Mayer development vote Monday

by Cathy Thomas

After hanging over Newark City Council members' heads for nearly a year, the proposed Mayer property annexation and development plan will be up for final consideration Monday night.

The issue is on the agenda at a time when it could have an impact on the outcome of the city election, which is only two weeks away. Voters may react to council members' action on the proposal.

Bellevue Holding Company has proposed city annexation of the 82 acres at Elkton Road and the Christina Parkway. They have proposed development of a shopping center, hotel, warehouse and offices.

A similar proposal went before New Castle County planning officials nearly three years ago, but was dropped before it came to a vote because of citizen opposition.

In January 1988, the development proposal, along with the annexation plan, was presented to the City of Newark. Despite the planning department's concerns about the large amount of commercial development, the city planning commission in May gave its approval to the proposal.

The plan was delayed in its presentation to city council because of changes to the proposal. Originally, residential development was a part of the plan, but that was dropped. The size of the annexation was also increased by about 10 acres.

Last month, John Mayer spoke to residents about the proposal, saying now is the time to develop the property.

If it is developed now, Mayer said, his family, through an agreement with the developers, will have some say in the development process for the next 99 years.

The first phase of the development includes a shopping center and hotel facing Elkton Road. The shopping center will have a large grocery store and several specialty stores.

Mayer said the hotel will be an "upscale" 150-room facility, which will likely bear the name of a big-name chain. The grocery store is expected to be a new Acme.

If council approves the development, completion of the first phase is expected in about three years.

The second phase is an office and warehouse development behind the shopping center and hotel.

Residents have expressed concern about traffic that will be generated by the shopping center. Another concern of residents is the amount of shopping centers already in the Newark area.

Shotgun blast wounds 2 students

Two University of Delaware students were injured in a shooting incident early Friday morning, Newark police said.

A third student escaped injury in what police believe was a related incident.

According to Lt. Alex Von Koch, Thomas Cormican, 19, and an 18-year-old female student, whose identity was not released, were walking on West Main Street about 2 a.m. when they were confronted by a man who demanded money.

Cormican told the man that they did not have any money and displayed an empty wallet.

The two students ran from the man, who then fired a 16-gauge shotgun at them, police said.

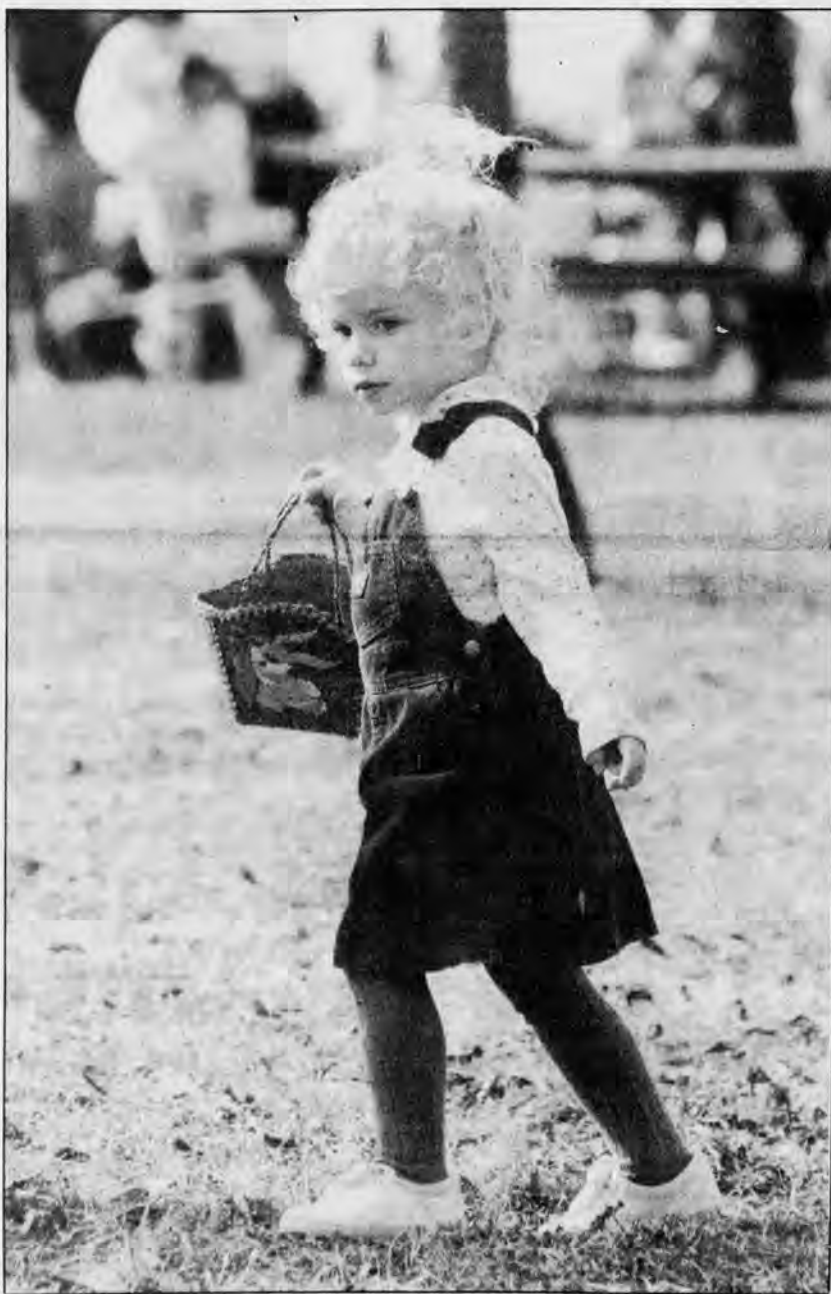

Cormican was struck in the face and the female student was hit in the head, back and leg.

Cormican received treatment at Christiana Medical Center and the female student was treated at the University health center.

Earlier Friday morning, a 19-year-old female student, whose identity was not released, was walking along Elkton Road near Lincoln Drive about 1:30 a.m. when a man yelled at her to come over to him.

The student kept walking and the man yelled at her again. When she did not respond, the man fired shots at her, police said.

Von Koch said they believe the same person is involved in both shootings. He's described as white male, 5-feet 6-inches to 5-feet 9-inches tall, medium build, curly dark hair, bushy mustache and in his early 20s. He was wearing a yellow and white striped shirt at the time of the shootings.

Eyes peeled, a young girl skips through Carpenter State Park during the Newark Department of Parks and Recreation Easter egg hunt held Saturday morning. Hundreds of children participated in the event, and city officials said it was one of the largest turnouts ever.

Bush enlists state support in drug war

by Cathy Thomas

WILMINGTON — President George Bush congratulated Delaware law enforcement for their tough stand in the war on drugs during a stop here Wednesday.

"Here in Delaware, you have shown the way," Bush said in a speech to the Delaware State Criminal Justice Association. "And it hasn't been easy. After all, Interstate 95, a major avenue of illicit drug trafficking, intersects the Greater Wilmington area."

Bush took his message about the war on drugs to southeastern Pennsylvania and northern Delaware this week. The trip had been planned for March 7, but was postponed due to winter weather conditions.

Prior to his speech at the Wilmington Radisson Hotel, Bush visited the Wilmington YMCA to attend a karate demonstration and a drug awareness meeting.

Bush was applauded when he told law officers that 70 percent of the drug budget is for law enforcement purposes, including funding to alleviate overcrowding in federal prisons.

"I will act also — and I need your help and backing — to enforce tougher sentences," he said, referring to his policy of zero-tolerance.

"Zero-tolerance is not a catch word," he said. "It means quite simply: If you do crime, you do

DuPont finds chemical in Glasgow site well

Traces of a suspected cancer-causing chemical have been found in a water well at the DuPont Company's Glasgow site.

Trichloroethene (TCE) was found in one of the three wells serving the site, which is located on Del. 896 south of Newark.

TCE is a common degreaser and solvent that was widely used ten years ago. The discovery of the chemical in the water supply surprised company officials.

"This came up in a background test for an entirely different purpose," said Jim Payne, Glasgow site manager.

Payne said the company was conducting baseline tests to determine sewer charges when it was discovered that TCE was present in one well at concentrations up to 74 parts per billion (ppb). Under the Safe Drinking Water Act, the maximum contaminant level for TCE is 5 ppb.

The wells are routinely tested for bacteria contamination, according to Payne, and have tested clear. Tests for TCE were apparently not conducted previously.

"The Glasgow facility does not currently use TCE and knows of no past use of TCE at

Couples cope with the pain of infertility

by Amy Treisger

Six years ago Candy and her husband thought about having a second child. They agonized over the decision and asked themselves, "Do we want another child? Are we ready for that? Could we cope with all the changes?"

"So when we decided we wanted another child," Candy said, "we decided which month we would like this child born in — March, April or May, either one was fine."

"When we made the decision, I went off the (birth control) pill the right amount of time, I made sure I had my rubella shot, and we proceeded to wait for it to happen. I never dreamt I'd have problems conceiving."

In the early stages, such problems are called menstrual dysfunction. Later, they are termed infertility.

"No matter how educated you are or how career-minded you are, you're still brought up to believe that you're going to get married some day and you'll have children," explained another woman who has had problems conceiving. "And all of a sudden your picture of your future life is gone."

Infertility is usually diagnosed when pregnancy does not result after one year of normal intercourse without any kind of birth control.

It affects one out of six couples.

For some women infertility means that they have not yet been able to have any children.

For others, it means they have not been able to have a second or third child. This is called secondary infertility.

In both cases, all they can do is keep trying.

Trying to get pregnant involves much more than hoping "this will be the time." It involves pain and work and a great deal of stress. "Some of us have spent up to $2,500 a month just on infertility drugs," said one woman. And this over the course of several years.

Many infertile couples find that their friends and relatives do not understand that infertility treatment involves more than simply "trying to relax."

"Once you get diagnosed as infertile, your stress level goes up," explained one woman. "At the same time, you should be relaxing, because we know that stress inhibits ovulation."

"Infertility is a daily battle with feelings of low self-esteem, emotional turmoil and having to deal with people who don't understand the pain of infertility," explained another woman. The Infertility Support Group of Delaware is helping couples cope with the emotional pain of dealing with infertility.

The group provides information about infertility and emotional support to help women and their husbands manage their feelings of frustration, anger and pressure.

"It is the only place where everybody there truly understands what it's like," said one woman in the group.

The support group is helpful because couples can talk about their infertility problems with

City braces for large voter turnout

by Cathy Thomas

Newark officials are gearing up for what could be the largest turnout ever for a city election.

A new voter registration procedure, combined with a mayoral contest, could result in more people casting ballots this year than ever before.

City voters will select a new mayor and decide three council seats in the April 11 election.

The new registration procedure, approved by Newark City Council in 1987, allows a city resident to register once for city, county, state and federal elections. Previously, a resident had to register separately to vote in city elections.

By combining their registration rolls with those of the county, the number of city residents eligible to vote has swelled to over 10,000. The exact count of registered voters won't be known until the list is finalized in the next few days.

