A like prize is offered to the colored school. The American Legion Auxiliary offers a five prize of $2.50 in gold to both sexes.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of Newark offer two prizes to the students of the Newark School. A prize of $5.00 in gold to the student maintaining the best scholarship during the school life of the pupil, and a prize of $5.00 for the best essay on the subject: "How Does the Study of United States History Develop Citizenship?"

The Newark School has charters for conducting the National Honor Society for the Senior High School and also for conducting the National Junior Honor Society in the Junior High School. Invitations to membership in these organizations is based on Scholarship, Leadership, Loyalty and Service. The general aim of these organizations is to recognize outstanding merit in these four fields of school and every-day life. Each pupil desiring to membership receives the attention of the society. DAVID SEABURY COLLEGE HOUR SPEAKER TUES.

Noted Psychologist Says Ailing Minds Can be Cured

IS FINAL PROGRAM

David Seabury, noted psychologist, author of "Unmasking Our Minds" and "Growing Into Life," who will speak at Mitchell Hall, Tuesday evening May 19, at 7 o'clock, standard time, under the auspices of College Hour, declares that ailing minds can be cured and that childhood impressions frequently govern later life. "The only hope of civilization," says Mr. Seabury, "lies in the application of psychology to everyday life, to business problems, to friendship, and to marriage."

Mr. Seabury is working to bring psychology out of the classroom and the laboratory into the light of common language that can be understood and appreciated and applied by the layman.

"It was twelve years ago," Mr. Seabury said in a recent interview, "that I was cured of speaking about psychology in scientific terms. I was on my way to deliver a lecture in a small town when I heard two men talking on a street corner. They had seen me, and one asked who I was. The other answered, 'He's a psychologist,' and his companion said, 'How'd he get out?' I decided then that if people didn't know what the word meant it was time they were being told in simple terms."

Mr. Seabury anticipates that within

More Than 300 Expected to Come to Newark from Philadelphia

BANQUET PLANNED

More than three hundred guests of the University of Delaware will be in Newark Saturday when the Philadelphia Sons of Delaware and their wives and guests will make their annual trip to this town.

The group will leave Philadelphia Saturday morning on a Wilson Line steamer and will be met in Wilmington by a delegation from that city and from Newark. The party will inspect the harbor and Marine Terminal in Wilmington, and then will board buses for the trip to Newark, arriving here about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Here the group will be welcomed by officials of the University of Delaware, and the entire party will be conducted on a tour of inspection of the University grounds and buildings. Following the tour, the party will go to Fraxer Field, where they will be guests at the Delaware-Pratt Institute baseball game.

Immediately after the baseball game a dinner will be served in Old College to the members of the organization and their guests. The dinner is scheduled to start at 5:50 o'clock, so as to allow the group to return to Philadelphia at an early hour in the evening.

FOREIGN STUDY SCHOLARSHIPS ANNOUNCED

Twenty-two Students in Various Schools go to France Under U. of D. Plan

TWO GO FROM HERE

Twenty-two scholarships of $300 each have been awarded to students in various colleges and universities of the country under the University of Delaware Foreign Study Plan according to an announcement made recently by the committee on the Junior year of the Institute of International Education in New York city.

Two of these are students at the University of Delaware at this time, Harry F. Williams, of Kennett Square, and Miss Dorothy Deiser, of Philadelphia.

Those selected will form part of a larger group made up of between seventy and eighty students. Under the University of Delaware plan, approximately 100 students are selected each year.

THREE KITTENS DIE WHEN ELECTRIC IRON OVERHEATS

Three new-born kittens lost their lives this morning when an electric iron, left near the box in which they were kept, set the box on fire.

The kittens were in the kitchen of the home of Mrs. William Wilson, on Kells avenue, who was raising them with a bottle. The mother cat died a few days ago, and since that time Mrs. Wilson has been taking care of the kittens. This morning she placed an electric iron near the kittens to keep them warm. Later in the morning she went to Wilmington and forgot to remove the iron. Remembering the iron after she arrived in Wilmington, she called a neighbor on the telephone, who investigated and found a small fire in the kitchen of the house caused by the overheated iron. The Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company was called, and the fire was extinguished. A small hole was burned in the kitchen floor.

ANNUAL R.O.T.C. INSPECTION IS HELD AT U.O.F.D.

Officers from U. S. Army Review Cadet Corps and Conducts Tests

LUNCHEON FOR GUESTS

The annual inspection of the R. O. T. C. Battalion at the University of Delaware was held at the University on Tuesday and Wednesday. The inspection covered the classroom work of the students as well as the drill exercises. Major Meade Wildrick, C. A. C. (DOL.), was designated by the War Department to make this inspection. Major Wildrick is at present on duty in Wilmington with the Organized Reserves of the State of Delaware.

The inspection of the classroom covered both days. Major Wildrick visited each class and asked the students questions concerning any of the work they have covered during the past year. This in itself was quite a task as the classroom assignments of the R. O. T. C. courses cover many subjects, a few of which are as follows: nomenclature, care and adjustment of all material pertaining to the 75 mm. and the 155 mm. guns, motor mechanics, orientation, map reading

THE DOVER ROAD, U. OF D. PLAY, IS TOMORROW NIGHT

"The Dover Road," a three-act comedy of married life, written by A. A. Milne, will be presented in Mitchell Hall tomorrow night by the Puppets and Footlights Club of the University of Delaware. This comedy was one of the most popular stage successes of a few years ago, and the revival of this production by the University players should attract a large audience.

The play is different from any other produced at the University in that it is the first major production ever given there staged and directed entirely by students. John McVaugh, who has taken part in several University plays, is directing the play, and Francis Newham is in charge of the staging. The cast is entirely composed of experienced and veteran players from the student body of the University.

PROHIBITION AGENTS BUSY

The home of Luke Goodyear, on Paper Mill Road, was raided last Friday night by Federal Prohibition agents, and several gallons of alleged liquor were seized. Rachel Pearson, who was in the house at the time of the raid, was arrested and charged with the possession of the liquor. Goodyear was not there when the agents searched the house.

Most of the seizure was destroyed, but a few samples were kept for testing and to be used as evidence in court.

THREE NEW SUPER-HIGHWAYS, RIBBON PARKS, PLANNED FOR THIS SECTION BY COMMISSION

Tri-State Regional Planning Group Expects to have Valley of Christiana River and White Clay Creek in Park System

PLAN PARKWAY ALONG PIKE CREEK

Plans for the eventual construction of three super-highways and for the laying-out and establishment of a parkway in this section of New Castle County, were announced and discussed before the Newark Lions Club Tuesday evening by Rolland S. Wallis, field secretary of the Tri-State Regional Planning Commission. The highways, Mr. Wallis stated, have been discussed with State Highway and County Highway officials of both Delaware and Pennsylvania, and have been agreed upon as not only practical, but desirable and necessary for the future of this section. The parkway, he said, would pass directly through Newark, and would include the Iron Hill and Chestnut Hill districts, and will follow the valley of White Clay Creek north from Newark.

