Blue Hens frenzy!

This week The NewArk Post introduces a new game called Blue Hen Frenzy. In it, readers are asked to count the number of Blue Hens — like the one at right — in each week's issue. Readers who call the Post at 737-0905 or 737-0724 after 9 a.m. Thursday will be eligible to win two free tickets to home University of Delaware football games. This week's winners will be the second and fourth callers — remember, that is after 9 a.m. Thursday. Each will receive two tickets to Saturday's Delaware vs. Rhode Island game.

Broiling under a hot August sun, which burns golden against an electric blue sky, 85 sweating Glasgow High School students study diagrammed maneuvers then break into small squads.

"Okay," yells their coach, "run it back!"

The lines form up and the students stand in wait for their next orders. The coach calls out the movement, adding,

Christina's Georgia Cressman, Ed Stowell nominated for Presidential awards

by Michael Ricci

If the Christiana School District graded its teachers, Ed Stowell and Georgia Cressman would rate an A-plus.

Stowell and Cressman, two longtime teachers in the district, have made it into the final round of the Presidential Award for Excellence nominations. The awards are presented annually to the finest math and science teachers in each state and territory.

Stowell, a physics teacher, has taught at Christiana High School since it opened in 1963. Cressman, a math teacher at Gauger Middle School, has taught in the Newark area since 1970.

"I'm very pleased to be at this point," said Cressman, summing up the quiet optimism both teachers share while waiting to hear later this month if they are selected as national winners.

Although the success of being an award winner is something both hope to achieve, reaching the finals is in itself an impressive feat.

Award nominees in Delaware Award nominees in Delaware can be selected from every school in each district. From there, the nominees must compile a report explaining why they feel qualified to win, what kind of background they have and how they plan to spend a $5,000 grant winner's prize.

The number of nominees is narrowed down by a state board, which selects those who will become finalists.

With all the potential winners involved in the competition, it really requires something special to set apart a few finalists from the other highly qualified nominees.

For Stowell, years of experience working with computers has resulted in some unique techniques. "I use computers completely in my physics courses," he said. Students in Stowell's classes even use computers during experiments for data gathering. Before the district purchased computers in 1978 for class use, Stowell had his home computer in class.

However, once students become familiar with him, the teacher-student relationship quickly improves, Stowell said.

"We have a fairly good rapport," Stowell said, "but I won't let them sit on their haunches. I'm strict, but we have fun."

For Cressman, the difference is her devotion to students. "I'm willing to give the extra hour," she said. "It think for the most part (students) do apreciate me."

Cressman is also involved with Gauger's computer program, and is the president-elect of the Delaware State Math Council for next year.

Both nominees have already made plans on how they will spend the $5,000 grant if they are selected as national winners. Stowell, who is retiring after this year, said he will use the money for Christiana's computer program. In addition, he is donating to the school many of the programs he has developed over the years on his own computers.

Cressman plans to use the grant to develop a small card printing business for her students, which will allow them to use their math skills in a practical way.

Neither teacher is a stranger to awards. Last year, Cressman reached the state-winner level for the same award she is nominated for this year. While Stowell won a state award for excellence in 1982. Still, both would like to add this award to their careers. After over 30 years of teaching, Stowell said, "I'd like to go out with this award."

However, Cressman stressed, whether she wins the national award or not, "I can't be disappointed because of the quality of the people who are in the pool with me."

Oberle seeks zoning changes

Helix explosion leads legislator to seek limitations on certain businesses

by Michael Ricci

State Rep. William Oberle, R-Newark, wants Delaware to shut down and keep out industries with less than stellar safety records.

Prompted by the recent chemical explosion at the Helix Associates Inc. plant in the Delaware Industrial Park that left nine people injured, Oberle has proposed instituting stringent zoning restrictions for industries trying to locate near existing residential areas.

Oberle lives in Scottfield, near the site of last month's explosion.

In addition, Oberle has asked the state Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control for a full investigation into safety and operating conditions at the Helix plant.

"I think we ought to be a little proactive, not reactive," Oberie said, "Current zoning practices don't address the situation (of dangerous industries).

Concerning Helix Associates past safety record, which the legislator said includes a 1984 ac-cident in which several employees were exposed to toxic gas, Oberle said, "I just want to have the facts in before I decide on a course of action to take.

If the investigation currently underway in the plant links last month's explosion with safety violations, Oberle said, "I'm go-ing to go hog wild. I'll do everything I can to make sure Helix doesn't open again."

In a letter sent last week to John E. Wilson, Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, Oberle wrote, 'I do not believe it reflects poorly on this state to de-mand that those who do business here do it in a safe and reasonable gested restrictions are of reasonable distances.

After the Helix accident, Oberle said he received numerous calls from residents who were worried about the prospect of future ac-cidents. "There's a lot of deep con-cern about it," he said.

The representative said he is prepared to introduce legislation in January which would prohibit an area within a two-mile radius of residential neighborhoods from being zoned for light or heavy industrial use. In addition, Oberle wants to prohibit any industry that utilizes protentially hazardous products from locating within a four-mile radius of residential areas. within a four-

Del. 896 bridge is reopened

Ceremonies held last Thursday

When reconstruction of the South College Avenue (Del. 896) bridge began in November 1985, some Newarkers were skeptical about the chances of its being completed in time for a smooth flow of University of Delaware students back to campus life this fall.

A chilly downpour has torced the rededication ceremonies into the University of Delaware Fieldhouse, about one-quarter mile south of the bridge. Numerous city and state officials attended, and Gov. Michael N. Castle cut the ribbon to formally reopen the bridge shortly after 10:15 a.m.

Castle praised contractors Greggo and Ferrara Inc. of New Castle for completing to $1.3 million bridge ahead of schedule, then joked that "every year we see on television and in newspapers pictures of the kids coming into the University of Delaware. It would have been a hell of a picture if (this year) they had to show everyone stopped on

The governor also cited the City of Newark for doing an "extraordinary job" working with Del DOT on the project. He pointed out that the bridge reconstruction was purposely timed to come after improvements to Chestnut Hill Road (Del. 4) and construction on the provements to Chestnut Hill Road (Del. 4) and construction on the Christina Parkway.

"These things were all done in conjunction with one another," he said, "to make sure the road system in Newark did not suffer the problems we see in other communities and other cities."

Justice, who said state officials are "very proud" of the bridge project, pointed out that bridge reconstruction was just one aspect of the total Del. 896 project.

The state erected a pedestrian bridge, which was completed in July 1985. The total cost of $695,528 was provided by the federal government.

It also made safety improvements to Del. 896 south of the bridge, relocating entrances and crossovers and consolidating turning movements at the two main intersections with traffic lights.

The cost of that project, also completed by Greggo and Ferrara, was $1.15 million. The federal government paid for 90 percent of the project, while the state paid for the remaining 10 percent.

The bridge itself was completed with 80 percent federal monies. The state paid for the remaining 20 percent.

Republican Congressional candidate sees environment as key concern

Delawareans will elect the state's only Congressman based on that candidate's views on defense, the economy and the environment, according to Thomas ment, according to Thomas Neuberger.