Although not all those eligible to vote are expected to cast ballots, Newark Elections Board Chairman Sam Burns is optimistic about a heavy turnout, saying much will depend on interest generated by candidates.

"If the candidates do their job, we should have a good turnout," he said.

Because voters' signatures on county registration information do not appear on the records sent to the City of Newark, voters must bring identification, such as a driver's license, with them to the polls on April 11.

The voter registration card received from the county will not be sufficient identification, according to Burns. "They can bring that along, but that's not an identification card."

Except for the requirement to bring identification with them to the polls, Burns said voters won't notice any changes from past elections.

Nearly a year ago, Mayor

William M. Redd announced that he would not seek re-election after serving as mayor for more than 16 years. His decision was based on a desire to stimulate more interest in city government.

Last year's election was cancelled because all the candidates were unopposed. City ordinance allows the election to be cancelled if the candidates have no opposition.

Redd was disturbed by what he felt was a lack of interest in city government and said that by stepping down more people might seek city office.

Redd's prediction was not far off. Three candidates have filed for mayoral post.

Third District Councilman Edwin D. Miller was the first to file for the post, announcing his candidacy in early January.

Fifth District Councilman Ronald L. Gardner followed quickly after, filing a few weeks later.

A third candidate joined the race recently, a 21-year-old University of Delaware student. Scott Feller, a political science major, said he understands the concerns of both students and residents.

Should either Gardner or Miller win the mayoral post, there will be a vacancy on city council which will necessitate a special council election within 90 days.

Traditionally, the heaviest turnout of voters has been in the First District, according to Burns. That will likely hold true this year as Councilman Harold F. Godwin is opposed by Dave Colton, a University of Delaware math professor.

Second District Councilman Louise Brothers and Fourth District Councilman Allen E. Smith are unopposed.

Because of the mayoral race, there will be polling places in each councilmanic district in the city.

Newark families assist students

College might have been a pipe dream for some 55 Christina School District students, save for the generosity of two Newark families.

The Gore and Coons families have established a special program, the I Have A Dream Foundation, to encourage the educational advancement of economically-disadvantaged students.

The foundation will provide the students full tuition to attend university.

"Our overall objective is to give these young people the opportunity to go to college," said Kenneth Lemon, foundation program director.

The foundation program goes beyond just providing financial support, according to Lemon. The Gore and Coons families will be involved directly with the program and will build a relationship with the students.

The foundation will offer tutoring, counseling, motivational support, cultural activities, and special field trips to the students.

The foundation program needs volunteers to help administer the activities that will be provided to the students.

Other persons or groups are challenged to establish similar programs in the state.

"It is our goal to get other families, companies, churches and organizations to sponsor similar programs," said Lemon. "It's not enough to have just 55 kids sponsored by the Gore and Coons families."

"There are thousands of other kids that also need the opportunity to go to college."

The foundation program is modeled after the I Have A Dream effort in New York sponsored by Eugene Lang.

CAPPA publishes its own 'micro' development plan

by Cathy Thomas

Taking a pro-active approach, a local citizens group has designed its own development plan for the area they call home.

Citizens Advocacy Possum Park Area (CAPPA) has completed a micro-plan for the area, north of Newark.

The 74-page report, which in many ways resembles governmental comprehensive development plans, includes a background report, policy guide and greenway plan for their area.

"We've identified what we'd like to see for our micro-world," said David Onn, CAPPA co-president.

Several neighborhoods north of Newark are a part of the CAPPA area which is bordered by Paper Mill Road and Curtis Mill Road, Foxden, Polly Drummond Hill Road with Red Mill Road and the B&O railroad tracks.

Onn said the plan is designed to protect the community. "There's a certain character about this area," he said. "We don't want to see that totally altered."

But that does not mean CAPPA is anti-development, he said. "We recognize that a developer has a right to realize a profit on his investment," said Onn. "What we're for is sensible land use."

CAPPA has been working with the duPont family for the past year on proposed plans for 1,000 acres of land north of Newark. Richard duPont met with CAPPA members to iron out many of the citizens' complaints before development plans came to government planning boards.

Earlier this month, the Newark Planning Commission approved the annexation and subdivision plans for 250 acres of the duPont property. City council will give the proposal final consideration in April.

Carol O'Donnell, a CAPPA member who wrote much of the plan, said the document allows them to be prepared when faced with development issues.

"We want to start negotiating with developers in the beginning," she said. "Development is taking place right here, right now, and if we want to respond we'd better be informed."

In writing the plan, the group had to have a full understanding of development issues and the character of their area. O'Donnell said the plan will help them, as citizens, gain the respect of developers.

"I think the plan is something that's really needed if you're going to be effective," she said.

Although the governmental comprehensive plans include information on the CAPPA area, it is considered part of a larger planning district. Onn said the organization wanted to focus in on its specific concerns.

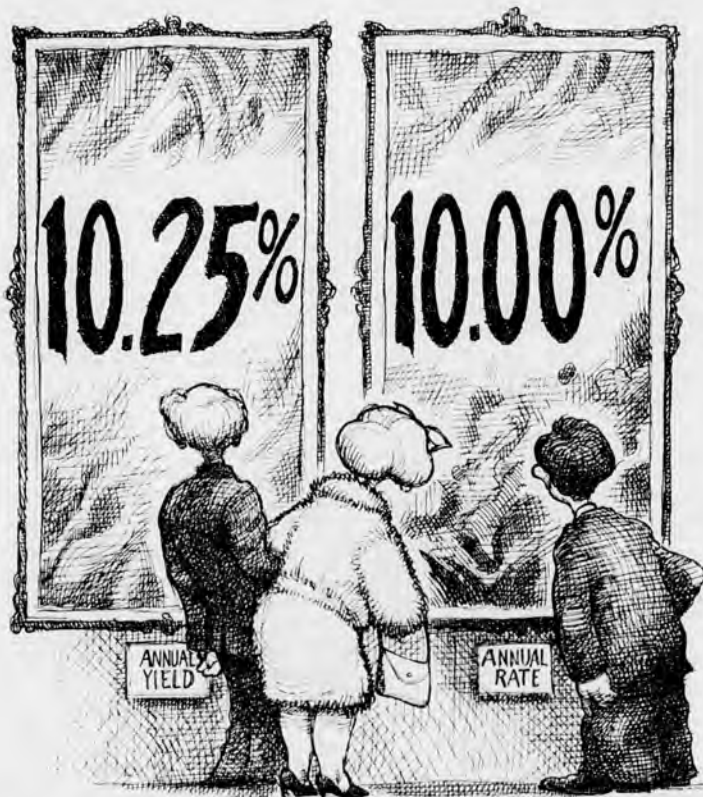

"They sometimes overlook the micro-area," he said.

Particularly important to CAPPA is the greenway plan for the Possum Park area.

"We'd like to see this greenway pattern established permanently," said Onn. "You will want to have recreation literally out your back door."

CAPPA members are hopeful that the plan will be considered by government planning boards when they make development decisions.

Blacks protest UD appointment

by Cathy Thomas

The selection of an affirmative action officer for the University of Delaware has been met with strong criticism from a campus organization.

The African-American Coalition, formerly the Black Faculty Coalition, issued a statement Monday that the appointment of Jack Miles as affirmative action officer was "another example of the unethical inconsistency and moral contradiction which has pervaded this institution's hiring and promotion process."

The coalition is upset that the group was not involved in the selection of a new affirmative action officer, and they believe that Miles is not qualified for the post.

Miles, executive director of the University's Commission to Promote Racial and Cultural Diversity since Dec. 12, was named to the new post last week.

"This bringing together of these two functions in a formal administrative reorganization makes the most effective use of our existing human resources and campus efforts that have taken place thus far," said Ronald F. Whittington, assistant to the president. "This reorganization is an attempt to combine our efforts into a plan of action."

Whittington, who would not comment specifically on the coalition's complaints, said disagreement over reorganization is understood.

He said Miles is aware of the racial needs and goals of the University.

However Crystal Hayman, co-chair of the African-American Coalition, disagrees. The fact that an African-American was appointed to the post of affirmative action officer does not pacify the coalition.

"We feel that this action, along with others of its kind, relegates African-Americans to second class citizenship on this campus," the coalition said in the statement. "We assert that this action would never have been taken had the players been white."

The coalition asserts that Miles has no background in human resources or affirmative action.

The Delaware Human Relations Commission has undertaken a full-scale study into possible affirmative action violations at the University.

"We need an affirmative action officer who has experience in dealing with such issues and who has a thorough knowledge of the law," the coalition said in the statement.

The University had conducted a national search for the position of affirmative action officer, but Whittington said it was felt that "these individuals would not bring to the campus what the University needs in the area of affirmative action."

"This was a decision that the president (Dr. E. Arthur Trabant) thinks is best for the University at this time," said Whittington.

According to the coalition, Miles never applied for the post and was not among the final candidates.

"We were not asked for our input into this final decision, although we had requested an integral role in the selection as far back as August of last summer," the coalition said. "We were given no acceptable reason for this hasty turn of events, only told that the decision was the best one for the University."

Miles replaces Whittington, who served as acting affirmative action officer last fall after Muhammad A. Ahmed was fired from the post. Whittington was then named assistant to the president on Nov. 2.

the time."

Bush called for increased prison sentences for drug-related crimes — and the death penalty for drug kingpins and those who commit drug-related murder.

"We owe our police officers nothing less than that," he said. "A secure community is the right of every American."

Bush also talked about actions last week to suspend the import of AKS-47 guns and certain semi-automatic weapons.

"I do believe in the legitimate right of sportsmen and others who own guns, but I also believe in supporting our police officers who lay their lives on the line," he said. "The time has come to do something about these automated weapons."

William Bennett, former Secretary of Education and now the director of the office of National Drug Control Policy, accompanied Bush to Wilmington.

Although Bennett has been given the title of "drug czar," Bush said he did not want to call him that.

"I'm trying not to say drug czar," said Bush, joking with the crowd. "There's something — I don't want to say — un-American about it."

Bush has asked Congress to increase funding to fight the country's drug problem.

"This war seeks to educate all Americans on the inherent evils of drug abuse," he said. "And it will encourage those caught in the trap of drug addiction to get clean and stay clean."

Bush complimented Gov. Michael N. Castle on the "Above the Influence" campaign to combat alcohol and drug abuse in the state.

Teens kidnap Ronald McDonald

Newark police served up quick justice early Saturday morning when alerted to the theft of the fiberglass Ronald McDonald from the McDonald's restaurant on East Main Street.

Charges were dished up for four Pennsylvania teenagers in connection with the abduction of the six-foot statue.

According to police, Ronald, valued at $2,000, was taken to-go about 2:45 a.m. from the play area outside the restaurant.

A few minutes later, police received a tip that Ronald was seen in custody of the teens in a small blue car about a block from the restaurant.

Quickly swallowing all the details, police responded by patrolling East Main Street. The suspect vehicle was stopped on Tyre Avenue, only yards away from the police station.

According to police, Ronald was found in good order inside the car along with the four teenagers.

