STREET IMPROVEMENTS FOR YEAR LISTED IN PROGRAM SUBMITTED TO COUNCIL BY TOWN ENGINEER

Resurfacing of West Main Street, New London Avenue; Paving of Amstel Avenue; Feature Plans

TOWN OFFICIALS REAPPOINTED FOR YEAR

A program of street paving and resurfacing for Newark was announced by Town Engineer Merle S. Sigmond for the special organization meeting of Town Council Tuesday night in the Council Building. The program, which will call for improvements approximately $22,000, includes resurfacing of West Main Street, New London Avenue, and the resurfacing of Amstel Avenue. Curb and guttering will also be constructed on New London Avenue in the part now not so provided. The narrow bridge at the town limits on New London Avenue, long a trouble spot for motorists, will be widened. Orchard street, a connecting thoroughfare between West Main Street and New London Avenue, will be paved with stone and amiesite, and curb and gutter for the street will be constructed. Amstel Avenue, from South College Avenue to Orchard Road, will be paved, and curb and guttering will be constructed on Amstel street.

The organization of the Council was effected Tuesday night, when the three members of Council reelected on April 14, and the president of Council, reelected at the same time, were sworn into office. Henry Mote, Daniel Stoll, and George Ferguson were the members sworn, and Mayor Frank Collins again took the oath of office.

All present holders of offices in the town were reappointed for the coming year. Those who were reappointed were: Charles Lewis, superintendent of streets; Harvey Black, superintendent of electrical work; Jacob Shaw, assistant; Mrs. Laura Hossinger, secretary and treasurer; Miss Alice Kerr, bookkeeper; James Keeley, chief of police; F. Mann and William Cunningham, police; Robert Motheral, assessor.

NEW FEATURE FOR THE NEWARK POST

Beginning next week, The Newark Post will publish each week a new feature which will prove of great interest and educational value to the boys and girls of Newark—TALES OF THE TRIBES.

Editha L. Watson, famed for archeological and ethnological research, contributes a series of articles on North American Aborigines, stories of the principal tribes of Indians, past and present, presenting customs, legends, and new facts from a human standpoint. Indian lore, always fascinating, takes on increased interest and significance under the method of treatment pursued in these stories. There is plenty of lore, history and legend, and many unique sidelights given in this series, but with complete avoidance of scientific and didactic terminology. It is a series of stories that shows the human side of the Indian, and should make fascinating reading for both young and old.

Watch for TALES OF THE TRIBES next week.

COUNTY POSTS OF AMER. LEGION TO MEET APR. 28

Newark Legionnaires To Be Hosts At Joint Session In Wolf Hall Tuesday

SEN. MEANS TO SPEAK

A joint meeting of the rural New Castle County Posts of the American Legion will be held in Wolf Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, on Tuesday evening, April 28, at 8:00 o'clock Daylight Saving Time.

The principal speaker of the evening will be the Honorable Rice W. Means, former United States Senator from Colorado, and at the present time Editor-in-Chief of the National Tribune, published at Washington, D. C. He is also Past Commander-in-Chief of the United Spanish War Veterans and during the World War served as Colonel of Infantry in the Fourth Regular Division of the American Expeditionary Forces serving through all the major offenses in which his unit was engaged.

Colonel Means' address will be on the subject of World Peace and Foreign Relations in furtherance of the resolutions passed by the past two National Conventions of the American Legion, directing that all Posts throughout the country hold a meeting annually at which the subject of International Relations is to be discussed.

R. G. FORD PURCHASES HOME IN SWARTSMORE

Robert G. Ford, of the Pennsylvania Railroad's engineering staff, has bought a new home in Swartsmore, Pa., and will probably move there with his family in June.

Mr. Ford has been located in Newark for some years. He was a supervisor for some years with headquarters in Newark.

Several years ago he was promoted and had his office in Wilmington. Recently he was again promoted and now has offices in Philadelphia.

It was because of this promotion that Mr. Ford decided to change his residence. The property he recently bought is in Swartsmore Crest, the "hill" district.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford have a host of friends in Newark. They have four children, Bob, who will graduate from the local high school in June; Betty and Peggy, both in the high school; and Billy, in the primary school. Bob Ford, expects to enter Mercerburg Academy in the Fall.

ORGAN RECITAL PROGRAM

The program for the twenty-four weekly organ recital by Firmin Swinnen, to be given in Mitchell Hall next Monday night at 7 o'clock, D. S. T., is as follows:

1. March from Tannhauser—R. Wagner
2. My Heart at Thy Dear Voice—C. Saint-Saens
3. Romance—J. Svendsen
4. Fivade (Symphony Pathétique, Adagio Lamentoso)—T. Tschai-kowski
5. Moment Musical—F. Schubert
6. Andante Con Moto—F. Mendelssohn
7. Carmen-Fantaisie—G. Bizet

NEGRO DIES IN CHAIR FOR MURDER OF FARMER

William Watkins, 25-year-old negro farmhand, who murdered his employer, James W. Harward, 69-year-old farmer of near Kemblesville, with a shotgun just a little more than two months ago, was electrocuted Monday at Rockview Penitentiary, at Bellefonte, Pa., for his crime.

The negro was executed just two months and ten days after his crime was committed, which is considered a record for swift punishment for a capital crime in the United States.

CENTURY CLUB PLANS TO START FREE LIBRARY

Newark Legionnaires To Be Discuss Project to Replace Present Subscription Library in Town

ELECT DELEGATES

Tentative plans for the establishment of a free library in Newark were discussed at the meeting Monday of the Newark New Century Club. The New Century Club has for the past several years interested itself in the present library, and has had the purpose in mind for several years of founding a free library in the town. The present library is operated on a subscription basis, the money coming into the treasury of the library being used to pay for overhead expenses and to buy new books.

The New Century Club passed a motion that the Library Committee, headed by Mrs. George L. Schuster, investigate methods of raising money so that a free library can be started. Under the present plan throughout the State, the State will provide a certain amount of money each year for libraries if the local library can raise a similar amount of funds.

Following the business meeting, the members of the club were invited to inspect the library which has reopened after a thorough renovation following the fire which necessitated refitting the inside of the Academy Building in which the Library is housed.

Following there was a meeting of the Club Corporation Board. The terms of Mrs. Arthur T. Neale and Mrs. R. W. Heim as directors, had expired. These two members were re-elected for another term by a popular vote. Delegates were elected to attend the State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Milford on May 14 and 15.

Representatives elected were: Mrs. Daniel Thompson, Miss Elsie Wright and Mrs. J. Pearce Cann. Alternates were: Mrs. W. A. Wilkinson, Mrs. Claude Hearn and Mrs. R. W. Heim.

