

CAGE TEAM LOSES GAME TO ST. JOSEPH'S

Basketball Squad Is Defeated
By Score Of 33-14; J. V.
Team Wins

Displaying their poorest form of the present disastrous basketball season, Coach Joe Rothrock's University of Delaware court team went down to their tenth straight defeat of the current campaign here Tuesday night as St. Joseph's College, of Philadelphia, turned in a 33 to 14 win over the Blue and Gold.

Delaware was outclassed from the opening whistle as the score indicates. St. Joe's jumped to the front at the start and piled up a 17-3 count at the end of the first half, Delaware failing to tally a single goal from the field.

The Blue and Gold's play in the second period was little better, although they did manage to score four baskets, three of which came from the center of the floor. St. Joe's swift passing and accurate shooting on the part of Osborne, former Catholic High star, and F. Trainer, gave the visitors a commanding lead.

F. Trainer led St. Joe's in the point column with 13 counters, while John LeCarpentier's pair of field tosses topped the Blue and Gold.

The score:

St. Joe's		Goals—
		Field	Foul Pts.
Osborne, forward	4	3	11
Sunkes, forward	2	1	5
Kane, forward	0	1	1
Smith, center	1	0	2

The Junior Varsity defeated Coatesville Y. M. C. A. by a score of thirty-three to fourteen, following the Varsity game.

COLLEGE HOUR FOR FRESHMEN ON TUESDAY

Motion Picture "Simba" Will Be Shown To First Year
Students

The motion picture "Simba" which was announced as scheduled for College Hour some time during the first term is to be shown at College Hour this Tuesday, February 11. Every one is invited, but Freshmen are required to attend. The picture will require slightly more than an hour for a showing so all persons attending are requested to be in their seats as soon as possible.

In case you have forgotten, "Simba" is a picture showing the adventures in Africa of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson. Although it does not have a love plot or in fact any plot it is certainly an interesting picture of the trials and experiences of these two people and their party. Any one anxious to learn about lion hunting and life in general in darkest Africa should by all means attend College Hour on Tuesday.

"The Infinite Shoeblack"

This interesting play by Norman MacOwan, which is being presented at the Adelphi Theatre, Philadelphia, by the Professional Players of Philadelphia, is based on Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus." Read the book (if you can) and then see the play; or see the play and then (if you can) read the book. Both the contemporary play and the almost an hundred-year-old book are significant for us dwellers in this Arnoldian machine age.

TRACK AND BASE- BALL SCHEDULES ARE ANNOUNCED

Track Team Has Seven Meets;
Diamond Stars Will Make
Southern Trip

Graduate Manager Doherty has announced that the schedule for the coming track season is complete, and that the baseball schedule is nearing completion. The track card has seven meets, including the Penn Relays, and the baseball schedule to date has nineteen games. The completed schedule in the latter sport will be announced within a few weeks.

The track schedule includes several old rivals and some new ones. After opening with Johns Hopkins, the devotees of the cinder path will engage in a triangular meet with Swarthmore and Drexel. This meet will be followed by the Penn Relays, and this in turn by the meet with Haverford, one of the only two to be held at home. Susquehanna is the next opponent, and on May 10th, the interscholastics will be held. Catholic University will be the next rival, and the season closes on May 22d with St. Joseph's.

The baseball team has a more pretentious schedule than it has had for several years. After opening at home with its traditional rival, Drexel, the nine will play Dartmouth. Following this game they will go to Washington to meet Catholic University. The week ends with a game with Franklin and Marshall, who are returning to the schedule after an absence of several years.

In the latter part of the Easter vacation the team will make its southern trip, which will include Bridge-water College, Hampden-Sidney, William and Mary, Medical College of Virginia, and Quantico Marines. They will return home and meet Hampden-Sidney and Moravian on the local diamond, and will journey to Swarthmore to engage with their ancient enemies. Following this game, there will be four home games, with City College of New York, Mount St. Mary's, Haverford, and Temple. The regular season will close with Pennsylvania Military College at Chester, and the alumni game will finish the bill.

DERELICTS TO GIVE DANCE

Senior Honorary Society To Hold Social Event March 1

The Derelicts, Senior honorary society, have announced that their annual dance will be held this year on March first. The affair will be given in Old College. No orchestra has been selected as yet for the affair, but the Derelicts promise that the event will be well worth while.

The members of the Derelict Society this year include Alex. Taylor, William Draper, Caleb Wright, Chas. Kimble, Warren Riggen, Herman Ryan, Irving Taylor, Frank Swezey, Allen Barton, David Benson, Ralph Wells, Richard Rinsard and Clayton Hesselburg.

RIFLE CLUB NOTES

Interest is picking up in the rifle team activities and it is hoped in the near future to see some very good progress both by way of marksmanship and growing popularity in the art itself.

