Chapel Street Players to kick off 80th season

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

What started as a theater group for University of Delaware faculty members has evolved into a thriving community theater organization that has stood the test of time for eight decades.

The Chapel Street Players, an all-volunteer group, will celebrate its 80th year this year. The season kicks off tonight with a one-act festival and preview of the upcoming shows.

Scott Mason, who serves as president of CSP, said one of the things that has sustained the theater group for so long is the fact it gives new actors and directors a place to hone their craft.

"It's always been a very welcoming and warm place," Mason said.

Many of the people who start at CSP stay with the organization, said Renee O'Leary, who has been performing at the theater since 1961.

Council approves apartment additions

More units to be

On Monday night, city council gave a developer the go-ahead to add apartments onto the existing buildings at Pomeroy Station on East Main Street and Madeline Crossing on South Main Street.

Jeff Lang, of Lang Development Group, asked that council allow 1.84 acres currently occupied by a portion of the Pomeroy Station parking lot to be turned into a three-story building containing four three-bedroom townhouse-style apartments with parking underneath.

Council unanimously voted in favor of the project, and the new apartments will be added to the side of the existing Pomeroy Station

Event celebrates Welsh influence on local culture

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

Most Newarkers are familiar with Welsh Tract Road. But, have you ever thought about how the road got its name?

"People don't connect it," Elly Barczak, president of the Welsh Society of Delaware, said, referring to the fact the road is named for the "Welsh tract," land granted to the Welsh by William Penn.

"Not many people know about the Welsh influence in this area," she added.

However, Barczak and her organization attempted to change that Saturday, hosting the first Welsh Heritage Day celebration at the Pencader Heritage Museum on Sunset Lake Road.

A highlight of the event was the Gymanfa Ganu – a gathering for song – performed by Cor Rehoboth, a Welsh choir from Delta, Pa.

"Music is a huge part of the Welsh culture," Barczak said.

Saturday's festival also featured dancing, Welsh cuisine and a presentation on the Welsh language.

The Welsh first immigrated to the American colonies in 1681 when William Penn granted 40,000 acres in Pennsylvania to Quakers looking to escape religious persecution in Wales.

In 1701, Penn granted a second tract of land to the Welsh, this one consisting of 30,000 acres in what is now Delaware and Maryland. The area included current-day southern Newark, Glasgow and part of Cecil County, Md.

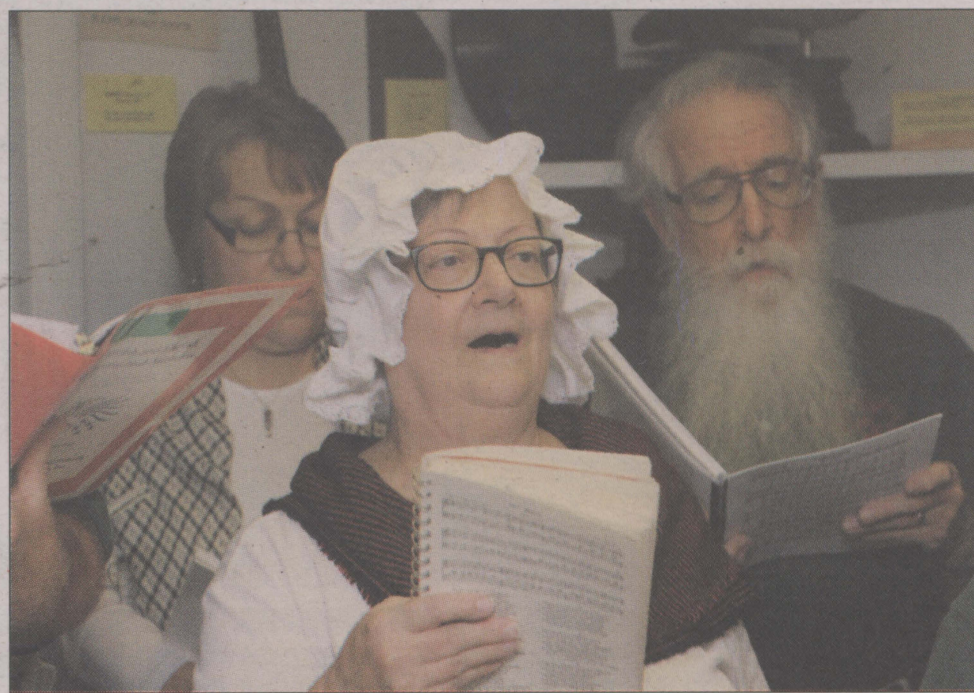

According to the Pencader Heritage Area Association, the Welsh were skilled miners, and there is evidence they mined at Iron Hill.

The early Welsh also built two churches that still stand today: the Welsh Tract Baptist Church on Welsh Tract Road and Pencader Presbyterian Church on Glasgow Avenue.

Barczak said the heritage celebration was the brainchild of Pete Williams, the founder and longtime president of the Welsh Society of Delaware, who died last year. She hopes it becomes an annual event.

"We really want to share with the greater public our Welsh heritage," Barczak said. "We don't have the strength in numbers that the Irish and Italians have."

Cor Rehoboth, a Welsh choir from Delta, Pa., performs Saturday during a Welsh Heritage Day celebration at the Pencader Heritage Museum.