The main highway which will be constructed will be known as the Industrial Highway, and will serve as the artery for truck and industrial traffic from the south and west through this section, and on past Wilmington and Philadelphia to New York. The road will be constructed so that it does not pass through any city or town of any size, but will miss these communities by a short distance, and feeder, or spur, routes will enter the town. The road will pass Newark on the north side of White Clay Creek, and will go around Wilmington to the south and east and follow the Delaware River to Philadelphia, where it will skirt that city and go on towards Trenton and New York.

Another highway will be known as the Inner-Belt route, and will follow a parkway throughout its entire course. This route will be entirely for pleasure driving, and will follow the most scenic path through this section. The road will start from Trenton, go around Philadelphia, Chester and Wilmington, and will swing west through Brandywine Springs and along the valley of White Clay Creek and up what is now called the Creek Road to West Grove. From West Grove, the route goes north and then east so as to include the territory north of Norristown and Trenton.

The third route will be to the south of Newark, and will be an auxiliary highway to the present roads that we now have.

The plans of the Tri-State Regional Planning Commission for parks and for a continuous parkway surrounding the entire district within the scope of the Commission would make the section around Newark one of the most beautiful places in the country.

It is the plan of the Commission to follow all streams and deep valleys—land that is unsuitable for other use—with a series of "ribbon parkways"—parks that are hardly more than a few hundred yards in width, but which will make one unbroken parkway through the entire district. The plans for such a ribbon parkway following the Christiana River from Wilmington through Cochr's Bridge, Iron Hill, Chestnut Hill, Newark, and up the Creek Road were discussed by Mr. Wallis, and he also told of another parkway to follow the valley of Pike Creek north and which will connect with what will be known as the Brandywine Park, which will extend from Wilmington through Chadds Ford and into West Chester.

Mr. Wallis brought aerial photographs of this section with him to the Lions Club, and pointed out the route of each parkway and highway as it is planned by the Commission.

Curtiss-Wright Flying Circus To Give Aerial Show At Bellanca Field

Speed and Efficiency Races, Stunt Flying, and Parachute Jumping to Feature Exhibition at Near-by Airport Sunday

With an aerial program covering the entire field of modern stunt flying and aerobatics, the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service will stage an Air Circus at Bellanca Field, New Castle, on Sunday.

Arrangements for including Bellanca Field in the aerial tour of the East and South now underway by the Curtiss-Wright fliers, were completed Tuesday by A. R. Holladay and R. D. Morgan, officials of Air Service, Inc., commercial operators at the airport. More than a dozen planes will be used in staging the Air Circus there.

The planes will be flown here from Curtiss-Wright Airport, Baltimore. They will arrive over Newark and Wilmington shortly after noon, Sunday, and will stage an aerial parade over this section before landing at Bellanca Field.

Planes of Air Service, Inc., together with planes of other operators in and near Wilmington and New Castle, will take to the air and join the aerial parade when the visiting fliers are sighted. More than five hours will be required for the flying program.

The ships will include the world-famous Travel-Air Speedwing, the new Curtiss-Wright Junior monoplane, a three-passenger Curtiss-Robin monoplane (holder of the world's endurance record), three Fledgling training planes for military and formation flying, a DeHavilland Moth biplane equipped with the Handley-Page safety slots, a six-place Travel-Air monoplane, and, weather conditions permitting, a tri-motored Ford monoplane seating 14 persons.

Speed pilots, including crack fliers of the Maryland National Guard's Air Service, will put their planes through intricate maneuvers. There will be single, double and quadruple parachute jumps, three men and a noted girl jumper competing for honors.

Among the features will be three planes tied together with 50-foot ropes. A girl pilot will fly one of the three.

Major William D. Tipton, former commander of the Maryland National Guard Air Unit, will head the list of pilots coming here for the circus. He has a brilliant World War record, having been decorated for his aerial work abroad and in the United States.

The bulk of feminine interest in the circus is expected to center around two girls, scarcely out of their teens. They are Thelma Elliott, a veteran pilot despite her years, and Ruby Harrell, of Baltimore.

Miss Elliott, who will pilot one of the Fledgling biplanes and also demonstrate the Handley-Page slotted wings of the DeHavilland moth biplane, will take part in the aerial aerobatics.

Miss Harrell, a tiny girl who has difficulty carrying the two parachutes that are strapped to her before she enters a plane, will stage a double parachute jump with her partner.

JAMES H. PICKUP STRICKEN WHILE WALKING ON STREET

James H. Pickup, well-known jeweler and watch repair man of Newark, collapsed yesterday morning on North College Avenue, near the B. and O. Railroad crossing, and was rushed to the Homeopathic Hospital in Wilmington in the ambulance of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company. Dr. W. M. Johnson was called by people who assisted Mr. Pickup when he was stricken, and he sent the patient to the hospital for treatment and observation.

Punkin' Pie An' Perfumed Paper

"Humph!" said Melia and that was all, but anyone could see that the aforesaid easy-going nature had received a jolt not altogether pleasant. That evening she determined to find things out for herself and accordingly slipped slyly and quietly down to the village post office. There were two or three of Melia's friends standing about the post office steps but they appeared to be so busy engaged in carrying on flirtations with some ostentatious Ethiopian youths that they did not notice her as she slipped inside the door. She went into a small back room where the postmistress was sorting the letters and packages which had just come in on the evening train.

"Evenin', Miss Everett, jes' thought Ah'd drop in fo' a little chat. How's yo' health lately?" said Melia as she seated herself so that she could see through the stamp window into the next room where Jackson would come for his evening mail and at the same time remain hidden herself.

"Just fine, just fine, Amelia. How are you?"

"Oh, so-so, jes' so-so. Much mail this evenin'?" answered Melia as she peered over Miss Everett's shoulder in an effort to see the pile of letters. Sure enough! There was a letter, all lavender and sweet-smelling, addressed in a lady's hand to Jackson! "Ah reckon Annie was right," she thought sorrowfully. She was just ready to leave when in walked Jackson and came up to the window. This was unusual, for Jackson had a box—that was one of the things that Melia had been so proud of—her Jackson owning a box in the post office. Not her Jackson any more, she reflected. Nevertheless something forced her to linger behind the door and watch him.

"Evenin', Miss Everett, any mail fo' me?" was his cherry greeting. Melia's heart fluttered at the sight of him as he snatched eagerly at the lavender envelope. Why, oh, why hadn't she grabbed him while she had the chance? she wondered.

After Jackson had gone and without even a goodbye to Miss Everett, Melia crept home feeling as though a knife were being twisted in her heart. All the peace had departed from her life, it seemed, and really, nothing mattered. The moon had risen but was covered by a thick gray mist and from the one tree in Melia's yard, an owl hooted dimly. Slowly and heavily Melia climbed the two steps onto her screened porch. As she closed the screen door behind her, someone rose to meet her.

"Melia," said a well-known voice. Melia's heart missed a beat and then took two extra to catch up again.

"Yas, Jackson?"

