Traffic not bad here

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

I can't believe that I'm actually going to say this – but traffic really isn't that bad right here in Newark and there's a study to prove it.

I know, I know. I hate traffic and complain about it more than anybody. But, compared to other places, we're fairly lucky here and a recent study proves it.

The study, which was done by the Washington, D.C. TRIP organization, ranks the 10 worst traffic roads in the state. It cites facts about how much time and fuel are wasted by traveling these roads at peak times. The TRIP study also gives scary figures on how the number of cars in the state has increased 25 percent more than the quickly growing population.

Anybody who has sat in traffic trying to get up and down Interstate-95 didn't need a study to know that it's one of the most congested areas in the state.

In fact, it is the biggest traffic nightmare in Delaware according to the study.

Again, to anybody that's out driving around these days none of this seems surprising.

The one thing that is surprising to me about the study is how well we actually have it.

Of the 10 worst traffic spots, we have just two here in Newark – Elkton Road and coming into Newark via the Kirkwood Highway. And even those rank just ninth and tenth on the list.

As a side, I'm not sure how any list can be compiled without having Main Street on it.

Don't get me wrong – I love Main Street. It's inviting

A modern-day treasure hunt

Geocaching combines GPS technology with old-fashioned hide and seek

By PATRICIA E. LANG

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Recently, a dozen or so persons met up at the White Clay Creek Nature Center here in Newark to learn about the largest treasure hunt in the world.

Forget the perils of the high seas and "Pirates of the Caribbean." Leave your swords and daggers at home. Geocaching is perfect for the 21st-century man or woman, combining the technology of Global Positioning Systems (GPS) with the old-fashioned game of hide and seek.

"Sometimes geocaching is referred to, humorously, as 'Nerds in the Woods,'" said Mike Ott, current head of the Delaware Geocachers organization.

Geocaching is an outdoor game played by people all over the world. To play, a person hides a container, called

No change for Center Street rentals

Council denies request to exempt street from Student Home Ordinance

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

Center Street will not go the way of N. Chapel Street and other areas exempted from the city's strict Student Home Ordinance, as Newark City Council voted Monday night against a request to ease rental restrictions there.

Under the current law, owners of rental properties can rent to families and up to two unrelated tenants. An exemption to the Student Home Ordinance would allow owners to rent to up to three students.

The request came through a real estate agent charged with selling a home at 21 Center Street, a residential street near Newark's downtown. The agent said it

Tangerine Tell has made an impact on many members. She has served as a discussion group leader and has been instrumental in enriching the cultural offerings at the center. Newark Police nab suspected robber

Officer chased man from shopping center to Wyoming Road

Ringgold

The Newark Police Department has arrested a 21-year-old Newark man, accused of robbing the Payless Shoe Source and a man using an ATM kiosk in the College Square Shopping Center here in Newark.

Police said the incident happened at 1:15 p.m., on Tuesday, July 10. A 43-year-old man told police he was using the ATM when the suspect, later identified as Kalief Ringgold, 21, of the 100 block of Elliot Street in Newark, demanded he withdraw cash from the machine.

Police said the man refused and was then searched by the suspect, who had his face covered and implied he had a weapon.

Police said Ringgold took nothing from the man, and walked across the parking lot to the Payless Shoe Source, where he showed a handgun and demanded money from a 31-year-old female clerk.

The woman turned over cash, and Ringgold fled the store, said police.

An officer of the Newark Police Department, called to the scene by the ATM victim, arrived in time to see the suspect running away from the shopping center toward Wyoming Road, said police.

Police said Ringgold tried, unsuccessfully, to carjack two vehicles near Wyoming Road and Marrows Road. The officer chased the suspect on foot, and eventually caught him on the Marrows Road bridge, just south of Wyoming Road.

Police recovered a gun, money and some clothing items along the route taken by the suspect.

Ringgold was arrested and charged with first degree robbery, attempted robbery, two counts of possession of a deadly weapon while committing a felony, two counts of wearing a disguise while committing a felony, possession of a firearm by a person prohibited and resisting arrest, said police.

Police are asking the victims of the attempted carjackings or any witnesses with information regarding this incident to contact Det. Scott Rieger at 366-7110, ext. 133.

Good Works Coalition offers scholarships

BY MARY E. PETZAK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

James Dillard of Glasgow High School in Christina District and Shane' Darby of Mount Pleasant High School in Brandywine District are the first recipients of scholarships awarded by The Good Works Coalition Inc. in memory of Lennell M. Jackson Jr. and Toni J. Menchan.

Jackson, a graduate of Glasgow High and lifelong resident of Newark, was killed in a tragic train accident in 2006. Menchan, a member of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, was an award-winning educator in Prince George's County, Md., who lost her battle with cancer in 1999. The two $500 scholarships will be presented at a Scholarship and Awards Gala on Saturday, July 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Rollins Center at the Dover Downs Hotel and Casino.

The Heritage Bowl included performances by members of the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity at the University of Delaware, and the Alpha Theta Alpha Club at Glasgow High School, and concluded with a "dazzling performance" by the Universal African Dance and Drum Ensemble based in New Jersey.

Tisa Silver and the Good Works Coalition Inc. sponsored a team from Glasgow High School in the first annual Heritage Bowl at the University of Delaware.

"We hope the [scholarship] amount will increase in the future depending on donations received," said Tisa L. Silver, president of The Good Works Coalition Inc.

