NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE

The Agricultural Club of Delaware College was addressed by Professor Hayward on Monday evening. His subject was "Enthusiasm, Absolute Honesty, Fair Play, and Punctuality," and was much appreciated by the members present.

The most brilliantly lighted store in town is that of Ed Herberner Post Card and Photo Studio. Mr. Herberner has installed a "Gloria Gas Plant" in his place of business and has placed one light out front. It has attracted so much attention that his place is being known as "At the Sign of the White Light." This system not only gives him perfect lighting facilities, but enables him to operate his studio at night.

The Walker-Campbell case, which has attracted so much attention in this vicinity, was closed last week, the jury giving $1750 to Campbell. Irving Handy won the case. That accounts for the extra smile.

Mrs. D. Lee Rose entertained her friends on Tuesday evening, the occasion being her birthday. The guests spent a pleasant evening. Greetings were exchanged, the departing guests all wishing Mrs. Rose many more milestones on the journey of life.

The lecture advertised for Tuesday evening, to be given by Dr. Watt in the M. E. Church was postponed, owing to the weather. There is a probability of this being given on next Monday night.

Adams Express Company is distributing "A Suggestion" to ship gifts early and avoid inconveniences caused by the rush. They supply labels with the words "Do not open until Christmas" in heavy type for the convenience to their patrons.

Announcement of the closing of a $200,000 contract between Senor Guillermo Dominico, Inspector General of Argentine Republic, and the railroad car manufacturing firms of Harlan & Hollingsworth and the American Car and Foundry Company, both of Wilmington, was made by J. E. Colbaugh, Senor Dominico's representative in the U. S., at the Bellevue Stratford, last evening. This order for cars is the greatest so far in the history of the South American Republic. It will take the Wilmington firms practically all of 1911 to fill it.

The work of laying pipe at the west end of town is about completed. This has been somewhat delayed, owing to slowness in the arrival of pipe. Those in charge think the work will be finished by tomorrow.

District Superintendent E. L. Holtecker of the M. E. Church, has set apart December 13 as a day of prayer. Bishops Herby and Anderson will be in Wilmington on that day and all ministers of this vicinity, with the male members of the denomination, are urged to meet together at the various services of the day for the purpose of awakening a deeper interest in spiritual things and deepening the piety of our people.

A box social will be held at the home of Edward Conly next Saturday evening. The proceeds are for the benefit of Salem Church.

J. Sherman Dayett has just completed a large contract for lumber with L. B. Leary, of Philadelphia. The stores everywhere are bright with their array of attractive Christmas goods. The snow and the jingle of the sleighs' bells were the only things necessary to complete the suggestion of Christmas cheer.

Mr. Howard Ferguson has moved into the Dr. Herbert Watson property on South College avenue.

Lee O. Moore, the young son of Frank Moore, is ill with typhoid fever. The afternoon Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. Milton, on Tuesday afternoon.

H. M. Campbell has purchased one of those fine cows from the herd of A. W. Rounds, of Welsh Tract. This herd is perhaps the richest breeder of the community and for beauty, it resembles a colored calendar pastoral scene.

The residence of Ott Widdoes on Depot road, is nearing completion and in appearance promises to be in keeping with the other new homes in this section, which have added so much to our leading town entrance.

In the initial number of "Arden Leaves", a monthly record of village life as lived at the colony of good folks and free at Arden, Delaware, there appears the name of George Hamilton, formerly near this town. Mr. Hamilton appears as Gild Master of the Garden. He graces his department with a few well chosen words on the winter garden work. Arden has no member in its colony more free from the shams of life and no one more imbued with like art and poetry found in so-called work than the Gild Master of "Arden Leaves."

The handsome table cover which Mrs. Avis and Mrs. Cooper have been raising off in behalf of a worthy cause was won by Mr. Wilbur T. Wilson, who generously returned the same to the ladies in charge, with the instructions to chance it a second time and thus increase the proceeds. The name of the second fortunate one will be announced Saturday.

Stranger—Have you a Board of Trade in this town?

Citizen—Yes, we have.
Stranger—Who is the ruling spirit? Citizen—It's all spirit; nothing material about it.

The delegates to the Seventh National Congress of Rivers and Harbors, recently appointed by Governor Pennell, left for Washington today. Among the number were Congressman Heald, Anthony Higgins, Josiah Marvel, Charles R. Miller, Captain Philip Reyhold, Wilmington; Dr. G. W. Marshall, Milford; Ebe W. Tunnell, Lewes; John Humm, Wyoming; Louis A. Drexler, Bethany Beach.

The Bachelor Girls were entertained this week by Miss M. Elsie Wright.

Much complaint is being made over the poor train service on the P. B. & W. from this town. Newark has poorer train service than ten years ago. Several leading citizens have petitioned authorities for better service, but no action has been taken. Here is something concrete and important for the Board of Trade and not any doubt but that the desired result could be secured by their cooperative interest in the matter.

Virgil Gray, who purchased the Jarman farm has the banner crop of potatoes in this community. He raised nearly 2500 bushels and has them stored in his new potato house. He has plainly refuted the argument that potatoes cannot be raised in this section.

When the mayor appointed the sanitary commission, he spoke of it under the heading "A Live Commission." Do not get a false impression—it is still alive.

At a meeting of the State executive committee of the Christian Endeavor Society held in Wilmington on Monday, it was decided to secure a field secretary for one month. A campaign is to be begun to secure fifteen new societies and 1000 new members by next July, when the national convention will be held in Atlantic City.

Rev. G. T. Alderson preached a sermon last Sunday to the local order of American Mechanics.

A big snow plow and a passenger train on the Delaware City road collided near Porter's Station on Tuesday. Two persons were slightly hurt—the fireman of the snow plow engine and John W. Mack, a salesman, who was cut above the eye by flying glass. The four passengers were thrown from their seats and were somewhat jarred, but no injuries resulted.

At the quarterly meeting of the New Castle County School Commissioners, held in the office of R. H. Richards, Wilmington, on Tuesday, one of the most important discussions was concerning the compulsory school law. There was a question as to whether the school law is being enforced in all districts. The commissioners expressed a determination to inquire into the matter and see that it is enforced everywhere.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETS WITH SCHOOL COMMISSION

On Saturday, December 3, a Civil Service examination will be held in the Postoffice Building, Wilmington, for rural mail carriers in New Castle county.

A report has just been issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture concerning this year's harvest in Delaware. From these preliminary estimates it is reckoned that the production of 1910 is 76 per cent greater than the crops of 1909, and of 10 per cent greater than the average annual production of the preceding five years.

Christmas is fast becoming the object of many plans. In the feminine world all interests center in "the present I am making for M"—or "the surprise that is in store for J." Everybody seems to be staying at home performing for the coming good time.