"Why, er, ah—Ah jes' thought maybe you might be able to say yes or no tonight like yo' said yo' would. Ah hopes it's yes—is it?"

"Is it? Ah should say it is! an' laws, honey, Ah neva in na life was so glad to say one word!"

"Well, thank de Lawd, dat's ovah! You is de mos' expensive gal Ah evah see! Lavendah perfumed papah an' hiring somebody to write to me every day from Louisville ain't exactly cheap proceedin's, is me tell yo'!"

"What!" cried Melia, and then, "Well, if Ah evah!" as light began to dawn on her.

"Sho! Dat's de only way Ah could make you pay 'tention to me—but now dat it's all settled, is we gwine have punkin' pie an' roas' 'possum fo' de weddin' dinnah?"

Our Washington Trip

Our Senior class started for Washington on Thursday in a pouring rain. No one was late; we were all waiting under the station roof with our umbrellas when the train stopped with the door to the last car directly opposite us. We hurried onto the train and soon found places for ourselves and our suitcases. The ride down was enjoyable, but seemed long because of our anticipation of Annapolis.

Before going to see the cadets, we had lunch in the "Little Garden" restaurant. The service there was most pleasing. It exceeded our expectations to see a waiter coming around with an armful of red and yellow roses, and then to see a paper of pins appear. Just when we were leaving they tossed us a bouquet of pink and white carnations, which were distributed by the catcher. Our guide was given two mysterious boxes, and we discovered afterwards that they were little souvenir balloons from the restaurant. When we reached Washington the balloons were either all broken or stowed away for safe-keeping.

Everyone was impressed by the size of the Union Station at Washington and by the weight of his suitcase when he reached the buses at the far exit. It's strange the way suitcases become weightier and weightier as one progresses.

Our hotel accommodations were luxuriant. Everyone was pleased with his room and the hotel itself.

Our program was carried out as planned excepting some alterations that were made because "Glen Echo" Park was closed.

The trip down to Mount Vernon and back was a split party. Half went down by boat and back by bus, the other half vice versa. One advantage of the people going down by boat was that they had the prettier entrance to Mt. Vernon—a long winding stairway up among the trees and bushes with willows edging the water. It was as beautiful as fairyland.

On all of our bus and sight-seeing trips we had guides with us explaining all points of interest.

As usual to the Senior classes, we saw the Capitol, the old and new Science Museums, the White House and parts to which our permit allowed us, the Masonic Temple, the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument with all the steps and the elevator you wish you had taken when you've walked half-way up, the Clarke collection of pictures in the Art Gallery, and Arlington Cemetery. Because Glen Echo was closed we had two evenings off from sight-seeing. We enjoyed the shows to which we went, but most of all we enjoyed the trips to and from. The city was all lighted up, and always you could be sure of turning to the right or left and seeing the Capitol standing out white against the sky, and the whole city glittering with lights around it. It was in the evening that we went to the Congressional Library. When we came out of the front door again, we looked across the city and saw the Capitol dome standing out against the dark sky.

Washington is a city of beautiful vistas. Our guides were always pointing out the best views. We would look through a clump of shrubbery and there would be the Lincoln Memorial looming up opposite a body of water. We saw the Masonic Temple from a hundred different angles and thrilled at its beauty every time. A good idea of Washington's beauty was obtained from looking down through the bars in the Washington Monument. Everywhere the roads were smooth and curving and bordered with trees and flowers.

Home again! We arrived at the station in Newark towards six o'clock, all giving a lusty yell as the train slowed down. When we saw old Newark again we declared in one voice that it surpassed any town or city we had seen—excepting Washington.

Assembly

May 7.—The program today was quite different from any we have had for some time. In the first place we sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Eugene White recited "The Photograph," and Martha Moore recited "Mrs. Moseley's Offspring." They both did extremely well. Mrs. Moseley's "Offspring" was a very humorous story about a mother with her family.

May 10.—I believe everytime we sing the well-known negro spiritual, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," it sounds better. This morning we sang it in parts and I think everyone will agree that it was done better than ever before.

Field Day is almost here! We want everyone who is going to participate to come out for practice. Newark must come out on top.

B. Kirk, '32.

PRIMARY ASSEMBLY

A Japanese atmosphere was given to the Primary Assembly by the third grade section under the direction of Miss Martha Taylor, when her grade presented the following program, which was the outgrowth of her class work, was presented: Japanese Song, third grade; piano solo by Cecilia Tierney; an interpretive Japanese dance, by Joseph Moore and Franklin Dunn. New things learned about the Japanese: Rice culture, by William Edmondson; The Dress of the Japanese, by Marion Lewes; An Exhibition of Japanese products, by Jean Phillips, Patricia Wilson, Catherine Bryson, Dorothy Bellman; How the Silk is developed, by Marion Fletcher; The Religion of the Japanese, by Thomas Griffin; Games which the Japanese Boys and Girls play, by Frank Balling, Jr., and Lewes Godwin.

TALES... of the TRIBES

By EDITHA L. WATSON

The Zuni

In that shadowy past which is so long ago that only legend reminds us that it was at all, an Indian people came from the northward and settled in the Zuni valley. Later, from the West came another people, and these joined the first settlers. This was the beginning of the Zuni tribe, which is one of the most interesting tribes of the Pueblos.

At the dawn of their recorded history, they were living in seven cities, which were known of as far south as Mexico. Perhaps Indian traders, journeying to far places with the products of their villages to exchange for the shells of the coast or the parrot feathers of the South, told of their seven cities, and, as has always been the custom of travelers, exaggerated a little. At any rate, these vague rumors reached the ears of Fray Marcos de Niza, who made his famous exploration trip in 1539. He listened to all that the Indians along the way could tell him about "Cibola" (Zuni), and finally saw one of the villages from a neighboring hill, but instead of entering the settlement, where he might have been disabused of his notions, he returned to Mexico with a great narrative of the magnificent "Kingdom of Cibola." The Indians along the way had assured him that this was a wealthy country, and that its seven cities were filled with gold and precious stones. Hence, Coronado, the next year started North to explore this unknown land of which so many glowing tales were told.

The Pueblos had a way of sending messages by fleet runners, whose speed and endurance were the wonder of the Spaniards. News reached the first Zuni city (Hawikuh), of the coming of these strangers from the South, and of their warlike tendencies, and upon its receipt the Zunians became active, with the result that after storming the town, the Spaniards found that women and children, and most of the movables in the place, had been taken away. The mesa strong hold of Taialone (Corn Mountain or Thunder Mountain, as it is variously known), which commands the Zuni country, was their refuge, and the warriors who had defended Hawikuh fled there also, leaving a deserted and empty pueblo to the disappointed invaders.

Coronado found that the "Kingdom of Cibola" was a small country containing seven pueblos, all within four leagues, the largest of which contained 500 houses, and that the immense treasure of rumor was a sorry myth. In fact, he wrote that Fray Marcos had "told the truth in nothing that he reported."