Under the pressure of other duties Sparks was forced to resign and Caras was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Club.

JAY VEE CAGE TEAM SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

Doherty's Basketball Urchins
Have Ten-Game Card

After some delays, due to various causes, a schedule for the basketball junior varsity has been arranged and has been announced to the public. The first game of the schedule was held on Tuesday evening following the varsity game with St. Joseph's, the game ending in a win for the locals with a score of thirty-four to eighteen. The opponents in this affair were the representatives of the Coatesville Y. M. C. A.

The next game will be held this evening in Wilmington, where Goldey College will be the hosts.

The complete schedule is as follows:

February 4—Coatesville Y. Home.
February 7—Goldey. Away.
February 8—Swarthmore J. V. Away.
February 11—Wilmington Y. M. C. A. Away.
February 12—Goldey. Away.
February 14—Salesianum. Away.
February 18—Drexel J. V. Home.
February 22—Wilmington Trade School. Home.
February 25—Wilmington Y. M. C. A. Home.
March 4—Beacom's. Home.

PROM PLANS PERFECTED

Planners Predict Perfect Party;
Plenty Of People And Plenty Of Pep

Caleb Boggs, vice-president of the Junior Class and general chairman in charge of the Junior Prom has announced that everything is in readiness for the Prom as a result of the efforts of several committees who have been working in preparation for the affair for the past few weeks. The Prom takes place this evening in the Gold Ball Room of the duPont-Biltmore Hotel.

From the reports of the entertainment committee, tonight's affair is expected to be the most elaborate Junior Prom ever given in the history of the University. Decorations, favors, and specialty numbers are said to be unusually unique and entertaining.

The national fame of Eddie Brubaker's orchestra, who will furnish the music tonight, combined with the assiduous efforts of the publicity and business committees has resulted in the record-breaking number of tickets which have been purchased for the Prom. Over 300 couples, consisting of alumni, guests, and friends, in addition to students of the University are expected to attend the dance.

The strain of mid-years now having passed, the survivors are anxiously awaiting the Prom in order to celebrate their victory over fearful disaster. The fact that, according to President Hullahen, recent mid-years established a record for the low number of flunking students, is also expected to add to the number of joyous students who will throng the "hotel" this evening.

The list of prominent women which follows have accepted the invitations to act as patronesses for the affair: Mrs. C. D. Buck, Mrs. Pierre S. du Pont, Dean Robinson, Mrs. W. Hullahen, Mrs. E. P. Jolls, Mrs. E. J. Boggs, Mrs. W. P. Blair.

OPEN BIDS FEBRUARY 26 FOR U. OF D. GYM

H. Rodney Sharp, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee of the University of Delaware, has given notice that his committee will meet Thursday, February 20, at the office of Dr. Walter Hullahen, president of the institution, to open bids for the Women's College gymnasium. The meeting will start at 2.

Bids will be received at that time for furnishing labor and material to erect the gymnasium. All bids will hold good for 30 days after formal opening.

The committee reserves the right to reject any bids. All bids must be in sealed envelopes. No bid will be considered unless accompanied by a certified check to the order of the trustees of the University of Delaware, to the amount of five per cent of the amount of the bid.

Dr. and Mrs. Townsend, former Newark residents, returned to their home in Arlington, N. J., on Sunday, after spending some time with Newark friends.

LOCAL SWIMMERS FACE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY

Natators Prepare For Exciting
Meet

The University of Delaware swimming team will meet their fifth opponent of the current season when they splash against Catholic University in the Taylor Pool this evening.

Losing but one man as a result of mid-year exams, Coach Horace Weir has been diligently preparing his natators for the stiff competition that is expected from Catholic University. Although this is the first collegiate swimming meet of the season for Catholic, they come to Delaware with an almost veteran team, having lost only two men through graduation.

Their captain, "Mike" Shuban, is a veteran breast-stroke, winning most of his events in his Freshman year. "Moon" Mullen, last year's captain, and outstanding star, will swim in the relay and the distance events. This same performer has navigated through two heavy schedules without a defeat, and should give Captain Alex Taylor a real race in the 440.

The Catholic relay team was undefeated last year, but will have to step fast to outclass Delaware, who has only been defeated by a superior Army team.

In the diving Praetorius and Hengstler will oppose Sortman and Hartman, which McNamera and Hengstler will navigate against Brown and Howell in the backstroke.