Police arrested Darin H. West, 18; Darrick E. West, 18; and Angel R. Garcia, 19, all of Bethlehem, Pa. Also arrested was Jeffrey M. Rice, 18, of Havertown, Pa.

The teenagers have been charged with theft, conspiracy and trespassing. They were released on $9,000 unsecured bond pending an April preliminary hearing.

INFERTILITY

people who are going through the same feelings and the same pain.

"The emotional pain can be worse than the physical pain, because you know physical pain is going to stop," said one woman. "The emotional pain sometimes doesn't."

Many women going through infertility treatment experience anger and depression. "When you go to the bathroom and you've started your period, the first thing is just horrible anger," said one woman. "You ask, 'Why is this happening to me?' If you lose somebody you love, you eventually learn to accept it. With infertility, it is month after month of grieving."

"Most people just don't understand the crummy feelings you have after you're diagnosed as being infertile, and the group does," said another woman in the group.

"Even my husband, who has been very supportive through most of this, sometimes gives me the oddest look because of the things I say," she continued. "I know he doesn't understand."

"But I can say things at the group, and they don't think I'm a horrible person because I just don't want to deal with baby showers or pregnant people at work."

The infertility treatment is very hard on marriages, because couples need to have sex frequently when the woman is ovulating.

"It becomes work," said one woman. "That's why it is so damaging to relationships, because sex isn't something that you do just because you love each other anymore.

"It has to be the right time of the month, and it doesn't matter whether you have a cold or you just got over the flu or you got yelled at at work that day or you had a fight with your husband that night."

Occasionally the support group hosts speakers, and each month there is a different topic.

"Sometimes it's just a round table discussion on how you handle things," explained one woman.

While most of the women in the group are under medical treatment for infertility, their physicians cannot give them the emotional support they need.

"The doctors are not equipped to do any sort of emotional counseling," explained one woman. "You can't expect to get anything but the physical and technical help from them. If you need the emotional, you go to a support group."

One of the recent support group discussions was on coping with the holidays. This can be a very depressing time for infertile couples because so many holidays are centered around kids.

"Family get togethers tend to be really rough because you want a child, and you're not able to have one," said one woman. "You want to be that proud parent sitting there, and you're not."

"The end of the year is also difficult for me because that was one more year I hadn't accomplished what I was going to accomplish," explained another woman. "Last year I said, 'By this time next year I'm either going to get pregnant or I'm going to have given this all up.' I haven't given up."

AT A GLANCE

□ The Infertility Support Group of Delaware meets at 7:30 p.m. the last Thursday of each month at the A.I. duPont Institute near Wilmington. For information, call Nancy at 836-2845 or Candy at 738-4486.

□ Also, the Medical Center of Delaware will sponsor an infertility conference entitled "A Chance of a Lifetime" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 25 in Wilmington Hospital. Dr. Jeffrey B. Russell, director of the Medical Center's Reproductive Endocrine and Fertility Center, will discuss reproductive technologies. The conference is free. Call 738-4600 for reservations.

Infertility treatment can be very addictive.

"It's like gambling, because you can't quit," said a group member. "You think, it might happen next month."

The most damaging part of infertility is that it affects the way women feel about themselves.

"This is the first thing in my life that I haven't been able to accomplish," said one woman. "I can't stand feeling like a failure."

"I'm a real career-oriented type of person, and now that I see what's going on, I would give anything to go back and have children a few years ago and postpone having a career a little bit, rather than work on my career and postpone having children," she continued. "At least that way I could have worked longer on trying to get pregnant, because now I'm getting too old to keep going."

One group member advised young women to use birth control that doesn't hurt fertility. "I had this image of being invincible, and I'm not," she said. "And I want other people not to think they're so invincible. At least they should have some simple tests done to see if they're going to have any problems conceiving."

"You think back to all the years you struggled with birth control, and it's such a shock," another woman said.

The support group is helpful because talking about infertility with people who have been going through treatment makes the situation look more hopeful.

"We have had some successes," said one group member. "That's why our group changes so quickly. The population of the group is drastically different from what it was two years ago, because a lot of people have gotten pregnant."

The support group meets at 7:30 p.m. the last Thursday of each month at the A.I. duPont Institute near Wilmington. The next meeting will be March 23, and the topics will be IVF (in-vitro fertilization) and GIFT (gamete intra-fallopian transfer) program. For more information about the group, call Nancy at 836-2845 or Candy at 738-4486.

WATER

the facility that would contribute to groundwater contamination," said Payne.

Payne said there is reason to suspect the quality of the data results. Therefore, further tests on the water are being conducted.

The company has notified Delaware Department of Natural Resources (DENREC) officials and City of Newark officials.

The city is supplied by some groundwater near the DuPont property.

"We have only one well in the area," said Joseph Dombrowski, city water and wastewater director. "It's about 500 yards away from the DuPont well."

Dombrowski said tests on the water from the city well have shown no contamination. The city also uses an air stripper at its treatment plant, which removes contaminants.

"That chemical is removed by aeration, and we've always had that at our treatment plant," said Dombrowski.

Payne said DuPont has not shut down the well, but has turned off drinking fountains at the plant. Employees are being supplied with bottled water for drinking.

Residents who have their own water wells will have their water supply tested by state health officials.

In announcing the findings, Payne said DuPont wanted the public to be aware of the potential health problem.

"The additional testing may prove there is no or minimal health risk, but it is prudent that we take these notification and protection steps now," he said.

Researcher wins $24 million contract

A Bartol Research Institute physicist at the University of Delaware has captured a multi-million dollar NASA contract to design and build a scientific instrument for the first polar orbiting platform, which will be launched by the United States in 1996.

Dr. Paul A. Evenson, associate professor of physics and Bartol researcher at the University, has been awarded a contract for his position electron magnet spectrometer (POEMS).

The total estimated cost of building the instrument and four years of data analysis after launch is $24 million. More than a third of this amount, $8.8 million, will be allotted to Bartol with the remaining amount going to subcontractors to furnish components.

"This is the largest federal contract ever awarded to the Bartol Research Institute, as well as the first selection of a Bartol proposal for a space flight instrument," Dr. Norman F. Ness, president of Bartol, said.

Evenson's instrument, which will measure time variations of the charged particle radiation in space, was one of 24 chosen for development out of 455 proposals. The polar orbiting platform is part of the Earth Observing System, a multi-mission space observation system that will produce global data on the atmosphere, the oceans and surfaces of Earth, as well as space physics.

Evenson, who worked on a similar project for the International Cometary Explorer while at the University of Chicago, will lead a team of 10 co-investigators from Louisiana State University, the universities of Chicago and Utah and the Goddard Space Flight Center.

During the initial 18 months of the contract, the team will develop the design and prepare specifications. The desk-size instrument will be assembled at Bartol, although preflight testing is expected to be conducted at Goddard Space Flight Center.

POEMS will measure over time the varying amount of certain charged particles (popularly known as cosmic rays) that are generated by our solar system and our galaxy and accelerated by unknown processes to rather high energies.

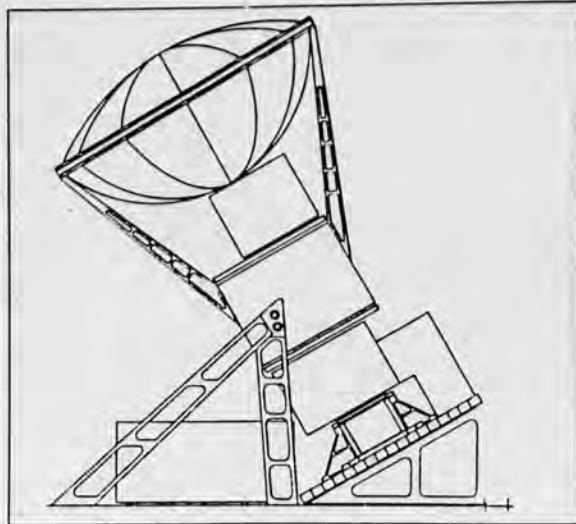

"The electrons in a color television set are accelerated to about 20,000 volts," Evenson said. "Those we are interested in have energy of above 5 million volts, making them at least 20 times more energetic. But because of the Earth's magnetic field and its atmosphere, none of these charged particles actually reach the Earth."

"Our atmosphere is the equivalent of 30 feet of water, and these particles would be stopped by two or three feet of water. The only place you can study them is by going above the atmosphere near the magnetic poles."

Evenson, who received his doctorate in physics from the University of Chicago, served as a senior research associate in the Enrico Fermi Institute.

He has been a physicist with the University's Bartol Research Institute since 1983.

Delaware cracks the merit Top 50

The University of Delaware ranks 30th among the nation's colleges and universities in the number of National Merit finalists in the freshman class, according to Dr. N. Bruce Walker, dean of admissions.

National Merit finalists are among the top 1 percent of high school seniors nationwide in academic performance, ranked by high school records and Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, and are students of accomplishment and promise, Walker said.

There were 47 finalists in the incoming freshman class for 1988, Walker said, and, for the first time, the University will be in the list of the top 50 schools published each year in The Chronicle of Higher Education.

Walker said these National Merit finalists chose the University of Delaware for several reasons.

The reputation of the University itself and the University Honors Program, in particular, are attractive to these scholars, he said.

In addition, the University is committed to offering them financial support, covering their full tuition for four years.

"Since 1985, the admissions office has had a plan to increase the number of finalists to 50 by 1991 and has worked hard to achieve that goal through mailings, campus visits and personal attention," Walker explained.

The number of freshman applicants to the University continues to rise, Walker said, although many colleges are reporting decreases in freshman applications, including Yale, Stanford and Harvard universities and the universities of Massachusetts and California at Berkeley among others.

Walker said from 1984 to 1988, the number of freshman applicants to the University rose from 11,749 to 15,190.

In the fall of 1988, 3,291 freshmen enrolled on the Newark campus, but to improve the quality of undergraduate life, the University hopes to decrease this number. Using class placement, coursework, SAT scores and other criteria, admissions staff have been able to continue improving academic quality of students for each incoming class.

Colm named UD vice president

Dr. Maxine Colm.

Dr. Maxine Colm, deputy provost at Glassboro, N.J. State College, has been named vice president for employee relations at the University of Delaware.

Colm, a University of Delaware alumna, will join the University's senior management team on April 17.

David E. Hollowell, University senior vice president for administration, said Colm "will apply her strong technical skills and demonstrated human relations skills as she assumes her new responsibilities...."

"She is well-prepared to build upon several initiatives recently implemented for University employees, including flexible benefits, a new compensation, career ladder and classification system (and) introduction of an alternative pension plan."

University President E. Arthur Trabant said Colm brings a "wide range of expertise and experience to this important position, with its broad responsibility for support and development of the University's human resources."

The University is the third largest non-government employer in the state, with 3,500 full-time employees.

Colm was selected following a national search. She replaces Dr. Dennis Carey, who resigned in the fall of 1988 to become managing director of Spencer Stuart Associates in Philadelphia.

Since 1982, Colm has been responsible for faculty and staff employee relations at Glassboro State, including contract administration, the development and implementation of professional renewal programs and grievance processing.

