

High School Students Offered Careers Day at UD Ag College

Ass't Dean Ralph Barwick Announces Saturday Events For Careers Day Offered By College Of Agricultural Sciences At University Of Delaware This Saturday

"Problem Solving Through Science" is the theme of Careers Day this Saturday, at Agricultural Hall in Newark. Dr. Ralph P. Barwick, assistant dean of the University of Delaware college of agricultural sciences, announced that the program which starts at 9:15 a.m., is to supply information to high school students interested in pursuing careers in agribusiness. Departmental exhibits and demonstrations will illustrate a wide range of career opportunities available.

Application of science to production of food is only one of the goals of those involved in agriculture, Barwick added. The broad field of agribusiness offers opportunity in these areas of research, development, manufacture and sale of many commodities.

"And you don't have to live on a farm, or even near one, to have a rewarding career in one of these fields," Barwick continued.

"The business of agriculture is the largest single industrial complex in America today and agriculturally oriented graduates are in demand."

Available
Courses offered at the college of agricultural sciences are designed to provide training needed to take advantage of this demand. Students can concentrate on agricultural engineering, plant and animal science, entomology, ecology, soils, economics, communications or education.

Careers Day is aimed especially at high school juniors and seniors, but other high school students are welcome.

High school administrators, counselors, science teachers, agriculture teachers and parents also are invited.

Visitors will have the chance to tour college facilities and to discuss admission, curriculum, financial aid and career and employment opportunities with university staff members at an informal luncheon. Those interested in attending Careers Day, but haven't registered, may contact Barwick at the college.

Pipeline Proposed Instead Of Dam For Creek Valley

White Clay Watershed Group Hears Of Plans To Avoid Damming Creek

A pipeline would have advantages over the proposed White Clay Reservoir, members of the White Clay Watershed Association were told last Thursday night.

Rep. Benjamin Reynolds, who represents Southern Chester County in the Pennsylvania Legislature, told the association's annual meeting attended by 50 persons, that the Mason-Dixon pipeline proposal has a chance of being adopted by the Mason-Dixon Task Force, which includes New Castle County, six Pennsylvania counties, and Cecil County, Md.

A private piping firm, Reynolds said, has a complete computer study on the proposal for a pipeline connecting the Susquehanna and Schuylkill rivers and able to handle up to 200-million gallons of water a day.

In terms of Delaware, Reynolds said, water could be pumped from the pipeline into the White Clay and the Brandywine and then be stored at Hoopes Reservoir and in a smaller reservoir than the one proposed on White Clay Creek.

Reynolds warned that a 1985 interim regional open space plan drawn by the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission shows a proposed regional park in the White Clay Creek Valley area next to the Delaware line.

Of even greater concern, Reynolds said, is that there are only 30 days in which to file any protest. He said such a park not only would bring a massive influx into the area but would be a national park and therefore there would be no local determination about how it would be developed.

Meanwhile, the attorney general's office has ruled that a referendum does not have to be held for New Castle County Council to build the proposed White Clay Creek Reservoir.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Brian P. Murphy wrote the brief opinion at the request of Rep. John G. S. Billingsley (R-Newark) who says he is neither for nor against the proposed dam but thinks all avenues toward future water resources should be explored.

"Pink Elephants" Win First Prize In Float Parade

It was a perfect night for a parade, and there was a nip in the air — but not enough to keep the young ghosts, witches, pumpkins, Snoopies and all other Halloween characters from showing up for the Newark parade.

The Pink Elephants, which won the first place trophy for floats was entered by Epsilon Hemera Tri-Hi-Y; second place was awarded to Omega Chi Tri-Hi-Y for the "Which Witch is Which" float, and third place went to Omicron's "Three Little Pigs."

The city parks and recreation department wishes to thank the Main Street and Newark Shopping Center business establishments for providing windows used by junior and senior students for window painting; Eagle Furniture for displaying pumpkins; VFW Post 475 for providing cider for refreshments.

"Thanks to the American Legion, Newark Jaycees, Inter-Fraternity Council, Newark Civic Association, Aetna Hose, Hook & Ladder Co., White Clay and Newark Kiwanis Clubs, Business and Professional Women's Club, the Newark High Band Boosters, and to individuals who helped with special services and those who judged the floats," Hall added.

"The Newark police and the parks and recreation maintenance departments deserve special thanks for their cooperation and assistance," Hall concluded.

Increased Sewer, Water Rates Proposed with Annual Budget

Newark City Council Reviews Proposed 1970 Budget For $4,225,000 With Five-Cent Property Tax Slice; Increased Sewer, Water Rates Explained By Martin

In the first of three scheduled meetings on the municipal budget of $4,225,000 presented for the coming year by City Manager Edward R. Stiff with a recommended five-cent per $100 reduction in the property tax rate, Newark City Council last Tuesday night received a report from Finance Director Albert K. Martin, recommending a 50 per cent increase in sewer service charges, and an eight per cent rise in water rates for all but large consumers — and they may be subject to a 25 per cent increase.