Pencader Heritage Museum was a natural fit because Pencader Hundred encompasses most of the former Welsh tract, she said. Its name is derived from a Welsh word meaning "high seat."

"Heritage groups have to work together, and we have so much in common," Barczak said.

Boundaries of the Welsh tract

The northeast corner of the Welsh tract is a few hundred yards northeast of the old train station in Newark on South College Avenue. From there the line extends about four and a half miles west into Maryland, not far from the Big Elk Creek. It then travels south and east back into Delaware some distance south of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal before heading east a short distance to where it winds its way north and east in a way that is anything but straight back to the place of beginning. In Delaware, it nearly covers that which is Pencader Hundred.

Townsend easily fends off primary challenger

Incumbent state senator unopposed in general election

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

State Sen. Bryan Townsend will return to the legislature after fending off a challenge from New Castle County Councilman David L. Tackett in Tuesday's primary election.

Townsend won 78 percent of the vote and will be unopposed in the general election.

Tackett fell short with 352 votes, or 22 percent of the total in the 11th

District, which includes Brookside and other areas just southeast of Newark city limits.

A Wilmington University graduate and a longtime employee at Amtrak, Tackett lives in the Timber Farms neighborhood and has represented Glasgow and Bear residents on the county council for 10 years. He has served on the New Castle County Planning Board, as past president of the Varlano Civic Association and 7&40 Alliance and has been involved with Local 1284 International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Townsend received 1,253 votes and said he is "very thankful" that his constituents want to see him back in office.

"I'm thrilled for the huge support they just demonstrated and for all the hard work from my campaign team," Townsend said Tuesday after the results were announced.

A resident of the Westover Woods neighborhood, Townsend is a graduate of the Christina School District and the University of Delaware, where he earned both his undergraduate and graduate degrees before attending Yale Law School. He now works as an attorney in Wilmington.

Townsend was first elected in 2012 when he defeated 14-year incumbent Anthony J. DeLuca, president pro tempore of the Delaware State Senate, in the Democratic primary by winning 57.8 percent of the vote. He then went on to overcome Republican Evan Queitsch in the 2012, general election, securing 78.4 percent of the vote.

Due to redistricting, Townsend served only a two-year term and said Tuesday he is excited to start working on traffic and infrastructure projects as well as continue to support the state's teachers and students by increasing coordination within the education system, specifically between charter schools and district schools and "bridging the gap."

Townsend attributed his landslide win over Tackett to his constituent services during his first term and "sincerely listening to voters" over the last two years and during his door-knocking campaign leading up to the election.

"They don't like the traditional, very cliché campaign tactics," he said.

Tackett could not be reached for comment Tuesday night.

Townsend was the only state legislator who represents a portion of Newark who faced a primary challenge on Tuesday. State Sen. Bethany Hall-Long, whose 10th district includes the southern part of the city, will face Middletown Republican John Marino in the general election.

State representatives Paul Baumbach, John Kowalko and Edward Osienski ran unopposed.

City to hold sound, stormwater workshops

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

Members of the public are encouraged to attend special meetings on sound and stormwater this month for an open discussion with city staff and consultants, officials say.

The sound workshop will be held Monday from 6 to 8 p.m. in council chambers, with the discussion led by Valentino P. De Rocili, senior principal consultant with Compliance Environmental Inc.

City spokesman Ricky Nietubicz said the workshop is in response to residents' concerns regarding noise levels for future development and how the city plans to "protect quality of life in the neighborhood."

"Our noise ordinance is somewhat aged," he said.

The public will have a chance to comment, ask questions and provide feedback during the meeting, which Nietubicz said is intended to facilitate an open dialogue.

"We want to try to get a pulse of what the community is looking for," he said.

The city will also hold a stormwater workshop later this month on Sept. 29 from 7 to 9 p.m. in council chambers, where Nietubicz said officials will "continue the discussion" on the proposed fee that would fund $7.5 million in infrastructure repairs to prevent future flooding and bring the system up to standards.

The money is needed to fix critical problems on East Main Street, Haines Street, Kells Avenue, Arbour Drive, Swarthmore Road, Devon Place, Barksdale Road, Julie Lane, Paper Mill Road and Timberline Drive. Problems include utility pipes crossing through storm sewers and manholes, overgrown vegetation, debris accumulation and fallen mortar and bricks in a storm drainage pipe, among other issues.

To foot the bill, Finance Director Lou Vitola has recommended a $7.50 monthly fee for residents and a $30 monthly fee for commercial properties, billed through existing utility bills.

Nietubicz said Public Works staff will present any revisions to the plans they presented at three community meetings earlier this year and will welcome questions, suggestions and comments from the public, with the intention to compromise on a plan of action that is fair and equitable.

"Obviously we recognize we have a stormwater management issue throughout the city that needs to be addressed," he said.

SHORTY

From

"It was cold and it was wet and he was shaking, but he wouldn't leave the sidelines," Simpson recalled. "He was still trying to dry off the balls and get them in."

Of course, Simpson wasn't surprised.

Nearing age 90 at the time, Clarence "Shorty" Yoder had volunteered to hold the down markers and manage the footballs during Yellowjacket games for more than 40 years. But more than that, Shorty was the team's unofficial mascot, its good luck charm and its "heart-beat," as Simpson termed it.

Shorty was a fixture on the sidelines until last season when health problems relegated him to the bleachers.

