Mrs. Handloff and their two children remain at their home on Dallam Road. Before his induction into the service, Mr. Handloff was quite active in local civic affairs. INCREASED POSTAL RATE EFFECTIVE ON SUNDAY

Local Two-Cent Rate Dropped; Parcel Post Rates Up

The increased postal rates, ordered in a recently passed tax bill, will be placed in effect next Sunday, March 26, on which date the post offices may have the additional task of returning thousands of letters with insufficient postage to persons who fail to familiarize themselves with the new rates.

The changes which most affect the general public are the increase from two to three cents of the cost of mailing a letter within the city, the increase from 6 to 8 cents an ounce for domestic and commercial air mail within the country, and increased rates on parcel post and registered mail.

"The simplest thing to remember," says Postmaster C. E. Rittenhouse, "is that beginning Sunday there will be no more 2 cent postal rate, and no change in the air mail rate to service men which is 6 cents each half-ounce. Otherwise air mail will take a rate of 8 cents an ounce, for which a special stamp is now in preparation. Regular out of town postage remains unchanged."

A graduate of Duke University in the class of 1931, Martin came to the university from Kentucky Military Institute, Lyndon, Ky., to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Joseph A. BUNGALOW DESTROYED BY FIRE

$3,000 Loss Covered By Insurance

The one story frame bungalow owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Thornton at Roseville Park on the Capitol Trail was destroyed by fire Monday morning.

Mrs. Thornton had left the house to go to the highway after her mail and as she was returning she saw smoke and flames coming from the building. Neighbors sent in a call to the Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder Company but by the time the firemen arrived the entire building was ablaze.

Firemen, directed by Chief Ellison, confined their efforts to saving nearby buildings after they found that the Thornton home was too far gone to do any good. The loss was believed to run to close to $3,000 including the home and contents as nothing was saved. The loss is covered by insurance.

Chief Ellison stated that had the wind shifted other homes in the vicinity would have been destroyed. The Thornton home was a one story, five room house and being constructed of frame was quickly burned to the ground. It was stated that the family used oil stoves to heat the home and there is a possibility that the fire was caused by an overheated stove.

State License Plates Seen in Every State

The Delaware State License plate will be recognizable in every state in the union despite the gasoline shortages which now exist. The State Highway Department has had embossed on their stationery, a copy of the state license along with the inserts to be used throughout this year and 1945.

The illustration shows the plate in black and white with the blue on gold for 1944 insert. Accompanying inserts for 1945 in gold on blue, 6-30 in green, 9-30 in red and 12-31 in brown are also shown.

Thus state officials and traffic officers throughout the nation will become familiar with the Delaware license plate, if not from seeing them attached to the rear fender of a car, at least on a desk or a bulletin board.

Beer's Alcohol Drops To 3.3, Paper Reports

The New York Herald Tribune says it has learned from members of the brewing industry that the alcoholic strength of civilian beer has dropped to 3.3 per cent, or within one tenth of one per cent of the 3.2 beer sold just before the full repeal of prohibition.

The reduction in alcoholic content has been made in an effort to stretch raw materials and fill the large gap between supply and demand, according to the Herald Tribune.

A year ago, the average strength of American beer, the paper added, was slightly more than four per cent, with some individual beers running over six per cent.

Here's a very funny thing about War Bonds

It's a FUNNY THING, but many people still have the wrong slant on War Bonds.

These people think that when they buy a Bond, they're giving, or donating their money to the war.

You might say they have a grin-and-bear-it attitude about all their War Bond purchases.

Well, that's a strange attitude. Because while buying Bonds is patriotic, and while it is necessary to help the Government pay for planes and tanks and guns, it is not a personal sacrifice.

In fact, buying a War Bond is just about the most advantageous thing you can possibly do with your money.

Why?

You couldn't make a safer investment. The Government itself backs every dollar you invest.

And the Government pays a good, sound rate of interest—you get $4 back for every $3 you put in.