Zuni at this time must have been at its zenith. There are no records of more than the seven pueblos, and history shows that these dropped into oblivion one by one, until six of them have become uninhabited ruins.

Forty years after Coronado's disappointment, Chamuscado visited the tribe, and in 1583 Espejo went to Zuni. He reported that he found there some of the Mexican Indians who had been with Coronado, and that there were but six cities, so that evidently one had been abandoned since Coronado's time.

Three Spanish priests established a mission at Hawikuh in 1629, and this was the first mission in the "province of Cibola," although one had been attempted previously. In 1622, the Indians killed two priests, one who had been sent to them, and one who was passing through Hawikuh on his way to another tribe. Fearful of consequences, the Zuni again fled to Taialone, their refuge in all troubles, and lived there for three years.

In 1670, an enemy tribe raided the village of Hawikuh, burned the church and killed the missionary. This town was probably not reoccupied after the raid, and by the time of the Pueblo rebellion of 1680, the Zuni were living in three towns, two others beside Hawikuh having been deserted.

The rebellion of 1680 was participated in by almost all the Pueblos, the day being set and plans made, and the news spread by runners. The Zuni were as active as the rest, and after killing the missionary who remained among them, they once more hurried to Taialone, and made it their home for twelve years, until Diego de Vargas reconquered the country in 1692.

After this, Zuni was one city. It was rebuilt on the ruins of Halona, on the Zuni river, one of the original Seven Cities of Cibola.

Even yet, there was unrest among them. Once more a missionary was killed, and once more the mesa stronghold was their refuge. However, peace was finally concluded, and from 1713 on there was not much to record in the history of Zuni. For some time it was entirely abandoned by the white people, and became a thoroughly Indian town again, but in later years the United States government established a school and built extensive irrigation works, so that the Indians began to become educated in the white man's ways of peace.

FORD BRAKES ARE UNUSUALLY EFFECTIVE

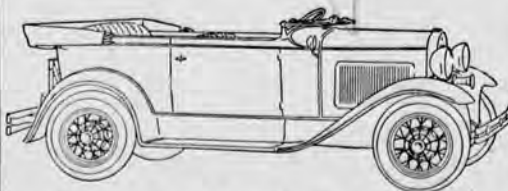

Reliability and safety due to simple design and careful construction

ONE OF the first things you will notice when you drive the Ford is the quick, effective action of its four-wheel brakes.

They are unusually safe and reliable because they are mechanical, internal expanding, with all braking surfaces fully enclosed. This prevents mud, water, sand, etc., from getting between the band and drum and interfering with brake action.

Other outstanding features of the Ford are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, torque-tube drive, more than twenty ball and roller bearings, Rustless Steel, reliability, economy, and long life.

You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

Historically Correct Sketches
By CALVIN FADER

ON the night of November 8, 1773, Washington was glad to see his friend, Lord Fairfax, who had unexpectedly come to camp at Wills Creek, now Cumberland, Maryland, on U. S. Route 30. The titled Old Britisher had come to spend the night with the boy who was about to plunge into the wilderness on a doubtful mission. As they sat in silence before a crackling fire, rain and snow fell outside their shelter. At last, the old lord, knocking the ashes from his pipe, remarked: "Dinwiddie was a fool to send a boy on a mission like this." Washington said nothing.

ELEVEN days later, November 24, Washington and his aides reached Logstown, near the present town of Beaver, Pennsylvania. Here he met an Indian known as Half King, who drew on birch bark a plan of French forts "five sleeps" distant, illustrating by drawing up his blanket five times as if in preparation for slumber.

When the Revolution Ended

The cessation of hostilities between the United States and Great Britain was proclaimed April 19, 1783, to the soldiers of the Continental army by order of General George Washington in headquarters at Newburgh. Congress had issued, a few days before, the official notification that the Revolutionary War was at an end.

The 148th anniversary of Washington's proclamation is noted by the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission in a statement recalling the event.

The Revolution had practically ended with the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown in October, 1781. It was generally realized throughout the two countries that there would be no more extensive campaigns, but both armies were retained under arms. A few skirmishes took place in 1782, occurring for the most part between foraging or scouting parties.

In one of these minor fights in August some British soldiers at Saint James Island, South Carolina, were defeated by Captain Wilmott. At Fort Mifflin, Virginia, in the following month, the last skirmish of the war was fought. It also was a victory for the Americans.

While there was little to be gained by either side from this kind of fighting it was an inevitable result of the proximity of armed men representing the two nations. It was unavoidable as long as Britain and the United States were officially at war.

Despite this fact, Washington vigorously opposed any reduction in the army until the conclusion of peace. No one realized the cost of victory better than the man who had led America's armies throughout the war. He was unwilling that the fruits of victory should be lost by a relaxation of vigilance which might encourage the British ministry to continue the conflict.

Washington's feelings on receiving official notice that hostilities were at an end may be seen in his proclamation at Newburgh. Preliminary articles of peace had been signed at Paris in November and January, and it was beginning to be apparent that the permanent treaty would be based on these stipulations. With considerable relief, therefore, General Washington issued the following order:

"The Commander-in-chief orders the cessation of hostilities between the United States of America and the King of Great Britain to be publicly proclaimed tomorrow at twelve at the New Building; and that the proclamation, which will be communicated herewith, be read tomorrow morning at the head of every regiment and corps of the army; after which, the Chaplains with the several brigades, will render thanks to Almighty God for all his mercies, particularly for his overruling the wrath of man to his own glory, and causing the rage of war to cease among the nations. . . .

"On such a happy day, which is the harbinger of peace, a day which completes the eighth year of the war, it would be ingratitude not to rejoice, it would be insensibility not to participate, in the general felicity. . . .

"Happy, thrice happy, shall they be pronounced hereafter, who have contributed anything, who have performed the meanest office in erecting this stupendous fabric of freedom and empire on the broad basis of independence, who have assisted in protecting the rights of human nature, and establishing an asylum for the poor and oppressed of all nations and religions."

All the civilized world knows The Big Show — Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey—and now comes the announcement that this colossus of the amusement world will exhibit in Wilmington, Friday, May 22.

The No. 1 advertising car, the first of three ahead of The Greatest Show on Earth, is now in this vicinity. Billposters, bannermen, lithographers, radio men and press agents are heralding the great event, and soon everyone will be planning for a gala visit to the world's largest "big top," the center of the largest canvas city ever assembled to thrill, entertain and amuse a great and discriminating populace.

