Plan to improve water quality on tap in city

9-month study to cost $150,000

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The Newark City Council approved a nine-month, $150,000 study of the water problems affecting the city's south side.

The council awarded the contract to Duffield Associates, a Newark area engineering firm, on June 28. City officials in April had planned to award it to the Delaware Geologic Survey (DGS), but the council postponed the decision after solicitor Thomas Hughes recommended the contract be put out for bid based on his reading of state codes.

Several council members in April also questioned DGS's 18-month timetable for the study.

Joe Dombrowski, city water department director, said Duffield engineers would cut the length of the study in half because their engineering study would eliminate certain aquifer data dealing with the quantity of sand, gravel and clay and the water speed.

"All that is nice to know but that is not necessary for this study," Dombrowski said.

He said the Duffield study would attempt to locate the iron and manganese sources in city wells on Del. 72 across from the Castle Mall.

City officials attribute the discoloration residents have complained of over the last two decades to the presence of the two metals.

The study was recommended by the water system advisory committee, which was formed in 1990 at the urging of Mayor Ronald Gardner. The committee concluded the study take place before the construction of a new water treatment plant.

Dombrowski said the Duffield study should be completed by next February or March, and that city officials could expect a presentation of the findings as early as November.

Assuming the study recommends a new water treatment plant for south Newark, construction would begin in 1995 with the facility being completed sometime in 1996, he said.

Antique road demons roll into town

By NANCY TURNER

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

If you love antique cars, there is only one place that you should be on Friday, July 9.

It's the Newark stop-over of the Interstate Batteries Great American Race at MBNA America's Westgate facility, Route 273 and Harmony Road near Christiana Hospital.

And it's first time in the 11 year history of the race that drivers and their cars will have stopped in Newark.

More than 80 vintage automobiles from four different continents, built between 1910 and 1941, will pass through Delaware on July 9 and 10 on the final leg of their 4,250-mile, 14-day trans-national race. The race, which began in Huntington Beach, Calif., transverse 16 states and incorporates 50 stops on the way to the finish line in Norfolk, Va., on July 10.

The Great Race is the ultimate old car adventure in rally style racing. It is a controlled speed journey of precision driving and endurance where competitors try to match exactly as many as 200 daily detailed and timed computer-generated driving instructions, using "seat of the pants" navigation. Only two watches, a car speedometer, pencil and paper are allowed for calculations. Secret daily checkpoints clock each team's success. Each second off schedule is a penalty point. At day's end, the lowest score wins.

Along the way, the Great Racers will burn a total of about 37,000 gallons of gasoline, but it's a good trade for the winners who will take home a piece of the $250,000 cash and prize purse which will be shared among several divisions.

MBNA America celebrates its second year as a major sponsor of the race. Incidentally, MBNA will also have four antique cars in the competition, two of which are 1941 Cadillac soft tops driven by MBNA employees Dave Elgena and John Keating.

"We are all very excited about the race," said Peter Osborne, MBNA public information officer. "This is really a family event. We want everybody to come out and welcome the racers to Newark."

"One of the nice things about the stop-over in Newark is that it will give people a chance to talk to the drivers and really get a close look at the cars," said Osborne. "It's not like some car shows where everything is roped off and you can't get within 10 feet of the cars. You can touch these cars."

The oldest car in the Great Race is a 1905 Mitchell. It was the first car in the California gold fields in 1905, and was in storage for 84 years before the current owner, Alan Travis of Phoenix, Ariz., purchased it for $2,000.

But of course, all of the cars are old, and they do have their share of troubles over the tough transnational terrain.

An oil leak sidelined Dennis Holland's 1909 Buick Desert Racer before the start of the Great Race of 1984. Determined to finish, Holland carried and used 83 quarts of oil between Los Angeles and New York City. Navigator Wayne Stanfield said, "a greased pig couldn't hold onto us."

In the same year, the late Eddie Schuler from Morrison, Ill., battled a cracked head in his 1924 Chrysler Phaeton between Flagstaff, Ariz. and Gallup, N.M. Schuler managed to continue by mounting a five-gallon

Vendor on council's agenda

Ordinance would allow Thomson to park in front of meters

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

A Newark city council member wants to permit food vendor Herbert Thomson to park his truck in front of city parking meters, which is currently illegal under city codes.

The problem is convincing the rest of the council.

Councilman Tony Felicia will reintroduce an ordinance Monday that his council voted down four to three in June. The one change in the proposed ordinance reduces the number of meters Thomson can park at from four to two.

Under Felicia's proposal, Thomson would still have to pay the $750 fee to park the truck, which is equipped with a grill for cooking hamburgers and hotdogs.

Over 1,000 people signed a petition last spring after Thomson's vendor license was not renewed. City Secretary Susan Lamblack said the decision was based on Thomson admitting he parked his truck at meters, and would continue to do so.

The petition proves that Thomson serves a need in the community, said Felicia. Although the city loses a parking space, it gains revenue.

Felicia said city officials would still have control over the merchandise and the number of vendors, and suggested the council at least give the ordinance a six-month trial.

"My gut feeling tells me it's not going to be a problem," said Felicia. He said Thomson's violation of city codes for five years did not cause any problems for residents.

Councilman Hal Godwin, who voted against the ordinance last month, which Lamblack wrote, sees it differently.

"I don't want carpetbaggers on the street selling anything," Godwin said. "I don't want Newark to look like downtown Philly."

Godwin said permitting Thomson to go back to work is against the spirit of the city zoning code because it puts a commercial use on Orchard, Townsend and Winslow roads, which are all residential areas.

"You wouldn't want a gas station on the corner of Orchard and Amstel," he said. "Many of the people who live in that area agree with me."

He said city codes permit Thomson to operate in the same way as an ice cream truck - ice cream vendors are permitted to stop for customers but must keep moving after making a sale.

Godwin also said giving Thomson a special privilege would force the council to be selective. "It's either no vendors or as many vendors who want to come."

Councilman Tom Wampler, who voted with Felicia and councilwoman Irene Zych in favor of Thomson in June, said he would oppose Felicia's modified ordinance on Monday.

The reason for his change of heart?

Residents in Wampler's district told their councilman they didn't want Thomson parking his truck.

Minister follows in his father's footsteps

Following in your father's footsteps can take time.

Billy Rhoades worked for nine years as a clerk at an Acme Food Market after graduating from Christiana High in 1968. In 1977, he began studying to become a minister. His father, William Rhoades, Jr., also served in this capacity. Like father, like son.

After high school, "I was always going to be a major league baseball player until I found out I was 4-foot, 11," said the 43-year-old Newark man.

As a substitute, he has played amateur softball for the past 25 years while coaching basketball and softball at William Penn High. And he answered his true calling.

Assembly of God Church near Lums Pond State Park, a position his father held for 20 years. Rhoades recently took on another challenge - he accepted the position of chaplain at the New Castle County Detention Center.

His inspiration? His father, who performed the same duty there in the mid-1970s. Rhoades used to accompany his dad and recalled playing basketball, pool and ping pong with the inmates.

The detention center, where kids under 18 are sent to await trial, is located in the old Bridge House next to Ferris School. If they are convicted, some of them will end up at Ferris.

The kids "respected my dad. They called him 'The Rev,'" he said, adding that his goal is to provide the kids with whatever guidance they're looking for, spiritual or not.

Like father, like son.

He said space at the center has been set aside for both a library and a weight lifting room. In the coming weeks, he wants to begin providing the center with books and barbells. The center also has a new gymnasium that could be used for games against other schools, he said.

"It's going to be a lot of work," Rhoades said but added that he is a challenge he relishes.

A lot of the kids are from poor, black neighborhoods in Wilmington, he said. Some of them have been accused of rape and murder.

der. "It's a dream from years ago to be there," Rhoades said. "Education is important, but applying it is just as important. Kids know if you're real or not."