That means that when the war is over, everybody who's been buying War Bonds will have a comfortable financial backlog—a backlog that will help him do such things as build a home, send his children to school, and travel.

And, finally, by investing the money that otherwise would be burning a hole in our pockets these days, we're helping to keep down the cost of living.

So it's a very funny thing that some people still think they're giving their money when they invest it in a War Bond.

Let's all KEEP BACKING THE ATTACK!

DELAWARE FARM FRONT THIS WEEK

Publications, Broadcasts Aid To Gardeners

Most Delaware gardeners have in the past received publications from the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service giving complete information on gardening. For those who do not have copies of any of those publications, the following are available upon request from the Extension Service in Newark, Dover, or Georgetown:

Wartime Extension Folder No. 5, "Vegetable Gardening for Victory", is a concise presentation of all basic steps in gardening, particularly good for beginners, since it is brief and covers all phases of gardening.

Extension Bulletin No. 34, "Home Vegetable Gardening", is a more complete publication with specific recommendations for various vegetable crops.

Information Card No. 49, "Delaware Garden Planting Calendar", lists varieties best suited to Delaware, planting dates, planting distances, etc.

Extension Bulletin No. 38, "Home Canning in Delaware", gives complete information on canning various vegetables and fruits.

Mimeo Circular No. 27, "Quick Freezing of Delaware Farm Products", gives brief but complete instructions for freezing all foods.

Sample plans for gardens 30 x 30 feet, 50 x 100 feet, and 100 by 200 feet are available.

We have heard much of the low-point, no-point foods recently. Making use of these foods is part of the overall "Food Fights For Freedom" program.

Foods which are scarce and foods which are needed for military forces both at home and overseas and for lend-lease are high in points because the supplies for civilians are less plentiful. Since we have a limited number of points, we cannot buy large quantities of those foods.

But, according to Miss Pearl Macdonald, extension nutritionist for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, that does not mean that we cannot be just as well fed. The nutritional value of a food does not depend upon whether it is scarce or plentiful, but upon what nature put into it.

Foods which are abundant now and require no points or have low point values are eggs, peanut butter, cabbage, and potatoes.

Eggs are one of our best protein foods to build and keep muscle and other tissues in repair. They can take the place of meat and cheese. They are point free and cost less than meat per unit of food value.

Peanut butter, too, is one of our protein foods of good quality, and like eggs can be used to take the place of meat and cheese. Like eggs, too, peanut butter is point free.

Then there is cabbage. The fresh green cabbage now on the market is a standby which may be served in many ways either raw or cooked.

Potatoes we have in great abundance. They are a good source of iron as well as a fine energy food.

We can make another contribution to the war effort by using the abundant foods and cutting down our use of those which are needed for military use and shipment overseas—it is just as patriotic as buying war bonds.

Farmers who buy most of their gas for off-highway use at filling stations should exchange R coupons for E coupons between March 15 and April 1.

More than 7500 Delaware farmers have signed up for the 1944 soil conservation and war food production program of the Delaware Agricultural Adjustment Agency, according to State Chairman Clarence E. Ocheltree. Community committees are now holding meetings in their communities to obtain farm plans from another 1500 co-operation farmers. Those were planned at county meetings of the committees last week.

Miles T. Mills, Cedar Neck farmer, was the first AAA community committee member to obtain a 100 percent sign-up in his district this year.

PROPOSED LEGISLATION FOR SPECIAL ASSEMBLY

Six Probable Bills Pertain Residents In Armed Service

It is believed there will be about six measures presented to the special session of the Delaware legislature when it meets on Friday, all pertaining to members of the armed forces.

Four of the measures will be amendments to the existing election laws in order to make it possible for the armed forces from Delaware who are eligible to vote, to have ballots for the general election.

Another of the measures will provide exemption for members of the armed forces from the state income tax laws for income up to $3,000, and this exemption is expected to be made available for 1943 incomes since the deadline for the state income tax returns is April 30.

