These were some of my dearest friends from college and, yes, 20 years later we stay in touch. It's not as often as any of us like but I love when I get the opportunity to talk to them.

Yeah, we're a little old for summer vacations at this point in our lives. However, as another Fourth of July passes, it reminds me that summer is still a unique time of year for me. It's one where it seems there is time to make connections with old friends and a time that many find they can (even if it's just a week) spend extra time with family.

It's a busy time of year - but it's a good busy. I spent last weekend helping coach my son's baseball team police officers have placed INCE January, Newark a total of 203 graffiti-related charges on 21 people as part of on-going efforts to target graffiti vandalism in the city.

The undertaking drew on the combined efforts of officers from the special operations unit, detectives from the criminal investigations division and the school resource officer from the administrative division.

Sgt. Gerald Simpson who oversees the investigation said the arrests have "made an impact" on the graffiti situation. "I wouldn't use a word as strong as 'dent' but we have made an impact," he said. "Something we've learned from the past is we have to stay with it. We can't move this to the back burner.'

Simpson said many breakthroughs in cases have come in the form of tips from arrested suspects. Officers, he said, have developed a rapport with some vandals to learn more about ongoing investigations. "Once they get charged and are in an interview situation, some have been forth-

While the police department is doing its part, Simpson encouraged city residents to be more prompt and persistent in clean up efforts. A quick removal of graffiti is discouraging to the vandals,

The police department provided these key statistics related to the effort:

- Arrests include 12 juveniles and nine adults, ranging in age from 18 to 22.

- The 21 defendants were charged with 203 graffiti-related

- Officers executed five search warrants during investigations.

The department has not made public the names of the individuals who have been arrested and released, saying it did not want to jeopardize the on-going investigation.

Anyone who has information regarding graffiti vandalism that has already occurred is encouraged to call Delaware Crime Stoppers at 1-800- TIP-3333, or their local police department. For graffiti vandalism in progress, please call 9-1-1.

A Congressional report card

By ELBERT CHANCE

NEWARK POST COLUMNIST

URING the last two months, with Congressional elections just ahead, our elected representatives, in an uncharacteristic show of unity, have joined in expressing their enthusiasm for an old subject, ethical conduct in the financing of political campaigns.

There is solemn pontificating from both sides of the aisle that there must be complete transparency in monetary matters.

Ties with the Jack Abramoffs, Tom DeLays and Duke Cunninghams of this world will be abandoned and the high ethical standards of the past will be restored. We ordinary folk are expected to believe these solemn pledges even though prior Congressional officeholders have confessed that raising funds to perpetuate their stay in office necessarily began the day after their election, and consumed a high percentage of time each working day.

Chance

One might think that maintaining high standards of conduct would be an issue on which all members of Congress could agree. And anyone who has watched Congressional hearings on television knows that spokesmen for both parties advocate, indeed demand, that thorough investigations of impropriety be conducted. It is convenient, of course, if the malefactor against whom the speaker is railing happens to be a member of the rival party. On most occasions, however, such bombastic posturing has provided good theatre, but very little else.

The recent case involving Rep. William Jefferson, D-La., has been markedly different. A thorough investigation by the FBI has led to federal bribery charges against the Congressman, and even though his trial has not yet been heard, a surveil-lance tape and the discovery of $90,000 in marked bills in his home freezer appears to be irrefutable evidence. He already has been removed from an important committee post.

One would think that the Republicans would be elated by this opportunity to point the finger of guilt at the rival party, thereby emphasizing their support for impeccable standards of behavior. But instead, they have joined their Democratic colleagues, incensed because the Justice Department and the FBI dared to conduct a sting operation against a member of their august body. Members of both parties joined in submitting a bitter complaint to President Bush, arguing that appropriate procedures have been ignored. Mr. Bush, in turn, ordered a freeze on some of the evidence obtained. Perhaps the packages of bills removed from the freezer already were beginning to smell!