STEER THIS WAY

By Barry Williams

Protect your car from auto theft. One effective measure: etching the vehicle identification number on all windows. Small marking makes the car easier to trace, less attractive to thieves.

If your car always on turns, or dips when you brake, the shock absorbers are worn. Have them replaced promptly — and in pairs. If one side needs the work, so does the other.

Buy an extra folding umbrella to keep in the car.

Improper tire pressure affects fuel economy and more. Low pressure can cause heat buildup in the tire, abnormal wear and poor handling. High pressure gives a hard ride and wears the tire out.

What options are worth buying? Air conditioning pays for itself and trim may, too, but smart buyers choose what they will enjoy using. Resale value depends mostly on how well the car is maintained.

Veal on menu is inappropriate

To the Editor:

The exact date escapes me now, but I stopped eating veal a few years ago when all the reading I was doing about veal crates sank in. I did continue to eat veal for a while after I knew the facts, though. I think I figures that one person's actions don't make all that much difference. I realize now that we all have enormous power as consumers, and fewer animals will suffer as fewer humans eat their flesh.

Veal, as you may have read, is the meat of male baby cows. The calves used to be slaughtered at birth and sold as "bob" veal, but now are milk-fed and served as a delicacy.

When you eat milk-fed veal, you are putting into your mouth the flesh of a young male calf. The animal has been taken from its mother, chained by the neck in a crate slightly larger than itself and kept there, frequently suffering from diarrhea, until its slaughter.

Dean Conklin of the Beef Industry Council, in defending the veal crates, was quoted in the March 9 Raleigh, N.C. News and Observer as saying, "It provides more individual attention and quality care for the animals." Hmmm. Would you crate your pet in a box slightly larger than itself to provide "quality care?" Neither would I.

It seems to me that it doesn't matter what the menu calls it, what kind of sauce is over it, or how you disguise it. What you are getting is meat from a tortured animal.

So what do we do about it?

I don't know about you, but I am sometimes overwhelmed with a feeling of powerlessness when I read or watch the news. It often seems so terrible and so distant, yet it affects me and the people I care about.

So the other day, when a small bit of bad news was delivered directly to me, I felt I could try to make it better. I received an invitation to Mayor William Redd's farewell dinner at Clayton Hall. I served on a committee with the mayor and have done a fair amount of volunteer work for the city. I care about Newark and I wanted to go to the dinner. I also love Clayton Hall. In fact, I've called their food service officials in the past to thank them for the good, healthy meals they've provided. I really wanted to go to the dinner.

But the entree is veal cordon bleu.

I called the three women who made the decision to serve veal, hoping to convince them to make a change. One preferred "not getting into it," and the other two had been around farms and said they were aware of the situation and had grown used to it.

I feel sorry for penned up animals, of course, but even sorer for a woman who can say that she has accustomed herself to witnessing pain in animals. And I am deeply saddened to think of a person who uses her indifference to suffering as a reason to help it continue.

Changing the menu would involve informing the guests, so I offered my time to call or write people. The city wants veal. Clayton Hall will accept a menu change until March 27 from the city. The city wants veal. Other invited guests called and expressed concern to the menu planners. The city wants veal.

As of this writing, the menu on April 7, 1989 for Mayor Redd's dinner is veal cordon bleu. I won't be there.

Small papers strive for excellence

Sorry, but I want to do a little bragging this week. Not about me but about my "alma mater," the Owensboro, Ky. Messenger-Inquirer newspaper.

The M&I has been named one of the top five small daily newspapers in America in a study undertaken by the University of Missouri-Columbia School of Journalism.

There others, all with circulation under 50,000, are the Fredericksburg, Va. Free Lance-Star, the Gwinnett, Ga. Daily News, the St. Cloud, Minn. Times and the La Crosse, Wis. Tribune.

I want to brag not because of my involvement as education reporter from 1983 to 1985, but because I believe the M&I represents the best in American journalism.

The staff, from owners to reporters to carriers, is committed to excellence. They care. And a large part of that caring is because the newspaper is owned not by a large corporation but by a family, the Hagers, which has deep, deep roots in Owensboro.

The Hagers give a damn about the community in which they live, and they are willing to allocate the resources to their newspaper so it can be a driving force in improving that community.

The care shown by the Hagers filters down into the newsroom, the advertising department and the production area. You literally can eat off the floor of the press room, it is kept so clean. And for those of you who know anything about press rooms, that's no easy feat.

In the editorial department, there is a special esprit de corps, an atmosphere in which creativity and excellence are expected. There is organization, and there is drive.

Not that the money is great. It isn't. But people want to work there, to be part of something exciting.

The Missouri study found that "becoming a quality daily seems to be more a matter of imagination than money."

It found that newspapers which excel take care to tailor news to readers' interests, monitor readers' opinions, take pride in their work and choose staff carefully.

And the study outlines a blueprint of excellence, one which I believe should apply to all newspapers.

It urges papers to have a clearly articulated mission with high standards, expect the staff to commit its best work to the product, and to provide an atmosphere in which to maximize effort through inspiration, feedback and resources.

Unfortunately, that is the exception rather than the rule in this day and age of the daily newspaper chain, which is more concerned with the bottom line than with providing its readers an exciting and thought-provoking product.

Too often we see our daily newspapers settling for second best, for mediocrity. I fear there is no better way to lose readers. And that hurts all of us in the business, daily and weekly alike.

So here's a salute to the Owensboro Messenger-Inquirer, the Fredericksburg Free Lance-Star, the Gwinnett Daily News, the St. Cloud Times, and the La Crosse Tribune. You are what newspapering is all about. We need more like you.

CUSTODIAL ACCOUNTS FOR YOUR YOUNGSTERS

A custodial account used to be a super way to salt away money for a youngster with little or no tax bite. It's not as good as it used to be — thanks to the notorious "kiddie tax," but it's still worthwhile. Here's what it is: a bank or brokerage account set up by an adult to benefit a child; all gifts are irrevocable, and the child gets control of the entire amount at legal maturity.

The first $500 of the child's unearned income is covered by the standard deduction; the next $500 is taxed at the child's rate, usually 15 percent. Unearned income over $1,000 is taxed at the parents' rate until Junior is 14 years old, when rates drop again. Tax-savvy parents and grandparents give kids gifts that pay minimal income until the child reaches 14; U.S. Savings Bonds, with interest that can be rolled over tax deferred, are one possibility. Another is to give stock that has appreciated substantially, to be sold when the child reaches that low tax age. When you need financial advice, ask the knowhow people at

Nursery expands summer day camp

The Newark Day Nursery Inc. has announced an expanded summer day camp program for children ages 6-10.

This summer, the Nursery will operate its day camp program at two locations, at its own facility on Barksdale Road and at the George Wilson Community Center on New London Road.

"The past successes of our summer camp program, along with the high quality of our staff and facilities, have enabled us to expand our program for 1989," said Jeff Benatti, executive director of Newark Day Nursery.

The camp will operate from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays, and will include recreational activities, swimming and weekly field trips. Breakfast, lunch and snack will be served. Children will be grouped according to age.

Weekly fee for the camp is $60 per child, $50 for a family's second child and $40 for each additional child from the same family.

A limited number of space are available, so early registration is advised.

The Newark Day Nursery, a United Way agency, has been providing child care services in the Newark area since 1961. For information, call 731-4925.

Substance abuse panel begins work

A comprehensive analysis of Delaware's substance abuse problem has been undertaken by the state's Substance Abuse Coordinating Council.

Under the leadership of Lt. Gov. Dale E. Wolf, the council has completed preliminary meetings to set the direction for attacking drug and alcohol abuse.

"We had an extremely productive first session," said Wolf. "There is a significant body of knowledge in our state on the various issues surrounding drug and alcohol abuse."

"It is important that we fully research those issues and learn from our experts in order to arrive at a comprehensive statewide strategy that will make a difference in this tragic situation."

The council has drafted a preliminary mission statement and has identified areas on which to focus immediate attention, including improvements in treatment, education and prevention, and deterrence.

Gov. Michael N. Castle created the council in January through an executive order that acknowledges the importance and complexity of the nation's substance abuse problem and calls for a multi-disciplinary approach to solutions.

St. Mark's defends state baseball title

by David Woolman

St. Mark's High School baseball coach Tom Lemon looks at a list of players evenly divided into two groups and moves a pair from the second group into the first group. The list names the players from last year's state championship team — group one contains the players who graduated, group two the players who remain.

Lemon laughs and says, "We have to reprove ourselves. We're going to try and defend our crown the best we can. We're not really talking about repeating just yet. Our goals are to practice well every day, to play well in every game and hopefully do well in the Catholic Conference. That will give us a chance to get back in the state tournament."

It begins to sound familiar. "This year, it's a different team. We're not going to take many things for granted," says Gary Lynch, who is in his third year at second base and who just finished helping the Spartans win the state basketball championship. "We don't have the natural talent."

"We're going to have to work hard for it. That's a lot more fulfilling, I guess, when you win."

"Everyone's capable, and I think a few will come through and shine. We have players that are capable of rising to the occasion."

This team, of course, is the defending state champion, and has lost a number of the players that got them there, including first team All-State Pedro Swann, the pitching rotation of second team All-Staters Tim Sullivan and John Kwoka, first baseman Craig Bilinski, catcher Paul LaVigne, designated hitter Joe Kreisher, third basemen Rob Knotts and Dave Kucharczuk and short relief specialist Charlie Roper.

However, the strength of the program at St. Mark's has

Hens must scratch, claw

Delaware nine hopes to remain atop pecking order

by David Woolman

This year's University of Delaware baseball team is young, fast and enthusiastic. How far this will get them is the question.

Delaware comes off of its tenth 30-win season in the last 13 years, having gone 35-12 and finished second in the East Coast Conference with an 11-3 record.

However, the loss of ECC MVP Randy Simmons, a St. Mark's product, Bill Gibbons and Joe Laznik on the mound and Pete Laake and John Kochmansky with the bat will have the Hens depending on unproven quantities in important situations.

Newark High School All-Stater Lenny Richardson returns to anchor what is expected to be the strongest part of the team, defense, at second base. Jeff McCoy and Tim Sipes return at shortstop and third base. Dave Birch will take Laake's place at first.

Sophomore Heath Chasanov returns in the outfield, to be joined by Birch, Daryl Hendricks, freshman Tripp Keister and perhaps St. Mark's grad Mark Lynch.

Relievers Bob Koontz and Glenn Oneidas are the senior members of the pitching staff. Sean Harding, Bill Brakeley, Drew Ellis, Mike Conelias, Brian Rieger, Keith Garagozza and Ed Szczerba will vie for starters roles. Recent Newark High grad Bob Sonchen is also on the staff. Kevin Perna and Scott Airey will do the catching.

"I think that we have some people to fill in Randy's spot," says Richardson. "They're not going to be easy shoes to fill. We have Dave Birch and Heath Chasanov."

"What we wanted to make clear to everybody is that we're going to be a totally different team than last year. We're not

Harry Davies has plenty of offense and defense to defend the Blue Hen Conference Flight A baseball title he won in his first year as coach at Newark High School.

But like a number of coaches in BHC Flight A, he's looking for pitching.

