Wheat Crop Insurance Obtainable On Actual Planted Acreage Basis

Farmers who have applied for wheat crop insurance on their 1939 crop, and who now plan to seed a smaller acreage, may pay for crop insurance on the basis of actual acreage to be planted, rather than on the acreage originally indicated in their applications according to R. O. Stetler, state crop insurance supervisor.

A large number of growers in Delaware have revised their intended plantings of wheat downward since the date they applied for crop insurance, Mr. Stetler said. These growers have received, or will receive, notices of premiums due on the original acreage they specified. However, the county offices can execute a rider to their premium notice which makes it possible to pay premiums only on the actual acreage to be seeded.

Crop insurance supervisors in the three Delaware counties are: New Castle, B. I. Armstrong, Newark, Kent L. E. Cain, Dover, and Sussex, C. E. Ocheltree, Georgetown.

DEMOCRATS TO BALLOT

Shallcross Is Elected County Committee Head

Democratic primaries will be held in New Castle and Sussex Counties on the same day—Saturday, October 1. The party's Kent County slate will be picked Saturday, September 24.

In announcing the dates of the New Castle County primaries, Harry Smith, secretary of the county Democratic committee, said the deadline for filing for county nominations will be midnight, September 20.

The dates have been approved by the executive committee of the county committee and will be ratified by the full committee at its next meeting, Smith said. He is accepting the filing of candidates for county nominations at Democratic headquarters, 612 French Street, Wilmington.

The primary date not only needs ratification by the county committee, but also by the Department of Elections. Both are expected to give approval.

Shallcross Elected Nominations for recorder of deeds, register of wills, sheriff, coroner, Levy Court commissioners of three districts, state senators of four districts, and representatives of 15 districts will be selected at the primary.

Eugene H. Shallcross, Middletown, was elected chairman of the New Castle County Democratic Committee Monday night defeating William S. Potter, attorney, of Centreville by a vote of 53 to 46.

Mr. Potter was nominated by State Chairman Josiah Marvel, Jr., while Mr. Shallcross was nominated by Garrett E. Lyons, chairman of the Wilmington Democratic Committee.

The meeting was restricted to members of the committee and persons holding proxies. Mrs. Catherine Welsh, vice chairman, presided.

When the results of the vote were announced, Mr. Potter shook hands with Mr. Shallcross and said: "I extend you my hearty congratulations. I will work with you as hard during the campaign as I have worked against you for the chairmanship."

Resolutions on the death of John R. Jester, late chairman, were adopted.

New Century Club Dances To Start Saturday Night Dances for girls and boys for high school age, which were introduced last year, will be re-inaugurated by the Newark New Century Club Saturday evening, Mrs. R. T. Jones, past president of the organization, announced yesterday.

Sponsored by the club women as a civic enterprise of furnishing a place for recreation among young boys and girls, the dances are conducted at a low admission fee. Chaperoned by members of the club, girls and boys are permitted to frequent the affairs either with or without escorts. The dances are strictly informal.

TICKET IS NAMED FOR ELECTION

Republicans In Convention At Dover Yesterday

With party leaders hailing the gathering as one of the most harmonious in years, Delaware Republicans in their state convention Wednesday nominated a ticket without any signs of conflict among the delegations.

The ticket follows: For Representative in Congress—George S. Williams, Millsboro. For Attorney-General—James R. Morford, The Cedars. For Insurance Commissioner—William J. Swain, Bridgeville. For State Treasurer—Fagan H. Simonton, Wilmington. For State Auditor—Benjamin I. Shaw, Harrington.

The attorney-general and state insurance commissioner offices are for terms of four years each. The other three offices are for two-year terms.

Townsend Keynoter Party leaders hailed the convention as one of the most harmonious held in Delaware in recent years. Previous to the nomination, the delegates heard U. S. Senator John G. Townsend, Jr., the keynoter, call for party unity and the election of men who will restore reason to government.

The platform adopted by the convention contained a plank endorsing the principle of civil service. It drew attention to the fact that the civil service laws of the United States were adopted by a Republican Congress. The platform was read by George C. Hering, Jr., chairman of the resolutions committee.

Any differences which may have existed among delegates over the selection of nominees were smoothed out prior to the opening of the convention. Pre-convention reports that a battle over nominations would be waged on the floor of the convention proved to be incorrect.

"Gate Sill Open" Although a parley Wednesday morning between leaders of the Republicans and the Independent Republicans failed to agree on certain candidates desired by the Independents, it was stated that "the gate is still open." The Independent Republican state committee will meet in Wilmington next week.

Before the choice of candidates had been made by the convention, the allocation of several offices had been determined by a special committee of two members from each of the four convention district caucuses. This group allocated to Wilmington the office of state treasurer; to rural New Castle County, attorney-general; to Kent County, state auditor; to Sussex County, Representative in Congress and insurance commissioner.

In accordance with this plan each of the caucuses endorsed their choice for the office or offices assigned to them. All but Kent County were quick to make their choice of a candidate. In that county the delegates had much difficulty arriving at a decision, and as a result the opening of the convention was delayed until after 3 o'clock standard time.

New State Committee Members of the new Republican State Committee from New Castle County are: Wilmington—Mrs. Mary E. Stout, Mildred L. Stroud, Bertha M. Smith, Carrie M. Pipes, John Hopkins, Charles H. Grantland, Herbert B. Mearns, Leroy W. Hickman, Rural New Castle County—Ella M. Luff, Henry B. duPont, Anna R. M. Cloud, John J. Johnston, William Sadtler, J. W. Fenimore, Carrie Jones, Mabel Taylor.

Delaware Motor Vehicle Owners Pay Highest Tax Bill In East Delaware motor vehicle owners are now paying the highest automotive taxes of any eastern state, according to a statement issued recently by W. Purves Taylor, secretary of the Associated Petroleum Industries of Delaware.

"Delaware motor vehicle owners are now paying a total of $64.48 per year in various automotive taxes," Mr. Taylor stated. "While this is a small state, yet we top all other states in the eastern group in our per capita motor tax bill. The average motor vehicle owner in Delaware now pays $11.93 in state gasoline taxes, $3.90 in federal gasoline taxes, $18.90 in state registration and miscellaneous fees and federal excise taxes to the extent of $5.35. This represents an intolerable load.

LOCAL MEN ON TICKET

Dr. G. W. Rhodes And R. T. Jones Seeking Office

Two outstanding local business men, Dr. George W. Rhodes and Robert T. Jones, Sr., tossed their hats into the center of the political arena this week by filing for public office as candidates on the Republican ticket.

Dr. Rhodes, owner of the drug store that bears his name at 36 East Main Street, announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination as representative in the State Legislature from the Ninth Representative District. He is unopposed.

Councilman Herman Wollaston, who was announced last week as a possible seeker for the nomination as representative from the Ninth district, did not file when Dr. Rhodes entered the field. "I am only too glad to support Dr. Rhodes," said Mr. Wollaston in withholding his candidacy, "and I am not going to oppose him for the nomination."

Wayne C. Brewer, chairman of the White Clay Creek Hundred Republican committee who made the announcement for Dr. Rhodes, was jubilant over his candidate's decision to file.

In announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the office of coroner, Mr. Jones stated: "I have been an undertaker for 36 years and have been associated with the coroner's office all of that time. If I can run my own business for 36 years, I think I am able to run the coroner's office for two years." James F. Hearn, Wilmington, is opposing Mr. Jones for the nomination.

Clark For Senate George R. Clark, Delaware City, who was elected to the State Legislature in 1934 from Red Lion Hundred, filed for the Republican senatorial nomination from the Fifth Senatorial District. Senator Norris N. Wright, vice president of the Continental-Diamond Fibre Company, who has filled the office since 1934, did not file for the race, leaving Mr. Clark unopposed.

Contests for the Republican nominations for three of the four county-wide offices to be voted on at the election on November 8 and in two of the Levy Court districts, two senatorial districts and seven State County developed Tuesday afternoon as the deadline for filing of candidates was reached.

Stetser Is Opposed Heading the list of the fourteen contests is a three-way struggle for nomination for register of wills. The candidates are: J. Gilbert Highfield, Jr., incumbent; Deputy Register Isaac R. Brown, Jr., and former-Rep. and former Countyman James B. McManus, all of Wilmington.

Albert Stetser, incumbent, and W. Harry Lewis, president of the Levy Court, are the candidates for recorder of deeds. The Jones-Hearn battle looms for the nomination for coroner.

The one uncontested nomination for a county-wide office is for sheriff with Samuel M. Ford as the candidate.

HANEY IS CHAIRMAN; SPEAKER SELECTED

President Of Baltimore C. of C. Will Address Assembly Here

Preliminary plans for an open-house civic meeting to be held on October 10 were discussed at length Monday night by directors of the Newark Chamber of Commerce at their September 10 board gathering in Powell's Restaurant.

