LOCAL DAIRYMEN AGREE TO APPLY FOR TUBERCULIN TESTS

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH EXTENDS TIME FOR FILING

DANGER TO TOWN'S MILK SUPPLY AVERTED WHEN THE SITUATION IS FULLY REALIZED BY FARMERS

Through the leniency of the State Board of Health, Newark was saved from a serious situation with regard to the milk supply which was in danger of being cut off on August 1. The Board extended for a couple of weeks the time for compliance with the recent ruling which compels all dairymen selling milk for consumption within the State to have their herds tested for tuberculosis.

Early in July the State Board of Health made this ruling and set August 1 as the date for compliance, or at least for applications for such tests to be in the hands of the State Livestock Sanitary Board. Notice of such action was sent to the farmers of the State but those in this vicinity received theirs only a short time ago and had not made application for these tests when the time limit expired.

The local Board of Health realizing the seriousness of the situation did everything possible to convince the dairymen that such applications should be made, explaining to those who thought the measure drastic and who threatened to take their milk to the creamery for shipment to Philadelphia, that the test would mean very little immediate loss and a very considerable ultimate gain.

Farmers Compensated for Loss of Infected Cows

These tests are made without expense to the dairymen, the cost being borne by the Federal government and the loss of the reacting cows borne largely by the State, which pays approximately 45 of the value of the infected animal. As it was graphically put by an interested citizen in discussing the situation, a dairyman has the opportunity of getting rid of 5 tubercular cows and getting 4 healthy cows in return. And since it is very well known the infection spreads rapidly after one of the herd becomes affected, it would be the part of wisdom and of good business policy to have the testing done at one's own expense. It is a boon therefore to have such precautions taken without cost to the owners.

The chief objection made to the ruling was that of its apparent lack of fairness, the dairymen claiming that those not selling milk for local consumption are not compelled to submit their herds for test but are permitted to ship their product to Philadelphia without such formality. A number of these objectors threatened to adopt the latter course and thereby cut off Newark's local supply. The citizens, especially those having small children, were very much alarmed when the state of affairs became known and the State authorities appealed to.

Chester H. Wells, Health Commissioner for the State, declared that there was no desire on the part of the State Board to be arbitrary; that dairymen in this vicinity received notice of this requirement later than some other sections of the State and that he would present the situation to the State Board who would doubtless extend the time. This they finally did and yesterday was set for a conference in which the State Board, the local Board, the retailers and the producers could adjust their differences and clear up the situation.

In the meantime, however, practically all of the dairymen agreed to make application for the tests and the conference was unnecessary.

In this connection Mr. Wells stated that the ruling is being carried out very satisfactorily in other parts of the State, and that the Live Stock Sanitary Board has a large list of applications for tests.

FARMERS' TRUST CO. SHOWS REMARK- ABLE GROWTH

R. R. Williams, of Wilkes-barre, Pa., Head of Real Estate and Insurance Department

The statement of the Farmers Trust Company of Newark at the close of the fiscal year ending July 31st, 1920, shows a very successful year, having assets of over $1,125,000, deposits of over $1,000,000, net earnings after all expenses and taxes paid approximately $18,000.00, being at the rate of 36 per cent per annum.

This is an increase for the year of over $300,000 in assets, and over $200,000 in deposits.

This remarkable growth shows the utmost confidence the people of this community have in this progressive institution.

The Farmers Trust Company has always shown an active interest in the town's affairs, being always ready and willing to give their assistance toward the advancement of the community.

They are installing new safe deposit boxes this week, in order to take care of their rapidly increasing number of patrons.

Recently an active real estate and insurance department has been inaugurated, the services of R. R. Williams of Wilkesbarre, having been secured.

Mr. Williams is a senior in the University of Pennsylvania, has had considerable experience in public life, is a graduate of the West Chester State Normal School, where he afterward served as Registrar for a number of years. Since then he has taught school for 7 years, was Principal of West Grove High School for 4 years and served in the World War, having spent a year in active warfare in France.

The motto of this bank is personal service to its patrons, and the interest of its customers being considered first in all cases, and prompt, courteous attention given everybody.

LOCAL RIFLEMEN TO COMPETE IN NATIONAL MATCHES

Walter D. Holton and Eugene C. Stiltz left on Saturday for Camp Perry, Ohio, where with other crack shots from the State, they will compete in the National rifle matches which will take place in two weeks.

These young men will attend a two weeks' preliminary school under Marine Corps and regular army instructors who will put them into real national match form before the beginning of the big event. From the excellent showing made by these young Delawareans at the tryouts held recently on the State Range, they will make a good showing in the national matches.

A number of veteran riflemen will leave just before the event takes place.

Between 2500 and 3000 riflemen will be on hand at Perry when the big show starts, and the local boys will meet and compete against riflemen from every state in the Union and all of our outlying territories. The work of squadding all competitors, assigning them to targets, compiling scores, etc., is in the hands of a well-known Wilmington man, T. G. Samworth, while the trap-shooting layout, which will be conducted as a kind of side show to the big event, is being handled by another local shooter, E. L. Galvin. Delaware is well represented on the staff of the national rifle matches and will be well represented in the actual competitions.

In the meantime R. S. Gallaher, agent at the Baltimore and Ohio station, in an effort to assist the railroad detectives who were attempting to run down thieves who entered the stations at Elk Mills, Childs and Singery, Md., telephoned Mr. Wilkinson to inquire if anyone had been offering sugar for sale. Mr. Wilkinson replied in the affirmative and with Mr. Gallaher's help planned a coup whereby the man might be trapped.

WORK ON WATER SYSTEM TO BEGIN SOON

Town Council held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening and on account of the carnival hold-over was adjourned until last night, when the contract for motors and pumps for lifting water was considered. Work will be begun shortly on the work of excavating and of laying the mains.

MAIL PLANE ALIGHTS HERE FOR WATER

Draws Big Crowd of Spectators to Wollaston Field

Yesterday shortly after 11 o'clock mail plane No. 50, enroute from New York to Washington, was forced to alight here for water. The plane circled about for some little time in an effort to find a landing place and finally swooped down into a field on the C. P. Wollaston farm just south of town.

People came running from all directions to see the plane at close range and to give assistance if any should be needed. Water was secured from the nearby house and the young aviator was ready to proceed. The crowd watched with interest his efforts to crank the huge "Lizzie" bird, by turning over the propeller, while H. H. Cleaves of Kells, manipulated the levers from the pilot's seat. Even with a crack-the-whip effect with Herman Wollaston furnishing a part of the motive power he failed to accomplish this operation. He then directed the efforts of others and Wollaston, Cleaves and Paul Steel finally turned the trick. The big bird soon rose from the ground and flew eastward for a few yards when she suddenly turned and in a spirit of mischief dived downward toward the spectators who scurried hither and thither like frightened chickens.

Having had a bit of fun, the daring young Southerner who was piloting the machine, already an hour late, flew on toward Washington, a journey which he expected to make in 35 minutes, arriving in plenty of time for lunch.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS SECURE PERMANENT HOME

Lt. J. Allison O'Daniel Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars have secured permanent quarters in Center Hall and will hold meetings there on the first and third Monday of each month. Because of the pageant last Monday night, the Post did not meet. The men composing the Rehabilitation Division, who comprise a large proportion of the membership, will be on vacation until after the third Monday in August. The next meeting will therefore be held the first Monday in September.

BLUE AND GOLD MAKES GOOD SHOW- ING AT DEVENS

Makes Record for Marksmanship and Stands First in Sports

Twenty-one Delaware College students who have been taking intensive military training at Camp Devens, Mass., have returned after an absence of six weeks. According to reports from the camp the Delaware lads excelled not only in the military activities but in the sporting events as well. In the former they were equal in standing to any of the groups from schools of distinctive military type, such as Pennsylvania Military Academy and Virginia Military Academy.