Rhoades also plans to use his own life as an example. He played basketball for four years during his college years even though he didn't begin his freshman year until he was 27. This made him older than the coach.

Though he sat more than he played, the 5-foot, 6-inch point guard still managed to hit the game-winning shot with the clock showing less than five seconds during a tournament in Pittsfield, Mass.

"I've used that as a motivational thing in basketball and softball to the kids who don't start," he said. "Their moment will come. They'll come a time in their career when they're called upon."

He wants to echo the same message to the kids in the detention center.

Rhoades the pastor also carries a 195 bowling average, and has pitched his church softball team to five straight championships.

However, he has grown tired of the competition of organized softball and believes his playing days may be numbered. "I'm not as quick as I used to be," he said.

In coaching he has found a similar outlet. His players have presented him with plaques and autographed balls as tributes to the impact he has had on them. But becoming an umpire is not out of the question.

"I like people yelling at me."

can of water on his front bumper and siphoning it into the engine to keep the car running. "Turned out there was a lot more water pouring than running," said Schuler. "I talked a garage owner out of a 55 gallon drum and put it on the bumper. Then I had plenty of water." As the crack widened, steam shot up 20 feet and Schuler had his own "Old Faithful." An Albuquerque woman who observed the spouting car proclaimed, "A Stanley Steamer certainly didn't used to make that much steam. Must be water pollution."

Some problems can be environmental, like the one that Al Rosenbaum of Birmingham, Ala., recalls. He spotted a horse in the middle of a country road and swerved to miss it. The horse ran to the same side of the road and pivoted and its head struck Rosenbaum's head. "Glad he didn't turn the other way," said Rosenbaum.

The festivities at MBNA Westgate will kick off at 3 p.m. with a "shine time" car exhibit featuring more than 200 locally-owned antique automobiles. The race cars are scheduled to begin arriving at about 5:30 p.m. and the U.S. Navy Ceremonial band will provide a free concert at 7:30 p.m. Food and concessions will be sold on the grounds by local merchants.

If you go:

Admission is free. Parking will be available at Delaware Park and a free shuttle service will run constantly to carry everyone to and from the MBNA facility.

Council's newest member takes broad view

By ERIC FINE

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

The role government plays in college towns like Newark is unique, said Tom Wampler, the newest member of the Newark City Council.

The 44-year-old chemist inherited his seat from Allen Smith in April. Smith did not file for another term.

"You've got to consider the function of the university in the first place," said Wampler, who holds two degrees from the University of Delaware.

and has lived in the city for nearly three decades. A significant number of people live here for the culture and "wouldn't be here if it weren't for the university."

The University of Delaware serves as the cultural hub not just for the city but for the entire state, Wampler said. "Otherwise (Newark) would be just another medium-sized town."

The kinds of problems council members and other city officials deal with generally are nuisance-related, such as parking, noise violations and disorderly conduct, he said.

Finding solutions for these problems requires everyone to take a "broad view" rather than settling for something simple. "I think it's essential that there be an active, ongoing attempt at communication between the city and university," said Wampler, a former president of the Old Newark Civic Association.

"It's hard to imagine the two as antagonistic," he said. "It's in the details the problems come out," and to minimize these problems city and university officials must work consistently toward keeping one another informed.

And Wampler sees progress, as demonstrated by a recent presentation of plans for the university's new student center by school officials. "I think they made some strides," he said. "I'm encouraged by the improvements more than I've been for a long time."

That said, Wampler described the first few months of his two-year term as an enjoyable experience with few surprises. His original agenda was representing the viewpoint of homeowners living in the city's older neighborhoods.

Until recently, Wampler served as chairman of the city's Town & Gown Committee, which includes city officials, university administrators, homeowners and students, and is intended to further relations between the city and the school. Wampler's wife, Georgia, served on the Christina board of education for 12 years.

Have Wampler's goals changed? No. Has he encountered any resistance by the other council members to his vision of Newark?

"I don't see myself wanting to accomplish anything much different than the others on the council," he said, adding everyone was interested in improving the city's relationship with the university and in keeping Main Street businesses prosperous.

Working with the other council members has not been an "uphill battle," he said. Nor does he see the others using their council seats as political stepping stones to more prestigious political appointments.

"That would have disappointed me," he said.

The council approved the sidewalk improvement program, which is currently underway on Main Street, and the low-interest loans for merchants wanting to improve their facades before Wampler became a council member. These programs are consistent with his

Play it safe and avoid the heat

As the heat wave continues, we urge our readers to take it easy. Heat-related deaths are being reported in both Maryland and Pennsylvania, and as fate will probably have it, more deaths will be reported from other states east of the Mississippi, where the highest temperatures have been logged.

With a little luck, and a little common sense, Delaware residents will not be added to the list.

If you must participate in activities that require a good deal of physical exertion, be sure to drink plenty of water.

Once the thermometer reaches 95 degrees, the situation becomes critical. And we all know what it feels like when high humidity levels are factored in — weather watchers say it can make it feel like the temperature on our skin is well above 110 degrees!

The hot weather we've been experiencing brings to mind a tragic incident that happened two summers ago, when a child locked in her mother's car not far from here died of heat exhaustion because the windows were rolled up. It doesn't take long for the strong rays of the summer sun to turn a car's interior into an oven.

Of course, pets locked in cars fall victim to heat exhaustion too, and it only takes a few minutes before death can result.

While the hot weather continues, be conservative and play it safe. The best place to be is inside an air conditioned building. Stores and movie theatres make ideal locations. Whatever you do, don't over do it.

Christmas Shop continues at Newark Department Store

By SHIRLEY M. TARRANT

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING COLUMNIST

A clarification is in order. In my column last week, I lamented the many changes which have occurred at the Newark Department Store. One of the most significant changes is the closing of the lower level. When the lower level was closed, so went the Christmas Shop, which was located in the Community Room on that level.

However, the store manager recently informed me that Christmas merchandise will continue to be available at the Newark Department Store, only in a different location and on the main floor. Thousands of dollars worth of Christmas items are already lined up, looking toward the holidays.

So the good news is that there will be a Christmas Shop at the Newark Department Store! Just look for that new holiday spirit in a new location.

Dunkley will be missed here

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

Newark won't be quite as much fun to be around next winter as it has been the past five.

Former University of Delaware basketball player Spencer Dunkley was selected by the Indiana Pacers in the second round of the NBA draft last Wednesday night. Dunkley, a native of Wolverhampton, England, has spent the last five years in Newark. The first as a senior at Newark High, the last four at the University of Delaware.

Dunkley was an integral part of the Blue Hen basketball program's meteoric rise to success — two North Atlantic Conference championships and back-to-back trips to the NCAA Basketball Tournament. More than that, though, Dunkley became an integral part of the community.

A party in his honor was held at

Valania

East End Cafe last Thursday night with many friends from the community in attendance.

The 6-foot, 11-inch center frequently took time from his busy schedule to read to students at local elementary schools. During the summers he spoke to many youngsters at camps. He's even taken time out to speak at a prison. And he always did these things much vigor, obviously taking very seriously his status as role model.

Although it's obvious Spencer took basketball very seriously, he never ceased to have fun while playing.

"I was just having fun out there," he often would say following a big contest. "It's just a game."

Dunkley drew the ire of Louisville fans when, before the Hens NCAA Tournament game against Louisville, he said he thought he could play with the Cardinals' All-American Clifford Rozier and that the Blue Hens would win the game.

"If we don't win, I'll crawl back to Delaware," he said.

That brought on a lot of trash talking as well as fierce competition during the game.

All Spence could do was smile afterwards.

Are 'urgent' causes really urgent?

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST CONTRIBUTING COLUMNIST

"A population nightmare," "a veritable ecological collapse," "a sickening state of affairs," "shameful facts," "a profound threat," "grave jeopardy," "emergency," "urgent" and "timebomb." These are just a few of the words and phrases contained in the dozens frenetic appeals that have filled our mailbox in recent weeks.