No site was selected for the affair. The committee in charge, consisting of George M. Haney, chairman, Carleton E. Douglass, R. J. Boyd, Charles E. Grubb, and Dr. Walter Hullahen, was given a choice of the auditorium in Newark High School, the Newark New Century Club, or Wolf Hall on the University of Delaware campus, from which to make a selection.

Officers and directors of the organization present at the session Monday were: George F. Jackson, president; Herman Handloff, secretary; J. Earle Dougherty, treasurer; Mr. Haney, Mr. Douglass, Mr. Boyd, Myer Pinlick, and William S. Hamilton.

Noted Speaker Listed W. H. Meese, vice president and works manager of the Western Electric Company, Baltimore, has accepted the chamber's invitation, issued through Mr. Douglass, a lifelong friend, to speak before the open-house meeting.

As president of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce and director of the annual community drive for charity funds in the Monumental City, Mr. Meese ranks as one of the outstanding leaders in the Maryland metropolis.

His speech will be devoted to community problems and civic affairs pertaining to growing communities. Open to the general public, the meeting will replace the regular monthly and quarterly session of the chamber scheduled for October.

Invitations Extended Invitations are being extended to all local organizations and fraternal groups interested in civic matters. Newark industrial leaders, University of Delaware and Newark High School faculties, the Lions Club of Newark, the Newark Business and Professional Women's Club, the Newark New Century Club, the American Legion and auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary, Aetna Home, Hook and Ladder Company, men's and women's lodges, and all church organizations in Newark and vicinity are being asked to attend the session.

Jackson Makes Report Reporting on the meeting held in Governor R. C. McMullen's office early in August relative to the Pennsylvania Railroad's request for crossing the South Chapel Street crossing, President Jackson stated that everything indicates the crossing will remain in use without change.

The chamber head asserted that when the request was filed by the railroad with the Governor, the matter was misrepresented. It is thought likely that an underpass or bridge will be required before the crossing can be closed.

At the suggestion of Mr. Haney, the chamber passed a motion that the railroad be contacted with a request for a watchman or automatic signals at the crossing twenty-four hours daily.

During the discussion that preceded the passing of the motion, it was brought out that a watchman is on duty from six o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock at night, but that the crossing is unguarded from ten o'clock every night until six the following morning.

Discuss Lights-Show President Jackson appointed James H. Hollingsworth and Weldon C. Waples as co-chairman of the second mercantile and merchandising show which the chamber will sponsor in the Newark Armory next February or March.

Mr. Hamilton, chairman of the Christmas street lighting committee, reported that efforts will be made to string the lights at right angles to Main Street this year instead of diagonally as they were hung a year ago.

It is thought that by changing the method of stringing, the present lights will fill the area from Academy Street to Center which was unlighted in 1937.

Change In Schedule For Services Is Announced A change in schedule for services at Wesley Chapel was announced this week by Rev. Harley J. Savage. Sunday School will be held at two o'clock and Sunday evening services at eight o'clock. Prayer meeting will be held every Wednesday evening instead of Thursday as formerly scheduled.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for September 18
JONATHAN: COURAGEOUS FRIENDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 20:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—A friend loveth at all times.—Proverbs 17:17.

Without question, the most precious possession any man or woman has (apart from his fellowship with God if he is a Christian, and the love of his own family) is friendship. It is the flower that blooms by the side of the rugged pathway of life. Like many flowers, some friendships need to be cultivated and encouraged.

It has been said that the love of a woman for another woman is a beautiful thing, the love of a man for a woman an even more devoted and precious thing, but that the bond of love between man and man surpasses all in its strength and glory. Some might question such a statement, and yet it is true that between man and man there is the possibility of the highest type of friendship. David and Jonathan stand at the head of an inspiring list of men who loved each other with their whole souls.

The lesson for today calls for a careful reading of the incidents in the life of Jonathan and David recorded in 1 Samuel, chapters 14, 18, 19, and 20, as well as the first chapter of 2 Samuel. It is a story which will richly reward a careful reading. Considering the printed portion in the light of this background we note six things that characterized this great friendship.

I. Cultivated (v. 4).
Friendships must be "kept in repair." Foolish and almost wicked is that man who by boorish offending his fellowmen, or by neglecting the thoughtful words and acts that cultivate friendship, drives men away from him. "He that hath friends must show himself friendly" (Prov. 18:24). Consider the admonition of our Lord in Luke 16:8, 9, where he urges the righteous use of even our worldly possessions to cultivate eternal friendships. Read what Jonathan did in 1 Sam. 18:3-5, only one of his many loving and thoughtful acts.

II. Courteous (v. 6).
David asked that Jonathan deal kindly with him, and the entire story reveals that he did just that, always. More friendships are wrecked on the rocks of little discourtesies than in almost any other way.

We live in an age which affects an outward veneer of culture but which is at heart often thoughtless and unkind. Let Christian men and women be courteous. They should be so as followers of the gentle Jesus, and it will bring them countless friends.

III. Candid (v. 9).
Friendships that last must be built on absolute candor, not the kind that delights in telling an unpleasant truth, but one which speaks the truth in love. Jonathan told David the truth.

Little wonder that friendships built on smooth greetings of "dear" and "darling" or "delighted to see you, old man," but which are in reality not honestly affectionate, and true do not last until one goes round the corner.

IV. Courageous (vv. 12, 13).
Jonathan was such a faithful son that when the time of parting came he stayed with his wicked father rather than go with David, whom he loved. But he was true to David even though he knew it would incur the wrath of his father if that friendship became known.

Things that cost us nothing are usually "worth it." Real friendship calls for sacrifice, standing by in the night hours, sharing burdens, being loyal even though others may condemn us for it.

V. Covenant Keeping (vv. 16, 17).
Covenants entered into by solemn treaties in our time are soon discarded as "scraps of paper." People make promises to one another that they never intend to fulfill. Jonathan and David made a covenant and kept it.

This matter of trickery and falsehood in life and business is one that deeply troubles the writer of these notes. He sees unmistakable evidence that this perverse spirit has come into the precincts of the church itself. We should have a revival of honesty in office, home, state, and church.

VI. Complete (v. 17).
"He loved him as he loved his own soul"—such a friend was Jonathan. His devotion to David had no qualifying "strings" on it. He was not seeking something for himself. The closest he came to that was to bring his children into the covenant with David (v. 15), and who could question the propriety of such devotion between true friends? He saw that David was to supplant Saul as king, and in the face of his own interest as Saul's son, he put David forward.

Friendship is akin to our relationship to God in that it calls for a complete giving of ourselves, if we are to be true friends. This does not mean that individuality is lost, or special interests and abilities destroyed, but it does mean a whole-souled desire for our friend's welfare, and a complete devotion of our all to his good.

National Laboratory Of Traffic Safety Proposed

Many State and Highway Officials Endorse Project To Modernize Baltimore-Washington Boulevard As Safety Model for Nation

Lighting for Safe Night Driving Stressed

WASHINGTON—The modernization of the Baltimore-Washington Highway as a National Laboratory of Traffic Safety has been recommended in a resolution recently adopted by the Department of Maryland and endorsed by the Department of the District of Columbia of the American Legion.

Positive Action Necessary

Commenting on the project, which has already received commendation and endorsement by two governors, several senators and congressmen, and many state and highway officials, Bruce T. Bair, retiring Commander of the Maryland Legion, stressed the necessity for positive, national action regarding the traffic accident problem and pointed out the increasing toll of traffic deaths. In 1937, over 39,700 people were killed in automobile accidents and 23,800 of those met death in accidents after dark. He said, "If our recommendations are carried out, the Baltimore-Washington Highway will be modernized to incorporate the most modern methods in road design and construction, traffic planning and control, and personnel for adequate and thorough enforcement. The highway will serve as an admirable laboratory for studying all traffic and safety factors, including modern highway lighting and its effectiveness in reducing night fatalities."

Lighting Urged

Because 26 of the 31 traffic fatalities on the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard in 1937 occurred during the hours of dusk or darkness, the installation of modern lighting along its entire course has been strongly recommended. Other states, particularly New Jersey and New York, it was said, have proven the practicability of cutting the night fatality rate through the provision of adequate illumination on major, heavily traveled highways.

Great Need Met

Accenting the great need that the development of a National Laboratory of Traffic Safety would fulfill, Lt. Thomas Mason, Jr., Past Commander of the Department of the District of Columbia of the Legion, stated that there exists in the country today no one highway to which the public can turn, or upon which their attention can be focused, as representing the consensus of scientific opinion and the most advanced practice in providing maximum safety, comfort and convenience for present day motor travel.

Nation-wide Potentialities

Supporters of the project point out that the Baltimore-Washington Boulevard is about the one major highway in the country, carrying unusually heavy traffic, which, because it leads to and from the nation's capital, transcends purely local significance and the only one, therefore, which would attract the attention and interest of the general public and highway officials, regardless of their particular town or state. It is believed that the real value of the proposal lies in the possibility of its expansion into a nation-wide movement. Quoting Commander Bair—"The idea is so fundamental that similar model highways should be developed in every state. Certainly no movement could more fully warrant the financial assistance of the Federal Government and there is no reason why state highway officials should not lay out laboratory stretches of highway and apply for federal aid to carry out necessary construction and improvements."