Even with proposed increases, Martin said the average Newark homeowner would still pay less for sewer and water service than the homeowner in adjacent New Castle County.

A table accompanying the water report shows that in-town water rates are less than those of the Artesian, Delaware and New Castle County Water companies.

According to Martin, the homeowner also would pay two cents a quarter less for sewage collection, but industrial users would pay about one cent more per 1,000 gallons.

Martin said a study showed that the city was charging its large industrial users less for sewer service than the county was charging the city.

Total Package
The total package includes increased utility rates coupled with decrease in the property tax from 65 to 60 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Of key concern was that some industries in the city do not buy electricity or water from the city but would benefit from the property tax decrease. Martin said that the increase in sewer rates would more than make up for the loss.

Councilman John H. Fasnacht, urged a study of how the city could get electricity revenue from all industries in the city limits.

Major Revenue
Electricity sales are the major source of the city's revenue, with $2.3-million anticipated for 1970. Former Penn football captain and halfback, B. Gary Scott, son of local merchant Ben Scott, was elected president of the Wilmington board.

Gallagher was toastmaster at the banquet honoring Norton S. Fowler, retiring executive secretary of the Greater Wilmington Board of Realtors.

Greater Influence Cited State Need From U.D. Faculty

The University of Delaware faculty should have more influence on the course of history in Delaware, Gov. Russell W. Peterson said in speaking recently to members of the university chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Greater involvement of the university in solving state problems is part of his "state community design," the governor said.

"I realize your prime job is teaching at the university," Peterson said, "but as citizens of the community you have an obligation and duty to bring your skills and creativity and knowledge to bear in the off-campus community."

The governor spoke at the AAUP chapter's annual faculty-trustee banquet at the Hotel DuPont.

He praised community design proposed for the university by President E. A. Trabant.

The governor said Dr. Trabant "is off to an excellent start and has provided enlightened leadership which has been stimulating and challenging not only to the university family, but to the community in general and certainly to the governor's office."

New Way To Play "Post Office"

IF YOUR teenagers are typical members of this outspoken generation, you can help channel their vocal energies and, at the same time, assure them an entertaining, rewarding evening.

A November "Mail In," during which teenagers write letters to the editor, or to their congressman, or to servicemen overseas, is certain to pique conversation. Invite responsible teens to a makeshift podium to "sell" their opinions to their peers and watch a mature, if youthful, generation break into discussion.

To trigger discussion, have several issues of current newspapers and magazines available.

While the teens are busy with the issues, you can fill the generation gap with an "In" dinner: fish and chips wrapped in newspapers (British, if possible or otherwise foreign), hot perked coffee topped with whipped cream, and plenty of soft drinks and dips. Canceled stamps glued onto a white paper tablecloth and red-white-blue napkins make an ideal setting for "Mail In" refreshments.

Decorate your front door with a homemade sign: "U.S. Post Office, Smith Annex." Or wrap the door in white butcher paper, affix a giant stamp and appropriate postage to create a makeshift post office.

A HIGH-SPRITED TRIO is earth bound for the holidays. The three angel sisters look like they just flew in from heavenly realms for a friendly visit. They expect to nestle on the fragrant green branches of your tree for the duration of the Christmas festivities.

Ethereal Ornaments

Each one is dressed in the latest see-through fashion. The outfit would not be complete without a pair of lacy wings and a golden halo. These ethereal tree trims are crocheted of cotton yarn and starched into angelic shape.

A Multitude of Angels

The angels can be made in three sizes: 4, 6, and 9 inches high. Manufacture a multitude to watch over your tree. A set of three angel decorations is a lovely pre-Christmas gift for someone you like. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Needlework Editor of this newspaper along with your request for Leaflet PC 9465.

TITLE

Using written records to evidence real estate conveyance is a practice dating back to ancient times. Archaeological findings uncovered such records on clay tiles used in the time of King Hammurabi of Babylon, who reigned around 1800 B.C.

Today, records of conveyance and other matters affecting real estate are kept in various public offices — such as those of the recorder or register of deeds and clerks of courts. A search of title and other records, made by a title company, before you complete a real estate purchase, can alert you to land title defects that may threaten the security of your investment in real property.

Thomas Cooper Auxiliary Offers VA Hospital Bingo
The Thomas Cooper Auxiliary of the VFW J. Allison O'Daniel Post 475 held its monthly bingo party for 39 patients at the VA Hospital in Elsmere last Thursday.

Hospital Chairman Donna Vivod, Pat Goodchild, Marge Charnick, Gladys Machulski and Pat Breeding provided gifts and served refreshments, Dorothy Foster reports.

The little boy was giving his teacher a hard time. "If several sheep are a flock, and several are a herd, what would you call several camels?"

"A carton."

If you are the first to submit a question which Dr. Quizmee, our information specialist, answers in this column, we will present to you, free, the complete, illustrated, 25-volume set of Funk & Wagnall's Standard Reference Encyclopedia. Mail your questions to Dr. Quizmee in care of this newspaper.