J. F. DAUGHERTY RECEIVES PH. D.

Physics Professor To Get Degree
From North Carolina University

Mr. J. Fenton Daugherty, member of the Physics Department of Delaware College, has recently completed all the work necessary to secure the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Physics. Mr. Daugherty only joined the faculty of the University of Delaware last September. In 1921 he received his A. B. degree at Dickinson College at Carlisle, Pa. He was instructor in physics at the University of North Carolina from the fall of 1921 until June, 1926. While there he secured his Master's degree in 1925. From 1926 until 1929 he was head of the Physics Department at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tennessee. The degree of Ph. D. will be conferred upon Mr. Daugherty this coming June at the University of North Carolina.

KAPPA ALPHA-PHI KAPPA TAU

Kappa Alpha nosed out Phi Kappa Tau in a closely contested game Thursday by a 14 to 10 score that took an extra period to decide the issue.

K. A. held the P. K. T. team scoreless the first quarter and in the meantime garnered four points on their own account. In the next period Renard split the cords for a two-pointer while K. A. tallied three more points to end the half 7 to 2 in their favor.

The P. K. T. five came back with a bang in the third period when "Slim" Ryan rang up two field goals in short order to net the count at 7-all. Ely then sank a spectacular double-decker. "Doc" Smith followed with a foul to advance the score to 10-7, only to have P. K. T. quickly deadlock the score at 10-all when the whistle for "game" blew.

In the extra period "Doggie" Draper and Cooper hooped two field goals to end the contest at 14 to 10 in K. A.'s favor. Ely played best for K. A. while Ryan and Renard starred for the losers. The score:

KAPPA ALPHA		Goals—
		Field	Foul Pts.
Ely, guard	2	0	4
Smith, guard	0	2	2
Cooper, center	2	0	4

DELAWARE PLAYS SWARTHMORE TOMORROW

Cage Team Hoping To Break
Out Of Slump And Repeat
Last Year's Victory

The local basketball team will go to Swarthmore tomorrow night to meet the Little Quakers in their native haunts. Although unsuccessful so far this season, the cagers are hoping to break out of their slump and appear in the winning column in the Sunday papers. For years Swarthmore has been the traditional rival of the basketball team and a victory over the Quakers means a successful season if all other games are list. Consequently the squad has been drilling hard this week to prepare for this game.

The team hopes that a large number of students will follow the team to Swarthmore to back them in the game. Already a number have signified their intentions of attending and it is hoped by all concerned that many more will do likewise. Without support there will be little hope, but with good support great things are possible. It is only a short run to Swarthmore and it should not be at all difficult for a large number of the students of the University of Delaware to attend the game and watch the Blue Hen's Chicks in their best efforts to seize the prize of victory and climb out of the slump into which they seem to have fallen.

The team has been working hard this week, learning new plays and perfecting the old ones, and it is the belief of those in charge that Delaware is more sure of victory tomorrow night than she has been in any other game so far this season.

INTER-FRAT CAGE LEAGUE HAS OPENED

Theta Chi Defeats Sigma Nu
And Sigma Tau Phi Beats
Sigma Phi Epsilon

The Inter-Fraternity Basketball League opened on Monday night in the gymnasium. The Theta Chi team defeated the Sigma Nu by a score of 25 to 11, and the Sigma Tau Phi beat the Sigma Phi Epsilon by a score of 20 to 9.

OXEN DEFEAT SNAKES
The Theta Chi team started off with a bang and scored 10 points to their opponents' five in the first half. During the second half the Sigma Nus could not stop the Oxen and the game ended 25 to 11. The score:

THETA CHI		Goals—
		Field	Foul Pts.
Riggen, forward	2	2	6
Squillace, forward	2	0	4
Clemo, center	3	0	6

THETA CHIS HOLD FATHER-SON DINNER

The local chapter of the Theta Chi Fraternity held its annual father-and-son banquet last night in Old College. A large number of people attended. Interesting speeches were given and the entire assembly agreed that the banquet had been a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Heim and Dean and Mrs. McCue will be guests on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Anderson for dinner and bridge.

Miss Frances Hullahen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Hullahen, who is a student at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has been chosen as one of the ten members of the Freshman Class who will usher at the annual Vassar Junior Prom.

FENCING TEAM HAVE FIRST HOME MEET

Duelers Anxious To Defeat
Rutgers

The Delaware fencing team will hold its first home meet in the Taylor Gymnasium tomorrow afternoon, with Rutgers as the opponents. The meet will start at two o'clock and the members of the team are hoping for a large audience.

Rutgers comes to Delaware with a strong team. They are fortunate in having a good coach and a large number of men from whom to pick the team. Last year they defeated Delaware ten to seven in an exciting meet. This year the local swordsmen believe they have a stronger team than last year and are hoping to begin a winning streak.

The probable lineup is as follows: Captain Hare, epee and foil; Sassé, sabre; Friable, sabre; Blum, foil and epee; Davis, epee and foil; and Glibney, foil.

There will be another meet next Saturday.