The other measure will contain the state's acceptance of the Federal Vocational Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1943.

General indications are that the special session will be able to complete all of its work in one day. The officers who served during the regular session in 1943 are expected to serve for the special session with a skeleton staff of attaches.

In addition to acting upon the measures as outlined above the Senate will also have an executive session to consider the appointments made by Governor Walter W. Bacon since the regular session adjourned.

The action of the special session of the legislature will not make it possible for all voters from Delaware now in the armed service to vote, since those who are not registered cannot be qualified, but anyone who has been registered is on the permanent roll.

The amendments to be enacted by the special session will use the existing absentee voter's law as a basis for the soldier vote. Provision will be made for the ballots to be printed in September, about six weeks earlier than usual, and also for the registration of members of the armed forces at any time they are home on leave.

These members of the armed service who were registered and voted at the 1942 general election are still on the registration books but no provision can be made to take care of those persons who have been in the armed forces earlier than 1942 or who became of age, unless they have an opportunity to get home and be registered before the election.

TRACK PRICES BOOSTED

The New York State Racing Commission announced plans increased admission prices at all race tracks in the state because of the increase in federal taxes. Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the commission, said general admission will be $1.60 instead of $1.50, and clubhouse admissions will be $4.30 instead of $4.

FARM LABOR INFORMATION REQUIRED AT EARLY DATE

County Agents Seek Data To Combat Shortage Of Manpower

"We're going to make every effort to supply Delaware farmers the labor they need to produce this year's essential foods," said J. Frank Gordy, emergency farm labor supervisor for the Delaware Agricultural Extension Service, upon returning from a regional labor meeting in New York. "But before we can do much planning on the labor supply, we have to know about how much labor farmers are going to need this year, when they will need it, and for what types of work."

Mr. Gordy went on to say that changes in these requests might be necessary later in the season when the farmer can see more accurately how his crops are going to turn out. However, as a guide in finding the labor supply, leaders in the farm labor program must know approximately needs soon.

Farmers are being asked to give this information to county agricultural agents at once. Requests should not be over or underestimated, but as nearly accurate as possible at this time. This is the first essential step to meeting farm labor needs, and the same privileges of use by whoever needs and requests this labor first will apply this year.

Farmers will again need to use inexperienced labor for much of their work. Needs for farm labor are bigger this year and experienced workers are fewer. More help will be necessary from vacationists, people who have not been employed or who have been in non-essential industries, and boys and girls, all of whom will be inexperienced. Last year's results from use of these people were very good, however. With proper training they did a good job and can do much more this year.

Farmers did not make full use of "live-ins" last year to replace full-time help. "Live-ins" were workers, chiefly inexperienced boys and girls, who spent full time on farms for the entire summer. They were used very satisfactorily in some sections. They learned fast, and since they were staying for several months, on many jobs became as efficient as experienced help.

"We know that every farmer would like experienced farm help. We realize that inexperienced workers are much more expensive to use," Mr. Gordy emphasized. "But no supply of experienced farm workers is available. We are asking farmers to get in their requests at once and make the best possible use of the help we can find for them, in order to produce the food we need."

WORLD CALENDAR

January 1, 1945, begins on Sunday and if the World Calendar is adopted by that time the months of April, July and October will also begin on Sundays. This 12 month equal-quarter calendar is the same every year. Each quarter begins on Sunday and ends on Saturday, with 13 weeks in each quarter, 91 days. To keep the quarters intact there is an extra world holiday at the close of December, the year-end day, an extra Saturday follows December 30 every year; a world holiday at the end of June; the Leap Year Day, another extra Saturday, follows June 30 in leap years. The present calendar has "grasshopping" month dates—never twice in succession on the same week-day. The World Calendar has month dates that stay put—always the same weekday; it begins every year on Sunday, ends every year on Saturday.