This week's prizes of encyclopedia sets were won by: Jimmy Matt who asked: "How can I save myself if, while alone, I find myself caught in quicksand?"

First, fall backward and get rid of anything you're carrying. Then stretch your arms out at right angles to the body. Now you can yell for help. If none comes, pull each leg free, one at a time. This may take hours. When both legs are free, roll slowly towards the nearest firm ground.

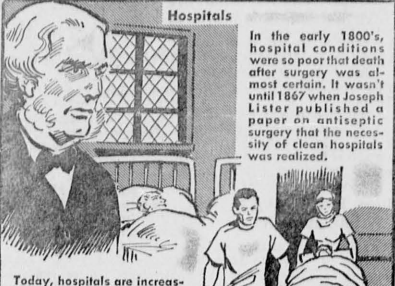

Kathy Racine for asking: "What are the ten most popular breeds of dogs?"

Latest registration with the American Kennel Club are as follows: Poodles—255,862; German Shepherds—107,936; Beagles—61,568; Dachshunds—57,133; Chihuahuas—37,524; Pekingese—27,242; Miniature Schnauzers—26,001; Collies—24,325; Cocker Spaniels—18,525; and Basset Hounds—17,595.

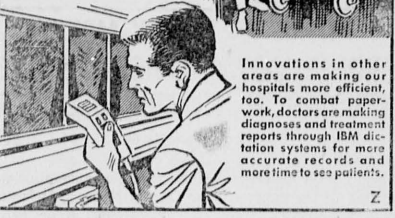

Kim Saiga whose question is: "At steel mills, molten steel is poured into ladles. What material is used in the ladles to prevent them from melting also?"

The outer shell of the ladle is made of ordinary structural steel, but the ladle is lined with several inches of refractory silica brick which can take the 2900 to 3000 degree Fahrenheit steel without damage.

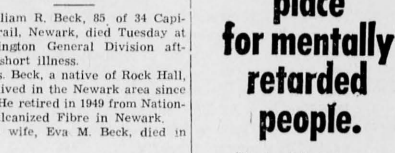

BEHIND THE SCENES

Hospitals
In the early 1800's, hospital conditions were so poor that death after surgery was almost certain. It wasn't until 1867 when Joseph Lister published a paper on antiseptic surgery that the necessity of clean hospitals was realized.

Today, hospitals are increasingly conscious of the importance of cleanliness. Some hospitals even have special sterilized rooms for certain patients with low resistance; when the patient leaves the room for tests, he's transported in a special sterilized plastic container.

Innovations in other areas are making our hospitals more efficient, too. To combat paperwork, doctors are making diagnoses and treatment reports through IBM dictation systems for more accurate records and more time to see patients.

You can lose it.
You can burn it.
You can tear it up.

We replace it.

Now, we don't suggest that you start taking U.S. Savings Bonds to parties to light your cigarettes. But if your Savings Bond is ever lost, stolen, mutilated or destroyed, all you have to do to have it replaced are these two things:

1. Notify the Bureau of the Public Debt, Division of Loans and Currency, 536 South Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois 60605. Send in the serial number, if you have it, along with information about where and when you bought it. And send whatever is left of your damaged Bond.

2. Then complete and return Form PD 1048

which the Treasury will be sending you.

We'll replace your Bond with a duplicate. Or with full payment, if you like. Because Savings Bonds are an investment in your country. And there's no safer investment than that.

Another thing. Savings Bonds are easy to buy, too. Just go to your bank. Or join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

THE U.S. ARMY RESERVE

STRICTLY FOR WOMEN

American women will use about 130 million dozen pairs of nylon stockings this year. Glamorous, fashion-designed and incredibly strong, this sheer hosiery will benefit greatly from special care. Hanes Hosiery, a leading manufacturer, offers these tips for prolonging the life of your nylons. To begin with, when a box is first opened, the paper band should be broken and stockings lifted out. Don't slide out a single pair, leaving the band intact.

When putting on nylons, gather stocking down to toes, with thumb and an index finger of both hands, and slip it over foot. Heel and toe must be in place as stocking is guided over instep. Draw stocking up gently, smoothing it evenly over calf, knee and thigh. Put garters over double-over part, or welt, never on sheer part of the nylon.

Watch for things that cause snags such as bureau drawers or desk legs with rough edges or old shoes with worn linings. Cigarette ashes can melt a hole or start a run. Rough hands with broken nails cause snags. So do sink drains with jagged edges, sink stoppers with rough spots, or curtain rods—used as clotheslines—that aren't smooth.

To remove hose, hold welt firmly and release garters. Gather stockings down to ankle; with thumbs inside, ease stocking off over heel and toes. Gently return the stockings to its original shape, keeping it right side up. Fold loosely. Store nylons in a separate storage box, or before washing, in an individual laundry bag.

Wash after each wearing in warm or cold water, soap or detergent. If hands are rough, use gloves. Swish suds through hose, rub foot part gently, rinse and squeeze. To dry, tuck towel under chin; hang hose in parallel position and roll them up. Remove hose, take heel in one hand, top in other and shake into shape. Hang over towel on shower rack.