As the Republican challenger to U.S. Rep. Thomas Carper, a Democrat, Neuberger is taking his stance on these crucial issues throughout the state in preparation for November's election.

Neuberger said one of the Reagan Administration's greatest successes has been its rebuilding of the country's military strength. "President Reagan has restored respect for America," he believes. An attorney with his own practice located in Wilmington, Neuberger said he strongly opposes a one-year moratorium on nuclear weapons testing that the House recently approved. According to the candidate, the testing ban prevents older, larger nuclear warheads from being replaced by more modern and smaller bombs which he said are safer to keep in storage.

Neuberger praised the Reagan Administration's work in the past several years in reducing unemployment and inflation levels. In the last six years, he said, more than 10 million jobs have been created in the rebound-ed economy. ed economy.

Concerning the environment, Neuberger said some of Delawareans' worst fears deal with possible damage to the state by toxic wastes and dumping grounds. Neuberger said he op-poses any test burning sites off the

Perhaps the biggest danger New Castle County residents face in the environment comes from potential poisoning of aquifers located under industries and near former dump sites, he said. These areas, Neuberger believes, are most in need of being kept clean from industrial pollution.

Neuberger's campaign is just beginning to pick up its pace, he said, now that summer vacations are over and "people are going to start thinking about politics."

A Wilmington resident, Neuberger obtained his masters degree in political science from the University of Delaware in 1973, before attending the Georgetown University Law Center.

Wisconsin city hosts annual air show

by Connie Hall

Does aviation have a future in decades to come? The answer is unequivocally "yes" as attested to by thousands who showed up for the 34th Experimental Aircraft Association International Flysin. Held Aug 1-8, the show covers everything any air-minded buff could possibly hope for. During show week, Wittman Field in Oshkosh, Wis., becomes the busiest airport in the world.

Approaching Wittman Field, from whatever direction, one realizes they are nearing Mecca for all aviation minded souls. Instead of noticing bright green Waconsin fields filled with lazy cattle grazing happily, a blue sky spotted with fluffy white patches of marshmallow clouds, one is suddenly joiled to an alert stance by the roar of Freece Tricolor, the lazina military flight team soer. by the roar of Freece Tricolor, the Itanian military flight team soar-ing overhead signaling Oshkosh

Spouting smoke in their national colors of red, white and green, 10 jet planes fly overhead, flying so beautifully but flying as if only one wing. Ten Italian pilots had perfected their maneuvers as if they were a flying magnet, drawing every eye skyward to watch a magic moment in flight.

Along with Freece Tricolor there was a Northwestern Airlines 474 jumbo jet, the new B-747-2B. Audiences were thrilled with its "touch and go" showing and flyyby Maneuvering a huge 225-foot aircraft along and above Wittman Field's runway required the pilot's utmost skill.

Field's runway required the pilot's atmost skill. The Christian Eagles, world acrobatic champions, stirred fur-ther excitement. The three-pilot team thrilled the afternoon au-dience with their hammerheads, multiple snap rolls and calculated near misses as they came in from different directions and passed at the center of the field.

Each afternoon show brought new revelations to first-timers as well as dedicated repeaters. Wing walkers, action performances by the War Birds, a sail plane hoisted aloft then cut loose to silently per-form and make its way back to earth.

Finally, a Marine Harrier piloted by capt. Bob Fitzgerald. Watching this machine in operation was an awe-inspiring experience of a plane doing things no other could accomplish. Up and down as if attached to a column, then a 360 degree rotation, silthering side to side like an anxious sidewinder snake. Back and forth, hovering a few seconds just feet off the concrete runway, then suddenly off like a flash of lightning only to return with great speed.

The pilot quickly cut speed and finished with a slow, low pass by the action stunned audience. The same type Harrier was used by Sparking much interest this year was the youth, represented by age, size and interest. From an eight-month-old young lady being escorted in a wagon who had been flying out of Zanesville, Ohio with her parents since the ripe old age of 4-months to members of the Civilian Air Patrol.

This year's group was represented by boys and girls from 45 states and two foreign countries. Helping to exempyify their fine tradition were three young cadets from Delaware.

Another youth group were the 1986 EAA Aviation Academy students. Numbering 27 boys and three girls, ages 15 to 17, they were attending the third year in operation of this educational group. They were from all parts of the United States, with three students from France. Arriving three weeks prior to the show, the teenagers are swept into a program of classes and experiences which will last for an unforgetable lifetime.

Sadly there were no Delaware students. The nearest was a young man from Williamsburg, Va.

For those states who had no students attending, Chuck Larsen, director of education for EAA, mentioned how Montan had held director of education for EAA, mentioned how Montana had held a state-wide contest during which each interested teenager had to write a paper on aviation and detailing his or her interest in going to Oshkosh. The winner became an 1986 enrollee.

An EAA Academy third-time faculty member was Fred Kacena, a retired FAA inspector who lives on West Park Place in Newark.

A member of local EAA Wilmington Chapter 240, he was joined at the show by other members; Jim Campbell and son, Douglas, flew out in their Cessna 180 from Wilmington; Art Huntsberger and Harry Casey, along with their wives were there with Ray Dolbow and Maynard Engle.

The chapter meets the first Monday of each month at the Rainbows End field, three miles bridge.

Another Newark resident, John Hall, a Cessna 140 pilot-owner, made his 10th visit to the show this summer accompanied by his wife.

Along with the spectacular Frecee Tricolori, another aviation wonder appeared. This young lady caused as much interest on the ground as in the air — Goodyear's "America," one of four lighter-than-air craft the company operates.

Delaware was, again, represented by a young man. Lee Turner, 25, a lean, handsome young man from Camden, Del., the son of Dr. and Mrs. Morris Turner, is a member of the 16-man ground crow along with five pilots ground crew, along with five pilots and a public relations represen-

Turner, a 1983 graduate of Emery Riddle Aeronautical University in Florida, has a bachelor's degree in maintenance management. Although a private pilot, he hopes to make it through the Goodyear blimp ranks to become a blimp pilot. As such, he how plans to pursue an instrument rating and commercial license, all part of the criteria, along with many hours as co-pilot during cross country runs.

Presently Turner is kept busy with his ground crew duties, among which is doing pre-flight checks aboard the gondola, which seats six passengers and pilot.

The airfield is quiet now, camping grounds empty, young people selling large, cool cups of coca cola have disappeared, exhibitors have managed to pack their wares and return to wherever they came from. The quietness, however will only last for eleven months, then Oshkosh will blossom again with all the noise and excitement of EAA's 35th fly-in.

Christina Stampede steps off

Referendum is focus of event

by Neil Thomas

Wearing bright slickers and waterproof garbage bags and toting umbrellas, more than 500 Christina School District employees braved a steady rain Tuesday morning to participate in the second annual Christina Stampede at Newark High School. Stampede II, like the first event instituted last fall by Christina Superintendent Dr. Michael W. Walls, featured a five-mile run and a two-mile walk for health. Its purpose was to promote health and comraderie and get the school year off on the right foot, so to speak.