FIELD, WOODS FIRES KEEP LOCAL FIREMEN OCCUPIED

Many grass and woods fires during the past week have kept the members of the Aetna Fire, Hook and Ladder Company busy day and night. Sunday they were called to a place near Porter's Station, where they fought a grass fire for more than two hours. Later they were called to the property of Thomas Riley, near Elkton road, where a grass fire burned over many acres of land.

Monday noon a woods fire below Iron Hill occupied the attention of the firemen for a while, and Tuesday two calls to a woods fire about three miles down Elkton road were answered. About fifty acres of woods burned in the fire Tuesday.

People are warned to exercise great care when burning fields or brush at this time, as the wood and grass is very dry, and, due to the wind, is difficult to extinguish.

The firemen were called at 10:30 last night to extinguish a burning chicken house, near Glasgow, but, due to the high wind which fanned the flames, found the chicken house almost a total loss before they arrived.

NEW CENTURY CLUB PLANS COVERED DISH LUNCHEON

The Newark New Century Club will hold a covered dish luncheon next Monday, April 27, in the clubhouse, at 1 o'clock, D. S. T. Each member will be privileged to bring a guest to the luncheon, and members expecting to attend are requested to notify Mrs. William J. Barnard, who is hostess for the day.

KELLS ON D. S. T.

Starting Monday morning, The Press of Kells and the office of The Newark Post will operate under Daylight Saving Time.

MR. AND MRS. MARSHALL MANNS BELIEVED TO BE SAFE IN TELA AS HONDURIAN REBELS ATTACK CITY

Dr. and Mrs. T. F. Manns Fail to Receive Word of Safety of Son and Daughter-in-Law, But United Fruit Company Reports Them Unharmed

BELIEVE COMMUNICATION STOPPED

A telegram from the United Fruit Company offices in Boston, received this morning by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Manns, reported that their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Manns, were safe in Tela, Honduras, the scene of violent fighting between Federal and rebel forces in that country.

Dr. and Mrs. Manns, however, have not heard from the young couple and are still greatly worried as to their safety. Reports from Tela this morning state that another attack from the rebel forces is expected at any moment, and the United States Government announced this morning that the cruiser Memphis has been dispatched to Tela under full steam to protect American citizens there.

Tela, the headquarters of the United Fruit Company in Honduras, is the base of supplies for that company, and is the object of attacks from the rebels so that the revolutionary forces can utilize the supplies stored there. A large quantity of guns and ammunition is also stored in Tela, making the city a highly worthwhile prize for the rebel army. Two attacks have been made on the city so far, but both have been repulsed by the defending army.

Dr. Manns and Mrs. Manns are especially worried over not hearing from their son and daughter-in-law because it has been the custom of the young couple to cablegram them frequently. It is generally believed that communication has been stopped, however, between Tela and the United States, and it is thought that the couple are all right, but unable to cable of their safety.

Mr. Manns was graduated from the University of Delaware in June, 1927, and shortly afterward went to Honduras in the fruit company's employ. He returned here last summer and married Miss Ruth Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Butler, now of York, Pa., but then of Newark. The young couple left Newark on October 10 for Tela, where Mr. Manns is employed as plant pathologist in a laboratory near the center of the city.

Mr. Manns was born in 1905 in the Philippines while his father was engaged in educational work on that island, but, up until leaving for Honduras, had resided in Newark since 1913 when his father came to the University of Delaware.

While a student at the University he engaged in many activities and was named one of the "President's One Hundred" because of the high scores made in the National Rifle Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, which he attended as a representative of the R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Delaware, of which he was an officer. He was also an officer of the Newark Company of the Delaware National Guard.

Mrs. Manns is a native of Newark. She was graduated from the Women's College of the University of Delaware in 1927, the same year as her husband. Her sister, Frances, is now a student at the Women's College.

TONY SARG AND MARIONETTES HERE TUESDAY

Special Matinee For Children In Afternoon; College Hour That Night

THIRTEENTH SEASON

Tony Sarg's famous Marionettes will be seen in two production at the University of Delaware on Tuesday, April 28. At 1:30 p. m., in Wolf Hall, he will present "Alice in Wonderland" at a special school matinee which pupils of the Newark Schools will be permitted to attend by arrangement with local school authorities. In the evening at 8:00 o'clock, "Rip Van Winkle" will be given on the regular College Hour program of the University of Delaware. The evening performance will be given in Mitchell Hall.

Tony Sarg recently completed a special engagement at Remy's in New York. You will go and it is ten chance to one that you secure your ticket for your first experiences with Tony Sarg's Marionettes with that comfortable feeling of patronizing "an interesting experiment." You go, and take your seat, and find yourself witnessing a delightfully finished achievement. The gay curtains part at the sound of the magic stage where the quaint figures of the puppets work and play, eat and sleep, quarrel and make love, with such nimble, bright expressiveness that, in your fascinated interest the difference between you and the wide-eyed children all about you is remarkable. (Continued on Page 8.)

AIRPLANE TO GIVE RIDES AT DAMERON FIELD SUNDAY

Phil Harmon, Jr., of West Chester, Pa., and Lyndel Hamilton, of Malvern, Pa., both transport airplane pilots, will be at the Dameron Field, on East Main street, this Sunday to give short hops and aerial sightseeing flights. The two men flew to Newark Tuesday afternoon to inspect the field and to make arrangements to return Sunday to conduct their short flights and sightseeing hops.

Both pilots remarked on the closeness of the field to the center of Newark, and of its convenient location for those who desired to see Newark from the air. Their airplane, a Fleet biplane, is one of the safest planes made, and both men promise an interesting and enjoyable ride to aviation enthusiasts of the town.

SENIOR CLASS PRESENTS PLAY NEXT THURSDAY

"Nothing But the Truth" Is Sparkling Comedy; Large Cast Chosen

TICKET SALE STARTS

The Senior Class Play of the Newark High School will be presented in the State Theatre next Thursday night. The play, a three-act comedy entitled "Nothing But the Truth," was a highly successful Broadway hit a few seasons ago, and is recognized as one of the most popular plays for amateur players.

The members of the cast have been holding daily rehearsals in the Newark School in preparation for the play. The cast is a rather large one for a school group to produce, but under the direction of Miss Beulah Thompson, coach and director of the play, the actors and actresses are going through their parts as if they were veterans of the stage, and it is expected that the play will be the most successful one ever presented by local school players. Those in the cast are Carolyn Cobb, Joan Fletcher, Dorothy Wilson, Nanie Cox, Eleanor Doordan, Mildred Steele, Frieda Handloff, Elsie Richards, Charles Pic, William Huxtable, Donald Harris, Paul Griffith, and Nathaniel Richards.