The Yellowjackets honored Clarence "Shorty" Yoder last Friday by presenting a jersey to his family. From left: son Matthew, wife Lois, daughter Donna and son Mark.

In July, he died at the age of 92. His family buried him in his signature referee uniform that he wore during games while signaling touchdowns and miming throwing penalty flags.

At Newark's first game of the season last Friday, the Yellowjackets paid tribute to Shorty in a pre-game ceremony. The players presented a No. 1 jersey to Shorty's wife, Lois, and his children, and the family accompanied the captains to midfield for the coin toss.

As the P.A. announcer introduced the tribute and called Shorty "Newark's greatest fan," a hush came over the crowd.

"When that place went silent, I couldn't believe how quiet it was and the respect they were giving him," Shorty's youngest son, Matthew Yoder, said. "Having the coach do what he did for us and for my dad, words can't do it justice."

Born in Windber, Pa., in 1922, Shorty served in the 83rd Infantry during World War II and earned two Purple Hearts. When he was in his 20s, he moved to Newark, where he found work as a custodian at the University of Delaware.

For many years, Shorty lived in George Read Village, just across Delaware Avenue from Newark High, where all four of his children attended school.

"He just loved this school and loved this team," Yoder said. "The team took to him like a mascot almost. He was their unofficial good luck charm."

Shorty never played football himself, Yoder noted.

"He earned the name Shorty — we could use his head as an arm rest," he said. "He was not a football player. I think he lived vicariously through them."

Shorty's involvement with the Yellowjackets pre-dated even the venerable Coach Simpson.

"Me and the short guy rode the bus together to every away game for 38 years," Simpson said. "The family would call me and ask what time the bus is leaving. They'd drop Shorty off because even though they were going to the game, he insisted upon riding the bus. And that was fine with me."

Shorty was with the team during its good times — like the back-to-back state championships in the late '90s and early 2000s — and the bad times — like 2012, when the team went 1-9. But he never stopped smiling and encouraging the players.

"I don't know that there was anybody else who was more upbeat in life than Shorty," Simpson said. "It was always a smile and a good feeling. He made you feel good to be around him and never seemed to have a bad day. I don't even know if he had bad moments."

"You feel blessed that he lived to be 92. We'd all love to have Shorty's life in the big picture."

From

"It becomes a family and a second home," O'Leary said. "The family works together. It's what makes Chapel Street Players work."

The organization began as the University Drama Group in 1934 and was comprised of 35 UD faculty members and staff. The group performed its shows at Mitchell Hall and later expanded to include community members.

By the 1960s, the group was looking for a home of its own and purchased a former church on North Chapel Street. It held its first show there in 1970, when it also began operating under its current name.

CSP currently puts on four major plays each year, plus a fundraiser in June and various special projects. Shows draw approximately 80 people each night and usually run for two weekends, Mason said.

Like the actors themselves, many of the attendees are long-time patrons of the theater.

"We bring people in, and then they bring other people in," O'Leary said. "It's open doors and open hearts. People want to be there."

Just in time for this season, CSP completed a $30,000 renovation project that included replacing the façade, renovating the lobby and adding security measures. The effort was funded by a two-year capital fundraising campaign.

Mason said the next challenge in the coming years is to find a new home for the theater as Chapel Street has become "a nightmare" due to a

Man charged in daytime robbery on The Green

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

An Elsmere man is facing charges in the brazen, lunch-time robbery of a University of Delaware student on the North Green.

The incident happened Sept. 5 at 11:46 a.m., when The Green and nearby Main Street are typically bustling with students headed to and from class. UD Police said Carlton V. Kilson, 25, approached a 20-year-old student who was sitting on a bench in front of the Harter Hall dorm. Kilson shoved the student to the ground and stole her laptop, authorities allege.

Along with several bystanders, the student chased Kilson onto Main Street, where he stopped and threw the laptop at her, police said.

A Newark Police officer happened to be in the area and was able to arrest Kilson after a brief struggle.

Kilson, who is not associated with UD, was charged with first-degree robbery, two counts of terroristic threatening, two counts of menacing, third-degree trespassing, criminal mischief under $1,500 and resisting arrest. He was committed to Howard R. Young Correctional Institution in lieu of $24,100 secured bail.

POLICE BRIEFS

Police investigate break-in at South College Avenue home

Police are looking into a break-in that occurred last week at a home on South College Avenue, officers say.

According to Newark Police spokesman Cpl. Gerald Bryda, the incident occurred sometime between 6:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sept. 3 in the 700 block of South College Avenue.

The victim told police he left for work in the morning and came home to find that someone had forced their way inside through a rear screen door. After walking around the house, he reported that no items were stolen and Bryda said police continue to investigate the incident.

If apprehended, the suspect will be charged with second-degree burglary and criminal mischief, Bryda said.

Guitar, iPod stolen from car parked on Lehigh Road

Someone broke into an unlocked car last week and stole several items.

Newark Police spokesman Cpl. Gerald Bryda said that sometime between Sept. 4 and Sept. 5, an unknown suspect entered an unlocked car parked in a driveway of a home in the 800 block of Lehigh Road.

The thief stole an iPod and guitar, which are worth an estimated $550.

Bryda said police continue to investigate the incident and have no suspects at this time.

Man attempts to use counterfeit bill at gas station

Police are looking for a man who tried to use a fake $100 bill at a South College Avenue gas station over the weekend and then fled the scene before officers arrived.