A coincidence in this connection was that one of the officers of the company to which the Delaware boys were assigned was Captain Ralph Dickinson, commandant at Delaware College. Captain Carleton Coulter, former commandant, was mess officer.

Philip Marvel, captain of the college baseball team, was captain of the camp team. The representatives of the Blue and Gold scored a greater number of points in the sporting events than any of the colleges represented. In marksmanship they made an enviable record.

FARMERS OF STATE TO HAVE BIG DAY HERE TOMORROW

WILL INSPECT COLLEGE FARM IN THE MORNING
PREPARATIONS MADE TO ENTERTAIN MANY
FROM THIS AND LOWER COUNTIES
WITH INTERESTING PROGRAM

Everybody connected with the Experimental Farm and the Experiment Station has been busy for some time with plans for the big event of the year—the Annual Farmers' Day meeting and picnic which will be held at the College Farm tomorrow. Ideal weather conditions have prevailed, the bulk of the harvest work is out of the way, roads are better than they have been for years, and the farmers of the State are more and more imbued with the spirit of progress. They are taking advantage more and more of the resources which the State College has to offer them in the way of assistance for the betterment of farm crops, live stock, and general farm conditions.

In view of these facts, and in view of the stabilization of conditions at the Experimental Farm, after the demoralizing war period, it is expected that a record crowd will attend tomorrow.

Director C. A. McCue announces that plans are being made to entertain and instruct at least two thousand farmer guests on this occasion, the summer agricultural event of the year in Delaware. The experimental work of the College including farm crops, orchards, small fruits, live stock, etc., will be labeled in such a way that visitors may learn the work being conducted for their benefit and the results to date of such experimental work. The farm crops, particularly corn and soy beans, will be in ideal shape to show the results of various treatments of fertilizers, manure and the effect of crop rotations.

The Plots of the Rehabilitation Division

An interesting feature of this year's demonstration is that of the plots conducted by the men of the Rehabilitation Division at the College.

Each man of the first contingents to arrive was assigned a plot of ground 30 by 40 feet and provided with a packet of seeds. All of these packets were uniform and the planting was done in the same way. As later contingents arrived, many of them too late for the planting season, they were given a share of a plot already planted and assigned to the care of a portion of it.

The men take particular pride in the appearance of their plots and go after the weeds with such determination that not one dares show its head in that neighborhood. Several of the plots have the appearance of having been raked with a fine toothed comb. The yield has been heavy and many of the men are sending a part of the produce to their homes. Some is sent to The Commons and some will be taken home by the men when they go on their furlough, next Friday.

The result of their labors is indeed remarkable, especially in view of the fact that most of these embryo farmers are city born and bred and are having their first experience with growing things. Beets, celery, Swiss chard, corn, salsify, string beans, cucumbers, lima beans and other garden vegetables are in flourishing condition and will furnish the experienced farmers with something to think about when they make their inspection tomorrow.

The three County Farm Bureaus through their various communities are organizing automobile parties to make the trip and as a means of interesting their people in the agricultural work of their State College.

Each visitor is asked to bring a basket lunch and hot coffee will be served on the grounds.

John H. Hankinson, Secretary of the New Jersey Council of County Boards of Agriculture, will be the chief speaker.

CARNIVAL RECEIPTS ARE OVER FOURTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS

Firemen Well Pleased With Support Given by Community

With the gross receipts totalling $14,742.64 and a prospect of the net gain being between $7,000 and $8,000, the members of the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Co. have every reason to rejoice over the success of their carnival which was brought to a close on Monday night. A surprisingly large attendance of Newark folk and those from adjacent communities every night of the affair and the liberal manner in which they supported the enterprise is a source of gratification to those who managed the carnival.

Chief E. C. Wilson is enthusiastic in his praise of the towns people who backed "the boys" so loyally and gave such splendid support throughout the week.

In spite of the storm which practically broke up the carnival on Saturday evening, a record crowd was in attendance and swelled the gross receipts with the surprising amount of $3,232. Many who were on the grounds when the storm broke, took shelter in the vaudeville tent which proved an unsafe refuge when the wind threatened to tear it from its moorings. Only the efforts of Chief Wilson and several "strong arm" aides who held the guy ropes by main force, prevented the collapse of the tent—an experience which has led Mr. Wilson to make the positive statement that "never again" will a tent be used on the carnival grounds.

"In Happy Hills"

There's a wonderful country, lying
Far off from the noisy town,
Where the wild-flowers swing,
And the veery sings
And the tumbling brooks come down;
'Tis a land of light and of laughter,
Where peace all the woodland fills;
'Tis the land that lies
'Neath the Summer skies
In the heart of the happy hills.

Far away in that wonderful country,
Where the skies are always blue,
In the shadows cool,
By the foaming pool,
We may put on strength anew;
We may drink from the magic fountains
Where the wine of life distills:
And never a care
Shall find us there,
In the heart of the happy hills.

For The Homemaker's Eye

Making the Table Attractive

Orderly arrangement is an important point in a well arranged table, then comes the garnishing. A little box of greens may be grown at the kitchen window. You can at least grow parsley and this makes the kitchen cheerful as well as gives the housewife a perpetual green for all sorts of dishes. Perhaps you now buy shoulder chops instead of the fine loin chops which you formerly considered indispensable.

If you but knew it, these same shoulder chops can be made to look as tasty as those from the loin if they come to the table garnished with a few sprigs of parsley. Suppose you are going to make a potato salad or that old fashioned dish known as potato bargain.

Add a little chopped parsley to either and you will find that father and children will look on it as a much more desirable dish.

Perhaps you are going to have canned salmon for luncheon because the canned fish is in many instances cheaper than the fresh. How much nicer it will look if, after having freed it from bones and membranes, it is placed in a border of boiled rice or in a ring of mashed potatoes, or if surrounded by little mounds of green peas.

Plain pot roast may look homely, but it becomes aristocratic and tempting when it is brought to the table decorated with overlapping slices of carrot or with a border of diced carrots and peas or with vegetables cut with any one of the fancy vegetable cutters.

Arrange cakes and muffins in symmetrical designs, in star shapes, or diamond, on the serving plates. Think up some new arrangement or decoration whenever serving a dish that might otherwise be commonplace and see whether you can not feel repaid.

Peach Butter

Wash the fruit and remove the fuzz by rubbing with a damp cloth, but do not peel them. Place in a preserving kettle, add just enough water to prevent burning and stew slowly until very tender. Run them through a fruit press or colander to remove the stones and some of the skins. Put the pulp into a clean preserving kettle and add half the quantity of hot sugar that you have pulp. Flavor to taste with ground cinnamon and grated nutmeg and cook down, slowly until very thick and a good, rich color.

Currant Conserve

Mix together three quarts of stemmed currants, three quarts of sugar, one pound of seeded raisins, finely chopped; the rind and pulp of two oranges and the rind and pulp of one lemon. Let the ingredients stand covered for two hours.

Vanilla Ice Cream with Hot Chocolate Sauce

Where a rich sauce is used over the ice cream, the raw cream need not be of heavy quality. Scald a pint of cream; split vanilla bean into halves, scrape the seeds out and rub them with ten ounces of sugar, add the sugar to the hot cream and stir constantly until it is dissolved. Take from the fire, and when perfectly cold, add one quart of raw cream. Turn the mixture in the freezer, pack, stir slowly for a moment until it is icy cold, and then freeze. Remove the dasher. Fasten the hole in the lid with a cork, repack and stand aside for two hours to ripen.

Hot Chocolate Sauce—The sauce must be made just before serving time; as the ice cream is served the hot sauce is poured over which forms a sort of icing. Put four ounces of chocolate with a cup of sugar, and a half cupful of milk in a saucepan; cook slowly until the chocolate and sugar are melted, and then boil until it slightly hardens when dropped in cold water. Turn at once in a sauce boat and send to the table.