BLUM INJURES EYE

Yesterday afternoon while indulging in some amateur fencing, Louis Vardee Blum, a Senior, received a thrust in the eye by the foil of his opponent, who was his brother, Sol Blum. While not believed serious, the injury was quite painful.

THE ATHLETIC SITUATION

The preceding issue of The Review contained an article with the headline "Alumni Endorses Ziegler As Coach." Aside from the grammatical error, called to our attention by a prominent member of the English Department, there are several things about the article which we do not like, and which we believe, many of the students of the University do not like.

In the first place we believe that it would be a grave mistake to engage Mr. Ziegler to coach football for another year. Leaving aside the results of the past football season (for which results there were many causes), we do not believe that Coach Ziegler is the kind of man that should coach any Delaware team. He has taken, to our knowledge, no interest in the University of Delaware beyond attending the practices and games. Although personally invited to attend and speak at several of the pep fests and smokers, he attended none. He was not present at the football banquet to which he was also invited. He refused to recommend several members of the football team for letters, on the grounds that they had broken training, but when asked by the Athletic Council to attend a meeting and present charges, he neither attended the meeting nor sent any written charges. He has taken no interest in the affairs of the University, and has, we believe, shown himself to be not the sort of man to direct our athletics, in football or in any sport. One of the greatest of the benefits to be derived from collegiate athletics is a knowledge of sportsmanship, and, in our opinion, Mr. Ziegler is not the type of man to teach this subject.

The other thing that we resent about the article is the assumption that the alumni direct the selection of the coaches in the various sports. No one knows better than do we that the coaches are paid by funds subscribed by generous alumni, but we do not believe that this fact gives them a right to dictate to the University how it shall run the athletic department any more than it controls the department of ancient languages. Athletics were begun in Delaware by the students and for the students, and it is our belief that, with the supervision of the faculty they should be run by the students. Athletics should be on a par with any other department of the college, neither above nor below. It would be better for the University if there were only a few athletics financially supported by the students and run by the students, than to have a heavily endowed department of athletics managed and controlled by the alumni. The alumni, we firmly believe, have the interests of the College at heart, but colleges belong to a class of societies which are sufficient unto themselves and which work better when conducted under the policy of home rule. We are as anxious as any loyal alumnus to see Delaware progress in the field of athletics, as in every other field, but we do not believe that it will do so as long as the control rests in the hands of the alumni, or as long as the alumni appear to be seeking control.

This leads us to add that we are firmly opposed to the granting of athletic scholarships. Scholarships should be awarded to men who are deserving and who are coming to the University, for the purpose that men came originally—to prepare themselves for the lives which they are to lead and to learn to appreciate the richer values of life. The granting of scholarships to men who come here with the primary purpose of playing on some athletic team is fundamentally wrong, and we believe that athletics at Delaware would be improved if all attempts at athletic scholarships be dropped.

Let us, then, do away with athletic scholarships, give the control of athletics to the students, under proper supervision by the faculty, and hire coaches on the basis of ability to train men to be men, and not because they played a great game in the line against Cornell.

Let It Stand

The doctor who advertises does wrong. He is not recognized as a comrade in the profession by other doctors. He stands alone in an unenviable position, scorned by those whose professional brother he should be, and looked down upon by the public. Why is this? It is because the doctor who advertises has violated the code of ethics which physicians have set up for themselves. We are not disposed to argue here the seriousness of the offence, but an offence it is, and serious enough to bring the offender the disapproval of people at large.

In this college there is a code of ethics analogous to that of the doctors. Exactly what our code embraces it is difficult to say. Nevertheless violations are easily recognized when they occur. Cheating and dishonesty of any kind are practices which are obviously violations of our code, and we need not dwell on them. But there are other practices, less easily defined and more vague than dishonesty, which we seldom think about, but which we recognize as violations when we encounter them. The ways in which a student may become "the doctor who advertises" are numerous. One way, which was rather forcibly brought to our attention during the mid-year examinations, is accepting monetary compensation for certain kinds of aid rendered fellow students. We do not mean tutoring as we usually know it. Charging money for helping students in courses which the tutor has already taken and creditably passed has always been regarded as a legitimate practice. However, even this does not seem altogether right to us, unless the pupil is an unknown person in whom the tutor has no interest whatever. But we will let that pass and say that there is no stigma attached to tutoring as defined above. We know this is correct as far as this college is concerned. Let us proceed to the violation which has already been mentioned. A part of our code of ethics—written—states that when examinations come around there shall be "drill sessions" in which each student present contributes what information he can concerning the course, the good students naturally contributing most and helping the poorer ones. If a good student is invited, or asked, to attend a session, and refuses without reason it is a violation of the code, but not a serious violation. If the good student's aid is badly needed, and he refuses, his offence assumes greater proportions. Be it understood that all the members of these sessions are classmates—at least in so far as they are all enrolled in the course to be discussed, and are all to take the same examination. When a good student is not willing to comply with custom and give aid to his classmates, but does give the aid when paid for it, he has committed a most serious violation of our code of ethics, besides having fallen to the ninth circle of selfishness. The student who does this is the worst kind of "doctor who advertises," and it is only right that other students should regard him as such. That is the violation which we mentioned before. The code of our college is not inclined to tolerate such practices as that, and anyone who makes use of them should certainly feel that he has done wrong. It is our opinion that the idea of taking money from classmates, who are close acquaintances if not actually friends, should be repulsive to a gentleman, aside from the question of violating the code which is unquestionably clear on this point.