"I'm going to have to work a lot harder this year," says Davies. "Last year, I had two guys who could throw 140 pitches a game."

Ironmen Bob Sonchen, a first team All-State selection, and Bruce Hannah graduated, leaving no pitchers with significant varsity experience to throw.

However, the situation may just sound worse than it actually is.

"We have some guys who can throw," says first team All-State catcher Ted Raftovich, who gets a first-hand look at the rotation candidates. "They just haven't been pitching because we had those pitchers last year. It's kind of new for them."

"It'll be alright," says Bill DiIenno, a first team All-State outfielder who looks to become the team's first starter despite not having pitched since Little League two years ago. "We have everything else. We're deep in hitting and fielding. As long as the pitchers can throw a strike...."

"Every year somebody steps in."

Among the others getting starting consideration are Craig Klockars, last year's starting second baseman, Shane Noonan, Eric Sternberg, Dan Dill, Rob Callahan, last year's starting centerfielder, and Raftovich. Any of these, plus Chuck and Curt Bedford, could pitch relief.

Newark's strength will be up the middle, where Raftovich, Klockars, Callahan and shortstop Curt Bedford all return. DiIenno in left field is the other returnee.

"I'm concerned about the corners," says Davies, "more about first base than third." Mitch Thomas, last year's third baseman, is hurt, and may come back at first base later in the

Tough Tufts ruins home opener for Hannah's Hens

The members of the University of Delaware baseball team know they aren't the same team they were last year when they come up to bat. Perhaps they know that all the more after a disappointing 5-3 loss to Tufts Friday, the Blue Hens' home opener.

The Hens had 11 hits, all singles, and left 15 runners on base. Shortstop Jeff McCoy went four for five and was stranded at third three times.

"We're a little lesser offensively than in the last few years, there's no question about that," said Delaware coach Bob Hannah. "Against this type of pitching and the fact that we've been out all week and played three ballgames, I expected more. "We've got to be a little different kind of ball club. When we have opportunities, we have to hit the ball. We can't miss too many opportunities to score runs."

The Hens were fooled by Tufts pitcher Chris Juhring, who changed speeds to effect for the better part of seven innings.

Delaware scored its two runs off of him in the second inning with three singles, McCoy scoring on a double play with the bases loaded, and third baseman Tim Sipes getting knocked in by second baseman Lenny Richardson, the former Newark High School standout.

UD's Steinwedel withdraws as Indiana State candidate

University of Delaware head basketball coach Steve Steinwedel, the leading candidate for the head coaching job at Indiana State University, has withdrawn his name from consideration.

"We still have work to be done here," Steinwedel said Tuesday, announcing that he would remain at Delaware.

Steinwedel, 35, and wife Carolyn visited the Indiana State campus in Terre Haute Sunday and Monday, meeting with Sycamore officials.

During the visit, Indiana State officials informed Steinwedel that he was the top candidate to replace Ron Green, who resigned in February.

"I hope it says something about what we've done with the University of Delaware basketball program that I was considered for the position," Steinwedel said.

Steinwedel said the Blue Hens will return "a young team with good potential," a team with which he hopes to "continue to improve and build the University of Delaware basketball program."

That, plus the fact that his family enjoys living in Delaware, prompted him to stay. "All those facts were a part of my decision to withdraw my name from consideration," Steinwedel said.

That Steinwedel was being considered for the Indiana State job was first reported Friday by ESPN's Dick Vitale during an NCAA championship tournament telecast.

Steinwedel is a native of Indiana who played college basketball at Mississippi State University.

He began his coaching career at Stetson University, where he earned a master's degree in education.

Steinwedel served as an assistant coach at West Virginia, Duke and South Carolina before coming to Delaware in 1985.

During the 1987-88 season, Steinwedel coached Delaware to a school-record 19 wins, the Blue Hens' first winning season in 10 years. In four years here, his coaching record stands at 57-56.

Following the 1987-88 season, Steinwedel was named East Coast Conference coach of the year

Steve Steinwedel will remain as University of Delaware head basketball coach.

Weaver sets ECAC record

Newark gymnast Wendy Weaver has set an Eastern collegiate record for her performance on the uneven parallel bars.

Weaver, a freshman at Towson State University, scored a record 9.70 on the bars during the 1989 Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC) gymnastics championships held Friday, March 17 at Towson, Md.

Weaver came back from an early-season injury, a broken foot, to compete in the bars and help Towson State win its third consecutive ECAC championship.

Weaver earned All-ECAC honors for her outstanding, though injury-shortened, season.

Hens
top
'Cats

by David Woolman

After losing all three scrimmages and the first two games of the season (one-goal losses to powerful Virginia and Yale), the University of Delaware lacrosse team was beginning to get the feeling that they'd never win.

Fortunately, Wednesday afternoon at Delaware Field, New Hampshire (0-1) came along and complied with the Hens' needs nicely. Delaware won 16-6.

"We had to have this one," said co-captain Ed Brady, a senior defenseman. "Going 0-3 is not conducive to a winning season. We had to get to believe we could win, and we did that today."

"We got it out of our system," agreed co-captain Ed Brady, a senior defenseman. "We got it out of our system."

(Unfortunately, the winning streak stopped at one game, with Delaware losing to Army on Saturday.)

The Hens played an all-around good game against New Hampshire, whose lack of outdoor practice showed in a ragged performance. Delaware passed sharply, performed well on ground balls and went hit-for-hit against a physical pack of Wildcats.

Though a little tentative on offense at first, particularly in man up situations, the Hens struck hard in the first quarter, scoring three goals in the second three minutes of the game.

The last came on an close in shot by senior attackman Tom Ervin (last year's top goal scorer, with Matt Lewandowski), who led the team with three goals and four assists.

In total, 14 Delaware players were involved in the scoring, including reserve goalie Chris Burdick, who was credited with an assist in the fourth quarter.

Once again, the Delaware lacrosse team, seen in action against New Hampshire two years ago, faces a high-quality schedule.

New Hampshire's Jeff Mechura scored two goals late in the quarter to make the score 6-2 and briefly remind Delaware coach Bob Shillinglaw of his team's first two games.

"In a coach's mind, yeah," he said, "but hopefully not in their minds. I didn't see any tentative play on their part at all."

Delaware continued on well, leading 9-3 at the half and increasing its lead as Shillinglaw began to substitute in the second half.

"I thought they played hard all four quarters," he said. "The problem you run into as you start getting more people on the field is that you start to lose the continuity, but they kept it right up."

Senior attackman John Boote (last year's assist leader) had two goals and two assists, Joe Barra had two goals and an assist, and Phil Cifarelli had a pair of goals as well. Aldridge, Rusty Ward and Tom Stanziale each had a goal and an assist, Mike Dewey, Tim Bracken, Ed Brady and Greg Wood each had goals, Lewandowski, Burdick and Jeff Cook had assists, and Mark Prater had two assists. Starting goalie Gerald DeLyra had 11 saves.

"I've got to give most of the credit to Gerald in the cage," said Brady. "He makes saves he really shouldn't be making. There's something about him in the net that instills confidence in the whole defense. You can go out and put pressure on the ball and not worry about what's behind you."

According to Shillinglaw, DeLyra and Burdick aren't that far apart, and either one could start. The pair replace Steve Ranby and Kevin Gebbia from last year. The only other players who graduated from last year's team are defenseman Jeff Garrison, and midfielders Vince Bagli and Chris Spencer.

"We really only graduated one guy from our starting defense," said Brady. "We do have experience, and its time we come together. Having been of a defense that has given up 15 goals a game, this is fun."

"In the past couple of years, we've been giving up a lot of goals," said Shillinglaw. "We gave up seven (to Virginia), six (to Yale) and six — we'll take that any time. One of our goals is to keep the other team under eight goals. We've done that three times. We should be able to score nine or ten goals."

As other teams in the East Coast Conference continue to improve, especially defending champion Hofstra, Delaware will continue to find winning the conference more difficult than simply getting past Towson State.

Local anglers prepare for trout season

Once more Delaware anglers will be availed of the opportunity to fish themselves into a frenzy on local streams when trout season opens at 7:30 a.m. Saturday, April 1.

Fishermen will be lining the banks of area streams for the 22,200 farm-raised beauties, including 19,000 ten inch rainbows, 2,750 ten-inch browns and 450 trophy-sized rainbows. The streams will be closed to fishing two weeks prior to opening day for stocking.

The Delaware Division of Fish and Wildlife has added one new stream, Beaver Run, to the stocking program. Red Clay Creek will once again be left unstocked due to concern over contaminants in the stream.

The daily catch limit is six trout, with the exception of the half-mile fly fishing-only stretch of White Clay Creek upstream of Chambers Rock Road, where anglers may catch as many as they like, as long as they throw back all but four.

As always, parking will be difficult opening weekend, and fishermen are asked to respect private property.

For those fishing White Clay Creek, parking areas are available at Thompson's Bridge on Chambers Rock Road and Hopkins Bridge on Hopkins road. No overnight camping will be permitted in the stream valley.

Those fishing Beaver Run are advised to park in the Woodlawn Trustees lot.

The streams to be stocked are:

- White Clay Creek from the Pennsylvania line to the downstream side of Curtis Mill Road (Rt. 72).

- Mill Creek from Brackenville Road to Route 7.

- Pike Creek from Rt. 72 to Henderson Road.

- Christina Creek from the Maryland line through Rittenhouse Park.

- Wilson Run from Rt. 92 through Brandywine Creek State Park.

- Beaver Run from the Pennsylvania line to the Brandywine Creek.

TUFTS

"We took that 2-1 lead in the second inning and I could just feel the whole thing shift to where we said, 'oh, this is easy,'" said Hannah. It wasn't.

Tufts, which took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a pair of doubles by Mike Kratochwill and Matt Guanci, retook the lead in the third inning.

Mike Theodore walked and moved to second on Dan O'Neill's single. Bill Canon scored Theodore and moved O'Neill to third while getting caught trying to stretch a single. O'Neill came in on a passed ball.

Delaware starter Keith Garagozzo put Tufts down in order in his last two innings of work, while the Hen offense twice left the bases loaded. In the seventh inning, Tufts' Chris Lamothe hit a double and came in on a two base error by Sipes to give his team a 4-2 lead.

Delaware got back within one in the bottom of the inning, as leftfielder Darryl Hendricks reached on a fielder's choice, moved to third on a single by McCoy and an error, and scored on Dave Carpenter's sacrifice fly to rightfield.

Tufts scored its final run in the eighth, as Kratochwill walked, moved to third on Mike Ward's double and scored on a sacrifice fly by Matt Guanci.

In the Delaware ninth, McCoy singled, Sipes walked and both moved into scoring position on a wild pitch with one out, but were moved no further.

"We didn't play very well," said Hannah. "We figured they were going to come out of New England not ready. The fact of the matter is we weren't ready and they were."

"They played very well. They made the pitch when they had to. That's one of the worst offensive performances I've seen in a long time here. I think we're better than that, but we're going to have to demonstrate that."