It will come on 100 double-length steel railroad cars, will this giant of super-circuses. Four trains bearing 1600 people, 43 elephants, 1009 menagerie animals, including a herd of giraffes, and 700 horses, will unload at intervals show-day morning. Colossus, awesome six-ton sea elephant, comes in his private tank car. Pre-eminent features are many. The Orland-Mara Sensation (in which Orland, carrying Miss Mara on his back, hurls himself in a terrific dive from the dome of the great tent to land upon his chest on a chute in the arena far below) staggers the imagination. Con Colleano, world's most acclaimed somersaulting wire artist; Zaccchini, fired from the mouth of a siege gun in a high, sweeping, breath-taking flight across the mammoth tent; The Flying Codonas, featuring Alfredo, the world's only triple mid-air somersault to a hand-to-hand catch; Luicita Leers, Europe's supreme aerial gymnast; The Wallendas, defying death in astounding feats on a steel wire in the peaks of the big top;

Al Powell, flying aerial contortionist; Winnifred, lovely somersaulting artiste of the high swinging trapeze; the Rieffenachs and the Ernestos, heading the new five-continent congress of bareback stars; Maximo, beloved comedian of the slack wire—these are but a few of the stellar attractions. There are 800 performers and 100 internationally celebrated and beloved clowns. The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey horse fair has become a feature amazing in its appeal throughout the North American continent.

Newark Loses A Good Citizen

When the Reverend Dr. R. B. Mathews and Mrs. Mathews departed from Newark, Monday, this town, as well as the St. Thomas' Parish of the Episcopal Church, lost a good citizen, a strong worker, and a kindly and courteous friend. Many residents of Newark—not members of the congregation of the church whose rector Dr. Mathews was for seven years—regret his leaving this community, and will keenly feel his absence in the future.

Dr. Mathews came to Newark seven years ago from Snow Hill, Md., where he had been rector of that parish for some time. Now he has been recalled to the combined parishes of Snow Hill and Ocean City—a larger field of service than this parish, and with added responsibilities. We wish him all success and happiness in his new duties.

Dr. and Mrs. Mathews made for themselves many friends in Newark. Their hospitality in their home, and their faithful work in their church, gained for them the respect, admiration, and friendship of all with whom they came in contact. Faculty members and students of the University were especially interested in Dr. Mathews' church, and formed a large part of the congregation.

The Newark Post, in adding to the messages of goodwill and of farewell of the townspeople, expresses its wishes for continued success to Dr. and Mrs. Mathews in their new surroundings, and expresses its grateful appreciation for the kindnesses and services rendered it on various occasions by Dr. Mathews. Our sincere congratulations to Dr. and Mrs. Mathews for their splendid work here, and may their ministry in their new home be as pleasant and as successful as it was in this community.

Fire On The Farm

During 1930 farmers suffered one of the greatest fire losses in agricultural history—a total of about $125,000,000, according to the National Fire Waste Council, as compared with an average of $100,000,000 in "normal" years.

This unusually heavy fire loss was attributed largely to the drought, which increased the common farm hazards such as highly combustible buildings, isolation from the protection of adequately equipped fire companies, and general lack of fire-quenching facilities.

Even so, the annual farm fire loss cannot be justified. Numerous studies have been completed and others are being made on how to reduce the waste. Many authoritative booklets, dealing with every phase of the agricultural fire problem, are available. The barrier in the way of prevention, of course, is the same on farms as in cities—the refusal of the individual to learn the fundamentals of fire prevention, and his carelessness in permitting unnecessary hazards to go uncorrected.

It cannot be questioned that the annual fire waste has done much to prevent farm prosperity. Even if all property were covered by insurance—which it is not—no policy can compensate for destroyed buildings and crops, wasted time, devastated land. Every farmer should take steps to make his property as "fire-proof" as is humanly possible.

The rainy weather that we have been experiencing during the past few weeks will soon change into the summer dry spell, and with that dry spell will come the calls for our fire company to fight woods fires, field fires, and fires in buildings and barns. The members of the Newark volunteer fire company each year render valued and efficient service, but—just ask any member of the Aetna Hose, Hook, and Ladder Company how many calls they answer each year to fires that are the result of carelessness and thoughtlessness. Ask any member of the fire company how great is the fire loss through lack of good judgment on the part of property owners. Their answer will be that nearly every fire is avoidable, and that, if proper precaution had been taken, would never have occurred.

NEW SCHOOL WING WILL BE COMPLETED THIS SUMMER

Last July the State Board of Education made an appropriation sufficient to build fifteen rooms which, when completed August first, will make it possible to have nine more sections of the primary elementary school in the Newark School building. This will make it possible to close the Main street building. This new addition, known as the south wing, is going ahead according to schedule. The roof and cornice are now being placed and the interior work, such as plastering, will be well under way in a few weeks.

Among the improvements in the new addition will be electric clocks, operated by a single master clock, in every class room as well as electric lights in all class rooms. The new addition has taken advantage also of plumbing improvements and heating improvements which have developed since 1925. A great additional savings in the heating system will be the new vacuum return system which will enable, according to heating engineers' experience, the heating equipment to be operated with a very much lower pressure of steam and with a corresponding less amount of fuel. Each room will also have its own independent ventilation system which completely changed the air once every seven to eight minutes without causing any draughts sufficient to cause colds, but which is sufficient to remove the dust in a school room. The Building Commission is pleased with the progress of the work and is looking forward to having it ready for instructional purposes when the school opens in September.

31 MEMBERS OF NEWARK SCHOOL STAFF TO RETURN

Thirty-one members of the Staff of the Newark Schools have signed their contracts for the coming year, which would indicate few changes in the teaching staff of the school. Miss Martha Taylor, who taught the third grade, plans to return to the Florida College for Women as an Instructor in Education. Miss Taylor was in college work prior to her coming to Newark, and the college authorities have called Miss Taylor back again for the coming year. Mrs. Mamie Palmer plans to retire from teaching this coming year, after having taught here for seven years.

Due to the increasing enrollment the Board of Education approved the employment of an additional teacher for grade five for the coming year. Since the teaching staff was increased from grades one to four the foundational work of the primary school has been made much fairer to both the teacher and the pupil. The enrollment now in grades one, two, three and four, with three teachers in each grade, gives to each teacher an average number of pupils.

The Board of Education also approved the employment of a full-time teacher of music and an additional teacher in junior-senior high school mathematics.

Many of the teaching staff are planning to take the opportunity for further study by attending summer schools throughout the country.

Ira S. Brinker has again renewed his contract with the Newark Board of Education for the sixth consecutive year, and will remain as Superintendent of Schools.

STUDENTS TO MARCH MAY 16 IN MIDDLETOWN

New Castle County Attendance Day to be Observed with Program

TO SEE PICTURE SHOW

New Castle County school children to the number of 1400, or more, will observe Attendance Day at Middletown on May 16. The children will meet on the Middletown school grounds at 12 o'clock, standard time. A parade will start at 12:30 o'clock and the children will be marshalled by Lieutenant Myers, of the R. O. T. C., of the University of Delaware.

The children will parade from the public school to the Everett Theatre where Chief Joseph Strongwolf will speak to them on Indian life, customs and dances. There will be three bands in the line of parade.

Each child will receive a crepe paper hat to wear in the parade and also an award in state colors. Certificates will be given those having three years or more of perfect attendance. The caps and awards are now being delivered to each school by Mrs. Martha I. Barnes, visiting teacher from New Castle County.