Miss Elizabeth Achelis has written a New Year "must" book under the title of "The Calendar for Everybody," and inasmuch as she has devoted her life and fortune to calendar reform for more than a dozen years she is able to go clear down the line in furnishing satisfactory proof that the New World needs a new practical and common-sense calendar, and that the World Calendar for twelve months is just what the World needs.

PLENTY OF POWER

Electric companies have urged customers to use electricity as needed, and no more—which means don't waste it. This mild admonition has been taken by a few people to mean there is an impending shortage of electricity. Actually there is no shortage and never has been, although the more energetic public ownership advocates like to imagine one just around the corner as an excuse for building more and bigger public power dams at taxpayers' expense. The reason for conserving electric energy can be summed up in the words of J. A. Krug, head of the government's Office of War Utilities: "In the electric utility industry the installed generating capacity, together with capacity now under construction, is ample to meet all foreseeable electric needs. It is essential, however, to save the use of electricity wherever possible so as to reduce directly or indirectly the demands of material, fuel, transportation and manpower."

Just how ample electric generating capacity is in this country was strikingly described recently in the New York Times: "America's electric power and light industry is one of the few industries that is having little difficulty in meeting all demands for war production and civilian requirements as well. Since Pearl Harbor there has not been a single instance where a major demand for power by a war industry has not been met. And as our second year of war draws to a close, the nation's utilities, both private and public, find themselves in the enviable position of having a 24 per cent reserve capacity."

REAL CONSERVATION

Americans are learning the meaning of conservation. They are learning from an exacting teacher—war. War has in a matter of months switched this country from a nation of abundance to a nation of scarcity, as far as civilians are concerned. And where there is scarcity, there must be conservation. Automobile owners cannot burn up their cars with speed as they were wont to do a few years ago. Housewives cannot carelessly demolish household appliances, or toss out surplus food.

The new effort to conserve must reach farther than slow driving and eating the last crust of bread. It must reach into one of the most important existing fields of conservation—fire prevention. Several hundred millions of dollars worth of property is destroyed each year by fire. The bulk of that loss is sheer criminal waste, brought about by indifference and carelessness on the part of individuals. This carelessness can be eradicated by education; by learning that preventing a property-destroying fire is as great a step toward conservation as driving your auto slowly to save tires. Fire prevention authorities have emphasized that: "The development of a safety awareness that will control the daily actions of the individual is necessary if preventable fires and conflagrations are to be reduced to a minimum."

Until our individual conservation efforts are effectively directed toward curbing fire hazards in the home, in the factory, on the farm and every place else where life and property are involved, we have not learned the lesson of conservation.

FARMERS SEEM TO BE DOING WELL

A splendid philosophy was explained by Secretary Wickard of the Department of Agriculture when he appeared before a Committee of Congress investigating the Farm Security Administration. "It is my conviction that this government must do everything practical to see that every worthy and industrious farm family has an opportunity to operate, manage and eventually own its farm," he declared. The Secretary referred to early days when there were endless tracts of cheap and worthless lands, and plenty of land for homesteaders. He reminded Congress that at one time farm lands were owned and operated by large land owners and corporations. In recent years, he related, more than one million farmers received "rehabilitation loans" from the government. Then came an increase in the net worth of lands and farmers began to pay up loans on their properties until in the present year the ratio of pre-payments has reached the amazing rate of 93.5 per cent. As of May 5 the Farm Security Administration had paid back its borrowings from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation until all but $67,782,000 of a total of $829,640,000 has been liquidated. He also told the Congress that the Tenant Purchase borrowers are repaying their loans at the rate of 99 per cent. On the face of that report given by the Chief of the Department of Agriculture the farmers seem to be doing pretty well.

TOMMIE LOVES PETS

"Be with you in a minute," Mrs. Jeffries called from the window as her friend Mrs. Clayton honked at the curb.

"Sometimes," she said, as she climbed into the car a bit later, "I wish Tommie wasn't quite so fond of pets. I did this morning, for instance—I never have any too much time on Surgical Dressing mornings—I went down to the basement and found the guinea pigs without food, and Scamp's water dish empty. Just little things but they take time when I'm in a hurry. Oh, that reminds me." She opened her purse. "I must put fish-moss down on my list. We're entirely out."