Garagozzo, a freshman from North East, Md., took the loss in his first varsity appearance, giving up six hits and two earned runs in five innings, striking out three and walking two.

"He needs to get innings out there," said Hannah. "I thought he got stonger as he went along and pitched pretty well at the end. He has a chance to be a good college pitcher. He just has to get competitive innings."

Senior Glenn Oneidas pitched three innings in relief, giving up two hits and one earned run. Sophomore Drew Ellis finished up in the ninth.

always been development, and that above all other reasons makes Lemon confident.

"I am because all of these kids have been in our program either at the freshman or JV levels or as varsity backups. We try to teach these kids what we want them to do consistently the whole way through."

"When they're at varsity, they're not going to have a tremendous transition to make. I'm confident that these guys are ready to fill in and do a good job for us."

Returning for the Spartans are Lynch, an All-Catholic choice, at second; Mike Smyth, a sometime starter in the outfield at shortstop; Brian Wallace, last year's shortstop, at third base; left handed pitcher Mike Oller, 3-1 last year; Chris Milyo, who received some experience behind the plate last year; and Mike Donovan, an occasional starter at first base and left field.

"The six players we have back are a real good nucleus," says Lemon. "I think you'll see a bunch of real good players coming out of that group. They're skill players and have been in the tournament. Anytime you return five or six kids from a state champion team, you have the opportunity for a nice baseball season."

Filling in the lineup will be Kevin Lazarski, John Laznick and Mark Hendrix in the outfield, Chris Milyo as a backup catcher, and Brian Swed, Tom Neylon and Tim Kerstetter as right handed pitchers. With the change in the card comes a change in the strengths of the squad.

"Last year, we had players that hit for power," says Lynch. "This year we're going to have to do the little things like steal bases, execute bunts and sacrifices. We're a speed team."

"We have a good infield. We did last year, too, but we didn't play to our potential."

The pitchers have so far pleased Lemon, who adds that "I hope one of these guys really establishes himself as the stopper of our staff. We really need that."

"It's going to be tough. Basically we're playing a state championship game every time we step on the field because the other team is taking it that way."

going to be able to hit the long ball as much as we did last year. We're going to have to scrap and bite for every run that we get."

One thing you won't see is leadoff hitter Richardson swinging for the fences.

"That's one thing I have to stay away from," he says. "I can't try and do extra. My job is to get on base, just like last year."

The team has only five seniors and three juniors, leading Bob Hannah, who is entering his 25th year as head coach of the Hens, to anticipate a slow start, but better things later in the spring.

"With the enthusiasm of this bunch, I feel we'll be competitive," he says. "If you have that kind of overall aggressiveness every inning of every ballgame, you're probably going to rise to the occasion."

Last year's varsity bench should fill the remaining positions, vacated by Tim Pyle and Tim Wagner, who graduated, and Thomas. George Chakar has impressed Davies at third, and may well start there.

The replacement for Pyle at first base could be Brian Leshar or Mike Gerhart, and depending on the circumstances, any of those three could take Wagner's rightfield position, as could Curt Bedford.

Noonan or Kevin Scannell, both strong hitters, could also end up with time at first base.

"Defensively, they're pretty much equal," says Davies. "It all depends on who hits, and we have 12 kids who can hit the ball."

Davies sees this team as equal to last year's offensively, and perhaps a little better defensively. Only the pitching tries his confidence in his team, and leads him to believe that William Penn and Concord must be considered the favorites to win the Flight A title.

"I'm not unconfident either," he says. "These kids have a tremendous amount of character. They believe in themselves. I think they would like the role of underdogs; they'll respond."

Newark dropped Catholic powers St. Mark's and Salesianum from its schedule, replacing them with downstate teams.

SPORTS FILE

• Kurt Howell, former state champion wrestler from Newark High School missed earning All-America status by one match at the national collegiate wrestling championships held last weekend in Oklahoma City. The red-shirt sophomore at Clemson won three and lost two of his matches in the 126-pound weight class, despite breaking a finger in his third match.

• Newark decathletes Pat Walker and George Taylor placed second in their divisions at the National Indoor Pentathlon Championships March 19 at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. Each was defeated by the current reigning outdoor national decathlon champions.

Walker won the open 60 meter high hurdles in the 40-44 age group, and Taylor placed second in the 55-59 age group triple jump.

Taylor, Walker and Cathy Taylor each won events at the Philadelphia Masters Indoor Invitational Track and Field Championships at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa. Saturday March 4.

Newark High School track coach Pat Walker placed first in the 40-44 age group 55 hurdles, Cathy Taylor won the 55-59 age group mile walk, and George Taylor won the 55-59 age group pole vault.

• Ann McCoy finished off a strong year in the Delaware State Youth American Bowling Alliance tournaments by taking first place in the Division I (15-21 years) girls division of the DSYABA singles tournament March 18-19 at Dover Bowl.

McCoy, bowling out of Brookside, rolled a 690 handicap, which helped her win the Division I scratch and handicap All-Events title, with scores of 1711 and 2001.

• Nicole Markey of Brookside took second place in Division II

(12-14 years) with a 657. Nicki Vignola of Blue Hen finished third with a 630.

In Division III (9-11), Amber Reed of Pike Creek rolled a 525, good for second place. Erika Kolv of Brookside finished third with a 513.

In the boys Division I, Pike Creek bowlers finished second and third. Robert Welch bowled a 698, and Steve Kinney bowled a 688. Kinney's performance helped him to the Division I All-Events handicap title, with a 1992. John Herman from Blue Hen won the Division I scratch with a 1715.

Tina Sammons bowled the high game of the tournament with a 213.

Bowlerama will be the host for the qualifier for the National Junior Bowling Championship on April 8. The top six in each division go to Doverama on the 15th, and the top bowler from each of the four divisions earns a spot in the nationals in Tampa.

"QUALITY APPLIANCES & ACCESSORIES FOR PROPANE AND NATURAL GAS"

Take full advantage of your benefits

Making money gets the working world up and going in the morning, but often, figuring out how to manage that money can keep it from sleeping well the night before.

Employers recognize these concerns and spend millions of dollars annually on benefits packages to help employees meet their financial needs. However, that investment is wasted when employees fail to understand or take full advantage of their benefits.

These rewards or "fringe" benefits can play an important role when it comes to creating a coherent and comprehensive personal financial plan.

Getting the most value of your benefits. There's nothing fringe about the fringe benefits that come with most jobs. Chances are your benefit package is worth a quarter to a third of your annual compensation.

The best way to make sure you're getting the most value out of the benefits your employer provides is to know what they are and understand how they work. If you're employed by a company that gives you choices in your benefit package, your familiarity with the options is especially important.

FINANCIAL DIRECTIONS

Understanding the benefits you get with your job — or options you have in putting together your own benefits package — just makes good sense.

The life insurance your employer provides might, for instance, more than satisfy your insurance needs for the time being. Or, it might satisfy only a portion. In either case, the benefit is at least part of the solution, because it's insurance that you don't have to buy out of your own pocket.

Another good reason to know your benefits is that some of them are taxable — which doesn't necessarily make them any less valuable. Let's say that your company, as part of its fringe benefits package, pays your $1,000 annual dues to a health club. Because that's a taxable benefit, the $1,000 will show up on your W-2 form, and you'll pay, if you're in the 28 percent bracket, an additional $280 in taxes ($1,000 times your 28 percent tax rate).

Understanding your cafeteria-style benefit plans. Some employers tell you what benefits you'll receive, but others give you a choice. Gone are the days of plain-vanilla benefits packages merely offering insurance, vacation time and the key to the executive washroom. Many employees now face a myriad of sophisticated tax-deferred savings plans, stock options, insurance policies and pension and retirement programs that can fit your needs or lifestyle.

These programs are known as cafeteria benefits plans, because they permit you to choose from a menu of fringes.

It's especially important that you understand the benefits in a cafeteria plan and the value of the different benefits offered.

Typically, those plans give each employee a flat dollar amount, based on salary or wages, to spend on fringes. You'll want to spend your dollars wisely and get the most for them.

Here's one last point on flexible benefit packages.

Sometimes, when the option is available, you may be tempted to take cash instead of all or some of the benefits. However, bear in mind what it will cost to replace certain benefits, such as health insurance, outside of the plan or what the consequences of having no health insurance can be. Cash is usually nice to have, but it's not always the best choice.

Steven V. Chantler is a personal and business financial planner with IDS Financial Services Inc. of New Castle.

Christiana Hilton cited

The Christiana Hilton Inn has been awarded the American Automobile Association's prestigious Four Diamond Award for the second year in a row.

The award is given just 1,037 of 19,500 approved hotels in the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

The Hotel DuPont in Wilmington also earned the Four Diamond Award.

"Each property must go through a rigorous inspection before it can receive AAA's award for lodging excellence," according to William A. Scarow, AAA managing director of national travel. "Travelers can be assured that a Four Diamond rating guarantees luxury accommodations and high guest satisfaction, including staff that is dedicated to quality service." Under the AAA rating system, a staff of full-time professional field representatives visits establishments at least once annually without notification to conduct a thorough inspection and evaluation. Properties that qualify receive a rating between one and five "diamonds."

"Diamond ratings help travelers select an accommodation that best meets their travel needs and budget requirements," Scarow said.

Delmarva pools its resources

In their first joint marketing venture, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia have banded together for a special "Tastes of the Chesapeake" product fair to be held April 8-10 in Puerto Rico.

The three states, which make up the Delmarva Peninsula, will promote locally grown and manufactured food products during the 17th annual Food and Equipment Trade Expo in San Juan.

The Delmarva contingent has reserved four booth spaces which will feature two companies from each state, according to Bob Smallwood, export specialist for the Delaware Development Office.

Smallwood said the states hope to offer diverse products at the show. No one item will be emphasized.

A few Delaware companies already export canned vegetables, sunflower seeds, pigeon corn, sorghum, cabbage and potatoes to Puerto Rico and Smallwood said he expects sales of sweet corn and Christmas trees in the future.

He hopes the tri-state marketing effort will mean even more exporting opportunities for Delaware producers, noting that Puerto Rico and surrounding islands represent a $4.2 billion market for agricultural and food products annually.

"Elvis" creates quite a stir as he tours Newark's Main Street.

Elvis lives!

... thanks to the pelvis-snapping efforts of Marcel Forestieri

by Nancy Turner

Marcel Forestieri, alias "Little El," has mutton-chop sideburns, a rhinestone suit, and over a decade of Elvis impersonation experience. But when he faces a crowd of cheering fans, he is a performer in his own right.

As an actor, Forestieri has appeared on Broadway and in major roles with the Wilmington Drama League, like that of Pharaoh in "Joseph and His Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat."

Forestieri's performing career began at William Penn High School in 1971, when he and friend Chip Clifton put together a variety impersonation show called "Canned Comedy" during their senior year.

His "illusion" of Elvis became a hit and gradually evolved into an Elvis tribute.

After high school, Forestieri took the stage name of "Little El" and made his mark on the Eastern entertainment circuit, dozens of television talk shows and commercials.

Little El impersonates all three of Elvis' performing styles: the rockabilly '50s, the mellow movie making '60s, and the semi-operatic '70s.