President's Conference Interested

A. Harry Moore, Governor of New Jersey and Chairman of the President's Accident Prevention Conference, stated in a letter to Commander Bair, "I am certain that the members of my recently appointed Street and Highway Safety Committee and the members of the President's Accident Prevention Conference will be keenly interested in the results promised by the Department of Maryland's project. Highway Officials Approve

Among the many expressions of approval in the project is the opinion of Murdock Bell, Vermont's Motor Vehicle Commissioner, who said, "I believe the project is worthy and can be done in the utilization of the Baltimore-Washington Highway as a national laboratory of traffic safety. We should all participate in this project."

The Legion has also received hearty endorsement of the project from Senator Millard Tydings, Congressman Stephen W. Gandy, and both of Maryland.

Dentistry Is Important Factor In Prevention Of Diseases

Generally One Of Least Recognized, According To Dr. J. F. Maguire

Dentistry is one of the most important, and yet one of the least generally recognized fields of endeavor in the war of prevention of communicable diseases, according to Dr. John F. Maguire, D. D. S., Wilmington, a member of the State Board of Health, writing in the just published issue of the Delaware Health News. The mention of public health brings to the mind of most persons pictures of such scourges as tuberculosis, diphtheria, and typhoid fever, yet, he states, one of the most common avenues of disease is through the oral cavity.

"Preventive medicine, and a determined public effort toward the removal of all unsanitary conditions, have today brought most of the pestilence under control to such a degree as to relieve all fear of epidemics. But what of dentistry and its public health problems? The community fails to recognize the dentist as an agent in this war of prevention, and in the past his services have been called upon, in the most part, to alleviate immediate dental pain or restore esthetic beauty.

Linked Through Schools

The dental profession is linked with public health, in Delaware, through the Division of Oral Hygiene of the State Board of Health, whose members work in the public schools examining the teeth of the children in the primary and elementary grades; following examinations they clean the teeth, give the children talks on proper manners of maintenance and indicate, on cards sent to the parents, any discovered defects.

It is an accepted fact that carelessness and neglect have led many to the sick bed; and surely where a person has neglected his general health, he has not given special attention to his teeth. The result of this neglect is generally evident in the mouth, and in many instances the very illness has been directly traceable to dental defects. It would be highly desirable if the public at large could be examined and periodically warned of approaching dental ills; but since this is not feasible at the present, the effort to stimulate oral hygiene among the child is a notable advance.

Dentists Led Fight

In conclusion, Dr. Maguire gave credit to the "group of dentists comprising the Delaware State Society, who years ago led the fight to gain oral hygiene its rightful place among other public health endeavors, and whose work resulted in the establishment of this division of the State Board of Health."

"The history of dentistry in America dates back to Revolutionary days," writes Miss Margaret H. Jeffrey, R. H. H., director of the Division of Oral Hygiene, "when two Frenchmen came to this country and taught that which they knew to our countrymen. Then, dentistry was not considered highly, so those trained consisted of persons

American Flag Council Entertained At Feast

American Flag Council, No. 23, Junior Order United American Mechanics, held a corn and Weiner roast Monday night following the regular meeting. More than thirty members attended the affair, which was held at the home of Joseph Brown, Milford Cross Roads. Amos Norton was number one chef for the occasion.

PHILIP MEETS A NEW SITUATION

JANETTE STEVENSON MURRAY

Philip is six years old and attends the university elementary school a mile and a half from his home. He goes on the street car, transferring at the downtown station.

It was during the first cold snap in November that he arrived at school one morning and found the door locked. Bobbie, whose mother had just let him out of her auto at the corner and driven home, was in the same plight. A neighbor had promised to phone the mothers of these two boys that there would be no school but had forgotten to do so.

"Say, Bobbie, we can just go back on the street car. See, I have my nickel," said Philip.

"But I haven't any nickel," replied Bobbie. "Mamma always comes for me."

"Oh, maybe we can phone her," suggested Philip. "My mother won't be home for she takes Brother to the kindergarten and goes to her classes. Let's go in the schoolhouse. There's a phone in the office, I know."

"The Door's Locked"

"But the door is locked," said Bobbie, tears gathering in his eyes.

"Yes, it's locked," said Philip as he turned from fumbling with the handle. "Oa-oo! It's cold!" The boy, with only a light overcoat for protection, shivered in his socks and short trousers. "Bobbie," he said, "I don't know the way home, do you?"

"No, I never went home alone," and Bobbie began to cry.

Although Philip knew Bobbie only as he had seen him in class, it never occurred to him to use his own nickel and go home, leaving Bobbie alone.

"Oh, stop crying," said Philip, on the verge of tears himself. "I don't know what to do—but we have to do something, kid, or we'll freeze. Say! why can't we follow the street car track? The car that always takes me has to go on that track. I know where your house is when I'm on the car."

Grabbed Bobbie's Hand

He grabbed Bobbie's hand and they began their long trudge back on the sidewalk beside the rails, down through the town where Philip always transferred and then along by the other car line. They were very cold and the biting northwest wind hindered their progress.

"Oh, what are you boys doing here?" exclaimed Bobbie's mother as the boys appeared.

"The door was locked wasn't any school" and "But how did you get away home?" "Why, we just followed 'cause that's the way we said Philip in a matter of minutes. Our Mother's Club had interested in Philip's absence. I'll be glad to see you, and mature reasoning. "Have you educated the idea of making a plan?" We asked his mother. "Guarding Against Dangers" "No, I think that was dergarten," she answered. "but his teacher told me and I had helped him in the development of his learning to walk, he said. Then we would speak the cause, the rumples, stance, diverting his attention. We often get dark rooms to get this as a matter of course has never feared the toddler. I let him walk doors as far as it was went on the street in idea of protecting his bles. Although very safe my safety, he had no

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM OUR CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM F. ALLEN

ANTI-TRUST LAWS—A definite strengthening of the anti-trust laws of this country will probably be asked of the new Congress when it convenes.

INSPECTION OF VEGETABLES AND FRUITS

A steady growth has been shown in shipping-point inspection of fruits and vegetables with 450,005 carlots inspected for grade certification last year. Only 72,000 carlots were inspected in 1923. By 1935 the number of carlot inspections had reached 396,435. More potatoes are certified as to grade than any other item of produce. Under marketing agreements covering most of the important late-producing states in the potato growing areas from Michigan to Idaho last year, shipping-point inspection was required for all interstate shipments. In the Gulf States potato inspection is also required. Such service makes it possible for produce buyers on consumer markets to purchase by, on the basis of the Government certificates, shipments of produce at the shipping point, although the shipping point may be several hundred miles distant. If potato states adopt the potato-marketing agreement now under consideration, a further increase in inspection is expected this year.

CHAOS IN MOTOR CODES ADDS TO TRAFFIC PERIL

All the States require registration of motor vehicles and display of license plates as a condition of driving on public highways. This is one of the relatively few provisions in which the motor laws of all States are uniform. But there is wide disagreement in the registration authorities.

CONSTRUCTION TWICE THAT OF LAST YEAR—Residential construction in July nearly doubled that of the same month a year ago.

There were 21,660 residential units constructed in July at a cost of $118,248 as compared with 11,752 units costing $48,795 in July, 1937. From January to July, 1938, construction consisted of 119,007 units, as compared to 107,290 units in the same period of 1937.

FAIR WARNING—One of the many provisions that are to aid drug buyers next year is the one giving fair warning if a drug is likely to deteriorate.

The Food and Drug Administration has had considerable experience with deteriorated stocks of drugs which were of standard strength originally but were packed in containers or held under conditions promoting deterioration. It is expected that the new law will lead manufacturers to adopt precautionary measures, thus actually improving the average quality of the drug supply.

MEETING FEATURES EDUCATORS

Goldley College Announce Open Session Tuesday

An open meeting and registration in extramural courses of Temple University sponsored by Goldley College in Wilmington will be held at the college on Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The session, which is open to the general public and entails no obligation on the part of those who attend, will be presented in the interests of the special courses sponsored at Goldley College for the eighth consecutive year, with Temple University instructors.

The founding of the extramural program at Goldley College resulted from an experiment conducted by Jay W. Miller, director of courses at the school, in 1930. At that time, an extramural course in educational psychology from Teachers College at Temple University was offered with immediate success. The course was offered primarily for teachers and school principals. Courses in history were later offered and then studies in secondary education.

In preparation for the work of the coming year in this field, Mr. Miller has arranged a splendid program for the public meeting. A group of educational specialists, each well known in his field, have been invited to attend and they will discuss some outstanding phases of their work before the meeting.