According to Newark Police spokesman Cpl. Gerald Bryda, the incident occurred at noon on Sunday at the Shell gas station on South College Avenue.

The gas station attendant told police that the suspect, who he described as a 5-foot-6 black man between 35 and 40 years old and weighing 220 pounds, handed him the counterfeit bill and when confronted, attempted to get the bill back.

Bryda said the attendant called police, but the man fled in a white pickup truck before officers arrived. Police have since seized the phony bill and are investigating the incident. Bryda said surveillance footage from the gas station was unavailable.

Burglar steals TV, cash, jewelry from Arbor Drive home

An Arbor Drive resident left her home for a few hours on Sunday and returned to find that several items had been stolen while she was gone.

According to Newark Police spokesman Cpl. Gerald Bryda, the burglary occurred sometime between 2:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday when the suspect entered a home in the 400 block of Arbor Drive through an unlocked front window.

The resident told police that when she came home, she noticed her garage door was open and the front window was open more than when she had left. Upon entering the house, she saw that a flatscreen TV, jewelry and an undisclosed amount of cash had been taken. The stolen goods had an estimated total value of more than $3,000.

A K-9 officer tracked the suspect's trail through the woods in the neighborhood but found no further evidence.

Bryda said the incident is still under investigation and if apprehended, the suspect will be charged with second-degree burglary and theft over $1,500.

Teens arrested in beating of mentally disabled man

Incident was recorded, posted on social media

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

Three Newark-area teens have been arrested in connection to the beating of a mentally disabled man that was recorded and posted to social media.

The victim was a 26-year-old man who has a neurodevelopmental disorder, said Ofc. Tracey Duffy, a spokeswoman for the New Castle County Police Department.

Police believe the videos, which drew attention over the weekend after being posted to Instagram and YouTube, were filmed several weeks ago.

One of the videos, which appears to have been shot outside the Harbor Club Apartments on Cheswold Boulevard, east of Newark, shows a group of at least five teens throwing the man to the ground and repeatedly punching him.

A second video depicts another attack in a wooded area.

The first two teens were arrested Saturday at NC-CPD headquarters. One is a 14-year-old boy from the unit block of Kollman Drive in Brookside. The other is a 13-year-old boy from Pride Courts Apartments on Red Mill Road. Police did not release their names.

The third, a 14-year-old boy who lives in the unit block of Patrick Henry Court in the Cherry Hill Manor neighborhood of Newark, turned himself in Monday, police said.

Monday's teens were charged with offensive touching, assault of a vulnerable adult and third-degree conspiracy.

The teens were released on bail and ordered not to have contact with the victim.

Police say the victim was treated and released from the hospital.

Police: Serial purse snatchers apprehended

By JACOB OWENS

Special from the Cecil Whig

Serial purse snatchers, who allegedly committed crimes in Glasgow, Middletown and Elkton, Md., over the past month, were apprehended last week, police reported.

Andrew Flach, 24, of Galena, Md., and Kayla Marie Velez, 21, Warwick, Md., were sought in connection with at least four purse thefts dating back to Aug. 13.

Lt. Michael Holmes, a Cecil County Sheriff's Office spokesman, said an off-duty officer spotted the pair Aug. 31 at the Big Elk Mall in Elkton.

On-duty officers arrived, and a search of the suspects' vehicle turned up syringes, numerous plastic baggies with suspected heroin residue in them and several handbags, wallets and cellphones, Holmes said.

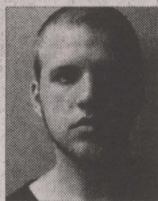

Their arrest came just shortly after the duo had successfully stolen a handbag in the parking lot of the North East, Md., Walmart, police confirmed.

Delaware State Police is investigating the most recent Delaware incident, in which the suspects allegedly stole a woman's purse from the back of her van while loading groceries at the Safeway in People's Plaza in Glasgow.

Previously, the Middletown Police Department responded to an Aug. 22 incident at the Walmart in that town, where a 25-year-old woman was victimized as she loaded groceries into her vehicle. The woman turned around to grab groceries when she noticed the man grab her purse from the shopping cart and run to a moving 1998 green Honda Civic with a Maryland license plate, driven by a girl with pink hair, police said.

Editor's note: Volunteers at the Pencader Heritage Museum have been digitizing old Newark City Council meeting minutes. They share excerpts with Newark Post readers in a weekly column.

Dec. 2, 1895: The town treasury held $1,663 with $925 interest due on water bonds.

Any tramp picked up in town was to be taken before the alderman then committed to jail at New Castle. A $25 reward was offered for the arrest and conviction of anyone found guilty of burglary, arson or murder in the town.

Jan. 3-6, 1896: The Keely, Potter, Bennet estate and Olivates properties had liens filed against them for back taxes. Council wanted the location of the new house being built by Miss Lou Wilson reported to the town surveyor. The B&O Railroad paid $69 in December for water for its steam engines. A total of $57.52 in premiums for $5,000 insurance on the electric and water station was spread among three insurance companies.

Blankets for the "lock-up" cost $2.75.

Curbing in front of the Elliott property was ordered moved nearer the sidewalk, lest it interfere with horses moving on the street. C. M. Curtis, council's attorney, submitted a bill for $105.25 for various legal actions taken. Bids were requested for 400 metric tons of Jackson Mine or other Georges Creek coal delivered to the water & light station. These were the types of coal Council preferred.