The committees in charge of the arrangements for the play are headed by the following chairmen: Grover Surra, business manager; Jack Collins, finance; Louise Hutchison, costumes; Colbert Wood, technicalities; Charles Schwartz, stage properties; William Robinson, ushers; and Frieda Handloff, candy.

Tickets for the show will be on sale at Rhodes' Drug Store on Monday, April 27.

SALESMAN KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE TUESDAY

John P. McColley, a salesman from Philadelphia, was struck and knocked down Tuesday on Main street, by an automobile driven by Mrs. Mathias, of near Appleton. Mr. McColley, who is a senior salesman for Lippincott's, of Philadelphia, has been with that company for 63 years. Witnesses to the accident say that Mr. McColley walked directly in front of the automobile, and that Mrs. Mathias did not have a chance to avoid hitting him.

Mr. McColley was painfully bruised and slightly cut from the glass in his spectacles, but not seriously injured.

TOWN GOES ON DAYLIGHT TIME AT 2 A.M. SUNDAY

University To Begin Classes One Hour Earlier; Industries On New Time

TURN CLOCKS AHEAD

Newark will officially go on Daylight Saving Time at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. At that hour—or at an earlier hour for those who do not care to wait until the "even small hour"—clocks will be turned ahead one hour, and those who hate to get out of bed in the mornings will grumble because they have lost an hour's sleep when they arise at the usual time.

Industrial plants in Newark will move under the advanced time system the year as they have done in the past. The University of Delaware, being a state institution, cannot go back to the old time, as the law requires it to operate at certain hours. Standard time, all schools in Delaware College are to be on the Delaware time, however, all in advanced one hour, and what Newark eight o'clock classes will begin on Monday morning at seven o'clock.

Students will continue to run their time under the Standard Time, but all advance their schedules, and will run on the new time, as to allow companies who work in offices operating on Daylight Saving Time to arrive at work on time.

Daylight Saving Time was first observed during the World War, and has been used each year since that time. While there are some objections to the plan, most people like the advanced time, as it allows an extra hour of sunshine and light after working hours in the evening for recreation.

EXHIBIT OF 100 PRINTS AT U. OF D. LIBRARY

A collection of color reproductions of famous paintings containing 100 prints are to be exhibited at the Art Library, in the Memorial Library, from April 21 to May 3. This exhibit is presented by the Art Department of the University of Delaware.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

By James W. Brooks

Copyright 1930 by James W. Brooks
All Rights ReservedHistorically Correct Sketches
By CALVIN FADER

At Beadock and Cork Streets, in Winchester, Virginia, stands this structure, once used by Washington in his surveying days, and later in the transaction of more serious business, as we shall soon see. Having completed his first adventure in the Shenandoah Valley, he turned southward toward Mount Vernon and Belvoir.

MOUNTAIN LEGENDS say Washington drank at this spring many times on later trips to the Valley.

When Washington rode this way in April 1748, it was called Snicker's Gap. Over the mountain peak in the distance lies the Blumont of today.

HALTING for a night at West's "Ordinary", now a heap of stones near Aldie, on U. S. Route 50, the youthful adventurer pressed on to report to Lord Fairfax at Belvoir. One lesson he had learned from Indians, incidental to his travels, was that a heavy rock placed on his head would insure balance in crossing deep, swift streams.

Twenty Lexingtons and Fifteen Concords
May Celebrate Washington Bicentennial

"By the rude bridge which arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world."

America's beloved Emerson, inspired by the courage and determination of the immortal Minutemen, thus began his great tribute to those heroes who, on the morning of April 19, 1775, so dramatically ushered in the Revolutionary War at Lexington and Concord.

The Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission recalls that just as Massachusetts had been the starting place for much of the agitation which preceded the Revolutionary war, so the future Bay State was the scene of the opening conflict of that great struggle.

In connection with the 156th anniversary this year of this important event the George Washington Bicentennial Commission suggests that plans may be started for special observances of this day throughout the United States next year as part of the Bicentennial Celebration of Washington's birth.

There are in the United States fifteen cities and towns named Concord and twenty named Lexington. These communities could appropriately hold special ceremonies in commemoration of the events which had occurred more than one hundred and fifty years ago. Without a doubt, the State of Massachusetts, as the home of the original Lexington and Concord, will observe the anniversary by the reenactment of the famous battles.

Kansas City has planned, as part of the bicentennial observance next year, to stage a ride of Paul Revere from that city to Lexington, Missouri. This is an excellent suggestion which might also be carried out by other communities named after the renowned towns in Massachusetts.

In this connection it is interesting to note that of the twenty-six states with town named either Lexington or Concord, nine have both. If in some of these states the two cities happen to be near each other the entire affair may be reenacted by using some nearby city as Boston, the starting place of Revere's famous ride as well as the march of the British soldiers. Where this is impossible, each town may hold its own celebration based on the events which took place in 1775.

The clashes at Lexington and Concord were the final episode in the series of difficulties between England and her colonies which brought on the Revolution. They were the factors which convinced George Washington that war with the Mother Country was inevitable and caused him to enlist unequivocally in the cause of complete separation from Britain. Writing of the battles to a friend in England he said, "Unhappy it is to reflect that a brother's sword has been sheathed in a brother's breast; and that the once happy and peaceful plains of America are to be either drenched with blood or inhabited by slaves. Sad alternative! But can a virtuous man hesitate in his choice?"

P. T. A. NOTES

The last of the Parent Education programs planned by the State Program Committee for use in local Parent-Teacher Associations is based upon quotations from a biography of Howard Pyle written by Charles D. Abbott. It recalls at once William Penn's admonition in regard to his own children: "Be sure to observe their genius and do not cross it," and its modern counterpart in the Children's

Charter, the rights of the American child, as drawn up by the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, "For every child an education which, through the discovery and development of his individual abilities, prepares him for life, and through training and vocational guidance prepares him for a living which will yield him the maximum of satisfaction."

Perhaps because Howard Pyle's mother saw and encouraged his special interest he became "a painter who mixed his colors with brains and with fire and imagination." The lesson for Delaware parents and teachers to take to heart is: Not many of us are geniuses in the sense in which the term is commonly used but for everyone, that things which he can do best is his genius, his special ability. Life is richest when this ability is exercised.

The annual convention of the Delaware Branch of the National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers will be held at the Booker T. Washington School, Dover, Saturday, April 25th. Dr. Charles Thompson of the faculty of Howard University, Washington, D. C., has been asked to deliver the principal address. It is probable that the Glee Club of State College will sing.

The following committee has helped plan the details of the meeting which will begin at 10:30.

J. Graham Scott, Milford; Mrs. Anna C. Russum, Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Elizabeth H. Shockley, Houston; J. R. Webb, Laurel, and A. Palmer Cooper, Lewes.

