

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF
WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

In 1847, seventy-five years ago, Susan B. Anthony, in defiance of all conventions began lecturing. On the evening of November 9th of this year thirty thousand people paraded in New York to celebrate the winning of four more states for woman suffrage. The crowds, for the first time in the history of such affairs in America, were sympathetically interested and respectful at every point on the line of march. Into those seventy-five years of hard work and effort, often heroic, have been put the energies of thousands of earnest, high minded men and women. The convening of the National Woman Suffrage Association at Philadelphia from the 21st to the 26th of this month will mark the end of the old order of opposition and the beginning of the new. Of the old, hatred, lying and social ostracism were the weapons. The new form of opposition will come with gentle words, outward respect and coming devices to secure delay, diminish interest and neutralize effort.

When the little group around Susan B. Anthony began to protest the women of the State of New York owned neither their own bodies, their own children nor their own property. There was not a high school open to girls among the public institutions of the country. The factory owners worked women from dawn till dark and drove children to death by disease and overwork with no one making any serious protest. In some if not all the states, a man could will his children away from their mother and this was actually done. No woman was allowed to speak in public upon any subject. No woman was admitted to the colleges. No woman might be a physician unless she would practice without a college education. A few private institutions gave women a partial education but most of them merely gave a fashionable list of accomplishments. With possibly an occasional exception there was not a church, not a pulpit, outside the Quaker meeting houses, which was open to Miss Anthony and her fellow workers. Clergymen announced her meetings with scorn and abuse or refused to mention them. Every step of the way the suffrage workers, who have led in the work of abolishing black slavery, securing better laws for women and children, asking better laws regulating the conditions for wage-earning women, and demanding the ballot that women might not be taxed and exploited without representation, have found opposed to them great bodies of church and clergy, of social leaders and political managers. It has taken seventy-five years to make their demands respectable. It will take many more years to secure fair opportunity for the women of the nation.

In putting the end of the first great campaign of three-quarters of a century the help of certain groups of people should be recognized. First among the pioneers for justice were the Quakers. They recognized the right of both sexes to equal opportunity, in England in the days of persecution, long before they began to migrate. In New England they bore witness to it as a truth in the days when such testimony cost them their ears, their liberty and sometimes their lives. They continued it through the days of the Revolutionary War and they proved their faith by establishing some of the best schools in America for both sexes, supported by private means, in days when the rest of the population were satisfied with education for girls that included little besides reading and writing. The Shakers were equally advanced, though not so active in educational matters.

The Prohibition party has for many years, if not always, helped in the suffrage movement and the Socialist party has never failed to include a suffrage plank in its platforms. The Progressive party adopted it on its formation this year and though it did not come into being as a party early enough to make a long campaign for the cause, it has rendered substantial service. Only the Republican and the Democratic parties and a considerable body of clergy and church members now fail to endorse the suffrage movement. Wyoming gave woman the ballot when it was yet a territory, back in 1869. Twenty-four years later Colorado followed its example. Utah and Idaho then followed and Washington came next, with California falling into line last year. This year the workers hoped when they met in Philadelphia for their convention, that they might have one or two more states to rejoice over. They have won at this last election Oregon, Arizona, Kansas, and Michigan. Except Michigan every state which has been won has been one adjoining a state having woman suffrage. The example has been contagious. Each state west of Kansas, except Nevada, Montana and New Mexico, is in line. The cause received a set-back in one state, Wisconsin, this year, but it is merely temporary. Each state won is always held. Each state lost is that much more educated for the day when women shall be voters in it. The defeat in Wisconsin is discouraging but it was not unexpected. That state has a very strong liquor interest and they know that women are not favorable to saloons. It has a very large Scandinavian population and this, though the younger generation is as bright and as progressive as any in the world, has many preachers and many foreign born men who think the women should continue in an inferior position in state and society. The employing class which has use for women and children, is also large there and naturally uses its power to prevent the women from getting the ballot and making laws to keep working women from unsanitary conditions, night work, long hours and unsafe working places, and to protect the little children from enslavement.