Do you share my belief that appeals for support for widely diverse causes are being presented in terms more desperate than ever before? Perhaps it's because of limited government funding and stagnant economic conditions that organizational wordsmiths are searching for more flamboyant ways to dramatize their causes. But I suspect that the average citizen, bludgeoned by incessant pressure to contribute, is becoming immune to such hyperbole.

There is little doubt that some of the scenarios presented, if accurate, are cause for alarm. The Save Yellowstone Now! campaign of the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund claims that the park "is being systematically plundered and ravaged by callous corporate polluters and exploiters—all with the tacit approval of federal agencies." Geothermal drilling near the park threatens Yellowstone's geysers, the writer says, even the legendary old Faithful.

Zero population Growth, an organization founded in 1968 to confront the global population explosion, warns that "we are speeding on a collision course towards a population nightmare." Failure to curb the rate of world population growth, the group warns, "will magnify the deterioration of Earth's environmental and natural resources and undermine economic and social progress."

Sen. Bob Dole is pleading for support to counter the "dangerous agenda" of President Clinton and the tax-and-spend Democrats, and The Heritage Foundation wants a gift to oppose a Congress described as "a gang of con-artists, buck-passers, prima donnas, and bullies."

Former U.S. Commissioner of

Chance

Social Security Dorcas R. Hardy, representing Americans for Social Security Reform, seeks funds "to avoid a devastating national Social Security crisis," while the Citizens Auxiliary of The Retired Enlisted Association, also concerned about Social Security benefits, wants to help in solving "The Notch discrimination problem."

The murder of a Galsgow woman last week is under investigation by New Castle county Police and is being compared to another murder last fall.

The body of a 31-year-old woman was found Wednesday morning, June 29 by construction workers. Her body had apparently been dumped in a construction site off of U.S. 40 some time during the night.

New Castle County Police spokesman Lt. Stanley J. Wackoski said Tuesday that detectives are investigating the similarities between the death of this woman and the murder of a 23-year-old woman last fall.

An administrative overhaul is needed to combat health care costs

Editor:

At this time of intense focus on the ills of our health care financing system, what concerns me is that so much time is devoted to analysis of areas that have very little real impact on cost, such as doctor's incomes. Having studied the system in some depth over the last four years, my view is that the real meat of the problem lies in excessive administrative costs and cost-shifting of the cost of care to the uninsured, and that only a major transformation of the system will have real impact on cost.

I suggest a conversion of our system of hundreds of insurers with different plans and reimbursement systems to a single system, with carve-outs for businesses whose plans are working.

According to a recent study by Harvard University and others, the savings (by state) in administrative costs alone by converting to a single-payer system, would cover all the uninsured. For instance, in Delaware we have about 100,000 uninsured residents (population 675,000), and would save about $300 million.

But many large businesses, such as DuPont here in Delaware, have designed and continued to improve on health care systems for their employees, using insurers as administrators only. Likewise, groups of employers, in Cleveland for instance, have efficient plans. These plans should not be disturbed by a national or state reform plan, since they are already working, whereas the rest of the system is not. These plans probably make up one fourth of the system.

I don't believe a single national system will work in all states, any more than one business' plan in Seattle would necessarily work for a business in Delaware. A better approach for the federal government is to mandate reform by the states under guidelines, with a deadline after which a national model takes effect, or federal funding is lost.

Funding for the system should come from general tax revenues, since overall improvement of health and reduction of costs of health care will help everyone.

Sincerely,

James A. Robb,
Newark

Newark's loss is Indiana's gain

► VALANIA, from 4A

"It was fun out there," he said once again. "I liked the competition. It's just basketball and I was having fun."

Spencer's personality is as good, if not better, than his basketball game.

Win or lose, Dunkley was always there after the game standing up for what happened on the court. On most occasions he was quite jovial — win or lose.

Remember, he was having fun, just playing a game.

A loss certainly wasn't the life or death matter that the fans, press, coach or teammates made it to be.

He always made time for anyone who wanted to talk to him. He never turns down autograph requests — and he gets lots of them.

It's a unique trait to be so incredibly competitive on the court, and so easy-going off it.

Spence has it, and if he can keep improving his basketball talent to the point where he is a good NBA player, he'll make a lot of money off the court as well as on it.

Everyone that came in contact with Spencer Dunkley is that much better for it.

So Newark's loss is Indiana's gain. There will be many people in this town rooting hard for him to make it in the NBA.

The people of Indianapolis should be rooting for him too. Because he'll bring as much joy to that town as he has to ours.

That is just one of several recommendations of the greater Newark Area Traffic Study, which recently finalized work on short-term solutions to the city's traffic problems.

Another major short-term recommendation calls for the formation of a Transportation Management Association, which would encourage local companies to stagger employee working hours.

Computers Speed Fingerprint ID's

The Delaware Bureau of Investigation has a new edge in criminal investigations.

Known as the Automated Fingerprint Identification System, the new system eliminates the need for state police officers to do manual comparisons of fingerprints lifted from a crime scene.

With the new computer, fingerprints from a crime scene can be entered into the computer and possible matches will be identified.

More than 200,000 are in the computer bank.

Fantastic pleas have lost their punch

U.S. English, Inc. is asking citizens to join its campaign to make English the official language of our nation, and Sarah Brady, chair of Handgun Control, Inc., asks for help in her continuing gallant, if futile, battle against assault weapons and their mindless advocates, the National Rifle Association.

Reeling from these verbal assaults like a boxer who has absorbed too many punches, we eventually must decide what we can afford to do—with the funds we allocate to civic, charitable, cultural and educational organizations. While national and international causes may have merit, I find most of them too grandiose for my pocketbook. I seriously doubt that my modest gift will stem the tide of world population or remove an AK-47 from the hands of a hoodlum.

Our family has decided instead to concentrate on the local scene where we have a better understanding of the causes and an opportunity to see our gifts effectively used. Our list in recent years has included the Aetna Ambulance Service, the Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder Co., Emmaus House, Friends of the Newark Free Library, Hope Dining Room, the Newark Senior Center, The Nature Conservancy, the Police Athletic League, Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research and the Westminster House.

We like to believe that such gifts make our community and our state better for all of us.

POEMS, PUNS and PROVERBS

By James C. McLaren

A prudish old Goose,
'Gainst the foolish and loose,
Decided one day to meander.
She had heard of peep shows,
Showing bottoms and beaus,
And decided she might take a Gander.

Bishop Desmond Tutu
Dislikes ballet-hoo,

While he'd like a euphoria
He can't find in Pretoria,
He's not found to skirt T.V. ratings.

Why did the masochistic farmer ask a neighbor to hurl a fence at him?
—He wanted to be castigated!

Why did the prudish commoner divorce the Duke?
—Because he peered at her in a dynasty way.

Hopeless farmers should always grasp at a straw.

He is contemptible whose self-knowledge lags behind the lessons of history.

Author's Note: Lunacies like these have been inflicted upon my poor wife, children and colleagues for years. They have been greeted by both groans and guffaws—the latter, perhaps, to pacify the punster and offset a further barrage. To its victims, punning can be seen as a disease, since any laughter, however sparse, can be contagious. I hope Post readers will tackle this word-play nonsense with zest, thereby assuring them Eternal joy and a letter from Ed McMahon.

Chapel Street founder pays a visit

Kuscher transformed former church into a talent showcase

By TONJA CASTANEDA

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

One man's vision saw that turning a small church on Chapel Street into a community theater could be a huge success.

That man was Howard Kuscher, former Newark resident from 1961-82, who believed the former Nazarene Church could be made into a playhouse.

In 1969, when The University Drama Group bought the church they changed their name to The Chapel Street Players.

The University Drama Group, formed in 1934 by staff at the University of Delaware, used to rehearse and perform in Mitchell Hall on the university campus where they were founded. But, Kuscher said, in 1961 finding space to rehearse in Mitchell was becoming quite a challenge with all the various groups using the facility.