It seems obvious, however, that those who have most aggressively advocated punishment for the inappropriate actions of others, are less enthusiastic when the rules are applied to them. And with multiple polls indicating that the American public's assessment of the manner in which Congress is conducting the nation's business is at an all-time low, the lawmakers have responded with typical disregard of the views of those they are supposed to serve. In the last several days, they have voted to give themselves a raise!

She serves as the pleasure of Governor Minner.

Governor Minner's greatest budgetary feat can be found in her $2.7 billion deficit in the transportation fund. Of course, we can also recall a few years ago when she demanded that local school districts give back money to help her bail out the statewide budget disaster she created.

Dr. Lillian Lowery, Christina's superintendent, is a rookie with no prior experience as chief school officer. She has never been responsible for developing or implementing a district wide budget. But she was at the helm when the district racked up an $11 million projected deficit.

A New York consulting firm was hired. One of its findings started that former Superintendent Joseph Wise's budget for the current year was balanced and contained a surplus, as did all of his prior Christina budgets. The report goes on to state that this year's problem was created because expenditures exceeded revenue. Dr. Wise left the district in November. And when he left, the budget was balanced.

Now, let's recap. An inexperienced superintendent being monitored by an inexperienced Secretary who is a political appointee of a governor who makes Christina look like piker in the deficit department. Wow, what a plan.

Outgoing Communications Specialist, Christina District

I enjoyed working [in Christina District's central office] more than any other job I ever had. I worked hard, earned every penny that I was paid, and more importantly, earned the trust of parents and others in the community.

I have always loved this district and have served it since 1991 when my daughter entered the system. It was wonderful to have the opportunity to be paid for two years to do what I had done diligently and willingly as a volunteer for many years. I will now return to the role of volunteer.

I have seen the worst of people and their agendas since I've worked here. I see mean-spiritness – and I see incompetence, also. I respect the work that board members do, especially the time they put in and not being compensated for it.

It troubles me that the state seems to have taken the reins.

I am also wondering if Frank Rischel is taking this district "back in time." I was just a parent in the district when he was Deputy Superintendent under Dr. [Iris] Metts.

Delaware [education] will never advance because this State is unwilling to change. The funding of schools in this state is inefficient and ineffective, but no one has the [courage] to change anything. I would like to know what accountability measures are in place to monitor [the State] in all this.

I trusted Dr. [Joseph] Wise, I respected him, and God knows I believe he was trying to take this district where it needed to go. The moves he made were well thought out, and in many cases, the fit was right. He dared to be bold and I loved him for that. If [unusual] methods were used to fund programs that were successful, I don't have a problem with that, as long as nothing illegal was done.

Finally, this consulting firm [Alvarez and Marsal] may have been a waste because they don't seem to have come up with anything of substance to remedy our situation.

and spent a ton of time together. It was crazy busy, but it was fun.

Whether it is baseball, softball, soccer, swimming or any other sport, families all over Newark are doing the same thing - running from one activity to another.

This area has always offered a ton of activities for kids. It's a uniquely successful area when it comes to sports. But more than just sports, the activities present opportunities to be with your kids, your family and your friends. Little League fields, soccer complexes and pools become communities unto themselves.

Even if you're not involved in athletics, the summer in general is a great time to be with friends.

Burglaries up over 100 percent in area

Burglaries at businesses in Newark are up over 100 percent compared to the same period in 2000, according to Newark Police.

Residential burglaries, always higher than at commercial sites, remained about the same with 52 in 2000 and 48 in 2001. "Overall, burglaries are up 32 percent in 2001 for both homes and businesses," Officer Scott Horsman

Horsman said the majority of stolen items are computer equipment, laptops, Palm Pilots, software, and digital cameras, followed by TVs, radios and stereo equipment. "There's a large amount of electronic equipment on the list because that's what's in office complexes and businesses," Horsman said.

Congolese choir stops at Newark church on U.S. tour

By CHRISTINE NEFF

NEWARK POST STAFF WRITER

VELYN Hogenson and Jim Annett, two members of the New Castle Presbytery about to embark on a mission trip to the Democratic Republic of the Congo, don't know what to expect, but they know what they want to make: a connection.

want to make: a connection.