With the tremendous impulse recently received woman suffrage, at last respectable, will soon be gaining the attention of the politicians of Delaware. For when the women are powerful enough to carry an amendment, or nearly carry it, if submitted to the voters of a state, they are powerful enough to defeat any particular politician they start to defeat, and politeness on the part of politicians becomes a necessity as well as a virtue. With the cause grown respectable the church opposition loses its greatest weapon and we may expect Delaware soon to be among the commonwealths that regard the mothers with respect and the daughters with approval. And, after a long time, when all other states have granted votes to the keepers of our homes who train our boys to vote, Maryland, the most northern state without a compulsory school attendance law, the land in politics it is always afternoon, the place of dignity in procedure and stupidity in reform, will at last be brought into line with enlightened commonwealths as to its treatment of women. Meanwhile the people who understand the forces of the political and industrial world may well rejoice, that ten states are now deemed from the old injustice to women, that more are on the way and that by seventy-five years of effort the first decisive battle has been won.

Governor Pennell's
Thanksgiving Proclamation

Governor Pennell has issued the following Thanksgiving day proclamation designating Thursday November 28th, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer.

We are nearing the close, of perhaps, the most prosperous year which the people of this nation have ever known; during which its bins and granaries have been filled to their utmost capacity, the business man has been eminently successful and the labor of the working man has been generously rewarded.

It is just and proper that all Christian people should consider the source from whence all this came and set apart a day on which to return thanks unto God for the peace and prosperity with which our country has been blessed.

Therefore, I, Simon S. Pennell, Governor of the State of Delaware, following the recommendation of the President of the United States, do designate Thursday, November 28 as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer, and do recommend that it be observed as such by the people of this state, and that special services be held in the churches of this state for that purpose.

In testimony, whereof, I, Simon S. Pennell, Governor of the State of Delaware, have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Great Seal to be affixed, at Dover, the fourteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and the year of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and thirty-seventh.

SIMON S. PENNELL,

By the Governor:

Charles H. Richards,

Secretary of State.

"Blessings star forth forever; but a curse is like a cloud—it passes."

"What is remote and difficult of success we are apt to overrate; what is really best for us lies within our reach, though often overlooked."

"Forever from the hand that takes One blessing from us, others fall; And soon or late, our Father makes His perfect recompense to all!"

"I once asked a distinguished artist what place he gave to labor in art. 'Labor,' he in effect said, 'is the beginning, the middle, and the end of art.' Turning then to another—'And you,' I inquired, 'what do you consider the great force in art?' 'Love,' he replied. In their two answers I found one truth."

"There are no empty victories in life; you who were not cross-features here below."

"Men think God is destroying them."

One Room School
Houses in Illinois

Labelling country school houses so that every citizen may know whether his school is up to the standard is the device of the Illinois state school authorities, according to information received at the United States Bureau of Education.

The schools are inspected as to grounds, building, furnishing, heating, ventilation, library, water supply, sanitation and qualifications of the teacher. If the essentials of a good school are found present a diploma is granted the district and a plate is placed above the door of the school house designating it as a "Standard School." Upon fulfillment of certain further requirements a higher diploma will be issued and the plate will read "Superior School."

Already 657 of the 10,522 one-room school houses in Illinois have earned the right to be called standard schools and to display the plate accordingly.

This interesting device is part of a vigorous campaign waged by the state of Illinois in behalf of rural schools. Two experts on rural education, U. J. Hoffman and W. S. Booth, under the direction of Hon. F. G. Blair, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, are devoting their entire time to the country and village schools.

Illinois does not merely ask that the schools be brought up to standard; the state tells how it can be done. In a bulletin sent to every teacher in the state the requirements for a standard school are set forth. Among the specifications are: A simple playground; good approaches to the school; convenient fuel houses; the building, sound, in good repair, and painted; improved heating arrangements—a jacketed stove in the corner of the room instead of an unprotected stove in the center; floor and interior of building clean and tidy; suitable desks for children of all ages properly placed; a good collection of juvenile books, maps and dictionaries; a sanitary water supply; the school well organized with regular attendance and at least seven months schooling every year; the teacher must have not less than a high school education, receive a salary of at least $300 per annum, and be ranked by the county superintendent as a good or superior teacher.