With Kuscher as the leader, Chapel Street Players set out to find a home of their own and most importantly a way to pay for this home.

Now living in Livingston, Texas where he's involved with the Piney Woods Players, Kuscher was in Newark recently to reminisce with longtime friends at Chapel Street and to see the 28th "funraiser" "Something's Afoot."

Kuscher is credited with coming up with the idea of having "funraisers" to raise money. Different from their regular shows, the fundraiser is the highlight of the year for the Players and costs more to see than shows from their regular season.

"We had $12,000 in our kitty at most when we were looking to move," said Kuscher. "Because of that we started the fundraisers to produce money to purchase the building and continued them to pay off the mortgage."

The first fundraiser was two one-act plays, "The Mall" and "The Public Eye" performed in Anderson's barn on Paper Mill Road. Kuscher said at the barn shows they had to carry everything including lighting, sound equipment, chairs and platforms for their performance to the barn.

Kuscher was honored in 1974 when Newark Mayor Redd proclaimed it Howard Kuscher Day in Newark for his contributions to the cultural life of the community through his service at Chapel Street.

"It gives me tremendous satisfaction," said Kuscher, "to see it (the playhouse) is what I had visualized as a practical, working little theatre building."

They bought the church on Chapel Street for $32,000. The Players paid off that mortgage in the early 80s.

In 1986, they put in sprinklers for $18,000, which the building needed, $20,000 in renovations and their most recent air conditioning project cost another $20,000.

Chapel Street is proud that through all the work and expenses they acquired—only $40,000, remains to be paid on their mortgage.

When they bought the church, part of the duplex of the house next door was part of the deal. Today the Players rent out their part of the house and that money pays their mortgage payment each month.

Friends for over 20 years, President of Chapel Street Players Ernie Sutton, a member since 1953, Howard Kuscher, a member from 1961 to 1982, and Renee O'Leary, a member since 1960, on the set of the recent Funraiser production "Something's Afoot."

After acquiring the church, Kuscher said he would spend two or three days a week working on the building: roofing, wallpapering, carpeting and more. "It was my baby and I could see the future of it," said Kuscher. "I could count on a number of people in Chapel Street who supported me in the project."

He said that the building has gone through at least four transformations since they bought it. He said they put in new ceilings downstairs, added a bathroom, built the platforms for audience seating, built technical needs (lighting) upstairs, and just got new seats last year.

President of Chapel Street Players Ernie Sutton, said the next addition to the playhouse will be a bathroom for the handicapped.

Kuscher said when they bought the Church of the Nazarene a Southern Baptist congregation was using the church. "The Baptists were finally convinced they could no longer share the space with us when one Easter Sunday they held services and they had a set from a play behind the minister," he said.

Kuscher, who acted on Broadway in New York City in "Dr. Beck" and "Dance Night," acted occasionally while with Chapel Street but spent most of his time directing almost 40 productions for the Players.

"I would have to say Howard is my mentor," said Renee O'Leary, who has been in all 28 fundraisers playing roles such as the feet in "Sex Tet" to Miss Tweed in this year's "Something's Afoot," "Teaching me 99 percent of what I know about working on stage."

"We would not have this theatre if it was not for Howard," said Sutton. "He said this building could be made into a theatre when no one thought it could."

Don't let deer ticks and chiggers take a bite out of you!

As the warm weather progresses and people and their pets spend more time outdoors, two pests become of great concern. The several species of ticks and chiggers are taxonomic cousins to spiders, lice, and mites. Nearly all these adult forms have eight legs, which distinguishes them from the six legged insects. Whereas we benefit greatly from the predatory habits of many of the spiders, and some of the mites, others members of the group are pests, some dangerous.

Chiggers of the United States are vegetarians when adults, but the larvae are ravenous toward warm-blooded animals of all kinds. Sometimes called red bugs, a chigger starts life in the spring as it hatches out of an egg its overwintering mother laid. In warmer sections of the country, chigger larvae are produced almost continuously through the year. It takes about fifty days to complete the life cycle from to adult.

A chigger larva is bright orange or red, but only one one-hundred-fiftieth in diameter. It lies in wait in vegetation for a warm-blooded host. After hitching a ride on the victim it scurries about to find a protected site on which to feed. Preferred sites include soft, wrinkled skin, and skin under waistbands and other tight areas of clothing. The chigger finds a hair follicle or other pore in the skin where they attach their mouthparts. Then it injects a digestive enzyme that dissolves the host's tissue and the chigger can suck up the resulting fluid. This feeding process can produce intense, hot itching and welts that can last for a week. Some people are much more sensitive to chiggers than are others. Fortunately, chiggers do not transmit any disease organisms.

It is impossible to look at an area and tell whether it is chigger infested without actually experiencing the pests. Anyone who is planning to be outdoors and who is sensitive to chiggers should wear long pants and shirtsleeve and use any common insect repellent containing DEET. If you should get into chiggers, get into the tub as soon as possible and lather up with lots of soap. The soap will help kill any attached chiggers, and wash away those that are still wandering. After the bath wipe affected areas with rubbing alcohol and apply an anti-inflammatory cream to help reduce the discomfort and swelling.

The latest transmitted disease of concern is Lyme disease. The vector is the deer tick, which is found throughout New Castle County and most of the state. A deer tick inhabits any area with vegetation, even a well-groomed lawn. Small rodents serve as the disease reservoir and ticks pick up the bacteria in the early part of the year when they feed on an infected rodent.

Later in the season, deer ticks move on to larger hosts such as horses, cattle, dogs, and humans. In fall adult ticks prefer deer as the final host to feed on enough blood to nourish egg formation.

Deer ticks are very cold tolerant and will be active during the warmer spells of mild winters such as we have experience this year. People brought these pests into our office for identification all winter. Since deer ticks need several hours to attach to the host, then several more hours to transmit any disease organisms, daily body checks after outdoor activity are a good way to avoid Lyme disease. Like chiggers ticks commonly attach where clothing is tightest, or if they can crawl upward unimpeded, they will attach on the scalp. Other preventive measures include protective clothing treated with permethrin repellent.

Early symptoms of Lyme disease include fatigue, bulls-eye rash, and headache.

Untreated Lyme disease can progress to severe arthritis, and heart and nervous system damage. Dogs can get Lyme disease, and it often goes unnoticed for several years until the dog becomes lame from arthritis. Consult your veteri-

Set your summertime sights on lamb and savor the flavor

There is no reason not to truly enjoy lamb in our time. The contemporary lamb farmer offers us a meat that is light and moist, of delicious flavor and very controllable fat content.

Do not overcook the following dishes. You will soon convert the anti-lamb members of your family.

LEG OF LAMB IN BALSAMIC VINEGAR (serves 4-6)

Balsamic vinegar is a wonderfully aged product from Modena in Italy. It is unlike most wine vinegars in that the flavor is so mild.

You will enjoy this easily prepared dish. The only thing that may get in your way is the fact that it must be marinated for five hours.

- 1 5 to 6 pound leg of lamb.
- 1/4 cup of olive oil
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
- 1/2 teaspoon dried rosemary, whole, or twice that much if fresh.
- 2 garlic cloves

Using a sharp-pointed knife or a pot fork, pierce the leg in several places and soak it for five hours in the olive oil mixture with the vinegar.

Place the leg of lamb on a roasting rack and rub it with the salt, pepper, rosemary and garlic.

Place a meat thermometer in the thickest part of the leg, be sure you do not touch the bone.

Bake at 325 degrees until the thermometer reaches 140 degrees. This should take about 1 1/4 to 1 3/4 hours. Baste with the marinade several times during the roasting.

Remove from the oven and let sit 1/2 hour before carving. The lamb will continue to cook a bit.

Slice at the table or buffet.

LAMB SHASHLIK WITH WINE AND JUNIPER (serves 5-6)

I hope you do not have any trouble finding dried juniper berries. They impart a wonderful flavor to foods. Most gourmet shops will have them for you.