Silver stated that both Jackson and Menchan "made a positive, unforgettable impact" on her life. "Lennell Jackson was my former boyfriend," Silver explained. "He always talked about going back to school, so I decided to award a scholarship each year in his memory."

In addition to college-bound students, three adults will be recognized at the Gala for contributions made to their communities. Each honoree will represent one of the core values of the Coalition.

Juanita Pritchett, Champion of Charity, is a veteran educator in the Christina School District, teaching reading and language arts to special needs children for 29 years.

James O'Neill, Champion of Wisdom, is professor of economics and director of the Center for Economic Education and Entrepreneurship at the University of Delaware.

Deborah Jastrebski, Champion of Independence, is founder and CEO of Practice Without Pressure, a non-profit organization which helps children and adults with disabilities receive quality medical, dental and personal care with dignity and respect.

Silver, an instructor at the University of Delaware, incorporated the non-profit Good Works Coalition in summer 2006. "Our mission is to promote growth within communities - in the spirit of charity, wisdom and independence."

DLA award for Christina District principal

Brader Elementary School principal Richelle Talbert was among winners of Delaware Library Association (DLA) awards this year. Talbert received the Administrator's Award for Excellence for her enthusiastic support of Brader's library media center, located at the entrance of the school as a gateway to learning, with programs including "Book Buddy," accelerated reader, and an open, flexible schedule. She has been particularly successful in raising funds for the library through grants and awards.

Other DLA winners included Sandra Burton who received the Distinguished Service Citation, DLA's highest honor. The Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control (DNREC) administrator was responsible for implementation of the Energy Answers program, which provided compact fluorescent light bulbs and appliance rebates to 100,000 Delaware homes. During this collaboration, Burton visited all 32 public libraries in Delaware, which served as distribution centers for the energy-saving devices.

The cooperative effort between DNREC and the Division of Libraries was recognized last year with the Governor's Team Excellence Award. Certificates were presented to the public libraries for their involvement and contribution to this award-winning effort.

Blue Hen Book Awards were presented to three books chosen by kids who read the five nominated books in each category and voted for their favorites. The books nominated by DLA Children's Services Division were available at all public libraries, many of which teamed up with schools so teachers could read the books to their students. After all votes were counted, the following winners were chosen:

The $1,200 scholarship was established in honor of former DLA president Grace Wheelless to aid Delaware students who are earning graduate degrees in library science. Pierce expects to graduate in spring 2008, and is employed at the Widener Law Library.

POST COLUMNIST

A vote of no confidence – for now

By RUTH KELLY

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

Over the past several months I've been sharing my insight on topics I would never touch before, considered taboo in many circles. I've shared my religious and spiritual thoughts. I thought it now time for me to share my political views.

The race for 2008 is off and running to a very early start. I am paying close attention to all of the presidential hopefuls, both Democrat and Republican. I encourage all to do the same.

I have been watching and observing all of the political candidates. Barack Obama is very impressive. He comes across as a man of integrity, intelligence and charisma, which attracts me, but in times like these, that's not enough to be President of these United States. Some will vote for Barack solely because he is Black. As much as I would love to see an African American as President, I will not cast my vote just for that reason.

I also have a great deal of respect for Joe Biden. I feel he has served the interests of the citizens of Delaware and the nation well and is brilliant in his knowledge of the Constitution. He also has a good perspective on foreign relations. Would I vote for him just because I'm a Delawarean? The answer is no.

As for Hillary Clinton, just because she is a woman won't guarantee that she will get my vote. I am undecided as many of us should be.

Rudy Guiliani will always remain America's darling because of September 2001. He galvanized a city and nation in healing in such a way that he will be revered and go down in the annals of history as one of the great American mayors of a large city. Can he run a country? People need to think beyond 9/11 when they consider him.

Politics is an area that I never paid too much attention to. I have voted faithfully in every election even if there were no candidates I had full confidence in. I wasn't thrilled with Reagan or the first George Bush, but that did not deter me from voting though many use that as an excuse not to cast their ballot. Many are simply fed up and disenfranchised with Washington, D.C.

I have never been more distressed about the state of our country than I have since the election and re-election of George W. Bush. Under this President's leadership, I've seen nothing but arrogance, denial and cover-ups. I visualize that the founders of this great nation are rolling over in their graves at the state of our country and what our elected officials have done or tried to do with our Constitution.

Every casualty of a soldier grieves me, too, and I can't find adequate words to express my distress. Military men and women join ranks because they love their country. They don't care what goes on in Washington; their main focus is to honor and defend our land. It is egregious to me that we continue to treat them and their families so shabbily. Have we not learned anything from Vietnam?

My cousin Gretchen in California is a political pundit. She is current on all of the issues facing our land and watches CNN and MSNBC faithfully. She was with me on Election Day 2004 taking care of me while I was recovering from surgery. On that day, unfortunately, I had to fend for myself. Before the polls ever closed she knew that Bush had won and lapsed into a deep depression on my living room sofa and wasn't herself for over a week.

In a recent phone conversation, she said something that bowled me over: "I'm voting Republican in 2008." I almost dropped the phone. My cousin is a die-hard Democrat. She loved Bill Clinton. She recently went to visit his library in Arkansas and sent me a magnet with his picture on it to mount on my fridge along with a license plate that reads IMISSBILL. I guess she got over being mad at him when he appeared to get chummy with Bush Sr. during Katrina.