The report of the committee appointed by the Bishop of Delaware, under order of the Diocesan Convention, of June, 1909, "to consider the relation of this church to questions affecting the welfare of the laity in this Commonwealth," is now in the hands of the public. Particular emphasis is laid upon statutes and child workers.

COUNCIL MEETS

Council met in regular session on Monday night. After the regular routine business was settled, the question of readjusting the rates of the Light and Water came up. The committee appointed to make investigation made their report and submitted ordinances as presented to our readers last week. The first and second readings were made and at its next meeting the vote will be taken. There was an open discussion on the merits of the increase. It was suggested that the plant be leased to a private corporation with safe provisions for a term of 20 years. This met with approval and it is likely some move will be made to secure data on this matter.

Some leading citizens have promised to express their opinion on the proposals made at last meeting and a detailed account will be given in connection with these interviews.

A Frightened Horse

A horse belonging to Mr. George Huber, hitched on his farm east of town, became frightened supposedly at some chickens on a shed above the horse's head, and ran toward town. The frightened animal turned in at the Washington House where it fell on the crossing, but quickly regained its feet and dashed on to collide with two teams, breaking the pole of one and crashing into the wheel of another. The horse was stopped at this place.

Special Notice For Mechanics

State Councilor W. T. Moore, of Harrington, W. J. Moreland, State councilor's secretary, of Wilmington, will visit American Flag, No. 28, next Monday night, December 12th. All Mechanics, especially members, are invited.

Does Newark Want A Y. M. C. A.

Two weeks ago, 150 well known laymen of the United States and Canada, representing churches of every denomination, met by the courtesy of the White House in the east room of the White House for an all day session, to promote the work of the Y. M. C. A.

John Wanamaker, in speaking at that meeting, said that the President had written his name over the work of the Y. M. C. A. as distinctly and heartily as John Hancock did when he wrote his name signing the Declaration of Independence.

This organization, with its thousands of members is recognized as a movement of national importance. It has put much that is representative of the best in American manhood, into the lives of our boys. Their leaders represent the brightest, cheeriest, most up-to-date type of man—one who is not of the impractical stamp but the successful, hustling business man of his time.

Our foremost men are among its most ardent supporters, often looking to its members to find young men for their positions of trust.

Such was done when the search was being made to fill responsible positions in work on the Panama Canal.

The opinion of public men may be summed up in Roosevelt's words, when he said that it exemplified in practice what he liked to preach—"the combination of efficiency with decency and high ideals."

There was recently presented to the Y. M. C. A. of West Chester, Pa., a beautiful and thoroughly equipped gymnasium, by a benevolent gentleman of that town. This is an addition to the handsome building which has been furnished the Y. M. C. A. by the public-spirited citizens of that community.

West Chester's experience is being repeated in many of the up-to-date towns all over our country.

Newark has, proportionately, just as many public spirited citizens; we need in this direction a surety as great. We lack one thing—a realization of the importance of the need in the midst of our people.

How many realize how many young men there are in our midst who find the evenings hanging heavy on their hands.

Those of our citizens who are in no way in touch with mill life are astonished at the number of men who are closing hours. "Where do they go?" the mystified one asks. "I seldom see any sign of all this life," then passes comfortably on his way.

Have we any right to delight in our own personal enjoyment, to the exclusion of all thought as to how a richer social life might be added to the community at large?

The figures tell us that $500,000 was paid in wages by our mills last year. That means a number of men—a great many real young men—are in our midst to stay. If we could convince our "public spirited citizens" of the splendid work it is with their power to do.

Mostly the arguments for right living which flavor least of preaching are the most powerful. If it is demonstrated to the boy that there is more fun elsewhere than in the unwholesome atmosphere of some undesirable loitering place, he will betake himself to the more preferable haunt.

The keeper of a saloon has stated that three months after the coming of a Y. M. C. A. his revenue dropped from $3,000 to $700 per month.

May our indifference not be classed as one of those serious sins of omission. Do you not believe a ROOM—to start with—supplied with all the State's newspapers, one hundred dollars' worth of good magazines, a piano, or some provision to make music an attraction, centrally located and in charge of some wide awake person who would not overlook the cordially welcomed "loafers" with the "goodness" of the scheme, would become popular?

There is no reason in the world why Newark should not make some such a modest beginning, which if enthusiastically carried on would soon assume the proportions of a gymnasium, popular lectures, instructors and all the equipment which is a part of the idea of the modern Y. M. C. A.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETS WITH SCHOOL COMMISSION

Recommendations To Be Made To Next Legislature—Henry Ridgely Makes Good Suggestions

At the last session of the Legislature the Governor appointed a commission to make a special study of the school laws of the State, and to make definite recommendations in regard to their improvement. This commission is composed of Charles Moore, of Georgetown, chairman, Mr. Fred Brady, of Middletown, and Col. Theo. Townsend, of Milford, secretary. It has had a number of meetings, collected a considerable amount of data in this and other States, and will present its findings to the legislature as soon as it convenes.

Last week the commission held a joint meeting with the State Board of Education. Shortly after the meeting was called to order, Mr. Henry Ridgely, then when there is no one more interested in our public schools, appeared before the meeting and asked for a hearing. The chairman of the meeting stated that Mr. Ridgely is the only man or woman in the State who has manifested sufficient interest to voluntarily come before the commission and ask to be heard. Among the suggestions made by Mr. Ridgely were the following:

That some effort be made to encourage reading of standard literature upon the part of the public school teachers. He stated that he found in his experience as school commissioner that a great many teachers felt that their education was complete when they left the doors of the Normal School or High School, and made practically no effort to continue their education by a well defined course of reading.

Mr. Ridgely also urged that the commission find some way to make it possible to pay the teachers better salaries, and thus encourage a more thorough and efficient preparation on the part of the teachers for their work.

He further suggested that, owing to the complex nature of the school situation, the commission obtain the services of a school expert to go into the matter with them as thoroughly as may be and assist them in solving some of the problems with which they are confronted.

The suggestions of Mr. Ridgely were cordially received by the commission, and some time was spent in a further discussion of them.

Among the conclusions that have been reached by the commission, the following, perhaps, are the most important, and should be of considerable interest to readers of the POST.

1st. That the school tax be collected by the county collector, rather than by a special collector appointed for his purpose. It has been stated that in one of the counties it costs $8,000 a year to collect the school taxes. It is thought the work could be done more thoroughly and much more economically by the regularly

New Century Club

The regular weekly meeting of the Club was held in the club room Monday afternoon, vice-president Mrs. C. O. Houghton presiding.

Mrs. J. J. Taubensaus and Mrs. Ruth Rhoades have been elected members of the club, making a membership of forty-two.

Mrs. Firman Thompson, who has spent a number of the years of her life in Hawaii, gave a most delightful and entertaining description of "Life in Hawaii."