At a special meeting on Jan. 10, John Lewis was ordered to return the curbing he had removed from the Elliott property within 24 hours or council would do it at his expense.

Christina Early Education Center earns 4-star rating from state

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

The Christina School District's Early Education Center has been awarded four stars from the Department of Education's Delaware Stars for Early Success program, putting the Newark preschool on the map as the first public school in the state to achieve the rating.

"It was a lot of hard work and to know you've been recognized for that hard work is just amazing," Principal Shannon O'Neill said.

Funded by the Delaware DOE and administered and managed by the Delaware Institute for Excellence in Early Childhood (DIEEC) in the University of Delaware's College of Education and Human Development, Delaware Stars for Early Success is a Quality Rating and Improvement System (QRIS) that assesses and improves early care and education in school settings.

O'Neill said the Early Education Center, located on East Chestnut Hill Road, applied for its first-ever assessment after getting some encouragement from DOE Education Associate Verna Thompson and were evaluated this past spring.

"She's a big advocate

Lauren Crist, a teacher at the Christina Early Education Center, leads a group lesson about the letter "B." The preschool on East Chestnut Hill Road recently received a four-star rating from the Department of Education's Delaware Stars program.

for inclusive early childhood settings," O'Neill said. "She knew we'd be up for the challenge."

Assessors visited the school and evaluated seven classrooms at random to make sure each were equipped with clear and defined areas for art, literacy, math, science, dramatic play, sensory and technology and also included tools and resources for learning.

"In the science area, you have to have living things and in math, you have to have things you can measure with, things you can count with," O'Neill explained.

They observed the classrooms to watch how well teachers interacted with the students and facilitated language development, an area where O'Neill said CEEC shines.

"That's one of our biggest strengths," she said, adding that every teacher is both early childhood education certified and special education certified. "Which makes us unique."

Assessors also looked at classroom routines, making sure children spend at least one third of their time in "free play," as well as overall building safety including the size of the doorways, how much mulch is on the playground and if all electrical outlets were covered.

O'Neill said CEEC spent considerable time preparing for the evaluation and was confident it would achieve most, if not all, of Delaware Stars' requirements.

"It wasn't anything we weren't already doing; it was just a matter of compiling all of our evidence," she said.

As the first public school in the state with a four-star rating, O'Neill said CEEC now has access to more grants and funding, but that's not why it applied.

"It's validating the hard work the teachers do," O'Neill said. "Plus, if you're a parent and you're looking around, you're most likely looking for those higher star levels."

Since the preschool received the rating in June, she said, enrollment has gone up and more parents are asking about the achievement. Several schools in the state and in the district have also sought CEEC's advice for reaching four stars and two have even visited to observe, she said.

"It's a challenge to be the first because you're the first," O'Neill said.

CEEC will be reassessed in November, and O'Neill said they are striving to earn five stars, the highest achievable level.

To meet the new goal, she said, the school has made building-wide changes and safety improvements such as more mulch for the playground and covers for all electrical outlets.

"Some of them were easy fixes," she said.

To work on language development, O'Neill said, teachers have been meeting with a speech and language pathologist and learning new strategies to get students to use language in the classroom for communicating and problem solving.

They've also changed the curriculum and redeveloped classroom schedules to include more "free play," she said.

"We're confident and excited going forward," O'Neill said. "I think the teachers and everyone involved, they should be really proud."

Soldiers memorialized 237 years after Battle of Cooch's Bridge

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

They died 237 years ago, but the 24 young Americans who gave their lives during Delaware's only Revolutionary War battle won't soon be forgotten.

That was the message Saturday, as the Pencader Heritage Area Association held its annual memorial ceremony to mark the anniversary of the Battle of Cooch's Bridge.

Historians, re-enactors and a few dozen others gathered under sunny skies at the Pencader Heritage Museum, which, museum officials often point out, sits on hallowed ground. The fallen soldiers are believed to be buried somewhere on or around the museum property, located near the intersection of Sunset Lake Road and Old Baltimore Pike.

"Like the Minutemen of Lexington and Concord, the American soldiers who fought here understood in their souls that freedom is not free and that in this new world, the ability to chart one's own course, free of the whims of a potentate, was worth their service, their fortunes and perhaps even their all," said retired U.S. Army Col. Robert Leicht, who served as the event's keynote speaker.

"Why would they do it?" Leicht asked. "Not for the pay, not for ribbons or honors, not for accolades, but to be rid of the abuses enumerated in the Declaration of Independence just a year before."

The Battle of Cooch's Bridge – which historians say was more of a skirmish than a full-scale battle – took place Sept. 3, 1777 along what is now Old Baltimore Pike.

More than 12,000 British and Hessian troops landed at the Head of Elk – now Elkton, Md. – and marched toward Philadelphia in an ultimately successful attempt to capture the Colonial capital. Gen. George Washington sent 800 soldiers to Cooch's Bridge to scout out and delay the enemy.

Hiding in the woods west of the bridge, the Colonists ambushed the approaching British troops. The fighting lasted for most of the day before a British charge forced the Americans to retreat.

The British occupied the area, including the Cooch house, for several days before marching through Newark and onto the Battle of Brandywine.