So, when she said she was going to vote Republican I asked her why. Her answer was that she wants a Republican to be the one who has to fix the mess made by the Bush administration. She said it wouldn't be fair to put a Democrat in who would have to take the heat for all the mistakes and mishaps of the current administration. I have to admit, she had a point to consider.

But, I don't care if our next President is a purple alien from another galaxy. I want someone in office who will help the average Joes of this country. I want to see someone who is honest and has moral values and has what's in the best interest of our country first and foremost. I want someone to right the many wrongs over the past seven years. I want to see a President deal with the health care issue, global warming and social security. I want to see the world a better place for future generations.

I know it's early, but I encourage all to sit up and take notice. Too much is at stake for our families' survival. For now, I cast my vote of no confidence for Republicans and Democrats, the House and Senate, Supreme Court and most of all the Justice Department. I will, however cast my vote on Election Day 2008, but I'll be so tempted to do a write-in vote for Jesus as the only one who could possibly make a difference in our world today.

OUT OF THE ATTIC

This week's Out of the Attic features a photograph thought to have been displayed in the old Washington House at one time. Former Newark residents Dorothy and Howard Cage acquired a collection of photographs when the tavern closed, said their nephew Bill Barrow, who donated the photos for use in this space. This photo shows the Deer Park Tavern on Main Street. Readers who have a historic picture and would like to share it with other readers are invited to loan their photos for reprinting in this space. Special care will be taken. For information, call the Newark Post, weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., at 737-0724.

COMMENTARY

Disappointed by fireworks; city responds

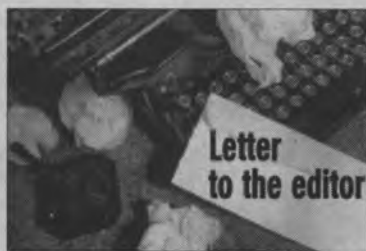

To: the Editor
From: Arnav Prasad, 8,
Newark

I am writing to complain about the city of Newark sending up fireworks during the thunderstorm at the UD stadium last night. Why did they choose to send the fireworks off in the rain?

We (four full cars in our neighborhood group) waited an hour in pouring rain! Everyone tried continuously to get radio reports, Web site updates and couldn't even get through on the Leisure Time Hotline! There wasn't a single update!

Why didn't they just go with the rain date? How much harder does it need to rain to use the rain date? The parking lot was empty by 9:30 p.m. because everyone thought the show was canceled!

It was very disappointing for all of us neighborhood kids to learn that the show had started at 9:35 p.m. after we returned home.

They should have sent up a firework every now and then to signal that they were still on for the night! That's what I think they should have done on July 4. We would have definitely waited if we knew for sure that the show was delayed!

A response from the city of Newark

Charlie Emerson, director of Newark's Department of Parks and Recreation, said "it was a tough choice for us" to send off the fireworks on July 4 during intermittent rain instead of delaying the show until the scheduled rain date of Thursday, July 5.

Emerson said city staff was "constantly watching the weather radar," and stayed in close contact with the Newark Police Department, State Fire Marshal and University of Delaware Police about the safety of the situation.

About 9:10 p.m., when the weather radar showed a lull in the storm, the city made the decision to go ahead with the fireworks show, said Emerson. It took about 20 minutes for the fireworks to be set up, and the show started around 9:30 p.m.

Emerson said one of the key factors for making that decision was the weather forecast for the following night. "I can tell you without any reservations, had the next day's forecast been for really good weather, we would have delayed the show," he said.

Emerson said, if similar situations occur in the future, the city will attempt to communicate better with waiting residents through local radio stations.

Newark traffic beats I-95 and vibrant and I enjoy going there to eat, shop or just walk around.

However, if Main Street isn't my destination and I have to get from one side of Newark to the other, I never actually try to drive on it. At bad times it can take forever to get down the length of it.

But even if Main Street was included, we really don't have it that bad in Newark — and I'm somebody that drives a ton and despises traffic more than anything.

None of the traffic we deal with in Newark, whether it's Main Street, Elkton Road or Kirkwood Highway, is nearly as bad as if we wander onto I-95 at the wrong time.

There's nothing worse than jumping on the highway for a quick jaunt to Wilmington or Philadelphia or anywhere north and then grinding to a complete halt right around the service area.

Or how about if you happen to be coming home on a Sunday from a weekend away? Somehow you've made it through New York or Philadelphia or even down the New Jersey Turnpike and you're almost home. But before you actually get to your house you're greeted with as big of a traffic mess as you'll find anywhere right where I-295 feeds into I-95.

If you get through that and you think you're home free, forget it. That toll at the state line could be backed up forever. You know the toll I'm talking about — the only one in the country it seems where you still pay both ways instead of having traffic flow freely through one direction.

Traffic is definitely frustrating but the one thing that TRIP study tells us for sure is that the city of Newark isn't as bad as some other places.

Just don't get on I-95 at the wrong time.

ed on New London road next to the Fairfield Shopping Center closed its doors this week blaming lack of business for its failure.

"There just wasn't enough business," said Robert Nelson, district manager of Southland Corporation, the firm that owns and operates Greater Newark's eight 7-11 franchise stores.

That, and the "number of restrictions" imposed by the City of Newark regarding traffic and entrance and exit to the facility, prompted Southland to close the doors, Nelson explained.