The more ambitious districts, aspiring to the "superior" diplomas, will have to meet the following additional requirements: A play ground of at least one-half an acre, level, covered with good grass, and provided with trees and shrubs; sanitary drinking appliances; separate cloak rooms for boys and girls; room lighted from one side or from one side and rear; adjustable windows fitted with good shades; heat provided by basement or room furnace, with proper arrangements for removal of bad air and admission of pure air; at least eighty library books, ten suitable for each grade; two good pictures on the wall; provision for instruction in agriculture, manual training, and domestic arts; the teacher to be a high school graduate with normal school training and to receive at least $480 per annum; the work outlined in the State course of study to be well done.

The Illinois authorities do not expect to see this movement for betterment of the one-room schools interfere in any way with the natural development of consolidated schools; but believing, as they do, that because of the scattered farming population of Illinois one-room schools will be necessary for many years, they seek to make this type so efficient for the community that a desire will be created among the citizens in rural communities for greater educational advantages for their children.

CHAT AMONG THE FARMERS

Although the weather this fall has been good, there is considerable work yet to be done before farmers go into winter quarters. Due to the late spring, corn did not mature as early as usual, causing some loss in profits. In fact, these promises to be some yield, but before all the corn is put in the crib and the fodder stacked.

The cold snap last week transferred the corn from the corn to the beet patch and storing cabbage.

PAID GRASSES LOOKING FINE.
Wheat, fall sown, grass and sorghum have taken advantage of the warm weather and are showing up fine. It is the general talk that farmers in this vicinity are growing more hay than in former years and that this fall there is a still more abundance.

HER CORN CROP.
The corn crop in this locality does not measure up to the normal. The season this year has not been favorable to this crop. Let what we read of Shadlers of Mid-Atlantic growing 132 bushels and Nantux and Son of Marshalltown growing 140 bushels per acre, we begin to wonder what a wonder. At first we are skeptical and say it can't be done. I have heard farmers in Newark rural routes say that it is impossible to grow 100 bushels of corn on one acre. But repeated facts are hard to argue against. I wonder if we pay enough attention to our seed corn. These big corn kings are very careful in the selection of their seed corn. Lots of us get ready to plant and go to the crib and pick out a few good ears and let it go at that. There is, you know, a pedagogue even as well as a Jersey cow or a Yankee-Minuteman horse. And again, that man in to a good breeder and grower can have better rate during the winter than the ordinary corn crib.

Let's look into this seed corn business this winter. The Delaware Corn Growers' Association meets in Wilmington this year and I for one am going. This Association is made up of men interested in growing more and better corn. By getting together and exchanging ideas, they have increased their yield every year. Come go in, and see whether you can get it in 1913.

TOMATO CROP.
Tomatoes stand at the bottom of the list this year. The crop was almost a failure. It is thought, however, that a large acreage will be contracted for during the coming winter. The Gilbert Cannery built this year, is perhaps as well equipped as any on the peninsula. The machinery is modern and up-to-date in its sanitary appointments. Several labor-saving devices and machines for improved canning are ideas of Mr. Gilbert's and patented by him.

Mr. Gilbert, the managing owner, has won favor with the farmers here and by his fair dealing will no doubt be able to secure what average he desires.

NEW CANNERY IN PROSPECT.

According to advertisement in another column, there is prospect for another cannery during the coming season. The Newark Cannery, adjoining the Creamery owned by Joseph Dean, has been idle since the Snider Company left. Parties are negotiating for this plant and ask for a 300 acreage contract.