'Paint and sip' franchise opens in Suburban Plaza

By KARIE SIMMONS

ksimmons@newarkpostonline.com

Stephanie Rhodes is not an artist, but that's why she loves Painting with a Twist – because it's for anyone and everyone, and she says she is living proof.

"I keep hearing, 'Oh, I can't paint,' and I say, 'I couldn't either,' and that's truly the beauty of this," she said.

Rhodes, 46, of Newark, spent 10 years in finance and accounting and another 10 in operations management with startup companies but took one Painting with a Twist class and decided she wanted make a career change. On Wednesday, she and her husband, William, opened the Louisiana-based painting company's first permanent Delaware location in Suburban Plaza.

Opening the studio in Newark's Suburban Plaza off Elkton Road was "logistically convenient," Rhodes said, not only because it's close to her home, but also because the shopping center is close to Maryland, the University of Delaware, downtown Newark and right off Interstate 95. The plaza is also surrounded by the student housing complex The Retreat, which opened earlier last month.

With 160 locations nationwide Painting with a Twist aims to combine art and instruction with socializing and relaxation, Rhodes said.

"There's camaraderie, it's fun, you can play music. This is like going to a party, like a girls night out," she said. "You can completely forget about your to-do list and your shopping list and all the things that typically run through your head for the two hours that you're in the studio."

Interested painters and budding artists can choose either a $40 two-hour session or $50 three-hour session during which local artists from the Newark Arts Alliance and COCA art gallery in Wilmington will teach groups of up to 36 people how to create the landscapes, abstracts, cityscapes, animals, iconic buildings and florals from Painting with a Twist's gallery of over 5,000 pieces with just the stroke of a brush.

"We truly have something for everyone," Rhodes said.

Painting with a Twist also offers a $25 children's class for 7 to 12-year-olds as well as private parties for up to 12 people.

The price of each session includes complimentary beverages such as beer, wine and non-alcoholic drinks, as well as the paint, brushes, aprons and canvas. Painters are welcome to bring their own food and snacks.

Rhodes said if painters doesn't like how their piece came out or would like help finishing their work, Painting with a Twist offers free "S.O.S. sessions" on the last Sunday of every month when customers can bring their painting back and meet with an artist.

"They're going to help them get their painting how they want it," she said.

Most group painting sessions are offered in the evenings and on weekends, but Rhodes said that by October, she plans to roll out a daytime session called "Coffee and Canvas" targeted toward stay-at-home moms and seniors.

She said she is also working toward offsite events at nursing homes, senior centers and corporations as well as summer art camps for kids.

"That's on the master plan," she said.

For now, Rhodes said she and her husband are excited to be business owners in the Newark community and are hoping Painting with a Twist offers residents, students and people of all ages another option in weekend and weeknight entertainment.

"We're not teaching a painting class, per say," she said. "This is a social event. It's fun, it's light and you can go home at the end of the day with a finished product."

Campbell leads Yellowjackets to victory in season opener

By JOSH SHANNON

jshannon@newarkpostonline.com

During last year's disappointing 3-7 season, Newark High quarterback Ben Campbell threw for five touchdowns.

Only one game into this season, the Yellowjackets' senior signal caller has already matched that total.

Newark cruised to a 40-25 victory over Oxford (Pa.) Area High School last Friday night, showing off its pass-heavy offense for the home crowd.

Campbell threw for 234 yards and five touchdowns. He was also the team's leading rusher with 110 yards, including an 8-yard touchdown run in the opening minutes of the game.

"It was really fun. We're going to pass the ball more this year," said Campbell, who is in his second year at Newark after transferring from the Milton Hershey School in Pennsylvania.

He said he and his teammates put in extra work over the summer to improve. After making it to the state final in 2011, the Yellowjackets won just four games over the two years that followed.

"We put a lot of emphasis on getting respect back from even people at our own school, and I think we did that tonight," Campbell said. "We knew what we had to do to win."

After Campbell's rushing touchdown early in the game, Newark scored two more through the air — a 35-yard pass to senior Peter Suski and a 70-yard bomb to junior Brendan Sherman — to take a 20-0 lead by the end of the first quarter.

Oxford got on the board with a 70-yard run by Zach Deasey. Suski answered with his second touchdown reception of the night, a 42-yard pass from Campbell. Oxford's Ryan Hubley then ran 5 yards for a touchdown to make the score at halftime 27-13.

Newark went on to score twice more — on a 34-yard reception by senior James Quarterback Ben Campbell rushed for 110 yards.

Bond and a 12-yard reception by senior Joseph Burton. Late in the fourth quarter, Oxford tacked on two more rushing touchdowns as well.

Head coach Butch Simpson was pleased with the result, noting it was a big improvement over last year's 14-7 loss on the road at Oxford.

"The kids needed a win," Simpson said. "We've had some tough years, but we had this and we've got to try to build off of it."

He credited Campbell and the team's passing game.

"What Ben Campbell and our receivers did tonight is no surprise," he said. "That is the strength of our football team — throwing it."

Tonight, Newark will host the Charter School of Wilmington in a 7 p.m. contest. Last year, the Yellowjackets lost a heartbreaking 41-40 road game at Charter. Newark led for nearly the entire game before the Force came back to win in the final seconds.

Simpson hopes to take lessons learned from this week's victory and apply them to the game against Charter.

"I'm hoping we can step back and see what we look like in a game — because everything's different in a game," he said. "We have to take a close look at what we have and make our adjustments as coaches."