Registration will start at 9:30 under the direction of the following committee: Mrs. Nannie C. Goode, Ellendale; J. R. Richards, Newark; Mrs. Margaret L. Thorpe, Reeve's Crossing; Miss Kathleen Starks, Warwick No. 225; Mrs. Marion Moore, Bridgeville.

Last year's convention was attended by about 500 people.

Mother's Day Thought

As people look back at the influences that have proceeded from their mothers, they find that certain ideals have been impressed upon them from this source. Every woman passes on the best side of her nature to her children. Even a woman whose own life is open to criticism, will offer wise and generous ideas to her boys and girls, and will teach them lessons of usefulness and service.

We have all been thus given a chance to rise to better levels through the influence of motherhood. The mothers have spoken to us words of wisdom, and have backed up those words by a long history of service and sacrifice. If each generation could respond to the wise counsels the mothers have passed on, human nature would soon conquer its faults and the earth would depart from its errors and mistakes.

Back in all our hearts is a certain code of ideals which our mothers attempt to pass on to us. Most of us have to admit that we have failed to live up to those ideals. We have constantly done things which we know to be contrary to the generous hopes that were felt for our future. We were called by the mothers to lives of high standards, but we have failed to respond as we might have.

Most of us have to admit also that we have failed to make any due return to our mothers for all their loving care. If they are still living, let us see that that failure is ended, and that we do everything possible to show our gratitude for their tireless efforts.

But whether these mothers are with us still or not, we still have the power to do the one thing that would give them the most happiness, expressions of the ideals which they asked us to follow.

This year Mother's Day is Sunday, May 10. Let all remember that date and the event it commemorates.—Milford Chronicle.

Unemployed—or Loafers?

A few weeks ago we printed, in an article on the front page of The Newark Post, an appeal to Newark citizens to provide work for the unemployed by notifying us if they wanted lawns cared for, gardens worked, painting and repairing done, small carpentry jobs performed, and any other type or kind of work that would enable men to make a living for themselves and their families.

Several calls were received from residents of the town who wanted odd jobs done around their property. Several men were placed in jobs that will give them employment for several weeks, some of them as long as three or four months. These men are thankful to get work, and their employers are glad to find a workman who will do his job thoroughly and at a reasonable cost.

Quite a number of offers were made by property owners to give their land, free of charge, to any men who would work the ground into a garden and raise vegetable. Some property owners even volunteered to provide seed for the men, and to have the ground plowed for them at their own expense. In this way, unemployed men could not only raise food for their families, but could also sell garden truck to the markets and to housewives and receive some money as well.

We talked to a number of men who said they wanted work. If a job was offered that paid a fair wage and did not involve too much physical labor, it was eagerly taken. Planting and caring for a garden, however, was termed "too much like work," and most of the men offered garden places were "not interested."

It is our conviction that if a man wants work, and needs food, he will be willing to take any kind of work that he can obtain. After talking to a number of so-called unemployed, we have almost come to the conclusion that the real unemployed are in the minority, and that the loafers are the ones who are swelling the ranks of the non-workers.

Oklahoma City recently tested "unemployment" by demanding that an hour or two of labor be given in return for meals. Such a policy brought forth a welcome heira, states the Daily Oklahoman, for it required but a few days to solve the unemployment problem in so far as professional idlers were concerned. As soon as loafers learned that they had to work for their food and were faced with the choice of working or starving they left for other places.

As the Galveston News asserts, in citing Governor Sterling's experience with the spokesman for a delegation purporting to represent farmers and unemployed: "In more than one instance unemployment agitators have shown marked distaste for work when offered an opportunity to earn a living by working. And beyond question the country is infested with bums who are only too content to live on public generosity."

Undoubtedly the panhandler has made the most of the opportunity to appeal to public sentiment. Unemployment has been great enough without adding to the number. The Tulsa World comments that men, asking individuals on the street for the means to secure food, when led to eating places promptly disappeared—money was what they wanted. It is not unusual, when no money is tendered, for mendicants of this stripe to pass on muttering curses and threats.

CO. E CLUB GIVING DANCE TO HELP UNION HOSPITAL

Al Hollander and His Columbia Broadcasting orchestra will perform for the Charity Ball which the Company "E" Club is sponsoring in the Elkton Armory on Friday, May 1, for the benefit of Union Hospital, in Elkton, Md.

This band has already appeared twice in the past two years for Company "E" Club and shares the palm with Ted Brown and his orchestra as having the most engagements for the Elkton Armory in the past two years. Since their last appearance here, Hollander and his ten mates have gained greater renown than they have experienced before.

As the Charity Ball will be for the direct benefit of Union Hospital, the Company "E" Club and the staff of the institution have requested those who care to contribute to the cause, whether or not they attend the dance, to send their donations to either the treasurer of the Company "E" Club and the staff of the institution have requested those who care to contribute to the cause, whether or not they attend the dance, to send their donations to either the treasurer of the Company "E" Club, Elkton, Md., or to the superintendent of Union Hospital, Elkton, Md.

KIWANIS CLUB MAKES ANNUAL VISIT TO U. OF D.

More Than 300 are Guests at Dinner and Program in Old College

WM. H. HEALD SPEAKER

More than 300 members of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club, their wives and guests, were entertained last night at Old College Hall at a dinner and program following the annual inspection of the University. The Kiwanians and their guests arrived in Newark in a motor caravan, and were received by officials of the University and were welcomed to the school. Preceding the dinner, the party were conducted on a tour of the campus of Delaware College and of the Women's College, visiting the buildings, and seeing the fine facilities possessed by the University for the educating of the young men and young women of the State.

The dinner was held in Old College Hall at 6:30 o'clock. Following the menu, there was a program presented in which the major portion was university talent.

The Women's College Glee Club sang a number of selections and William H. Heald, former Congressman, made an address.

Miss Helen G. Knowles, nationally known as a soprano and winner of the Atwater Kent audition for the State of Delaware, was the guest artist of the evening. Miss Knowles sang a program of several numbers. Dancing followed the program, the music for which was furnished by George Madden's orchestra. For those who cared to play cards there was bridge and 500.

Arthur G. Wilkinson, Business Administrator of the University of Delaware, was chairman of the committee of arrangements and his colleagues were: James F. Adams, Edward W. Cooch, William E. Holton, Vincent C. Blackwell and Harry Patterson Dunbar, Jr.

ENGLISH ENGINEER SPEAKS TO ENGINEERING SOCIETY

At the meeting of the Student Branch Society of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, held Monday night in Evans Hall, Thomas Clarkson, steam engineer of London, England, spoke on the subject of the development of steam from the time of the Newton engine to the latest developments in the installation of waste heat steam boilers on the exhausts of Diesel engines. Mr. Clarkson has perfected a boiler of this type, and has installed them on more than one million horsepower of engines in England. In the Diesel engine, only one-third of the heat of the fuel goes to do the work. The other two-thirds are carried off in the cooling water and in the exhaust gases. The waste heat steam boilers perfected by Mr. Clarkson utilize the one-third heat ordinarily carried away in exhaust gases.