After all, said Hogenson, in today's ever-globalizing world forging a bond with people of different places and circumstances can be so important.

It's something members of the Chorale Presbutgrianne du Congo

Chorale Presbyterienne du Congo understand. The 12-member choir is touring the Eastern U.S. this summer, using song and worship to connect with their audiences.

The group performed at the First Presbyterian Church of Newark last Thursday night. They sang religious songs — both tra-ditional and modern — in languages native to the Congo.

Smiling, the singers swayed and danced to the energetic, a capella music, blending their voices in a harmony that filled the large sanctuary. One member, Chantal, kept beat on a bongo drum, and two bass singers played percussive instruments.

Though the audience did not understand the words they sang, the choir used hand motions, expressions and dance to portray the meanings of songs such as, "America," You have been chosen," and "Lord open the door."

Their tour is a joint effort of the Presbyterian Church and its partners in the DRC. The purpose is to inspire a more hopeful view of the nation and encourage U.S. participation and aid. The group's motto, "With Song Spring Hope!," says it all.

But looking at statistics from the DRC does not always inspire a hopeful view. The DRC, a country of 62 million, has had only one free democratic election in its 45 years since becoming independent. The population faces a high risk for infectious diseases, and an estimated four percent of adults have HIV/AIDS. A war, which began in 1998, has contributed to the deaths of an estimated four million people from disease, starvation and conflict.

The choir hopes to raise awareness for the challenges facing their communities and convey dreams of a better life for their people, many who live in poverty.

For their closing song, the choir sang "The Lord's Prayer," asking God to bless their country and its people. They linked arms and formed a circle as they sang, demonstrating that by working together their country could be healed.

43 unit airmen left for Afghanistan last week

two mornings last week, friends and family bid goodbye to 43 unit airmen from the Delaware Air National Guard's 166th Airlift Wing who departed from New Castle County airport bound for Bagram, Afghanistan.

will join about 25 fellow unit airmen now in Afghanistan. A combined aircrew and maintenance personnel will perform combat support missions for about six weeks before rotating home.

The two missions are part of a planned expansion of Delaware Air Guard military assets and personnel in the Afghanistan combat zone, where for the next few months two C-130 aircraft and about 50 airmen are required to remain in the combat zone. This increases the current requirements of one aircraft and about

The two missions, which deployed June 28 and June 30, mark the 15th and 16th deployments of aircraft and airmen from the New Castle air base to southwest Asia since February 2004.

The first homecoming from Afghanistan occurred June 6, and the next homecoming of about 20 airmen and one aircraft should take place on or about Thursday, July 6.

166th Airlift Wing Commander Col. Bruce Thompson, who accompanied the June 28 mission, said, "On July 4, we will proudly celebrate Independence Day by serving our state and our nation in the mountains and valleys of Afghanistan, serving alongside other American sons, daughters and fellow coalition forces from several nations. While this is a time of sacrifice for our airmen... it is also an honor for us to serve together in uniform during America's 230th birthday.'

"This took about two

Rafal, "and was unveiled
the same day as the

May."

Two of Wesley's greatest coaches, Bob Andrus, who coached football for about two decades and Jim Wentworth, who coached basketball for 40 seasons, are new members of the local Hall of Fame. Two new exhibits have audio highlights of great moments in Delaware sports. They feature the voices of Bill Pheiffer and Bob Kelly, who did playby-play for the University of Delaware teams and other sporting events.

The Delaware Sports Museum and Hall of Fame is open Tuesday through Saturdays throughout the summer through the end of October, from noon until 5 pm. For more information about the Museum, call (302) 425-3263 or visit the website at www.desports.

Delaware Smash set for return

THE Delaware Smash professional tennis team is billed as the "Hottest Ticket in Town!", and the players are returning to the First State this week to begin the 2006 World Team Tennis season.