The Hawaiian Islands are a five day's trip by the fastest steamers from San Francisco and are often spoken of as "The Isles of Paradise," yet we are glad to say that Mrs. Thompson is so pleased with life in "Good Old Delaware" that she has no desire to return to her native "Isles of Paradise."

Miss Wright read a very interesting paper, her subject being Mrs. Mary C. Catherwood, the historical romance writer, the scenes of whose stories are the St. Lawrence and Great Lake regions.

Mrs. Alfred Curtis will entertain the club at her home next Monday afternoon, at two o'clock, instead of the regular hour of three o'clock. This will be the last meeting of the club until after the holidays.

A Chance For Music Lovers

Carl Puhlig, the leader of the Philadelphia Orchestra, who is winning new laurels with each performance, has planned a particularly brilliant program, it is announced, for the second of the Wilmington concerts to be held in the Opera House of that city on the evening of December 12th.

One number of the program is Dvorak's American Symphony No. 5, in E Minor, which represents the celebrated Bohemian composer in the most mellow and bewitching mood.

Conductors who realize what sheer musical beauty means, hold that American audiences should never pass through a symphonic concert season without hearing this great work—Dvorak's, "The Symphony 'From the New World.'" As will be remembered, Dvorak came over to America as a teacher in New York Conservatory, and while here conceived the idea of building up American music on the folk music of the country, the negro and Indian tunes. Dvorak followed in this the scheme of many European composers, who are basing the national music, French, German, Russian, Bohemian, Hungarian, Italian and Spanish, on the songs of the people.

The "New World" Symphony thus evolved was first heard in New York in 1893, and has been a great favorite ever since, and as interpreted by Mr. Puhlig, has an overwhelming effect on all who hear it.

Agricultural Notes

The meeting of the Agricultural Committee of the Board of Trustees of Delaware College that was called for Tuesday of this week, was postponed on account of the inclemency of the weather.

Prof. Grantham's class in Agronomy will attend the Corn Show to be held in Dover this week.

Dr. M. T. Cook and Dr. H. P. Bassett will represent the Agricultural Department at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. This Association meets this year in Minneapolis the last week in December.

The College Farm has recently finished husking an average of 84 bushels of corn per acre on a 14 1/2 acre field.

A pure bred, registered, Berkshire sow has just been shipped from the College Farm to H. P. Scott, of Delaware City.

Prof. Hayward was called to Philadelphia on Tuesday in consultation with the Philadelphia State Commission

Governor Discusses Bribery A Sane View Of Conditions

Dover, Del., Dec. 4.—In refutation of Democratic assertions that the Republicans carried Kent and Sussex counties in the recent election by the use of large amounts of money in debauching the electorate, Governor Pennell gave an interview today. He has particular bearing on conditions in Sussex, the home county of the Governor. In a process of analysis, applied to each district, Governor Pennell shows that there could have been no use of money by the Republicans for the purpose of vote-buying because in all districts save two, there was a falling off instead of a gain in the Republican vote, as compared with the returns from those districts two years ago. The significance of the Governor's analysis is accentuated by the fact that two years ago conditions in the Republican organization in many of those Sussex county districts were far from being as favorable to the Republicans as they were this year. Notwithstanding those changed conditions for the better in the Republican organization, which should have brought with them larger vote, influences were at work upon the electorate which increased the Democratic instead of the Republican vote. These facts, coupled with others, constrain Governor Pennell to draw emphatically that the Republicans were victorious in Sussex county because of the illegal use of money for bribery and corruption.

"It can best be shown that the Republicans had no part in bribery or vote-buying in the last campaign, by comparing the vote in the various districts in Sussex county this year, with that of two years ago," Governor Pennell said. "Starting with the First Representative District, which is Cedar Creek hundred, the Republican majority two years ago was 331, and not as large then as in previous years. In the Second election district of the Republican majority two years ago was 147. This year the Republican majority in the First Representative district was reduced from 331 to 181. In the second election district, the Republican majority was reduced from 147 to 91."

"The Second Representative district, which includes all of Northwest Fork hundred and a portion of Nanticoke hundred, gave a majority this year for the head of the Republican ticket, of 150, as against 225 two years ago. My majority two years ago was 273 for the Bridgeville end of this district, and in Nanticoke two years ago, I was defeated by ten. For Representative, Lednum, Republican, carried the second district two years ago by a majority of 247 against David Palmer, Democrat. This year Elliott, Republican, received a majority of only 114 for Representative over Russell, Democrat, or a falling off in the Republican vote in the Second Representative district of 133. This Second Representative district was carried by the Republicans by more than 400 majority in the Addicks days. I was first elected State Senator in 1898 and re-elected in 1902. Both times I carried the Second Representative district, the first time by a majority of not quite 200, and the second time by considerable more than 500. Vandenberg's majority, when he was running on the Republican ticket for Representative in the Second district six years ago, was more than 400. This year the representative on the Republican ticket was elected by a majority of only 114, a big decrease from the 247 majority received by Lednum, Republican, two years ago. It also should be noticed that this year the majority of our candidate for Levy Court was cut to fifty in the Second Representative district. Therefore, you see, the figures fail utterly to bear out Democratic assertion that the Republicans resorted to vote-buying in this district. If they had done so, certainly the returns would not have been what they were."

"Was there any evidence in this district in the last election, that the Democrats resorted to vote buying?" the governor was asked.

"The best evidence is that a great majority of the so-called 'floaters' voted the Democratic ticket this year," Governor Pennell replied. "There could not have been any other reason for it, because we had no insurgent movement here at all. It is true we had some factional differences here, but nothing greater than we had two years ago. In fact, I don't think there was as much factional difference in the party as two years ago. There was one great election day in this district. A man named Samuel Scott, a Republican, whom I have never known as a Republican worker, was accused of offering a man by the name of Draper, money for his vote. He waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace John W. Gibson, in Greenwood. Draper said to Scott, in the presence of several reputable men: 'Sam, you didn't offer me any money for my vote and I didn't want to get you into this trouble, but I was persuaded to do it. I was told that I would get $100 if I would give evidence against you; and if I do get it will give you half.' Scott was standing this admission, Scott was held for trial."

"The Third Representative district is composed of Seaford and part of Nanticoke hundred. Two years ago Dr. William F. Haines, the Republican candidate for State Senator, lost this district to James E. Dutton, the Democratic candidate, by four votes. The same disaffection in the Democratic ranks that existed two years ago with reference to the State Senator, existed this year with regard to the candidate for representative in the Third Representative district. Notwithstanding this, the Republican candidate, Mr. Collins, was defeated by Layton, the Democratic candidate, by sixty-seven votes. That showed the real state of the vote. I think the Democrats voted the 'floaters' there, too."