Mr. Clarkson is a member of the British Societies of the Institute of Civil Engineers, Institute of Mechanical Engineers, Institute of Electrical Engineers, and is an associate in the Institute of Mining Engineers.

JUNIORS AND SOPHOMORES WIN W. C. D. SONG CONTESTS

The annual inter-class singing contest was held in Mitchell Hall Tuesday night by the Women's College of the University of Delaware, with the Junior class winning first place for the serious song and the sophomore class winning first place for the comic song.

The entire roster of the Women's College participated, each class forming a chorus. A large audience witnessed the affair. Each class sang two selections, one a serious and the other a comic song.

The winning comic proved the most popular with the audience. It was a parody on "Pop Goes the Weasel" and was written by Miss Dorothy Dizer, of Philadelphia.

PROF. A. J. WOOD DIES WHEN HIT BY MOTORCYCLE

of engineering for 40 years, graduated in 1896 from Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J. He came to Delaware College as professor of mechanical and electrical engineering in 1902 and left in 1904 to become a member of the faculty of State College and was dean of mechanical engineering at his death. He had written a number of valuable text papers during his long career as an engineering educator.

Lewis Harvey was riding the motorcycle that hit Prof. Wood and was slightly injured.

The funeral of Prof. Wood was held at State College Monday afternoon and interment was also made there.

Several of the members of the faculty of the University of Delaware remember him as an instructor here more than 25 years ago. He and his wife often visited her sisters in Newark.

BANK BANDITS GET $3,000 LOOT AT RISING SUN

Daring Holdup Completed
With Successful Escape
From Town

THREE MEN DO WORK

Two unmasked bandits held up the Rising Sun Branch of the Elkton Banking and Trust Company Tuesday morning at about 8:45 and escaped with between $2,000 and $3,000. The robbery occurred shortly after Cashier Joseph P. Tyson had opened the bank.

The bandit pair escaped in a small sport coupe, bearing a Pennsylvania license tag, No. EN 39. A third member of the band was driving the automobile which sped from the town within six minutes after the two men entered the bank.

According to Mrs. Lydia R. Tyson, wife of Cashier Tyson, stenographer and clerk in the bank, she and her husband had just removed about $3,000 from the bank vault and had placed the money in three compartments beneath the bank counter when the two men entered.

One of the men entered the enclosure and scooped bundles of bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations into his pockets. He emptied two of the compartments beneath the counters, but overlooked a third which contained about $1,100.

The other man was still covering the bank attendants with his revolver and as his companion entered behind the counter ordered them to sit on the floor. As they sprawled behind the partition he warned them to remain there for a half hour and not to make any outcry.

The entire action took about five minutes, according to Mr. Tyson. He said that the men had arrived a few minutes after he had re-locked the bank vault after removing enough finances for the day.

After the men left the building, the trio ran from the bank and gave the alarm. Fliers were broadcast immediately and Sheriff Albert Buckworth was summoned with two of his deputies from Elkton. State road officers from Bel Air Station and other stations toured the countryside in an attempt to capture the men.

The robbery occurred when there were few people on the street. Many of the stores had just opened for business and most of the town folk were either at their employment or at home.

PLAN ELK MILLS FABRIC PLANT ENLARGEMENT

Major Wm. Ray Baldwin to Increase Size of Rayon
Factory

WILL ISSUE STOCK

Major William Ray Baldwin, president of the Elk Mills, has announced a contemplated expansion of the facilities at his mill to meet the growing demands of rayon garment manufacturers. This mill has been producing knitted rayon fabrics since 1924. Major Baldwin, who is a recognized authority on the industry, has followed developments closely and believes that producers must now increase their production to meet the demands of the manufacturers.

A close study has been made at the mill over a period of three years with a view to establishing the safety of investment in the enterprise. Having satisfied himself that the industry is firmly established and that rayon cloth, as an important source of clothing material, has taken its place among the animal and vegetable fibres which have, up to this time, dominated the market, he is about to market a stock issue in order to raise capital for the expansion purposes for which, in view of present financial conditions, he considers the time highly propitious.

Among the improvements and additions to be made to the business is the installation of a complete dyeing system. He also states that a complete hydro-electric plant capable of generating sufficient power for a greatly enlarged factory at a substantial saving will be installed at a very low cost by utilizing the water rights which are owned by the company on the Big Elk River, which flows through the property.

NEWARK SCHOOL NOTES

Written by Students of the Newark School

Newark Junior High to Compete
In County Declamation Contest

All Junior High Schools of New Castle County outside of Wilmington, including Claymont, Middletown, New Castle, Delaware City, du Pont and Newark, will participate in the Declamation Contest. It is to be held at Claymont, Thursday, April 23, and will start at 7:30 p. m. There are to be two contestants from each school and the three prizes are: first, $5; second, $3; and third, $1.

The persons representing Newark are Martha Moore, who will present "Mrs. Mosely's Offspring," and Beatrice Bell, who will recite "Brotherly Love." The admission is to be 15c for pupils and 25c for adults. Everyone is welcome to attend this affair.

Arbor Day

With spring at its height, comes Arbor Day and the planting of trees and shrubs. Arbor Day is always observed at our school by the planting and replacing of trees, shrubs, and flowers around our new building. Each class is given a portion of the grounds to beautify as he thinks best. Everyone enjoys this, and enters into the project enthusiastically, and with as much comment and discussion as an experienced landscape-gardener.

Arbor Day is well-timed. Spring has slowly been unfolding her beauties to us, and we have been all very much enthused. The weather has been pleasant, and, as yet, no one has had the occasion to say "my favorite season is winter." We still appreciate the possibilities and beauties of spring, and we are anxious to have a share in this beauty. Then comes Arbor Day and affords us the opportunity. We give 100 per cent cooperation.

The flowers, shrubs, and trees are all very pretty. The trees, we agree, are the most important of the three. Their work is varied in type and importance—from providing shade and shelter for birds' nests, to the all-important function of preventing floods and extravagant erosion.

Our trees may not be as tall and as stately as those of other regions, but we realize that their beauty and serviceableness is extensive.

Everywhere we look we see trees—oaks, cherries and lindens. By setting aside Arbor Day to replace the old, and to plant new trees we are restoring and supplementing the vigor of a natural force operating greatly to our advantage.

In early spring, when the snows begin to melt on the hill-tops where it has been accumulating throughout the winter, floods are prevented by the forests, or otherwise devastation in the wake of the rushing waters would be terrible to think of.