At other colleges it is quite likely that similar codes do not exist because where the student body is large many class mates are entire strangers and the unity and comradeship, which we here feel, does not exist there. Relations between students in larger institutions than ours are often more like business relations than friendships, and where that kind of relationship exists selling aid is no doubt not looked down upon. But here at our college relations between students approach, if they do not always reach, friendship, and it is only in exceptional cases that members of the same class are not friends to a certain extent. Under this condition the part of our code of ethics which we have stressed has grown up. Personally we should be only too glad to give whatever help we could to even the classmate who is farthest from being our friend, and we should feel like a cad if we tried to charge money for doing it. We know, furthermore, that this attitude is shared by enough of our fellow students to make it mean something. What it means is that the attitude has become a definite part of our code of ethics, and we, for one, look with strong disapproval and a certain amount of scorn on the one who has made of himself "the doctor who advertises."

—Stet.

From the Lyrics

IMPROMPTU ON A WINTER'S DAY

I met an old snowman
One winter day
Out on the banks
Of the frozen White Clay.
I know who made him,
But I don't dare tell,
For if I did—
I'd be scolded right well.

I walked along
On the velvet snow
And went wherever
The road would go.
A tree-sparrow sang
From the fligree lace
That covered the shrubs
That grew in that place.
A cardinal flashed
Across the way,
A splash of bright red
On that white, white day.
The white-throat sat
In the arch overhead.
"Spring comes on!"
Is what he said.
And the snow came down,
And covered the earth
With an ermine gown.

But the funniest thing
I ever did see
Was a white old snowman
'Neath a grey beech tree;
With one arm up
And one arm down,
And a hat on his head
With a curly-cue crown,
And a big bow tie,
And a Van Dyke beard.
I'd tell you who made him
If it wasn't that I feared!

THE THIRTEENTH HOUR

Reputed to be unlucky, the number "13" was found by one Englishman to be extremely lucky at a time when he had need of all the good fortune possible. The Englishman was John Hatfield, who died in 1770 when 102 years old. He was once court-martialed for having fallen asleep at midnight while on guard at Windsor Castle, says the Detroit News.

But Hatfield insisted that he was not asleep and as proof of this fact stated that the clock at St. Paul's struck 13 instead of 12 that night. Because he was able to produce several persons whose story about the striking of the clock agreed with his own Hatfield was acquitted and received the King's pardon.

The recital of these circumstances was engraved on his casket to satisfy the world of the truth of the story: Here lies our sovereign lord, the king, Whose word no man relies on; Who never said a foolish thing And never did a wise one.

And then there's the nice Co-ed, who, when she dreams of auto rides, she walks in her sleep.

McGILL COLLEGE CONTAINS MANY VARIED SURNAMES

A unique feature appears in the McGill Daily of McGill U., Montreal, Canada, dealing with the varied surnames of the students at the northern college. It is brought to light that there are three Bishops, a Pope, an Abbot, and two Parsons to say Grace. There is even an Angel but there is no devil. Democracy seems to be in danger as there is a Castle, and a Crown, a Baron, a Duke, and two Peers.

There are also a Bigger and a Littler. Paradoxical as it may seem, the Littler is bigger than the Bigger, and the Bigger is littler than the Littler.

COLUMBIA U. CLAIMS BRIGHTEST FRESHMEN

Argument may continue as to the quality of the finished product turned out by American colleges and universities, but Columbia University says that each year's crop of freshmen is more intelligent than the last.

Columbia claims the brightest freshman class in the country this year. Results of the Thorndike intelligence test given the upper quarter of the 1933 class, rates the participants at 91.5 as against an average of 85 in other first class colleges. —Syracuse Daily Orange.

Coach vs. Professor

The average football coach in American colleges and universities receives a salary of $6,107 a year, or over a thousand dollars more than the highest paid professor, was one of the discoveries made by the Carnegie Foundation in its recent investigation of college athletics.