Iced Rice Pudding

One-half cup of rice, 1 pint of milk, 1 quart of cream, 2 cups of sugar, yolks of six eggs, 1 tablespoonful of vanilla. Rub the rice well in a clean towel, put it on to boil in one pint of cold water, boil a half-hour; drain, cover with the milk, and boil a half-hour longer. While this is boiling, whip the cream. After you have whipped all you can, add the remainder, and what has drained from the other, to the rice and milk. Now press the rice through a wire sieve, and return it to the farina boiler, in which it was boiled. Beat the yolks and sugar together until light, then pour over the boiled rice, stir well, return again to the fire, and cook two minutes, or until it begins to thicken. Take from the fire, add vanilla, and turn out to cool. When cool, put into the freezer and freeze. When frozen, stir in the whipped cream, and remove the dasher and smooth down the pudding, repack and stand aside for two hours.

To Mould Ice Cream

If you wish to mould ice cream or serve it in forms, have your mould ready at the time you remove the dasher from the can, and also have ready a tub or bucket containing a mixture of coarse ice and salt. Moisten the mould with cold water, then fill it quickly with ice cream, pressing it down with a spoon to fill every part of the mould. Lay a piece of wax paper, or strong manila paper, over the cream, large enough to project beyond the edges when the lid is on, put on the lid and imbed the mould in the tub of ice and salt. Cover with a piece of carpet and stand aside for one or two hours.

Or, in place of using the paper after you have filled the mould, put on lid and stand it in the tub of ice and salt. Take a narrow piece of muslin sufficiently long to bind the joint of the lid, dip it into melted butter or suet, bind it quickly around the joint, then imbed the mould in the salt and ice.

When ready to use, lift the mould from the ice, wipe it carefully, plunge it into a pan of warm water, remove the lid and paper (or strip of muslin, and then the lid) and turn the mould out carefully on a napkin placed on a

The Money-Saving Megary August Sale Has Started

And until the close of business Tuesday, August thirty-first, you can obtain real, substantial savings on your home furnishings. The Megary August Sale is one event of the year that prudent buyers wait for.

They wait for it and take advantage of it because they know--that there is no "sale" merchandise here--that our stock is the regular Megary stock, and this insures its quality--that regardless of reductions every article sold must be perfectly satisfactory to the purchaser. The fact that it was sold at a reduction does not preclude its return should it prove defective or unsatisfactory in any way--and that the reductions are substantial, worth while saving and real.

These are the reasons why you should take advantage of this Sale.

The reductions vary. The minimum reduction is ten per cent but in some instances you can save one-half.

Our stocks at present are large and varied both as to design and price.

But the early buyer will naturally have the largest selection.

If you cannot have your purchases delivered now arrangements may be made for a later delivery date within a reasonable time.

Knowing traffic and labor conditions, however, we earnestly advise your early selection.

Violet Sherbet

Boil together for five minutes, a pound of sugar and a pint of water; add the juice of two lemons. When icy cold add one pint of grape juice and freeze. When frozen, stir in a meringue made from the white of one egg and a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, and repack. Let this stand one or two hours to ripen. Serve in punch or wine glasses, garnished with fresh violets, or they may be garnished with the candied violets.

Marlborough Pie

Marlborough Pie is one of the most delicious of apple pies. For the filling use six large apples, one cup of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs, half a lemon, nutmeg and salt. Add a top crust and bake about forty minutes.

PLATFORM OPPOSES PRICE-FIXING

The Republican platform is correct in the assertion that price fixing and arbitrary reduction of prices of farm products result to the disadvantage of both the producer and consumer. The consumer may reap a temporary benefit from the reduction of prices paid to agricultural producers, but such reduction of prices must inevitably result in a diminution of production with consequent lessening of supply and the ultimate increase in price due to a demand which can not be filled. Far better would it be for the consumer if he paid an excessive price in the beginning and encouraged production which would bring about an adequate supply and reduce the price through competition among producers.—Humboldt (Col.) MILK PRODUCERS OP- POSE ACTION OF STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

Adopt Resolution Declaring
Demand for Test Hasty

The Milk Producers' Association at a meeting held at the Court House last Saturday, passed unanimously a resolution requesting all farmers to demand payment of all losses on account of the tests provided in the law, and in case of funds not being available with which to pay these losses to refuse to have their cows tested.

A committee comprising W. Truxton Boyce, J. W. Talley and Frank Yearsley was appointed to discuss the matter with the State Board of Health. In the discussion it was pointed out that the State Legislature at the special session last spring, when the law was passed, had given farmers a year in which to get themselves and their herds into shape to meet the new tests. The action of the State Board of Health was declared hasty and would mean, it was said, throwing practically all of the milk business into the hands of the larger dealers in Wilmington who could handle pasteurized milk.

The resolution is as follows:

"Be it resolved by the Milk Producers Association that the association is opposed to the drastic action taken by the State Board of Health by passing a resolution which means compulsory tests of dairy cattle when there are insufficient funds to pay the losses incurred as was the intention of the law passed at the special session of the last Legislature, and this association requests all farmers to demand immediate payment of all losses incurred on account of the tests as provided in the law; and in case of funds not being available to refuse to have their cows tested."

"In case there is a suit against any member of the association for his refusal to have his cows tested under these conditions, that the association pay the costs of the suit."

The meeting was unusually well attended. James H. Reynolds of Hockessin, president of the Association, presided.

NEXT SATURDAY SECOND REGISTRATION DATE

The registrars will sit next Saturday in the respective election districts at the usual hours.

Voters of the Western District will register at the Deer Park Hotel; of the Middle District at the Washington House, and of the Eastern District at Currier's store, Christiana.

LOVE MAKES LIFE BEAUTIFUL

A woman stood in an art gallery looking hard at one of Millet's masterpieces. "But the people are so ugly," she said in a perplexed tone. "And their shoes are so clumsy, and there's nothing really beautiful in the picture—and yet the whole thing is beautiful."

This uncultured and inartistic person in her perplexity touched on one of the mysteries of art, that mystery which gilds the plainest things and makes them beautiful. And what the artist's power can do for a canvas, love can do for a life. Perhaps there is no more famous picture in the world than Millet's "Angelus" where two plain peasants stand with bowed heads against the evening sky. It is a small canvas with nothing spectacular in the coloring, but the simple, everyday things of life, hard work, simple faith, the rest hour—are all there, and all are beautiful.

A painter does not need to paint beautiful paintings, and love only needs the simple things to make life beautiful. Work and play and sleep, kindness to one another, faith in God, and these illumined by love, make beauty incomparable.

TOTS IN DEMONSTRATION SCHOOL HAVE HAPPY SUMMER

ENJOY WORK UNDER EXPERT GUIDANCE

LITTLE FOLK HELP TO PLAN ACTIVITIES AND TO SHOW VISITING TEACHERS HOW THE LEARNING PROCESS IS ACCOMPLISHED

If the little folks in the lower grades of the Demonstration School possessed the vocabulary of grown folks they would not spare adjectives in the recital of their good times there. And good times do not constitute the whole sum and substance of their experience either, for their progress has been rapid and their gain in poise and in knowledge is considerable. Three groups constitute the enrollment: those who by extra work are trying to make an additional grade, those who have failed for some reason in the regular grade work, and those who are beginners.

This wide difference in the character of the groups offers an excellent opportunity for the teacher, Miss Rachel Fuller, to demonstrate what may be done with a number of children of varied abilities and of different grades such as the rural teacher usually has.

The little folk put in a delightful morning. First of all they adopted in the beginning a general plan of activity for both the outdoor and indoor periods. A committee of two from the group act as leaders to plan the games and songs. This committee is self-perpetuating, each member serving for two days and then choosing his successor, so that one of the committee is always experienced in the work.