"The Fourth Representative district is composed of Broad Creek hundred. Normally, it is a Democratic district. Owing to disaffection among Democrats over the nomination for a levy courtman, the Republican levy courtman was elected by thirty-one majority. Two years ago Senator Haines came within four votes of carrying that Representative district. This year Haines, Democrat, carried it by sixteen majority, against Phillips, the Republican candidate, or an increase of ten votes over the majority recorded in that district two years ago by W. W. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for representative. That shows that while there were influences at work on the Democratic side to save the Democratic candidate for representative, those same Democratic influences were not exerted to save the Democratic candidate for levy court commissioner."

"The Fifth Representative district is composed of Little Creek hundred, is normally Democratic. We, however, elected Elliot, our candidate for representative, in that district four years ago. We also elected a Senator from the Senatorial district that takes in the Fifth Representative district four years ago. In fact, we have elected a senator there three or four times, in the cases of Bluff and D. O. Moore, by good majorities. The Democratic candidate for state senator was elected this time by eighty-four majority. That certainly does not look like vote buying by the Republicans. There is a difference of at least two hundred votes for senator in that whole district, as compared with four years ago, and those two hundred votes are in favor of the Democrats. They had two arrests just before the election in that district. The Republican candidate for state senator, Thomas Records, and Recorder of Deeds John W. King, a Republican, were the men arrested. They were accused of offering men money for their votes. Certainly nobody with any sense would believe that even if vote buying were being resorted to by Republicans, that a man running for state senator would be an active participant in such work. Both those men were held for trial by the justice of the peace in Laurel. Locates, the Democratic candidate for representative in the Fifth district, received a majority of 157 over Owens, the Republican candidate. Two years ago the majority of Ward, Democrat, over Grover, Republican, was 287. The difference between that Democratic majority of 285 two years ago, and the Democratic majority of 157 this year was not due, however, to the purchase of votes by Republicans, but to the fact that two years ago there was disaffection in the Republican ranks in the Fifth district that did not exist this year. Hence, the Republicans were enabled this year, to poll a larger vote than they did two years ago, and bribery had absolutely nothing to do with it. As to the arrest of Mr. Records and Mr. King, if the things said in relation to those arrests be true, I think it is outrageous that Democrats should resort to the policy of hiring men to swear away both the character and the safety of respectable men, no matter who they may be. Certainly that is as bad as, if not worse, than buying votes."

"In the Sixth Representative district four years ago we elected our Levy Courtman. This time we lost him. This district is normally Republican and has been carried by the Republicans for Representative ever since it was created under the new Constitution. The majority for Messick, the Republican candidate, this year was 72 over Layton, the Democratic candidate. Two years ago the majority for Truitt, the Republican candidate for Representative, was 121 over Marvel, the Democratic candidate. That shows a loss of 49 votes to the Republicans. That loss certainly cannot be attributed to the lavish use of money by Republicans to obtain votes for their candidate for Representative. The district is made up of Dagsboro and Gunbore hundreds. "The Seventh district, Baltimore hundred, in recent years, has been the strongest Republican district in Sussex county. That district, far from showing the use of Republican money this year to keep up the Republican vote, returned a largely reduced Republican majority. Two years ago, Timothy E. Townsend, the Republican candidate for Representative, carried that district by 345 majority over Frank W. Holloway, Democrat, whose total vote in the district was only 346, or less than Townsend's majority. This year the majority of Camp-

UNDERWOOD STANDARD TYPEWRITER

A LEADER

The principle of construction in the Underwood was found first in the Underwood, and every typewriter seeking business in the same field with the Underwood which has been put on the market since the advent of the Underwood, has been an imitation of, and in general appearance like, the Underwood.

The last "Blind" advocates of importance have now fallen into line, and there is not today a single "blindwriting" typewriter actively on this market. Recall all the arguments you have heard in past years by Underwood opposition, and you will realize what an advance agent to progress the Underwood has been; then bear in mind that the Underwood was the first fully "visible", has had time to develop and improve, and is to-day the most perfect typewriter made.

Bleeding And Killing

Before going into the details of bleeding and killing of poultry for market, the writer would like to consider briefly the room where this work is to be done, together with some of the appointments. For neither the room, its contents nor the arrangement is without its significance.

An abundance of light and a means of ventilation are necessary. Reasoning in the first case are obvious. As for the second, dead, stale air impregnated with steam from fresh droppings, together with the odor of hot blood and wet feathers, will interfere with the good or rapid work of the pickers, even if such a combination fails to sicken them outright. A dresser to do good work, must be comfortable. Cold fingers or cold feet are an objection and it is necessary to use a stove to insure comfort. It becomes doubly necessary to have ventilation to insure good air. Most of all, must the killer, proper, have sufficient warmth and an abundance of good pure air. His sensibilities must not be dulled, for upon his skill depends the success of the killing room, and only when wide awake and limber fingered is his skill available or maintainable.

Have needle and thread handy. Run a large headed nail through the hole of a spool of cotton and drive it firmly into side of the room. This will allow the spool to revolve, but will keep it in place. Fasten up a medium sized cork near the thread and after the needle has been used see to it that it is stuck back into the cork. This will save needles; not only that—it is good training. If a chicken is torn in dressing have it sewn up as neatly as possible and do it while the body is still warm.

As soon as a bird is dressed (unless it be a capon) put it in cold water as an diet it stay there until its feet are clean. Two or three hours is long enough usually. Running water is best—but if barrels are used renew the water often enough to keep it clean and cold.

Have room enough in the killing room so that the workers may work without interfering with each other.

Cover the floor with an inch or two of sawdust.

Have a place for feathers and let all except the quills be thrown into it. Arrange the cooling rack in such a way that the chickens won't touch each other as they hang.

Supply pens in which to place the chickens to be killed. These pens should hold over six birds and should be arranged one above the other near the head-killer's stand. They should have a small door in the front of it.

A room 12x28 feet is large enough to accommodate two killers, eight stubblers, pens for 144 chickens weighing 5 pounds each, and a cooling rack holding 250.

THE KNIFE

Use the regular French killing knife. When you buy it, see to it that the grinder has not sacrificed the strength of the blade for a good point. Put on a wooden handle five inches long and big enough to give a firm hand-hold. This makes the work easier and is a necessity when it comes to killing capons, which weigh ten pounds or over, for without the handle it is extremely difficult to give the blade its half turn—the skull bones are so hard. Keep the knife sharp.

In killing it is advisable to suspend the bird by the feet. Any close woven stout rope will answer, but we prefer and use an individual revolving galloos made of metal which spreads the legs and allows the pickers to get at all parts of the fowl's body without hindrance. Never suspend and try to do the "dressing" with the chicken in your lap; the blood can't half drain and you can't half work.

BLEEDING.