The innovative WTT is beginning its 31st season on the procircuit, with the Smash beginning its eleventh season in Delaware. The Smash will play 14 matches, evenly divided between home and away games. The best two teams from the Eastern and Western Conferences will advance to the WTT Finals Weekend, July 28 to 30, in Newport Beach, Calif.

30, in Newport Beach, Calif.
The team last won the championship in 2003. championship in 2003. This year's roster is comprised of rookies Eric Nunez and Angela Haynes, as well as Robbie Koenig and Liezel Huber, who's been with the team now for four years. Huber is also the reining Wimbledon doubles champion. Former player Mariaan de Swart will coach the team for the second consecutive year. For the uninitiated, the WTT Pro League format features the small squad of two men and two women. Each match has five sets, with one men's singles, one women's singles, men and women's doubles, and a mixed doubles set.

Cheering is permitted during the matches, players wear brightly colored uniforms with their names on the back, and on-court coaching is permitted. The WTT will also use instant replay technology for some of the matches for the second year in a row.

The Smash opened the season Thursday at home against the Sacramento Capitals, featuring tennis star Anna Kournikova. Delaware will also host the top doubles team in the world, Mike and Bob Bryan of the Kansas City Explorers July 17.

Anna Kournikova is one of the stars of World Team Tennis and will be playing against the Delaware Smash this summer.

UD's Buchholz named freshman All-American

NIVERSITY of Delaware freshman second baseman Alex Buchholz has been named to the baseball America Magazine Division I All Freshman first team.

Buchholz, a freshman from Millersville, MD (Old Mill High School), was among 16 players named to the first team and was selected as a designated hitter. A total of 16 other players were named to the second team. He was the only Colonial Athletic Association player named to the teams.

Buchholz (at right), who earlier this year was named the Colonial Athletic Association Rookie of the Year, was named to the American Baseball Coaches Association All-East Region second team, and was selected to the Louisville Slugger/Collegate Baseball newspaper Freshman All-American squad, enjoyed a rookie season in which he hit .378 with 18 home runs and 64 RBI. He led the Blue Hens in homers and tied Brandon Menchaca for the team lead in RBI. He ranked in the top three in the conference in home runs, RBI, slugging (.721), runs scored (62) and total bases (160), and was successful in eight of nine stolen base attempts.

Buchholz also helped out on the pitcher's mound for the Hens; where he posted a 2-0 record with two saves with a 4.91 ERA in six appearances. He finished the season in second place on the Hens in both batting average and ERA.

He led a Delaware offense that set new school records for home runs and extra base hits this past spring. The Hens also ended the regular season leading the nation in home runs per game and slugging percentage (.574).

Residential customers may see 3.2 percent increase

RATES, from 1

The typical residential customer will see a rate increase of 3.2 percent; small and mediumsized business may actually see a decrease of between 1.5 and 4 percent. The biggest increase, about 15 percent, will go to the city's largest customer, the University of Delaware.

·Even so, said George Sarris, the city's finance director, the increased rates will be lower than the competition's. "Our approach was to give everybody a discount relative to Delmarva Power," he said. On average, the increased city rates will be about 6 percent lower than Delmarva's prices.

Sarris attributed the need to raise city rates to rising costs. Since 1999, when Delaware deregulated utilities, the wholesale cost of electricity has gone up by more than 120 percent.

The most dramatic hike in energy costs came last summer, when the price of gasoline skyrocketed to $3 a gallon and the prices of natural gas and oil spiked. The electric rates of Newark's customers have gone up, gradually, since then, but not enough to cover the increased energy costs, said Sarris.

Instead, the city has drawn on reserve funds - money set aside for vehicle replacements, street improvements, etc. - to help make this transition. Sarris said $6 to $7 million has gone to the

The proposed rate increase will help restore those reserves, but it will take some time, he said. "We figure it will take two to three years to really get back to where we were previously," said Sarris, adding that budget cuts have been made, as well, to help bridge the gap.

State legislators to hold wrap-up