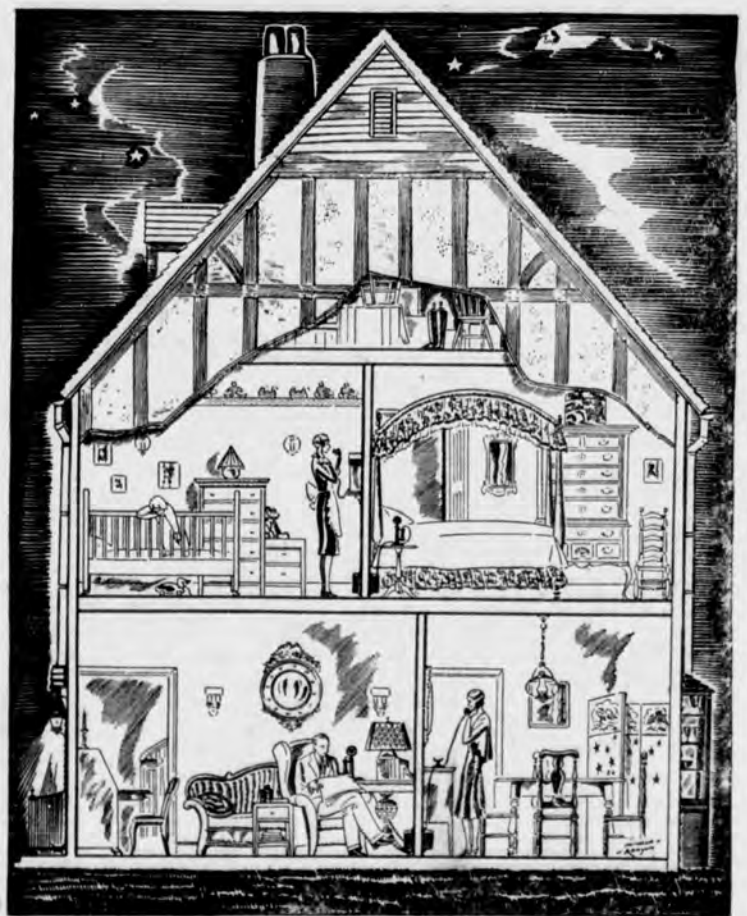

When paid by the athletic association the full-time coach for football averages $6,466 a year, and when paid by the colleges themselves he receives $5,058 or $100 less than the average salary of the highest paid professor.

Fille de Sole

Smith College girls never ride when they can walk, and they never walk when they can run. They may start for class by walking soberly and sedately, but they are more than likely to wind up by running the last block or two. The yen to run is so strong that they will speed up when there appears to be plenty of time on hand. —Exchange.

Frontiers of telephony—old and new

Yesterday the natural course of telephone expansion was to penetrate the nation's frontiers, building new lines and adding new subscribers.

Today finds many new "frontiers" for telephone expansion—among them the homes of present subscribers. Upstairs and downstairs, wherever needed, additional telephones are being installed. People are learning that there is added utility in convenient communication.

This new field of activity was conceived by commercial development men of the Bell System. Just another example of forward planning to make telephone service more valuable.

"OUR PIONEERING WORK HAS JUST BEGUN"

Windmills

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To speak of many things—
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax,
Of cabbages and kings,
And if the sea is boiling hot
And whether pigs have wings."
Lewis Carroll's

"Alice in Wonderland."
It seemeth me that, perhaps, this column has departed from its pristine glory by becoming a mere book-review column. Books are such tangible things that they do not come into the category of windmills. Furthermore, anyone who is interested in books hies himself to the bookstore or to the library and reads the books before they filter down to the metropolis of Newark. Or, if he is interested and cares not about exertion, he reads book-reviews and, therefore, is able to discuss with a disgusting glibness the very books which I have reviewed. Finally, as one of the campus cynics suggested, it is possible to read the book-reviews and thus get the reviews first-hand. Disgusting fellow!

So it is my purpose to clap the spurs to Rosinante and battle windmills once again. I have decided to venture into the unknown and unexplored lands of constructive criticism. In other words, I am going to make my graceful bow before my exist in June by breaking a not too destructive lance with Delaware institutions.

This series of articles will, by the grace of Allah, run until the end of the year—unless, of course, someone swipes my dictionary from Sancho. The criticisms will be given in my best style and will be dictated entirely by personal prejudice. But no names will be mentioned, none is to be taken for the proverbial sleigh-ride. And I hope that the criticisms may be accepted in the spirit in which they are given.

If anyone wishes to differ with me, I will be glad to give adequate space to his arguments and to discuss with him my writing. Furthermore, if anyone by chance should agree with me, I shall gladly receive him with meet, right, and salutary honors.