Many are the times when, exhausted with fatigue, at work or at play in the heat of the sun's rays, we sink appreciatively beneath the cool shade of a tree. Compared with its value, the amount of care that a tree requires is negligible.

Joyce Kilmer has described the tree beautifully; and with due apologies to him, we may say, "Editorials are made by fools like me,

But only God can make a tree,"
Vernona Chalmers, '31.

Assembly

April 16—Do you like Chopin? Well, if you didn't before, you certainly would after hearing Carl Budin's illustrated talk on Chopin. Mr. Budin told us some interesting facts about Chopin's life and then played small parts of several of his pieces to show the different moods of Chopin's life as reflected in his music.
B. Kirk, '31.

April 21—This morning we sang "The Little Brown Church." I believe we sang it the way it was intended to be sung. Alice Sullivan and Nannie Cox sang "My Sunshine." The applause they received was proof enough that everyone enjoyed the singing. Say! What has happened to you 125-pound boys? You had better report to Mr. Barker to find out what you can do.
B. Kirk, '31.

Valor

"Hey, Jack!" I called to one of my fellow soldiers as we sat smoking a cigarette, while waiting for the whistle that would send us over the top for another charge.

"Watta you want?" he asked.
"Listen, kid; will you send my stuff home to the folks if I don't live through this one?" I wanted to know.
"Whattamatter?" Are you losin' your nerve?"

"No, but—" My speech was cut off as the whistle blew for the attack. Cigarettes were extinguished and then we clambered out of the trench and across the devastated area of No Man's Land. The darkness was gradually giving place to dawn. Every once in a while a fiery light would go up, to make the place as light as day; shells would screech over our heads; shrapnel would whizz by; bullets would ping, and sing a song of death to countless others. Was there any wonder that I felt as I did about living through the attack? Possibly neither Jack nor I would live to see the dawn of another day. Looking to right and left, I saw countless other soldiers running the same as I. Many of them dropped to the ground, never to rise again; some fell screaming in such agony that I had all I could do to keep from putting my hands to my ears.

Suddenly we were confronted by a line of enemy soldiers. Hand to hand battle ensued. Each and every one of us was fighting not for his country, not for his ideals, but for his life. A big fellow attacked me and gashed my arm below the elbow. I had lost the use of my left arm, but I picked up my rifle by the barrel and using it as a club in my right hand, was playing havoc with it until the stock broke and the barrel had been bent. I had lost all sense of cautiousness and was screaming and beating at everyone I saw, until someone thoughtfully knocked me out.

When I came to, I found myself lying in our trench, none the worse for wear, unless a sticky left arm and a bruised chin can be termed as wearing. The sun had begun to shine in my eyes, causing me to awaken. Arising from my sleeping posture, I beheld some of the fellows grinning and nudging one another when they saw me.

"Some crack, eh, bud?" called one.
"How'd the little birdies sound?" questioned another.

"Aw, dry up," was all I could say. Nor did it all to my general peace of mind to know that this kidding would last for a long time to come.

Noticing that there was a lull in the exchange of shells, I looked over the top of the trench. A large expanse of land, uprooted, full of shell holes, and some of it covered with barbed wire, met my eyes. A clear, blue sky, dotted here and there with swiftly moving white clouds, was a decided contrast to the devastated land below. Many dead covered the area between our trench and the enemy's. But wait! About one-third of the distance between our trench and theirs, was a moving figure, who crawled slowly and painfully on hands and knees. Because of the quiet, I decided to bring him to our trench.

When I had braced my rifle against the wall, made sure my revolver was intact, and seen that my water canteen was full, I called to a group of our soldiers, "I'm going out for some poor devil. When I come back, give me a hand, will you?"

"Sure," one answered, "but be careful you don't get put to sleep."

I crawled over the top as the others laughed at his sally. Finding my direction, I crept from shell hole to shell hole on hands and knees. Either the enemy didn't see me or didn't care, for I reached the fellow without being shot at once. I found that he was an enemy. Both of his eyes had been put out—how, I do not know. It was a gruesome sight to behold. The loss of his sight made it harder for me since I knew only a few phrases of his language. He seemed to sense my presence, for he called out softly. I answered him.

"Have you water?" he gasped.
"Here," I answered, as I handed him my canteen.

Lying on his back, he poured some of the water over his eye-sockets and sighed contentedly at the effect. When he had washed out his mouth he drank one or two swallows and handed the canteen to me.

When I had told him, he said, "My leg has been hit. I can't move very quickly, so will you please go slowly?"

I understood only a little of what he said, but enough to get a general idea of the state of affairs. I looked at his leg. It had been badly wounded, much of the muscle of his leg had been torn away by a piece of shrapnel. I wondered how he kept from bleeding to death, with only a crude blood-soaked bandage of a shirt over it.

I picked him up in my arms. I was so moved by pity, but I had hardly gotten to my knees when a bullet struck me on the leg and spun me half around and in a sitting position. "What is it?" my companion asked?
"Oh, just a little bump," I told him.

We were out in the open, and to stay where we were was as bad as making a dash for it. I painfully got to my feet with the now limp form in my arms, and, wonder of wonders, headed straight toward the place from which the bullets came. Bullets sang all around me for a while, but suddenly ceased. I looked up and saw one of the enemy's officers running across the ground between me and his trench.

"The goose is cooked," I mumbled as I turned to go back to our trench. Firing began from our trench, so, bewildered, I stopped and looked back. The officer had been hit; he faltered for a moment and then came on. My burden had become so heavy that I laid him on the ground and sat down beside him. The officer placed me over his shoulder and told me to hold up to his belt; I noticed that it was sticky, but paid no attention to it, thinking it was sweat. He picked up the limp form of the blinded soldier in his arms and carried both of us unflinchingly toward my trench.

By this time, soldiers from both trenches were standing up in front of the trenches. A small group from my side came running to meet us. When they were nearer, I recognized one of our lieutenants. The officer laid his soldier to the ground, and taking me from his shoulder, stood me up. He clicked his heels together, saluted, and said, in very precise English, "Captain Johann Ederer, of his Majesty's troop, the Hessians, salute you, my lieutenant, and wishes to apologize for wounding your soldier while on an errand of mercy to one of our men—an enemy."

Are You Suffering On PILES?
IF PILES DRIVE YOU MAD!

About one person out of five suffers from some disease or other of the large intestine. Many of them suffer acute pain for years and are in misery because of piles and are satisfied to secure occasional relief by using some remedy or other. But these remedies do not help. For those who suffer from piles, time is too costly to waste experimenting with untimely methods. A tried and proven method of curing piles, fistula, itching piles, fissure, abscesses, abdominal wounds and constipation is the use of

HOW TO PRAY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
Golden Text—And it came to pass, that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray as John also taught his disciples.
Primary Topic—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.
Junior Topic—Jesus Teaches Us to Pray.
Intermediate and Senior Topic—What is True Prayer?
Ten's People and Adult Topic—How to Pray?