Students are scheduled to return to the district y classrooms on Thursday, Sept. 4.

While the focus of Stampede II was health, particularly walking for health as promoted by Newarker Rob Sweetgall, the featured speaker, it was clear that the Oct. 7 referendum was much on the minds of school board members, administrators and teachers.

The referendum will ask

The referendum will ask The referendum will ask Christina taxpayers to approve an increase of about 10-cents per $100 of assessed value of taxable real estate. Money is needed to improve curriculum and staff salaries, and fund construction of a new elementary school, district officials say. officials say.
A failed referendum just two years ago is still much on the minds of school officials.

"This district needs a raise, just like you and I need a raise," Jo Callison, president of the Christina Education Association, told staff members who gathered in the Newark High gymnasium after the run and walk.

Callison urged the staff to get on the telephone in support of the referendum to "help us help ourselves."

Hoping it was a talisman, Christina Board President Dr. James Kent told staff that during the five-mile run he passed up a quarter seen lying in the street. "I thought, gee, it would be nice if I had enough energy to stoop down thought, gee, it would be nice if I had enough energy to stoop down and pick it up," Kent said. "Then I thought I would be more optimistic. I passed it up in the hope that I could look for a dime come Oct. 7."

that I could look for a dime come Oct. 7."

"This is the second Stampede," added Superintendent Walls, "and I'd like to see a third stampede Oct. 7."

"We've got our work cut out but there is no question in my mind that the votes are out there, and we're going to get them out."

Walls said the work toward passage of the referendum will be the "most important thing we as a district do this fall."

State Superintendent for Public Instruction Dr. William Keene, a Newarker and a graduate of Newark High, said that he sees cause for optimism. "I believe with all the reports and things that have happened, we see signs of a change in the attitude of people toward teaching," he said, adding that he feels the 1980s will be "the decade of the teacher."

U.S. Rep. Tom Carper, a Democrat seeking re-election this fall, added that he believes there is a "realization in this state and in this nation that in public education, you get what you pay for."

And in a world in which educa-

"Walking is one of the most beneficial exercises you can do," Sweetgall told Christina staff gathered in the Newark High School gymnasium, and "it's the one exercise you can do for the rest of your life."

A bookish child and college student, Sweetgall's weight grew to 200 pounds — about 30 more than his body should have been expected to handle — by the time he began working for the DuPont Co. at Louviers in 1969.

Aftering hearing a speech in 1972 by Dr. Robert Neeves, a University of Delaware exercise physiologist, Sweetgall began to consider the importance of cardiovascular fitness.

Its true importance was driven home dramatically, as his father and three other relatives died in

"I have stood in enough hospital halls and by enough gravesites to know this is serious business," Sweetgall told the assembly.

He found that walking is more than just exercise. "It is a total experience. You learn to appreciate the environment."

And a walker who moves at a brisk pace — say five miles per hour — is at the same metabolic level as a runner doing 8-9 minute miles, he said.

Sweetgall, who is working on two books about walking, plans to begin two pilot programs to introduce walking in the "wellness" curriculum of Christina and Red Clay school districts this year.

He will be conducting clinics during the White Clay Class Walk on Sunday, Sept. 21 at Clayton Hall. The walk is part of Newark Community Day.

Born in Halberstadt, Germany, and indentured to a baker and pastry maker as a young man, Emil Ganso immigrated to the United Status in 1912. Under Weyhe's patronage, Ganso was able to concentrate on art full-time, eventually becoming a valued member of the art faculty at the University of Iowa. He was to be made full professor there in 1941 but died of a heart attack at the age of 46.

This exhibition of etchings, aquatints, lithographs, wood engravings and woodcuts represents Ganso's broad range of interests and is complemented by a display of printmaking tools and materials on loan from the University's Ralph Mayer Center for Artists' Techniques.

'Afternoons with Artists' series set

"Sunday Afternoons With Delaware Artists" - a series of "Sunday Afternoons With Delaware Artists" — a series of six slide-programs featuring 12 accomplished Delaware painters, sculptors and designers — will be presented at the University of Delaware's Wilcastle Center, 2800 Pennsylvania Ave., Wilmington, from 2:30-4:30 p.m., on alternate Sundays from Sept. 28 through Dec. 7.

Sundays from Sept. 28 through Dec. 7.
Artists in the series will share their views on why they selected their particular art fields and media, how their work and artistic aims have evolved, behind-thescenes accounts of their involvement with special projects and in-scenes accounts of their involve-ment with special projects and in-stitutions, and the nature of their studio working environment. Speakers on Sept. 28 will be John Bayalis of Milford, creator of super-realistic contemporary watercolors, and Anne Oldach of Wilmington, who uses a contemporary approach to tradition-based sculpture.

The Oct. 12 program will feature
W.A.S. Hatch of Wilmington, whose personalized watercolor combines exaggerated realism with contemporary composition, and Jean Battles Irvin, also of Wilmington, who weaves realism, fantasy and design into her mixed media collage-drawings.
Featured on Oct. 26 will be Joanne Gross of Wilmington, who creates abstract geometric paintings with linear detail, and Norman Sasowsky of Newark, whose abstract expressionist paintings often include figures.

The Nov. 9 program will feature Lewes representational painter Tom Wilson and Montchanin abstract painter Graham Dougherty; Nov. 23 will feature Wilmington sculptor Rick Rothrock and Newark jewelry designer Susan Schulz; and concluding on Dec. 7 will be the decoratively realistic paintings of Marilyn Bauman of Wilmington and the largely abstract sculpture of Margaret Scott Kincannon of Hockessin.

The fee for the entire series is $15 for adults and $10 for students under age 18.

Registration forms are available at Wilcastle Center in Wilmington or Clayton Hall in Newark, or by calling the Univer-sity's Division of Continuing Education, telephone 451-8841.

Newark Symphony season set

The Newark Symphony Or-chestra will present its 1986-87 concert season under the direction nof Music Director Roman Paralysest.

Pawlowski The four concerts of the series will be presented on Sunday even-ings at 7:30 p.m. in Mitchell Hall on the University of Delaware ings at 7:39 p.m. in afficient hair and the campus.

The Newark Symphony Orsehestra, honored in 1985 by being named the official symphony orsehestra of the City of Newark, is supported by the community, the Newark Symphony Society, a agrant from the Delaware State Arts Council, and in cooperation with the Music Department of the University of Delaware.

The orchestra was founded in 1982 by Harley Hastings, and has grown from six members the first season to the current membership of 80 musicians. The goals of the orchestra are to provide local, nonprofessional musicians an opportunity to play orchestral music, to provide the community an opportunity to hear a live musical performance, and to encourage the interest of young people in music.

Individuals interested in playing in the orchestra should contact Helen Preiss at 366-8058 to arrange for an audition. Details of rehearsal times and location will be provided. Informatio may also be obtained by calling 731-0694.

be obtained by calling 731-0694.