At the close of each day's session they put their heads together and map out a program for the following day, which they submit duly to Miss Fuller who makes a neat typewritten copy which she returns to the senior leader for his guidance next morning. A typical program submitted last Thursday by Vincent Maher and Muriel Conrad is as follows:

Out-of-Doors

Games:—Blind Man's Buff; Ball in the Ring; Hickory, Hickory, Dock.

Indoors

Songs: "Good morning to You"; Reading: Isaac's Bride; Prayer: Our Father; Victrola: "The Last Rose of Summer"; Song: "Father, We Thank Thee."

Business

Vincent chooses a leader for tomorrow.

It will be observed that the reading for the morning is a Bible story, taken from a collection specially prepared for small children. The victrola is a portable one and is provided with a number of records which the children enjoy and the airs of which they remember and love to hum as their favorite selections are played.

After this program is completed the business of study begins, and continues throughout the morning with a recess at 10.45.

The reassembling after this recess is the lunch period. All assemble around a little table, just the right height. Each provides himself with a paper napkin—not the kind anybody can buy, but the kind that an ingenious youngster can fashion with the aid of scissors, out of any piece of white paper, and a picture from a magazine or newspaper. One or two from the number are assigned the task of bringing in the milk, little half pint bottles of which, put up by Chester Ewing, are left at the school every morning and for which the children pay three cents each. And it is good rich milk, too, as all of the children are willing to testify, and any visitor who is asked to share the luncheon is fortunate indeed. Crackers or cakes may be brought from home. The children take turns saying grace, cleaning away the crumbs, washing the milk bottles, and taking the money for deposit in bank.

Many lessons in courtesy, cleanliness, reverence, and other virtues are inculcated at this luncheon period, which is enlivened by playing guessing games, or telling funny little stories.

At intervals during the morning teachers from the Summer School come over to observe the academic work. These do not in the least disturb the little folk who are intent upon the business of learning.

The State of Delaware was the subject studied by the tiny ones after luncheon last Thursday. A map had been drawn on the board by one of their number and around this the children grouped to hear and to tell facts about their State, and to learn the difference between map directions and real directions.

The Eskimo was the subject under discussion in the older group. Pictures showing all ages, all seasons, all occupations, modes of living and other features of Eskimo life were passed around, books were made available and from these aids various illuminating details concerning those interesting Northern brothers of ours, were deduced.

The process of "bringing out" the backward ones is a particularly difficult piece of work, but this Miss Fuller out of a varied experience as teacher in the rural schools of Connecticut; principal of consolidated schools in that state for five years; instructor in Primary Methods, Central Montana Summer School; Supervisor of Rural Training Center, Lewiston, Idaho; and student in rural education at Columbia University, is able to accomplish and thus to demonstrate how this trying problem may be solved by the teacher who has work of the primary grades either in the town or the rural school.

Little original stories told by the beginners and by the backward pupils are written in a large memory book which they take great pride in being able to read after transcription by Miss Fuller.

To the delight of the boys who compose a large proportion of the enrollment, hammer, nails, saw, wood and other materials are within easy access and a time is set apart when they may be used for the manufacture of useful articles. A doll's table was in the course of construction last week and the ingenuity displayed by the little carpenters is a source of wonder to the uninitiated. An interested auditor could get much valuable mechanical information from hearing the arguments over a disputed point.

To one who has been trained in the old "school of repression" the new "school of expression" is a marvel and a delight.

THE ROSE ON THE WALL

A rose in a garden climbed to the top of the stone wall and looked over. For years, weary workers had been fling past that wall, knowing nothing of the beauty on the other side. Now a beautiful-flower-face smiled down at them, and they smiled back. The owner of the garden watching from his window wondered. He saw little children clap their hands with joy at sight of the rose, and a light came into the eyes of tired mothers. He saw hard faces soften, and heard strong voices grow gentle, all because a rose would not stay hidden.

"The rose is in the right of it, and I am wrong," said the owner of the garden. And the next season the stone wall came down.

KEEP HOPING

"If some day you're cross and blue, Keep hoping. If your friend should prove untrue,

Keep hoping. If your neighbors bother you, If you need a hat or two, If you don't know what to do,

Keep hoping." The value of this excellent advice lies in the fact that when hope is lost all is usually lost. Nothing is more sustaining than hope. The expression "I hope so" is probably uttered as much as any other three words in the world. People say that they are "hoping for the best," or that they have not given up hoping that this or that will happen. Brave people are always hopeful, and it is only the weak person who stops hoping. "Hope, like the glimmering taper's light,

Adorns and cheers the way; And still, as darker grows the night, Emits a brighter ray."

There is strength in hope as there is weakness in despair. "Never give up" is an admonition based on hope and courage, and there is a beautiful spirit of hope and trust in Joaquin Miller's lines, "Under the storm and the cloud today,

And today the hard peril and pain— Tomorrow the stone shall be rolled away,

For the sunshine shall follow the rain. Merciful Father, I will not complain,

I know that the sunshine will follow the rain."

A girl who had failed in an examination she had taken said despairingly to her mother:

"Well, I'll try once more and if I do not pass this time I will give up for good and all."

"Don't try again in that spirit," said her mother. "If you do I fear you will fail to pass again. You cannot do your best in that spirit. It will give you far more strength to take the examination hoping for the best and determined to try again if you fail."

Doing anything with the determination to give up if one does not succeed is one of the best ways in the world to invite failure. To keep on hoping through both failure and success is to grow in all one's powers of achievement.

NEW RAILROAD RATES EFFECTIVE SOON

Passenger Fares, Freight Charges and All Carrier Fees to be Increased

According to a program outlined by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, the new passenger fare schedule will become effective August 20 and the advanced freight rates August 25.

Simultaneously with the effectiveness of passenger fares the increased charges for Pullman travel and the new rates on excess baggage and milk will be put in force.

Railroad rate experts have begun the preparation of blanket rate schedules increasing the transportation costs on a percentage basis. Until this work is done, local railroad officials will compute the new rates and charges for their respective territories on the basis of the existing rates plus the percentage increase authorized by the commission.

By putting the increased rates into effect prior to September 1, the drain on the treasury under the guarantee provisions of the transportation act will likely be ended before expiration of the government's guarantee of earnings to the roads. Official estimated today that by September 1 the guarantee provisions would have cost the government approximately $650,000,000 for the six months since the passage of the present railroad law.

The government has been obliged to continue the $75,000,000 monthly rental payment which was in effect during federal control as well as to meet deficits, not covered by the rental amount, sustained by the individual carriers. Included in the charges which will fall on the treasury in these deficits is that portion of the $600,000,000 wage award covering labor costs from May 1 to September 1, when the guarantee expires. This was officially estimated at $206,000,000. Thus the American people will pay one-third of the increased wages for railroad employees this year in taxes.

With the amount guaranteed the carriers this year and the claims of the lines for compensation under their contracts with the railroad administration, the roads will have cost the government approximately a billion and a half dollars since the President took over the properties, December 28, 1917.

Operation of the roads after September 1 under the new rates will yield, according to accountants and tariff experts of the carriers, an annual return of about $1,580,000,000.

The need for increases in interstate rates was set forth in a report forwarded to various state railway and public utility commissions by the three state commissioners who sat with the Interstate Commerce Commission during its hearings and consideration of the rate case.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION SEPT. 11

The Republican State Convention will be held at Dover, Tuesday, September 11, according to an announcement made by Charles Warner, chairman of the Republican State Committee, following his return from a tour of the towns in lower Delaware. In addition, the party will choose nominees for representative in Congress, governor, lieutenant governor, attorney-general, State treasurer and State auditor.

One hundred and sixty delegates will comprise the convention distributed as follows: Wilmington, 40 delegates; rural New Castle, 38; Kent, 40; Sussex, 42.