Why the UD-DSU game should continue

Jon Buzby

Despite Mother Nature's attempt to prolong what was once called the Route 1 Rivalry, the matchup between Delaware's only Football Championship Series (FCS) teams that is now termed Delaware Day is over.

At least for now.

On a picture-perfect makeup day, the University of Delaware was awarded its fifth consecutive First State Cup on Sunday afternoon after easily defeating Delaware State University 27-9 in front of an estimated crowd of 5,000. (12,511 tickets were distributed for the game).

Delaware scored on the first possession of the game when Wes Hills scampered into the end zone from the 1 yard line. It was an 11-play drive that covered 60 yards in 3:53. It looked effortless.

The Hens opening drive of the second half was even easier. This time, Jalen Randolph used some nifty moves to run 46 yards between would-be tacklers to give Delaware a 27-3 lead. The Hens needed just three plays and a minute to deliver what would be the knockout punch. And not just of the game.

For now at least, the in-state rivalry, or whatever you want to call it, is down and out.

That being said, UD athletic director Eric Ziady has said publicly he wants to schedule another Division 1 opponent in 2018, the lone year in the next several that UD isn't facing an ACC opponent. UD also has schedule openings in 2016 and 2017. Reports are officials from both schools will meet in the near future to discuss the possibility of continuing the series.

But should the Hens even think about putting the Hornets back on the schedule for what is now considered anything but a healthy, competitive rivalry?

The majority of the avid UD football fans scream, Nooooo!

After five lopsided wins by at least more than three touchdowns — the score was 27-17 in 2009 — many UD fans are clamoring for a more worthy opponent. Or as one fan sent me in a text message: "If we are going to see ugly, let's at least see a variety of ugly."

But in the words of former Eagles running back Ricky Watters: For who? For what?

Do the fans really think UD is going to replace the Hornets with an Eastern Washington or Montana-type team; or any mainstay FCS Top 20 opponent for that matter? Sure, I'd vote right now to play K.C. Keeler and the Bearkats. But we have a better chance of seeing Keeler without sunglasses than we do his Bearkats traveling to Newark.

UD wants — and rightly so — what's going to be a hopefully automatic win and probably a "recovery" weekend on its schedule over the next several seasons with Football Bowl Series opponents scheduled four of the next five years.

Delaware State provides just that.

But why else should this matchup continue?

Quite frankly, the tougher question is, why not?

As mentioned, UD is not going to bring in an FCS powerhouse. So why not keep on the schedule what has been an automatic win that counts come playoff time.

UD probably isn't going to get an easier FCS opponent to come to Delaware Stadium every single year without demanding reciprocity. And since DSU isn't going to find a cheaper FCS away game, UD is in a position to decrease whatever amount has been paid out previously. (The UD athletic department would not divulge the pay-out amounts to any non-conference visiting teams.)

Whichever team UD would otherwise bring in to replace DSU on the schedule most likely won't bring any more fans than the abysmal effort made by the Hornet "faithful" over the years. Of course, the lack of fans making that long-distance trek from Dover might have something to do with the fact that during the week leading up to the big game this year, when you clicked on the "DSU Fan Tent at UD" banner on the athletics homepage, it sent you to a landing page with links to several things having nothing to do with the UD game.

Or maybe when DSU fans finally got to Route 1 on Sunday morning they went north instead of south. Admit it, just like me, you still can't navigate the new ramp system coming north on Route 1 near the mall.

Without DSU on the schedule, Vice President Joe Biden no longer has a "gimme" game to attend. Same with whoever is governor.

Another school's band is not going to be as entertaining as DSU's Approaching Storm. Remember, West Chester coming back is not an option.

UD versus DSU. It really is the perfect storm.

Don't forget the warm-up

Healthy Newark
Nic DeCaire

Someone once told me that if you don't like it, then you probably actually need it.

While this is not true for everything – like eating liver, cleaning the house or doing laundry – it is almost always true when it comes to a proper fitness warm-up.

Think about it for a minute. When it comes to exercise, what do you normally do? Stretch a little bit, maybe do a couple jumping jacks and then, bam! You start your workout.

Unfortunately, a proper warm-up is something that people often avoid when it comes to fitness. There are plenty of reasons why – maybe they don't know how to properly warm up, they don't think it's important, they are limited on the amount of time they have or perhaps they don't enjoy it. I know when I am crunched for time the warm up is the last thing on my mind.

But exercising without warming up is like brushing your teeth without toothpaste. You go through the motions (but forget the most important part. (And you wonder why nobody at work wants to talk to you?))

Let's take a look at some of the reasons people should make the time – and effort – to warm up before they exercise. Here's what happens when you warm up:

1. It increases your body temperature.
2. It activates your nervous system.
3. Your range of motion increases.
4. It helps correct any limitations.

These seem like pretty important things when it comes to exercise, wouldn't you say? Something as simple as warming up can help reduce the risk of injury and help provide better results.

So what's the best way to do it? You should know the warm up has changed over the years. In the past, trainers would tell you to jump on a treadmill for five minutes. That is not enough to get your body ready for a workout.

A proper warm up should last 10 to 15 minutes and should leave you hot and sweaty. For some people, the warm up we perform with clients could be the entire workout.

Here's a warm up to try the next time you exercise. Aim for about 30 seconds of each exercise in a row and repeat twice.