Season ticket prices (including all four concerts) are: Adult, $18; senior citizen, $10 and student,

Individual ticket prices are: Adult, $5; senior citizen, $3.50 and student, $3.50.

For information regarding season tickets write: Newark Symphony Orchestra, Box 1012, Newark, Del. 19715-1012, or call 731-0694. Both season tickets and individual tickets will be available at the door the evenings of performances.

For some, this month marks the beginning of school. For others, it marks the end of degree earning and the start of a new adventure in learning. In the latter category is Dr. David Chalmers. David is another son of Newark who is moving into the ranks of internationally important performing artists.

But it hasn't been "doctor" Chalmers for very long. David, who grew up here and was educated in the public schools, just completed his doctoral studies in music at the Eastman Conservatory in Rochester this May. This past Thursday he took off for a new adventure in Europe, to continue his studies and to take part in the most prestigious organ competition in the world. Je Grand Prix de prestigious organ competition in the world, le Grand Prix de Chartres.

Chartres.

A few weeks ago in Loudis Recital Hall on the campus of the University of Delaware, David, honored one of his former teachers, Miss Mildred Gaddis.
The bravos are still ringing in his ears. Now he is setting out for much stiffer competition.

This competition will draw organists from all over the world to the suburb of Paris. How did David become involved in the competition? How did he get the o portunity to study in Paris? It all began at Newark High School when David's interest in a career in music was awakened.

After David graduated from Newark High in 1978, he entered the Westminster Choir College at Princeton, N.J. In 1982 he earned a bachelor of music degree in Princeton, N.J. In 1982 he earned a bachelor of music degree in organ and piano.

From there he went to the Eastman Conservatory for his master's degree which he completed in May of 1984. The next two years were ones of very hard work and diligent study until his dectorate was bestowed in ceremonies in May.

David spent this summer seeing some of the "sights" in upper New York state, sights he missed during his two intensive years of lucabration. He came back to Newark in time for Miss Gaddis' concert and to pack!

David will be in France on a Fulbright Scholarship to study 19th century French organ literature. He became interested in 19th century music many years ago and when the Fulbright opportunity presented itself, he was ready.

Over lunch last week he told me with great animation about his plans. He will study with David Roth at Saint Sulpice in Paris and at the conservatory in Strasbourg. Roth is internationally known for his work at the organ and improvisation, both important topics for Doctor David. But, as important as they are, the international organ competition comes before his studies begin.

Le Grand Prix de Chartres gets underway on Sept. 11 and gets underway on Sept. 11 and will conclude on Sept. 21. The early elimination rounds are held at the conservatory, but the finals are in the cathedral at Chartres.

finals are in the cathedral at Chartres.
Students of organ across the world began the process, as did David, with a tape. After that elimination about 20 were invited to France. All but four will be eliminated in the early rounds and only four will get to perform on the organ in the famous cathedral.

Newark's entry has made it to the final 20 among the top organists in the world who began the process.

"It will be very exciting and very demanding. I will have only two hours to partice on the organ which I will play in the competition, but all the others are in the same boat," David said with a mixture of excitement and concern.

mixture of excitement and con-cern.

The project which earned David his Fulbright scholarship is to learn more about the playing, composition and traditions of 19th century French organ music. He will also be examining original manuscripts of French organ works and comparing them with copies of the works from around the world to establish the accuracy of the copies.

All of Newark wishes David "bon chance" in his studies and in the competition. Newark has contributed many talented per-formers to the international cir-cuit. We just sent another.

Grand Opera 'Fab Fours' at

The Four Aces, the Four Prestman and the Four Lads, three singling groups popular in the 1960's and 60's, have put together a show entitled the sabulous Four which they will perform at the Grand Opera House in Wilmington at 8 p.m. Wednesday Sent 10.

House in Wilmington at 8 p.m.
Wednesday, Sept. 10.

The Four Lads actually started out in Toronto's Saint Michael's Choir School as choir-boys. It was there that they received their classical training and where they discovered that they enjoyed working as a team. They launched wheir professional career in 1950 and were discovered by Mitch Miller who gave them their first push into the high time.

Their Gold Records include such hits as "Moments To Remember," "Who Needs You," "Standing On The Corner," "Standing On The Corner," The Four Freshman first formed their famous quartet in 1947 and started on the road to fame and fortune. Along the way the Four Freshman won every major music poll, have been honored several times by Downbeat, Playboy, Billboard, and others as the nation's best vocal group. The Four Aces made famous such songs as "Tell Me Why," "Stranger In Paradise," "three Coins In A Fountain" and many others.

While the personnel has changed over the years, the sound has carried on. Critics and audiences of all ages marvel at their ability to adapt their voices to the songs of today as well as to the songs of the 50's and 60's. The present members have been nominated by the American Guild of Variety Artists as the Vocal Group of the Year.

Tickets for the Fabulous Fours are $13.50 and are on sale now at the Grand Box Office, telephone 652-5577. Half-priced tickets are available for students and senior citizens.

Tickets may also be purchased through Tickettown at 656-9797 and Chargit (800) 223-0120.

True or False?

Diving is as safe as awimming and safer than many other outdoor activities. You don't have to be a strong or even a great swimmer to scube dive. Most divers have never seen a shark. And those who have, took great pictures. Diving is fun to learn, and after just a few sessions of class and pool time, you're resdy for open water. And it costs very little to start — about the same as tennis. And for those who become fully involved, diving costs are similar to those for snow sking and golf.

MIKE PURZYCKI RESIGNS COUNTY COUNCIL

No, the above statement is not a fact, it is just wishful thinking on the part of some of his constituents. His constituents who do not know if he, Mike Purzycki, represents them or himself on County Council.

Mr. Purzycki cited in a recent newspaper article that Mr. William E. Matthews was supported by special interest groups, mainly the working people. We feel a brief look at some of Mr. Purzycki's votes while serving on Council would make one wonder just who really represents special interest groups.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the zoning of White Clay Creek, east of Newark city boundary, south of Windy Hills, from M-1 and R-2 to R-1-C, single family residential. Why? Because his law firm represented the applicant.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the Delcastle Golf Course contract citing CONFLICT OF INTEREST.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the Porky Oliver Golf Course Contract citing CONFLICT OF INTEREST.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the comprehensive site plan known as "Williamhurst" because of PERSONAL INTEREST.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of Glasgow Home and Auto Center.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of Gristmill Woods.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of Salem Woods.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of Cherrington.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of ROSELLE COMMERCIAL CENTER.

Mr. Purzycki went NOT VOTING on the plan of Foulkstone.

Doesn't it appear to you, the voter, that someone is needed to represent you who has no conflicts of interest and no personal involvement in so many issues that come before County Council. We feel that such a man would be William Matthews, a man who knows from years of experience, the operating procedures of New Castle County Government. Mr. Matthews has no strings and no ties to anyone doing business with New Castle County, a problem we feel that Mr. Purzycki will continue to have based on his past record. Let's elect a Councilman who can vote on all the issues before council and who will be a FULL-TIME councilman and a part-time councilman.