The fowl to be killed is taken from a pen and hung on the galloos. The operator takes the bird's head in the hollow of his left hand holding the lower part of the bill uppermost. The knife is inserted and one clean, clean cut severs the great artery. Don't cut for one minute that a scratch or two across the roof of the mouth is going to properly bleed a fowl. The blood must flow in a strong, steady, unbroken stream. Some times we have three such streams, and to produce this effect the knife must cut across the neck on one side or the other just back of where the head joins. An improperly bled fowl will neither keep well nor sell well and the condition is indicated by a red neck and red necks will hurt your sales in any of our great Eastern markets. Don't kill the bird until you are sure the main artery has been severed. In practice it takes the blood, then the liver brain. And in the branding the art. A rightly done the feathers will come off in hands full either with or against the grain. If poorly done the feathers on the neck must be drawn with the grain, the others against it and even then the flesh will tear.

HOW TO KILL.

As soon as the blood stream is assured the knife point is carried into the slit in the roof of the chicken's mouth. Always run the blade on a line with the eyes and directly between them you will strike a pocket; don't turn the knife yet but push on into another pocket, you will feel the knife enter it, then give the blade a one-half turn. The knife must be kept on the line of the eye and must pierce the second pocket. Remember it. When rightly killed the birds spread their tail feathers into a perfect fan. When we see the sign we know we can draw into the feathers and strip them off regardless of the grain.

By hanging a weight through the lower bill as soon as the chicken has been bled the blood may be made to flow down a tube or pipe (tube of pump stock or water spout) into a covered bucket. We do this to keep the floor dry, and the operator clear, besides giving us the blood for free.

SEAMS.

Across the back of the wings, across the thighs and down both sides of the breast to the head be the seams on a fowl body. Let the killer take the feathers from these seams before heading the birds over to the stubblers (tail feathers). The seams tear easily and the killer knows whether he has freed the feathers or drawn them in and clinched the ends. Let him prove his worth.

One killer should bleed, iron and clear the seams first and then to keep four stubblers busy.

On skinning up it will be well to briefly repeat. One stroke of the knife should sever the artery. A single clear cut properly placed will insure the flow of blood necessary to completely drain the body. The knife must be started in the slit in the roof of the mouth and run back directly between the eyes and on a line with them—it must deviate neither to the right nor left—it must not go too high or too low—it must pierce the second pocket. The tendency with the fowl-percussor is to run the knife too high too far front and into the top of the head. Remember on the line of the eye and back into the second pocket, then practice.

Inspection Of Company E

The annual State inspection of Company E, First Regiment, O. M. I., the local company of militia, was held last Thursday evening in the Armory.

The inspection was conducted by Major Short, accompanied by Lieutenant R. C. Rodney.

The company was inspected in guard mounting, squad formation, manual of arms, platoon movements and extended order.

There were forty-seven members of the company present from an enrollment of fifty-two. The inspection was considered very creditable as a whole, and it is hoped that Company E will stand among the first of the State.

THE GOVERNOR'S INTERVIEW

IN ANOTHER column of this issue, there appears an interview by Governor Newell, concerning the whole-sale charges of bribery and corrupt methods used by the Republicans at the last election. In this interview you will see a plain concise analysis of the vote in his home county and any man not blinded by the ravings of some of the Democratic press, can easily see that it rings true. Without excitement he has taken a stand in defense of his party, and more. Many men that he is Delawarean whose integrity no Democratic politician or press has dared to question and a Governor whose administration reflects honor on those who placed confidence in his ability, he has with dignity stood up for the honor of his friends, his party, and his State. It is cool and without sentiment of passion, but it shows there is a man back of it who resents the action of those who in their defeat have snatched the honor of Delaware's citizenship and by this wholesale denunciation are causing the outside world to lose respect for that which has always been her pride.

Call the roll of ten, twenty or a hundred of Delaware's leading Republicans in office and out of office. Now call the roll of a similar number in the Democratic party in office out of office, and personally seeking office. Include now the men dictating the policies of these parties, the forces openly and under cover controlling their respective conventions. Line them up in their professions and walks of life—and what is your choice? Why, just what it was at the last election.

Carry it still further—compare the record of the Republican party since it has been in power with that of those paucity Democratic days.

There are MEN in the Democratic party—but these men are not in power. This accusation of corruption is not coming from these men. They represent what is best in the Democratic party know that those representing the Republican party stand shoulder to shoulder with them in preserving our rights of citizenship. They, too, resent the insult to the honor and integrity of our State.

The Governor has done well to give out this interview. With the facts here represented and the clear analysis given, it will be welcomed by all interested in the welfare of Delaware.

MARY BAKER EDDY

IF THE world-old theory, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so he is," be true, and Mary Baker Eddy be really dead, we can truly pronounce her eulogy. She has lived a human life and done her work and the impress will be felt by all who follow her.

Unless we are so orthodox that we can see no real truth outside our own creed, so skeptic that we recognize infidelity in no denomination, or so narrow that we will admit of no good outside our own sect, can we fail to recognize the fact that the world is better for Mary Baker Eddy having lived.

Some one has flippantly said that Christian Science was neither Christian nor scientific. Be that as it may, it has given to many, a plan of life that has made them glad. And as such, is worthy of recognition. It is composed of men and women of thought and power and void of drunkards' gains and degenerates.

In the religious world it has done away with self condemnation and sorrow in glorifying the Savior and substituted one of self-preservation and joy in recognition of the handiwork of the Creator. Its teaching is being left in a more or less degree in all phases of our institutions and thoughts of life—whether we recognize it or not.

If, as Emerson says, "an institution is the lengthened shadow of one man," be true, it is questionable how long Christian Science will hold to its present form. In the process of mental evolution and elimination it will take on new forms as it nears perfection (she revised many editions to her "Science and Key to the Scriptures") just as other creeds have done. Methodism is more than Wesley; Presbyterianism with Babcock and VanDyke is more beautiful than with Knox; the Episcopalians with their Philip Brooks and Worcester are better today than the Church of England of Henry VIII.

Ideals are progressive the same as institutions; and man's God becomes nobler as each sun sets. We all know that Truth can never be crystallized in any formula or Right monopolized by any Creed.

The world is growing better. Some day orthodoxy will condemn the whipping post and scaffold and substitute the Juvenile Court and Life. SOME DAY, when our ideal approaches Truth, we will leave our swords into pruning knives, and really follow the course laid out by the Prince of Peace. SOME DAY, when our idea of the Ideal is Truth—when will we throw aside prejudice and recognize that this "Daughter of Joy" was a blessing to the century in which she lived.

SOME DAY, when Pride and Hate are gone, we will cease to condemn. Rather will we take what is good and eliminate what tends toward evil. Then

SOME DAY when Love rules, we will never smile at another's IDEAL, but with them truly say:

"Build thee more stately mansions, oh my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low vaulted past!
Let each new temple nobler than the last,
Shut thee from a heaven with a dome more vast;
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's wrestling sea."

And then we'll understand.