THE PHILO-

SOPHIC FARMER

God's earth is to me a part of life. I love to dig. By digging I learn to think; I unearth strange sleeping silences; powers of thought fresh from the soil come forth to see God's light and sky. Thinkers, like creatures, prone to rest all day—are made to move when I dig.

I like to sow. By sowing, I learn to trust; God's promises can never be forgotten when with Him I make things grow. He plants His word as I sow the seed; out of my life He brings forth fruit; wear through my will. He sendeth flowers and sunshine, which makes me believe and pray and trust and serve.

I like to reap. By reaping I bring joy; I gather God's promises to my hand and my heart goes out to him for his goodness and mercy to all mankind. He makes His Word full in this season; golden grain and bitened staple tell of His wealth and purity. I like to live because it hath been given to dig and sow and reap.

Digging, sowing and reaping, serving my fellow man from day to day; then at the close to know that friendly earth is receiving me back and that upon my resting place God's sun and rain shall ever fall—this is, indeed, to make of that silence a sweet communion with all I have known and loved.—Thoughts of a Farmer.

CONTINENTAL FIBRE CO. OPENS STORE ON UNIQUE PLAN

Will Sell to Public In Order to Lower Costs to Employees

The opening of the Continental Fibre Co. store last Wednesday marked the inauguration of an enterprise that is unique in this section of the country. Other industrial concerns have opened stores for the convenience of their employees but none, so far as can be learned are catering to the general public as well.

The original intention was to conduct this as a strictly company store but in order to make it even better for the employees, they decided to sell to the public, thus enabling them to buy in larger quantities and to sell at better prices.

As stated in their advertisement last week, the selling price to the public is based on the cost plus a reasonable charge for handling. The employees of the Company are allowed a discount of 10%. At the present time only groceries, overalls, and shirts are sold, but later, it is understood, shoes and other clothing lines will be added.

Charles J. Burnley is manager of this store, which is located in an ideal spot—that formerly occupied by the five and ten cent store in the Opera House building. Repainting and rearrangement has transformed both exterior and interior. The place is light and roomy, with plenty of space for further expansion. A delivery truck has been secured and everything is in good shape for business. The first week's business was good, the quality of the goods is excellent, no seconds and no damaged merchandise finding a place in the stock and the business ability of the Continental Fibre Co. is sufficient assurance that this venture will be a success.

WILL PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION TO REUNION OF LEGISLATORS

The committee to arrange for the reunion of the Delaware Legislature at Oak Orchard on Saturday, August 14, desires to make the following announcement:

A gasoline launch has been chartered to meet the members at Millsboro, Delaware, on the arrival of the train that leaves Wilmington at 8.19 a. m. Dinner will be served at Oak Orchard and the trip will be continued by boat to Rehoboth Beach, arriving at the Hotel Belhaven about 7.00 p. m., where reservations have been made for the entire party to spend the night. The gasoline launch will make the return trip to Millsboro on Sunday to connect with the train going north, leaving Millsboro at 8.14 p. m., and arriving at Wilmington at 6.51 p. m.

The committee is enthusiastic about the prospect of a good time for all, and desires all to be present.

ANOTHER CURIOSITY IN THE VEGETABLE LINE

A rhubarb plant grown at the Red Men's Fraternal Home is exciting considerable curiosity. It has 56 stalks which would make 7 full bunches. The diameter of the huge plant is 6 feet 6 inches. Mr. George Russell, who has charge of the farm, states that from the strawberry patch which occupies less than one-fourth acre, he cleared $150 this year.

DRAMATIC ARREST MAY PUT AN END TO ROBBERIES

(Continued from Page 1.) ped. He asked Miss Hall to send the suspect to his office. On the ground that the sugar had not been ordered and that he did not know of the deal in time to make payment, he asked the man to return at 5 o'clock.

With much impatience this was agreed to and the stage was set for the arrest. Mr. Wilkinson had recognized the man as one whose suspicious actions on Saturday evening were the cause of much uneasiness on South College Avenue, where he was evidently getting the lay of the land for a robbery to be pulled off later.

A message was sent to Philadelphia for Captain Huhn of the railroad detective force, who arrived about three o'clock. He immediately had two warrants sworn out charging larceny and receiving stolen goods after he with Mr. Gallaher had inspected the sugar in the College storeroom and had recognized it by marks on the cartons as sugar stolen from the stations mentioned above.

The detectives with Mr. Gallaher were stationed in the president's office, which is directly across the hall from that of the business administrator, and an agreement was made whereby upon a given signal they should appear and make the arrest.

Luce was prompt in keeping the engagement and appeared at five o'clock. Mr. Wilkinson asked him to make out a bill to which he signed his name, whereupon Mr. Wilkinson gave the signal, a cough, and proceeded to write out a check. The detectives appeared then and made the arrest.

Luce attempted to resist but changed his mind, and went along to the college entrance where Maryland officers awaited him. When he saw the Maryland license on the car, he resisted and refused to be taken to Maryland without requisition. He was therefore taken to the lockup and given a preliminary trial before Squire L. W. Lovett. Here he was held on $1500 bail to await requisition.

Investigation following the arrest disclosed that Luce with his wife and a small child have been boarding in Newark for several weeks, and that he had rented a garage of E. C. Wilson. In this garage was a Buick car, practically new, bearing Delaware license No. 285, which was found to belong to George Leak, a number of high priced shoes, sugar, automobile accessories and other things which still bore the labels of Maryland merchants to whom they were consigned. In the car were found a Pennsylvania and a Maryland license which enabled the detectives to discover that it belonged to A. Warren Sentman, of Philadelphia, and was stolen from Rawson's garage at Northeast, Md., while Sentman was visiting his home there a short time ago. Mr. Leak's license was evidently stolen on Saturday night when some gasoline, oil, and accessories were taken. The car had not been used for several days and the license tag had not been missed.

Captain Kuhn of the railroad detective force recognized Luce as a detective who formerly worked with him and was discharged a short time ago.

The fact that the stations robbed had not been broken into had led the authorities to believe that the culprits were railroad men provided with keys.

Luce had told several persons in Newark that he was working for a private detective agency in Wilmington.

A bold stroke in connection with the sale of the sugar was disclosed after the arrest had been made, when Frank Moore reported that Luce had borrowed a push cart belonging to the College to convey the sugar. This cart has peculiar tires, which enabled Mr. Wilkinson and others to find the source of supply.

MANY DELAWAREANS WITNESS PAGEANT

Recitation Mall, the College itself and the spacious steps furnished an ideal stage for the action of the various episodes which depicted graphically, "The Freedom of the Seas," "The Freedom of the Land," "Freedom to Worship God," and "The Freedom of Education."

The first episode in fanciful detail outlined the subjugation of the Norsemen by the call of the sea and of the sun, represented by young ladies of the Summer School in costume and gesture characteristic of the ideal conceived. The sun maidens, comprising the young ladies with sun-colored and golden hair, elicited gasps of delight from the audience when they appeared in their golden costumes with hair flying, and executed a beautiful dance. The sea maidens in green made a beautiful picture in the scarf dance, and the Norsemen in the brilliant colors and unique dress of that period gave a realistic portrayal of the coming to America of these sturdy and daring pioneers who blazed the trail for Freedom. The characters in this scene were taken by the men of the Rehabilitation Unit here, who entered enthusiastically into the spirit of the occasion—sang their songs, conducted an exploration tour, engaged in feasting and merrymaking, fought with the Indians, and mourned over their leader lost in the battle.

The Indian scouts who came to choose the site for their village performed their work so thoroughly that the youngsters in the audience were not convinced for some time that they were not real, but insisted on staying pretty close to Mother or ad during the whole scene.

Minnehaha Tribe of Red Men, in full regalia with much red paint and many feathers, held themselves in commendable restraint while the squaws erected the tents, a number of them showing a civilized tendency to help their women folk and to shoulder the burden of the work. The lighting of the camp fires, the dancing of the squaws, and the raising of Massasoit to the rank of Chief made a very interesting ceremony in which Thomas A. Mullin in the role of prophet, dressed in white with "heavenly" feathers, attracted much attention. This scene was under the direction of C. A. Short.