1. Jumping jacks
2. Alternating reverse lunges
3. Pushups
4. Bird dogs
5. Planks
6. Alternating knee grabs
7. Squats
8. Inchworms

Spending the extra time before a workout will help prevent injury over the years, keeping you in the game longer. I always tell my clients if you are injured, you cannot achieve results.

For more information on these warm up exercises, go to our YouTube channel at <https://www.youtube.com/user/fusionfitnessDE> for demonstrations.

Nic DeCaire is the owner of Fusion Fitness Center on Main Street.

Out of the Attic Map of Newark — 1858

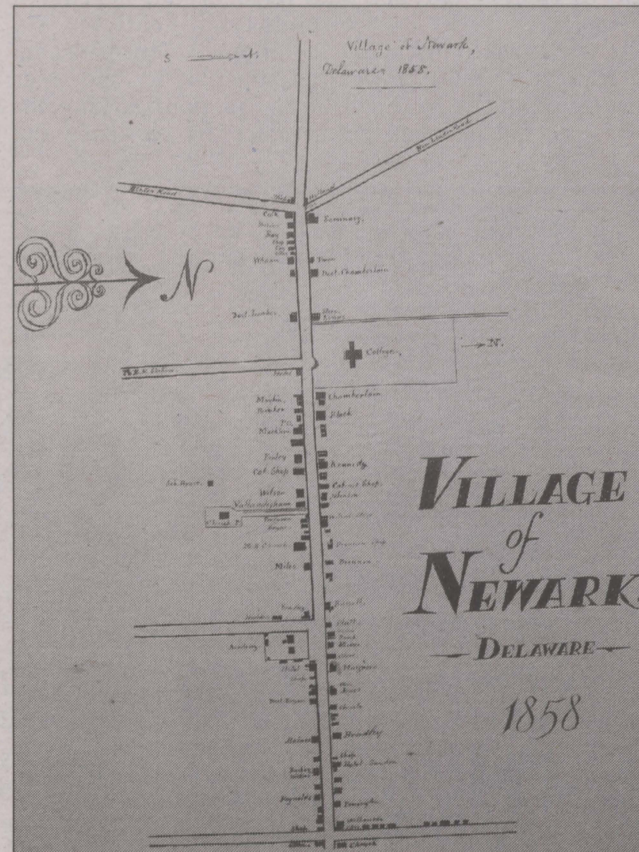

This week's Out of the Attic item is a map of Newark from 1858 showing a village that had grown over two centuries along a road between the Delaware and Susquehanna rivers, today's Route 273.

Most settlers raised crops or cattle, some mined iron or clay and some provided services to support the farmers, miners, and others. At least 12 grist or sawmills were in the area. Tradesmen clustered their homes and shops along the road. The area reflected the lifestyles and customs brought from their homelands by the Scotch, Welsh, English, Dutch, German and other immigrants.

Orienting the map as it is pictured here, west is to the top, east is to the bottom, north is to the right and south is to the left.

Let's take a walking tour through town starting at the east edge.

On our right is the Village Presbyterian Church built in 1843. The cross street is Chapel Street (not named for the Village Church but for the Methodist Chapel that was further north from 1811 to 1851). As we stroll west on Newark Street (as it was once called) we pass a hotel on the right and another hotel on the left. This second one was the Washington House Hotel (1825-2006) built on the site of the Market authorized by King George II in 1758. Next door is the 1840 Newark Academy brick building erected replacing frame. In 1842 a separate dormitory was built.

On the next block we come to the Methodist Episcopal Church on the left (1851 to date) and next door is the Odd Fellows Lodge hall (1850 to date). A walkway to the left leads to the First Presbyterian Church (1843 to 1872) The little building sitting out from the church was the first one room public school (1831-1884). At the intersection (Depot Road) is a third hotel. Across the corner is Newark College that opened in 1834 and later became Delaware College, and then the University of Delaware (1921 to date). At the three-way intersection, the building to the right is our fourth hotel, the Deer Park (1851 to date) built to replace St. Patrick's Inn (1747-1848).

Learn more at the Newark History Museum located on South College Avenue beside the bridge. It is open Sundays from 2 to 5 now through November. Make appointments to visit at other times by calling 302-368-9845 to schedule. at 218 E. Main St., which currently contains 14,500 square feet of retail space and 15 upper-story apartments.

Lang also asked that council approve a similar project further down the road and explained the intention for the resubdivision of the 1.43-acre property at 162 S. Main St. known as Madeline Crossing.

He said he plans to convert existing office space in the mixed-use building currently on the site into three-bedroom apartment units and construct six additional four-bedroom apartments in the rear with first-floor parking, for a total of 10 new apartment units on the property.

Sunset Road resident Amy Roe voiced her concerns about the apartments being built close to the CSX railroad tracks and said she believes it is too dangerous, especially when train cars carrying crude oil travel the railway.

"I would reject this proposal on the grounds that it is too close to the railroad tracks," she said.

Lang said the apartments will be about 70 feet from the tracks, and District 3 Councilman Rob Gifford pointed out that the Deer Park Tavern is 35 feet from the tracks, while Buffalo Wild Wings is 52 feet away.

Council approved the renovation and addition at Madeline Crossing 5 to 2 with Gifford and District 4 Councilwoman Marge Hadden as the opposing votes.