Tomatoes have always been more of less of a side issue among our farmers but with increased demand, they promise to come into more general cultivation. The soil here is even better adapted to tomatoes than the Southern counties. At least this is the opinion of many canning men. The product is reported to be of a superior quality.

How about 600 acres of tomatoes averaging 8 tons to the acre—1800 tons at Democratic price of $10 per ton? Let's have a Tomato Conference after Christmas.

THE STATE GRANGE MEETING.

Don't let any farmer forget the meeting of the State Grange in Newark next month. Watch The Post for full details of the meetings. This is a real Delaware farmer's meeting. About 150 and their wives will be there.

POTATOES.

Potatoes are becoming quite a crop over in Pencader Hundred. Virgil Gray, who has held the title of Potato King, is finding opposition in his claim to that honor. John Holloway, another down-penninsula farmer from near Snow Hill, who purchased the Pendleton farm, shows a yield of 1500 bushels this season. Thomas Green harvested a fine lot. Charles Jarmon, however, has an interesting report for this section. From a planting of less than a bushel on an experiment plot, he harvested 45 bushels of suitable tubers.

Lee Conch, editor of Practical Farmer, who in recent years has done most of his farming on paper is out with an advertisement offering Seed Potatoes for sale. (See another column). He has harvested an exceptionally fine lot of the Sir Walter Raleigh and has sorted out the very finest for seed. Any one who has good storage room—here is a good opportunity to get some fine seed at an attractive price.

Want Ads for Farmers

Only a comparatively few readers of newspapers realize the benefit of the Want Ad Department. It is a cheap form of advertising odds and ends. For the farmer it is always a paying proposition. Suppose you have a cow, few pigs that you would be willing to sell. Put it in the Want Column and rest assured you will get the customers. Then again, a farmer often sees where he could handle a heifer or calf during the winter. With a little extra forage, he has on hand, he can by feeding it make a dollar or so without any extra work. But he has not the time to hunt them up. Run in an Ad something like this:—

WANTED—Calves. Would buy 3 or 4 calves, if price is right.—

You will get an answer. There isn't a farmer in this community but what could have an Ad in our Want Department at a profit to him.

BOARD OF TRADE

With the reading of the daily reports of the renewed activities of the Wilmington Board of Trade, we are again persuaded to mention conditions here and urge an awakening of our local Board. So often have we discussed this question that in some quarters it has become a joke. "Short copy this week," the Post is talking Board of Trade," is the comment heard more than once. But seriously, one repeated talks on the possibilities of the local organization is more than newspaper copy. These are questions coming up every day that are discussed honestly and seriously by many of our leading citizens, yet go by default simply because of the lack of co-operative action.

Ideas and suggestions for town improvement need only be crystallized into public opinion which can best be done through some representative organization such as the Board of Trade.

The activities of this Board need not necessarily be confined to looking out for new prospects, yet this is a much neglected opportunity. For natural advantages, for easy access to market centers, education of inducements, Newark far surpasses any town in the State. Without doubt more industries could be secured and the Board should be constantly on searching alert for locating institutions that will add business and growth to the town. Yet, aside from this there is much that can be done to make Newark more attractive to home seekers and more comfortable to present residents. It would be almost impossible to reckon the change that could be brought about in Newark if only we could catch the idea of some of the "Town Beautiful" organizations now doing such effective work in many parts of the country. If we could once enter into the spirit of it one improvement would follow another in quick succession. Unsightly telephone and telegraph poles would come down, cement pavements and gutters would replace rough brick and flag stone curbing; trees would be cared for and new ones planted; our streets would be turned into drive-ways; water system main would be moved and reinstalled to prevent frequent breaking; church lawns would be cleaned in back as well as front. A public reading room and well appointed young men's club would enter competition with the pool rooms. Another thing, our business men and manufacturers would assist in a campaign to hold our home.

We would lounge ourselves with Wilmington Board of Trade to send our out-of-town trade to our home city.