Juniper is a major flavoring in good English gin. Find the berries. The dish is worth it. The rest is easy.

Please note that the lamb must be marinated for at least 12 hours.

- 2 pounds boneless leg of lam, trimmed of most of the fat, cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes.

MARINADE

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- Juice of 1 fresh lemon
- 1 medium yellow onion, peeled and chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, freshly ground
- 1 tablespoon juniper berries, crushed
- 2 garlic cloves, crushed
- 1/2 cup dry red wine

SEASONING

- 6 to 8 slices bacon
- Salt

Have your butcher debone the lamb and trim the fat. You cut it into cubes and mix the marinade.

Crush the juniper berries in a mortar and pestle or in a small electric coffee grinder.

Soak the meat in the marinade for at least 12 hours, refrigerated.

Then place the meat on skewers, alternating it with pieces of bacon. Salt and pepper under a hot broiler or on a charcoal grill.

Cook for about 15 minutes total time, turning often, or until the meat is done to your taste.

Take care not to overcook the lamb. It should be bit pink inside.

LAMB CURRY (serves 6-8)

One of the wonderful things about a good curry is that you can make it the day ahead and you can serve it from the buffet.

- 3 pounds boneless lamb, cut in 1-inch cubes
- Olive oil for sauteing
- 3 yellow onions, peeled and sliced
- 4 garlic cloves, crushed
- 2 cups chicken soup stock, fresh or canned
- Curry powder to taste (recipe below) (I use 3 tablespoons)
- 1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch mixed with 2 tablespoons water

In a hot frying pan quickly brown the lamb in a bit of olive oil. Do this in three small batches so the lamb is quickly seared.

Remove the meat and place in a 2-quart saucepan with lid. Saute the onions along with the garlic in a bit of oil until limp. Add to the lamb.

Cover the lamb with the stock and add the curry powder, ginger, salt and pepper. Simmer, covered, until all is tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Thicken with the cornstarch and water mixture.

Serve with rice, salad, fresh fruit and bread.

CURRY POWDER

This is largely a matter of personal taste. Try this one and vary whatever you wish.

- 1/2 teaspoon cardamom
- 1 tablespoon chopped cinnamon stick
- 1/2 tablespoon whole cloves
- 1/4 tablespoon whole cumin

- 1/4 tablespoon grated nutmeg
- 1 tablespoon turmeric
- 1/2 tablespoon whole coriander
- Black peppercorns to taste
- Dried red-pepper flakes to taste
- 1 bay leaf

Grind all this together in an electric coffee grinder and keep in a tightly closed jar.

LAMB WITH WINE AND CUMIN SAUCE (serves 4 to 6, fewer if you want each to have two chops)

This is as close as I can come to the delicious dish I enjoyed in a very tiny restaurant. The chef is French by nature and his wife Korean by descent.

- 6 thick lamb chops
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 1/2 cup dry red wine
- 1/2 cup beef stock, fresh or canned (do not use bouillon cubes)
- 1/4 cup cream or half-and-half
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cumin, or more to taste
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
- Parsley, chopped, for garnish.

Heat a large frying pan and add the olive oil. Sear the chops well on both sides, using rather high heat. Do not overcook them; they should be a bit pink on the inside. Depending on the thickness of the chops, you should cook them about 4-5 minutes on each side.

Remove them to a warm place and keep them just barely warm.

Drain the fat from the pan. Add the garlic to the pan and stir it around for just a moment.

Deglaze the pan with the red wine. Be sure to scrape up all the brown goodness that has formed in the pan. Use a wooden spoon for this.

Add the beef stock and the cream.

Continue to boil lightly until the sauce is reduced by half. Add the cumin, black pepper, and taste for salt.

Serve the sauce over the chops with a chopped parsley garnish on top.

'The Singing Child' promises to delight children of all ages

Just a month ago I had a wonderful and rare, experience. It was to attend the world premiere of a delightful new opera by Gian Carlo Menotti. I shared a brief review with you here in the Newark Post at the time, but wanted to wait a while to fully absorb what I had experienced before I shared anymore with you. A new opera is always exciting, but when it is by Gian Carlo, the excitement is even more intense.

THE ARTS

By PHIL TOMAN

been doing them. I plan to make this year no exception.

I don't want to "pull a Milton Cross" and recount all of the stories, but I would list for you the names of the works as a reminder of what has gone before this latest opera. Gian Carlo has written, in addition to the one I have already mentioned, Chip and His Dog, A Bride from Pluto, The Boy Who Grew too Fast, Martin's Lie and The Trial of the Gypsies. I haven't seen all of them. That's because the composer is a perfectionist and always wants to make "one more refinement" before the work is published.

To be sure, children are a tough audience. As Gian Carlo said in an interview with John Adroin, "Children are quickly amused and quickly bored. They forgive no sin less readily, fear no ghost more than boredom." The next logical question would seem to be then why compose for such a tough audience. As you might imagine, the composer had an answer.

The first part of Gian Carlo's response was very erudite, "First, because it is the only really candid audience left. (It is) an audience which comes to the theater without aesthetic preconceptions, which cares little for who the composer is and asks him no questions." But, liked the second part of his answer best, "Second, because I am an overgrown child myself and have always felt at home with children."

The latest opera, which bowed at the 17th annual Spoleto USA festival in Charleston, South Carolina, centers about a young boy, Jeremy, sung and acted beautifully by William Cole. He lives in a comfortable home with lots of toys but with parents who are very wound up in their own social whirl with little time to spend on or with Jeremy. He begs for their attention and some demonstration of personal love. The only thing that is forthcoming is a baby sitter, Miss Plotts, played with grand comedic style by Martha Fenty, who calls the boy "My pet." Understandably, Jeremy hates the name and Miss Plotts.

One night before he gets into bed he prays for a friend, one with whom he can share things and ideas. After a thunder storm the singing child, well sung by Harold Haughton, in the title role of Gian Carlo Menotti's new opera, The Singing Child, shares a unique friendship with the opera's hero, Jeremy, played by William Cole, at the world premiere of the opera in Charleston, S.C.

Harold Haughton, appears at the window. He is only visible to Jeremy and only sings. He speaks not one word. Jeremy soon gets the idea and is able to communicate and the two enjoy themselves. In one scene, when they tie up the babysitter, Miss Plotts has no fun but the friends and the audience do!

The friendship goes on for about a month and the parents, while not giving up their round of parties, get "professional" help for the boy in the form of an idiot doctor who adds to the laughter of all, but was a bit frightening to me when I thought of all the quacks in the real world who prey on unsuspecting parents and children.

All ends well when the mother and father realize the error of their ways and they are all united in love with promises to find more time for Jeremy. With no more need of him, the singing child exits.

As generous and giving a man as Gian Carlo Menotti is, he is very stingy with his musical notes. There is not one superfluous note in the score. There are no romantic embellishments with which so many other composers surround, and often ruin, their music. The dialog is clear and crisp. The family situation is real. It is life. It is art. What more can we ask of an opera?

I hope you get the chance to see The Singing Child in the very near future. Take any child you love and you will both be the richer for the experience.

Thank you, Gian Carlo, for adding yet another work we can all enjoy and profit from. Composers like you are few and far between.

POST GAME

By MARTY VALANIA
NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

There has been a lot of talk about baseball being a dying sport.

Basketball and football were supposed to be the growing sports and baseball was on its way out. Hoops and football may very well be growing, but baseball is also alive and well.

Baseball and summer are always two things that I have associated with each other. The Fourth of July was always a time to take in a baseball game, play a baseball game or wish I was at a game.

This year was no exception. I had a chance to watch just about all of the Newark Babe Ruth Holiday Baseball Tournament over the weekend and can say that baseball is as vibrant as ever locally.

The temperature soared near the 100 degree mark and while most high school aged kids were at the beach, in the air conditioning playing Nintendo or watching television, the Babe Ruth players (along with the American Legion teams playing in their own tournaments) were out playing ball.