"Do the fish belong to Tommie, too?" asked Mrs. Clayton.

"Yes. That boy loves live things—has them all over the place! He has an unusually fine canary. Oh-oh, I almost forgot the cuttle-bone!"

She added that to her list, then said, "Ted doesn't care for pets so much, does he? Has he any besides that adorable little Scottie?"

"No," Mrs. Clayton said, "that's all he has, but it isn't because he doesn't want more. We never go near a pet shop, but he sees half-a-dozen things he's just wild to have—everything from turtles to lovebirds."

"Well, don't you think pets are good for children?" asked Mrs. Jeffries. "They can learn so much through caring for them."

"Yes—if they care for them," the other woman answered. "Otherwise I think pets do more harm than good. When Ted learns really to take care of Sandy—feed him, water him, bathe him—then we'll consider another pet. He's getting quite dependable, I'm proud to say. He buys Sandy's food, too, out of his allowance."

"Don't you think you're being a bit exacting with Ted?" asked Mrs. Jeffries. "After all, he's only ten years old."

"If he's old enough to have pets, he's old enough to care for them," Mrs. Clayton said, firmly. "His father and I feel that it isn't good for his development to allow him to have whatever pet strikes his fancy, and then leave it for me to take care of. We feel that he should realize that pets cost their owners effort, time and money. When he is willing to expend all three for a certain pet he will deserve to have it, and we shall be glad to encourage him."

"You have certainly made quite a study of the subject," said Mrs. Jeffries. "I always took Tommie's pets more or less for granted."

"We try to make a careful study of everything with which Ted is going to be intimately associated," answered Mrs. Clayton. She spoke earnestly and there was no assumption of superiority in her tone. "We feel that all his associations and contacts at this formative period are developing habits which will stay with him through life—and we want them to be good ones."

Mrs. Jeffries was thoughtfully silent. Wasn't Mrs. Clayton making mountains out of molehills? Take this matter of pets, for instance—children needed live things to love. It taught them—but just what had Tommie learned from his pets? She faced the question honestly. He loved Scamp, of course, but he never did anything for him, unless told to. He had lost interest in the guinea pigs almost as soon as he had them, and the goldfish too. And if she herself didn't look after the canary, it went untended and hungry.

What had Tommie really learned from having pets? Selfishness and irresponsibility—there was no getting around it.

"It's my fault," she said, "and I'll have to change his ways—it won't be easy, with the start in carelessness he's developed—and the number of pets he has." She set her lips firmly, and marked out "fish-moss" and "cuttle-bone" from her list.

In answer to her friend's questioning look she said, "From now on Tommie's going to furnish at least the effort and the time for his pets. I'll let him go out and buy these two little items to start with. The expense problem must be solved later; he has so many little creatures to care for. I shall hope that in time, like Ted, he will be quite willing to share his spending money with his pets. He and I will have a talk."

JAP BEETLE ON RETREAT

Encouraging anti-Jap news from the University of Delaware's department of entomology:

The Japanese beetle is definitely on the downhill in this state.

Best control method found for the beetle employs the use of disease organisms which kill the beetle larvae. During the past three years, milky disease spores have been distributed throughout the state.

According to Dr. Paul L. Rice, head of the department of entomology, who has had charge of this work during the past two years, "We can't expect that the Japanese beetle will disappear next year or the following year, or for quite a while. But there are some definite results which we can expect," he said.

How About That!

By Ruth Safran

Middlewesterners are supposed to be different from Easterners. According to many writers, they suffer from the ailment called complacency out in the area near the Mississippi.

A recent business jaunt out to Missouri (and I've baggage-toting calouses to prove it) uncovered about as much of that ailment out there as here—and it is spread by the same type carrier.