Some money would be required, it is true but not so much as one would think at first glance. Money is not the real necessity in the development and beautifying of a town. It is the Spirit of Co-operation and enthusiasm. What we need is a working together and crystallizing of all the ideas of our different institutions and organizations. Let the Board of Trade be the clearing house and executive force in making Newark nearer what she ought to be. Let our banking institutions, our public school officials, our college faculty, manufacturing interests, firemen, New Century Club, clergy, merchants—all get together and rest assured ways and means would be devised that would make Newark a better place to live.

And the glory—oh there's enough for all.

COLLEGE NEWS

The News Letter from Delaware College appearing in another column, sent out to all the papers of the State is an interesting innovation. It is hoped that the editors will receive these in the spirit in which they are sent and give prominent publicity in their columns. This idea, on the part of the Faculty, is a good one and by the co-operation of the newspapers, the whole State will be brought in closer touch with the institution with the result of a healthier interest. Long official reports given out heretofore are seldom read except by those directly interested in the College.

By these newsy items of the every day life and activities of the College, a spirit of interest will be aroused that will do much for the College welfare.

The institution belongs to the whole citizenship and anything presented to them that will arouse a keen sense of ownership is well worth while. By these a closer relationship will be gained and when an appeal is made the state will more heartily respond.

We hope to see the day when the College will assume a leadership in all the public questions before the State. These letters will tend to assist in this in that they show willingness to talk with and be one of the people.

WHIPPING POST

Mr. Beverley Robinson, of New York, has written a letter entitled, "The Benefits of Flogging," in which he says:

In answer to the title above, I would state absolutely there are none. It brutalizes both prisoners and keepers. It is revolting to our senses. It is barbarous, unfeeling and worthless. It should be tolerated in no civilized community. It is to me a disgrace for any State or people to tolerate it. Prisoners are helped only through discipline, justice, kindness. Cruelty makes them hard, rebellious, revengeful. Thus it is and always will be with human nature. When one knows prisons and prisoners and has done what is possible to ameliorate conditions it is sickening to hear or read any statement or report which would help return to methods of repression which are a disgrace to those who dare inflict them. I venture to affirm after long experience that there is little excuse even in prisons for undue severity. Wardens can be firm and have obedience but without too severe or degrading punishments. The dark cell on bread and water with solitary confinement is bad enough. Don't, for pity's sake, have anything worse or more terrible. Flogging to a prisoner is an infamy without excuse or palliation.

For many decades the whipping post has been one of the most firmly-established penal institutions in Delaware. It has been assailed from within and without the State, and, from time to time, its abolishment has been urged. Robert Ingersoll denounced it as a "relie of barbarism." Others of prominence have attacked its maintenance. At no time, however, have the people of Delaware manifested a desire to do away with it. The sentiment in its favor as a deterrent and an instrument for the punishment of certain classes of criminals probably is stronger to-day than it has been in many years. Many of the things written by Dr. Robinson relative to the treatment of prisoners unquestionably are true. We doubt, however, that in this State, where flogging has been a recognized legal punishment so many years, such an opinion with regard to it as is expressed by the doctor will serve to weaken materially the weight of public opinion now existing in favor of flogging.—Evening Journal

True, shameful to admit, the whipping post seems, at present, firmly established in Delaware. At the same time, it is a "relie of barbarism." So far Police Courts have succeeded in holding the "sentiment in its favor as a deterrent" but in direct contradiction to statistics gathered by practical students of penology. The whipping post is not deterrent and not only the sense of civilization but facts will bear out the statement. We do ill in heeding advice of Police Court theories. Prison reforms, abolishment of the stocks and thumb screw, all utilitarian theories of punishment have been brought about against strong opposition of Police.

In the punishment of crime, the one supreme idea is social welfare. The aim of criminal law, like civil law, or all principles of conduct, is to re-educate.

is the general weal. And just as society has advanced have forms of brutal punishment decreased.

To lash the back of one man to deter another from crime is today poor argument.

In the first you release the criminal who has paid the retribution and send him back to society with evil passion against law and state. "Men," says George Eliot, "do not become penitent and learn to abhor themselves by having their backs cut open with the lash; rather they learn to abhor the lash."