Next week, therefore, I shall break a lance on the much-discussed and moot question of Delaware athletics. I can just see you, Mac, in an agony of impatience, clapping your hands until next week. But don't chew off any knuckles.

I promise no promises, I threat no threats. Nor is there any reason why my pet adversions on this campus should fear. But my personal impressions of three and a half years at Delaware should fill this column from now till June and that's all any self-respecting columnist can hope to do.

Don Quixote.

A woman, wearing an anxious expression, called at the insurance office recently.

"I understand," she said, "that for $5 I can insure my house for $1000."
"Yes," she was told, "that is right."
"And," continued the woman, anxiously, "do you make inquiries as to how the fire started?"

"Certainly," was the prompt reply.
"Oh!" and she turned to leave the office. "I thought there was a catch in it somewhere."

DELAWARE ALUMNUS
ACHIEVES HONORS

Samuel Handloff, '28, was recently elected to the University of Pennsylvania Law Review, it was announced in the January issue of the monthly periodical published by the University of Pennsylvania Law School. The University of Pennsylvania Law Review is a legal periodical conducted by a board of student editors chosen from the second- and third-year classes. The members of this board are selected by the faculty chiefly on the basis of scholarship and literary ability. In order to be eligible for election, the student must attain a very high scholastic average.

It will be remembered, that while he was here at Delaware, Handloff was a member of Phi Kappa Phi fraternity and led the honor roll in his senior year with a perfect average. He was also Assistant Delaware College Editor of the Review, and a member of the Sigma Tau Phi Fraternity.

REPORTS COWS SAFER TO KISS THAN CO-EDS

"It is safer to kiss a cow than a co-ed," the Minnesota Daily reports after investigating a scientific report published on the subject of osculation. The paper conceded, however, that it might not be so pleasant.

According to the report, only a few thousand germs browse on the lips of the uncalmated animal, but the lips of the "painted doll" constitute a literal germ factory. The investigators also reported that the "short and snappy kiss is better by several thousand bacteria than the long, lingering kind."

WHITEMAN PLAYS NEW JAZZ HITS

Broadway's two biggest current musical smashes, "Strike Up the Band" and "Sons O' Guns," furnish high lights of the Old Gold—Paul Whiteman House program over the Columbia Broadcasting System next Tuesday evening, February 11, from 9 to 10 Eastern Standard Time. The song hit, "Soon," from "Strike Up the Band," written by the Prince of Jazz composers, George Gershwin, and arranged for the occasion by the King of Jazz conductors, Paul Whiteman, will be sung by Mildred Bailey, and the dashing "Ride On, Vaquero," from the same peppery show will be chanted by Bing Crosby.

A medley of six knock-out songs from Jack Donahue's "Sons O' Guns," and the most popular number now to be heard on Broadway, "What Love Can Do," will be directed by Mr. Whiteman, these being played on special permission of the copyright owners. In addition the Maestro will offer a dozen other lively selections, introducing Jack Fulton and the Rhythm Boys. The full program follows:

1. Hello Baby, Rhythm Boys; Never Say Die, Rhythm Boys.
2. Strike Up the Band, Quartet; Soon, Bailey; Ride on Vaquero, Crosby.
3. Waltz—Must Be Somebody Waiting, Fulton.
4. Congratulations, Trio; As Long as I'm With You, Bailey; Looking at You, Crosby.
5. Figaro, Trio; I Have to Have You, Crosby.
6. Medley from "Sons O' Guns;" What Love Can Do.
7. Collegiate Love, Rhythm Boys; What Would I Care.
8. South Sea Rose, Trio; Little Kiss Each Morning, Crosby; Liza, Trio.

GIRLS SECURE HIGHER GRADES THAN BOYS DO

As a general rule, girls surpass boys in securing good grades in college, says Prof. P. L. Palmer of the University of Chattanooga. However, their superiority in this way is not caused by the fact that they are smarter, but that they study harder, he claims.

In spite of the higher grades that girls make, the psychological examinations given at the university show that boys have a slightly greater native mental capacity, Prof. Palmer states. But the professor points out that these tests are far from infallible.—Syracuse Daily Orange.

President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, believes that the average age for entrance to college should and will go down.

"I believe that the younger a boy is sent to college the less likely he is to be influenced by whatever immoral or harmful conditions are about him."

New Jersey College for Women

Senior and Junior girls of the New Brunswick institution recently debated the question of "Dutch treats" when "on a date" with a college boy. The affirmative's propositions met with most favor with the judges and audience.

The affirmative based their arguments on the claim that college girls are as economically able to pay for "dates" as boys, because both are generally supported by their parents. The girls in favor of the treat also said it would eliminate "gold digging" among the girls, would permit girls to ask for "dates" without embarrassment, and would enable girls to show gratitude without "throwing a line." The negative side claimed that "Dutch treats" insulted manly dignity and that the age of chivalry had not passed away. They also wanted to abide by a precedent set many, many years ago.