The children will be greeted in Middletown by Dr. Louis Levinson, mayor of the town, Jesse L. Shepherd, Eugene Shallos and Daniel W. Stevens, comprising the Middletown school board, J. Pearce Cann, member from New Castle County of the State Board of Education and John Shilling, assistant superintendent of public instruction.

A comedy and educational news reel will be shown at the theatre in addition to the other features on the program.

and map making, military law, manual of courts martial, adjustment and conduct of fire for heavy artillery and anti-aircraft artillery, position finding for heavy and anti-aircraft artillery, military hygiene and first aid, military courtesy, and rifle marksmanship.

The inspection of the Battalion on the drill field took place Tuesday morning at 11:30, daylight saving time. There was a review followed by an inspection of the Cadets in ranks. Then each student officer was to execute several movements with his Battery, the nature of the movements to be made known to him just as he marches on the field. The drill was of competitive nature and was under the scrutiny of three regular army officers, Major Meade Wildrick, C. A. C. (DOL.), Major James C. Hutson, C. A. C. (DOL.), and Captain Frederick Cook, C. A. C. In the same manner a competitive drill of the various platoons was held. The Military Department will present to the winners of the competition sabres inscribed with their names. The winning battery will wear for the coming year a Blue Star on their uniform sleeve, and the winning platoon will wear a Gold Star.

Following the review, A. G. Wilkinson, business manager of the University, invited the visiting officers, the winning cadet officers and their families to be guests of the University at a luncheon served in Old College.

KIWANIS CLUB GIVES CALVES TO 4-H YOUTHS

Wilmington Group Makes Gifts to Promote Goodwill with Farmers

FROM BREIDABLIK HERD

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club has gone into the dairy business, and at future meetings of the club it will not be surprising to hear Leon Ryon, Vincent Blackwell, A. G. Wilkinson, and other members, discussing the virtues of Guernsey cattle, prices of dairy feed, and the value of milk in the diet.

Through its Agricultural Committee the Kiwanis Club has always maintained an active interest in the agricultural industry of the State, and has sponsored many activities which have served to bring about a closer relationship between the business men of Wilmington and the farmers of New Castle county. This year the Directors of the club voted to provide pure bred dairy calves for two deserving New Castle County 4-H Club boys, who would agree to raise the calves to maturity under the direction of representatives of the Extension Service of the University of Delaware and keep records of the cost of raising the calves and make regular reports to the Kiwanis Club.

The promising pure bred Guernsey heifer calves were purchased from the Breidablik Farm herd last week by Dr. J. R. Kuhns, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Kiwanis Club, and at the meeting of the club last Wednesday, A. D. Cobb, Assistant Director of Extension at the University of Delaware, recommended Arthur Crossan, of Hockessin, and John T. Wilson, Jr., of St. Georges, as the boys eligible to receive the calves.

On Saturday morning Vincent C. Blackwell, vice-president of the Kiwanis Club, and Dr. Kuhns met the boys and G. M. Worrlow, New Castle County Club Agent, at Breidablik Farm and formally presented the calves to their future owners.

HIGH SCHOOLS RANK HIGH IN FIELD AND TRACK MEET

The competition between high schools of the D. I. A. A. proved a special feature of the annual interscholastic field and track meet at Frazer Field, University of Delaware, last Saturday. In previous years the smaller high schools from Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey were allowed to enter Class C at the University. This year Graduate Manager Doherty of the University decided to restrict this class to D. I. A. teams, and it proved so popular and successful that it will no doubt be continued in future years.

There were nine state high schools entered in Class C. It was won by Dover with 19 1/3 points. The State Capital boys won first place in the sprint medley relay, giving them 10 points, and this was what won them the meet. Caesar Rodney was second with 14, and du Pont fourth with 13. Delmar had 5 points, Laurel 3 1/3, and Newark 1. Middletown and Greenwood were the only state schools entered who failed to get a point.

There was also a large entry list in both classes A and B. Allentown Prep with 34 points won in Class A, with Franklin and Marshall Academy second. Vineland, N. J., High ran away with Class B, scoring 54 1/2 points, with Pitman, N. J., second, and Wilmington third.

LEGION AUXILIARY POPPY SALE TO BEGIN MAY 23

With the approach of Memorial Day, preparations are being made by the Legion Auxiliary for the annual sale of poppies. Poppies will be on sale beginning May 23 and continuing through Memorial Day.

The poppies are made by ex-service men confined to hospitals and are purchased from them by the local unit. The proceeds of the sale are used solely for welfare work among veterans and their families.

Each year at this season the sight of the little red flowers on the lapels of coats calls to our minds that many ex-service men, incapacitated by injuries resulting from the World War, are still with us and need our help. Every poppy purchased will be a contribution to this worthy cause.

OVER-HEATING CHICKS

By Prof. H. D. Munroe

There are going to be a lot of late hatched chicks brooded this year. There is going to be lots of trouble with late hatched chicks. We are going to blame everything and everybody for this trouble. Probably the most common cause of this trouble is going to be over-heating.

When we had poorly constructed brooder houses and brooder stoves that were by no means perfected, chilling was an important cause of brooder troubles. But, with better houses, good stoves and especially with late season brooding, we will have to watch over-heating far more than chilling.

For late spring and early summer brooding 90 degrees at the edge of the hover is warm enough for the first week. Each week after the first, lower the temperature 5 degrees until 70 degrees is reached. This will mean that during cold, rainy days. If they are after the chicks are five weeks old they will need heat only at night and taught to roost by this time there is no need for any heat in a well constructed brooder house after the sixth week.

Over-heating causes the chicks to have low vitality or poor resistance to disease. During the first two weeks over-heated chicks will develop bowel trouble. After that period coccidiosis is liable to get into a flock of low vitality chicks.

Make late hatched chicks "tough" and there will be no more trouble raising them than with early hatched chicks.

year they had on hand 7,000 tons and the five-year average of hay stocks on May 1 is 16,000 tons.

Pasture

Pasture condition was reported at 87 per cent. Last year condition was reported at 65 per cent, and the ten-year average is 82 per cent.

Farm Labor

Supply of farm labor was reported at 107 per cent of normal for this season, while demand was reported at 76 per cent of normal. Supply, expressed as a per cent of demand, is 146 per cent. Last year, supply expressed as per cent of normal was 105 per cent.

NEWARK SCHOOL COOPERATING WITH AMERICAN RED CROSS

Cooperating with the American Red Cross, the Newark Public School pupils will have the opportunity of participating in the First Swimming and Life Saving Campaign in Newark, which will be conducted during the week of June 8 to 12 for boys and girls twelve years of age and over. The participants will be grouped into three groups: beginners; swimmers, those who can swim fifty yards or more, but not strong enough to save life; and those who are strong enough to save life.

The prime purpose of this campaign is to instill safety methods and a safety consciousness into the minds of boys and girls. Often fatalities are prevented with the type of instruction and help which this Swimming and Life Saving Campaign plans to give.