Sure, you can satisfy your sweet-tooth better in Missouri than you can here. Go into an Eastern restaurant and ask for ice cream and the answer is "Sorry, just sherbet." In the drug store in the Missouri town, I asked for sherbet and the answer was, "Sorry, just ice cream." And the shelves were stocked with almond hersey bars and milky ways.

But of the two nights I spent in Cape Girardeau, Mo., at one I fidgeted aimlessly at the home of a school chum's family while about 30 women knitted incessantly on olive drab sweaters or navy blue tubular scarves and head coverings. That goes on at least once a week. One other full day is devoted to rolling and folding bandages far beyond quotas.

And never anywhere have I seen homes open doors so warmly and frequently to A.S.T.P. students and V-12's. The conversation over the knitting needles was entirely about the war, about remembering to call four soldiers for Sunday dinner, about planning parties for them.

I had a chance to look in at the University of Missouri where about a thousand A.S.T. boys have been enrolled in language or engineering programs.

In the words of the Dean of Women: "It has been an interesting experience having them here for they are very definitely a part of the campus."

"Our hostess corps of some 600 girls has put on three canteens a week here in Read Hall, as well as such week-end dances as were possible."

"The boys have been most appreciative of the program as planned for them, and we have been able to add some few things to the program that we did not have in the past. The music groups have been most enthusiastic... and we have a new art center where the materials and instruction are available for many of the handicrafts. One student has done a wonderful bust which is now ready to be cast."

I heard too about the folk song festivals the boys have participated in—and choir rehearsals—and Sunday forums.

That kind of approach would look good in these Eastern states of ours too.

And for my money, give me the kind of journalism the St. Louis Post-Dispatch stands for. It doesn't pull any punches when and where it sees corruption in government. Nor are those punches tucked away only in the editorial page.

There are certain differences in the Middle West—but I believe they're mostly a matter of geography, accent and the glasses we use in looking at them.

Anything appearing in this column is purely the opinion of the writer and does not express the views or policy of the paper. Any exceptions should be taken up with the writer.

For the information of former Newark High School students in the services, Steve Gilligan is in Newark this week sporting gold bars. Steve looks fine but he did not want to take his hat off because he might muss his hair, he said.

General (?) Snaps Fisher is another one of Newark's soldier boys who has been seen on the streets of the town this week. Snaps looks all right also but he don't like it very much at camp. He said that his job was to supply fit-to-drink water at the camp. While Snaps was at Camp Shelby he met Roy Reed.

I forgot to mention that Steve Gilligan said that he had met Olan Thomas, Martin McAllister, Tommy Griffin, Charles Nelson and Jim Walls at various camps while he has been in the service.

Dr. Stanley Gibbs, the new physical education director for boys at the Newark High School has started an intra-mural basketball program and the students in the four upper classes are eating it up. Also there is some real fine material being developed for next year's squad.

Sureshot was asked to pick an all-star squad. Well, that is some job. The fellows who are picked think you are just fine and those who are left out feel hurt. But if I was picking ALL-STAR team at the Newark Hi the following would be on the team: Lois Guhl and Dot Hanson, Miss Getchy and Miss Vogel, forwards; Miss Marvel, Miss Wilson, Miss Chalmers and Miss Bach a centers; for the guards I would pick George Nickel, Miss Leupold, Stanley Gibbs and M. James Parsons. WHAT A TEAM! They could walk off with any of those boys' teams.

After the game between the girls' varsity and the faculty there was a check-up made at the drug stores to find out how much liniment was purchased by the members of the faculty, and folks, believe it or not, those teachers sure can take it. They put up a mighty fine game against the youngsters and were only beaten by a few points. The kids did not have such a walk over as they thought.

We are told that the seniors are having quite a job to pick out the outstanding persons in the class such as the best athlete, the cutest, best looking and so on. Well, that should not be such a hard job. No, the writer of this column is not going to pick them. I get in enough trouble as it is.