NEWARK, DELAWARE

OH,

sure... that's the way they did it in '87... but act your age!

THE boys of '87 did things in a different way.

They took buggy rides, of a Sunday, behind docile nags (unless the Livery Man had a sense of humor!) . . .

They danced the Schottische with a slow and easy grace (unless they happened to know the disgraceful two-step!)

They wrote laborious letters to the folks back home with stubborn, raspy pens (unless they were pressed for time and didn't write at all!)

But listen to what the boys of '30 do!

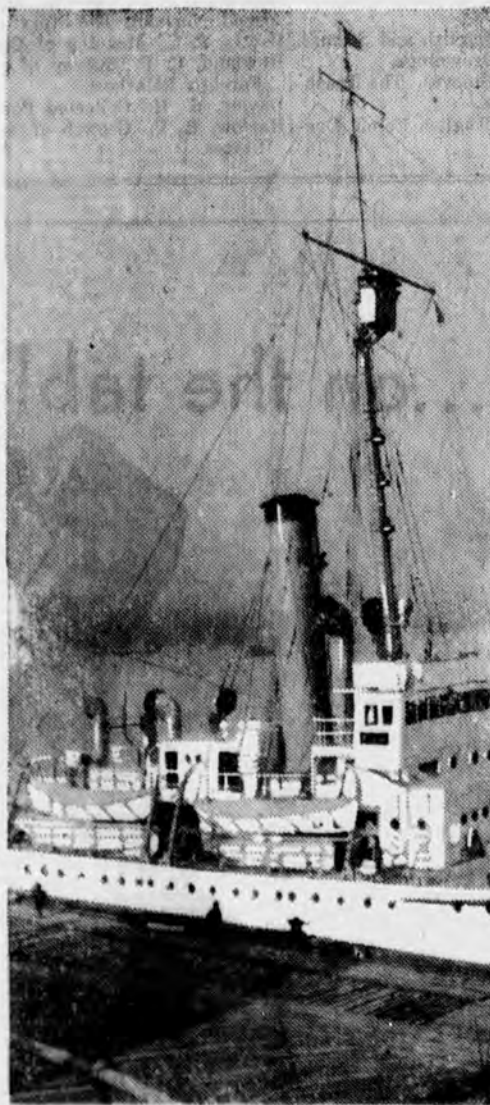

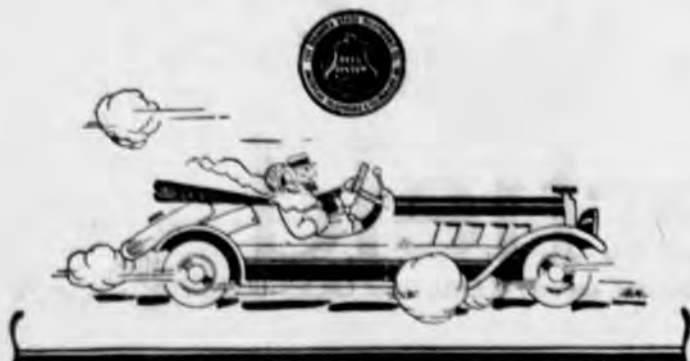

They buzz away over week-ends, behind eight-in-line engines that can do eighty without half trying;

they fume through frantic fox-trots that would make an acrobat green with envy;

they go to telephones and, almost in a jiffy, are talking with the Home Folks.

A shakedown test, a rescue, and a hundred thrills

A SCORE of carefree Coast Guard sailors, and with them a Westinghouse man from the Boston Office, headed in a "bum boat" for the cutter Chelan peacefully at anchor in the harbor of Hamilton, Bermuda Islands.

It had been an exciting shakedown test-cruise. The Westinghouse turbine generator, motor and condensers had functioned perfectly, the sea had yielded up its bag of tricks, the Bermudas had fascinated every soul. And soon they would be bound for home.

But fate held new experiences in store. Five hundred miles off the Azores, the Newport, New York State training ship, had lost her propeller. The Chelan was called to the rescue. And with her, of course, went the Westinghouse man.

The Chelan, like four other Coast Guard Cutters recently completed, is equipped with Westinghouse turbine electric drive.

Three days at top speed on tropical waters, the excitement of rescuing a helpless crew, twelve days at a lazy towing speed, men overboard and a rescue at sea—thrills like those come to many Westinghouse men in line with their work at electrifying the world.

For Westinghouse, in a commanding position in electrical development, enters every field of industry where electricity is or may be employed. And Westinghouse men get a taste of every brand of human activity.

Westinghouse