Environmentally friendly gardens

By CARRIE MURPHY

SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

Summer is an excellent time to step back and assess the impact of your landscape on the environment. Evaluate the design of your landscape and identify simple ways in which you can create a low maintenance, environmentally friendly space that supports and improves the environment. Adopt a set of landscaping practices that improves the health and appearance of your landscape, while protecting and preserving natural resources.

Gardeners impact the environment directly when they make decisions to design and maintain their green spaces. In your landscape, choose and site plants carefully. Practice integrated pest management. Reduce the use of supplemental water, fertilizers, and pesticides. Reduce the size of your lawn. Create a wildlife habitat and maintain a compost pile.

There are several techniques a gardener can employ to develop an environmentally friendly garden.

Choose plants carefully. Landscape with native species; use local plant material and support local businesses. Native plants are adapted to the climatic and environmental conditions of their indigenous region. Once they are established they need little to no supplemental water or chemical treatments.

Reduce lawn area and try and use alternatives to turf. Good looking lawns require intensive management. They demand a large input of water, labor and, often, chemicals. Trap localized storm water on site with rain barrels, and use this water in your garden. If you have

An island adventure

Newark native starts Peace Corps stint in Pacific island nation of Vanuatu

By CHRISTINE NEFF

Newark native Noah Thomas didn't realize how complicated the American game of baseball was until he had to try and explain it using Bislama, the national language of Vanuatu.

Helping to organize an impromptu game out of tennis balls, bats carved from trees and players unfamiliar with the sport was just one of many adventures the Peace Corps volunteer has had so far, now a few weeks into his two-year stay in Vanuatu.

sider myself really fortunate to be where I am right now, and yes, it is beautiful!"

Vanuatu is an archipelago made up of 83 islands. The nation's 200,000-plus people speak 113 distinct languages, making the country one of the most culturally diverse in the world.

Most of the islands have mountainous terrain and tropical or sub-tropical climates. The island sits on the Pacific Ring of Fire, making it prone to earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

Thomas will be living and working in Lamap, a village on the island of Malekula. His first few months will be spent getting to know his community and its needs. "In Vanuatu, it is standard practice to get to know the people

Thomas, who graduated from Newark High School in 2000 and received a degree from the University of South Carolina, said he became interested in joining the Peace Corps after spending a semester in Australia and doing a six-month stint as an Americorps volunteer here in the states.

The application process took about six months, and he did not pick his destination. He was surprised to learn he was headed to an island-nation in the South Pacific Ocean, more than 1,000 miles east of Australia.

"I actually didn't even know where Vanuatu was...So I was really surprised to do an Internet search and see that I was actually going to what looked like an island paradise," he said in an e-mail sent last week from the capital city, Port Vila. "I con-before you work with them," he said.

Then, he will be working as a small business advisor, helping to set up a Rural Training Center where villagers will be able to seek extra training after they finish school.

He will be living in a thatch house with a cement floor, no electricity and no running water. But, he said, he can't complain. Lamap has a few luxuries — a grass airstrip, a wharf and several telephones. Other Peace Corps volunteers live in more remote areas of the country, he said.

Thomas said the people of Vanuatu have been nice and welcoming. He was greeted in one village with a feast and ceremony that included the killing of a cow. "It was a lot overwhelming and a little embarrassing, but that is just the culture here," he said.

Already, he said, he has gained so much from the experience. "I've met so many interesting people and had so many new experiences, such as drinking Kava, learning to use a brush knife, opening green coconuts, taking advantage of the warm water and traveling by some very interesting means," he said.

"Some experiences, of course, aren't as glamorous, like washing clothes by hand, using bucket flush toilets and eating lap-lap (a gelatin substance made of a root crop wrapped in banana leaves).

I think, overall, I am exposed to something new everyday, and there is nothing that tops experiential learning."

Even the challenges are worth it, as Thomas discovered when he and a fellow volunteer managed to lead the group of island natives in the makeshift baseball game. "We had an entire nine-inning game on a converted soccer field, complete with a mango tree taking up left field," he said. "It was a very cool thing to be a part of."

Thomas is the son of Neil and Beth Thomas of Newark.

Newark-based Rebekah Leithren Foundation fights childhood disease

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A non-profit foundation started more than a year ago by a Newark couple who lost their daughter to a rare childhood disease has been reaching out to families around the world with similar experiences. The Rebekah G. Leithren Foundation was started by the Leithren family in 2006 to honor 12-year-old Rebekah, who died in November 2005 from Protein Losing Enteropathy (PLE). The disease, which appears in about 10 percent of children who, like Rebekah, have had a certain type of heart surgery, causes a patient to lose blood protein through their intestinal tract. Families of children struggling with this disease, including a mother in Germany who lost her son to it earlier this year and a Minnesota family, have contacted the Newark-based foundation through its Web site, www.rglfoundation.org. "That's just a testimony of the power of the Internet," said Mike Leithren, of the international response. Families have exchanged information about the symptoms and treatments experienced by their children. Leithren said he and his wife, Colleen, have been a resource and a "sympathetic ear" to parents whose children continue to battle PLE. "We're also trying to link some of these families with other organizations that can help them financially," he said. In addition, the Leithrens have been trying to raise local awareness about the disease and funds to support research for a cure. They have brought Rebekah's story to community events, such as Newark Nite and Liberty Day, to share with Newark residents. This weekend, Brunswick Blue Hen Lanes in the Newark Shopping Center is hosting a bowling tournament and silent auction with proceeds to benefit the foundation. The tournament starts Saturday, July 15, at 10 a.m. Registration is $100 for a team of four; forms are available at Brunswick, Pike Creek Bowling Lanes or Pleasant Hill Lanes. On Monday, July 23, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., the Newark-based Club Phred will play a benefit concert at Shaggy's on Main with proceeds going to the Rebekah G. Leithren Foundation. Tickets are $10 per person or $2 with a college ID. "Every little bit goes a long

Center Street is 'by and large a rental area'

was "questionable" whether the home could be sold as a single-family residence due to the nature of the neighborhood, which backs up to lighted university sports fields and includes several multi-family rentals and apartments. Planning Director Roy Lopata said of Center Street, "It's by and large a rental area, and it has been for some time."