SEASON'S SPIRIT

OUR STREETS, lighted at night with an unusual brightness, are filled with a spirit of life and good cheer characteristic of the Christmastide. The snow adds to the beauty of the scene, while the merry chime of the bells and the sleighs that dart to and fro make us conscious of the joyousness of the season approaching.

Whose spirit seems to fill the very air. This year's shoppers are displaying judgment to buy early and avoid the rush—thus allowing all concerned to enjoy the act by relieving the strain of overwork, as the buyers jostle each other, the humps and knocks characteristic of crowds are met with genuine Christmas good nature, for the season stands most of all for a GOOD time; a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time; the only time in the long calendar of the year when men and women seem by one common consent to open their shut up hearts freely, and to think of people below them as if they really were fellow-passengers to the grave, and not another race of creatures bound on other journeys.

Whether the paragon of the purchaser is slim or well filled, the same desire to delight some loved one on the wonderful Christ-child's birthday, has galloped forth the act.

Newark's merchants have shown themselves equal to the demands of the occasion. Consult the advertising columns and save needless delay in your purchasing.

The State Corn Show

The Fourth Annual State Corn Show is to be held in Newark, December 8 and 9, promises to be of unusual interest to the Delaware farmer. The welfare of this annual corn institute is seen in the better quality of grain exhibited each year, indicating that corn growers are paying more attention to variety and seed selection. Aside from the exhibits made by growers, the Delaware experiment station will make on display twenty samples of the best corn, various as determined by their yield, testing of over forty varieties. A few of these have shown increased yields over any local variety now grown in the State. One of these varieties is Boone Co. White, introduced by the station, was tested by a number of farmers in 1908. Reports from those growers indicate that the variety is not only adapted to every section of the State but that it will yield 5 to 10 bushels more than any variety hitherto grown by them. A variety known as Johnson Co. White, introduced from Indiana, and grown by the Station the past two years, has proved to be the most prolific of those yet tested. A sample bushel of ears of this variety will be exhibited by the Station. It may be of interest to note that this strain of corn won the championship prizes at the National Corn Exhibition in 1909 and 1910.

The past season has been somewhat better than the average for corn, especially in the northern half of the State and exhibits of a high grade are expected. Two-bushel samples from each of the high yielding acres grown by Mr. Arnold Naudain, of Marshallton, Mr. Alonzo T. Whitlock, of Odessa, and Mr. Ed. A. Evans, of Cheswold, will be on exhibition and shelled on Thursday to determine the quantity of actual grain per acre. These acres yielded 114, 100, and 73 bushels respectively per acre, weighed in the field.

The program on Friday will consist of addresses on corn improvement and the most profitable methods of utilizing the crop. The forenoon session will be as follows:

Opening address by G. J. Meredith, President Delaware Corn Growers' Association; "Corn Improvement," by Mr. A. L. Zook, U. S. Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C.; report of Secretary and annual election of officers. Afternoon session: "Live Stock and the Corn Crop," by Prof. H. Hayward, Director of the Delaware Experiment Station; "How to Secure Larger Yields Per Acre," by Prof. W. L. Telford, of Maryland Agricultural College.

DECEMBER

SIXTEENTH SESSION

The sixteenth session of the Archdeaconry of Wilmington met in St. Thomas Church, Newark, last Thursday.

The Archdeaconry, which comprises about 20 churches including those of Wilmington, Brandywine hundred, Newport, Stanton, Marshallton, Delaware City, Newark and Middletown, was well represented in the morning, while a larger number of delegates and many parishioners arrived for the afternoon and evening sessions.

Among those in attendance were Bishop Kinsman, Archdeacon Hall, Rev. K. J. Hammond of Immanuel Church, Rev. A. E. Clay, Old Swedes; Rev. C. J. Holmead, William H. Fisher and William J. Hemphill, St. John's; John S. Grohe, Trinity; Rev. J. Harry Chesley and vestrymen from his three churches—Elmer bye and George A. Wolfe, from Hillcrest; William Cloud and J. F. Peters, Claymont; Stewart Ramsey, Grace Church, Brandywine hundred; Rev. John Rigg, New Castle; Rev. P. L. Donaghy, Middletown; Rev. B. F. Thompson, Dover; from St. Thomas, Rev. H. B. Phelps, Senior Warden Alfred A. Curtis, Dr. Geo. A. Harter and Louis L. Curtis.

The convention was entertained at luncheon at the Deer Park Hotel by Alfred A. Curtis and for dinner they were guests in the homes of the wardens and parishioners of St. Thomas. They were greeted at the station by Rev. H. B. Phelps and Alfred A. Curtis.

An important change in the functions of the Archdeaconry tending towards its assuming a place in the missionary work of the diocese, was made at the brief business session in the morning.

A resolution proposed by Rev. Albert S. Cooper to this effect carried unanimously. It provided that the Archdeacon appoint a committee composed of two clerical and two lay members, he making the fifth, to consider the advisability of a memorial to the next Diocesan Convention, requesting a canon to give a missionary function to the Archdeaconry. This memorial will be presented by the missionary committee to the Diocesan Convention, which then will act.

The resolution was an outcome of a discussion on the relation of the Archdeaconry to the diocesan missionary work, which grew out of an apparent lack of business.

Rev. Albert Cooper, before presenting his resolution, stated that the Archdeaconry of Dover does even less than Wilmington and that during the year and a quarter he was stationed at Smyrna they had no meetings at all and he based his resolution on the work of the Reading Archdeaconry.

After the business session in the parish house, the archdeaconry adjourned to the church for holy eucharist.

Bishop Kinsman celebrant; Rev. Chas. Fiske, preacher.

The sermon by Rev. Charles Fiske, rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Church, Baltimore, emphasized the need of preaching a religion which should penetrate and permeate all of life. We are in danger, he said, of getting a kind of "compartment religion," where religion is put into one compartment, and social and business life into other compartments. In contrast with this view of religion Dr. Fiske urged that religion should be carried into every day life.

"The Child" was the subject of the last hour of the morning meeting with paper and discussion. Rev. John Rigg of New Castle presented a paper entitled "Hereditary and Environment" and Rev. Charles Fiske's subject was "Recreative and Educational Influences." Discussion was opened by George A. Harter, Ph. D., president of Delaware College.

In the afternoon, "Christian Social Service" was the subject presented by Rev. C. H. Holmead and Rev. Herbert A. Grantham, with discussion opened by Rev. Hubert W. Wells.

At the evening service the subject of Missions occupied the attention. "In the General Convention" was presented by Rev. K. J. Hammond and "In China" by Rev. Albert S. Cooper, a missionary home on furlough.

Some Good Suggestions

The Dover Century Club plans a series of "open days" each year when special speakers talk on subject of common interest and the whole community is welcomed.