"Temple University Off-Campus Program" will be the subject of an address to be given by Charles E. Metzger, director of the extramural division at the Philadelphia school. Dr. John D. Kern, professor of English at Temple University, will speak on the subject "The Value of Effective English in the Office." Robert E. Lee, LL. M., instructor of Business Law at Temple University, will talk on "What the Business Man Should Know About Law."

EXTRAMURAL COURSES

Mr. Miller announces the following studies to be offered in the extramural courses for the 1938-39 season: "Advanced Principles of Accounting," by John A. Tousaw, B. S. C., instructor in Accounting at Temple University; beginning Monday night, 7:30, October 3; "English Composition," by Miss Carrie E. Walters, M. A., instructor of English at Temple University, on Tuesday, October 4, at 4:30; "Effective English," by Dr. John D. Kern, on Tuesday, October 4, at 7:30; "Business Law," by Mr. Lee, beginning Tuesday, October 4, or Wednesday, October 5, at 7:30; "Great Experiments in Psychology" by Dr. Frederick H. Lund, professor of psychology at Temple University, on Wednesday, October 5, at 7:30; "Cost Accounting," by Raymond J. Curry, C. P. A., on Wednesday, October 5, at 7:30; "History of Modern Europe" by Dr. Arthur N. Cook, professor of history, Temple University, on Thursday, October 6, at 7:30.

Credit cards for the Temple University extramural courses are mailed by the registrar of Temple University to the student completing the required work. The regular evening school courses in accounting and secretarial subjects opens at Goldley College on September 19.

BOOK SHELF

We are writing this paragraph from a not too comfortable perch high up in the clouds where we have been hoisted by nothing less than our own petard. You may recall that recently we wrote an open letter to the Saturday Review extolling the virtues of its advertising columns as judged by an ad for the Facsimile Text Society. Well, our chickens have come to roost, Jim Nelson among them, crowing ever so loudly. Yes, the SRL did nothing less than reprint our letter.

Once again it is our pleasure to recommend a book issued by Houghton, Mifflin. The book we think you should be reminded of is Hello America. The author is Cesar Saerchinger.

It was three centuries ago that a small group of Swedish immigrants made the first permanent settlement in the Delaware valley, so this is an appropriate time to note that it was a Swedish scientist who first described Niagara Falls in English from first-hand information. His name was Pehr Kalm, and if you would know more about him, and about Swedish influence in America, turn to the new THE GERMANIC REVIEW and read the article, Cultural Relations Between Sweden and America to 1830, by Adolph B. Benson.

Kalm's description of Niagara was really a private letter, but he happened to send it to Benjamin Franklin, who, even as the editor of these P. P., was always on the lookout for material to publish. As a result, the account was published in the Pennsylvania Gazette for September, 1750. Kalm did a good many other things while in America, and later, when he was back home, he published in the Handlingar of the Swedish Academy of Sciences a series of seventeen articles on American scientific subjects, including spruce-beer and rattlesnakes.

We are interested in publishing, not politics, but now that the shouting and the tumult about the reorganization bill is over, we can't help wondering why none of the bill's proponents made use of this statement: "An enlightened zeal for the energy and efficiency of government will be stigmatized as the offspring of a temper fond of despotic power and hostile to the principles of liberty." The words are the words of Alexander Hamilton, and they can be found in the very first of the Federalist papers. We came across them because the National Home Library has published for the fan-

At headquarters in Tokyo it is predicted that the kimono will disappear, and most of the men of the country will work and play in dark olive green costumes, while the women who wish to be different may wear dark purple.

It is intended to first uniform Government officials and primary and middle-school students and teachers and then spread the idea.

Ultimately, he said, he hopes any "border line" between the United States and Mexico, as far as law enforcement is concerned, will be "wiped out."

New Yearbook Of Agriculture Is Now Obtainable

Dedicated To Curtis Fletcher Marbut; Soil Misuse Is Discussed

First copies of the 1938 Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture—"Soils and Men"—made their appearance this week. The book, third in the new series of yearbooks dealing with special subjects, is dedicated to the memory of Curtis Fletcher Marbut, for many years chief of the Soil Survey Division of the department. The 1936 and 1937 yearbooks dealt with genetics. The 1938 book, already underway, will discuss human and animal nutrition.

In the new book, soil scientists have attacked the problem of soil misuse from every angle discussing causes, and, insofar as possible, giving remedies. Recent surveys show that if present farming practices continue, serious erosion damage will result to fully 60 per cent of the cropland in the United States—a problem of concern to the entire nation.

Man's Treatment Harsh. In a foreword to the book, Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, says "Nature treats the earth kindly. Man treats her harshly. He overplows the cropland, overgrazes the pastureland, and overcuts the timberland. He destroys millions of acres completely. He pours fertility year after year into the cities, which in turn pour what they do not use down the sewers into the rivers and the ocean... This terribly destructive process is excusable in a young nation. It is not excusable in the United States in the year 1938."

The tribute to Curtis Fletcher Marbut says in part, "Under his guidance, work in soils became a recognized science in the United States. His own researches in soil classification and geography laid the foundation for our modern concepts of soil... Al-

Bomb Stops Fire

Bombs which extinguish fires have been invented in France and promise to revolutionize fire fighting, according to a Paris report. Each bomb is equipped with a match which is lighted by contact with the fire, or automatically at a temperature of 200 degrees Fahrenheit. Chemicals inside are violently distributed to extinguish the flames. In one test a bomb stopped a fire which had been started in a gasoline tank having one hundred holes to allow the gasoline to run out the tank and spread the flames.

POT AND KETTLE

Quite regularly we hear a terrible wail about lobbies at Washington, which would indicate that our Senators and Congressmen are being "influenced" against their will by designing persons who would mold them to their heart's desire.

This is a lot of bunk. In the first place, if a member of Congress has not sense enough or courage enough to form his own opinions and act upon them, he ought to resign and go home. Besides, there is no reason to condemn lobbyists for one class and commend lobbyists for another class. Every important group in that nation has its lobbyists in Washington.

The farmers have their lobby, so have the labor unions, the veterans, the prohibitionists, the blue law advocates, the various industries—in fact every conceivable class, either constantly or at intervals, is importuning Congress to do, or not do, this or that.

As intimated above, if Congressmen are fit to be Congressmen there is little harm in the long run in having representatives of various groups in Washington to present their views and give information respecting them.

There is little sincerity in lobbyists of one group denouncing lobbyists of an opposing group. It is a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

A SAFETY YARDSTICK

We do not profess to be expert in the field of traffic safety. There are those whose business it is to study the causes and cures of the automotive malady that takes a toll of some 40,000 lives a year.

But, inexpert as we may be, the proposal of the American Legion in Maryland and the District of Columbia to create in the Baltimore-Washington Highway a National Laboratory of Traffic Safety strikes us as being a simple, direct and eminently sensible procedure. Most importantly because it would serve as a medium through which to impress on the taxpayer, on you and me, our responsibility in demanding the type of highways which would give us at least an even chance. After all, the motorist isn't completely to blame.

The trouble, today, is that too many people know too little about too many national problems, and that includes the traffic problem. The public has no opinion as to what it should expect or demand in return for the huge gasoline and motor-vehicle tax it pays—what is practical and what isn't.

All sorts of remedies have been suggested. But what we need is a more complete understanding of the simple why, when and where. For example, every one knows that adequate visibility is essential to safety. But we realize, too, that the lighting of a great proportion of our highways would be impossible. What we want to know is what type of highway, under what conditions, can be practically and economically lighted.

What the American public needs is some standard by which to judge what they are getting; some measurement of what can be done in this modern day to make highways safer than they are. Whether such a safety model, or yardstick, is located in this state or another is of no importance. The important thing is that we do need a national precedent and example for all to follow. From that point of view, there could be no more fortunate choice than the highway leading to and from the country's capital. And the idea, as Commander Bair of Maryland, points out, is so fundamental that every state might well develop a model safety highway or highways.

Why not have one of our own?

The will of John Campbell of Chicago was dictated into a recording phonograph, with voices of notary and witnesses added, and the record will be filed in probate court upon his death.

Buggy Days

When me an' Ma was 'steppin' out
An' courtin' some, as well
We used t' go fer buggy rides
An' I'd drive—"Lady Belle,"
(A filly bred o' trottin' stock,
Clean-limbed, with four white feet)
An' seldom did we see a rig,
As speedy as our seat.

I had a bran' new buggy
With th' runnin' gears o' red;
An' I'd spend hours groovin'
Lady Belle from toe t' head;
An' when I'd plait her mane an'
tail,
An' brush 'em till they shone,
There weren't a prettier filly
In th' country, than that roan.

I bought a yellow lap-spread
Made with "fancy-work" designs,
An' had a ribbon on th' whip
An' "handholts" on th' lines;
An' Sunday nights, when I'd git Ma
T' take her fer a ride,
I couldn't feel no prouder
If a queen was by my side—

(Only I didn't call her "Ma").
But sometimes I'd "forget"
Her name, an' call her "Honey."
An' I often do that yet.

An' Lady Belle, she seemed t' know
That I was busy, see,
With courtin', so she drove herself,
Without much help from me.