Upon presenting this matter to the Board of Education, the Board authorizes Mr. Brinser, superintendent of schools, to proceed with the plan of cooperating with the Delaware Chapter of the American Red Cross. Cards have been issued to pupils for parental permission and signature for pupil participation in this work. Through the courtesy of the University of Delaware, the swimming pool has been made available for carrying this Swimming and Life Saving Campaign to the goal which its originators have in mind.

WHAT PROSPERITY MEANS

Economic Situation Discussed by Representative R. G. Houston

Prosperity does not mean the accumulation of wealth, great fortunes, big bank deposits and other evidence of the accumulation of profits, but prosperity means work for all who want work at good wages, a living wage which will enable the worker to have a home with modern comforts, sufficient income to raise his children and prepare them for the life-work they choose, sufficient wages to lay aside enough upon which to live comfortably in declining years, with a chance by strict attention to work and strict economy and even sacrifices and wise investments to accumulate a modest fortune.

Big crops, large productions, increased per capita wealth sounds big but when analyzed may mean little. Big crops may mean low prices to the producer, no profits and many times an actual loss. Large production of factories may mean over-production, slow or no sales, and consequent business depressions, reduction of production, unemployment.

Increased per capita wealth is a deceptive term secured by dividing the total wealth of a State or Nation by the total population and you have the per capita wealth or supposed wealth, a falsity so apparent that it should shame statisticians to publish the same. One man may have a million dollars, another one hundred thousand dollars, a third one thousand, add these fortunes together and you have one million, one hundred and one thousand dollars; divide this amount by three and according to statisticians the per capita wealth of each of the three is three hundred and sixty-seven thousand dollars. Such figures when published mean nothing because the status of each individual remains the same and the man with his one thousand and has no more and the millionaire no less. The bank reports reveal that the number of millionaires are on the increase and yet millions are out of employment.

When some have more than they can spend and others have not enough to eat or wear, there is something radically wrong somewhere in our system, which boasts an even chance for every man. Ability, energy, application, thrift, economy and wise investment will always prevail over ignorance, laziness, inattention, shiftlessness, extravagance, and foolish investments, and no law can eliminate this human factor of success, but there seems to be less opportunity now for the man who has all the human qualities first named, because they benefit him little if he has no chance to prove them.

While men of this type look for a market for their ability, they seem to find plenty of market for their wares, the opportunity to get into the trade, and so does the gambler, the bootlegger and the racketeer. Somewhere along the line there is a loss of a proper sense of values.

We suffer them and suffer in consequence. If we dig deep enough we will find the cause of which they are only the natural consequence.

If we are honest and look deep into our consciousness we must acknowledge we are not free of blame. Do not we furnish a market for their exploitation? The gambler and bootlegger feed on our greed for quick accumulation. The bootlegger would not exist if he found no customers, the racketeer feeds on the fear of loss of those who have. It is worth thinking about. A return to some of the ideals tested by the experience of the ages would help, even a return of individual prosperity—Russek Republic.

DELAWARE CROP REPORT MAY 1

Rye

Rye production is forecast at 56,000 bushels, the same as was harvested last year, and 1,000 bushels less than the 57,000 average production for the five years 1925-1929. Acreage for harvest is about 4,000 acres, the same as last year, and the yield per acre is forecast at 14 bushels. The reported condition of the crop on May 1 was 83 per cent, somewhat less than the 87 per cent reported a year ago, and also less than the ten-year average condition of 90 per cent.

By May 1 most of the rye was jointed in Delaware and in some sections the plants had headed. Some fields had already been cut for hay.

Wheat

Delaware wheat production in 1931 was forecast on May 1 to be about 1,564,000 bushels, compared with 2,067,000 bushels harvested last year and the five-year average production of 1,936,000 bushels.

This forecast is based on an estimated 92,000 acres left for harvest and an indicated yield per acre of 17 bushels. The acreage harvested last year was estimated at 106,000 acres, and the yield per acre was about 19.5 bushels per acre. The condition of the growing crop was reported at 84 per cent on May 1, which compares with 86 per cent at the same time a year ago and the ten-year average of 85 per cent.

The crop has shown considerable improvement since April 1. Stands are fairly good and are quite even in most fields. Because of the cool weather in the latter part of April wheat is somewhat later than normal in development and some fields do not show as desirable color as could be wished for.

Hay

Condition of tame hay was about 66 per cent of normal. Last year at the same time tame hay condition was 71 per cent, and the ten-year average of condition is 84 per cent. Alfalfa fields, while generally in very good condition, were somewhat behind normal in development. Condition of other hay crops was only fair in Delaware.

On May 1 Delaware farmers had on hand about 8,000 tons, or about 10 per cent of last year's hay crop. Last

The Newark Colored Schools won first place at the annual track and field meet held Friday on the New London Avenue School grounds. The affair was attended by hundreds of pupils and a great number of parents throughout New Castle county. Mr. James M. Richards, head teacher of the school, served as local chairman of the meet and was assisted by the teachers of the school and also by the various organizations of the town. Dr. Holloway, State Superintendent, and Superintendent Brinser of Newark, attended the meet as honorary officials.

Poems made by the children in the sixth grade in observance of Mother's Day.

MOTHER

My Mother is the sweetest Mother,
I love her smiling face,
There is no one in all the world,
Could ever take her place.
Jane Roberts.

My Mother is a dear,
I wouldn't let her shed a tear,
If I saw her crying, I'd cry too,
When there comes a thunder gust,
And I'm afraid,
She puts her arms around me,
And says, "Don't be afraid."
Then I say, "I'm afraid,
The lightning might kill me,"
And then she says, "Don't be afraid,
Be brave."
Ethel Stephan.

Mother is the dearest,
She has sorrow, when we've tears,
Oh! When Mother's Day comes near,
We all come home to Mother dear.

She does all the cooking, mends
our stockings,
Did you ever watch her wash?
My it must be hard to do,
We could try and help her, too.
Mildred Wilson.

Mother, Mother, what would I do,
If I had no one like you,
For when troubles come my way
You're the only one to say,
"Brace up child, the future's near,
And to you will be real dear;
Life is only what you make it,
You're the only one to play it,
Just be brave and do your part,
And you have my whole heart."
Margaret Moore.

Mother's Day
Just a greeting for the day,
I love you, Mother mine,
This, of course, is nothing new
But it's very, very true,
And I'm hoping that you
Will read it in each line.
Margaret Shumar.

KELLS COMPLETES PRINTING
JOB OF 1,400,000 PAGES

The Press of Kells has just completed the publication of a new book which involved the printing of more than 1,400,000 pages, in addition to the printing of several thousand pictures and illustrations, and several thousand covers and bindings in three colors.

At the present time, the Craftsmen of Kells are finishing a large book of a type different from any other ever published in this state. This book will have an inlaid cover, the first time any cover of this kind has been produced in Delaware.

Due to the large volume of business being handled by the Press of Kells, the working force has been increased by several men, and the printing plant is being operated at full time and overtime in order to make deliveries when promised.

the next fifty years psychology will have advanced to the stage where every child will have an annual psychological examination until the age of twenty-one, and every five years thereafter. Then a man can read his own biography and determine his course of action in the light of what he finds there.