Visitors will find changes in building, fall programs

Things are hopping at the Newark Center YWCA as it prepares for a busy fall season. The YWCA will kick off the season with an open house to be held from 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 7, according to Director Cheryl Rusten.

Rusten.
Rusten said the open house will provide Newarkers an opportuni-ty to inspect the building and grounds and talk to instructors grounds and talk to instructors and coaches.

There will be a variety of events, including pony rides, face painting, clowns and exercise demonstrations. Free baked goods will be available.

The open house is designed to highlight changes in the YWCA building and programs, Rusten said last week, as workmen brushed bright new paint on the gymnasium and reception areas.

"The most obvious things that is happening right now is that we're doing a lot of physical renovation," she said.

Renovations include repainting

tion," she said.
Renovations include repainting of the swimming pool and sprucing up of the locker rooms. There will be fresh paint, new lockers, new lights and new floor mats in the locker area, Rusten said.
Future plans call for enlargement of the locker room, she added.

The gymnasium and reception areas are being painted, and the area reserved for children enrolled in the Y's growing Latch Key program is "being converted to a true children's area" with bright colors and shelving. Rusten said.

Long-term renovations, for which the YWCA of New Castle County will pay with funds raised during an upcoming capital campaign, include heating, ventilation and roofing.
Rusten said the Newark Y's fall program has also undergone some renovations. "We have a really exciting fall program, which we've expanded quite a bit from the past," she said.
There will be classes for adults, including yoga, aquacise and aerobics. Rusten said the aerobics program has been expanded and made much more flexible.
The Y offers three levels of aerobics — beginning, intermediate and sports, for those aerobics veterans in search of a challenge. And those men and women who enroll in aerobics.

Adults are also being offered swimming and fitness walking.

There will also be special seminars for adults, including

The program will consider care givers, birthing centers and various methods. Offered in October, it will help people "really plan the kind of care and birth they want," Rusten said.

Programs for youths include the ever-novular gwm and swim gwm-

Every camp has one thing in common, according to Christiana Band Director Dale Burkhardt. "A lot of drill and repetition," he said. "That's the name of the game."

Chip Vagenas, drum captain in Director Lloyd Ross' Newark band, said the drill can mean lots of parade marching in 90 degree heat. "We wind around the whole school and parking lot, and that gets pretty tiring after a while."

Especially for drummers who have to a lug bass drums or the three-drum combination. "Their shoulders start killing them," Vagenas said.

Hopkins has a few ideas of his own on how to increase the public's role in politics. He said he favors instituting an open forum citizen's advisory committee to allow the public to regularly meet with state representatives to discuss issues.

The committee's goal would be to "truly represent the people's opinions," Hopkins said.

Boulden said a major reason he does not stress issues in the primary is because so many groups approach him with private concerns that they see as being important. Boulden said he prefers to use the primary cam-

Delaware will be a "reach" game for Rhode Island, coach says.

Hens open Saturday

Rhode Island expected to come out 'throwing, throwing, throwing'

by Bruce Johnson

Although the rivarly hasn't yet reached the high standards of the Temple Wars. Delaware versus Rhode Island is quickly becoming one of the more heated match ups in the annals of Blue Hen football.

The 1985 contest was evidence of this as the game displayed hard hitting, great excitement and superior intensity for a full 60 minutes of play.

This year appears to be no different as the Hens will open their first-ever Yankee Conference season against defending champion Rhode Island this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Delaware Stadium.

"To me, that's the exciting thing about moving into the Yankee Conference because there's going to be some superlative rivalries," said Hen head coach Tubby Raymond, "those that will match the Temple and Lehigh games of the past. We've opened the season several times with Rhode Island and we've had some exciting football games with them, in particlar the last three."

For Ram coach Bob Griffin, playing Delaware is one of the highlights of the season.

"The team is very excited and enthused about the game," said Griffin from Ram headquarters in Kingston, R.I. "We view Delaware as the team to beat and if we have any designs to repeat as conference champion then we're going to have to beat Delaware. We view them as the best team on our schedule and it will be a 'reach' game for us. It's a tough opening game but we'll be ready."

Although Delaware defeated the Rams 29-13 last season, Rhode Island still managed to capture the Yankee Conference title for the second year in a row and advanced to the semi-final round of the NCAA Division I-AA tournament.

This year's game should be no

"We'll play the same as last year with the one back dimension," said Griffin, adding with a laugh, "There's a good chance we might throw the ball. We don't know how to do anything else."

The Rams will undoubtedly go the aerial route at least 40 times on Saturday. Despite losing quarterback sensation Tom Earhardt to graduation, the Rams return Greg McFarland, who saw action in last year's Delaware game when Earhardt went down early with an injury.

"At quarterback we're not going to replace Earhardt but the kid we got I wouldn't trade for anyone in the Yankee Conference," said Griffin of McFarland, who threw 53 times for 352 yards and two touchdowns but was intercepted five times in last year's game with the Hens.
"He's a quality quarterback and he's going to be a factor."

Newarkers trains for Ironman

Richard Powers will compete in prestigious triathlon

by Bruce Johnson

Hawaii's Ironman Triathlon has

Hawaii's Ironman Triathlon has long been recognized as one of the world's most grueling sporting events, with competitors pushing themselves through a 2.4-mile ocean swim, a 112-mile bleycle race and a marathon run in the course on a single day.

This year's Ironman will be held Oct. 18 and will feature more than 1,000 athletes from 48 states and 37 foreign nations.

Among them will be Newark's own Richard Powers, who will be competting in his first Ironman.

"I like the challenge of being the best at what I can do," Powers said Friday, prior to a bicycle ride to Dewey Beach, which he planned to follow with an 18-mile run.

"Endurance races take a lot of mental discipline as well as physical discipline. It's a very positive addiction and a very positive iffestyle."

The Ironman race will begin at 7 a.m. with the ocean swim and immediately proceed to the mountainside bike ride before ending with the marathon run. The winner will most likely cross the finish line some 10 hours after he began, with most of the remaining athletes completing the event under the cover of darkness.

Powers, who is an administrator for the Associated Psychiatric Services in Newark and who holds a masters degree in counseling from the University of Florida, has been competing in triathalons for four years and finished a similar triathlon at Cape Cod, Mass., in just over 11 hours.

Although this will be his first Ironman, Powers is looking for-hours.

Although this will be his first Ironman, Powers is looking forward to competing in the event.

"I'm looking at this race as a graduation," said Powers, who has been running 50 miles, biking 250 miles and swimming eight miles a week in preparation for Hawaii. "You pay your dues in training and the race is just to enjoy."

Although each leg of the race poses its own unique problems, Powers admitted that the battle with reason is the most difficult part of running a triathlon.

"There's a point in the race when you ask yourself why am I doing this," said Powers. "Every part of your body hurts and answering that question is the hardest part."

Powers will spend up to $3,000 in airfare, hotels and meals but he says the costs are minimal compared to the satisfaction one gets upon finishing a triathlon. "It gives me a sense of pride completing a triathlon," said Powers. "It's unique and I enjoy the training. It increases my self esteem and inner confidence, and it's nice to be able to do something that only a few people can do."