We used t' go t' festivals
An' t' th' county fair;
An' sometimes t' camp meetin'—
Didn't make much difference where;
An' s'pose it did start in t' rain,
We'd seldom ever stop;
We kind o' liked t' hear t'
Patterin' on th' buggy top.

'Y' ever been out ridin'
When a storm come up at night;
An' buttoned up th' curtains
Of th' buggy, snug an' tight,
An' slowly jogged yer way along,
Through rain, or snow an' ice?—
If someone's tucked beside you
That y' like—It's mighty nice.

Why me an' Ma was talkin'
Just a night or two ago;
About th' new car that we bought,
An' Ma she says, "I know
It rides real nice, but I recall
To hitch up little 'Lady Belle,'
And take a buggy ride."

The Truth About Astrology

By LAWNE CULVER

Third Installment

"Well, what of it? Suppose I do have a fiery temperament or any other kind, what about it? What do I get out of your line, if anything? And can I push what I get under the wicket and see 'em chalk it up in my bank book?"

You're getting to be quite a tough guy, aren't you, brother, since the dizzy blond took you for all you had? Well, if you had known a little something about temperament, you would not have tried to mix yours and hers. There is nothing the matter with you—that is NOT MUCH. And the girl is a good girl as girls go. But fire and water simply don't mix.

If you had taken a glance, just a single little glance at her astro-map, you would—or should—have known better than to marry her. And if she had looked over your shoulder at your astro-map and compared it with her own, she would never have married you—unless, as you claim and I don't believe, she was working for alimony from first to last.

Learn From Experience
You may, if you insist, learn from experience. But that is a long, hard road. And we grow old. You may learn from observation and reason. That is not as hard, but it is long. And we grow old. Or you may learn from the experience, observation and reason of others. This is the way of the wise.

Throughout the ages the wise-men observed people—their temperaments and personality, their traits and tendencies of character—and have kept a record of what happened to them. This is a part of the Ancient Wisdom.

From this Ancient Wisdom we learn that an egg may become a chicken. And that the booby man may get you if you don't look out. The Ancient Wisdom does not tell you, however, pretend to know it all. It does not tell us from where in the egg, or from where in the world, come the chicken's feathers—or its teeth. But that's no reason for not learning all we can from it.

Money In Hukum
This writer is only a reporter. He is not, never has been, and never will be a professional fortune teller. If he were, he would leave in all the hukum—for that is where the money is. The fact that he is not a professional will make it more probable that you will really get the truth about astrology.

It seems to be true that this temperament business really does work out. Just as in nature fire will mix harmoniously with fire and with air, and will not mix at all with earth or with water, so a fiery temperament will mix with a fiery or an airy temperament but will not blend harmoniously with an earthy or a watery.

Earth will mix with earth and with water. Air will mix with air and with fire. Water will mix with water and with earth.

Danger In Missing
This does not mean that a person of fiery temperament will ALWAYS appreciate the remarks of a back-seat driver, even though such back-seat driver be of the same temperament.

Wilmington Chamber Of Commerce Issues Warning

"Falling for the high-powered solicitations now being operated in this city whereby people are being induced to sell securities they have and purchase whiskey warehouse receipts," is the introduction of an article denouncing the practice in the monthly bulletin issued by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce.

People are receiving requests to submit lists of their security holdings "for analysis" and those who are thoughtless enough to do so are visited by salesmen for whiskey receipts immediately. Then they are induced to transfer their holdings, and to sign powers of attorney, and, in at least one case reported to the Community Protective Service, attested signatures to sheets of perfectly blank paper. The danger in this is obvious.

Recently W. S. Alexander, Federal Alcohol Administrator, warned the general public against buying whiskey warehouse receipts. The Community Protective Service will appreciate prompt reports on operators in Newark.

Since the advent of the automobile, the horse has been given quite a pushing around, but now he has modern protection—a vertical safety shield that is fastened to his tail to prevent his being injured by automobiles approaching from the rear. It has reflectors, for night use, that are illuminated by a car's headlight.

SCREEN SNAPS

STATE THEATRE BRIEFS

Friday and Saturday
The rivalry between a famous pilot and a student flier over a girl, forms the romantic basis of "Sky Giant," RKO Radio's exciting new picture of modern aviation.

With Richard Dix sharing starring honors with Chester Morris and Joan Fontaine, the film is laid against a background of a big flying school, and reveals interesting sidelights on the training of student pilots. Harry Carey and Paul Guilfoyle play the chief supporting roles. Carey is the strict commandant of the school and Dix his right-hand man, an old-time flier with little sympathy for Carey's stern ideas of discipline. When Carey's son, Chester Morris, comes to the school as a student, the romantic and temperamental conflict begins. The stirring climax comes during an attempted mapping flight across Alaska for a new air route to Europe, and furnishes countless new thrills in screen entertainment.

Monday and Tuesday
Although it starts in a western locale, "Cowboy from Brooklyn," the Warner Bros. musical farce with Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell and Priscilla Lane in the featured roles, is definitely not a western picture, for it takes nothing in the western scene seriously.

It is a hilarious tale of the complications which ensue when a New York theatrical producer, played by O'Brien, comes to a Wyoming dude ranch and assumes that a trio of stranded eastern musicians who dress up in cowboy duds while they entertain the guests are authentic cowboys.

Taking the leader of the trio, played by Dick Powell, back to New York and launching him on a highly successful radio career as a cowboy crooner, he discovers his cowboy is really a Brooklyn youth who has never ridden a horse.

When an enemy of Dick's tries to expose him as a fake, Pat arranges to have the timid youth ride a bronco at a rodeo in Madison Square Garden, and, in a fantastic and delicious sequence of events, Pat manages to get his Flatbush cowboy to perform precisely as advertised.

Music is plentifully interspersed with the action. Some of the music consists of famous cowboy ballads, but the real melodic feature of the picture is the five new songs written for the production.

Wednesday and Thursday
The age-old triangle of a man and two women still finds novel and up-to-the-minute treatment in "Woman Against Woman."

In this instance the man, Herbert Marshall, is a husband, and the women, Virginia Bruce and Mary Astor, are his second and first wives, respectively, with the first determined that his marriage to the second shall not be a success.

A picturization of Margaret Culkin Banning's national magazine story, "Enemy Territory," the film presents a group of equally sparkling featured characterizations, among them Janet Beecher as Marshall's mother, Marjorie Rhamboe as a senator's wife responsible for the first meeting with Miss Bruce, Juanita Quigley as the child who complicates the problems of the leading trio, and also Zeffie Tilbury, Sarah Padden, Betty Ross Clarke, Dorothy Christy, Morgan Wallace and Joseph Crehan.

Mysterious and intrigue-ridden Morocco forms the romantic setting for Paramount's latest "Bulldog Drummond" adventure story, "Bulldog Drummond in Africa." When John Howard, playing the role of the intrepid amateur sleuth, learns that an international spy ring has kidnapped his best friend, "Colonel Nielson," he does not hesitate to leave England and track the thieves down in their Moroccan stronghold. The story, of course, comes from the pen of H. C. "Sapper" McNeile, creator of the ever-popular "Drummond" character.

BURR IS NEW HEAD OF LEGION

Mrs. J. P. Murphy Elected Head of Auxiliary

Dr. Samuel Eagle Burr, of New Castle, was elected state commander of the Department of Delaware, American Legion, at its annual convention held at Rehoboth on Friday and Saturday. Dr. Burr succeeds Daniel G. Conant, of Rehoboth.

The affair this year was held jointly with the State Department, Legion Auxiliary which selected Mrs. John P. Murphy, also of New Castle, as head for the ensuing year, succeeding Mrs. Calvin E. Afferbach, of Georgetown.

Other Legion officers elected were: Historian, William White, Wilmington; chaplain, the Rev. Lawrence McCarthy, Wilmington; sergeant-at-arms, Bernard Young, Smyrna; national executive committee, former-State Commander Edward A. Mulrooney, Wilmington; alternate, former-State Commander George D. Hill, of Dover.

Other new Auxiliary officers are: First vice-president, Mrs. Park W. Huntington, Wilmington; second vice-president, Miss Mildred Jones, Dover; third vice-president, Mrs. Duane Lynn, Milford; recording secretary, Miss Jessie Morris, Wilmington; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Burton, Seaford; chaplain, Mrs. Gertrude McSherry, Dover; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Charles Gallagher, Wilmington.

Resolutions Adopted

Among the resolutions adopted by the convention were: state-wide civil service for all non-elective state jobs; work among the Boy Scouts; the localization of death claims service; establishment of a new veterans medical hospital in this area to supplement the work of the rehabilitation hospitals at Perry Point, Md., and Chestersville, Pa.; appreciation to employers who have given jobs to veterans during the past year; praise of the work of the state and local police; endorsement of American Education Week in November; establishment of free death, birth and marriage certificates for veterans in making out claims; a ruling that resolutions in the future must be submitted to the state commander 10 days before the convention.