"Parents may find their children unruly," states Mr. Seabury, "because they understand them so little. All this question of the younger generation and the flapper comes because the older generation doesn't recognize that the young people are rebelling against old taboos and give them no help at all. They should be giving constructive aid instead of standing off and criticizing or trying to repress the rebellion."

"The modern parent sees too much of the children. In the old days when the father was out in the fields from dawn to dark and the mother worked in the house all day or in the garden, the children roamed around free and untrammelled and grew up out of doors, leading the most wholesome sort of lives." Mr. Seabury goes on to say that it is the crowded condition of life today that makes our civilization dependent upon practical psychology.

The College Hour Committee is pleased to announce that the public is invited as guests. No tickets are required.

ESSAY CONTEST

son, Smyrna High School; Marion Spencer, Newark High School; Randolph Eastburn, Newark High School; Adelaide Mahony, Tower Hill School; Stanislaus A. Dauphin, Salesianum High School; Daniel Ainslee Brown, Wilmington High School.

The purpose of this essay contest is to create interest in chemistry and its relation to the home, national, agricultural and industrial life. It is carried out under the direction of the various chapters of the American Chemical Society, and the prizes are provided through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Garvan, of New York, in memory of their daughter, Patricia.

Six scholarships to any accredited university, such as Yale or Vassar, with tuition fees and $500.00 annually for four years are awarded to the prize winners in the National Contest. The Delaware prizes will be presented to the winners at their respective schools during the commencement programs at the end of the current school year.

The 1930-1931 selections represent the eighth group to be awarded the Garvan chemistry prizes.

MILFORD CROSS ROADS
SCHOOL NOTES

The last P. T. A. meeting of the school year will be held in the school room next Wednesday evening, May 20, at 8 o'clock, standard time.

You will enjoy "Mrs. Harrow's Comforting Call," a play with the following cast: "Mrs. Ingalls," the patient, Hazel Johnston; "Mrs. Harrow," the comforting friend, Virginia Hall; "Dr. Strong," Delaware Reed; "Mr. Ingalls," a worried husband, Charles Greer.

"Clifford's Little Maid," is full of humor. Gladys Walmsley will be "Mrs. Allen." The parts of the three applicants, "Mary," "Rose" and "Bella," will be taken by Carolyn Guthrie, Ruth Reed and Helen Kwiatkowski. Little Karl Greer, first grade, will appear in the play as "Master Clifford Allen." Leonard Reed will be "Hanson," the butler.

The third play of the evening is called "A Very Poor Bargain." Naomi Reed is particularly good in the part of "Mrs. Ingram." Agnes Kwiatkowski is the typical daughter in the role of "Natalie." Blanche Reed makes a splendid boy as "Teddy Ingram." Paul Nelson, as "Mr. Ingram," has some amusing lines. Charles Nelson is pleasing as "Rollo Ingram," and Betty Hollingsworth as "Mr. Knowlton, the salesman," will certainly entertain you.

While the children are preparing for the coronation of the May Queen, Hazel Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Masket Johnson, Mrs. George Davis will give one of her delightful humorous recitations.

The procession will include the Queen, Hazel Johnston; train bearers, Scottie Guthrie and Daniel Reed; crown bearer, Dorothy Reed; May court dancers, Virginia Hall, Ruth Reed, Helen Kwiatkowski and Naomi Reed. A beautiful solo dance will be given by Ruth Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Reed. Representatives from the six classes will pay homage to the Queen; Virginia Hall, Ruth Reed, Carolyn Guthrie, Blanche Reed, Norman Reed, and Karl Greer.

Mrs. Franklin Springer, of Newark, and John Woolley, of Newark, are arranging plenty of music for the evening. Remember the date: Wednesday, May 20, at 8 o'clock, standard time. Plan to be with us.

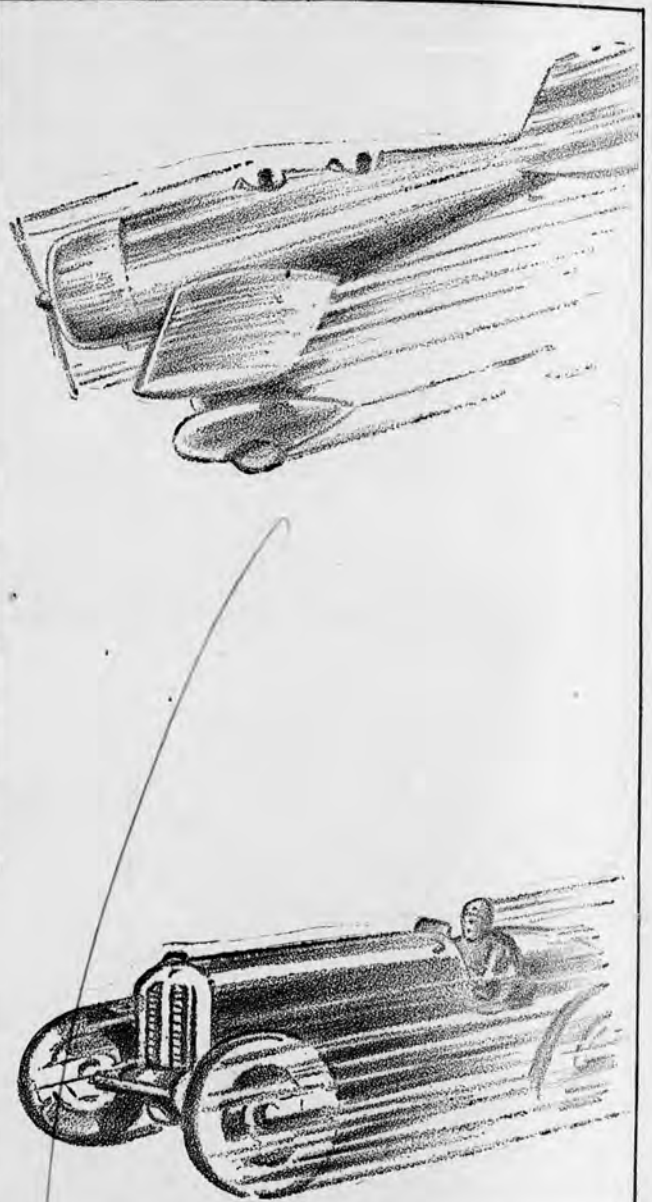

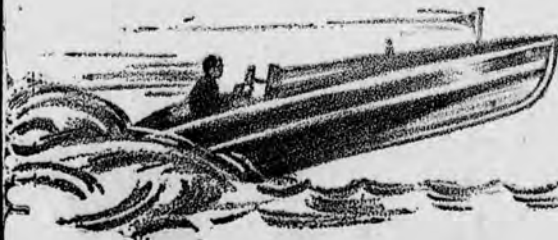

Achievement Day

The 4-H Club will hold its Achievement Day, on Tuesday afternoon, May 19, at 2:30 o'clock, daylight time.