In the other, you have engendered not respect but ineffective fear. Abstractly you have no more right to punish one man to deter another. Practically, you have aroused rather than subdued the worst in the criminal and send him back on Society.

When the reformation and education theories take the place of the retributive and false, unjust deterrent, then Society will have gone far in decreasing crime and may Delaware soon decide to keep pace with these most humanitarian and practical methods.

The whipping post is maintained in Delaware by the same sentiment that permits the cells in the City Hall of Wilmington—yet the whipping post is about as deterrent as those cells against crime and about as disgraceful.

HOLD TRADE AT HOME

Plans for Christmas shopping are being made and the trip lends favorably to Philadelphia. Nothing but a concerted effort by all our business men will ever stop this. The Board of Trade should need no greater incentive than this. Make a rousing campaign to keep this trade at home. Let us look up with Wilmington. The old Post slogan, "If you can't get it in Newark, buy it in Wilmington."

What's the matter with the banks and manufacturers? Let's keep their money in circulation here. Let's all help our merchants hold this trade. Of course they must help but all of us working together can stop much of this Christmas shopping away from home.

BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

Newark can have better train service when she wants it bad enough to demand it in a co-operative way.

Periodic grumbling about poor service will not get it but a request, with arguments at command by an organization representing the town—that will bring the question to a careful consideration by the Railroad officials. At least that is our opinion and it is backed by a railroad man who knows.

Let's try it.

Review of Dr. Vaughn's Book

A recent volume of the publications of the Department of History of the University of Pennsylvania, entitled Studies in the History of English Commerce in the Tudor Period, contains an admirable little essay by Professor Ernest V. Vaughan on "English Trading Expeditions into Asia under the Authority of the Muscovy Company (1557-1581)". These voyages of the Muscovy Company into Asia in the second half of the sixteenth century were, as Professor Vaughan points out, characteristic of the new epoch of adventure, of exploration, and of commanding commercial activity. Although these early attempts to open up a trade with the far East by this long overland route were not successful, the researches of the author show that they derive great significance from the fact that they laid the foundation for the commercial and colonial empire of England. Further attempts to prosecute the Persian trade by way of Russia and the Caspian Sea became less attractive to Englishmen with the establishment of trading companies which made use of a more direct and practicable route. The Turkey or Levant Company, founded in 1581, and the East India Company, chartered at the close of the century, made the southern extremity of the Persian Gulf the center of English activity in the development of the Persian trade, while the northern route by way of the Caspian Sea ultimately fell to Russia.

New Century Club News

On Monday afternoon at the New Century Club the program was given to travel, both at home and abroad.

Mr. Lee Cooch read a most interesting paper, giving her personal experience of a trip taken during the past summer to California over the Santa Fe Trail.

She touched on the desert of California with its lurid sunsets; on the orange groves, having the Eucalyptus trees growing in with and overtopping the orange trees, thus saving the oranges from frost; and finally she spoke of those most interesting missions built by the Franciscan Fathers throughout California, a days journey from one to another.

Miss Hossinger took us across the water to London, where she succeeded in making us see through her eyes the many interesting spots of the largest city in the world, whose pinners alone outnumber the population of our city of Wilmington.

The Newark W. C. T. U. will meet on Friday, 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Walraven.

WHITE CLAY CREEK CHURCH

On Thursday evening of this week (Nov. 21), the Woman's Missionary Society will hold their annual meeting at the Manse. This will take the form of a social gathering to which the congregation and their friends are cordially invited. There will be a specially prepared program rendered, in which Mr. Arthur Chillas and Mr. Gilbert Chambers, Jr., will assist with violin. A light luncheon will be served.

The net proceeds from our annual supper reached the neat sum of $245. The Ladies' Improvement Society take this opportunity of returning their hearty thanks, not only to those of our own number, but also to the many outsiders who rendered such valuable assistance to make this a marked success.

