Personal

Dear Friend:

Heineman

I have your note of January 7 with which you send me the memoranda prepared by Dr. Priester on certain aspects of the economic and financial situation in Germany. I have read these with very real interest and find them very helpful. They contain some data which is very useful and which I did not have. I shall not fail to bring them to the attention of some of my associates who will be equally interested.

I note with interest that you are going to London and will be writing me again. I shall look forward very much to your letter. The situation in that capital remains to me inexplicable.

We are looking forward very much to seeing you over here in February and I hope nothing may interfere with your trip.

Faithfully yours,