Niles Norton, a landlord and resident of Center Street, said it was difficult finding families to rent homes there since the area has become mostly student-occupied. Evening events at the lighted university fields drove families from the area, he said, in voicing his support for the proposed exemption.

But members of council worried that granting Center Street an exemption to the Student Home Ordinance would be detrimental.

"I look at places like Chapel Street and (events like) Chapel Fest...What brings that dynamic about is a lack of fulltime residents living in that area. Fulltime residents bring stability to an area," said Councilman Jerry Clifton.

Clifton said he worried that if Center Street became entirely student rental, it would be more like Chapel Street, where backyards are used for tenant parking and an annual street festival brings rowdy parties into the neighborhood.

Councilman Paul Pomeroy said he, too, would not support the exemption. "In order to enhance the overall dynamic of our downtown area, we have to keep working to promote a mix of constituencies in our core downtown," he said, adding, "I think this street is begging to be saved."

Though notices of the meeting and proposed exemption were sent out to residents within 300 feet of Center Street, only one neighbor, Norton, attended and voiced an opinion.

Council defeated the proposal with only one vote cast in support.

Councilman Stu Markham, who supported the exemption, said, the city should make an effort to improve the neighborhood through discussions with the University of Delaware about the adjacent fields. "We need some kind of commitment that we're going to put into this neighborhood and solve some of these problems to make it more attractive," he said.

UD baseball sees hope in Oregon State

By TOM TOMASHEK

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

You had to be in Portland, Oregon last month to appreciate the impact of Oregon State's successful defense in the NCAA College World Series.

In a state known best for long distance runners and occasional college football and basketball, the triumph was greeted by fan and media mayhem, delighted that the Beavers held the trophy traditionally claimed by Sun Belt teams. The Oregonian, the state's major newspaper, ran a front page headline that read "BEAVERS REPEAT" in at least 60-point text and citizens throughout Portland -- and certainly throughout the state -- were talking Oregon State baseball.

Jim Sherman, University of Delaware baseball coach, witnessed the Beavers' remarkable accomplishment firsthand from his seat in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, perennial host site of Division I college baseball's showcase event. Not that he holds any malice toward traditional powers such as LSU, Texas, and USC, but Sherman was almost as delighted as OSU fans to see the Beavers triumph.

"It was a great story that captured me . . . it was so special," Sherman said. "I saw all the possibilities [for Delaware]. It's not dreaming. What Oregon did was the product of good old hard work and a commitment from its administration. It rains a lot out there. Summers are beautiful, but springs are often cold, just as they are here."

"Oregon State represented what we've all been fighting for in the Mid-Atlantic and Midwest. Many people have believed that college baseball can't be played anywhere but in the South and Southwest, but Oregon State proved that notion is wrong."

Sherman, the Colonial Athletic Association baseball coach of the year, knows that Delaware's program has a considerable distance to go to even reach a College World Series. The Blue Hens would have to win the CAA playoffs, advance through a four-team regional tournament, and then beat another regional champion in best-of-two super regional to reach Omaha. Since joining the CAA six years ago, after dominating the America East, they haven't even won a conference playoff.

But between Oregon State's rare accomplishment, several NCAA rules changes, and the addition of Brian Walker last season as pitching coach, Sherman is feeling a little better about Delaware's future.

As for the rules changes, no team in the Sun Belt or northern climes may begin practice before February 1 and no games may be played until February 22. Sherman can remember his playing days at UD when the Blue Hens would take an early March southern swing and meet teams with at 20 or more games. Another important change is the decrease of roster players from 45 to 35.

"We used to start out season around early March with a southern trip," Sherman said of his playing days at UD. "We go down and wound up getting drilled by a lot of teams that already had played 20 or more games. It will be tougher for Sun Belt teams to get a major jump on us and in recruiting it won't be as inviting for area players to bolt south for that extra month of baseball."

The addition of Walker, a member of two NCAA CWS championship teams and a former member of the New York Mets organization for five seasons, already had an impact in his first season. Delaware opened the season losing nine of their first 16 games, but finished 32-23 and reached the conference playoff championship round before losing to VCU. Delaware's 14-man staff allowed the fewest home runs (29) and the fewest hits (479) in more than a decade and compiled a 330-209 differential in strikeouts and walks.

Opposing coaches have told Sherman his 2007 staff was the best they've seen in many years, but he has lost four -- possibly a fifth member -- from his front-line group. In a move to restock and strengthen Delaware's pitching staff, Sherman recruited seven pitchers late last year, among them St. Mark's Matt Harden whose brothers Steve and Dave preceded him in the program.