The coming of the Pilgrims in the episode depicting "The Freedom to Worship God," made an impressive picture that imposed a reverent hush upon the audience, which prevailed throughout the entire scene portraying this vital period of American history. An with the affair was the fact that the character of Priscilla, the Puritan maiden, immortalized by Longfellow in "The Courtship of Miles Standish" was taken by Sara Casho Brown of Newark, a lineal descendant of John Alden and Priscilla.

The strictly local episode, "The Freedom of Education," showed scenes from the early days of Delaware College, the period of its enforced closing, its re-opening, and growth up to the present time. This was unfolded in panoramic detail before Education, represented by Miss Susan Faris, while "Delaware" (Miss Grace Weeks), dressed as Miss Ethel Pennewill Brown's famous character, "Delaware Awake," slept on. She finally became Delaware Awake through the efforts of the teacher (Miss Mary E. Rich), and the child, Margaret Wilkinson, daughter of W. A. Wilkinson, director of the Summer School.

Following this episode, a procession was formed and the pageanters singing "Lead On, O Delaware!" a stirring march song written by Miss Alice Roop, of Wilmington, a student at the Summer School, marched around the campus. The Continental and Minnehaha bands played patriotic selections for the latter part of the procession, and furnished music for the pageant.

Miss Dora Wilcox directed the musical numbers for the pageant, Miss Florence Hubbard, the costumes and various members of the Summer School had charge of the different episodes.

The following persons took part in the various episodes of the pageant:

CLEVER DETECTIVE WORK SOLVES FARM ROBBERIES MYSTERY

Louis Klee With Tire Expert Tracks Thieves to Maryland

An arrest which was the result of clever detective work was brought about by Louis Klee, owner of Hillview Farm, south of Newark, whose place has been raided several times recently, the last time on Sunday week.

Mr. Klee, who is manager of the White Automobile Co., Wilmington, on Monday brought from Wilmington an expert on tires. Automobile tracks had been found leading to and from the barn where the robbery had occurred Monday morning. The expert was able to tell exactly what kind of tires were on the front and rear wheels of the car that had been there. The tracks led down the road, and Mr. Klee went to Elkton and called on Sheriff Seth, and together they figured out that the description of the tires tallied with those of Arthur Pratt's car. Later they went over to the Pratt farm, near Elk Mills, and saw the car there with tires answering the description. Pratt was not at home but he later arrived and was placed under arrest. Alvin and Ellis Downham were arrested and held under bail for action of the Delaware authorities.

In lieu of bail the officials accepted Pratt's Studebaker automobile as collateral. The sheriff upon making an examination of the car after its arrival at Elkton, discovered that the batteries thereon were quite new, and that they were not intended for that make of car. When Pratt was questioned about the batteries, he claimed that he bought them for $10 from the 13-year old boy who was with him when they were stolen.

It is alleged that Pratt visited the Scott farm, located in Fourth district of Cecil county, about midnight two weeks ago and stole the batteries, tires and a lot of tools from a Chevrolet car owned by Miss Isabelle Scott.

These arrests will in all probability put an end to the depredations which have been committed in this locality for the past few months.

crowded into the "Y" building, where dancing was in progress and where Victor Lyons relieved the tension of the waiting for the non-dancers by singing several songs.

Because an opportunity was not given to award the prizes on Saturday evening, the affair was held over until Monday, when it was wound up in good shape.

The Oakland automobile, coveted by the hundreds who visited the grounds, was awarded to Wayne Brewer, of Lewes, a college student who has been attending the carnival all of the week.

"WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?"

Character of Social Service Has Changed in Recent Years from Curative to Preventive Work

In the past Social Work has been curative work—patching up, healing, and rebuilding the lives damaged or handicapped by misfortune or ignorance. What is now called Social Work was at one time left to the churches, or rather, the churches alone were organized to undertake the task of caring for the poor and needy. It was said that the person who was distressed was the only one to blame for his misfortune.

Today the religious organizations are not alone in the work of healing and rebuilding. Women's clubs, private lay organizations, labor unions, chambers of commerce, states, and governments are giving thought, time, and money to the problem. Such organizations and agencies have brought in the scientific approach to the problem and the causes of misfortunes as well as the results are attacked. We shall always need the sympathies which religion stimulates, for we would be in a sorry plight should we not be able to answer the question "Who is my neighbor?" But today the emphasis is being put on the work of prevention.

It is no longer enough to keep the doors of the charitable and correctional institutions open ready to receive the insane, the man convicted of crime, the helpless blind, the feeble-minded, the dependent child, or those people who are in need because of some other misfortune. We must do preventative work and reduce the number of defectives, dependents, and delinquents by treatment in the early stages of misfortune and by removing the causes.

and lending his aid. Young Brewer in common with hundreds of others had expressed great admiration for the car and in a spirit of fun had put himself in readiness to drive it home. To his amazement the machine was awarded to him. It is understood that Young Brewer will sell the machine and apply the funds to pay his college expenses.

The much desired kitchen cabinet went to Paul Arbuckle; the firemen's cake to Henry Gregg, the ukelele to Leroy Crompton. The rifle went to Mr. Maxwell of McClellandville.

The winners of the prizes at the fancy table were as follows:

Margaret Doyle, Newark, doll; Mrs. Frank Jester, Newark, rag rug; Mrs. Mattie Dobson, Newark, rag rug; Mrs. Wilmer Renshaw, Newark, pillow top; Harry Coyle, Newark, lunch box; Violette Fader, Newark, library scarf; A. M. Burris, Bear, pillow; Henry Warrington, Elkton, Md., perfume set.

The fire companies from the neighboring towns gave their support and aid. The Singery Company from Elkton, the companies from Chesapeake City, and from Smyrna sent delegations during the week. The Chesapeake Company brought their band on Thursday evening, the Cecilton Band played with the Continental Band that evening, thus providing plenty of music.

The Oxford Company had planned to come on Saturday evening but were prevented by the rain.

The expenses this year will naturally be greater than last, the bill for candy alone totaling $1400 and the vaudeville act costing considerably more than in previous years. The net profits, however, will be considerably above those of last year.

The crowds were very orderly and the increased traffic well handled. A traffic officer was stationed at the corner of Delaware Avenue and Elkton road to divert a part of it via Delaware Avenue. Martin McAllister handled the Main and Academy Street corner without a mishap.

The committees have turned over their accounts in good shape and the firemen will know the amount of the net receipts in a few days.

"AND NOW WE MUST PAY THE FIDDLER"

Milford Chronicle Discusses the Tax Question in Recent Issue

As far back as history records, people have complained of taxes. Like the weather, the high cost of living and the labor problem, the subject of the tax rate furnishes an unending source of complaint. The Milford Chronicle in a recent issue discusses the subject philosophically thus:

"Taxes—Federal—State—County—School and Town—we must all pay them. No matter how much they pinch, they have got to come, and there will be no relief for the next twenty years. It is necessary to pay for the high wages, the high cost of supplies, of clothing and cost of living generally, and these may be summed up in the huge expenditures made during the great war, when everything ran riot, and money was not considered—any old price was paid without a murmur, and now we must pay the fiddler, by taxes. Its somewhat similar to the fellow who once went out on a booze spree over night, and the following morning contemplated in pain and discomfort, the wild foolishness of the night before. The present condition of the country is a condition which has to be met, and no theory other than cold cash in the shape of taxes will pay the bill. We must prepare to liquade, that's all there is to the question in the final analysis, and the fellow who gets down to brass tacks, and figures out how to increase his income and get ahead, is the one who will make a success and not feel that taxes are a burden. We have men of this kind right here in Milford, and they are buying the highest grade of farms, and they sons are putting higher thought and labor saving methods into their farming. The prices paid for farms do not cut much figure, if the man who manages the farming business is a practical business man, who is looking to the future, and not complaining of the past or present; but, meets the situation with workable plans which bring success and the money with which to pay the taxes. To those who are complaining, the only helpful advice is, go to work and work intelligently and with business enterprises—for farming is a business enterprise."

