KEY TO LOTS O' LIVIN' BUY A HOME FIRST

Speaking of money ...

"Get more than money with your mortgage"

John Buchanan

"Do what Charlie Henderson did. He knew there was more to buying a house than simply finding what 'looked right' and then getting a loan. He wanted more than money with his mortgage—he wanted good, sound advice. Charlie found it at the Savings Fund. He met a well-qualified mortgage counselor who was interested in his dreams (and his financial problems).

"Charlie Henderson got what every home buyer deserves—extra help when he was about to make the biggest investment most of us ever make. If you're thinking of buying or building, now or in the future, do what Charlie did—get more than money with your mortgage. See a mortgage counselor at the Savings Fund ... you may meet the best friend your home ever had."

New Methods In Producing Farm Products Save Food Consumers Annual $13 Billion

If farmers used the same methods to produce farm products that they used in 1940, consumers would pay an additional $13 billion for the food they eat each year, and each family would pay an average $290 more for farm products, says John H. Shropshire, associate professor of animal husbandry and extension livestock specialist at the University of Delaware.

Consumers have about 8,000 products to choose from at the grocery store. New products, new twists on old products and specialties that grandmother wouldn't have dreamed of, are right at your fingertips. Research and applied technology have accounted for lower consumer costs and rises in farm output, Shropshire says.

As an example, average meat consumption 30 years ago was 131 pounds per person and cost 5.7 per cent of disposable income. Today, 4.7 per cent of your income buys 163.7 pounds of beef, veal, pork and lamb for each member of your family.

Some of the changes have occurred on the farm, where the farmer is producing higher quality meat at less work and cost to him. Other changes result from improved transportation, storage, decreased waste and spoilage and better packaging. On the farm, researchers test for improved ways to feed livestock that will give larger percentage of preferred meat. The emphasis in livestock raising has been to develop high-meat, low-fat animals. This wasn't always the case.

Shropshire notes that many years ago, when the price for lard was three-fourths that of ham, buyers didn't mind fat hogs. The current wholesale price for lard is about one-fourth that of ham, reflecting less use of lard, and buyers reject animals that are not going to give them a high per cent of desirable cuts.

One study at a midwestern university tagged steers on the hoof and experimented with different feeds and feeding schedules. After slaughter, quality of carcass was matched with feeding to determine where improvements could be made. Other studies in the past have lowered farm costs by reducing the time it takes to raise a steer. It used to take two years to grow the average

1,000-pound steer which is marketed at 18 months today. This means a feed and labor saving for the producer.

A technical development which may speed up evaluation on the farm tells how much fat is present on the live animal. A mobile unit uses ultrasonic waves to detect depth of fat through the animal's skin.

Too little fat on meat is just as undesirable as too much. With homemakers looking for less fat on the cuts they buy, they sometimes tend to choose pieces that do not have enough fat for cooking purposes. Fat content, Shropshire reminds, serves to make meat tender and moist and is necessary for all dishes.

He urged parents to make certain they remind children of safe bicycling habits before letting them ride.

Action on a request for construction of Willa Road with water and sewer main provisions at a cost of $21,190 to the city, was deferred and the problem referred to the planning commission.

Council deferred action on a request from the Greater Newark Recreation Association for an additional annual appropriation of $1,600 by the city for a total $8,400, pending a GNRA accounting report revision.

Contract Awarded

Council approved contract award to Glazer Brothers, Inc., of Wilmington, with the low bid of $1,600 for city purchase of an air conditioning unit for the third floor of the council building; and a request for a 250-ft. extension of the city water main to serve the new Howard Johnson Restaurant on Route 896 at a cost of $1,400.

Action on a building permit for an addition to the Newark Auto Parts building on East Cleveland Avenue was deferred pending review by Planning Director Griesbaum, and Contractor Paul Hawthorne in the audience expressed his disappointment with council delay on this matter.

Membership dues and convention expenses for Griesbaum's affiliation with the American Institute of Planners and the American Society of Planning Officials in the amount of $283.50 were approved.

Petitioners objected to the moving of a house from the corner of East Cleveland Avenue and Capitol Trail, to a lot between 370 and 378 Paper Mill Road, and Coverdale requested a report from Building Inspector Clarence A. Bader on this house-moving project.

Concerning bond requirements for the developer of the Devon tract, the owner, developer, and city manager are to meet for agreement on a resolution to be presented at the next council meeting.

Local annual proclamation of Peace Officer's Memorial Day for May 15, was approved unanimously, and last Monday's meeting of council was adjourned at 10:39 p.m.