The employees at the Newark Post are grateful to the management for membership in Group Hospitalization which has been taken out on all the force and their families. Bill Durham, press foreman is feeling kind of bad about the deal. You see, Bill, who is single, feels that he is slighted, his policy only covers Bill while the rest of the gang have their entire families covered with the policy.

Seaman Second Class Frank Sanborn sent me a letter this week thanking the staff for sending him the Newark Post. He says that he really enjoys reading the paper and unlike some folks he thinks my column is all right. Thanks for the kind words, Frank. It is not very often that we get any bouquets.

15 MILLION TO FILE TAX

Income Estimates Due On April 15

Chairman Doughton of the House ways and means committee that more than 15,000,000 of the 50,000,000 taxpayers will have to estimate their 1944 income and pay a portion of the tax on it by April 15, and that there is little hope of any last minute, legislative respite.

These estimates, a part of the pay-as-you-go system, must be filed by all persons who expect this year to have:

1. Income of more than $2,700 for a single person or $3,500 for a married couple.

2. Income of more than $100 from sources other than wages and salaries if total income is more than $500 for a single person or $624 for a married person.

Those with income other than wages or salary such as professional men and the self-employed will have the option of estimating their 1944 income, computing the tax and paying one-fourth or more by April 15, or they may use their 1943 income as the basis of computing the tentative tax for 1944, paying on that basis.

The same option is open to persons who must declare the taxes they owe on income above the withholding level.

The schedule for the Travelling Board has been set up as follows: Monday, March 27, from 10:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m.; and Tuesday, March 28, from 9:00 a. m. until 6:00 p. m. Special rooms have been provided for the mental and physical examinations. An appointment is not necessary.

In announcing this special service, Chief Doughton, in charge of the Wilmington Navy Recruiting Station, said, "We are extremely well pleased that our station is able to offer this opportunity to girls in this area. The increased need for WAVES in all fields of the Navy gives women between the ages of 20 and 36 a real chance to step in and do a man's sized job. The Navy needs these girls right now. To help in the enlistment procedure this Board will be on hand to give every possible service."

OPA Asks Quick Decision On Rationing of Coal

An early decision on whether to ration householders' coal for next winter is being sought by the Office of Price Administration from the War Production Board.

OPA has a consumer coal rationing plan drawn up ready for use if needed, but Secretary of the Interior Ickes, head of the Solid Fuels Administration, has opposed coupon rationing.

The S. F. A. has predicted soot coal production this year will fall 2,000,000 tons short of the estimated 620,000,000-ton demand, and that anthracite output might be 5,000,000 tons short of household needs in New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

"If coal is to be rationed for next winter, we should know about it now instead of next October," Col Bryan Houston, deputy OPA chairman in charge of rationing, told reporters.

10,000 Workers Needed For State Canneries

Delaware will need about 10,000 cannery workers to handle the estimated 200,000,000 pounds of processed foods to be packed here this summer, according to employment officials.

In addition, about 2,000 workers will be needed for logging and sawing mill work, and for preparation of boxes and crates for the shippers.

It is believed, too, that twice as many women as in other years will be required for the work, due to the inroads in available help which have been made by the draft and by higher pay for men in war plants.

HOW Women HELP TO KEEP THEM ROLLING ON THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

A WAR ROLE FOR WOMEN... as a trainman on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Women serve on short runs, as a rule.

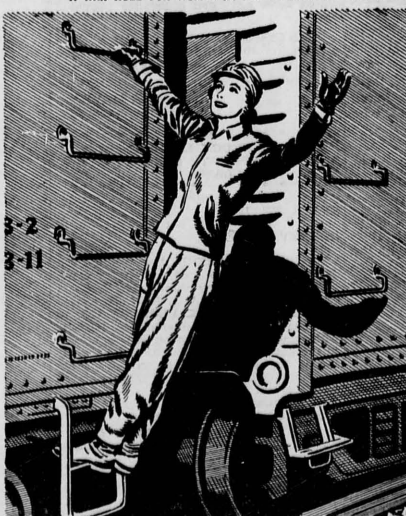

RAILROADING has always been regarded as a man's calling.