In Newark's Babe Ruth Tournament, the players ranged in age from 16-18 years. It's a good age to judge whether baseball is still appealing or not. These guys are too old to be playing the game because their parents pushed them into it. These guys are out there because they want to be.

Amazingly, all the games played were great games. Five of the seven games in the tournament were decided in the last inning. That's a sign that the players weren't just giving up and going through the motions.

Genuine spontaneous celebration marked some of the victories, even in the first round.

Not all is perfect with the world or youth baseball, but it's still on the right track.

Ump treated hideously

As was noted earlier, not everything is perfect with youth baseball.

Recently, following a local 13-15 year-old game, a player and his father

Newark Gold falls in tourney final

Newark Gold's Dave Magee slides safely into third base in Monday's championship series with Piedmont.

Piedmont's seventh inning rally tops Newark

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

GLASGOW — After five games in three days of oppressive heat, the Newark Gold All-Star team's pitching finally ran out of gas.

Piedmont scored four runs in the seventh inning to pull out a 6-4 win in the championship game of the Fifth Annual Newark Babe Ruth Holiday Baseball Tournament on a scorching Monday afternoon.

"We just ran out of pitching," said Newark Manager Dave Fetterman. "We had to play five games in three days and it just caught up to us."

After losing to Piedmont 4-0 on Sunday, the Gold team topped the Newark Blue All-Stars 12-7 to force a rematch on Monday. The double-elimination format forced the Gold to have to beat the Hockessin area team twice to win the title.

The first game saw Newark bang out 14 hits on its way an easy 11-3 win forcing the "if" game.

The momentum generated in that first game rout looked as if it would carry Newark to victory in the second game. The Gold jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning as Dave Magee scored on Jody Russell's single to left field.

Newark added another run in the second inning as Jeff Russell singled home Chris Weleski.

Starting pitcher Bobby Fad looked strong through the first three innings limiting Piedmont to just one hit.

But Piedmont cut the 2-0 lead in half with a run in the fourth inning. Bill Conway's single scored Coleman Long for

Dunkley drafted by Indiana Pacers

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

It's a dream come true for Spencer Dunkley.

The 6-foot, 11-inch University of Delaware center was picked by the Indiana Pacers in the second round of last Wednesday's NBA draft. Dunkley was the 51st player taken in the two-round selection.

"It's cool," said Dunkley last Thursday of his selection while attending a party in his honor at East End Cafe. "I was getting nervous as the second round went by; I wasn't sure I'd get picked at all."

There had been much speculation where Dunkley would go in the draft. One report had the three-time defending world champion Chicago Bulls taking him with the 25th pick. Another had him going to the Miami Heat with the 35th pick.

Each time the picks came and went, the nervousness grew — not only for Dunkley but for his friends and fans as well.

"Each time the speaker [the NBA's Rod Thorn] started a name with the 'S' sound I thought it might be me," said Dunkley, who averaged 19.2 points and 12.2 rebounds per game this past season for the Blue Hens. "But when it finally happened I felt better."

Dunkley should feel good being one of only 54 players from college and international basketball selected in the draft. There were certainly more big-time names from heralded programs that were never chosen.

In fact, along with Hartford's Vin Baker, the North Atlantic Conference had two picks in the draft while many conferences such as the highly touted Atlantic-10 had none.

"It's a tremendous accomplishment," said Delaware Coach Steve Steinwedel. "Spencer had a lot athletic ability and he worked extremely hard to get where he is."

"People say he's lucky. Luck isn't anything more than the derivative of preparation and opportunity. You have to prepare

Crush 18-and-under wins first ASA softball tournament championship

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

The Midway Orange Crush ASA 18-and-under softball team captured its first tournament title this season with an 11-5 victory over the Virginia Niners Sunday in the championship game of the Southern Merchants Tournament in Waldorf, Md.

The Crush compiled a 7-1 record over the two day tournament, which was played in brutal heat conditions.

Elaine Wright, who went 4-0 over the two days, pitched the championship game for the Crush, who played the 18-team tournament with just 10 players. Chas Friant was 3-for-4 with a triple and two singles, Shannon Lipp was 3-for-4 with a triple and Laurie Brosnahan hit a triple.

"We played exceptionally well," said Midway Manager Jim Friant. "The girls did a terrific job under very tough conditions. Four players, thankfully none of ours, succumbed to the heat during the tournament."

The Crush lost their first game of the tournament 3-0 to the Niners but bounced back with seven straight victories.

Midway downed the Maryland Tide 11-3 in five innings, the Lady Angels (Va.) 9-4, the Rappahannock (Va.) Rapids 8-0 in six innings, the Southern Maryland Breeze 12-1 in five innings and the host Merchants 7-2.

"We got a break in that we won three of the games by the slaughter rule (if a team is ahead by eight or more runs after five innings)," Friant said. "It really gave our girls an extra chance to rest out of the sun; to get more fluids and some food."

"With only 10 players, it was something we really needed. It was a big key to our tournament."

Midway then downed the New Jersey Pacers 4-3 in the semifinals behind the pitching of Carrie Narvel, who went 3-1 during the tournament, and a 250-foot home run by shortstop Kristen Kayatta.

Offensively, the Crush were led by the top four hitters in their order; Brosnahan, Lipp, Friant and Kayatta.

"We were really carried by the top of our lineup," said Friant. "They banged out a lot of extra-base hits. We are really set up when they get on base."

Midway will now turn its attention to the Hall of Fame Tournament in Oklahoma City. The team left Wednesday and will play its first game Friday against the host Oklahoma Clash.

If the team can finish in the top eight of the 16-team field, it will qualify for the national tournament in California.

Other members of the winning team include Christine Hetland, Jamie Price, Sue Rust and Trudy McCullough. Julie Geissler also played in the tournament but had to leave with an injured knee.

Taylor's stays hot on heels of East End, Time Out close to title in Gold Division

By CHARLIE REMSBURG
SPECIAL TO THE NEWARK POST

East End Cafe and Taylor's Ink continued their torrid race in the Blue Division, while Time Out Sports moved close to the title in the Gold Division.

However, in the Newark Softball League, it's think trophy time.

Newark, perennially, gives trophies for first, second and third place finished in each division. Then comes the playoffs. Trophies are usually awarded to the top three finishers in the championship tournament (top six Blue Division teams and top four Gold Division teams). The same is given for the consolation tournament (bottom four Blue, bottom six Gold).

For the sake of argument, let's say a trophy costs $30. Nice size. Nicely engraved with the sponsor's name to display proudly. Where?

Newark has six eateries that sponsor teams with their names (Crab Trap, East End Cafe, El Sombrero, Moondog's Cafe, Scorer's Pub and Yankee Restaurant). There are three dealing with autos (Fair Hill Auto, Glasgow Gulf, and Newark Auto Buys).

Two sponsors are linked to housing (Margaretten Mortgage and William's Realtors). Perhaps seven could be called businesses (Deco Signs, Pat's Delivery/Parkline, State Line Liquors, Schumachers, Taylor's Ink, Time Out Sports and Vision Source). There's also Glasgow Reformed Presbyterian Church and an aptly named group, Thirtysomething.

And how much would it cost a sponsor for a softball season? It roughly $450 for umpires, $300 for the league entry fee and $200 more for uniforms. So it's a $1,000 plus for a $30 trophy.

Some sponsors only put up part of the fees. Thus, some players may pitch in $20-$30 for the season. Most feel it worthwhile for some 100 hours of fun.

Some sponsors, particularly cafes, may get money back when players "communicate" after games over food and "beverage". But that's another story for another time.

And who's headed for the regular season trophies in Newark?

In the Blue, East End and Taylor's will be the top two. East End Cafe (27-3) and Taylor's Ink (23-4) will finish one-two.

Recently, East End rolled past Newark Auto 16-1, 12-2 and Pat's Delivery 14-2, 17-9.