Our trustees have just made the last payment on the Manse debt. We now stand before the world as free men.

Our annual Harvest Home service will, we expect, be held on Sabbath the first day of December. Particulars will be announced next week.

New Experiment Station Bulletin

Professor Efron Thompson and H. D. Morgan of the Delaware College Experiment Station are giving to the public this week a bulletin which discusses the possibilities of the soy bean as an oil seed, in conjunction with its undoubted value as a nitrogen-gatherer for the soil. In 1908, owing to the scarcity of linsed and cottonseed products, serious attention was given to the soy bean by the oil mills of England with a result that was highly satisfactory. While the oil has been used to a considerable extent in the United States there has been none manufactured here.

Reports from widely separated parts of the country show that the soy bean can be brought to maturity in any part of the United States hence the bulletin is especially interesting and opportune.

Miss Anna Naudain spent Friday with relatives in Wilmington.

New Financial Plan
for College Athletics

The Athletic Council of Delaware College has outlined a financial plan which it is thought will prove popular and at the same time result in more funds being raised to carry on the college sports. The plan will go into effect at the beginning of the next collegiate year.
Every student who pays his athletic dues within 30 days after registration will be allowed to purchase a non-transferable ticket at a reduced price good for all games during the college year played at home. Students who do not pay their athletic dues within the 30 days will be required to pay the general admission to each game they attend, which will be much more expensive should they witness many of the games.

The student who is eligible to purchase a non-transferable ticket will also be allowed to purchase one transferable ticket for a friend if he so desires. There will also be a season ticket for all home games than can be purchased by the general public.

Wedding at the Deer Park

Paul H. Britton of 839 N. Newkirk street, Philadelphia, and Miss Stella H. Andrews of 84th and Bartram streets, Philadelphia, were married at the Deer Park Hotel at 2 o'clock last Monday afternoon.
The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. F. Otter, of Kemblesville, a friend of the bride's family.
After luncheon at the hotel the couple returned to Philadelphia.

This is the second trip the couple made to Delaware to be married.
On the first occasion four months ago a license could not be secured because of the fact that Miss Andrews was not 18 years of age at that time. They went back to their respective homes in Philadelphia and awaited the arrival of the bride's eighteenth birthday which was within the past few days.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder but the memory of the ab-

 You long to picture in your mind just how "HE" or "SHE" would look, but there's a mysterious something which makes the mental pic-

But if you had a photograph be-acts, the gentle words.

Wouldn't that "ONE" so far

DELAWARE COLLEGE NEWS BUDGET

Recently the wives of members of the Faculty of Delaware College organized a News Budget for the purpose of fostering the news interests of the college community. This club, composed of twenty-five members, was formed about a month ago and has held meetings at the homes of Miss Harter and Mrs. Hayward.
 Monthly meetings are planned for the near future, and it is believed the new organization not only fills a distinct need but is also another step in the development of real college interests and ideals.
 Such an organization can do much good in the college community.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY DEPARTMENT

Prof. E. V. Vaughn, of the Department of History at Delaware College, is striving to build up a strong library for the study of Delaware History, but to a considerable degree this work is handicapped by the scarcity of printed material. It has been suggested that perhaps the citizens of the State and especially the old historic families would be glad to contribute to this laudable undertaking, at least to the extent of informing the Department just what unpublished material exists, where it may be found, and whether it can be made available to students of state and local history.

to the any of printed material some important additions to the library have been made but why not make the College a repository for the material scattered here and there through the State and at present ineffective because so scattered?
 Why not make this library worthy of the traditions of Delaware and the men who have made its history?

HISTORICAL LECTURES

President Edwin Earl Sparks, of Pennsylvania State College, will deliver one of the lectures to be given during the winter at Delaware College. Pres.
 Sparks was formerly extension lecturer for Chicago University and the College is very fortunate in obtaining a lecturer of such note. He is a fine speaker, a historian and writer of prominence, and his lecture will be a treat. He will be here in February. It is expected that all the other speakers will be announced shortly.