"Men Ought Always to Pray"

Prayer is absolutely necessary to the spiritual life. It is to the spiritual life what breathing is to the physical life. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstances—in times of sorrow and burdens for strength to endure, in times of joy and success for grace to behave aright. Prayer ought to be persisted in even when the answer is not immediately seen. "All men pray at times." To the Christian, prayer belongs as faith-filled and persistent prayer.

The Urgent Prayer of a Widow

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was to prove the justice of her claim by her persistence. Even this did not gain access to his heart for he feared not God nor regarded man. He complied with her request to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, but that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If such action can be secured on the part of a godless judge by persistence, how much surer will the help of God be given to his elect who cry day and night. The helpless widow pictures the church in this age suffering the deprivation of her rights.

It is not the church praying for vengeance upon her enemies, but suing for the possession of her rights by virtue of her covenant relation in Christ. The inheritance of the church will be actualized at the coming of Christ. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is so vital to Christianity, and why so disastrous consequences follow the loss of this blessed hope. Every prayer offered by the church will surely be answered.

The apparent delay in the vindication of the church may dishearten some and cause others to mock (II Peter 1:4). Jesus' question should be a solemn warning against allowing apparent delay of the coming of the Lord to crowd out our praying. Though many may give up, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ shall be fulfilled.

The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee

He took a striking attitude (v. 11). The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of an ostentatious position. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

He prayed with himself (v. 12).

He used the name of God, but it was really a soliloquy. He pretended to be thinking God when he was really complimenting himself—rehearsing his own goodness. His whole thought centered in himself. He congratulated himself for his morality (v. 11). He thanked God that he was not as other men are, such as extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as the publican who was standing afar off. One who has been kept from these gross sins ought to be grateful to God but should not set himself above his fellow men because of his religious merits (v. 12).

He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus honored God that he did more than what was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

In contrast with this supposed saint stood the publican, whose shame kept him from even looking up to heaven, leaning upon his breast as a sign of despair of soul and crying out to God to be merciful to him, a sinner.

Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ declared that the publican had away justified rather than the Pharisee. The one great and urgent thing to the part of men is the confession of sin and a willingness to turn to God for mercy.

The Ear of God

A friend of any kind and to any extent we desire is something in this cold and lonely world, but to have a friend who has the ear of God, and who has God's ear from time to time with the same and our cause. Oh, who could find such a friend in me!—Alexander Whyte.

Trusting in God

Truly it is a poor creed that will allow us to trust in God for our salvation—George MacDonald.

The Market Basket

Family Food Guide

Every meal—Milk for children, bread for all.

Every day—Cereal in porridge or pudding, potatoes, tomatoes (or oranges) for children, a green or yellow vegetable, a fruit or additional vegetable, milk for all.

Two to four times a week—Tomatoes for all, dried beans and peas or peanuts, eggs (especially for children), lean meat, fish or poultry, or cheese.

Supplement "One Dish Meals" with a salad or fruit is the suggestion of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture which approves them both for economy and for the saving of time and energy. In meals of this sort starchy and protein foods can be served along with the vegetables in a single dish, the bureau points out.

All the ingredients of a well-balanced meal can be included in single dish meals, but such a meal is made more interesting and nutritious by addition of a raw vegetable salad, stewed or fresh fruit in season. Raw foods provide Vitamin C which are likely to be destroyed in long cooking.

Women in business and industry with families to cook for find this type of meal valuable because it can be served quickly and it simplifies their work. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the bureau, says it would be desirable if mothers could purchase these dishes already prepared. Day nurseries and industrial plants with cafeterias would perform a real service, she said, if they would prepare one-dish meals to sell at cost to working mothers. Both the day nurseries and the industrial cafeterias have the equipment for cooking and this plan would not entail additional expense except for labor and materials, she said. Such a plan would increase the use of the kitchen equipment when it is usually idle, she pointed out.

Many combinations of food can be used for one dish meals. Some which the bureau advocates are meat stews with vegetables, shepherd pies, chowders, and thick vegetable soups made with meat stock.

The one dish meal is not a twentieth century invention for it harks back to the earliest forms of cooking on which, even today, some of the nomadic tribes of the old world still subsist. After the value of cooking food was discovered the meats were first broiled over a fire on a stick. The next step was to bury it in leaves in embers and then it was found that daubing food with clay before burying it was better still.

With the advent of a cooking pot, hot stones were dropped into it to cook the ingredients and finally the pot itself was placed over the coals. So into this container were placed the meat and cereals that made up the meals. When vegetables became known they were added to the other foods in the pot and this form of cooking served man for a long time. The ancients had no thought for saving time, money or labor. Their primitive needs were easily satisfied by simple meals to which, in times of necessity, we find ourselves returning.

Elaborate meals are costly and no more nutritious than simple ones planned to contain foods that supply energy, build, and repair the body cells and those which may be termed regulatory. In the first group are the cereals and starches while such proteins as meat, fish, eggs, cheese, milk, and the legumes give energy. The vegetables and fruit comprise the latter class with their minerals and vitamins so necessary for maintaining normal nutrition.

A Family of Seven

A family of seven, including father, mother and five children should buy every week—Bread, 16 to 22 pounds; flour, 3 to 4 pounds; cereal, 6 to 8 pounds; whole fresh milk, 30 to 42 quarts; or canned unsweetened milk, 30 to 42 1/2 cans; potatoes, 20 to 30 pounds; dried beans, peas, peanut butter, 1 to 3 pounds; tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruits, 9 pounds; other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color) and inexpensive fruits, 20 to 25 pounds; fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, etc., 4 pounds; sugar and molasses, 5 pounds; lean meat, fish, eggs (8 eggs approximate 1 pound), 7 to 10 pounds; eggs (for children), 8 eggs; coffee, 1 pound; tea, 1/4 pound.

These recipes serve five persons:

Baked Cheese Tamale
Three large onions (cut fine), 3 tablespoons drippings, 2 cups tomatoes, 3 teaspoons salt, 1 1/2 cups cornmeal, pepper, 5 cups boiling water, 1 cup grated cheese.

Cook the onions in the drippings for 10 minutes. Add the tomatoes, 1 teaspoon of salt and a little pepper, and cook 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle the corn meal slowly into the boiling water, all the 2 teaspoons of salt, stir constantly and cook for 15 minutes. Into a greased baking dish place alternate layers of the mixtures and sprinkle each layer with the cheese, reserving some of the cheese for the top layer. Bake about 25 minutes in a moderate oven (350° F.). Serve from the dish.