His shows follow the same format as Elvis' live concert albums, opening with "2001 Space Odyssey" and closing with "Can't Help Falling in Love."

Of course, "Hound Dog," "Love Me Tender," "Jail House Rock," "Blue Suede Shoes," "It's Now or Never," and "Are You Lonesome Tonight?" are all somewhere in between.

Little El says that if you compare the lifestyles of Elvis Presley and Marcel Forestieri concerning things like eating peanut butter and drugs, there are no similarities.

But when he gives "Mama" the credit for making his studded jumpsuits and gives God the glory for his career, it's worth a second glance.

When Little El performs, he says he is "fed" by energy from the audience. Can he imagine how Elvis might have felt during a performance?

He could a few years ago at a performance in Norfolk, Va.

"It was at the end of the show," said Little El.

"Something just snapped in the audience. It may have been about 50, but from where I was standing, it looked like hundreds of women rushed the stage. A woman jumped up on the stage and grabbed me.

"I was shocked and tried to push her away, but she slid down and latched onto my leg. She was in the process of pulling me down off the stage when some of my people grabbed me from behind. For a while it was like a tug of war. I know if they hadn't helped me, I would have gone off the edge of the stage, maybe hit my head or who knows what? I was really scared.

"I'm glad I can change my appearance and go out shopping in a mall," he said with relief.

Waning Elvis hysteria picked up momentum after "the King's" death on August 16, 1975, as surfacing rumors of his drug and alcohol abuse fueled a rash of articles in gossip tabloids and network television specials.

By 1980, it appeared that the King's legendary rock 'n' roll fame was being kept alive by only his most vivid fans.

"In the past year, I think it has taken on the life it should have taken

AT A GLANCE

□ Little El will perform an "Elvis Lives!" concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 1 in the auditorium of Glasgow High School. The concert is sponsored by the Newark Symphony Society. Tickets cost $10 and are available at Books and News Plus stores in the Newark Shopping Center and at 756 Chestnut Hill Rd., and at the Newark Newsstand. In addition, he can be heard through the concert date on an Elvis Hotline. Telephone 368-2248.

on," said Little El. "Elvis is now a memory and has become an icon like Marilyn Monroe or John F. Kennedy. Even though some people are saying that he is still alive, which is crazy, he is now the legend that he should be.

"I'm glad we aren't dwelling on the drugs and horrible things anymore. They weren't right, but they were only a small part of the story and now they are over.

"Now we are just trying to remember him for his contribution to our musical heritage.

"Our kids, some of whom had not even been born when Elvis died, are discovering Elvis all over again and appreciating his music and realizing what effect he had on what they are listening to today. Back in his time, he was more of a rebel than anyone they are listening to now."

Little El will leave for California this month to relaunch his career, but before he goes, the Newark Symphony Society is sponsoring a "send-off" performance of "Elvis Lives" on April 1 at Glasgow High School.

Shirley Tarrant, who spearheaded the idea, expects a sell-out of the 1,166 seats in the Glasgow High School auditorium.

Language has me seeing red

Have you ever thought about what a wonderful language we speak? Surely no other language gives a writer so many synonyms for red. My Roget's International Thesaurus, Fourth Edition, Completely Revised and Redesignated, has designated more than 50 ranging from Andrianople red to wine red with stops at cardinal, lobster, maroon, poppy, puce, and strawberry.

When you add the 36 synonyms for pink — starting at amaranth and ending at tea rose — we're talking major leagues in descriptive language. If you want to talk world series creativity in color names, my vote goes to blue, which includes not only the traditional sky blue, baby blue and robin's-egg blue, but also smalt blue, woad blue, zaffer blue, lacmoid blue, trypan blue, glaucous blue, Leitch's blue and Pampadour green.

You read it right. Pampadour green is listed under blue.

Don't ask me to explain. Ask Madam Pampadour. You probably won't get a very satisfactory answer. French is her native tongue, and she's been dead for a couple of centuries.

The shades of blue that I find most intriguing are named "new blue," "old blue" and "navy, navy blue." (No, that's not a typo, it's really called "navy, navy blue.") I can't begin to guess what new blue and old blue look like, unless the former is shiny and the latter is dull from use. Navy, navy blue, on the other hand, raises some interesting questions. Is it a truer, more loyal blue than naval blue? Is a marine, navy blue? Is navy, navy blue bluer or more naval than regular navy blue? Which one does the U.S. Navy sanction? And why?

Having visited the briny blue, let's sail into the wild blue yonder. Blue sky laws protect gullible investors from their own greediness. Staying in the airy world of finance, blue chips aren't found only in

For Italians, Easter meal centers on lamb, loaves

During Holy Week, some persons prepare for Easter by fasting. Other choose to bake bread.

Many Old World families preserve the culinary traditions of the immigrant forefathers, passing them on to their own children. That is the case with Norma DiMondi of New Castle, who is passing the Italian American Easter traditions on to her daughter, Barbara Lewis.

The Saturday before Easter, many Italian women still make the traditional Pane di Pasque, or Easter bread, and DiMondi is no exception.

"In years gone by, the Italians here and in Wilmington all lived in a certain section of town," said DiMondi. "The Saturday before Easter, the priest would come to your home and bless your house and Easter bread.

"It would be a disgrace not to have the bread baked. We would be on the phone calling each other, asking 'How's it going? Did it raise?' "

FOODSTYLE

Nancy Turner

The biggest and most beautiful loaf would have the honored position in the center of the Easter table.

"After the older people go to the 6 o'clock sunrise Mass and the children go at 8, we would have the big meal at about 10 or 11, which is actually more like a big breakfast," DiMondi said.

"We would have the boiled eggs on the table," added her daughter. "My grandfather would make a contest with the children out of hitting the tips of each other's hard boiled eggs together to see which one was the hardest. The winner got to eat the cracked egg.

"Naturally, there were secrets to make the eggs harder, but we didn't win so we didn't know any," said Lewis, who is fairly sure that vinegar dye made the shells weak.

"I can still see my grandfather standing in the doorway wearing a little bow tie, white shirt and black and white shoes, waiting for us to get home from church to play the game."

Nowadays, about 18 family members gather at the DiMondi-Lewis Easter table.

"The older children, especially the girls, help in the kitchen so they will know how to cook the foods later," said DiMondi.

The recipes she uses are from her grandmother, Emelio Carabella, a famous cook who lived in the Abruzzi region of Italy. "Anybody who isn't proud of where they came from and doesn't keep the traditions really loses something," she said.

Amy Boyd will perform with the Newark Symphony Chamber Orchestra.

Chamber concert April 1

The Newark Symphony Chamber Orchestra will present its fourth concert of the season at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 1 at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Park Place and South College Avenue.

The featured work will be Benjamin Britten's song-cycle on nocturnal themes, "Serenade for Tenor, Horn and Strings." Soloists are Alan Cohn and Amy Boyd.

Cohn, a tenor, is cantor at Philadelphia's Society Hill Synagogue and voice instructor at Cabrini College.

Boyd, of Nottingham Green, is hornist with the Devon Brass Quintet and the Delaware Horn Ensemble. She will perform on both the modern French horn and a copy of a valveless Raoux natural horn circa 1830.

Conductor Slatkin merits RCA contract

I wouldn't like being branded "parochial," "ultra-nationalistic" or the like. More than that, I never want to do anything to earn such appellations. Having gotten that out of the way, I hasten to add that I am always pleased to learn that an American conductor or an American orchestra has merited an international recording contract!

Well, I am doubly happy because both have happened. Adding to my happiness is the fact that the company that signed has not only an American beginning, but one closely associated with Delaware and nearby Camden, New Jersey.

The conductor is Leonard Slatkin. The orchestra is the St. Louis Symphony. The company is RCA Victor Red Seal.

Under the terms of his exclusive contract Slatkin will record 40 albums over the next five years. Thirty of the recordings will be made with the St. Louis Symphony, of which he is music director, and the remaining with orchestras of his choice including the Bayerischer Rundfunk, the London Philharmonic and the Philharmonia Orchestra.

At the same time the St. Louis Orchestra was signed to return to RCA Red Seal, an association which began over 60 years ago. They will once again record exclusively for RCA.

Leonard Slatkin, who has thrilled audiences at our own Grand Opera House, is well known for his interpretations of a wide ranging repertoire. According to Michael Emmerson, president of BMG Classics, parent company of RCA Victor Red Seal and the man who engineered the deal, works to be recorded by the American conductor and the American orchestra include: the complete symphonies, overtures and ballets of Tchaikovsky; Franck's Symphony in D minor; Mahler's Symphonies Nos. 3, 4 and 5; Orff's "Carmina Burana"; "Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C minor, Op. 78; Schubert's Symphony No. 9 in C Major, D.944; Shostakovich's Symphonies Nos. 1, 6, 8, 9 and 11; Richard Strauss' "Macbeth" and "Ein Heldenleben"; Samuel Barber's Symphony No. 1, Op. 9 and Concerto of Piano and Orchestra, Op. 38, with soloist John Browning, for whom the work was written.

In addition, two albums of contemporary American music will be recorded each year. An all Copeland album to feature his Symphony No. 3 and "Music for a Great City" and an all Piston album to include his Symphony No. 6 and "The Incredible Flutist" are the first two CDs planned.

Other American repertoire to be recorded over the next five years will include: an all Gould album; three symphonies of William Schuman, Roy Harris and Charles Ives and a CD with music celebrating "Down East," Piston's "Three New England Sketches," Ives' "Three Places in New England" and Schuman's "New England Tryptych." There will also be American film scores and works by Gian Carlo Menotti, Elliott Carter, Roger Sessions and John Corigliano.

For those of you not familiar with Leonard Slatkin, he was born into a musical family in Los Angeles. His father, conductor and violinist Felix Slatkin, and his mother, cellist Eleanor Aller, were both members of the Hollywood String Quartet. As a young man Leonard studied several instruments, excelling in piano.

He began studying conducting with his father and took advanced work with Walter American conductor Leonard Slatkin, shown directing the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, has just been signed to an exclusive international recording contract by RCA Victor Red Seal.

Susskind at Aspen and Jean Morel at Juilliard.

He made his debut in Carnegie Hall at the age of 22. His American career took him to the best orchestras we have and in 1974 his international career was launched with his debut conducting the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

His opera recordings have been superior and I prize the few Wagner recordings he has made which are in my collection.

A Tip of The Toman Topper to Mr. Slatkin and the St. Louis Symphony for earning the contract and to Mr. Emmerson for offering the entire world a chance to hear them. We are all the richer!

• Musical theater star Patti LuPone will perform her one-woman show during the Delaware Theatre Company's annual benefit on May 13. LuPone ushered in the 1980s in the title role of "Evita," for which she won a Tony Award, and she is wrapping up the decade as the audacious vamp Reno Sweeney in "Anything Goes." ELVIS

"As involved as I am in community organizations, I find myself always looking for ways to raise money," said Tarrant. "About a year ago, I saw an article in the newspaper about Little El, but I never realized that this would turn out to be a local boy send-off."