Last Wednesday afternoon such a meeting was held and the Town Beautiful was discussed by R. B. Watrous, of Washington, D. C., secretary of the American Civic Association.

In the course of his talk Mr. Watrous said: "It is a good sign of the times to see in a town a club house owned and maintained by a woman's club."

"If Dover wants to grow larger it must be an inviting, beautiful and sanitary city, but the improvements must be practical for fear of driving away some factories."

"To prevent congestion on the business thoroughfare, a square should be provided for teams to be hitched, which square should have posts, rails and watering troughs and a man be employed by the town to feed the horses."

"Do not clean up streets by dumping litter in vacant lots, keep them clean and sightly. Tin cans for rubbish should be provided at each corner and one in the middle of each square."

BEAUTIFUL TREES ARE THE GLORY OF A TOWN, so they should be planted, pruned and treated properly by an expert. Soft trees such as maples should not be planted; elm is much better. DO NOT CUT DOWN

BEAUTIFUL TREES TO LAY A CHEAP CEMENT PAVEMENT; the tree is of much more value and should be built around.

Changes in The Anti-Saloon League

At a meeting of the State Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League of Delaware, held yesterday at their headquarters in Wilmington, a division was made between the eastern shore counties of Maryland and the Delaware district, which have hitherto formed only one district.

After January 1st the State headquarters will be at Dover instead of in Wilmington.

Rev. J. M. Arters declined to continue as superintendent under the new arrangement and Rev. S. J. Cleland, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dover, has been selected to take his place.

Child Labor Committee

On Thursday evening a meeting of the Delaware Child Labor Committee, will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. It is intended to carry on at once a campaign for the furtherance of the work. Among the subjects to be taken up are the following:

First, an adequate compensation for a factory inspector.

Second, the appointment of the factory inspector by the Superior Court, upon the suggestion of the committee.

Third, the establishment of a Federal child bureau.

Discusses Bribery

led the Republican candidate over Nelson, the Democratic candidate, was 201, or a loss to the Republicans of 84 votes in two years. How the Democrats can reconcile such a showing as that with their assertion that the Republicans were engaged in vote-buying is beyond my comprehension. The Republicans expected to get as large a majority in the Seventh district this year, if not a larger one, than they obtained two years ago. The returns show, conclusively, however, that influence were at work in that district which gave the votes to the Democrats and not to the Republicans.

The Eighth Representative district, which is Indian River hundred, is normally Republican and always has been Republican. That district has given as high as 116 Republican majority. In recent years, however, owing to factional differences in the Republican party, the Republican majority has been greatly reduced. This year, however, owing to those differences having been in large part dissipated, the Republican majority for Hurdle, Republican, over Joseph, Democrat, was 81. Two years ago Baylis, the Republican candidate for Representative, defeated Burton, the Democratic candidate, by a majority of 42. It is true Indian River hundred showed a gain of 29 votes for the Republicans over two years ago, but with factional feeling dissipated, that is not an abnormal gain in a district normally Republican and which has given to Republican candidates majorities as high as 116. In fact, in recent years, the Republicans have carried the Eighth district several times by majorities ranging from 80 upwards. Therefore, the Democrats have no valid excuse for raising the question of vote-buying in their efforts to account for their defeat in that district.

The Ninth Representative district is Georgetown hundred. It is the home district of Dr. Caleb R. Layton. This district has been carried by the Republicans. Two years ago the Democratic majority there was only 10. In that contest W. W. Rawlins, Democrat, received 301 votes, and Charles L. Moore, Republican, received 312 votes. This year Hammond, Democrat, carried the Ninth district by a majority of 266 over Dodd, the Republican candidate. In other words, as further refutation of the Democratic cry of vote-buying by the Republicans, the Democratic vote in that one Representative district showed a gain this year of 157. That could not have been due to Dr. Layton's candidacy because he was running for state senator and was beaten by 300 majority in that Senatorial district by Blackstone, the Democratic candidate. Blackstone's majority over Layton in the Ninth Representative district was 106 or 10 less than Hammond's majority over Dodd in that same district.

The Tenth Representative district is composed of Lewes and Rehoboth and Broadkin hundreds. It is a doubtful district. Two years ago A. W. Dick, the Republican candidate for Representative, was defeated by Joseph W. Marsh, the Democratic candidate, by a majority of 11. That defeat of the Republican candidate two years ago was due largely to dissension in the Republican party in the Broadkin hundred end of that district. This year John Robbins, the Republican candidate for Representative, was elected over Jones, the Democratic candidate, by a majority of 24. Four years ago the Fifth Senatorial district, which is composed of Georgetown, Lewes and Rehoboth, and Broadkin hundreds, elected Roland, Republican, state senator, 1 think, by about 100. This year Dr. Layton, the Republican candidate for state senator, was defeated by 300. That is a big change in the Republican vote, which is additional proof that there was no use of Republican money for the purpose of bribing voters.

"Every district in Sussex county, except Indian River and Little Creek showed a falling off in the Republican vote as compared with two years ago. It has been proclaimed to the world time and again by the very persons who are lack of these present charges of bribery by the Republicans, that if there was a place on earth where the elective franchise could be influenced by money, it was Sussex County. Accepting such a disgraceful assertion by the Democrats for the time being for the mere sake of argument, if the Republicans had used money it would have been manifest in gains in the Republican vote in the several districts, instead of losses. As only two districts in all of Sussex County show Republican gains, it seems to me that fact alone serves to refute these Democratic charges, particularly when the dissipation of Republican dissension in those two districts explains fully why there were gains there. The Sussex of today is the Sussex it has always been. Therefore, the Democratic charge of the past that the voters of Sussex could be influenced largely by money and that that influence would be manifest on the election returns now arises to confound those who used it. I think it may be accepted as a political axiom that Democratic voters are not made by the use of Republican money, seems to me it is more incumbent upon the vote for their legislative candidates than it is for the Republicans to explain their losses. I also think that with the Democratic vote increased in all the districts save two in Sussex county, it will be exceedingly difficult for the Democrats to convince an intelligent public that such a result was brought about by the use of Republican money.

"Let us consider for a moment the vote on the county ticket in Sussex county this year and two years ago. Two years ago the Republican candidate for County Treasurer was elected by 800 majority; the Republican candidate for prothonotary had 1,010 majority; the Republican candidate for Sheriff had 900 majority, and the Republican candidates for register in chancery and coroner had 362 and 395 majority respectively. This year the Republican candidates for county treasurer carried the county by only 234; the Republican candidate for coroner by 144, and the highest majority received by any Republican ticket was 304 by Lingas, the candidate for Register of Wills. In other words, on the county ticket the Republican majorities showed a falling off of more than fifty per cent. That is another fact which, I think, it will be difficult for the Democrats to explain in connection with their cry of Republican bribery and corruption."