The Ironman Triathlon was created by Navy Commander John Collins, who along with 14 other men organized and competed in the first "gruelathon" in February 1978.

Fifteen triathletes, including one woman, competed in the event the following year. In 1980, the field increased to 108 men and women and attracted national network television coverage. The resulting "triathalon fever" soon spread to the mainland and beyond with the swim-bike-run events springing up all over the world.

In 1981, race organizer Valerie Silk moved the race from urban Honolulu to the rural island of Hawaii known as the "Big Island." She also instituted a new rule which allowed no outside support of the athletes. Instead she solicited help from the nearly 1,000 volunteers from the Big Island who put the race together.

In 1982, Bud Light assumed sponsorship of the event. Also that year, event organizers decided to move the Ironman to October because competitors from the northern mainland states with severe winter conditions were unable to train properly for a February race.

Christiana gridders have high hopes

After an impressive football campaign last year and with 19 starters returning. Christiana High School has been the topic of conversation on the football grapevine as the team to beat.

Yet, Viking head coach Marty Cross dismissed the preseason predictions maintaining that team attitude and good fortune will be the keystone to success.

"People have said that, and on paper we have a lot of people back," said Cross after an early morning practice. "Yet, our response to that is not what you hear and not what you say but what you do. We could have a nice season if things go well. We can't afford to get beat up with a lot of injuries, and we have to have a good attitude."

That positive attitude showed itself last year as the young Vikings surprised everyone by Just missing a state tournament bid, finishing third in Blue Hen Conference Flight A behind Glasgow and Newark. Cross is hoping that last year's attitude will carry over to this year.

"It always scares me when we

"It's easy to have a good attitude in pre-season because they're with us from eight in the morning to eight at night, so we control it. It's when they go into the school that they've got to be leaders and mature on their own and stay out of bad situations and not get distracted."

Defensively, the Vikings should be comparable to last year's squad. Although they will miss All-State defensive end Ken Pierce and Carl Mack at middle linebacker, the defense looks solid.

'Jackets rebuild...

...or, some Donny Wright wary coaches would tell you, reload

by Bruce Johnson

On paper, it appears that the dominance displayed by the Newark High School football team

Newark High School football team over the past two years will end in 1986.

Yet, if one talks to area coaches they will still point towards the school on Delaware Avenue and dismiss all funeral preparations with a simple statement — "don't underestimate them."

With the entire defensive secondary returning and talented athletes in the offensive backfield (star quarterback Donny Wright, Craig Callahan, Joel Butcher, Ron Rutter and Glenn Thompson return), the Yellowjackets possess one of the best groups of backs in the state.

But the game of football is won and lost in the trenches and that is where graduation left a void in the Jacket line-up. For Newark to compete for the Blue Hen Conference title this year, athletes must emerge and play well on the line of scrimmage.

"It starts with the line and every coach knows that," said 'Jacket head coach Butch Simpson, who begins his 17th year of coaching football. "You can have average backs and still have a good offense if you're controlling the line of scrimmage. Our problem is how much can we build the strength of our line because if we don't it negates the strength of our backfield."

Gone from the line are All-State backfield."

Gone from the line are All-State players such as Tom Bockius and Kevin O'Harra, who both weighed more than 250 pounds. Presently the team has taken on more 'human' high school proportions, with only one lineman weighing in at over 200 pounds.

"Last year we were like kids in a toy store," said Simpson. "We'd (the coaches) walk by each other and giggle and say look at these guys. It was the first time that I ever felt that we were superior in size. Now we're just back to where we usually are because last year was the exception. We're about like most high schools in size and other than Donny (Wright) we just don't have any height."

Simpson said that only one senior will start on the offensive line with two sophomores and two juniors getting starting calls. Senior left tackle Ray Grehofsky is not only the oldest member of the line but also the largest at 230 pounds. Junior Kevin Bram will be positioned next to Grebofsky at left guard and junior Rick Helton will man the other tackle positions.

Sophomores Kevin Scannel and Ted Raftovich will line up at right guard and center respectively.

Another problem for the offense in terms of size will be at offensive end. Although Simpson will start talented receivers in Michael Clarke and Dave Wyatt, neither possess the size of the graduated Derrick May. They average just 5?" and 155 pounds.

On defense, the secondary of Jeff Conkey, Kenny Lately, Glenn Thompson and Mike Clarke proved themselves last year, playing an intregal role in one of the best defensive units in the state. Yet, this year the defense has suffered numerous losses up front including four All-State players.

And Simpson said the secondary could find themselves making numerous tackles this year.

On the defensive line Grehofsky and Helton will play tackle. Simpson will start two inexperienced players at the defensive end position in Mike Lesher and Krip Pyle.

Craig Callahan should provide some stability in the middle linebacking position as he moves from the outside. Junior Brian Hopkins and senior Dale Wingo will play on either side of Callahan. Both Hopkins and Wingo are small as far as linebackers go but possess a football toughness and enthusiasm for the game that will counterbalance their size, according to Simpson.

"We knew we had a good class of sophomores and we were hoping that they would mature fast enough mentally because kids have skills sometimes at an early age and the ability to play but they just don't believe they can go against the Salesianum or St. Mark's vasity," said Simpson.

"That mental adjustment is hard to make."

Which leads directly to another Which leads directly to another problem facing Simpson and the 'Jackets. Newark will open their season on Saturday, Sept. 13 at home against Salesianum. Their next game is against St. Mark's. Then they travel downstate to play against Cape Henlopen.

It is a schedule that does not give the inexperienced team much time to mature. More importantly, with the tradition of Newark and a 24-game winning streak on the line, an early season loss or losses could disrupt the team's confidence.

"I believe it's very important how we handle an early loss," said Simpson. "Do we bounce back or do we feel that we let down Newark by losing a football game, which I don't expect them to feel," then we'll have problems."

Yet, after their first three games, Newark has a week off before they start their BHC schedule. If the team can stay healthy and maintain a confident attitude, they should prove competitive and in the hunt for a third consecutive BHC Flight A title.

But Newark will also have to battle their reputation Every team that the 'Jackets play this year will be sky high emotionally, hoping to get revenge and be the team that knocks the 'Jackets off the pinnacle of Delaware high school football.
"There are teams out there ol football.

school football.
"There are teams out there whose whole objective is to knock us off the top," said Simpson, with a cringing smile. "Since we've handed it to a few teams when we were on top they might feel that this is the year that Newark looks human and let's take it out on them."

Newark may be down, but with Donny Wright at quarterback the young 'Jackets could sur-

St. Mark's prepares to enter new era

by Bruce Johnson

First-year St. Mark's High School soccer head coach Tom DeMatteis has gone full circle. DeMatteis scored the school's very first goal as a player in the team's first variety season, and returned last year to assist his former coach Carmine Chickadel with the variety soccer program.

with the varisty soccer program.