"Marcel's whole show is dedicated to celebrating Elvis as a talent and his contribution to the music."

Tarrant, who just a few years ago played a major role in bringing Christiana Hospital to our area and more recently, the Newark Girls Club facility, said, "I was determined to get this show together even if I had to sponsor this thing myself."

"It's a chance for some real fun for the community," she said. "We have the big Memorial Parade and a Halloween Parade and various organizations do things in their own way, but not too many that draw the community together for one-time fun evenings like this."

"I wasn't a big Elvis fan with posters and tee-shirts like some people, but I cried the day he died."

"I'll be right up front at the show and who knows, maybe he'll throw a scarf my way."

Admission to "Elvis Lives" is $10 and tickets are available at Books & News Plus on Chestnut Hill Rd. and in Newark Shopping Center and at Newark Newstand on Main Street.

Whose Talking To Your Shoes?

Did you know that the average person buys shoes every three months? We buy shoes to coordinate with our clothes - sports, business, dress. Women need high heels, low heels, sports shoes, etc. Men need shoes for work, shoes for play and boots for outdoors, etc. This is a lot of shoes.

But when you meet a person, the first thing you look at is their face. And one of the first things you will notice, if they wear them, is their eyeglasses. How is it that with all our different attire, many people still have one pair of eyeglasses that they wear with everything!

Never mind that one pair is impractical from the stand point that if you lose or break them, it's inconvenient. A spare pair for back up just makes good sense.

Is cost a reason for not having more than one pair of eyewear? It's been my experience that quality shoes are not cheap. Nor are other fine accessories, like jewelry or watches. Considering that you may need to wear your eyewear 365 days per year, several pairs is a good investment.

If you appearance is important, why not coordinate your eyewear wardrobe just like your clothing and shoes. After all, they ain't nobody talking to your feet!

CHURCHES

CWU addresses infant mortality

Church Women United will hold a regional assembly Saturday, April 8 at Newark's Ebenezer United Methodist Church with the theme, "Baby's Future: Our Religious Mission."

Christa Brinker of the March of Dimes, which has been active in the Southern Governors Project on Infant Mortality, will be the keynote speaker.

CWU, in its effort to attack root causes of poverty, is calling attention to the high infant mortality rates in Delaware and Maryland.

These rates affect not only women and children but all citizens, a CWU spokesman said.

"The Ribbon Stops Here," a recently-released videotape chronicling the 1985 Peace Ribbon March in Washington, D.C. will be shown.

The march was an attempt to convince world leaders to work towards peace.

Persons attending the assembly may bring health kits, consisting of a wash cloth, bar of soap, toothbrush, toothpaste and comb wrapped in a bath towel and tied with a pair of shoelaces. The kits will be distributed to farm workers by the Delmarva Rural Ministries.

Also, items from the Grace United Methodist Church International Gift Shop and UNICEF will be available for purchase.

There will be a luncheon, and cost is $7. Deadline for reservations is Friday, March 31. Checks should be made payable to CWU and sent to Margaret Showalter, 614 New York Ave., Claymont, DE 19703.

Registration for the assembly only is $2, payable at the door.

Worshippers begin the Way of the Cross walk.

Christians follow Jesus' footsteps

The three-hour Way of the Cross walk, which brings Newark area Christians together in remembrance of Jesus Christ's walk and death at Golgotha, will be held tomorrow.

The walk will begin at noon Good Friday, March 24, at White Clay Creek Presbyterian Church on Polly Drummond Hill Road. It is sponsored by the Pike Creek Christian Coalition.

Following words of welcome and the sharing of the first station, worshippers will move from the White Clay sanctuary and begin their public display and witness.

"The second station reminds worshippers of the point where Jesus was forced to carry his own cross," said the Rev. Thomas Donachie, one of the organizers of the walk. "At this point we offer the worshippers the opportunity to share in carrying an eight-foot wooden beam cross that will lead the procession."

It is expected about 200 people will join the walk, which will wind through the Polly Drummond and Linden Hill areas with brief stops midway up Polly Drummond Hill, at the entrance to Drummond Hill, at Etta J. Wilson Elementary School and at the Drummond Hill Pool playground.

About 1:45, walkers will reach the Parish of the Resurrection and upon leaving will pause to remember when Jesus was nailed to the cross.

The walk conclude with services about 2:40 p.m. at Skyline United Methodist Church.

Helping senior citizens 'Stay Well'

YWCA, Newark Senior Center sponsor health promotion program

A case in point. An elderly gentleman accompanied by his daughter and his trusty cane entered a restaurant and were seated in a booth. A waitress took the daughter's order and then looking at the old gentleman's cane and white hair, turned to the daughter and asked, "And what will he have?" This perception, often mistaken, that seniors are not self-sufficient is just one of the many reasons why older adults tend to become disconsolate and withdraw from society.

Another reason is loneliness. Nowadays, grown children are encouraged to be independent and are often widely dispersed geographically. Seniors, even after the loss of a spouse, do not want to be dependent on their children. Loss of friends through death also contribute to loneliness.

A feeling of uselessness also is depressing. A sudden change from active employment to a life without demands can be disconcerting. The aging process is also accompanied by ailments and disabilities that make the old rocking chair feel good. Fears, such as loss of purchasing power, of limited income, inadequacy of social security, nuclear proliferation, terrorism, and crime in the streets, mitigate against a self-sufficient lifestyle.

Understanding the needs of older adults, Susan Schmitt, fitness director of the Newark YWCA, in conjunction with the Newark Senior Center, has developed a health promotion program for seniors called Y-Stay Well.

The program will be conducted by Elizabeth Bretera and will comprise four modules covering four themes that have been identified through research as the pillars, the basic necessities of health promotion: stress management, physical fitness, nutrition, personal and community self-help.

These modules are designed to build on the positive health and living habits of participants, as well as to generate motivation, support, and tools for choosing and maintaining individually healthier lifestyles.

This program is a pilot program. After its completion, an evaluation will be made to determine whether additional programs of this nature should be offered at the Newark Senior Center in the future and whether it should be expanded to other Senior Centers.

The program is being offered 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. Tuesdays, April 4, 11, 18 and 25. Cost is $2 per session. Class size is limited to 25 members. Contact Eileen at 737-2336.

This pilot program is an extension of the many health services already available at the Newark Senior Center. Free tests are available on a regular schedule for cholesterol, hearing loss, eye problems, and diabetes. As well, influenza and pneumonia shots are given.

Also Bend and Stretch exercises and aerobics, Fitness Over 60, are available on a weekly basis. A continuum of health related programs are presented for the benefit of the membership.

The retirement years can be considered an opportunity to benefit from all the facilities available to live a full and rewarding life.

Fee is $15 for city residents, $18 for those who live outside city limits.

• Bowling lessons - A certified instructor will teach bowling methods and proper scoring during sessions 1-3 p.m. Saturdays, April 8-29 at Brunswick Blue Hen Lanes in the Newark Shopping Center. Fee is $15 for city residents, $18 for those who live outside city limits.

• Youth and adult tennis lessons - Four-week sessions will be held Mondays and Wednesdays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, or Saturdays at Newark parks. Sessions begin the week of April 3. The department uses the National Tennis Rating Program to provide a simple, initial self-placement method of grouping individuals of similar ability for lessons.

• Cheerleading - Gina Little will teach the fundamentals of cheerleading 10:45-11:45 a.m. Saturdays, April 8 to May 13 at Downes Elementary.

are in for a surprise. "Lamp is our main staple on Easter," said DiMondi. "I never make anything that is very spicy. Real Italian food is not spicy, not even the sauce for spaghetti. We use a little basil, rosemary and white wine for the meat. I always say that people who use heavy spices or a lot of 'hot' in Italian food don't know how to cook. If you put too much hot pepper in a dish, you can't taste the dish."

This year, the family and their guests will enjoy aromatic agnello, cacio e uova or "lamb stew" with a light white wine or Zinfandel.

They'll love the mazzarelle, a delicious combination of marinated liver and veal that is wrapped in romaine lettuce along with a fresh bouquet of garlic leaves, parsley and scallions.

And mama mia, to think there are some people who have never had a slice of DiMondi's smooth ricotta pie.

The once common Italian custom of women not sitting down at the table during the meal is dying out. However, many modern hostesses, including DiMondi and Lewis, still prefer to stand in the kitchen while their guests eat so they can wait on them more easily. They still believe it is ungracious if one of their guests must leave the table to fetch so much as a glass of water.

If the conversation is good, and it usually is, Easter dinner

AT A GLANCE: EASTER BREAD

Pane di Pasqua, or Easter bread, is an Italian American favorite. Here is the recipe of Norma DiMondi:

□ Ingredients: Six eggs; one package yeast dissolved in one-third cup water; three-quarter cup lukewarm milk; one cup sugar; three tablespoons each of spry and butter and six tablespoons of oil, combined; one-half bottle lemon flavoring; one-half bottle anisette; juice of one orange; seven and one-half cups of flour.

□ Dissolve yeast in water and add milk. Sift in flour and a pinch of salt and set aside, lightly covered, in a large warmed bowl. In a separate bowl, beat eggs, sugar, oil mixture, flavorings and orange juice.

□ Combine the two mixtures and knead on a floured board until dough is smooth and no longer sticky. Place in a bowl or on a pan greased with oil. Dough must double in size.

□ Punch dough down and knead again. Place in cooking pans greased with spry. The dough must rise again in pans until it doubles in size.

□ Bake one hour. First fifteen minutes at 350 degrees, last 45 minutes at 300 degrees. Glaze with egg yolk.

may last three hours.

"Easter is very important," said DiMondi, "but it's not all food. I've tried to instill in my children that Easter is not just the cooking or what you're eating. It's the tradition of being together, of giving."

poker, they also belong in the stock portfolios of people who like to label themselves as blue bloods.

Question: Can blue bloods be red-blooded patriots?

Answer: Only if they are true blue and not Pompadour green.

My sources tell me that these same blue bloods are seen in bluegrass music but rooting for the winner of the blue ribbon at the Kentucky Derby. They are also found all year in the Blue Book which determines who is "in" and who isn't.

Blue stockings are not only the pantyhose I wear with my gentian blue skirt, they are pedantic women. Like bluenoses who are not to be confused with people who have been outside too long in a blizzard blue stockings wouldn't be caught dead at blue movies. Both, no doubt, would blue pencil blue language.

My true blue friends are worth their weight in gold, which has eight synonyms ranging from aureate to xanthous.

The blue devils aren't a fearsome football team. They are what attack you after you've seen too many pink elephants. The blue grimlies, on the other hand, are what overwhelm you after six weeks of cold, wet, grey, dull, rainy February weather.

Blue laws, according to Patrice who is an amateur historian, were passed by men who thought that women ought to be able to get everything done during the week so that Sunday could be a day for women to appreciate the perfection of the opposite sex.

A hospital emergency team may call a code blue when children eat blue berries that aren't blueberries. Art historians and feminists disagree on the definition of a blue period: the former relate it to Picasso and the latter to PMS.

Finally there is the blue funk which is what my editor, he of the paisley polyester ties, will be in if I don't end this column.