In the 16-1 game, Matt Bonk was 3-for-3 with six RBIs. Jim Brown was 3-for-4 with three RBIs in the 12-2 rout. Against Pat's, Bill Baker and Dale McClelland were a combined 6-for-6 with seven RBIs in game one, while Pat Bonk was 4-for-4 with two homers, four RBIs and Craig Callahan homered in the 17-run romp. Brian Valania added a home run in the game.

"McClelland's solid pitching, clutch hitting (by all) and some good defense, have helped our cause," said East End Manager Mike Brogan.

East End seeks its sixth straight division title.

Dave Michaloski's Taylor's Ink squad remained in the chase for first by ripping Yankee Restaurant 15-2 and Glasgow Gulf 19-9, 15-5. Taylor's has one game left with East End on Monday July 19.

Pat's also lost to Vision Source 11-1 before winning 13-11 and is in tenuous third place trophy chase with a 19-9 record.

State Line Liquors is 16-11 after wins over Crab Trap and Newark Auto. Crab Trap is at 14-13 after a 4-3 nudging of El Sombrero, which also lost a pair to Glasgow Gulf.

You can't steal a base in slow-pitch softball, but missing bases may have decided the Gold Division race.

As listed home team, Scorer's Pub was missing its bases at game time, and under Newark League rules that means forfeiture. Score it 7-0 Time Out Sports — the game is under protest.

The bases arrived for game two, but Scorer's may have wished they didn't as Time Out romped 17-2.

A five-run third decided the game. With two outs, Tom Munly singled and another walk loaded the bases. Hits by Rich Burris, John Hermes and Mark Schroeder plated the runs.

Burris' single and winning pitcher Joe Krawczyk's triple keyed a 10-run fifth. Burris had three hits worth seven RBIs. Burris was 3-for-3 with three RBIs as Sports beat Thirtysomething 9-6. Time Out won game one 17-1 as Tom Munley and John Slack, Jr. split eight runs and eight hits.

"We put it all together, pitching, hitting and fielding," said Manager John Slack, Sr.

In so doing, Time Out's record is 27-4. Scorer's Pub is 23-7 after adding a 17-5 win over Margaretten Mortgage.

Gold's third trophy currently belongs to William's Realtors at 21-8. Williams got by Moondogs 8-0, 10-5 and GRPC 8-2 in 13 innings after a 3-2 loss.

GRPC added wins over Fair Hill Auto 9-3, 8-7. Deco beat Schumacher 4-2 and Thirtysomething 7-6. Schumacher shut down Moondogs 8-0.

So, Newark trophy time belongs to the Blue's East End, Taylor's Ink and either Pat's or State Line. Gold trophies will go to Time Out, Scorer's and William's.

STANTON — It's amazing how the smallest trickle can turn into a raging flood.

Capitol Stanton-Newport scored three runs in the third inning and sailed past Canal 7-1 Monday in a District II Junior League All-Star opening-round game at Stanton Jr. High.

Canal will try to stave off elimination when it plays the Canal All-Stars Friday at 5:30 in New Castle. The winner of the double-elimination tournament advances to the Mid-Atlantic Regionals.

Capitol starter T.C. Stoops tossed a five-hitter with four strikeouts and allowed one run in the first inning, but settled down and held Canal scoreless for the final six.

Jeff Goff scored Canal's only run after he walked, stole second and came home on starting and losing pitcher John Kennard's RBI single.

Kennard surrendered five runs on six hits, four for extra bases, before being replaced by David Johnston with two out in the fourth.

"We knew once T.C. (Stoops) settled down, he would be OK," said Capital Manager Bob Lougheed. "And we hit the ball really well."

Capital cracked nine hits, including three doubles, a triple and Tim Keyes' solo shot to left-center field in the sixth.

Brian Carney tied the game 1-1 in the third after reaching base on a one-out fielding error and then scoring on Danny Stroud's triple. Scott Tompkins doubled in Stroud and Andy Wilson came in on an error to give Capital a 3-1 lead.

Capital scored twice in the fourth, once in the fifth and Stoops knocked in Stroud in the seventh to complete all scoring.

For Canal, Lee Geissler led off with a double in the second but was thrown out trying to take third, and Sean Cochran, Brent Creese and Kevin Donahue each had base hits.

Blue All-Stars fall to Gold Stars in loser's bracket final

By MARTY VALANIA

NEWARK POST SPORTS EDITOR

GLASGOW — The Newark Gold All-Stars completed a broiling day of baseball by downing the Newark Blue All-Stars 12-7 in the loser's bracket final of the Newark Babe Ruth Holiday Baseball Tournament Sunday afternoon.

The heavy-hitting Gold team scored five runs in each of the third and sixth innings and held on for the win to advance to Monday's championship game against Piedmont.

There were six home runs hit in the offensive game, three by each team. The Gold team had lost to Piedmont 4-0 earlier in the day's winner's bracket final, while the Blue rallied to down Elmsmere 11-9 to stay alive in the tourney.

"It's a good win for us," said Gold Manager Dave Fetterman. "This is the type of hitting I thought we had on this team and we finally broke out."

The Blue jumped to a 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning. Back-to-back singles by Todd Meredith and David Renn were followed by a sacrifice fly by Chris Halling and a squeeze bunt by Keith Magaw to plate the runs.

The Gold answered in the bottom of the inning with two runs of its own. John Bush started the rally by reaching on an error and Kip Scannell singled to left field. Both scored on Jody Russell's

The winners stretched the lead to 7-2 scoring five times while batting around in the third inning. Dave Magee and Russell each hit home runs in the inning while Scott Walter, Scott Kampmann and Jim Hassepan (two-run double) each got hits.

Rick Houck's solo blast over the left field fence brought the Blue team within 7-3 but Gold pitcher Matt Leahy appeared to be cruising toward the victory.

The Blue All-Stars did get a little closer in the sixth inning as Rich Jordan ripped the first of his two home runs making the score 7-4.

The game, however, was decided in the bottom of the sixth as the Gold erupted for five more runs. Chris Weleski singled, Leahy doubled and Walter hit a three-run home run to provide the hits in the inning.

Four hits, including Jordan's second homer of the game, off a relief pitcher led to three runs as the Blue got back in the game.

Leahy came back to the mound to shut the door on the Blue, however.

"Matt did a real nice job for us," said Fetterman. "He threw strikes and did well. He's been our number one pitcher all year."

Newark Gold 3, Elmsmere 2 — Kip Scannell was the hero the Gold's opening win on Saturday. The catcher hit a two-run single with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning to lead the Newark team to a come-from-behind victory over the Elmsmere All-Stars.

Scannell also provided Newark's other run with a solo home run in the first inning.

Dan Clements pitched a two-hitter to help the Gold All-Stars to the victory.

Newark Blue 11, Elmsmere 9 — The Blue All-Stars stayed alive in the double-elimination tournament by scoring seven runs in the last inning to earn a come-from-behind victory over Elmsmere Sunday afternoon in a loser's bracket game.

Jeff Martino led the Newark team with two doubles and three RBIs. Elmsmere led 9-4 going into the last inning.

REGULAR SEASON GAMES

Feralloy 8, DelTrans 6 — Bobby Fad drove in three runs with a pair of hits to lead Feralloy to a victory over DelTrans. Feralloy's Frank Williams had a triple, Andy Manning tripled, and Corey Loper and John Bush both had a double for DelTrans.

K-B Cubs 9, Newark Toyota 8 — Joe Briggs' clutch hitting and brilliant defensive work at shortstop helped the first place Cubs edge Newark Toyota. Rich Jordan went the distance for the Cubs, and helped his cause with a double. The Cubs' Dave Maichle doubled, as did Newark's Brian Reamer.

Artisan Savings 17, Schagrin Gas 3 — Willie Shahan and Dave Renn both drove in four runs as Artisan's blasted Schagrin Gas. Shahan was 4-for-4 on the day, including a home run. Renn also homered, as did Schagrin's Jeff Lewis.