Together they led the Spartans to the state soccer championship game, ultimately bowing to Tower Hill 3-2.

game, ultimately bowing to Tower Hill 3-2.

Since then Chickadel has retired and DeMattels has been promoted to the unenviable task of filling his highly-successful mentor's shoes. Yet, DeMattels, does not view the new position as a burden but a chance of a lifetime.

"I was real excited and very pleased to be able to follow him," said the 24-year-old skipper. "I don't feel any pressure and I really don't even think about it. We worked so well together in the past and all summer long we were planning, so it's really like I'm just carrying out what we would have done even if he had been here."

have done even if he had been here."

Yet with the new post comes added responsibility that DeMatteis did not have last season. An intense individual, DeMatteis knows that he must endure the learning and growing process that all young coaches experience.

Amidst a folder in which he keeps soccer forms, statistics and rosters, DeMatteis has placed a few words of advice from his former teacher.

"I have a folder and I taped that quote that said 'Don't be afraid to make mistakes." 'said DeMatteis with a knowing smile. "He knows that I always want to do things right. So I'm holding on to that and it makes me feel less pressure."

Concerning the 1986 Spartan soccer team, DeMatteis is taking over a squad that returns only two starters. Gone are the goalie, and the complete forward and halfback units, including the state's best player in 1985, Brandon Little.
"There's no doubt that Brandon is a tough person to replace but so are guys like (Raiph) Cicconi, (Kevin) Burns, (Kevin) Fry and (Joe) Claricuzio," said DeMatteis of last year's seniors. "But I have confidence that these guys are going to do okay. There's no doubt there's a lot of talent here and we're still going to be able to put the ball into the net. We've got some good young people."
One area in which the Spartans return some experience is the all important defensive unit. That experience is crucial considering the new players at mid-field.
Starting at fullback will be Bruce Smith, Jay Kimbel and Junior B.J. Reiser, who will line up at sweeper back. Eric Heiderger looks to be the probable starter at goal, although Kevin Ries has also looked impressive in pre-season.
The key player for the Spartan looked impressive in pre-season. The key player for the Spartan defense will be Sean Wallace. This summer Wallace became one of the only two athletes to be named to the All-Select team which con-sists of the best regional players in sists of the best regional players in the country.

Wallace spent all summer playing against the best young athletes in the country and gained valuable experience, which should prove beneficial this season.
The Spartan mid-field positions will be headed by center halfback Tony Rugio with Dave Dietz playing on the left side. According to DeMatteis several athletes are still vying for the right side halfback position, which also should be strong.

Forward Jon Sturmfells looks to be the apparent heir to Brandon Little as the Spartan big gun on offense. Other forwards will be Andy Tarbon, Mike McFarland and Ben Piper.

Despite having sufficient talent to compete statewide, DeMatteis is concerned over the vacuum of leadership that has gone unfilled with the graduation of last year's class.

"No one's really come forward class.

"No one's really come forward as a leader as of yet," said DeMatteis. "A couple of guys have started to emerge the past couple of days, but last year we had lots of them, a ton of them. That's important for us and that's got me worried."

worried."
Newly-elected captains Bruce Smith, Tony Ruglo and Sean Wallace should fill that void but DeMatteis is hoping that others will join in.
The Spartans also face the problem of a tough schedule, particularly early in the season. The Spartans' first contest is against Ceasar Rodney, and then they play Washington, D.C. soccer powerhouse Good Council at home before playing perennially tough Concord.

Concord.

For the inexperienced group of athletes, it will be an early baptism into the 1986 varsity season.

"We definitely don't get to ease into the season," said DeMatteis

"We definitely don's get to ease into the season," said DeMatteis who added that every game is important considering the tournament bid system which is based on points. "It could be a problem, but it depends. We could handle it just it depends. We could handle it just fine but if we're not in shape then it could be a problem. But I don't have any doubt that they can do it."

Now that he is in charse.

Now that he is in charge, DeMatteis was questioned about any changes he might make in the Spartan soccer program.

Walking is sport for everyone, Sweetgall says

After decades of watching rather than participating in sports, an overweight, beer guzzling America suddenly became a alim, carrot juice sipping America in the 1970s.

The reason? Americans discovered the importance of physical fitness. And they turned in droves to running, spurred on by such fleet-footed gurus as Jim Fixx and George Sheehan.

But while running was doing wonders for cardiovasular systems, it was wreaking havoc on ankles, shins and knees. The running boom spurred a boom in the businesses of podiatrists and orthopedic surgeons.

There is a better way, a sport for the 1980s, according to Newarker Rob Sweetgall. That sport is walking, and Sweetgall discovered it the hard way.

Sweetgall, a native New Yorker who came to Delaware to work for the DuPont Co., got caught up in the running boom after several close relatives died of heart disease. The losses made all too clear to him the importance of cardiovascular fitness.

Sweetgall hit the road in a big way, becoming an ultramarathoner and ultimately deciding to run across the United States. It was during the difficult, injury-plaqued run that he discovered that walking was equally valuable in terms of cardiovascular fitness, and much better in terms of saving limbs.

To promote walking, Sweetgall crossed the nation on foot once more and since has been promoting the sport in books, film and personal appearances.

Walking, Sweetgall tells anyone who will listen, provides all the benefits of running without the painful side effects of putting bones, muscles and joints under tremendous stress.

"Walking is really the answer for American America," says Sweetgall. "For the 5-10 million joggers, running is fine. But as a professional health promoter, I have to ask, what about the other millions who despise jogging? Jogging has given them a perfect excuse to stay on the sofa."

Sweetgall is asking that those folks get off the sofa and join him for the first White Clay Classic Walk to be held Sunday, Sept. 21 in conjunction with Newark Community Day.

Sweetgall will speak and offer walking clinics as part of the event, which will be head-quartered in Clayton Hall on the University of Delaware's north campus off New London Road.

It is sponsored by the NewArk Post, Storm's Shoes and WILM-Newsradio.

Sweetgall will open the activities with a walking clinic at 12:30 p.m.

The walk will begin at 1:30 p.m., with participants moving from Clayton Hall to the central community Day site on the University Mall off Delaware Avenue.

At the Mall, additional walkers from the Community Day crowd will join the hike.

Dragons have new coach in Jo Sydnor

Often times after winning a conference championship, coaches will emphasize the importance of defending that title. It is a task that has historically proven difficult to accomplish and can often put a great deal of pressure on young athletes.

Over at Glasgow High School, new head volleyball coach Jo Sydnor has created a different perspective in approaching the 1986 season after last year's team captured their first ever Blue Hen Conference Flight A crown.

"We talked about goals in the beginning of the year and one of them was to be respectable," said Sydnor, who is no stranger to high school volleyball. She assisted Sally Craig for four years at Glasgow after having been the head coach of Christiana's volleyball program for 14 years and recording two state championships and 11 conference titles.

"We're trying to de-emphasize conference titles conference titles.

"We're trying to de-emphasize the winning and losing and concentrate on growing individually and as a team. We're stressing fundamentals and if they can progress in that area then the wins will come," Sydnor said.