Local teams playing in District II all-star tournaments

By JOE BACKER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Newark National Little League major team, ages 11-12, remain in the hunt for the elusive state title.

Right now, the Nationals are involved in the District 2 Major All-Star tournament, with the eventual winner taking on Delaware's two other District winners, one from Kent County and the other from Sussex County.

On Monday night, the Nationals eliminated the Newark American all-star team 13-0, in a game that was theirs from start to finish.

The Nationals pounded out three homers, one each from Jake Schneider, Jimmy Windle and Chad Fox, who ended the night going 4-for-4. The Nationals collected a total of 13 hits in the contest.

The Americans had a tough night at the plate against a trio of pitchers, starter Nick Alessandrini, Jack Gugerty and Windle. Alessandrini pitched long enough to earn the victory.

Newark National joins five other teams in the District 2 championship hunt. Other teams still in the tournament include Midway, Canal, Brandywine, Capitol and defending state champion Naamans.

District 2 Administrator Frank Distefano said despite the hot weather, the games have been well attended by family and friends of the little league players.

Newark National was scheduled to play against Capitol on Wednesday evening at Capitol's field near Prices Corner in a losers bracket elimination contest.

The other four teams are all still playing in the winners bracket.

Distefano said the eventual District 2 champion will be crowned on Saturday, July 21 at the Newark National field.

In the Junior Division, ages 13-14, both Newark teams remain in contention, but will have to cope with playing from the losers bracket.

District Administrator Bob Clevenger said Newark American

Hens hope to be tops in CAA

► HENS, from 14

Some of that young talent may be needed early.

"We made the mistake of thinking that we could hit our way through [to conference titles] like we did in the America East, but our front-line pitching is critical in our development into a conference force," Sherman said. "Last season, we led the nation in home runs, doubles, and slugging percentage and finished seventh in the conference. This season we hit 50 less home runs and stole 50 less bases, but finished tied for first."

"I've always been one to appreciate a solid offense, but . . .

Sherman stressed that while his program has progressed, it has been slow to meet the CAA demands. Recruiting competition is not only coming from the south, but from area schools such as LaSalle, St. Joseph's, Temple, and Rutgers. Those schools have been putting more money into their baseball programs in terms of ballparks, lockerroom facilities, and coaching staffs. Funding is something he can't control, but he hopes that the administration might consider what an increased commitment did for Oregon State baseball.

"I realize there is a pecking order with football and basketball coming first," he said. "But then there is baseball and lacrosse. Look at what [Coach] Bob Shillinglaw's lacrosse team did for our athletic program this spring by making the Final Four. How many people saw that . . . some of them painted in blue and gold?"

Sherman's primary goal is to establish Delaware as the "top dog" in CAA baseball every year, an enthusiastic but realistic objective in the coach's eyes. One major hope to his achieving that goal is new University of Delaware president Peter T. Harker, a former University of Pennsylvania football player who expressed his respect for athletics in his first press conference.

"When they announced that I was CAA baseball coach of the year during the tournament, I received an e-mail from President Harker congratulating me," Sherman said. "I e-mailed him back thanking him and telling him that I looked forward to sitting down and discussing Delaware baseball."

"He e-mailed me back saying that he also looked forward to sitting down and talking, too."

Somewhat, it seems likely that Oregon State will enter into the discussion.

Final Harry Potter book hits shelves next week

Newark area stores, libraries plan events around book release

By PATRICIA E. LANG

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING WRITER

As Harry Potter fans worldwide hold their collective breath, and bookstores gear up for the sale of the seventh and final Harry Potter book, stores in Newark and local libraries are planning their own celebrations.

The book, "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows" cannot be sold until Saturday, July 21. Bookstores will be open at 12:01 a.m., filled with people waiting to buy the last Potter novel, written by J.K. Rowling.

Newark's Captain Blue Hen Comics on Main Street, will stage a unique celebration – "Harry Potter Midnight Magic" – starting Friday, July 20, at 10 p.m., ending with the book sale at one minute after midnight.

Visitors are encouraged to come dressed as their favorite character. Local fantasy author, Jason Beil, will be available to autograph his novel "The Talisman of Faerie." There will be a trivia contest with prizes, refreshments and "Post-Harry Potter Traumatic Stress Disorder Counseling."

Captain Blue Hen will be donating $5 from each book sale to the Kirkwood Library Renovation Fund. Additionally, a framed Harry Potter print will be raffled off to further raise money for that particular fund. Chances for the print are available at the store for $1 each.

"We can't compete with the big store prices," said Joe Murray, owner of Blue Hen Comics.

"But buying from us is an investment in the community."