Appreciation Expressed

Appreciation to the press for publicity; to the town of Rehoboth Beach for hospitality; to Hotel Belhaven for facilities offered for the convention; to the Delaware Legislature for having passed a number of bills sponsored by the Legion at the last session, and to state officials for their participation in the girls and boys state program.

A recommendation that next year's meeting be a one-day affair was voted down, the assemblage voting to hold the 1939 convention in Rehoboth Beach, the week-end after Labor Day.

In his yearly report to the convention, retiring Commander Conant urged consolidation of state welfare agencies to prevent overlapping of effort. He declared funds received from the federal government by Delaware are not being distributed properly or economically.

Closer and more active cooperation with other veterans' organizations, especially the Veterans of For-sign Wars, was also recommended by Mr. Conant.

At a meeting of the Legionnaires Schoolmasters' Club, Dr. Burr was elected president; Harold Whiteside, principal of the Delmar School, vice-president; Lyle Howlds, state supervisor of agriculture, Dover, secretary and treasurer.

Ban Book
The club adopted resolutions favoring increases in salaries of teachers, favoring the teachers' retirement plan, and condemning a book, "The American Legion as Educator," by William Gellerman.

Past Commander John R. Fader was appointed a member of the department advisory board and will also serve as chairman of the committee on law enforcement and civic order. He will also serve on the boys' state for 1939, and legislative committees.

Other local men appointed to serve are: A. E. Tomhave, athletics and junior baseball and war orphans chairman; Harry Herberner, arrangements for 1939 convention; Floyd Jackson, safety chairman; W. C. Brewer, credit union committee and post activities; J. Q. Smith, athletics and junior baseball; F. A. Cooch, Jr., distinguished guest chairman and legislative; and Carroll W. Mumford, community service.

Auxiliary Committees

Committees appointed by Mrs. Afferbach, retiring head, to serve at the Auxiliary convention were: Resolutions—Mrs. C. M. Dillon, Wilmington, chairman, Mrs. Paul D. Lovett, Newark, and Mrs. Charles Calhoun, Georgetown; rules—Mrs. Edward A. Banner, Fort Du Pont, chairman, Mrs. Hazel Hopkins, Dover, and Mrs. Alex Gallagher, New Castle; credentials—Mrs. J. Harvey Dickey, Newark, chairman, Mrs. Fred Burton, Seaford, and Mrs. Lee Deakne, Smyrna; history review—Mrs. Anthony Summers, Milford, chairman, Mrs. Emma Sayers, Wilmington, and Mrs. Clara Steele, Rehoboth; poppy poster contest—Mrs. Charles Gallagher, Wilmington, chairman, Mrs. Conrad K. D. Lewis, Newark, and Mrs. E. A. Mulrooney, Wilmington.

Naval plates were presented by the Department to Mrs. Harry S. Gabriel, of Newark, recording secretary, and Miss Jessie Morris, of Wilmington, corresponding secretary.

A committee, consisting of Mesdames George Hill and Harry McSherry, of Dover, and C. M. Dillon, of Wilmington, and John R. Fader, of Newark, was appointed to revise the constitution.

Memorial services for deceased members, conducted by the Rev. L. W. McCarthy, assisted by Mrs. H. C. McSherry, immediately followed the luncheon Saturday afternoon.

Watch 'Em Yell!

Fans here, if they take enough interest in what is transpiring around them, will probably do some wailing over the fact that a Newark team is participating in a play-off series for the Bi-State League pennant, yet none of the title games are to be played in Newark.

It is an unusual state of affairs but the fans have only themselves to blame. Following the first of the three-game series in Oxford Sunday, the remaining battles are slated for Havre de Grace on succeeding Sundays. The reason? Oxford and Darlington played to a 6-6 draw at Oxford two weeks back while the same teams cashed in to the extent of $116 at Havre de Grace last Sunday.

The Jackets' best return for a single game at Continental Field this season was under $40, which was the only time the "gate" exceeded twenty snappers. No official figures have been released for publication, but it's a cinch that the average return to the Newark club for Bi-State games at Continental Field this summer is well below $15.

Reserve Has Vanished

At the outset of the present campaign, Huey Morris and John Murray, who, among others, collaborated in reviving baseball here two years ago, presented the current Bi-State League team with a neat "nest egg" that exceeded $200.

That sum, which should have been carried as a reserve fund, has entirely disappeared. On top of that the team is in debt. Lack of sufficient returns at Continental Field to meet ordinary operating expenses such as umpires' salaries, baseballs, bats, gasoline for traveling, and numerous miscellaneous items, plus the selfishness of some players who insisted that they be paid for highly questionable performances, have combined to leave the team dead broke and in debt.

The forthcoming series should, theoretically, pull the Jackets out of their financial difficulty and leave a balance with which to start the 1939 season. But that balance for another year will not exist. The players, unmindful of any desire they might have to play ball in 1939, will grab anything and everything, after the bills are paid, for themselves.

Meanwhile, 1938 will go down as the year in which local baseball followers hesitated to throw support to a team that possessed the class to play its way into a championship series, while fans in Oxford, Havre de Grace, and outlying sections provided funds for its obligations.

Should Be Interesting

Providing Shorty Chalmers can keep his charges going at the pace they set in trimming Elmhurst last Saturday, a pair of tilts should be captured by the local contingent ere the first snow falls.

Scheduled to face Elmhurst at Newport this Saturday in the final second-half game in the New Castle County League, Chalmers' "buds," known as Continental-Diamond and Newark in the County circuit and Newark in the Bi-State, need only to duplicate their performance of last week in order to capture both

Bill Fletcher

WHEN COACH WILLIAM K. GILLESPIE ISSUED HIS 1938 CALL for football candidates he couldn't have expected quite the response given, for fifty-five aspirants to grid berths were given the physical examination.

The squad, which numbers between forty-five and fifty, is composed chiefly of juniors and seniors, however, many of whom have had no football experience and the Jackets' mentor is faced with the problem of developing this green material.

Because these boys have waited too long before making their bids for grid positions, they become practically useless to the high school coach who finds it practically impossible, except in rare instances where the candidate has natural ability, to prepare him for inter-scholastic competition.

THE MANY TRICKS OF THE TRADE which can be tabulated mentally though not performed physically due to the freshman's lack of size, could be mastered by reporting for drills and observing the varsity players go through their workouts. Thus, the new candidate, after learning the rules and observing the actual performance of fundamentals and the running of plays, would not be entirely foreign to the sport.

He would know how even though he couldn't execute and this would go a long way toward preparing him for a varsity berth.

Perhaps a football school, conducted a couple of nights a week throughout the season, might serve to bring this interest to a head more quickly.

THROUGH THIS PLAN, PERHAPS boys could be given the confidence to report for junior varsity work, after which his thoughts automatically turn to making the varsity team.

However, there are nine lettermen at the high school around which to create a good aggregation and local

Oxford To Battle Jackets In Series

Dr. P. K. Musselman Trophy Captured By 'Noach' Bredemeier

DARLINGTON WALLOPED, 9-2, IN PLAY-OFF GAME

Aiken In Top Form Stops Blues; John And Stan Bailey Victims Of Rout; Jim Yerkes And Older Bailey Slam Circuit Smashes

By "The Roamer"

Clustering twelve solid base smashes into three scoring innings, Taylor Biles' Oxford Maroons routed Darlington, 9-2, Sunday at Havre de Grace to win the Bi-State League's second-half pennant. With 464 fans checking in at the gate, the one-game play-off was witnessed by the largest gathering to view a Bi-State battle in two years.

Aiken In Form

Behind the stellar hurling of George (Sadie) Aiken, the Maroons bunched their blows to register a pair of runs in the fourth, added six in the fifth, and closed with their final run in the eighth.

Limited to six hits, two of which were of the scratch variety, the Blues were checked without a run until Stan Bailey dropped a long fly over the left field wall for a homer in the eighth. Darlington's final tally, counted in the ninth, was a "gift." Lloyd singled, went to second unhampered, took third on Wilson's out, and romped home while Aiken held the ball without desiring to make a play.

The brothers Bailey—John and Stan—failed to stop the Maroons' forcible attack once it swung into action. John, the starting member of the duo, got along without granting a hit for three innings, but came to grief in the fourth. He was routed from the hill in the fifth with the score standing at 3-0. Oxford runners on first and second, and none away.

Jim Yerkes Homers

Two were out in the fourth when the first Oxford explosion burst over the Darlington camp. Woodworth rapped a solid single to left for the Maroons' first hit. He stole second and was safe on a close play. Scotten shot a blow at Lloyd that almost carried him from his feet. The ball rolled to left for a single as Woodworth raced home. Scotten took second on the play.

Ray Goldie followed with a long drive that caromed off the left field barrier. Scotten scored, but Goldie was erased at second when he attempted to stretch his hit to a double, Wilson to Jourdan.