Sydnor inherited a team that graduated all six starters, including three All-State performers. This season, the team roster includes only three seniors on a squad that is dominated by underclassmen.

Most of the athletes have been brought up from the junior varsity squad, which lost only one game, but Sydnor hesitates in predicting similar success considering the difference in play on the varsity level.

similar success considering the difference in play on the varsity level.

"Sure there's always that possibility but varsity play is much more intense," said Sydnor. "They went 13-1 on the JV but they haven't been hit at by varsity players and that inexperience will make a big difference."

What the Dragons lose in experience they make up for in height. The Glasgow spikers will have a number of tall hitters with the tallest being Carrie Klein (5'11"), who is in her first year of volleyball despite being a junior.

Other hitters will be sophomores Phoebe Folke (5'8"), Kizzie Cobb (5'8") and Laura Lawlor (5'6").

The Dragons will alternate two seniors at the setter position in Julie Woomer (5'7") and Kristie Paolitti (5'7"), with the final senior Val Allen (5'5") providing defensive support on the back row.

"The big factor for us is how mentally tough we can get the girls in a short period of time," said Sydnor. "We've had scrimmages and we've looked good but we've had lapses and that's where we need more concentration."

Yet, Sydnor expressed confidence in the girls' ability to adapt to the varsity level, stating that they had developed a good attitude in practice.

"We have a real young bunch who are a group of super kids," she said. "They've got a great attitude and are hard working and real coachable."

The Dragons open their season at Claymont on Sept. 10.

"Everyone wants to do better."
To do better is what Smith wants. Last year the Jackets never met Lady Luck and finished with a disconsisting record of a with a disappointing record of 4-8, with two ties.

But this year Smith is planning on changing the team's luck by changing the offense.

"We're playing a new system this year," says Smith. "The big difference is that we're playing two links this year who will play both offense and defense.

Yet, Raymond also added that the Ram receiving corps should prove more competitive this year despite losing three starters, including tight end Brian Forster who led the team in receptions last season.

who led the team in receptions last season.

"They made comments at the Yankee Conference meeting that this team would be much better balanced than the one last year," said Raymond. "Last year they had Forster catching all the balls but this year they have four receivers (led by Bob Denfield) who they think are quality people and they have their running back (Doug Haynes) returning."

Another plus for the Rams is the offensive line. They received a big boost when two impressive Drake University transfers enrolled at Rhode Island, and the pair should more than solidify the trenches for the Rams.

Parmond sold that defensively.

Raymond said that defensively the Hens are preparing for much the same manner as last season, working primarily on coverages and pass rush techniques. Yet, with pre-season injuries to Todd Hranicka and Donald Souders and the transformation of Mike Hoban from offense to the defensive side of the line, the growth of the front four has been stunted.

Although the Hen secondary looks as strong as ever, without a strong pass rush — and possibly without injured star lineback Darrell Booker — it could prove to be a long day for the Hen defense. Still, Griffin believes the Hens will be prepared.

Still, Griffin believes the Hens will be prepared.

"Delaware is the only team in 13 games that we played last year that did a job on our receivers," said Griffin. "It's a real tribute to their fine athletes and coaching staff at Delaware. Yet, that's what I expect from Delaware and that's why they're one of the top programs in the country.

"Everyone always talks about their great Wing-T but they also play great defense. They win just as many games with their defense as they do with their offense."

Yet, it is the offensive unit of the Vikings that is much improved. Back is quarterback Joe Beaudette, who gained a year's varsity experience last year and appears more confident. If the offense is to be successful, his ball handling, passing and leadership ability should play a key role.
"We're real pleased with Beaudette," said Cross. "He's done everything we've asked him to do. He's thrown the ball real well for us in scrimmages. Last year, he was a great team leader, ran the ball real well for us and threw adequately. This year his passing is much improved."
Beaudette will have plenty of tall, speedy targets to hit this year when he drops back to air it out. Both of his wide outs, Rodalunas and Cormican, are over six feet with quick feet and he also benefits from a six foot backfield, which includes two track speedsters in Ben Martin and Lee which includes two track speedsters in Ben Martin and Lee Sylvester. Chittum and Tate, both tall and speedy as well, will both see action at the wing back posi-tion.

Combining statistics of the of-fensive skill positions one computes an average height of just over six feet, weighing about 175 and running the 40-yard sprint in approximately 4.8. If any of these athletes breaks into the open field they could run a long way.

"One thing that we're most pleased with is that we've got a lot more speed than we've had in years past," said Cross. "They used to say that Cross plays caveman football by pounding it out. In the past, with the kind of speed we had, we just couldn't make a steady diet of going outside. Yet, with Martin and Sylvester we've got good speed."

The offense also benefits from an experienced line which sports captains DiOssie and Lardani as it's foundation at tackles. Clifton Garder and Edward Noonan will line-up at guards with Frank Robinson snapping the ball at center.

Inne-up at guards with Frain-Robinson snapping the ball at center.

Yet, even with all the talent that the Vikings possess, Cross emphasized that without the proper attitude the Vikings would suffer through a mediocre season.

"We have some kids who can play football and if we have a good attitude and get some good breaks than we should have a decent year," said Cross. "If our attitude becomes shaky then good athletes become fair athletes. Attitude is a real key and makes about 90 percent of sports. If you can go in and have confidence, good things just happen."

Christiana coach Marty Cross hopes Vikings maintain positive attitude.

Diabetes seminar

My friend Lydia was convinced that there were no drugstores in central Michigan and western Virginia. I believed that there were towns in both Wisconsin and Oregon that not only lacked drug stores, but didn't have any grocery stores either. We couldn't imagine how the residents of these areas managed; maybe they never brushed their teeth or washed their hair or used deodorant.

We surmised that if nobody did any of those things, then no one noticed that they hadn't been done. All the same, I suspected that their tourist trade was down.

How did Lydia and I know that

How did Lydia and I know that there were no drugstores in these towns? Our children have attended or are attending colleges in those regions, and they always stocked-up on everything before they left.

stocked-up on everything before they left.

My eldest, when he headed out for Wisconsin, could have been a traveling medicine man in an earlier period. He took things that went from the top of his head — shampoo — to the bottom of his feet — foot powder — and included items for all the impor-tant stops in between.

My second took off for Oregon with supplies that Admiral Byrd should have had when he made his dash to the Pole. While we all know that Oregon is part of the Wild West, I was pratically positive that the place has been made habitable for college students.

Lydia's children took not only items to keep them clean and neat, but also healthy and socially acceptable — quantities of vitamins, aspirin, cold tablets, mouthwash, laundry detergent and bleach.

At one point Lydia and I considered opening a specialty mail order business aimed at the unique needs of those four towns. We figured we could clean up financially, and they could clean up physicially. It seemed like a fair trade. Besides, both of us were desparate for income since

USAF basic training

Army National Guard Private Erick J. Garcia, son of Joseph L. and Elsa M. Garcia of 19 Aronimick Drive, Newark, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.