Heart Cheer

"I think that good must come of good, and ill of evil—surely unto all. In every place or time, seeing sweet fruit. Growth from wholesome roots, or bitter things. From poison stocks: yea, seeing, too, how low spine. Bred hate—and kindness, friends—or patience Peace."

"There is no friend like an old friend. Who has shared our morning days. No greeting like his welcome. No homage like his praise. Fame is the scentless sunflower. With gaudy crown of gold. But friendship is the breathing rose. With sweets in every fold."

"It is a good and safe rule to sojourn in every place as if you meant to spend your life there, never omitting an opportunity of doing a kindness, or speaking a true word or making a friend."

"Loving words will cost but little. Journeying up the hill of life. But they make the weak and weary. Stronger, braver, for the strife. Do you count them only trifles? What to earth are sun and rain? Never was a kind word wasted. Never was one said in vain."

God gives to every man The virtue, temper, understanding, Taste. That fits him into life, and lets him fall Just in the niche he was ordained to fill."

"By all means choose some time to be alone. Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear."

"Go often to the house of thy friend, for weeds choke up the mused path."

Around Town

Who ever heard of a Town stopping to catch up?

Jingle bell! Jingle bell!

Oh, wait! It is to ride

In a one horse open sight!

The Old Man sat in the cozy armchair, back of the stove, preparing for a good thawing and a comfortable chat, before succumbing to the weariness resulting from his strenuous day.

(Sighing) Season is a strenuous time for Newark. The delight of the race forces the men to line up along the street where they stand by the hour, in order to give an encouraging cheer to their favorite race darts.

"Seemed kind of hard to believe I was in Newark today when I was watching those sleighs, just because of one familiar figure that was passing."

Remember old Delaware boys? He has figured among the crowd for many a day. The way that horse did seem to enjoy the fun! He had a driver who did, too—it was hard to tell which was the happier when the flakes began to come. The first sight that jingled by was sure to be drawn by the faithful Delaware Boy, just as he was the last to pick his way after the bare spots had come. The old horse couldn't travel with the fastest steppers, but for a real good time and downright fun he was always at the head. Of all the ladies in town counted as friend this old old steed! Horse and driver were after their own heart. One after one, in turn, would fly past by, bells jingling to the rhythm of the old horse's pace. Yes, indeed, he's a figure that'll be missed by many a one. He just fit in with a season like this—when Christmas is sort of in the air and everybody is a handing round good cheer.

The old man yawned, stretched himself and stepped to the window, preparing to depart. He caught sight of the snow covered street, smooth for once, as it glistened with the polishings of many runners, and chuckling, turned around to say: "Sometimes it's mud, sometimes it's dust. Nature's giving us a chance to find out how the real thing goes. I wonder if those councilmen can see the point?"

Town Council in an appraisal of town property, says we have two miles of stone streets worth $15,000. That's placing a pretty good value on what previous councils have done. $7,500 a mile for that! What would you say a street worthy of the name, was worth? No doubt there has been more than that spent on them, but that has been laid away. But then, if Council says they are worth that it must be so. How I shall delight and point with pride to our streets! They are worth $15,000. I should never have assumed of such a thing.

At the Old Mr. Handy, who speaking in Baltimore, referred to our ex-President as the "late" Mr. Roosevelt. The Baltimore Sun does not quote him as mentioning anything about a "recent" Democratic party in Delaware, and this is surprising when all the country is inspiring after it. Mr. Handy could have told them. Youngs Democrats in Delaware are not on according to his plan—would have much better if they were. But say, what I want to say is this: I wish Newark could hear that feature of his "Growing Up and Growing Old."

To think, just as we learn that our streets are worth $15,000, that it snows.

MARSHALLTON BRIEFS

About thirty members of the Candidates' Class of the Girls' Friendly Society went to Wilmington last Saturday afternoon to attend a service in Old Swedes Church. Rev. Frederick Knisman, Bishop of the Diocese, preached a special sermon to the children. Associate members of the Society who went with the children were Mrs. H. A. Grantham, Mrs. A. J. Newlin, Mrs. Herman Duncan, Mrs. R. H. Williams, Mrs. Alonzo Newlin, and Mrs. L. Barton. After the service, refreshments were served to all the visitors in Old Swedes Parish House.

The oyster supper held by the ladies of the M. E. Church on November 20 netted them a profit of $40.

The W. C. T. U. of Marshallton held an interesting meeting at the home of Mrs. William Guest, on Thursday afternoon, December 1. After the regular routine of business Mrs. J. T. Prouse gave a report of the recent State Convention and echoes were also given of the National Convention held at Baltimore, as several members of the Union had attended that meeting.

ing her aunt, Mrs. Aschenbach, in Wilmington.

AROUND HOCKESSIN

Russell Hayes, of Swarthmore College, accompanied by his father, of West Chester, attended the famous old Hockessin Meeting last first day as an appreciation of the historic interest of the place. This old meeting place has been a widespread center, owing to the faithful description which has been drawn by Bayard Taylor in his story of Lays.

The Young Friends' Association of Hockessin were to have given a social at the home of John C. Mitchell, on Tuesday evening, but owing to stormy weather the affair has been postponed indefinitely.

Israel Martin, near Hockessin, has lately undergone an operation in the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia. Although his condition is very serious, he is now improving.

Albert Marshall, formerly of York, is ill with typhoid fever.

Union School was closed on Tuesday owing to the prevailing storm. The roads in that vicinity are draped with snow.

The Loyal Temperance Legion of Hockessin will give a fair on Saturday in the building near to Korman's store, for the benefit of their Christmas box.

The prices of Majestic Ranges are the same, but we give the set FREE with each Majestic Range bought during the demonstration week only.

SOUVENIR FREE To any person (not children) who will allow the Majestic Man to show them the merits of THE GREAT MAJESTIC RANGE during demonstration, will get a useful and beautiful souvenir FREE.

Reasons Why The Great Majestic You Should Buy

- 1st. It has the reputation of being the best range money can buy.
 - 2d. It not only has the reputation but IS the best range made, and we will prove this to you if you will let us.
 - 3d. It is constructed of malleable iron, material you can't beat, and of charcoal iron, material that resists rust 300 per cent greater than steel, is riveted together airtight. No heat escapes or cold air enters the range, thus uses very little fuel to do perfect work.
 - 4th. The reservoir alone is worth the price of range over any other reservoir made. It boils 15 gallons of water; is heated like a tea kettle, with pocket against left hand lining, and is movable and sets on a frame, hence cannot wear out. When water gets too hot it can be moved away from fire.
- Majestic ranges use less fuel; heat more water—and heat it hotter; costs practically nothing for repairs; lasts three times as long; bakes better, easier to keep clean and give better satisfaction than any other range on the market. If you know positively that the above statements are true, wouldn't you buy a Majestic at once?

Come in Demonstration Week and We'll Prove It to You.