BANKERS TO HOLD MEETING AT SMYRNA TO-MORROW

Will Discuss Improvements to State's Financial System

One of the series of group meetings held at the various towns throughout the State by the Delaware Bankers Association, will take place in the club house at Smyrna tomorrow.

A feature that emphasizes the importance of this meeting is the address to be given by former Governor Miller, chairman of the committee on State Finances. For many years an advocate of the improvement of the State's Financial system, "Governor" Miller's utterances on the subject before the bankers of the State will overshadow all the other topics to be discussed and advocated at the annual meeting of the Bankers' Association at Rehoboth beginning September 2.

William P. White, chairman of the State Survey Commission and Frank W. LaBord, assistant cashier of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia are the other speakers on the program. While there will be a general discussion of many topics of special interest to bankers the problems of State finances and the relationship between the various banks and the Federal Reserve system, which is growing in popularity among Delaware bankers, will hold the center of the stage.

To members of the State Finance Committee and the committee on the Federal Reserve System, the Smyrna meeting will be of paramount importance, the problems to be taken up being directly within their sphere of influence.

The members of the State Finance and Federal Reserve System respectively are: Charles R. Miller, chairman; John H. Danby, Charles B. Evans, John E. Taylor and William du Pont, and Otto Nowland, John Richardson, Jr., William G. Taylor, Ezekiel Cooper and Warren A. Singles.

"POOR MAN'S LAWYER" HAS ITS FIRST WOMAN ATTORNEY

"Legal advice," said Miss Dorothy Frooks, attorney for the Salvation Army, at National Headquarters, New York City, "ought to be given away for the asking. It ought to be dispensed like religion and medicine."

This is the reason why Miss Frooks chooses to cast her legal career with the Salvation Army, to aid that organization in the part of its work in which it serves as "The Poor Man's Lawyer." That is the reason why, armed with a legal degree, dated 1918, an admission to the bar, on which the ink was scarcely dry, 22 years of youth and more than ordinary good looks, she opened her office at Salvation Army Headquarters, 122 West Fourteenth street, New York City.

Miss Frooks has made good. She has untangled many family snarls without resorting to the divorce courts. She has obtained justice for tenement dwellers who have been preyed upon by landlords, installment collectors and loan sharks. She has helped pay off mortgages, settle wills and draw up contracts. She has defended criminal actions in court and protected the rights of men and women who were prevented by iron bars and prison gates from managing their own affairs.

But that's not all. It was found that an additional legal adviser was needed by the Salvation Army to look after its $10,000,000 worth of property— orphan asylums, maternity hospitals, industrial homes, day nurseries, schools—scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land. Miss Frooks was given the work. Again she waded triumphantly through the task.

It is no uncommon thing for the Salvation Army to receive urgent calls from the poor for legal advice and assistance, and when the cases are worthy the Army obtains competent lawyers and sees that justice is obtained. This is one of the incidental developments of the Army's many activities which bring it into intimate contact with the poor, the unfortunate and the misfit of the country over.

Attorneys in many cities make it a practice to give their services free to those recommended by the Salvation Army. Miss Frooks is the first woman lawyer to "hang out her shingle" with the Army.

PROMINENT EDUCATOR DISCUSSES SCHOOL QUESTION

Is Optimistic Over Outlook for Rural Education in State

The final lecture of the series provided for Summer School students by the Service Citizens was given by Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columbia University, on last Friday evening when he discussed "The Efficiency of the Public Schools."

The speaker was introduced by A. R. Spaid, Commissioner of Education, who called attention to the fact that Delaware has a large proportion of her teacher population in the Summer Schools of this and adjoining states and to the fact that in proportion to her population the State has a larger percentage enrolled in the National Education Association than any other state in the Union—an eloquent commentary on the professional spirit displayed by the teachers of this commonwealth.

Dr. Strayer who is thoroughly familiar with the situation in this State, expressed the hope that it would be the first in the Union to make adequate provision for rural education and called attention to the opportunities for educational advancement here. He emphasized also the function of the teacher in bringing this improvement to pass—her opportunity to be a friend, and guide to the people of the community in which she teaches.

He outlined the provisions of the Smith-Towner Bill and the plan of the National Education Association to have in the President's Cabinet, a Secretary of Education. The objections to this plan voiced by various critics were taken up in detail and refuted by the distinguished speaker. That of making the system of education autocratic, thus depriving the people of local control was dwelt upon at some length with quotations from the Bill itself to show that there will be no interference with local affairs—the chief advantage as pointed out being additional appropriation from the National government to be matched dollar for dollar by the states.

Commenting on the necessity for additional funds, Dr. Strayer told of an investigation conducted by the Russell Sage Foundation which disclosed the fact that education in 1914-15 cost the United States $500,000,000. In the year 1919-20, it cost $750,000,000, due to increased salaries and efforts to make the school plants adequate. By 1925 it has been estimated that approximately $1,500,000,000 will be needed. This he showed is necessary to give not only every boy and girl but every man and woman in America an opportunity for education and put the schools on a proper basis.

One heavy increase that is required he said is the increasing of teachers' salaries. In the last four or five years the teachers' salaries have been increased 51 per cent but the cost of living has gone up more than 100 per cent, which really puts the teacher in the position of receiving less salary now than they did before the war.

Dr. Strayer contended that the boys and girls in America living in the rural districts have not had a chance as far as education is concerned compared with those living in the cities.

The speaker was optimistic as to the situation in Delaware and said he had every reason to hope that Delaware would work out her system of education satisfactorily.

After the lecture, Dr. Strayer was greeted by many friends among the students and by relatives—members of the Walton family from Iron Hill.

A crowd of troubles passed him by. As he with courage waited; Said he, "Where do you troubles fly
 When you are thus belated?"
 "We go," said they, "to those who hope,
 Who look on life dejected;
 Who weakly say 'Good-bye' to hope,
 We go where we're expected."

SERVICE CHART ISSUED FOR HOG CHOLERA

In its efforts to hold down hog cholera with a reduced force, the United States Department of Agriculture is putting out a new type of poster. In a sense it is a service chart. Its picture says to the farmer, "When your hog looks like this, look out for cholera." The picture of a hog in colors shows the visible symptoms of the disease. There is printed on the poster information as to how to proceed.

Railroads to Relieve Congestion

The Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials are putting forth great efforts to relieve the congestion in freight on their lines. While all the railroads of the county are affected to an extent by the embargo, the conditions in the East are not so good. The people of the West, consequently are suffering because of insufficient cars to move materials.

A twenty-four-hour limit has been instituted by the B. and O. Railroad, in which cars must be unloaded or loaded, as the case may be. "Unloading drives" are being instituted by the company to assist in relieving the situation. Special crews will be available to move all cars placed on sidings. The crews went on duty at 6 o'clock Saturday evening and worked all evening. A similar plan was followed Sunday evening.

Monday morning the cars were moved in the direction of the territory needing them, according to orders from the general superintendent of transportation.

Chamber of Commerce bodies and other civic organizations throughout the United States are supporting the railroad in this campaign.