Reybold Homes 14, Feralloy 5 — Chris Weleski drove in three runs to lead Reybold to a come-from-behind win over Feralloy. Bret Reynolds and Weleski combined to hurl a three-hitter, with Weleski striking out five in two innings of relief work. Reybold's Jeff Russell tripled and Kip Scannell had a double.

Artisan Savings 2, DelTrans 0 — Willie Shahan hurled a one-hit shutout for Artisan, striking out 13, to give Artisan a win over DelTrans. John Bush went the distance for DelTrans, losing the game on two unearned runs. The win moves Artisan to within a half game of the first-place Cubs.

Newark Toyota 11, Wilmington Trust 4 — Brian Reamer pitched a complete game to lead Newark past Wilmington Trust. Newark's Todd Meredith had a big day, going 3-for-4 with a pair of RBIs.

Piedmont scores four in seventh to win title game the run.

Piedmont tied the game in the top of the fifth on a run-scoring infield single by Jeremy Bond.

The Gold, however, looked to have regained control with two runs in the bottom of the fifth. Brian George, who singled, scored on Magee's sacrifice fly and Weleski drew a bases-loaded walk to score Scott Walter.

Piedmont went down in order in the sixth but strung together five hits in the seventh inning off of a tired Matt Leahy and Magee, both of whom pitched games Sunday.

"I guess I picked the wrong people to come in," said Fetterman. "We just didn't have anybody left. Bobby Fad did a real nice job for five innings and then we went to the relief and it didn't work."

Nevertheless, it was a fine tournament with five of the seven games being decided in the last inning.

"It was a great tournament," Fetterman said. "There were a lot of close games and I'm happy with the way our team played. They battled back after losing the first game [4-0 to Piedmont] and looked real strong. We just came up short."

It was a good series."

The tourney was also a prelude to the state championship series on July 23. The series will match the best of the two Newark All-Star teams with the best of the Piedmont and Elmsmere teams.

Newark Gold 11, Piedmont 3 — Newark announced early that it would be a long Monday afternoon in the hot sun.

The Gold All-Stars, needing to win two games, scored four runs in the first inning on their way to an 11-3 romp to force a second game.

Singles by Jim Hassiepen and Chris Weleski knocked in three of the four runs. Hassiepen would later score on a steal of home as Weleski got caught in a rundown between first and second.

The cushion was improved to 6-0 in the fourth inning as Dave Magee hit a RBI double and Jody Russell singled home Magee.

Five more runs in the fifth inning sealed the first-game victory. Back-to-back doubles by Weleski and Matt Leahy started the inning. Tim McGaughan walked and Scott Sizemore singled to continue the rally. Magee and Russell followed with back-to-back triples to push the lead to 11-0.

Friends, fans come to East End to honor Dunkley before center leaves for pros

By MARTY VALANIA

"Congratulations Spencer Dunkley."

That's what the message was on the marquee outside East End Cafe last Thursday.

And that was the message that East End owner Rich Katz was trying to convey last Thursday night as he threw a party in Dunkley's honor at his Newark restaurant.

Dunkley, a Newark High student for his senior year, was selected by the Indiana Pacers in the second round of the NBA draft last Wednesday. Thursday he was in town to celebrate with teammates and friends.

"It's good to be among friends," said Dunkley as he accepted the accolades from his fans and teammates. "It's a great feeling."

Dunkley, after coming to the United States from Wolverhampton, England, played his senior year at Newark High. Many in the crowd had seen him play then. None could have predicted such a great basketball future.

"I remember when he first started playing here, he couldn't even shoot foul shots," said Katz, a Blue Hen season ticket holder and long-time regular at the games. "We had always hoped for the best for Spencer; but it's still a shock to think that he got drafted."

"There's 17 people here at East End that are season-ticket holders. We've watched him for five years. We felt this was a way we could thank him and show him how much we appreciate him."

While many fans were surprised at the progress Dunkley made over the years, those that know him best never doubted his dedication or his work ethic.

"More than anything, Spencer's success is a tribute to Spencer and all the effort he's put into making himself better," said Newark High Coach Jim Doody. "Even in high school he put a tremendous amount of time and effort into learning the game. He'd stay after practice every day working on his game."

"The one thing that I think we did do at Newark, was get him used American basketball - to the fact that basketball is something you have to work at six or seven days a week."

"I just think it's great [that Dunkley was drafted]. Especially, when you consider five years ago, he was a soccer player."

For Dunkley, getting drafted was the culmination of many years of long hard work. His basketball numbers were a testament to the progress - from 2.7 points and 2.8 rebounds his freshman year to 19.2 points and 12.2 rebounds his senior season.

Some think, that with a new coach in Larry Brown at Indiana, that Dunkley has a chance of making the Pacers' roster this season. Some think that he may have to spend a year or two playing in Europe before he is fully ready for the NBA experience.

Most, however, think that somewhere along the line, Dunkley will be a good NBA basketball player.

"I'm just going to go out and play as hard as I can," Dunkley said. "Eventually, I'll be in the NBA."

"I'm closing the book on an old goal and am ready to start a new one."

All of his fans are looking forward to reading it.

Wizards fall 2-1 to Raleigh, remain in second place

Although the Wizards fell 2-1 to Raleigh Friday night, the team retained their hold on second place.

Raleigh went on to lose to Charlotte on Saturday evening to keep Delaware in second. The Wizards will host the Flyers on July 17 in a match which may determine home field advantage for the first round of the playoffs which will begin at the end of July.

Delaware travels to fifth place Richmond Friday night and to the Baltimore Bays on Saturday.

YOUTH BASEBALL SCORES

Neal's Senators clinch a second-round playoff spot by winning two out of their last three games. The Senators came back after a loss to beat Bank of Delaware.

The Senators will play McDonald's in the second round

Senators 28, Bank of Delaware 12 - Adam Campros was the winning pitcher of the five-inning game. Michael Dills had two hits that accounted for five RBIs. Nik Focht collected four hits and an RBI to add to the victory.

Senators 13, Bank of Delaware 8 - Tom Salvucci struck out 11 batters to help lead the Senator's to the win. Antoine Smith had two extra-base hits and Evan Guilfoyle also had two doubles, one with the bases load for two RBIs.

Dunkley's drastic improvement leads to second round selection and be ready to take advantage of the opportunity when it comes. Spencer certainly has done that.

"All you ever want is an opportunity and Spencer has it."

Dunkley's play improved dramatically from his freshman year.

In his first season the native of Wolverhampton, England averaged 2.7 points and 2.8 rebounds a game. Those numbers grew to 7.6 and 8.9 his sophomore year and 10.7 and 8.8 his junior year.

But it was his senior that got everyone's attention.

Not many people could believe that he was the same person that came to Newark for his senior year in high school.

"He's made huge steps each year," said Jim Doody, Dunkley's coach at Newark High. "He's played beyond the expectations of everybody and, because he's still relatively new to the game, he'll get better."

Dunkley starts work on his new goal when he travels July 12 to Indianapolis for a preseason camp.

"I'm just going to go out and play hard," he said. "Eventually, I know I'm going to be playing in the NBA."

"Hopefully, in a few years, I'll be making a big contribution and helping the Indiana Pacers to the NBA championship."

Umpire accosted by player, parent after youth league game verbally and physically attacked an umpire they weren't happy with.

The father sat there and egged the kid on saying to let the ump swing so the family could sue him for everything.

Eventually, the player lost control and swung away.

This is ugly-hideous behavior. It shouldn't be tolerated at all.

The umpires are people who have to deal with the heat and loud-mouthed parents. These games can't take place without ump and this kind of treatment just drives people from the job.

Why would anyone want to put up with such garbage?

Anyone involved in such behavior should be kicked out of the league for good.

The umpires shouldn't have to put up with it and neither should anyone else in the league.