Jim Yerkes, leading off for the Maroons in the fifth, banged a home club over the fence in distant center field for a home run. Aiken singled to left. When Richardson singled to short right center, John Bailey was removed, after giving up six straight hits, and Stan Bailey took the hill.

Rally Continues

Unmindful of the change in fingers, the Maroons continued on their merry way. Don Yerkes greeted Stan with a sacrifice bunt that advanced Aiken and Richardson. Lloyd made a good play on Myers' roller, holding Aiken at third and getting the best runner at first.

With two away and Maroons on second and third, instead of passing the ever dangerous Larry Preston, Bailey elected to pitch to him. Preston responded with a bounding single over second that counted Aiken and Richardson.

Woodworth walked and Scotten beat out a roller to Morris for a hit to crowd the corners. On a three-and-two pitch and with all runners in motion, Goldie singled to center, scoring Preston, Woodworth, and Scotten.

Jim Yerkes, making his second appearance of the inning at the plate, rolled out to Jobs to end the rout.

Series Starts Sunday

The Maroons tagged their final run in the eighth after two were out. Richardson started things with a single and went to third when Joe Conroy, who had replaced Don Yerkes in the line-up, rolled a double down the left field foul line.

Jackie Myers followed with a sharp blow that Ward knocked down but could not handle. It went for a hit as Richardson crossed the rubber.

With baseball interest in Newark at the lowest ebb in years, the title series will be played in Oxford and Havre de Grace. The first contest of the three-game series is scheduled for Cooper Field, Oxford, on Sunday.

The second and third encounters, if the series goes the limit, will be battled out at Riverman's Field, Havre de Grace, on Sunday, September 25, and Sunday, October 2. All series games will get under way at 2:15 standard time.

HOPES FOR PENNANTS

Ellis Pennock Cullen

Veteran business manager of the Continental-Diamond Fibre Company team, which represents Newark in the New Castle County League, and the Yellowjackets, local entry in the Bi-State League, Cullen is hopeful of nabbing pennants in both circuits. A victory for the Fibremen, who won the first half, over Elmhurst at Newport Saturday will win the second-half and title honors for the season in the county wheel. The Jackets, winners of the first half, open a three-game series at Oxford Sunday for the Bi-State's 1938 gonfalon.

BI-STATE PLAY-OFF

Jackets Engage Maroons; Three Games Carded

Oxford's "marauding Maroons," who outgamed Darlington and Elmhurst in a great stretch fight for the second-half title in the 1938 Bi-State League race, are primed for action as they go through their final paces in preparation for the three-game championship series with Newark's Yellowjackets.

Finishing third in the first half, the Maroons played in-and-out ball at the outset of the closing portion of the race. Under the astute guidance of Taylor Biles, who took full charge of the brigade less than six weeks ago, however, the Pennsylvanians suddenly came to life and swept through the final round of games without a setback.

Bel Air, Aberdeen, and Elkton were defeated in order. Newark was victimized, and in the final game of the half, the Maroons faced Darlington to deadlock the race. In the play-off game at Havre de Grace last Sunday, it was Oxford from beginning to end as Clarence Ward's Blues went down under a 9-to-2 score.

Although the season has been a costly one financially for every team in the loop, the forthcoming series is expected to draw goodly crowds. Due to the poor attendance in Newark and the fact that no closed field is available, the Jackets will perform as the "home" team in the first game at Oxford Sunday.

The second series battle, and the third, if it goes the limit, will be played in Havre de Grace on September 25 and October 2. Final arrangements for the series were announced last Sunday following a meeting between President Thomas T. Preston, Secretary Lee Johnson, Taylor Biles, for Oxford, and Ellis

FIBREMEN TROUNCE ELMHURST

Deaver's Hurling Features 9-To-0 Play-Off Triumph

Bill Deaver's three-hit pitching and timely clotting by the Fibremen ensemble proved too much for Elmhurst last Saturday afternoon at Continental Field as the local contingent pounded out a 9-to-0 victory to deadlock the double round-robin series for the second-half in the New Castle County League.

A home run by Manager Shorty Chalmers with two mates aboard in the third was the big punch of the afternoon. Chalmers led the 14-hit onslaught that drove Masarik well up the hill in the fourth and kept Schmusser in a turmoil over the balance of the route.

In addition to his homeric belt, Chalmers had a single and double, was hit by a pitched ball, stole a base, scored a run, and drove three more across the pentagon. He also handled six chances afield without a bobble and started the only double play of the fracas.

Deaver At Peak

Pitching brilliantly throughout the contest, Deaver spaced Elmhurst's three bingles with the exactness of an engineer. Only one visitor got as far as second. Wilson opened the eighth with a single to center and advanced a base when Walker was hit by a pitched ball, but Russell and Hatcherson fanned and Cloud popped out to Conway to end the lone Elmhurst threat.

Although he only fanned one opponent in the first five innings, Deaver, who grew stronger as the game progressed, had a total of eight strike-outs. When he whiffed the side in the ninth, he ran his string to five in the last two innings.

Ferris Wharton returned to second base with a bang. He had three of the Fibremen's hits, including a pair of doubles, scored two runs, and disposed of seven plays in the field. Conway and Sheats were two-hit batsmen, while every man in the local line-up, except Argo, had one or more bingles.

Masarik Fanned

Checked in the first two frames, the Jackets' attack was sparked by Wharton's Texas League single at the outset of the third. Deaver sacrificed Wharton to second, but Ed-

P. Cullen, representing Newark.

Roberts To Play

With the return of Dick Roberts from Milford, the Jackets will be greatly strengthened for the series. Roberts' eligibility was threshed out Sunday and he will likely handle the tosses of Paul Whiteman and Reggie Conway, who are scheduled to divide the hurling duties.

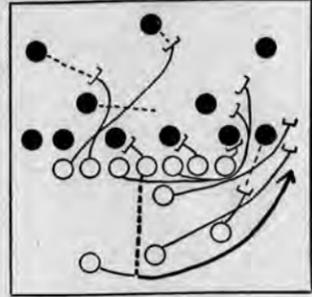

Biles will depend largely on his ace curve-ball artist, George (Sadie) Aiken, who pitched the Maroons to the second-half flag.

Shorty Chalmers, Jackets' pilot, sent his forces through two mid-week practice sessions in an effort to whip them into the form that carried them through the first-half race without a defeat.

Although the team slumped badly in the second half, the return of Whiteman to the local hill and Roberts back of the bat is expected to be the tonic that will carry the Jackets into the thick of the scrap.

TOUCH-DOWN TACTICS

ORANGE BOWL GAME . . . by Jack Meagher, Head Football Coach, Alabama Polytechnical Institute

This is the first of a series of six outstanding diagram plays by leading college coaches from Grantland Rice's new Cities Service Football Guide.

NO SOUTHERN TEAM HAD MADE A SCORE IN THE ORANGE BOWL IN THE FOUR YEARS THE NEW YEAR'S DAY GAME HAD BEEN PLAYED.

Our squad felt that they had to beat the Jinks as well as the powerful Michigan State team, led by Johnny Pringel, fast and hard hitting halfback. Auburn went into the game with the odds against them. Michigan outweighed Auburn ten pounds to the man. From the snap of the first ball our team played heads up football. Our line charged hard and refused to give ground when on the defensive. Fenton and Kelly led the attack and before the first quarter was over we had the ball on Michigan State's twelve yard line. This deep penetration of the opponent's territory, with the ability to stop Pringel, seemed to be the turning point of the game.

Late in the second quarter we were deep in Michigan State's territory where we sustained a penalty which placed us on the Michigan 30 yard line. Kenmore received the ball and dropped back and threw a pass to O'Gwynne, who carried it to the two yard line before he was brought down.

After two unsuccessful attempts to cross the Michigan goal line the play diagrammed above was called. It is an End Run from Notre Dame T-Formation, which usually precedes the shift into the Notre Dame Box. The defensive set-up is the normal strong defensive arrangement against this formation.

The play is an end run from the T-Formation and is optional, either inside or outside the defensive end. Like every other good play the success of this one will depend largely upon the effect other plays, immediately preceding it, have made upon the defense. It has the maximum interference ahead of the ball carrier; it develops fast and tends to catch the defense off balance.

Quick opening plays from the same formation, or plays after the shift into the Notre Dame formation, usually precede this play to get the best effect. It is a good weapon inside the ten-yard line of an opponent.

Auburn used the play on the Michigan State two-yard line on third down for a score. Quick opening plays had been used with our full-back Siltz, taking the ball inside tackle on the first and second down. Marlon Walker, our quarterback, called on little Ralph O'Gwynne, right halfback, and he carried the ball over for the only score of the Orange Bowl game at Miami. Auburn piled up 12 first downs to Michigan State's 2, made 197 yards to 40 on the ground and 51 to 25 through the air.

State Board Of Health To Conduct Examination Of School Athletes

In order not to delay inter-school sports, the State Board of Health, at its monthly meeting early last week, decided to schedule physical examinations of athletes at the first item on the school health program for the 1938-39 season. To expedite this program, they plan to limit these examinations to those athletes participating in games played between schools.