But when war reached deeply into railroad ranks—taking from the Pennsylvania Railroad alone more than 44,000 skilled and experienced workers for the Armed Forces—women were employed to help keep trains rolling.

Today, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, approximately 22,000 women are serving in a wide variety of occupations—four of which you see illustrated here.

Positions such as trainmen, ticket sellers, train passenger representatives, ushers, information and reservation personnel call for intelligence, courtesy and a high degree of efficiency. Young women fresh from college and high school—after intensive training—have proved they can fill these roles most capably.

So, we're glad to have their help in the greatest job railroads have ever been called upon to do, moving men and materials to Victory!

AS A BRAKEMAN in freight yard operations, a woman fills a job that requires strength and coolness—in all weather.

AS AN USHER, a woman posts trains, announces departures and arrivals—answers the questions asked by travelers.

INFORMATION COUNTERS are besieged these days—so a woman's knowledge of travel must be extensive.

FARM GAS DEPENDS ON 1944 PLANS

2500 In State Haven't Filed Support Plans

Twenty-five hundred Delaware farmers have not filed their 1944 farm plans at County Agricultural Conservation Association offices to support their applications for gasoline for tractors and other off-the-highway uses for the next three months, Clarence E. Ocheltree, Chairman of the State Agricultural Adjustment Agency, said today. Seventy-five hundred plans have been filed.

Farmers apply to their local OPA rationing board for off-the-highway gasoline. That board submits the application to the County AAA farmer rationing committee which bases its recommendation upon the farmer's plan of farm operations for the period covered. The local rationing boards then issues the ration stamps for the number of gallons required to carry out the farmer's production plans.

Farmers who have filed their 1944 farm plans need only apply to their local OPA ration board. This same form may be used by farmers who do not plan to cooperate with the 1944 AAA soil-conservation and war-food production program.

The local OPA ration board will issue the stamps in two installments. The farmer will receive two thirds of his stamps at once, the other one-third being held in reserve until the third month of the quarter.

Applications for gasoline for farm trucks should be filed at the County AAA Office, which will forward them with recommendations to the office of Defense Transportation, which will issue the stamps.

Postal Rates Increase Sunday

The new law increases the parcel post (fourth class) rates by one cent or three per cent, whichever is greater. By this method, a package which now takes ten cents postage would cost 11 cents, while the carrying 1 postage would be $1.03.

Money order costs will be boosted 66 2-3 per cent. New rates include: Ten cents instead of six cents for amounts up to $2.50; 14 cents instead of eight for amounts from $2.51 to $5; 19 cents instead of 11 from $5.01 to $10; 22 cents instead of 13 from $10.01 to $20; 25 cents instead of 15 from $20.01 to $40; 30 cents instead of 19 from $40.01 to $60; 35 cents instead of 20, from $60.01 to $80; and 37 cents instead of 22, from $80.01 to $100.

A one-third increase in registered mail fees will begin on March 26. Increases will be from 15 to 20 cents on mail valued at $5 or less; 18 to 25 cents for $25; 20 to 25 cents for $50; 25 to 35 cents for $75; 30 to 40 cents for $100; 40 to 55 cents for $200; 50 to 65 cents for $300; 60 to 80 cents for $400; 70 to 95 cents for $500; 80 cents to $1.05 for $600; 85 cents to $1.15 for $700; 90 cents to $1.20 for $800, and $1 to $1.35 for $1,000.

Rates for insuring mail will be doubled, the maximum insurance permitted ($200) being 70 cents.

C.O.D. charges are to be doubled also, so that the maximum fee chargeable will be 90 cents, and the special fee for delivering domestic, insured, registered, or C.O.D. mail to the addressee personally will be 20 cents instead of 10.

Local letter mail was increased to three cents in 1932 and remained at that rate for a year, but it was abandoned largely because large industries and businesses stopped mailing bills, etc., since messenger service was cheaper.