Fish Chowder

One-quarter pound salt pork, 1 onion (sliced), 2 cups carrots cut in pieces, 9 potatoes (peeled and cut) in small pieces, pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 cups milk, 1 1/2 pounds fish (fresh, salt or canned).

Cut pork in small pieces and fry with the chopped onion for five minutes. Put pork, onions, carrots and potatoes and pepper in kettle and cover with boiling water. Cook until vegetables are tender. Mix three tablespoons of flour with one-half cup of the cold milk and stir in the liquid in the pot to thicken. Add the rest of the milk and the fish which has been removed from the bone and cut in small pieces. Cook until the fish is tender, about 10 minutes. Serve hot. You can omit salt pork and use a tablespoon of other fat.

Rabbit, fowl, or any meat may be used instead of the fish, or tomatoes instead of milk.

Potted Hominy and Beef

Two tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 4 potatoes, 2 cups carrots, 5 cups cooked hominy, 1/4 pound dried beef, 1 teaspoon salt. Heat 1 1/2 quarts of water to boiling; add 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of hominy which has been soaked overnight. Cook in a double boiler for four hours or in the fireless cooker overnight. This makes 5 cups.

Melt the fat, stir in the flour, add the cold milk and mix well. Cook until it thickens. Cut the potatoes and carrots in dice, mix all the materials in a baking dish, and bake for one hour.

This recipe may be increased and enough cooked in different ways for several meals. Hominy is excellent combined with dried, canned, or fresh fish, or meat and vegetable left-overs may be used.

STANTON P. T. A.

The Stanton P. T. A. met on Thursday evening, April 16, in the Stanton School. Due to the absence of the president and vice-president, Miss Lora Little acted as chairman. After the usual reports from committee chairmen, the association decided to pay the D. I. A. A. dues for the school, to furnish banners and arm-bands for the Attendance Day parade, to finance the picnic at the close of school, and to pay the fee for Stanton children to enter the Music Memory Contest.

The State Program material for April was presented by the teachers of the school. A very interesting discussion on Special Abilities was most effectively carried on. The art work for the year was exhibited and explained.

Several members of the P. T. A. who recently visited the Georgetown Demonstration School gave very interesting reports on the work observed. The high spots in the P. T. A. convention held in Dover on Saturday, April 11th, were also given by a delegate, Mrs. George Barr. Mrs. Harold Mitchell, in charge of the entertainment, had arranged some very enjoyable games which were enjoyed during the social hour.

ably leveled out. You understand why Tony Sarg's Marionettes have just finished their thirteenth season in New York City at high theatre prices with the records broken for sold-out houses, and you agree that Alice in Puppetland, which with Rip Van Winkle, in its fourth year, will be the programs here, are such general favorites in all the larger cities where one may pick and choose their entertainment from unlimited variety.

The entire equipment used in New York, Chicago, Boston and other large cities for week and two week engagements will be here with the original company of eight to ten puppeteers who, from above the stage, work the strings that work the dolls—from twenty to thirty strings to each doll, and one hundred dolls in the present Tony Sarg Puppet Company. The puppeteers speak the puppet's lines for them; also, beside attending to these special needs of the puppets, take care of full grown theatrical problems of lighting, scene-shifting and management of properties. It takes months of hard work to make a skillful puppeteer.

The marionettes are over one-third life size and are made of wood and metal, except the Alice with the extended neck which includes some rubber construction. Each is so elaborately joined and weighted that there is practically nothing that the Tony Sarg puppeteers cannot do to make them lead charming and varied lives in a rich and fantastic environment.

When all is said about the mystifying technical ingenuity of the performance, there is still left for your wonder the extraordinary illusion that this queer drama creates. As the play begins you are merely curious and detached; you are quite aware that you are seeing jointed dolls on strings, trying to act like people. In a ridiculously short time all these facts cease to exist for you. The strange little creatures begin to move and speak, (not to be sure as people live and speak but in a special, independent way all their own, that is quite as real, and full of an odd charm that is not in human behavior.

OBSERVE RULES OF ROAD. AUTO ASSOCIATION URGES

"Observe the rules of the road," is the advice of the Delaware Automobile Association, A. M. A., which points to the increasing number of automobiles on the highway as an added reason for unusual precautions during the touring season.

"We are," says a statement by the Association, "at the beginning of the greatest touring season in history. More automobiles will be on the highways of the United States than ever before, and more tourists from other states will pass over the roads of Delaware. Many of the visiting thousands will be unfamiliar with local conditions and regulations and they have a right to expect from local motorists the same courtesies and considerations that we look for when touring in their states."

"Of course, the road hog is the same no matter what state he calls home, but it is conceded by motorists' severest critics that this class is far in the minority. Thus, the majority of visitors are likely to be well-meaning and considerate drivers, deserving whatever help local motorists can give them."

FORM STATE FEDERATION OF MEN'S BIBLE CLASSES

A state-wide meeting of members of Men's Bible Classes of Delaware was held Monday evening in the First Baptist Church in Dover, at which plans for a State Federation of Men's Bible Classes were discussed. A number of men from Newark churches attended the meeting.

The idea of a state federation of Bible Classes has been worked out in a large number of other states in the country, and has been found to be an important factor in unifying the various churches into a cooperative group working together for the welfare of the community. At the meeting in Dover, officers for a temporary organization were elected, and committees to care for the details of a permanent organization were appointed. Those elected as temporary officers were: Howard S. Glandine, president; John Furman, secretary; Thomas S. Taylor, treasurer; William E. Skellinger, vice-president for New Castle county; Walter Stephenson, vice-president for Sussex county; Major Clarence Short, vice-president for Kent county.

AVOID PUDDLES AND COCCIDIOSIS

By Prof. Walter B. Krueck

Placing the brooder house upon a heavy sod seems to help control and eliminate coccidiosis.

Even where sandy soils are used there is a tendency for the surface soil to become puddled close to the brooder houses where the chicks congregate. As a result of the stamping of this soil about the brooder house, puddle will form following most of our spring rains.

Professor Halpin at the University of Wisconsin Experiment Station placed chicks upon sandy soil that had not been used for poultry for a great many years. In less than five weeks an infection of coccidiosis appeared in the flock. In adjoining lots where good blue-grass sod was maintained, no difficulty was encountered. As a result of the above experience, Professor Halpin would recommend that the brooder house be placed upon sod, even though the pullets are allowed to run into cultivated corn fields. Moving the brooder house often, also, will help keep a good sod around the brooder house where the chicks tend to congregate and will help to prevent the development of the disease.

As coccidiosis has been quite detrimental to growing pullets and also to pullets in the laying house during the winter months, an ounce of prevention here is worth a great many pounds of cure. A few minutes time in moving the brooder house often during the growing period will help to grow stronger, healthier, and better pullets and make more profit for the farmer and the poultryman.