Immunizations against diphtheria will also be moved up, and are scheduled to follow immediately after the examinations of athletes. This change is being made in order to gain protection for the children as soon as possible. If they are immunized by October, they can be considered as protected in December, which is the next month in which much increase in the incidence of diphtheria can be expected.

Regular Examinations

After the completion of the immunization program, the regular school-wide examinations will be conducted. The programs of previous years have scheduled these examinations in advance of the immunizations.

The examinations have as their purpose the discovery, insofar as possible, of the discovery of any ailments of which parents should be warned, and the barring from strenuous physical activities of any children whose conditions make them incapable of such exercise.

Diphtheria immunization work in Delaware has decreased its toll from 204 cases and 30 deaths in 1925 to 30 cases and one death in 1937. During the same years, all the diphtheria deaths, and almost all the reported cases have been among the un-immunized portion of the population.

Western College Athletes Star In Conference

The athletes of Western State Teachers' College of Illinois are well pleased, thank you, with their year's sports work.

Western won the Little 100 championship in basketball, baseball and golf. Sidney Simpson, of Western, was the individual golf champion.

Western's baseball team was unusual in that it had two sets of brothers, Glen and Junior Willard, of Pittsfield, play shortstop and second base. Jack and Bob Kraushaar, of Warsaw, play left and center fields, respectively.

Armour's Out Of Bounds Bounces For Hole-In-One

Very few golf professionals have made more hole-in-one shots than the veteran Tommy Armour, who has had 5 aces.

Once Tommy hit a ball out of bounds. It struck a rock, bounced back onto the green and rolled into the cup.

50 GRID ASPIRANTS AT N. H. S.

Facing one of the hardest schedules in the history of the school and with one of the lightest classes in recent years, Coach W. K. Gillespie remained optimistic, however, as he sent his Newark High School grid candidates through their first scrimmage on Tuesday afternoon.

Coach Gillespie Pleased With Large Turnout

Fifty candidates, including nine lettermen and eighteen members of the 1937 junior varsity squad, are going through daily workouts in order to reach peak condition for the tilt with Millville High School on September 24.

50 Candidates Report

Fifty candidates, including nine lettermen and eighteen members of the 1937 junior varsity squad, are going through daily workouts in order to reach peak condition for the tilt with Millville High School on September 24.

CLIPPER CANDIDATE

Tommy Ryan, varsity star of the Washington College athletic star who rounded out a brilliant football and track career last year, is showing up well in pre-season workouts as a candidate for a backfield berth with the Wilmington Clippers, claimants to the 1937 world's independent professional football crown.

Red Devils In Shape For New Grid Campaign

Under the guidance of Coach Jimmy Walsh, the Fort DuPont Red Devils are making strides toward another championship team this year. With a daily schedule of scrimmage sessions, the squad of forty candidates is rounding into excellent trim for the opening game with the Naval Receiving Station from Washington, D. C., at Delaware City on September 25.

County League

The 1938 backfield at Fort DuPont indicates speed as the keynote of a diversified attack. Bender, Beck, Batt, Bings, and Zano, all veterans of the football wars, will carry the hopes of the soldier eleven on the offense.

Line To Be Heavy

Early scrimmage sessions this week showed marked improvement in the Red Devils' passing attack. Timing of plays, which has been a sore spot for Coach Walsh since the outset of the pre-season drills two weeks ago, shows great improvement.

Game On Saturday

Continental's final run was chalked up in the seventh. Argo walked, Wharton doubled, and Deaver singled for the score. Cloud's fine throw landed Wharton at the plate for the first out. With Deaver on first, Edmanson dropped an ordinarily clean single in center, but Hacherson fumbled the ball in a hurry to retire the lumbering Deaver at second.

Constitution Day

"Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair. The event is in the hand of God."

In these clear and reverent words, George Washington expressed the hopes of the men who wrote our Constitution during the historic summer of 1787.

Now, as America celebrates again the anniversary of the signing, we realize how faithfully the Founders adhered to Washington's high aspiration.

Now, as the nation considers anew the progress made under our Constitution, in growth, in prestige and in the freedom and well-being of our people, we realize how well those Founders earned the tribute.

For while the delegates to the Federal Constitutional Convention realized the difficulties ahead, their hopes were high. Throughout the deliberations there sounded constantly the clear note of insistence that here, in the United States, should be established a true government, should be, by and for the people. Their recorded words attest this determination.

"In free government," pronounced that wise and venerable delegate, Benjamin Franklin, "the rulers are the servants and the people their superiors and sovereigns."

"The majority of the people, wherever found, ought in all questions to govern," declared James Wilson, of Pennsylvania. Authority and responsibility rest on the legitimate source of all authority, the mind of the people at large.

"The genius of republican liberty seems to demand that all power should be derived from the people," said James Madison, of Virginia.

Constitution Day serves as a reminder of the principles on which our nation was founded. Under the great Charter it honors, we the People are assured both liberty and power. And through every generation, the responsibility rests on us to hold high that standard of liberty which, 151 years ago, George Washington urged and the Founders raised at historic Independence Hall.

Time Out-- For Thought

any persons agree that the end and purpose of man's life is happiness, or pleasure; but the majority interpret "pleasure" as meaning physical pleasure only, the gratification of physical senses. Physical pleasures are illusory, transient—they are not sought in their own right. At first glance this does not appear true, until we reflect that such pleasures arise from the doing away with some annoyance, irritation, desire, or appetite.

Physical pleasures, Epicurus said, are like those that come from the scratching of an itch. You first must have the itch before you can have the pleasure of scratching it. The longer it is scratched the less the pleasure, the less the itch returns, and the only way to intensify such pleasure is to increase the severity of the itch! That is why we find so many persons with jaded appetites who find life dull and monotonous. They have scratched every itch they have and there are no more physical pleasures left.

But pleasures of the mind are sought for their own sakes. If we create in the mind an ideal, set a goal—whether in music, art, the building of a business or home-making—these pleasures are never dimmed, because as we approach the ideal it gradually changes and transcends its former self. We are still drawn because we have not quite reached the goal!

Plato said that man can best judge between pleasures of the body and the mind by indulging in both, and thus learning their relative merits.

Safety Hints

According to the Delaware Safety Council, the alarming toll of fatalities taken by automobile traffic each year will shrink to comparatively small proportions if anyone ever discovers some device which will make human beings act in their automobiles just as they act when they are walking.

Anyone who doubts that statement is invited to consider the strange change that comes over the average American as soon as he gets behind the wheel of his car. On foot, the American is usually a general good-natured more or less leisurely sort of chap. He would like to walk on a sidewalk that isn't crowded, but that isn't always possible and he makes the best of it. When he has to walk through a crowd he takes his time at it and makes due allowance for the feelings of others. Unless he has some special reason for being in a great hurry, he doesn't jostle and push and strain every nerve to get ahead of everybody else.

Transformation Seizes Him Set him to driving an automobile, however, and a great transformation seizes him. Instead of taking his time he gets in a life-and-death hurry. He will cheerfully risk his neck to gain a ten-second advantage, and when another car passes him he sees red. His consideration for others vanishes and he wants with all of his soul to be at the head of the procession and to stay there.

In consequence, the traffic stream on an American highway often resembles a procession of irritated lunatics. The driver who cheerfully gives way to another is the rare exception and the driver who goes along leisurely gets cursed from every side. All of this not only takes a lot of fun out of driving, but it also makes traffic the dangerous thing that it is.

Some way must be found to induce ourselves to act with ordinary human courtesy and common sense while we are driving our automobiles. Safety in driving after all, is largely a matter of courtesy and common sense. In most fields Americans exhibit these two qualities in quite satisfactory quantities. Why is it that we tend to shed one or both of them when we go driving?

Safety In Schools Last week, 45,000 Delaware boys and girls started another school term. Although an academic knowledge is their ultimate goal, it is of the utmost importance that they be able to utilize their knowledge when adults, and be able to enjoy the fruits of their work. In every phase of life, safety is becoming increasingly important. In the schools it is beginning to find its rightful place as a standard item in the curriculum. The school of today is teaching children not only how to develop his mind and work, but also how to stay alive.

The Delaware Safety Council stimulated the promotion of safety education in the schools of Delaware and the outcome has been encouraging.

The children have been trained to avoid accidents to themselves and to prevent accidents to others. Automatic Application They have acquired a certain fund of information and the ability to apply this knowledge to the situation automatically. Safety education considered from this point of view is certainly justified when it results in a substantial reduction of accidents to people receiving such teaching. It means something more than the prevention of accidents. It means also the conservation of all that goes to make life worth while: "Health, Opportunity, and the Material Resources upon which life is dependent." Safety is the opposite of waste.

With this point of view in mind we can readily see that a safety program is essential, both for children and adult. Statistics show that the number of accidents to children have decreased considerably since the introduction of safety campaigns. This is an indication that they have learned from these campaigns to conduct themselves more safely.