Mixup in Game Laws Is Claimed

"As the result of an omission in an amendment to the game laws of the State, passed by the Legislature at the special session last spring and signed by the Governor, it is claimed it will be unlawful to shoot rabbits until a change is made in the act. The open season for rabbits was entirely omitted, and therefore it is now illegal to shoot rabbits in Delaware at any time, it is contended. The purpose of the amendment referred to was to make it unlawful for any one to have game fish in his possession during the closed season. The method of amending a law since the new code went into effect several years ago is to cite the entire section of the old law to be amended, but making the changes proposed. Such amendments automatically repeal the former law. This was done in the case cited, but the unfortunate part is that the open season for rabbits in the old law, November 15 to December 31, inclusive, was not included in the amended bill. The open season for all other game was re-enacted in the amended bill. Even in re-enacting the open season for other game, a mistake was made which may cause a serious mix-up with gunners. Instead of using the open season dates of the game law of 1919, those who prepared the amendment used the dates contained in the law of 1915, and a number of these had been changed by the later law passed in 1919. The result of all these errors and mix-ups has put our sportsmen in somewhat of a quandary and before the gunning season opens, the State authorities will be asked to render an opinion. With game plentiful local sportsmen do not want to miss the opportunity for some good sport."—Smyrna Times.

Judging from the good things said in the newspapers about Senator Harding and Governor Cox since the conventions, we have come to the conclusion that it was only by some kind of miraculous intervention that each was not nominated on the first ballot.

Cement Shortage Holds Up Highway Work

On account of the garbage placed on cars, shipments of stone into lower Delaware for the construction of the highways have been stopped, and improved road work within the next two weeks, it is believed will be practically at a standstill. The cars which heretofore have been used in transporting the stone have been ordered to the mines for distribution of coal. The cement shortage is holding up work on some of the contracts where the contractors have a sufficient amount of stone to last for two or three weeks' run, and the prospects for a supply for the next few weeks seem dark.

Washington College to Remain Open

At a recent meeting of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., it was decided to keep that institution open for two years more by raising $29,000 a year in addition to the $35,000 it receives annually from the state.

TRY A LITTLE SMILING

Try a little smiling
 When the world goes wrong;
 Drop the tone of scolding,
 Change to one of song.
 Nothing lasts forever;
 Love and beauty die.
 Make the best of the present
 Ere it passes by.

Clouds must come, and sorrow—
 'Tis the way of life;
 Still, the silver lining
 Shines upon the strife,
 And the sorrow lessens,
 Bringing with it calm.
 Ev'ry pain of living
 Has its own sweet balm!

Try a little smiling.
 Though the effort cost.
 You will find that never
 Is its radiance lost;
 Through the darkness shining
 Ev'ry star has place.
 Try a little smiling.
 Trouble to efface.

MUCH GOOD ACCOMPLISHED IN CHILD WELFARE WORK

Local Achievement an Index of Success Throughout the State

Few communities in the rural section of the State are as fortunate as this in having a well established health center where mothers may bring their children for free examination, may come for advice and help, and may have the assurance that through the medical examinations conducted at the public schools that they will be from time to time advised as to the state of health of their children. This work, carried on in the various communities throughout the state under the auspices of the Reconstruction Commission has been productive of much good. This is thoroughly understood by those who have come into contact with the work accomplished in this community by the tireless, conscientious, faithful efforts of Miss Grace Stephens. Others may not be aware that through the efforts of such nurses throughout the State, there has been a reduction of one-third in the infant death rate in certain territories, and a marked improvement in the health of the children under the care of the child health service of the Reconstruction Commission: that the nurses have given care and attention to 5,935 mothers, babies and children in a year (Wilmington, 3,001, State, 2,934) at homes and child health centers, and have made 37,768 visits to homes, giving and teaching care of mothers, infants and children.

In addition to maintaining 10 child health centers the Commission has examined nearly 4,000 school children, promoted a mouth hygiene campaign and instituted other measures for the improvement of health among mothers, babies, and children.

The report from the examination of the school children as published some time ago showed an alarming number of those in the local schools to have physical defects which affected their general health. A compilation of reports throughout the State showed that 3 out of every 4 are thus affected.

During a street brawl an Irishman got struck in the eye with a stick, and he immediately started proceedings against the offender.

"Come, now," said the judge, "you don't really believe he meant to put your eye out?"

"No, I don't," said the Celt; "but I do believe he tried to put in further in, yer honor!" — Chicago Daily News.

"HEAP MUCH INJUNS" ATTEND HOME COMING

Most Enjoyable Outing in Years Held at Fraternal Home Saturday

Conditions could not have been better than they were in Saturday for the annual "Homecoming" of Delaware Red Men held at their Fraternal Home, here.

Before noon they began coming and grouping themselves at various spots in the grove for the basket luncheon with which all came provided. Before 3 o'clock there had assembled the largest gathering of Red Men, their wives and families, that have attended a "home coming" in years. Truckload after truckload, gaily decorated with American flags, with identification streamers telling what tribe was conveyed, buses, machines and other means of travel brought nearly 500 people intent on having a good time. And they had it—some of them content to sit and watch those who found pleasure in sport; others in eating, listening to the music provided by Minnehaha Band; and still others in wandering around the house and farm, inspecting the crops and then "smoking the pipe of peace" under the shade of the friendly trees.

Every tribe in Wilmington was well represented. Newport, New Castle, Middletown, Hartly, Overlook and other vicinities sent large delegations.

Deputy Great Sachem, James Bedford and his aides, together with Deputy Great Pocohontas May Clark, who were chairmen of the "Homecoming" committees, prepared an excellent program of entertainment. There were a number of athletic events during the afternoon the results of which were as follows:

200-foot dash for girls, 9-12—Blance Leaby, first; Elsie Linthicum, second.

200-foot dash for girls, 12-16—Mabel Cobb, first; Dorothy Welldin, second.

200-foot dash for boys, 9-12—Clarence Martin, first; Clark Ellis, second.

The boys with characteristic ingenuity made a tennis net by stretching strings between trees that were approximately the right distances apart, and had a spirited game. A baseball diamond was laid out with the aid of stones and trees, and teams were soon recruited from the male guests from 50 to 7 years of age, a motley crew who kept batting order and scores in their heads, did their own umpiring and who in lieu of calling out the names of the next batter, whom in most cases they had never seen before, they designated his order by a friendly tap of the bat, or a nickname which suited his physical characteristics. Whatever was the final score, they had a joyous time and were not hampered at all by league rules.

Ball throwing contests by the young ladies of the various tribes was also an interesting feature. Some of these "tossers" gave every evidence of being "right at home" at that sport.

The presentation of a silver ice pitcher to the Fraternal Home by Pocohontas Council No. 1, D. of P., was one of the features of the afternoon. The speech was made in behalf of the Council by Past Great Sachem, William H. Ferguson, and accepted on behalf of the Board of Managers by Great Chief of Records, Edward McIntire.

Another feature which drew rounds of applause from the assembled tribes was a sham battle which was made very realistic by the wearing of Indian costume. The capture and execution of John Smith was also realistically depicted, the Indians in both cases showing familiarity with Indian customs and adeptness at yells and war whoops which struck fear into the hearts of the papooses and the squaws who hadn't witnessed such a performance before. The noise of battle could be heard uptown and those who did not know that the Red Men were on the warpath stopped and listened for the fire bell or for the sign of some dire calamity. There were always those nearby who could assure the timid ones that the hideous noises were made by fully civilized "Injuns."

Among the visitors were many high officials of the order, including in addition to those mentioned above, Great Junior Sagamore, Charles J. Coleman and Deputy Great Sachem, Edward Meads of Wilmington. Many visitors from Maryland and Pennsylvania were also there.

After a basket luncheon on the lawn augmented by ice cream, "Whistle," and other "confectionery" the tribes broke camp in the early evening.

Trade was bad with the timber merchant, and he was sitting in his office musing gloomily over the outlook, when there entered a well-dressed man with a quiet, thoughtful face.

"Do you sell beech wood?" he asked, bluntly.

"I do, sir," replied the merchant, rising with alacrity from his seat, and hoping devoutly for a large order. "We can supply it on the shortest notice, either in the log or the plank."

He began to rummage through the papers on his desk for a price list; but the quiet man stopped him.