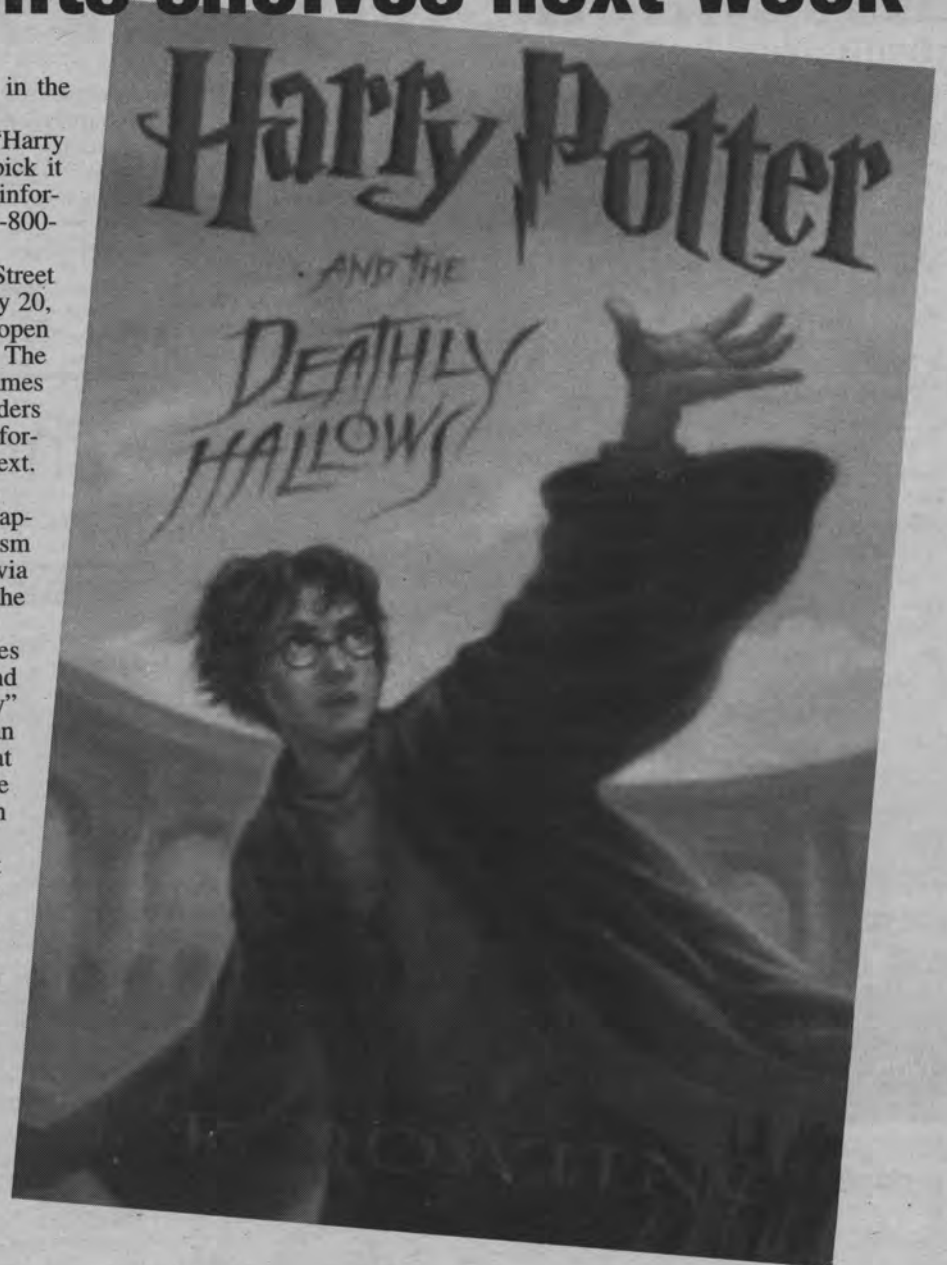

Customers can pre-order a copy of "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows" and pick it up at Captain Blue Hen Comics. For information, call 737-3434 or toll-free 1-800-748-3434.

Lieberman's Bookstore on E. Main Street is hosting a release party on Friday, July 20, starting at 10:30 p.m. The store will be open until 12:30 a.m. on Friday, July 21. The event includes wizardly activities, games and refreshments while anxious readers wait for the book's release. For more information, call Denise Jones at 283-9980, ext. 107.

Delaware Libraries are hoping to capture some of the Harry Potter enthusiasm and will be hosting everything from trivia contests to magic shows to celebrate the book.

The Newark Free Library invites children to wear magical costumes and "Unlock the Mysteries at Your Library" with a performance by magician Brian Richards on Wednesday, July 18, at 10:30 a.m. The library will show the first Harry Potter movie at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 17.

The Bear Library will show the first movie, "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone," on Thursday, July 19, at 1 p.m. The Kirkwood Highway Library will host a Harry Potter Extravaganza with trivia, contests, crafts and more for ages 7 and up on Thursday, July 19, at 1 p.m. For more information on these activities, contact your local library.

Making history for Delaware

Binger represents state at National Wheelchair Games

Newark resident Larry Binger, a disabled Navy veteran, competed in the 27th National Veterans Wheelchair Games held in Milwaukee, Wis., the last week in June. He was joined by more than 550 athletes from 45 states, Puerto Rico and Great Britain at the world's largest annual wheelchair sports event.

Binger represented the state of Delaware in the opening ceremonies, dressed in the traditional frontiersman outfit worn by the Delaware militia of the Revolutionary era. He was escorted by two re-enactors of the Revolutionary War period. The Delaware Society Sons of the American Revolution donated the outfit for his use.

"To represent that state in such fashion was a real honor for me," he said.

In addition to the opening ceremonies, Binger represented his state in bowling, trapshooting and discus, shot and javelin-throwing events. Though he suffered a stress fracture in his right wrist during the week's activities, he still competed and finished in the top 10 percent in bowling, he said.

Back in Newark, Binger said he will spend the next year thanking his supporters, training and raising money for next year's event, which will be held in Omaha, Neb. Eventually, he hopes to help start a Delaware team to compete in the events.

