school resulted in the reconditioning of the Main Street building (the original site of NHS and, since 1965, the administrative offices of the school district) in 1951 for use by our industrial arts classes. In spite of this and the distribution of the younger students to three elementary schools, it was realized that the high school accommodations would soon be outgrown. In June of 1953, for a cost of $65,000, the district purchased land for its most ambitious project to date—the building of a separate high school on East Delaware Avenue.

How was "Krawen," the name of the Newark High School year-book, derived?

It's "Newark" spelled backwards.

Why do Newark High sports teams call themselves the "Yellowjackets"?

No one is sure.

African Americans had a choice of 2 high schools in 1947

Last year, at the 99th commencement of Newark High School, the president to the senior class, LeMonica Washington, addressed the assemblage. As this proud, young African-American woman – a leader in the school and community and winner of numerous scholarships and awards – spoke eloquently of hope and dreams, she may have felt that this was a natural forum for her. But it was not always the case for African-American students.

Until 1954 when the United States Supreme Court ordered Delaware Schools desegregated, students in this area attended separate schools according to their racial group. A review of the historical records over the last century reveals that the legal names of these schools were ones such as "colored" or "Negro." Although these terms may be inappropriate today, for historical accuracy, they will be used.

A John Congo organized the first school for African American students in the Newark area around the time of the Civil War. Classes were conducted at his home at Corbit Street and New London Road. By around 1866, it had grown sufficiently to move into its own schoolhouse on the south side of what is now East Cleveland Avenue. Legend states that it was built of material from an army barracks shipped there by the government.

In 1867, several philanthropists met in Wilmington and found the "Delaware Association for the Moral Improvement and Education for Colored People." They contributed enough funds to organize 15 schools for African-American pupils. Howard was the only high school for these students at that time.

By 1875, there were 29 "Negro schools" in Delaware. These were totally supported by the local communities. In 1881, state support of these schools started.

In 1895, the legislature recognized the legal existence of "separate school districts for Negroes" and stipulated that these separate schools would be based on "financial equity with the schools for white pupils." At this time, there were about 3,400 pupils in these districts, nearly all of them in elementary one teacher schools.

In the 1920s, Pierre S. duPont personally financed the construction of 86 school buildings for African-American students in Delaware. One of the buildings in this area was Christiana No. 111-C which her personally dedicated in 1920.

It was a sparkling white frame building that cost $19,338, making it one of the most expensive one-room school buildings in the nation. It had electricity, running water, indoor toilets, and scientifically designed lighting, heating and ventilation. It was one of the finest schools in the area. Later in the decade, duPont constructed a new Howard High School in Wilmington.

By 1947, there were only two high schools in Delaware for African-American students: Howard High School and the State College High School near Dover, but the winds of change were taking place. By 1950, three more high schools had been built. In that same year, the University of Delaware was desegregated.

In 1952, a group of parents challenged the dual system of education in Delaware. After a series of appeals from state to federal courts, the United States Supreme Court declared segregation to be unconstitutional. Although the State Board did not adopt a resolution to end segregation until 1965, our superintendent, Wilbur Shue, integrated our schools immediately in 1954. When the new Newark High School opened on Delaware Avenue in 1955, it was an integrated one for all students.

In 1978, the 11 school districts in New Castle County were consolidated into one. The Christina School District came into being in 1981. Today the students of Newark High School have been with each other since Kindergarten. Students of all races and creeds learn together, sing together, play together.

For students like LeMonica Washington and thousands of others, they are but one color now – that of the Yellowjackets!

CONGRATULATIONS TO NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES & STAFF

As the mother of two Newark High School graduates, I know the significance of this achievement. I salute this year's graduates and all those who have been a part of NHS history during the past 100 years.

Building a better education through an excellent 100 years.

On May 25, 1968, the lives of hundreds of high school students were enchanted by the beauty of the Junior Prom, with the theme "Love Makes the World Go 'Round." From the Eiffel Tower to the Japanese pagoda, couples danced to the music of the Chuck Laskin Orchestra.

Where were you on the day...?

It seems that each generation experiences some tragedy of monumental event which is forever singled in its memory. These moments are recorded with such clarity of detail that they are known as "flashbulb memories." In the last 100 years, the generations of students at Newark High School have had many such memories. Here we shall focus on only three and what happened in our school on these days. The three days may be representative of three different generations; the day after Pearl Harbor, the day Kennedy was killed and the day when the Challenger exploded.

The attack on Pearl Harbor occurred on a Sunday. Although we know now that almost the entire fleet was lost and thousands of people were killed, government censorship was quickly imposed that day.

Wayne Pollari who later became a school administrator at Mt. Pleasant High School was a junior then. He recalls that there was not much talk about the attack in school the next day. Most people didn't know the extent of the attack or even where Pearl Harbor was. The impact, lost on that Monday, would be felt in the weeks and in the months to come. Faculty members left to join the armed forces and later older students were drafted out of high school.

As the war progressed, seniors taught some of the classes because of the shortage of teachers. In the years to come, the war would deeply touch the lives and families of many Yellowjackets but on December 8, 1941, most of the talk of the day at Newark High School was not about Pearl Harbor but about the next basketball game.

November 22, 1963 was a Friday. At the beginning of the last period of the day in the afternoon, Dr. Kutz, the principal of Newark High School, made an announcement to the school that President Kennedy was shot and killed in Dallas, Texas. As described by a number of staff and students alike, a hush descended all of the school. People were very subdued, numb and full of disbelief. Perry Mitchell, now a physician in the Newark community, was a tenth grader in Mrs. Hinson's English class. He recalls some students crying and others fearing that the country would be plunged into war. Classes were dismissed and all school activities were canceled.

Schools were giving more attention to the launching of the space shuttle Challenger than other recent space flights because the first teacher-in-space, Christa McAuliffe,

A Mod Time Was Had By All

Clockwise, from upper left: Distributive Education Club members sport the best of Nixon-era attire; A very youthful Alex Von Koch of the Newark Police Department shares some of the tools of the trade with Newark High students in 1971; Bruce Handel, Class of '75, displays the latest doo; for others, straight, flat hair was tops.

would be aboard. Around the nation on that Tuesday, January 28, 1986, many television sets were turned on in classrooms for students to view the launch. Less than two minutes into the flight, the rocket exploded, killing all seven astronauts aboard. At Newark High that day, classes were being held as normal. Some teachers had already heard about the tragedy in the faculty room when Mr. Fitzgerald, the assistant principal, made the announcement to the school. In many classrooms, televisions were turned on as the students, described as stunned, shocked and speechless, watched as the news reports came in.

Changing with the times

By the time the 1980s arrived, curriculum at Newark High was ever-expanding. Here (left photo, taken in 1983) Child Care student Minnie Dickerson shares time with Michael Hockersmith, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Hockersmith. Ten years later, Delaware Governor Thomas Carper pays a visit to special education students who now attend school here.