The National Veterans Wheelchair Games are presented by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Binger represents the First State in the opening ceremonies.

► SCHOOLS, from 1

School Boards Association Board of Directors with Gina Backus as alternate.

David Resler was chosen as the board's representative to the Delaware School Boards Association Legislative Committee with Beverly Howell as alternate.

Shirley Saffer finally assumed responsibilities for District G, empty since the Feb. 23 withdrawal of Karl R. Brockenbrough. He was earlier appointed to complete the term of board member Cecilia Scherer who resigned in October 2006. Both Brockenbrough and Scherer moved out of Christina District.

Saffer, who filed to run on the last day and was unopposed for the board seat, works in finance management. Her term expires in 2012.

The seven unsalaried members are elected for five-year terms. All eligible voters who live within Christina District boundaries can vote during elections for new board members.

Durr, whose term on the board expires in 2008, is the general manager for TransWorld Port and Distribution. Mackenzie, whose term also expires in 2008, is an associate professor of natural resource and environmental economics, and geographic information systems in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Delaware.

Evans, the longest serving elected member of the Christina board since its formation in January 1981, will be up for re-election to the board in 2010. He has served as president of the board six times and vice president four times. Currently, he is an attorney in private practice. Backus was elected to the board in 2006 and currently works as a human resources corporate trainer.

Resler, also elected to the school board May 2006, is a sales consultant for Itron Inc. in the Enterprise Energy Management Group. Howell became a member of the school board in January 2005. Now retired, she worked for over 30 years as a classroom teacher, Special Education coordinator, educational diagnostician, job coach, transition facilitator, and Junior Achievement sponsor and manager.

The school board is the governing body of the District, establishing policies to be carried out by District administration and staff. The Christina board is currently in the midst of a required tri-annual review of its Board of Education Policy Manual. The revised Policy Manual, subject of two board workshops in 2007, is scheduled for a second reading and vote at the next regular school board meeting on Aug. 14. Information and a copy of the draft document can be seen at www.christina.k12.de.us.

State park has 20 hidden geocaches

a "cache," that is filled with toys or trinkets and a logbook to be signed by those who find it.

The person registers the cache on Web sites devoted to the sport, listing the longitudinal and latitudinal data. The goal of the game is to find the container using this data and a hand-held electronic GPS receiver that acts as the "treasure map."

When a geocacher finds "the treasure," he or she takes one of the items inside and leaves something of equal value in its place. The size of the cache varies – it can be as small as a film can, the size of a Tupperware container or a 50mm Ammo Can. The size of the cache is described online, along with its coordinates.

The smaller containers are used, more often, in urban cache sites; the larger containers usually hidden in the woods.

The game can go on forever. Today, there are more than 400,000 geocaches placed in more than 200 countries in the world.

According to the Delaware Geocachers, geocaching in Delaware began in December 2000 when a single cache was placed in Trap Pond State Park. The number of caches in Delaware has doubled in each of the years since, and now the state has more than 500 sites. In Delaware, geocaches are most plentiful here in New Castle County; 20 of them are located in White Clay Creek State Park.

Ott and other members of the Delaware Geocachers – going by nicknames such as Runfrog, Programmer64 and Wahkegan – led the newbies on a hunt for caches that the group had hidden beforehand to be used for demonstration. After searching for these temporary caches, the class then searched for a regular cache, which had been hidden at White Clay Creek for several years.

Part of their introduction involved an explanation of the rules and regulations for what has become an official activity of Delaware State Parks. One of these rules, Ott explained was a policy of the Delaware Geocachers to "Cache in – Trash

Out," i.e., leave the environment in better shape than you find and pick up what trash you do find.

This was the second annual "Intro to Geocaching" class sponsored by the Friends of White Clay State Park partnered program. For more information about programs at White Clay Creek State Park call 368-6560, or visit www.destateparks.com.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF BASE FLOOD ELEVATIONS FOR THE UNINCORPORATED AREAS OF NEW CASTLE COUNTY, DELAWARE, UNDER THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

On January 17, 2007, the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency identified Special Flood Hazard Areas (SFHAs) in the unincorporated areas of New Castle County, Delaware, through issuance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM). The Mitigation Division has determined that modification of the Base (1-percent-annual-chance) Flood Elevations (BFEs) for certain locations in this community is appropriate. The modified BFEs revise the FIRM for the community.

The changes are being made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-234) and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, Public Law 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR Part 65.

A hydraulic analysis was performed to incorporate updated topographic and hydrologic information and has resulted in an increase in SFHA width, a decrease in SFHA width, and the establishment of BFEs for Spring Mill Brook. The table below indicates existing and modified BFEs for selected locations along the affected lengths of the flooding source(s) cited above.

Location	Existing BFE (feet)*	Modified BFE (feet)*
Approximately 1,950 feet upstream of Cedar Lane Road	29	30
Approximately 3,150 feet upstream of Cedar Lane Road	None	35

*Northern American Vertical Datum, rounded to nearest whole foot

Under the above-mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Mitigation Division must develop criteria for floodplain management. To participate in the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP), the community must use the modified BFEs to administer the floodplain management measures of the NFIP. These modified BFEs will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

Upon second publication of notice of these changes in this newspaper, any person has 90 days in which he or she can request, through the Chief Executive Officer of the community, that the Mitigation Division reconsider the determination. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific or technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the 90-day period elapses, the Mitigation Division's determination to modify the BFEs may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify:
